HISD Seeks Appraisal-Method Change

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

Superintendent Harrell Holder told the Hereford Independent School District board Tuesday night that he would recommend to other political entities comprising a new single tax-appraisal district that the school district be allowed to pay only for the cost of appraising property in the county by a different method than one stated in a Senate bill.

A three-fourths vote of the entities would allow HISD to pay a proportionate share based on the actual cost of the appraisal and not the amount of taxes collected on a particular piece of

Senate Bill 621, which requires single tax-appraisal districts in counties, states that a three-fourths vote can change the method of electing members for the appraisal-district board and the ratio-devised amounts each entity is required to pay for an

Since HISD collects taxes on 60 percent of valuation and Deaf Smith County collects on 24 percent, "we would collect twice as much taxes as the county, which in return would mean that we pay twice as much for the appraisal on the same piece of property." Holder told trustees.

"Right now, we're charging out these appraisals on a parcel basis. We'll ask the appraisal board and the respective boards and commissions to keep it on a parcel basis. If a piece of land lies in the school district and county, we'll split it two ways. If it's in the city, county and school district, we'll split it three ways," Holder said.

Based on a formula in SB 621, the school district would otherwise pay 51 percent of the cost of an appraisal since it collects 51 percent of the taxes in the county.

"We want to do it just like we did in 1976 (when the last county-wide reappraisal was conduct)," tax assessor-collector Fred Fox said. "Each entity should pay its fair share and the school's burden lessoned some."

SB 621 requires each entity in a tax-appraisal district to use 100 percent valuations beginning in 1981, Fox said.

"It will be a lot less complicated when we do that," he said. The board, by resolution, voted to change the method of election set up in SB 621, then accepted the nominations of school board member James Gentry, Walcott ISD trustee Dan Hall, hospital district president Frank Zinser Jr., county commissioner Bruce Coleman and city tax equalization board (See TRUSTEES, Page 2)

GUESS YOU NOTICED the suggestion coming out of Washington recently that service stations be allowed to charge for washing your windshield, checking tire pressures and other small services. The station business has come full circle--from the old "filling station" to the service station, and not back to a filling station.

Motorists have discovered in most parts of the nation that full service stations have been dwindling for a long time. It is rare to find a station attendant who cleans a windshield without being

There was a long period of time when stations competed for the gasoline dollar, offering more and better service. Some offered trading stamps, glassware, free maps, and provided rest rooms and ice water. The gasoline shortage changed the picture, but the self-service business had already made a difference.

IF YOU THINK gasoline is high in the U.S., take a look at these prices per gallon in Western Europe: Great Britain $2.07. France $2.61. Netherlands $2.31. Spain $2.72.

Have you notice how the push in Congress to do something about the energy problem has lost steam with the disappearance of the gasoline lines? The heat is off and there is a tendency to go back to business as usual. Our system primarily reacts to problems and circumstances that are clearly visible. People in the know say our energy problem is still worse than it's ever been.

House May Increase Salaries

WASHINGTON (AP) - Members of the House of Representatives are girding for the second battle of 1979 in a war over how much money they will pay themselves during the next fiscal year.

The starting point is the current salary of $57,500 a year.

The possibilities for change range from no raise at all to a 12.9 percent increase.

The stage for a showdown within the next three weeks was set Tuesday when a House Appropriations subcommittee unanimously a agreed to resurrect legislation that would grant a 7 percent cost-of-living pay boost.

The action of the legislative appropriations subcommittee ran counter to predictions from House leaders that congressional pay would be frozen for

That public assessment came after the House rejected the original proposal for a 7 percent pay raise last June and returned the bill appropriating money for 1980 congressional operating expenses to the subcommittee for further action.

keep intact the original recommendation for a 7 percent raise. The measure now goes to the House Appropriations Committee for further action. It is expected to be voted on by the full House before the new federal budget year begins Oct. 1.

In a related development, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, introduced a bill in the Senate Tuesday to freeze congressional salaries at $57,500. A spokesman for Hatch said the bill would allow a cost-of-li increase for top federal employees but would prohibit any increase in congressional salaries. The spokesman asked not to be named.

Both opponents and supporters of a pay raise agree that unless some action is taken b by Oct. 1, members of the House and t the Senate could receive a whopping 12.9 percent pay raise - $7,417 a

Such an increase would be the result of a congressional decision several years back to include members of the House and Senate in any cost-of-living pay increase given federal workers.

Energy Projects Gain Political Momentum

By DAVID ESPO Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House committee is ready to approve legislation to speed development of high-priority energy projects amid a fresh prediction that Congress will give President Carter much of what he's asking for on energy.

The House Commerce Committee arranged to meet today for what aides said would be a final day of debate on a bill establishing an energy mobilization

The board would have strong powers to cut through red tape hindering completion of high-priority energy projects, including the authority to recommend waivers of federal, state or local laws.

While only the president would have the actual authority to waive a law subject to a veto by either house of Congress - the provision has drawn strong objection from groups including environmentalists, governors and some liberal members of the committee. Carter, meeting at the White House Tuesday with members of the Senate Energy Committee, said he wants the mobilization board's authority limited to assuring that decisions relating to construction are made promptly.

The president told the senators, as well as a group of governors in a second session, that he does not want the board to run roughshod over state laws or

Sen. Henry Jackson, DWash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, declared after the meeting that Carter was "more cooperative than I have seen him in a long time."

As a result, Jackson said, "He's going to get the bulk of what he's asked for.'

During his meeting with the governors, Carter assured them that his goal of stockpiling 240 million barrels of heating oil and diesel fuel before winter is ahead of schedule.

And in a later meeting with the executive committee of the National Governors' Association, Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan promised to see that the heating oil gets delivered to those who need it.

Besing said Bell had failed to prove its need for greater revenues and had based its case on "hearsay, conclusions and rank speculation" instead of solid evidence.

Of all the businesses in the nation, he said, the Bell system is "the most bulletproof against risk."

Jon Dee Lawrence, attorney for Bell, accused Besing of "convoluted logic" and of making a "grandstand play."

"Because Mr. Besing doesn't like what we have placed in evidence, he objects ot it," Lawrence said.

He said a traditional opponent of rate increases, the Texas Municipal League, as well as the PUC staff had recognized Bell's need for additional revenue, "based on standard ratemaking princi-

The municipal league and the commission staff have recommended smaller increases than Bell requested.

The exact amount would depend on how big an increase the commission wants to order for "vertical services" such as PBX, Centrex and special equipment used by large businesses.

Ms. Parsons filed a recommendation a week ago that Bell's revenues from vertical services rise by from $53.6 million to $75.5 million. Increases in vertical service costs would result in a need for a smaller increase than Bell proposed for local telephone service.

Walcott ISD Approves Tax Board

Members of the Walcott School Board approved a resolution to join the Deaf Smith County tax appraisal district and also approved a resolution electing the five directors to serve the county tax appraisal district during their regular session Tuesday night.

Board members also confirmed delegates to the upcoming Texas Association of School Boards meeting in San Antonio.

Walcott board delegates will include Gaylen Jack, president, Bill Page, secretary, and Dan Hall.

Teacher class schedules were reviewed by the board members, with the schedules revealing a combination of traditional self-contained classroom education plus a degree of departmentalization.

Bill Finding, seventh grade teacher at Walcott, presented a program to the trustees on a teaching aid device purchased in the 1978-79 budget, which illustrates the human torso.

According to Findling, the model is used as a learning device for students in kindergarten through eighth grade, to provide students with a better understanding of the human body.

In other action, Walcott board members approved the transfer of two students from Hereford and one student from Adrian, and reviewed the 1979-80 basketball schedule.

Board members were presented with copies of the recently updated school board policy books.

A transportation report presented to board members revealed that school vehicles traveled a total of 6,081 miles through the Sept. 1 period.

Board members voted to move their meeting date for October to Tuesday.

COMMENTARY Donald F. Graff

The road to Lhasa?

For a mountain boy, he has come a long way.

Tibet's Dalai Lama is currently touring the United States like any other foreign leader. Well, maybe not quite.

With his shaved head and purple toga, he is certainly not your run of the crowd prime minister or president. But he is more than exotic. He is a political issue as well as leader, and has been since fleeing the Chinese occupiers of his homeland

For most of the period since, he has been camping out with thousands of followers just over the border in India's Hima-lyan foothills. Which has been a real problem for Peking. because as far as most Tibetans are concerned, where the Dalai Lama is is where Tibet really is. As long as they con-front that loyalty, the new order the Chinese brought to Tibet remains a veneer.

To believe the Dalai Lama is thought of as a "living god" is a misreading of the actual Tibetan conception. He is a reincarnation — the 14th since the 14th century — of a saintly spirit destined eventually to become a Buddha.

Meanwhile, he is being of immediate and practical help to his people in this life — the six million or so Tibetans throughout the world, less than two million of whom are actually in Tibet. As such, he is the head of the Yellow Hats, Tibet's largest monastic order and therefore the theocratic country's effective political as well as religious leader.

The Dalai Lama may not be precisely a living god, but he is the lively protagonist of one of the great political dramas of the times. This is not the first time that the Chinese have enforced a claim to Tibet that is almost as old as the histories of the two countries. But it is probably one of the few times they have run into such a politically adept leader of such an other-worldly people.

The 14th Dalai Lama either came into this world with innate political savvy as well as the saintly spirit of his predecessors, or acquired a great deal of it in his Indian exile.

He has for years impressed visitors to his Himalayan place of exile with his intelligence and personality. He gave evidence of both immediately upon arrival in New York, handling the pushy American press as deftly as any pro on the public appearance circuit.

At the request of the U.S. government, he is making the visit in his capacity as a religious leader rather than as a head of state, exiled or otherwise. A fine point that is likely to make no difference to audiences during his 49-day U.S. tour, but his considerable significance to the keepers of protocol in Washington and Peking.

What is of even more significance is the timing. The Dalai Lama has long indicated an interest in personally publicizing the Tibetan case in the United States. But during the long years of hostility and mutual nonrecognition between the United States and what was then carefully designated Mainland China, Washington would have none of it.

Now that U.S.-Chinese rapprochement has rapidly progressed to something closely resembling chumminess, the Dalai Lama is suddenly welcome. Clearly, his visit — officially in his religious capacity - is no offense and backs up reports Peking is interested in making a deal that would permit his return to Tibet.

He has now confirmed that contacts have taken place, but declines at present to go into details or speculate on results.

It does not however, take much talent at speculating to discern that a new look to the new order in Tibet may be in the making. That remote land has always been more of a pawn than a participant in the affairs of nations. A reordering of its affairs acceptable to both to the interested nations and its own people and leader would not be one of the most momentous consequences of China's rejoining the world, but neither would it be the least significant.

The Dalai Lama will have indeed come a long way, and by a strange route.

Lizard power?

The researchers aren't sure exactly why, but the preliminary evidence indicates pets may do more than provide company in their owners' lives.

Furred and feathered friends may prolong life. A year-long follow-up study of people treated for serious heart problems at a Philadelphia hospital, as reported by the Health Insurance Institute, found the survival rate significantly higher for those with pets than for those

The pet-human bond may give individuals something more to live for, it is theorized, or it may be that the petowning type is somehow different and more resilient.

The type of pet, mostly dogs and cats, seemed to make no difference in the survival statistics with one interesting exception. Perhaps it shouldn't be mentioned to avoid starting a run on the limited market, but a one-person category posted a 100 percent survival rate. The pet was an iguana.

A capital development

If he had known he would end up providing evidence for his enemies, Karl Marx might have given up writing early in his revolutionary career.

A first edition of his "Communist Manifesto," the call to brought $65,000 at a Paris auction. Only a dozen copies are known to exist of the work co-authored with Friedrich Engels in 1848.

The record price only goes to prove the truth of a basic law of economics that capitalists have known about all along - supply and demand.

Collectors cool on soup

Demand can also drop, with a consequent effect on prices, as is happening with the work of pop artist Andy

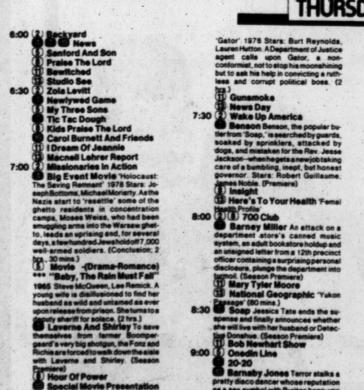

The paintings of soup cans he was turning out in the early '70s for prices on the order of $60,000 currently might be expected to be had for as little as $30,000, according to a recent Wall Street Journal report quoting spokesmen of the New York auction house, Sotheby Parke Bernet.

Quite a drop in less than a decade, but that's still a lot of chicken noodle.

Yaz Nears 3,000th Hit; Rangers Defeat Seattle

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer

Carl Yastrzemski will get his 3,000th major league hit today ... or Thursday ... or the day after ... but he will get it.

"I never thought one hit would be so hard to get," the Boston slugger said Tuesday night after failing for the second straight game to become the first player in American League history to have 3,000 hits and 400 home runs.

But Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees isn't wor-

"You know as well as I do he's going to get his 3,000th hit as sure as the sun's going to come up," Jackson said of Yastrzemski. "As long as he doesn't get upset and start pushing.

Yastrzemski went hitless in three official at-bats against former teammate Luis Tiant and relievers Ron Davis and Rich Gossage as the Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox 8-3. He walked - his first base on balls since Aug. 13, 45 games popped to second baseman Willie Randolph in shallow center field, flied to right and fouled to catcher Jerry

"The law of percentages is on my side," Yaz said. "I'm not being given a chance to think of anything else. I've had very few hitter's pitches to hit. I've been getting pitcher's pitches. I want to get it over with."

Even the Yankee starter, Tiant, is pulling for the Red Sox

Nigh, Sims Take Grid Panel Lead

After the first week of forecasts by the celebrated crew hands in two weeks. of Fearless Forecasters, prognosticators Bob Nigh and Paul Sims lead the pack with 17 correct picks and a winning percentage of .654. In second place with 15 right and a correct guess percentage of .577 is Jim Steiert and trailing the pack is Speedy Nieman with 12 right and a percentage of winning guesses set at .462.

Nigh and Sims each missed nine games with both incorrectly picking West Texas State to win its second game of the season and that Brownfield, New Mexico State, Air Force, Texas A&M, and Colorado would win.

All four of the forecasters missed on the Brownfield and WT games as well as the A&M. Air Force and Colorado contests. Sims was the only one of the four to correctly pick that Hereford would fall in their first encounter. Nigh meanwhile predicted that Estacado would beat Plainview and that San Diego would outlast the Oakland Raiders.

As a group the panel picked at a .654 rate and finished with a record of 17-9.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Billy Sample "is going to be a star one of these days," says Texas Manager Pat Corrales, who first must decide whose place Sample is going to take in the lineup.

One would think the inescapable pressure of the pennant race would be a heavy burden for a player to bear, day in and day out. But four National League clubs seem to be enjoying every second of it:

-"It's a pleasure to come to work," said Pittsburgh pitcher Dave Roberts, who celebrated his 35th birthday Tuesday night with a 7-3 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals that virtually kept the Pirates first in the East. -"I can't believe this team

... It's just a pleasure to watch them," said Montreal's Dan Schatzeder, the winning pitcher in the 3-2 Expos triumph which gave them a sweep of their twinighter with the Chicago Cubs and a share of first place with Pittsburgh in the East.

-"It was one of the most exciting games I've ever been in," said Houston third baseman Enos Cabell, even though the Astros dropped a wild and crazy 9-7 decision to Cincinnati and watched the Reds replace them atop the West Division.

The four clubs with pennant fever left the dreariness of the season's final weeks to the noncontenders, as the Philadelphia Phillies bested the New York Mets 5-2, the San Diego Padres topped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 and the Atlanta Braves nipped the San Francisco Giants

The Pirates got four innings of three-hit relief from the veteran Roberts to defeat the Cardinals and retain a half-game lead over Montreal, even though the Expos - winners 14 times in their last 15 games own first place by six onehundred-thousandths of a point. "This whole club is a different world. I see what I've been 👌 missing all my life," said Roberts, who notched his 100th career triumph. Willie Stargell's two-run homer was the big hit for the Pirates, who have won 13 of 17. but lost ground when the Expos swept Tuesday night. "We're making the unbelievable plays that you have to make (to win a divisional crown)." said Schatzeder, who watched Dave Cash drive in the Warren Cromartie with the winning run in the fifth inning of the nightcap.

Cash had five hits in the twinbill. Andre Dawson paced Montreal's 13-hit attack with three runs batted in, leading the Expos to an 8-6 triumph in the opener despite Dave Kingman's 45th homer of the year.

Dave Concepcion hit a tworun homer and George Foster followed with a solo shot in the seventh inning to help Cincinnati beat Houston.

Cabell said the game "had everything in it - home runs, close plays - you can't pay to see that much action in a month."

The fans had expected to see pitching duel between the Reds' Tom Seaver and Houston's J.R. Richard, baseball's strikeout leader.

Well, that notion evaporated under the Riverfront Stadium lights: Richard lasted just five innings and Seaver managed 52-3 as the teams combined for 28 hits (including 10 doubles and the two homers) and 17

"We played a lot of games year that made this one like a fundamental success," mused the Reds' Johnny

"I think we're going to win it, but from here on out our most one," said Ray Knight, who may be the Reds' most valuable player in his first full year at third base. "Up to now, this was the most important game we played all year."

"We need to win, but if we lose tomorrow night that's not the pennant," Virdon said.

Three Pennant Races In Doubt, 20 Days Left

AP Sports Writer

Three of the four pennant races in the two leagues still remain very much in doubt with less than 20 days left in the 1979. baseball season.

Only Baltimore in the American League East is running away with its division, while the AL West and both divisions in the National League remain close. And it looks like direct confrontations between the pennant contenders in each of those divisions could decide it.

After Tuesday night's action, Baltimore held an 11-game lead over Milwaukee in the AL East, but the California Angels led the Kansas City Royals by only four games in the West.

In the National League, Montreal led Pittsburgh by less than one one-hundredth of a percentage point in the East since the Expos have two fewer losses, and the Cincinnati Reds led Houston by a half game in the West.

The Reds and Astros have traded that lead five times since Aug. 28.

Milwaukee is in the odd position of not having a single division game left, and the Brewers must rely on other East Division teams to slow down the torrid pace of the Orioles. The Orioles, who sport the best record in baseball, have won 14 of their last 19 games. They have not lost more than four in a row since July 7 when they ended their longest losing streak of the season at five The Orioles have three games left against the Boston Red Sox.

Rams, 49ers Clash In Coast Rivalry

Coach Ray Malavasi showed a and is expected to see even about possible game-breakers on his Los Angeles Rams.

"We have several," he answered when asked why the Rams appear to be the grind-itout variety of team without the so called "home run hitter."

"We've got Preston Dennard, Wendell Tyler, Willie Miller and Lawrence Mc-Cutcheon," replied Malavasi. "And Ron Jessie has the ability to make the great catch. He hasn't done it for a little while, but we still see it in practice."

Questioned why Dennard and Tyler didn't play more, Malavasi showed his anger, saying, "There are a lot more things involved. Cullen Bryant is probably the most underrated back in the league and we're going to use him a lot. So our rotation is not 50-50. We're trying to build the experience of the younger players and then they'll get more playing time.

Panel Suggests Equal Spending

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission has reversed its policy concerning equal rights for men and women in college athletics by suggesting universities immediately begin spending the same amount on both sexes in all sports programs.

In January, the commission athletics by colleges and universities should be the same in all sports except football, which pita calculations over a five-year

Commission recommendations hold no force of law since it has no enforcement or legislative powers. Its suggestions go to the Health, Education and Welfare Department, which decides whether to implement them.

The change of heart concerning concerning college athletics w was made public in Houston prior to the opening Tuesday of a two-day hearing on police practices.

The federal commission can concern itself with activities in colleges and universities because of Title IX of the 1972 amendments to the Higher Education Act, which prohibits sex discrimination in federally funded educational programs.

Soon after the amendments were passed, HEW issued a regulation calling for men and women to receive the same athletic benefits.

Landry's Job Not Easy, But Horoscope Laughed Off

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - It was his 55th birthday and Tom Landry, a Virgo, was handed a horoscope in the local newspaper. Landry broke up.

"It says I need to change my lifestyle," Landry said with a hearty laugh. Landry, the National Football League's active dean of the coaching ranks, plans to keep directing the Dallas Cowboys for some time to come but his job hasn't been an easy one in the last two weeks.

His defending National Conference champions are 2-0 but have impressed no one.

They tied a club-high record 14 penalties last Sunday in struggling past the lowly San Francisco 49ers 21-13.

The Cowboys could have a better run defense Sunday with the return of Henderson, who was benched last week.

Landry demoted Henderson last Sunday in favor of Mike Hegman after Henderson missed most of practice before the 49er game.

Henderson apologized to Landry and the team last Saturday for an interview given a national magazine in which Henderson was critical of the Cowboy organization. Landry said Henderson's demotion did not stem from the article.

"If Thomas Henderson works he will start," said Landry.

Asked what kind of job Hegman did against the 49ers in the ragged Cowboys victory, Landry said "fair. He missed some assignments. But most of our players did.

Landry said Tony Dorsett made progress during the game" in his first start of the almost 200 yards rushing year after dropping a mirror and cracking a toe in July. 'He started turning it upfield

Ruling Fate Questioned

By The Associated Press

The NCAA's expert on Title IX says he feels the Civil Rights Commission's newest recommendation on equalization of men's and women's athletic programs - which has college athletic officials on edge probably will be ignored by the federal government.

On Tuesday, the Civil Rights Commission reversed an earlier position by suggesting that colleges and universities immediately be required to equalize per capita expenditures for men and women in all sports, including football.

The commission, however, has no legislative or enforcement powers. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is charged with enforcing Title IX, the 1972 ammendment to the Higher Education Act that prohibits sex discrimination in federally funded educational programs.

Tom Hansen, NCAA assistant executive director, said he thought HEW had become disenchanted with the equal per capita concept and "will have already done its own thinking on these matters" when it comes time to make a decision later

"CRC was pressed by a number of women's groups to change this," he said. "I guess l continue to think that HEW will not accept the CRC recommendations.

Originally, football would have been given special consideration under Title IX interpretation because of the ex- money on - eight assistant pense involved. It was felt that since no woman's sport was comparable in expense to football, football would be excluded from equal per capita spending

Paul Dietzel, athletic director at Louisiana State University, said the only way to equalize spending for men's and women's programs completely would be to cut the men back to two or three sports while leaving the women with 10 or

"That would put us out of business," Dietzel said of the commission's recommendation. "Let's say that Tulane, for instance, has a $3 million athletic budget. They would immediately have to have a $5 million budget to provide the same women's volleyball coaches?"

Hugh Hindman, athletic director at Ohio State, said: "It costs $800 to equip a football player. How much does it cost to put a female swimmer in a tank suit? We would have to spend it ($800) to cover football if it were included. I question the sensibility of that formula."

Vince Dooley, head football coach and athletic director at Georgia, said his school's stand all along has been "the federal" government snstitutions plot their own destiny."

"The schools recognize the need to make opportunities equal for men and women, and we feel like schools have acted responsibly in the last couple of years in making some adjustments where they have been needed," Dooley said.

Insurance Gets Senate Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new crop insurance program to replace the current patchwork of federal insurance and disaster aid has been given Senate approval.

The Senate voted for the measure 64-27 Monday.

Limited insurance is now available for some major crops in many - but not most counties. That is supplemented by emergency loans for specific problems and disaster relief.

The measure approved by the Senate and sent to the House was a compromise between farm-state members who wanted to study the idea further and the Carter administration. which proposed more than a year ago a new all-crops, alldisasters system.

The Senate Agriculture Committee estimates the new program will cost $110 million next year and increase steadily to $290 million by 1984.

Prominent among resolutions passed by WIFE delegates in Hereford for the convention was a proposal to support any major interstate compacts on grain and water, or any matters favorable to agiculture.

Delegates also proposed to press for voter approval of the Family Farm Security Act, in a show of support for legislation which would create special loans to help young people get started in farming and ranching.

solar power, water importation and a multi-state grain compact.

"I think it is important to emphasize that it is not so important to be pro Farm Bureau, or pro Farmers Union or pro American Agriculture Movement, but if you are not pro agriculture, then you do not care and you do a disservice to those you claim to serve,"

"We know that no single program will produce total success or acceptance, but a thousand small successes will help turn the tide in how we think, and how we get others to think about agriculture, about energy, and about America," George continued, in urging WIFE members to maintain pieces of legislation to pass the 66th Legislature."

He pointed out that "passage of the legislation will prove virtually meaningless unless the voters adopt the constitutional amendment creating the act in November."

According to George, the measure is particularly vital to the young farmer or rancher who may not be able to stay in business without its adoption.

George also indicated that adoption of the measure is vital in averting a steady stream of foreign purchases of Texas farmland.

"The November ballot this year is not one to stir a lot of excitement, and therefore a light turnout from the rural areas could send this important amendment down the drain," George warned in conclusion.

> University System. "Feeders placed 1.6 million head fewer cattle on feed through the first half of this year, which partially accounts for the large numbers of feeder cattle still left." explains

Extension Service, Texas A&M

These reduced placements. along with only a one percent reduction in the 1979 calf crop and a sharp reduction in calf slaughter, mean there will be a lot of potential feeder cattle available during the rest of this year, reminds the specialist.

"Cattlemen indicate that this year's calf crop is later than usual. Therefore, calves born in the summer will be added to the total feeder animal supplies

Uvacek points out.

He adds that feedlot losses have become more common with the lower fed cattle prices This could further reduce the demand for feeder animals, just when supplies are increasing.

"So, cattlemen hoping for stronger prices this fall may be so the disappointed," says Uvacek.

Until recently, chlorophyll was thought to be the only thing capable of photosynthesis. However, Dr. Walter Soeckenius of the University of California, San Francisco, found in the Dead Sea a saltloving micro-organism called Halobacterium halobium. It yields a purple pigment that is the only other known biological substance that can turn sunlight directly into energy, according to National Geographic.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Leaky heart valves

DEAR DR. LAMB - Would you please comment on leaky heart valves? My doctor tells me I have a dysfunction of my heart valve caused by scarlet fever in childhood. Would you explain damage to the mitral valve or the aortic valve and how these problems can be corrected? I'm a 55-year-old

DEAR READER - Your doctor thinks you've had rheu-matic fever with the compli-cation of rheumatic heart disease. Scarlet fever is a streptococcal infection, a strep throat associated with a rash. When these conditions are not treated adequately at the beginning, a person may develop rheumatic fever. In your childhood, it wasn't widely known that the real cause for rheumatic fever was streptococcal infections. And it wasn't known that administration of penicillin whenever a person had such an infection would prevent rheumatic fever. Proper treatment has had a lot to do with the closing of many hospitals once devoted almost exclusively to treating rheumatic heart disease in children. It's one of the great successes in preventing heart

The heart valves can actually be damaged or scarred by the inflammation. Normally the little valves in your heart close perfectly to prevent leakage of blood. They are really flap-like valves; if the flaps are damaged, they can't close properly and the leak

The mitral valve is between the upper and lower chambers on the left side of your heart. If it leaks, every time the left ventricle (the heavy pumping chamber) contracts to eject blood out to your arteries, it also squirts blood backward into the upper chamber of the heart.

The aortic valve is situated at the outlet of the left ventricle at the entrance to the aorta, the large artery that carries blood to the entire body except the lungs. If it leaks, the blood will be squirted out into your arteries but some of it will leak back into the heart. This affects the blood pressure and can overwork the left side of the heart.

If the damage is slight, the heart is able to compensate for this and a person might not notice any significant changes. It's interesting to note that people with dam-aged heart valves — both aortic and mitral - have held athletic records.

There's not much else that can be done for these valves except surgical correction if needed. You have to rely on studies of how your heart is working as a pump to deter-mine whether you need of course, anyone who has heart-valve defects should be certain to take antibiotics any time he has a respiratory infection, an operation or even has his teeth cleaned. This helps to prevent infec-tions to the heart valve that can cause more serious damage.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 47-year-old female. I'm 5 feet 4 and weigh 128 pounds. I have high blood pressure and take Inderal and Hydrodiuril daily.

When my high blood pressure was discovered, I had dizziness, vomiting and loss of memory. The doctor discontinued my Premarin. I had had a hysterectomy three years before that.

Now I have hot flashes that are very annoying and uncomfortable, especially at night. Is it dangerous to take hormones in my state of health and, if so, why?
DEAR READER - There are many factors related to high blood pressure. There are specific medical conditions that can cause it, but in the vast majority of cases we don't know why one person has high blood pressure and another seemingly similar person does not.

Your description suggests that you had very high blood pressure, possibly associated with accumulation of fluid in the brain (cerebral edema) The acute increases in blood pressure associated with those kinds of symptoms are some-times called a hypertensive crisis.

I hope the medicines you are taking have controlled your blood pressure so, that it's within relatively normal limits now.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure, to give you a better idea of the factors that control this condition. There's no way I can tell you whether you can take hormones. Certainly you don't need to worry about cancer of the uterus since you had a hysterectomy. But the question is whether the hormones are related to your blood pres-

There are a small number of women who develop high blood pressure with birth-control pills. After all, they too are nothing more than combi-nations of female hormones. It's important for these women to discontinue the birth-control pills altogether. The only way the question can really be answered in your case now that you're on medicines to control high blood pressure is to find out if resuming the hormones will have any adverse effect. Certainly you don't want to go through the problem you had before because that's relatively dangerous. So it would have to be a very carefully con-trolled study in your case.

Meanwhile in the absence of that information you certainly should not take female

DEAR DR. LAMB - My daughter has been told that, "she has endometriosis. I've tried to find out about this and can't. Could you explain to me what endometriosis is?

DEAR READER - The endometrium is the lining of the uterus. This is the part of the uterus that undergoes cyclical changes under hormone stimulation and changes to permit the implantation of the ovum for a normal preg-nancy. It is this tissue that sheds each month during menstruation. Endometriosis refers to this type of tissue being displaced outside of the lining of the uterus. It may be seeded into areas in the pelvis but a common location is in the ovary. It usually makes its presence known by causing severe pain... The pain usually occurs just, before menstruation. It can cause pain in other areas as well but usually the pain can be identified in relation to the menstrual cycle.

Because this tissue can be, implanted in the tubes and block them, it can also cause infertility. That's why many. doctors recommend to women who have endometriosis to try to have their family as early as possible, before the growth of this displaced tissue produces permanent sterility.

I should add that you don't always have to have pain with the disease but that is the usual problem that brings the condition to the physician's attention.

DEAR DR. LAMB - When I was a young girl I had to walk several miles in deen snow without anything on my legs and both my knees became frozen.

The doctors at that time painted my knees with iodine and wrapped them with wool I'm now 63 years old and my knees hurt a great deal. Would it help me now if I would paint them again and wrap! them in wool? If not, what could I do to help this pain?

DEAR READER - I'm glad doctors don't use that treatment anymore as it could. result in iodine burns.

I don't know what's causing the pain in your knees but I doubt that it's related to the exposure to cold you had as a young girl. No one can tell you what causes your pain without, a competent examination. See your doctor and try to find out what's causing the pain. Once he knows he may be able to give you some medicine that will agree with you and help to control the pain of take other measures to correct whatever condition is causing it. It's more likely that the pain in your knees is associated with some arthritic changes.

testified he received a settlement from the owners of a truck involved in a fatal collision with the bus, but he denied blaming his injuries partly on the manufacturer of the bus.

William Clarence Dixon Jr., driver of the oil field servicing truck, is charged with three counts of involuntary manslaughter in connection with that crash last December that killed four and injured 20.

If convicted, Dixon faces 10 years imprisonment and a $5,-000 fine.

perintendent Edd Farmer, driver of the bus, said Tuesday he signed a settlement with Cardinal Survey Co. of Odessa, which owned the truck.

However, he hedged when asked about statements in the documents accompanying the settlement that alleged his injuries may have been blamed partly on the manufacturer of the bus. "Did you make the statement

(in the document) that the primary cause of your injuries was in the manufacturing of the bus?" asked defense attorney Malcolm Shulz. "I did not make that statement," replied Farmer, who also said he could not remember how much money he received. Shulz then asked Farmer to read a figure from the document that U.S. District Judge Weldon Kirk allowed into evidence over prosecutors. Farmer read, "$163,835." Farmer testified that an attorney prepared the document and it was explained to him "in general details."

tal after the crash. A co-worker of Dixon's, who was following the truck driver Former McCaulley School Su-, when the crash occurred, was recalled to the stand. William English earlier testified he and Dixon had discussed maintenance of the truck's brakes and throttle a week before the collision.

Later, he said the truck was in good mechanical condition on Dec. 8. English said earlier he and Dixon each drank two beers before the collision. He testified Dixon was traveling at about 55 mph as he approached the intersection. Then, "he suddenly hit his brakes and the truck jerked to the lefthand side of the road" to pass another vehicle that was stopping in the intersection. He said Dixon never stopped in the intersection.

Connie Tutt, who lives on land adjacent to the intersection, testified she was driving east on U.S. 180 when the accident occurred. "He (Dixon) was going pretty that intersection." Mrs. Tutt

McCroryClaimsDavisThreatened Him

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) Prosecution witness David cCrory says he lied to a dense attorney last August to arb demands by Cullen Davis at he hire an assassin to comit mass murder.

McCrory's testimony tends to unt the impact of a "dynaite" tape recording of the eeting which the millionaire efendant's laywers contend unges to the heart of the de-

During a long, angry exchange Tuesday afternoon, lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes questioned McCrory repeatedly about threats the witness said Davis made.

"What I had in mind was telling (defense attorney) Steve Sumner things he would take back to Cullen and he would really believe I could help in the

The 41-year-old witness has told jurors Davis threatened him beginning in May of 1978 if McCrory did not carry out the defendant's orders to hire a killer. Davis is standing trial on charges he tried to buy the murder of his divorce judge. Joe Eidson

Tuesday, jurors heard a recording of the Aug. 7 meeting during which Sumner asked McCrory what he knew that might aid Davis' multi-million dollar divorce from Priscilla Davis.

McCrory testified he lied to Sumner about certain things on the tape to boost his position with Davis.

"I was between a rock and a hard place, so I told Steve Sumner everything I thought he would go back to Cullen with and Cullen would not be angry with me," he said.

"Did you know the Aug. 7 meeting with Steve Sumner was being recorded?" Haynes asked

"I had to assume he was. He always did," McCrory said.

McCrory admitted, however. that he did not see a recorder. Sumner testified Monday he hid the machine in his briefcase and turned it on before meeting with McCrory.

"Why did you tell Steve Sumner a lie?" Haynes asked.

"I thought it might give me a little breathing room and not put quite as much pressure on me," McCrory said. "I decided I could bolster my own position a little bit.'

"Why did you tell Steve Sumner that (Priscilla Davis' divorce attorney) Jerry Loftin wanted you?" Haynes continued.

"That would mean that I would be subject to be put on the witness stand in Judge Eidson's court." McCrory said. "That would mean I wouldn't have anything else to do with spying on Judge Eidson's house and trying to hire somebody to kill someone.'

Defense attorneys heralded admission of the tape before jurors a major coup for their client. But Judge Gordon Gray, by sustaining numerous prosecution objections, restricted defense exploration of several matters discussed in the tape.

Among the items restricted by Gray were the Davis divorce trial, two conflicting and damaging statements by McCrory relating to a 1976 murder trial and purported threats by the Tarrant County district attorney's office involving one of the 1976 state-

Gray also halted queries into the relationship between former Fort Worth karate instructor Pat Burleson and Priscilla Davis. The tape tends to impeach prior testimony of McCrory, Burleson and Priscilla, a trio the defense claims framed Davis on the murder solicitation charge. The tape was not used during the first trial in Houston, a proceeding which ended in a mistrial.

"I wanted to use it in Houston, but Racehorse didn't," Sumner said. "He just had a different trial strategy. What this gets to is who was the moving party in this whole matter and why Cullen would have anything to do with Mc-Crory.

"McCrory enticed Davis by saying that he could save his fortune and his life and those things are very near and dear to people.

Haynes, who called the tape 'dynamite," said it was Mc-Crory's testimony last week that changed his mind. "We didn't think we needed it at the time (in Houston) because of the way the case was going and the court's rulings." he said. "But this witness ... now remembers things he didn't before and we thought a refresher of the memory may be called for at this time.'

Prosecutor Jack Strickland had a different interpretation of the 40-minute tape.

"I don't think Haynes hurt us a bit. It was much ado about nothing," he said. "I really believe it was a last-ditch effort.

in Houston as they are here. They had creamed him (Mc-Crory) by this time in Houston. They haven't here."

McCrory told Sumner he had been threatened in 1976 and he thought of several "persons who could have been having someone do something."

"And what were the names of those persons?" Haynes asked. "Priscilla Davis ... you, Priscilla Davis' attorneys and I asked Steve if he had anything to do with it." McCrory replied. McCrory said Davis reiterated the 1978 threats in June.

"He told me that I'd better not cross him ... that he would definitely have me and my whole damn family killed if I crossed him," McCrory said. "I reassured him that I would not cross him and told him I would do what he wanted."

Haynes asked McCrory if he had been afraid of Davis, prefacing the question with Mc-Crory's karate qualifications. "Had you advised Mr. Day that you could kill a rat just by screaming at it?" Haynes asked, prompting a howl of dates and the corresponding laughter from McCrory and the audience and giggles even in the jury box.

"No. sir." McCrory answered, stifling a guffaw.

"Your honor, I don't know whether to object or not," Strickland said when the laughter died down. "I was afraid McCrory was going to scream at Haynes and Strickland was going to fall over dead," Davis joked to reporters during a break.

Dates Announced For "They weren't as desperate College Entry Tests

The 1979-80 school year is just beginning, but juniors and seniors at Hereford High School and other high schools across the country are already facing some big decisions.

One of those decisions is what to do after graduation--whether to go on to school, to get a job, or try to do both.

Playing an important role in the students' postsecondary education and career planning will be guidance counselors. parents, friends, and two national serivces called the ACT Assessment Program and the College Board Admissions Testing Program.

Hereford High School students will have five opportunities during the 1979-80 school year to take the ACT Assessment Program which consists of four tests and a two-part questionnaire. Students complete the questionnaire at home as part of the registration process, and then take the battery of tests at West Texas State University on any of weekend national test dates.

The five 1979-80 ACT test registration periods are:

Hereford High School students will have six opportunities. to take the college Board Admissions Testing Program which consists of a verbal and mathematics test.

This test can be taken at Amarillo College or Amarillo High School on any of the six weekend national test dates.

The six 1979-80 SAT test dates and corresponding registration periods are: TEST DATES

September 28, 1979 October 26, 1979 December 21, 1979 February 15, 1980 March 28, 1980 May 2, 1980

Students are urged to check to see which test is required by the university they plan to attend and to take the October test. It takes about three hours to complete either of the tests. Willie Braddy, Senior Counselor, has registration forms.

In addition to being used by students and their high school counselors, information provided by these assessments are also used by colleges for academic advising, admissions counseling, course sectioning and placement, student services, and institutional research. Students' ACT Assessment reports are sent to only those colleges specifically designated by the respective students.

Drilling Firm Gets Liability Guarantee

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) -An order signed by a federal judge gives SEDCO Inc. an interim guarantee against liability for the massive oil spill caused when an offshore drilling rig it leased to Mexico blew out June

U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor granted the interim guarantee Tuesday and set Oct. 23 as the deadline for the filing of all damage claims in federal O'Conor's action came after attorneys for the Dallas-based company founded by Gov. Bill Clements, whose interest are being held in a blind trust, asked the judge to exonerate it of all liability or set its liability for damages caused by the oil well mishap in the Bay of Campeche to $300,000. The company's attorneys say that is the amount SEDCO would have earned in the lease to the Mexican drilling com-No claims have been filed yet.

but SEDCO attorney Eugene J. Silva said various parties have indicated intentions to do so and may ask O'Conor for a deadline postponement.

Clements, who is traveling in the Soviet Union, has said. 'There is no foundation for any statement that SEDCO is responsible (for the blowout) or the equipment was defective."

Attorney General Mark White, who has advocated suing Mexico for damages from the oil spill that has been called the worst in history, said the legal action raised serious questions in his mind.

"This is exactly the type of precipitous legal action which they and the governor have asked us not to engage in," White said from his office in Austin.

"Until now, we have accepted in good faith their statements regarding the sinking of their drilling equipment," he said, "but the filing of this suit raises strong suspicions that their prior acts were merely an attempt to destroy evidence." White also accused the company of withholding facts concerning the role played by SEDCO employees when the oil well blew out.

"I was distressed to learn last Saturday that there were seven SEDCO employees on the platform with some degree of operational control," he said. "after they indicated to me that the rig was merely a 'bare-boat' charter.

"I think that SEDCO has been less than candid with the attorney general and with the people of Texas," he said.

The governor's son and president of SEDCO, Gil Clements, said his company was not responsible for the mishap.

SEDCO's petition to O'Conor argued that any damages from the blowout or oil spill "were not caused or contributed to by any fault, negligence, unseaworthiness or want of care" on the part of the company, its drilling rig or its employees.

Former Police Officer Gets Early Release From Prison

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) -A former Dallas police officer whose five-year prison sentence for the murder of a 12-year-old boy outraged Texas' Hispanic community - has been released from prison two and a half years early.

Darrell Cain, called a model prisoner by Texas Department Corrections Director W.J. Estelle, was released from the state prison in Huntsville Tuesday after serving the minimum amount of his term.

"His early release underscores the original need for federal prosecution and proves the state judicial system has failed miserably in ensuring equal protection under the laws for Hispanic Americans," said Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Cain was convicted by a

Travis County jury in November statute of limitations ran out 1973 for the July 1973 slaying of Santos Rodriguez, who handcuffed and sitting in a police car - was shot while being questioned by Cain. Cain's attorneys argued that the shooting was unintentional. However, the slaying became one of Texas' most widely-publicized police brutality controversies and a symbol for Hispanic organizations troubled by what they perceived as a Texas. growing incidence of "police bigotry" directed at minorities.

Mexican-American groups, incensed by what they considered a lenient sentence, pressed for federal prosecution.

President Carter ordered the U.S. Justice Department to investigate the case. But the department opted not to prosecute Cain on a civil rights violation charge just weeks before the July 24, 1978.

"He wants to put the past behind him and build a new life." said Dallas lawyer Phil Burleson, who represented Cain. Burleson said the former officer intends to move to a small city outside the Dallas-Fort Worth area and work for a business owned by relatives. His conviction prevents him from becoming a policeman in Burleson said Cain feared reprisals from militant Mexican-American groups and he declined to identify the city where Cain will live.

"If I were Darrell Cain I would take an anonymous name, get an unlisted telephone number and seriously consider moving from the city of Dallas and possibly from the state of Texas," said Bonilla.
