Allowed absences limit placed at 10

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Much to the delight of onlookers, local school board members decided this morning to allow secondary students 10 excused absences per year for extracurricular activities.

An expansive state school bill which went into effect last fall had established the 10-day rule. Directors of the Hereford Independent School District subsequently adopted a local limit of one day per extracurricular activity.

That policy was extensively criticized at a Jan. 8 school board meeting during the public comment period. It was also knocked prior to this morning's vote.

The first opinions expressed at today's meeting pertained to students involved in agricultural activities. Ray Schlabs called the district's vocational agriculture program "one of the finest" in Texas and requested the 10-day state limit be adopted here.

State school board officials are to soon announce 4-H events will be considered extracurricular, reported Dennis Newton, county extension agent. Though livestock shows and other 4-H programs will be scheduled to help avoid school absences in 1985-1986, he said, there are bound to be complications the rest of this year.

"What we need now is help during the transition period," Newton said. "We simply would like to be able to use the time which is made available by the state board of education, which is 10 days."

The extracurricular policy concerns athletic as well as agricultural activities, Bob Baker pointed out. "I don't understand why we're being more restrictive than the state."

Local rules dropped

Cal Jones, chairman of the board's personnel and policy committee, then announced his group's recommendation an eight-day limit be imposed. Included in that proposal would be a stipulation team sports take up no more than five of a student's allowed extracurricular absences, he said.

Asked why eight instead of 10 days were being recommended, Jones said "classroom time is important to us." Bill Townsend, board president, added coaches who miss up to two weeks of teaching would be leaving their students with substitute teachers. That remark caused two onlookers to state replacement instructors are very capable, though Townsend denied his intention was to criticize substitutes.

Newton said decisions on extracurricular absences should be "a parent's choice and a student's choice." Another man agreed, saying school families should be permitted to plan extracurricular absences within the state-imposed limit of 10 days.

Soon board member John Fuston moved the personnel and policy committee's recommendation be amended so there would be an across-the-board, 10-day maximum rule for allowed extracurricular event absences. His motion and Henry Amar's subsequent second both drew heavy applause from the 75-or-so people stuffed into the HISD board room.

Townsend and Marilyn Culpepper were the only board members who did not raise their hands in support of the amendment. The revised motion passed 5-1, with Culpepper being the sole dissenter.

In other business this morning, HISD directors gave their approval for capital improvement bids to be advertised. Among the proposed work is $90,000 worth of renovation to the Hereford High School tennis courts and establishment of media centers at Aikman, Bluebonnet and Northwest elementary schools at a cost of $95,000-$120,000 apiece.

Also to be accomplished is extensive renovation work at Shirley Intermediate School, reported Fuston, chairman of the board's long-range planning committee. Shirley's restrooms, electrical wiring, classroom carpets and kitchen would all be replaced or redone, he said, at a total cost of about $150,000.

No action was taken regarding a proposed all-weather athletic practice facility. More information is needed before a recommendation to let bids can be made, Fuston explained.

Today's meeting began at 7 a.m. so all six board members could attend. Directors normally assemble at 5 p.m.

Ag Men Of Year

The Brorman brothers, Frank and Tony, were named as joint recipients of the "Man of the Year in Agriculture" award at the Sugar Beet Banquet Saturday night.

The two are natives of Deaf Smith County and manage 8.5 sections of farmland. Brand Publisher Speedy Nieman presented the award.

Optimistic sugar report heard

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

John Bushnell of Colorado Springs, president of Holly Sugar, presented an optimistic report on the sugar beet industry, 12 men were recognized for production of more than 10,000 pounds of sugar, and Frank and Tony Brorman shared the "Man of the Year in Agriculture" award Saturday night at the annual Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association Banquet.

"Tumbleweed Smith", popular radio personality, entertained the audience of almost 500 sugar beet growers and guests in the Bull Barn. Bill Cleavinger, TSBGA president, served as master of ceremonies, and Jan Walser provided dinner music.

Bushnell recalled that the sugar beet industry here "teetered on the edge of disaster" about seven years ago, but the situation has been turned around "without much help or encouragement from Holly officials at that time."

He credited Cleavinger and the growers association board and executive-secretary James Witherspoon as the "prime movers" in keeping the industry going in Hereford. He also commended Cal Jones, Holly plant manager, in helping make the turnaround possible.

Bushnell said Holly had spent $3.3 million on the plant here the past three years, and $6 million in capital expenditures have been authorized next year. The major expense will be the installation of a coal-fired boiler and improvements in sugar extraction and recovery.

Bushnell echoed Cleavinger's statement that "a spirit of teamwork" had been developed between the growers and the plant and was a big factor in the successful year for the industry in 1984. He pointed out that Holly had 336 employees here, a payroll of $3.5 million, and a total economic input of about $35.8 million into the Hereford community.

"The Man of the Year in Agriculture" award was unique this year, in that two men shared the honor. The Brorman Brothers, Inc., farm operation includes managing some 8.5 sections of farmland, all irrigated with the largest acreage in wheat. Other crops grown include corn, milo and sugar beets.

The brothers started farming here in the Ford community in 1959 after both were born and raised in the county. Frank is on the board of directors of Hereford Grain Co-Op and Big T Pump Co. He and his wife, Dolores, have four daughters and two sons.

A.H. (Tony) Brorman and his wife, Dorothy, have five sons and four daughters. He is vice president of the Vega School Board and a director of the TSBGA. Both are members of the 10,000-pound Club in the growers association. Both are also members of the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church of Vega.

The brothers also operate a small cattle yard and have a stocker cattle operation. Last year's recipient was Jerry Roberts. The award is sponsored by The Hereford Brand.

Jones, Holly plant manager, presented plaques to 12 men who reaped more than 10,000 pounds of sugar from their beets this past year.

Saturday evening at annual banquet

Three went over the 11,000-mark. They were Don Heard, 11,491 pounds on 20 acres; Lloyd Coffey, 11,450 pounds on 40 acres; and Ronnie Johnson, 11,248 on 103 acres.

Others to make the 10,000-pound mark: Frank and Tony Brorman, Troy Christian, Billy Evans Farms, Kenneth Christian Farms, Vic Christian, Steve Brorman, Buck Allred, Jerry London and T.M. Caldwell. Johnson and Troy and Vic Christian also made the club last year.

"Tumbleweed Smith" entertained the crowd by playing tapes of some of his more interesting interviews from the "Sounds of Texas" radio show. His popular program is heard on more than 100 radio stations in Texas.

Kennedy Frye, Richard Friemel and Ed Ramaekers were re-elected as directors during a Friday business session. Other directors of TSBGA are Cleavinger, Dave Thompson, Virgil Marsh, Tony Brorman, Dean Wiseman and Troy Christian.

Road improvement bid okayed

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

One bid for street improvements was approved and it was decided plans would be pursued for $160,000-plus worth of storm sewer work Monday evening by Hereford City Commissioners.

The street improvements, to include reconstruction work at the Sixth and Eighth Street intersections with Miles Avenue, is to be done by The Appian Corporation. The local firm said it could do the job in 100 days for a little more than $64,000.

Commissioners also agreed to have a hearing at their next meeting in order to have revenue sharing funds be used for storm sewer improvements on N. Highway 385. Dudley Bayne, Hereford city manager, said the project should cost around $163,000.

"This does not require an increase in taxes to have this in the budget," Bayne pointed out.

By Hereford City Commission

Meanwhile Monday, commissioners approved a city officers' election format for this spring. On April 6, the town's mayor - along with city commissioners for Places 1 and 2 - are to be elected. Those posts are now held by Wes Fisher, Ed Coplen and Joe Reinauer, respectively.

Those wishing to file for the election must do so by 30 days prior to April 6, Bayne said.

Re-elected last spring to the commission where R.W. "Bud" Eades to Place 3 and Emory Brownlow to Place 4.

Ten people have so far formally applied for the city manager position being vacated this summer by Bayne, who has held that title for the better part of three decades. According to Bayne, six of the applications so far received have met the job's minimum requirements. Commissioners decided Monday to closely examine three of the hopefuls.

Among the requirements for the position, Bayne said, is to have either five years experience in city government or a degree. Many people have called to express interest in the job but have not had sufficient qualifications, the retiring city manager stated.

Bayne also said he would like his replacement to begin work in May, when Bayne would still be in office.

Five local residents were re-appointed Monday night to serve on the Panhandle-Plains Higher Education Authority's board of directors. The two-year terms are to be filled by Dr. Carolyn Baxter, Dr. Charles Bassett, Paul Fortenberry, Dr. Ronny Barnes and Dr. H.D. Yarbrough.

Show Preparations

new surface this morning at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn. Weigh-in begins tonight, with broilers and steers to kick off the judging competition Wednesday at 4:30 and 6 p.m.

Local Roundup

Arrests may clear up burglaries

Local law enforcement officers believe they have cleared up at least five burglaries with the Saturday night arrest of three Hereford men.

Anthony Garcia, 19, was arrested at his home on Progressive Road by Hereford police officers and Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputies and charged with selling stolen property.

Juan Lopez, a resident of the San Jose community, and Eliseo Gomez, who lives at a local apartment complex, were both arrested on charges of possession of stolen property which they allegedly purchased from Garcia. Their ages were not available this morning.

Armed with search warrants, officers found between $3,000 and $5,000 worth of television sets, guns, tools and video cassette recorders at the homes of Lopez and Gomez, clearing up burglaries at local school buildings and a rental store.

Hereford police also talked to a clerk at a local convenience store, who said a man visited her early Saturday morning to tell her he planned to guard the store and see that no more robberies were committed.

Medical trial to start today

Testimony was to begin at 9:30 this morning in the professional negligence trial against Hereford physician Howard Johnson, Deaf Smith General Hospital and Hereford Medical Clinic.

The surviving husband and children of Noemi Frausto, who died nearly three years ago while in her eighth month of pregnancy, are asking for more than $1 million in damages.

Attorneys for both sides spent much time Monday picking a jury, announcing their selections at 5:30 p.m. Judge Jack Young of Muleshoe is presiding over the 222nd District Court civil proceedings.

The jury was told Monday that Antonio Frausto, the dead woman's husband, is seeking a $350,000 settlement for himself and $150,000 for each of the six children.

Chili supper raises $2,000-plus

Chili was served to 702 persons Friday night at a fund-raising event by the Hereford Save a Life in Ethiopia committee.

Ticket sales, together with donations, brought in $2,386 to be forwarded to Church World Service.

According to Father Joe Egan of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, additional offerings of more than $1,400 were added to the fund during a unity service Sunday night at the Church of the Nazarene.

Raising money for victims of starvation in Ethiopia is a major focus during the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, now being observed in Hereford.

Egan said local citizens have contributed about $4,500 to funds established at both Hereford banks.

Friday's chili supper was held in the cafeteria at Hereford High School.

MONDAY'S HIGH: 37 (normal: 43 record: 79 (1967))
 OVERNIGHT LOW: 29 (normal: 22 record: -8 (1968))
 OUTLOOK: Partly cloudy tonight with a low near 26. Wednesday is to be cloudy and have a high in the lower 40s.

Lawmen want stronger teachers

AUSTIN (AP) — Bills introduced in both houses Monday would give teachers more authority over unruly students, either on or off the campus.

"The primary responsibility of a teacher is to teach — not to police troubled students," said Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, sponsor of the bill in the House. "One troubled student shouldn't disrupt the learning process of other students who want to learn."

The bill's Senate sponsor, Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, said the measure would give "teachers and school administrators broader authority to maintain discipline in our classrooms."

Currently, a student must be declared "incorrigible" and a danger to the school before the student can be removed from school. Suspensions can be delayed while the actions are appealed to the school board and the Texas Education Agency.

Haley said that under the new measure, a teacher can send a disruptive student to the principal, who in turn may suspend the student or send him to an alternative education program.

Laredo enduring rabies flareup

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Twenty people are getting treatment for exposure to rabid dogs in the first rabies flareup here in nearly eight years, health officials said.

The Laredo-Webb County Health Department has beefed up its stray dog patrols and is offering rabies vaccination clinics in a county-wide bid to crack down on the deadly disease.

"We are giving this very wide publicity," said Jose Gonzalez, director of the health agency.

Gonzalez said 1,400 dogs were inoculated against rabies in special clinics last week.

The clinics will be open for the next two weeks, offering vaccinations at reduced rates.

Similar clinics will be set up in the county later, he said.

Since November, local officials have confirmed five rabid dog cases.

Only four of the 20 people getting treatment actually were bitten by a rabid dog. The others had only some kind of contact with the animals.

"We're not taking any chances" Gonzalez said.

Anti-gay man eyes mayor's job

HOUSTON (AP) — With a successful campaign against two proposed gay rights ordinances under his belt, Houston Councilman John Goodner says he may seek another victory — the mayor's post.

Goodner spearheaded efforts to defeat two laws that would have blocked the city from discriminating against homosexuals in its hiring practices, and more than 80 percent of the ballots cast in Saturday's referendum opposed the proposals.

Goodner told The Houston Post in an article published Monday it is "very possible" that in November he will run against Mayor Kathy Whitmire, who supported the gay rights proposals.

The councilman said several people called him Sunday saying they believe the referendum vote is a mandate for him to run for mayor. However, Goodner said he didn't think the mayor's defeat would eliminate her chances at re-election.

"Because of that issue, she's hurt, but not mortally wounded," he said. "But I really think Kathy can be beaten if someone were to focus on other issues too, like personnel problems and her lack of leadership."

Abortion ruling 12 years old

Twelve years after the U.S. Supreme Court legalized abortion the issue remains surrounded by controversy, and activists on both sides are using today's anniversary of the ruling to make their point through protest and prayer.

In Cleveland, supporters of legalized abortion planned a potluck supper at Cleveland State University, where they will listen to music and write letters to elected officials thanking them for their continued support.

A few blocks away, the Greater Cleveland Right-to-Life chapter will hold its annual "Respect of Life" memorial service at the Masonic Temple auditorium.

While the Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights in Kansas holds a prayer breakfast, members of Kansans for Life plan to picket outside. The anti-abortion group also will be at the statehouse tonight handing out red roses to legislators and talking to them about right-to-life positions.

In Washington, demonstrators were to gather before noon today on the Ellipse a quarter of a mile from the White House before beginning their annual March for Life to the steps of the Supreme Court on Capitol Hill. Before the march, President Reagan was to address them on a loudspeaker hookup from the Oval Office.

'Vigilante' will not be charged

CHICAGO (AP) — A 68-year-old plumber who says he fatally shot a teen-ager after the youth stuck "a gun in my ear" is "a nice old man who found himself with his life threatened" and won't be charged, a spokesman for the state's attorney says.

Harold Brown, who says two masked youths brandishing a knife and gun attacked him as he was leaving a grocery store last week, surrendered Monday after an intensive three-day search by police.

"I was on my way home and they come out," Brown said. "...they go down on me and said, 'This is a stick-up.' One had a knife, that's the one that they're supposed to have there (in police custody) now. He had a knife."

Brown said the other youth grabbed his arm and put "a gun in my ear. I faked it off enough to get a chance to do what I did."

When Brown offered to give the youths all he had, "they continued to say, 'Shoot him, shoot him,'" his attorney, Thomas Royce later told reporters at an impromptu police-station news conference.

Families await word on victims

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — While investigators tagged yellow body bags in a Nevada field, friends and relatives waited in Minnesota to learn the fate of those who took the doomed Galaxy Airlines chartered gambling junket.

"I know that door's going to open and Louis's going to come in with all his suitcases and everything. I know he's going to," said Annette Fragale, whose husband, Louis, went to be best man when his brother Sam married Kay Meyer in Reno on Saturday.

Fragale and the newlyweds were among those feared dead, although some relatives held out hope because not all those who had gone on the junket had taken the return flight.

Only three of the 67 people who did board survived when the four-engine Lockheed Electra turboprop crashed Monday, shortly after takeoff from the Reno, Nev., airport en route to Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The survivors were George Lamson, 42, a carpenter from St. Paul, his son George Jr., 17, a student, and Robert Miggins, 45, a high school teacher in suburban Minneapolis. Lamson and Miggins were reported in critical condition at Nevada hospitals today.

At least 101 dead

Arctic cold blast remaining

By MARY MacVEAN Associated Press Writer

A massive block of arctic cold already blamed for at least 101 deaths boxed in the eastern third of the nation today after freezing Florida oranges as hard as baseballs, pushing the mercury to records lows and playing a role in the collision of two commuter trains in Indiana.

Snow emergencies were declared in several Ohio counties and in the Buffalo, N.Y., area. Gusting winds made many roads impassable. In Buffalo, 27 inches of snow was on the ground or blowing around today.

"It's all upside down," said Harry Gordon at the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., noting the temperature at International Falls, Minn., often the nation's coldest spot, was 3 degrees warmer than the 9 recorded early today in Nashville, Tenn.

Farmers in Florida, Georgia, Texas and Louisiana feared for their crops. Officials in Florida said they expected "significant" losses from the bitter cold that has chilled the East since the weekend.

In Philadelphia, Mayor Wilson Goode ordered police to take any homeless people on the streets past 4 p.m. to shelters. Paterson, N.J. Mayor Frank Graves ordered people found on the streets to be housed and fed in the city's new detention center, nearly empty because "in this bitter cold weather, crime is at its lowest."

Many utilities strained under an increased load and tens of thousands of people lost power temporarily on Monday in at least 10 states from Michigan to Alabama.

"The eastern third of the nation will be slow to recover," said Gordon. "Temperatures are still freezing as far south as West Palm Beach, Fla."

Schools in parts of at least five states from North Carolina to Pennsylvania were closed today for a second day in a row.

More than 80 records were set Monday in the Southeast and East for the coldest temperature for the date. Twenty of those were also the coldest temperatures ever recorded, including 4 below zero in Athens, Ga., and 16 below zero in Asheville, N.C. Another two cities equalled their coldest reading ever.

The temperature plunged to 22 degrees below zero early Monday in Beckley, W.Va. New Orleans, where it chilled to 14, was just one degree warmer than Fairbanks, Alaska.

Weather-related deaths — including those from traffic accidents on icy roads, exposure and fires blamed on makeshift heaters — were reported in 20 states since Friday, when the storms began.

The cold was blamed for the crash of two commuter trains in Gary, Ind., Monday evening, injuring 129 people, none seriously. The Chicago-area trains had been routed onto the same track after subzero temperatures damaged overhead electrical lines, said Richard Bunton, spokesman for the South Shore Lines.

In Florida, where it dropped into the teens in the heart of the state's citrus belt, industry officials said the second freeze in two winters may have destroyed thousands of trees in the northernmost areas, where hard freeze warnings were posted early today. The temperature was forecast to fall to the single digits in the panhandle.

Some growers reported their oranges had frozen as hard as baseballs on Monday.

"There will be significant fruit loss in the upper two-thirds of the production area," said Citrus Mutual spokesman Earl Wells.

Top Sugar Beet Producers

These men were awarded plaques Saturday night in recognition of producing more than 10,000 pounds of sugar from the '84 crop. Only four made the "club" the year before. Left to right: Troy Christian, Ronnie Johnson, Vic Christian, A.D. Morris (accepting for Billy Evans Farms, Inc.) Tony Brorman, Dan Heard, Frank Brorman, Lloyd Coffey, Steve Brorman, Jerry London, Buck Allred and Kenneth Christie. Not present were T.M. Caldwell.

Democrats may differ

Reagan requests new boldness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Launching his final four years as president with an appeal for "new boldness," Ronald Reagan has won promises from some members of Congress to help stop the arms race and reduce the huge federal deficits.

But congressional Democrats are warning that the president's initiatives on both the budget and defense could face a reception on Capitol Hill as chilly as the winds that forced Monday's inaugural ceremonies indoors.

Democratic leaders praised Reagan for striking a conciliatory, bipartisan note in his second inaugural address. But they criticized the president's mention of his proposed anti-missile defense and his call for a balanced federal budget in the face of $200 billion federal deficits.

"It was nice rhetoric, but if he had to comply with his own call for a balanced budget, the government would have to shut down today," said Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

A chill of another kind — frigid air and strong winds — forced cancellation of the traditional inaugural parade down Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House and moved the swearing-in ceremonies indoors. It was the first time since 1833 that brutally cold weather had forced cancellation of the festivities.

"Let history say of us, these were golden years — when the American Revolution was reborn, when freedom gained new life and America reached for her best," Reagan told a crowd of about 1,000 VIPs crammed into the Capitol Rotunda — only a fraction of the 140,000 who had held tickets to the planned ceremony on the West Terrace of the Capitol.

Speaking later in the day in a suburban sports arena to thousands of disappointed band members, Reagan said: "You would have been the greatest show on Earth."

A round of nine inaugural balls and scores of private parties culminated four days of inaugural festivities in the nation's capital.

Matching the jubilant mood of Washington, the New York stock market closed 34 points higher on Monday.

Reagan delivered his inaugural address without benefit of a Teleprompter, unusual for a major presidential address.

The speech was solemn and, at times, poetic.

Meet Your Neighbor

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

Staying in the Panhandle area was important to the Chavez family when Lupe Chavez was looking for a job. Consequently, Hereford won over Midland and the family moved here approximately 18 months ago.

The Chavezes had lived in Tulia for the previous 12 years, and with family and personal ties in the Panhandle, the couple settled on Hereford.

"We don't have any regrets about coming here," Janie Chavez said. "I have found the people a little hard to get to know, but once you do get to know them or they get to know you, they are real nice and friendly."

"Our girls have really enjoyed living here. Yolanda, our oldest daughter, thinks this is the best thing that could have happened."

The position which brought Mr. Chavez to Hereford was that of Juvenile Peace Officer for Deaf Smith county. He works closely with the police department, the sheriff's department, schools, parents and the child protective services workers.

Mr. Chavez was graduated from Wayland Baptist University with a degree in law enforcement. Currently, he is attending Amarillo College through the extension program by taking classes Monday evening at Hereford High School. Mr. Chavez is working for his associate degree in mid-management.

"He really keeps his work to himself," Mrs. Chavez explained. "He doesn't like to bring his work home. He says that you don't take problems at home to the office, so you shouldn't bring your office problems home."

With the nature of her husband's job here, Mrs. Chavez explained that she does not worry as much about him as she did in Tulia.

"I used to worry about him in Tulia when he was a lieutenant in the police department and was called out a lot at night. I guess I don't worry about him here because I feel like he is just working with kids."

In Tulia, Mrs. Chavez had owned her own beauty shop for 13 years.

"I was under so much pressure trying to please everybody," she said. "It was nice having some free time after I sold it."

Her unemployed status did not last long, though. When an opening became available as a hairdresser at King's Manor, she took the position. Working three days a week, according to Mrs. Chavez, still gives her time to do some things she enjoys.

"I enjoy fixing hair and am very serious about it," she said. "Those ladies really help make my day."

Mrs. Chavez said that she really loves to bake and share her cakes with friends.

"Applesauce and hummingbird cakes are my husband's and girls' favorite cakes," she explained. "I find them to also be my friends' favorites, too."

"I like to cook something new and different for my family. They're easy to please and I just enjoy doing it."

She said that she also enjoys cleaning house so that it stays organized and neat, as well as reading religious material.

Mr. Chavez is a member of Lions Club and serves on the Red Cross Board of Directors. He loves to read, especially non-fiction.

"He really likes to keep us up with current events," she laughed.

He also collects coins, both old and silver.

The Chavezes have three daughters. Yolanda, 16, is a junior at Hereford High School. She plays the clarinet and enjoys cooking and reading.

Tanya, 11, is a sixth grader at St. Anthony's School. She plays the piano and plays on the school basketball team. Lisa Marie, 5, attends kindergarten at Aikman.

Since moving to Hereford, the family has joined St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Public invited to luncheon

In celebration of the 1985 Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, a covered dish luncheon is planned from noon until 1 p.m. Wednesday at First Christian Church fellowship hall.

A nursery will be provided and each person attending is requested to bring a dish.

Father Joe Egan of St. Anthony's Catholic Church will be the special speaker for the luncheon, which is being sponsored by the Ministerial Alliance and Church Women United.

Ray Owens, representing the Ministerial Alliance, will be a featured vocalist and he will be accompanied by Beverly Bryant of Church Women United, who is serving as chairman of the luncheon.

The observance will end Friday.

The Week of Prayer for Christian Unity is a development of the Church Unity Octave, originated in January 1908 by the Rev. Paul Wattson, then a minister of the Episcopal Church and later a Roman Catholic.

Wattson, who founded the Society of Atonement, was a man of vision. He saw the unity of all people through faith in Christ and the church. St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Hereford is staffed by the Atonement Friars.

4-H Around the County

By SUSAN N. RANEY
County Extension Agent

Since 4-H members are presently in the height of the Stock Show season, one might wonder what the purpose of showing animals are. There are many.

Helping young people to develop a sense of responsibility and caring is basic to 4-H animal science programs—programs in agriculture, beef, sheep, swine, commodity marketing, dairy, dog care and training, horse and veterinary science.

These programs give young people a chance to explore many areas of the animal industry and to place special emphasis on areas of individual interest, points out Susan Raney, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. The programs offer opportunities to 4-H members whether they live in rural areas or in major metropolitan areas.

4-H'ers in animal science programs are exposed to everything from simple pet care and training to marketing, breeding, research, nutrition and careers. These programs can be an integral part of their learning and living experiences and can offer young people an almost limitless array of opportunities for education and exploration.

Objectives common to programs in animal sciences are these:

1. To develop leadership activities, build character and assume citizenship responsibilities.
2. To explore career opportunities.
3. To develop skills, knowledge and attitudes for lifelong use.
4. To share knowledge gained with others.

4-H members who excel in animal science programs can reap a host of awards, including some scholarships and trips to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago awarded each fall, in addition to the monetary rewards they can earn by having market animals.

Projects in animal science can open an exciting world to 4-H members, says Raney. To find out more about these programs, contact the County Extension office.

Hereford - People Helping People

In 1900, people were coming from all walks of life to Hereford - looking for a better way to live. These pioneers were looking for a small community that would survive the hard times. They wanted to raise their families in a safe environment and be able to retire with their spouses, secure in the knowledge that their children would have the same opportunities for success which they had.

When our bank was chartered, we made a commitment to Hereford and the surrounding community. We still hold that same strict policy. We've set out to become a part of Hereford and a part of the people in the Texas Panhandle. We believe that a strong community needs a strong bank. That's why people have counted on the First National Bank of Hereford for over 84 years. It's this kind of dedicated service that has made us the bank with the pioneer spirit.

Hereford graduate sets record in 880

Hereford High School graduate and former Texas Tech University track star James Mays added another honor to his list Saturday in Canyon.

Mays sprinted to a record time in the 880-yard dash at the West Texas State Invitational Meet with a time of 1:54.78. Mays' time in the half-mile broke the old record — set by Texas Tech's Gary Moss in 1981 — by more than three seconds.

The Activities Center on the WTSU campus marked the spot where Mays outdistanced second-place finisher Scott Peters of Wayland Baptist University. Peters ran a time of 1:57.5 and, for awhile, led Mays and the rest of the field.

Mays, who normally runs with a team for Bud Light but Saturday was unattached, dropped to fourth place early in the race, trailing Peters by as much as 20 yards. Mays didn't claim the lead until the last lap of the race.

"I usually don't let people get that far ahead of me," Mays said. "That first lap scared the heck out of me."

The win marked Mays' seventh straight triumph in the WT Invitational. He is undefeated in that meet.

Mays finished fifth in his semifinal heat of the 800 meters at the 1984 U.S. Olympic trials. Saturday, Mays is to again run unattached in an invitational meet in Albuquerque, N.M. Sunday's plans call for Mays to rejoin his Bud Light teammates in Chicago for another meet.

Mays is scheduled to run in Europe in six weeks.

He is the son of the Rev. L.V. Mays, Hereford.

NBA roundup

Bullets win without two starters

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets, faced with what forward Greg Ballard called "an enormous challenge," proved they are capable of winning without two of their best players.

Despite the absence of starters Jeff Ruland and Cliff Robinson, the Bullets dominated Cleveland Monday night and recorded an easy 128-115 National Basketball Association victory.

In the only other NBA game scheduled Monday, Indiana edged Golden State 129-127 in double overtime.

Ruland missed his third straight game with a strained right shoulder and Robinson sat out his fifth consecutive contest with a strained right leg and sprained right knee. Yet, working without two of their top three scorers and rebounders, the Bullets never trailed after allowing Cleveland the opening basket of the game.

Ballard, who scored a season-high 31 points, said the absence of his front-line mates has forced the Bullets to get nearly everyone in on the rebounding chores.

About Super Bowl XIX

Dolphins' mentor was wrong

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Coach Don Shula was wrong on two counts. He as much as said there wasn't all that much to worry about, San Francisco being favored over his Miami Dolphins.

"I seem to remember we were an underdog against Washington when we had won 16 in a row. But we did all right in that one," Shula had said,

Not of retirement

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini just wants to talk about the fight, not about whether his rematch against Livingston Bramble for the World Boxing Association lightweight title Feb. 16 at Reno, Nev., will close his career.

Yes, Mancini took a battering when he was stopped by Bramble in the 14th round in losing the title last June 1 at Buffalo, N.Y., but he's been physically okayed . . . and he's a fighter. recalling the Dolphins' 14-7 victory over the Redskins in Super Bowl VII, the one which capped a 17-0 season. But that one wasn't this one.

The Dolphins didn't have Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick this time. They didn't have anything resembling a ground game. They also didn't have Manny Fernandez, Bob Matheson and Jake Scott and other no-name defenders.

So, with the benefit of hindsight, the 38-16 shellacking administered Sunday by San Francisco in Super Bowl XIX shouldn't have been all that surprising.

Shula also said he figured 49ers Coach Bill Walsh's game plan would contain some razzle-dazzle. "I would expect Bill to throw a few trick plays at us."

Walsh didn't have to — unless a simple reverse comes under the heading of trickery. What the 49ers used was basic football.

It used a defense — a four-man line and six or even seven backs — that both pressured Miami quarterback Dan Marino and blanketed the deep receivers.

It used an offense that both sliced up the Dolphins' secondary and took advantage of its inability to deal with the run.

Bob Baumhower, the Dolphins' nose tackle, said beforehand: "We've got to stop the run, make them pass — and then stop that, too."

They did neither. The 49ers rushed for 211 yards and quarterback Joe Montana passed for 331.

"I think our confidence level was at that point offensively," Montana said, "especially as well as we'd been moving the ball. The more you move the ball, and when you get points the way we were getting them, you have to feel inside that you can do just about what you want."

Walsh said the 49ers "could see almost immediately that we could move the ball, and when you get to some point began to get to them, about the middle of the third quarter."

The Dolphins tried early on to run on the San Francisco defense, got nowhere (nine rushes, 25 attempts for the entire game) and then fell back on Marino's arm. He had a Super Bowl-record 29 completions for 318 yards — but he needed a Super Bowl-record 50 attempts to run up those numbers. And he never ran the ball.

Chuck Studley, formerly the San Francisco defensive coordinator and now Miami's, was right on the nose when he said Montana "is most dangerous when he gets out of the pocket. We've got to contain him, keep him from getting outside."

They didn't. Montana not only passed for his Super Bowl-record 331 yards and three touchdowns, he also ran for 59 yards (a record for a Super Bowl quarterback) and a touchdown.

Of all the Super Bowl predictions, perhaps Marino was the most accurate of all. When told a day or two before the game that tickets (face value: $60) were selling on the scalpers' market at $1,000 apiece, Marino replied: "I sure wouldn't spend that much to see me play football."

'Boom Boom' talks of match

After the title loss, some members of the media suggested Mancini retire, although he is only 23 years old. That was only his second loss compared to 29 wins, but critics felt his aggressive style was getting him punished too much. Besides, he had made several million dollars in the ring. Shouldn't that be enough?

Now the retirement question, which must seem more bothersome to Mancini than an opponent's jab, is again being asked.

"I'll answer that that night . . . maybe," said Mancini.

"He gives no indication of not being able to continue," said Dave Wolf, Mancini's manager.

"It's ridiculous to lock ourselves in if we lose. It's not the outcome, it's how he fights."

"If we win, our alternatives are so obvious and so lucrative there's no reason to dwell on this."

A Mancini win could set up a fight for the undisputed lightweight title against Jose Luis Ramirez, the World Boxing Council champion, or one against unbeaten Aaron Pryor, or maybe one against Harry Arroyo, the International Boxing Federation champion who, like Mancini, is from Youngstown, Ohio.

Another option would be for Mancini to quit on top. That's a challenge that many fighters are unable to meet.

"This is the fight that Ray Mancini wanted," said Wolf of the rematch against Bramble. "Ray Mancini's accomplishments have earned him the right to make that choice."

Critics of boxing often forget that fighters fight by choice. Of course, the sport should be strictly supervised in the areas of safety and competence, and boxers failing to meet certain standards should not be licensed. Neither should promoters, managers, trainers and seconds.

Apparently free of physical problems, Mancini still has the problem of dealing with Bramble's style. Bramble, who nullified Mancini's strength, showed patience in the early rounds, then came on strong when Mancini tired.

Mancini said he overtrained and was too charged up by things Bramble said before the last fight. He can box and be cool, too, he said.

But his name is Boom Boom. So is his style.

Junior High Notes

La Plata girls grab three victories Monday

In junior high girls basketball games played Monday at Stanton, La Plata took three games from the Dogies.

In the seventh-grade affair, Alicia Redmon scored 10 points for Stanton, but it wasn't enough as the Mavericks won 24-13. Ann Weaver and Shonia Carpenter each added one for Stanton.

Poppy Richardson was high point for La Plata with six points. Nikki Self added five. Coach Marsha Fowler pointed out the play of Candee Robbins and Kristie Allison, also.

La Plata also won the eighth-grade game, 33-20, behind the scoring of Susan Bell. Bell had eight points for the Mavs, and Maricella Ramirez scored six. Wisty Mars, who scored five points, was singled out by Fowler for her defensive play.

Renee Mercer had six points, Theresa Brown five and Sharon Terry four for Stanton.

Cindy Tice burned the cords for 25 points for Stanton's cause in the ninth-grade game, but La Plata also won this one, 50-42. Shannon Diers hit 10 points for the Dogies.

For La Plata, Kim Edelman hit 19 points and Kamille Martin scored 10. Edelman and Martin were the only Mavericks in double figures, but Trish Kahlich and Jeanette Mumau scored nine apiece.

"It's an enormous challenge on the backboards," Ballard said. "Everyone's been crashing the boards, trying to get a piece of the ball."

Pacers 129, Warriors 127

Herb Williams scored four of his season-high 33 points in the second overtime as Indiana nipped Golden State.

Williams also grabbed a key rebound and passed off to Jim Thomas for the go-ahead basket as the Pacers handed Golden State its 11th straight loss.

North Carolina edges Jacksonville

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith likes to use a lot of players, shuffling lineups and keeping up the pressure. It doesn't work too well, though, when he doesn't have a lot of players.

So, Monday night, Smith found himself fighting a war of attrition, and it nearly cost him as his eighth-ranked Tar Heels held on to beat Jacksonville 74-68 in a non-conference basketball game.

The Tar Heels, 14-3, led 26-10 before Jacksonville cut the margin to 38-37 and trailed only 42-39 at halftime.

"We were smart to open the game the way we did because of our numbers situation," Smith said, alluding to injuries which had cut his ranks. "We decided not to chase, and they milked the clock. They are very quick."

The Dolphins trailed only 64-62 with 3:26 left, but Brad Daugherty hit a basket and North Carolina made four-of-four from the foul line in the final 13 seconds to nail down the victory.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 7 DePaul defeated Eastern Washington 72-50, 14th-ranked Villanova beat Drexel 63-55, No. 16 Georgia Tech defeated Virginia 49-46 and 20th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas beat Fullerton State 83-69.

Top Ten

Tyrone Corbin scored 17 points, and Kevin Holmes had 14 for DePaul, which outscored Eastern Washington 11-2 to take a 50-32 lead midway in the second half. The Blue Demons, 13-3, scored 10 straight points to take a 10-2 lead at the game's outset, but Eastern closed to 12-10 and kept the game within reach until DePaul's second-half burst.

Tony Chrisman led all scorers with 18 points for Eastern Washington. The victory was DePaul's 36th straight at home.

Second Ten

Ed Pinckney scored 20 points, and Villanova overcame an early Drexel lead to win the non-conference game. Harold Pressley added 18 points for the Wildcats, 12-3, of the Big East Conference.

John Salley and Yvon Joseph hit two free throws apiece in the final 11 seconds to help Georgia Tech over Virginia in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. Virginia played without Coach Terry Holland, who flew home earlier in the day after being hospitalized in Atlanta with an intestinal problem.

Nevada-Las Vegas, which moved into the No. 20 spot in the poll this week, got 20 points and 12 rebounds from Richie Adams to beat Fullerton State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. The victory was the 12th straight for the Runnin' Rebels, 13-2 and 6-0 on the PCAA

NBA's Kings

Kansas City club to make move

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Kings, struggling on the court and at the gate and feuding with the city, say it's time again to pull up stakes and move on, heading further west.

Joe Axelson, the Kings' president and general manager, announced Monday that the club would move to Sacramento, Calif., next season, if the National Basketball Association approves. The Kings, who moved here from Cincinnati in 1973, blamed poor attendance, season ticket sales of only 3,200 and "generally weak support over the years."

The announcement confirmed rumors that began the day in June 1983 that an ownership group headed by Sacramento resident Gregg Luckenbill purchased the team from a Kansas City ownership group. Luckenbill called it a "joyous day" for Sacramento.

"Members of the Sacramento business and political community individually and collectively are extremely excited about the opportunity to be a part of bringing the first major league franchise to our vibrant city," Luckenbill said. "Sacramento is a beautiful community that is growing so quickly it has become the 20th largest television market in the nation."

Axelson said the Kings are sure to be profitable in Sacramento, although they will initially play in a warehouse-turned-arena for which they do not yet have a county use permit. A sports complex and industrial park planned for agricultural land near downtown Sacramento has yet to receive county approval.

"In Sacramento, the club will operate parking and food concessions and will sell season tickets at a higher price than we did here," he said.

The Kings' application to move will be referred to a committee of NBA owners, which will have four months to study Sacramento. A recommendation will be forwarded to the Board of Governors, which probably will take a vote in a special meeting at the end of the year. Twelve of 23 owners would have to approve the move.

"My personal feeling is that Sacramento being the market that it is, I think the NBA's going to do what's in its best interest," Luckenbill said.

Axelson said the Kings lost $1 million last year, and Luckenbill has said the Kings will lose $1.8 million this year. The Kings have the second-lowest attendance in the league this year.

The Kings also have been embroiled in a lengthy dispute with Kansas City over their lease at Kemper Arena, which expires June 30.

New York hockey team

Rangers release coach, still hurting

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Herb Brooks lost his job because of something over which he had no control — injuries.

Brooks was relieved as coach of the New York Rangers on Monday, replaced by Craig Patrick, the vice president and general manager of the team, and the man who hired Brooks in 1981 with the challenge to lead the franchise to its first National Hockey League title since 1940.

Brooks fell short of that goal even though his teams seemed to make significant progress. Until this year, that is, when injuries ripped apart the roster, and the players who remained could not carry the load.

"The big part of this was injuries, there's no way around it," said Rangers goalie Glen Hanlon. "Then, you get into a losing atmosphere, no matter who is here to coach."

"I'm sure Herb must take some of the blame," added right wing Anders Hedberg. "But everybody has to look at the results. It's just a matter of the results."

This seasons results, a 15-22-8 record, good for only fifth place in the Patrick Division, have been severely disappointing. But, as defenseman Ron Greshner noted, "we haven't had a full team all season. I've never seen such a load of injuries in one year."

Indeed, the Rangers have had to do without their best forwards (Mark Pavelich, Don Maloney, Hedberg, Mark Osborne) and defensive leaders Greshner, Barry Beck and Tom Laidlaw for sustained periods. Under Brooks' European-influenced system of constant motion, weaving and whirling, not every part is replaceable.

"The players couldn't put it together when we had to," said Beck. Brooks compiled a 131-113-41 record with the Rangers, whom he joined after a year of coaching in Switzerland. In 1980 Brooks masterminded the U.S. Olympic team's stunning skate to a gold medal at the Winter Olympics.

In each of his three seasons at the Rangers' helm, Brooks saw his team lose in the playoffs to their local rivals, the New York Islanders.

Last year's defeat in a fifth-game overtime was the most bitter but also the most encouraging. Brooks began speaking of having the team in the position he had worked for, a position of contending for the Stanley Cup. But the injuries, beginning with Pavelich's broken leg in the second game of the campaign, ruined that.

Patrick described Brooks as an excellent coach and predicted he will be successful in the future.

Brooks could not be reached for comment Monday but was planning a news conference today.

NO LONGER SMALL

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Henry Ellard, the crack punt returner and wide receiver of the Los Angeles Rams, is 5-11 and 175 pounds. But he still thinks about his early teen years when he was only 5-2 and literally a flyweight.

"In the seventh grade when I was 5-2, I cried to my mother every day that I was going to be a shrimp all my life," Ellard said. "I can remember walking home with my shoulder pads and the neighbors asking me if I was the team manager or the water boy. I sure didn't look like a player."

Ellard, who played at Fresno State, was selected by the Rams on the second round of the 1983 draft.

Louisiana Tech success brings recognition

By DICK JOYCE AP Sports Writer

Louisiana Tech is known for being Terry Bradshaw's alma mater and for its outstanding women's basketball teams which won national titles in 1981 and 1982 and finished second to Southern California last season.

"We never minded that they got recognition," says men's coach Andy Russo, although he has admitted on occasion that "the men's basketball team is the best-kept secret in Ruston."

Which is pretty tough to do in a city of 22,000.

The men's team is doing the best to make a name of its own, although the Lady Techsters are still going strong with a No. 6 ranking and 15-0 record.

The Bulldogs are rated No. 12 in the nation with a 15-1 record and at 2-0 are the only undefeated team in the Southland Conference, which also consists of Lamar, Northeast Louisiana, Arkansas State, McNeese State, Texas-Arlington and North Texas State.

Their home attendance is running about 1,500 ahead of the women, which is a turnabout.

The Louisiana Tech men made the NCAA playoffs for the first time last season before losing to Houston, the eventual runner-up to champion Georgetown, in the second round. They have lost only to Oklahoma in the All-College tournament final this season. Oscar Robertson has had two NBA uniform numbers retired. He wore No. 14 at Cincinnati and No. 1 at Milwaukee.

The Bulldogs' big gun is Karl Malone, a 6-foot-9, 250-pound junior nicknamed "The Mailman" because of his knack for delivering.

"But like Oklahoma we're not a one-man team," says Russo, 37, in his sixth year as the Bulldogs' coach. "We held (Wayman) Tisdale to 12 points but still lost (84-72) after being down by 19."

Tech has returned four starters from a team which posted a 26-7 record and a third-place finish in the Southland last season, when it ended Lamar's 80-game homecourt winning streak.

It happened in the Southland postseason tourney and catapulted Tech into the NCAA playoffs.

Russo is a product of Wilmette, Ill., who played college ball at Lake Forest, Ill., and served as an assistant at Texas-El Paso and head coach at Panola Junior College in Texas before succeeding J.D. Barnett at Louisiana Tech.

"I live by a lake a mile from the campus and there are no stop signs in between," Russo says, who hopes there'll be no stopping Tech's bid for another NCAA berth.

Find competent sex therapist

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a good provider and a fine father but his sexual inadequacies have long been a source of anxiety and resentment.

Newly married, I was disappointed when he announced that sex twice a month was all he could manage, and I shouldn't press for more. Now, after 20 years, it is more like once every three or four months. I have told him many times that I feel like climbing the walls and I need the physical release, but my pleas fall on deaf ears and I feel both cheated and diminished for having asked.

Last week I discovered by accident that he has been satisfying his needs through masturbation. Here I am dying for a partner and this man prefers to amuse himself. His selfishness is driving me wild!

Is he sick? Am I overreacting? What on earth is wrong with him or with me?

Please answer in the paper. We have always opened each other's mail. And he would be furious if he knew I wrote to you.—At The End Of My Rope In West Virginia

DEAR W.V.A.: Your story is one I have read thousands of times and every woman who writes thinks she's the only one. Men who "please themselves" when a cooperative wife is present are unable or unwilling to outgrow an adolescent pattern of sexual gratification.

A competent sex therapist can help you to help him. Your husband needs to be directed, guided and taught a few fundamentals of married love. Be patient and nonjudgmental. This will not be easy for him, either.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more letter in defense of a badly maligned group of hard-working people? I am talking about America's truck drivers.

Did you know that: Trucks are allowed only the two right lanes of the highway? How about the people who creep onto the highway at 35 miles an hour, while another driver is going 50 in the second lane? The truck is moving along at 55 miles, and has to change lanes for slowpoke to get on. The guy in the second lane refuses to change lanes, but he is the first to holler that the truck is climbing on his tail.

Most people in California drive in the left lane. Don't they know that is the passing lane? No one can get around a driver in the left lane who is doing 50 miles an hour. So, everybody moves over to the right lane, and blames the truck driver for riding his bumper. In New York you can get a citation for cruising in the left lane.

My husband drives an 85,000-pound tanker with hazardous material and is not out to "get some jackass." When driving on the highway, I stay in the third lane. That way I'm out of the way of trucks, and yet I'm not blocking the left lane for passing cars.

If people would be a little considerate of one another it could solve a lot of problems and save some lives. I've seen some rotten truck drivers, but there are just as many four-wheelers that are hazards on the road. Please print this and sign us—Mr. And Mrs. In L.A.

DEAR MR. AND MRS.: You've had the last word—and I thank you.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage—What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Railroad Commission okays UPS service

AUSTIN (AP) — United Parcel Service has scored a regulatory victory — 19 years in the making — allowing the company to make deliveries between Texas cities.
But it might be awhile before the Connecticut-based company picks up its first intrastate package.
In a 2-1 vote, the Texas Railroad Commission on Monday approved UPS' application, a request first filed in 1966.

"This is easily the brightest moment in UPS' history in Texas," said Joe Dobransky, UPS southwest region manager in Dallas. "It will only be topped on the day we pick up the first Texas intrastate package."
That day will be at least months from now. Tex-Pack Express, a group of Texas companies that have long fought UPS' request, will take the case back to court.

"We'll do essentially what UPS did when they were ruled against," said Timothy Herman of Austin, Tex-Pack lawyer. "We take the position the statute as interpreted and enforced by the commission hasn't undergone any change."
The statute in question is a 1931 law requiring package deliverers to operate on scheduled and regular routes. That law barred UPS from Texas intercity service. UPS offers on-demand service without a schedule or regular routes.
UPS long has been allowed to make shipments to and from other states, and some deliveries within Texas cities.

Examiner C. Kingsberry Ottmers last year recommended rejection of the application for service between Texas points, but the commission overruled her report.
The order signed Monday by commissioners Buddy Temple and Mack Wallace said UPS "proved that the services of existing carriers were inadequate."
"The commission further finds that applicant made a prima facie showing of public need... that was not rebutted by protestants," the order said.
Commissioner Jim Nugent dissented, saying he remains "firmly convinced" state law bars the service UPS wants to offer.
"The evidence in this case demonstrates the applicant does not intend to provide a service in accordance with present laws and regulations of the commission," he said.
There was no shortage of evidence in the case. Fifteen months of hearings produced a 30,731-page record documenting testimony of more than 600 witnesses, about 300 for and 300 against.
Tex-Pack's battle against UPS stretches back as long as UPS' request. The Texas companies, in press releases, have called UPS the "greedy brown giant" and criticized the company as "a giant, automated out-of-state corporation owned by Easterners."
UPS' 1966 request was thrown out by the commission in 1972 because of the state law barring unscheduled service. A state district judge overruled the commission and UPS refilled its request in 1978. The commission, without a hearing, again rejected the application.
The Texas Supreme Court ordered a full commission hearing. The high court never has ruled on the merits of the case.
In addition to the anticipated court challenge, UPS won't be able to begin intracity service in Texas until the commission sets rates, according to company lawyer Joe Kilgore.

Each $1 decline in the price of a barrel of oil is equivalent to a drop of about 2½ cents a gallon on the price of refined petroleum products, such as gasoline and heating oil, if entirely passed on to customers.

Democrats pick Green as majority leader

AUSTIN (AP) — Houston Rep. Gene Green has been elected Democratic majority leader in the increasingly Republican state House.
Green, a six-term lawmaker, said he does not foresee the session as a highly partisan battle. The 150-member House includes 52 Republicans, 15 more than in the 1983 session.

"I don't expect it to be any more partisan than in the past. The biggest partisan session always seems to be redistricting, and we're not in the middle of that," he said.
Green was elected by the House Democratic Caucus on Monday to succeed Sherman Rep. Bob Bush, who didn't want the job again. The caucus' priorities will include counteracting GOP efforts to persuade some Democratic House members to switch parties.
"I think we can all disagree with some of the things that are in the platform," Green said. "But I still feel comfortable in the Democratic Party."

The caucus, meeting in closed session, picked Steve Carriker of Roby as whip, Larry Evans of Houston as assistant whip, Ralph Wallace of Houston as treasurer and Irma Rangel of Kingsville as secretary.
The Senate on Monday approved a measure aimed at making state deposits more attractive for Texas banks. A 28-0 vote sent the House a bill that cut the collateral needed at banks that want a share of state deposits.
Depositories now must put up 120 percent of the state funds secured, and the bill would reduce that percentage to 100.
Senate sponsor John Leedom, R-Dallas, said the effect of the bill would be to make the bidding on state funds more competitive, which should result in higher interest earnings on state money.

similar move.
While OPEC has sought to reduce its production in order to prop up prices, economic strains on some of its members have undermined the plan.
After agreeing last October to cut most OPEC members' production by 9 percent, oil prices on the free market — where OPEC has no say — fell by about $1 a barrel in the next two months. That was mainly because production was not actually reduced.
But when freezing temperatures earlier this month swept across Europe and much of the rest of the industrialized world, the open-market price of Saudi Arabian light crude, the standard around which the prices of all other grades of OPEC oil revolve, jumped more than 50 cents to about $28 a barrel.

However, the surge in prices is not expected to outlast the cold spell.
Chase Econometrics Associates, a U.S.-based economic forecasting firm, said in a report to its clients last week that the average world oil price was likely to fall by $1.27, to $26.90 a barrel, by the end of March. It foresaw a further drop of 40 cents a barrel by summer.
Each $1 decline in the price of a barrel of oil is equivalent to a drop of about 2½ cents a gallon on the price of refined petroleum products, such as gasoline and heating oil, if entirely passed on to customers.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — When OPEC caved in to oil market pressures and cut prices nearly two years ago, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani predicted the cartel soon would be "back in the driver's seat" as undisputed master of the oil price game.
It hasn't happened.
Now it appears that some of the cartel's leaders are resigned to once more swallowing their pride and cutting official prices.
Yamani himself said recently he was "flexible" about a possible change in the group's base price of $29 a barrel. Kuwait has suggested an overhaul of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' layered pricing system to allow prices for the various grades of oil to move up or down with changing market conditions.
"There simply are more and more indications to them that the market will not accept a $29 price," said David Johnson, an oil industry analyst at the investment firm of Wood, Mackenzie Co. in Edinburgh, Scotland. He said he believes OPEC will cut its price to about $27 a barrel at an emergency meeting scheduled to open next week in Geneva.
Some other industry analysts foresee an even bigger reduction.
"I think they're going to accept the inevitable," said G.W. Maynard, director of European and Middle East economic research at Chase Manhattan Bank in London. "It would make sense for OPEC to do a $4 or $5 cut now...to encourage demand for its oil."
A formal price cut at the meeting in Geneva which begins Monday is far from certain, however. It was only after more than two weeks of traumatic negotiations that OPEC agreed in March 1983 to lower its price to $25 from $34. That was the first cut in its 25-year history.
For most OPEC leaders, dictating oil prices to the rest of the world is more than a dream of economic authority. It is a matter of pride, a sign of strength, a confirmation of the Third World's independence from the Western industrial nations. It is a power they enjoyed and flaunted in the 1970s but now are rapidly losing.
Ten years ago there was no competition for OPEC from non-members Britain and Norway. Today those two North Sea oil producers together pump more than any OPEC member except Saudi Arabia. Mexico and other non-OPEC nations also have become oil powers.
Also, consumers, governments and industries in the oil-importing nations have learned to function with less oil. In the United States, oil consumption fell nearly 20 percent from its peak in 1978 before bottoming out in 1983. Oil use in the 10-nation European Common Market dropped by 21 percent in the same period.
The result has been a glut of oil that continues to force down prices, even though economic recovery has boosted oil consumption.
In the United States, the price offered by refiners for the top grade of U.S. oil has fallen as low as $25.90 a barrel from $30 last October. Norway has abandoned its official contract price to sell its North Sea oil at a reported price of $27.35 a barrel this month, and Britain is considering a

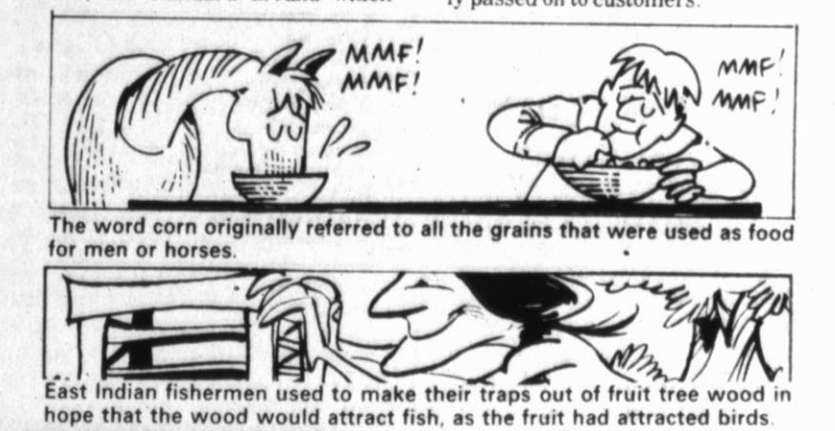

Resistance to cuts waning

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — When OPEC caved in to oil market pressures and cut prices nearly two years ago, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani predicted the cartel soon would be "back in the driver's seat" as undisputed master of the oil price game.
It hasn't happened.
Now it appears that some of the cartel's leaders are resigned to once more swallowing their pride and cutting official prices.
Yamani himself said recently he was "flexible" about a possible change in the group's base price of $29 a barrel. Kuwait has suggested an overhaul of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' layered pricing system to allow prices for the various grades of oil to move up or down with changing market conditions.
"There simply are more and more indications to them that the market will not accept a $29 price," said David Johnson, an oil industry analyst at the investment firm of Wood, Mackenzie Co. in Edinburgh, Scotland. He said he believes OPEC will cut its price to about $27 a barrel at an emergency meeting scheduled to open next week in Geneva.
Some other industry analysts foresee an even bigger reduction.
"I think they're going to accept the inevitable," said G.W. Maynard, director of European and Middle East economic research at Chase Manhattan Bank in London. "It would make sense for OPEC to do a $4 or $5 cut now...to encourage demand for its oil."
A formal price cut at the meeting in Geneva which begins Monday is far from certain, however. It was only after more than two weeks of traumatic negotiations that OPEC agreed in March 1983 to lower its price to $25 from $34. That was the first cut in its 25-year history.
For most OPEC leaders, dictating oil prices to the rest of the world is more than a dream of economic authority. It is a matter of pride, a sign of strength, a confirmation of the Third World's independence from the Western industrial nations. It is a power they enjoyed and flaunted in the 1970s but now are rapidly losing.
Ten years ago there was no competition for OPEC from non-members Britain and Norway. Today those two North Sea oil producers together pump more than any OPEC member except Saudi Arabia. Mexico and other non-OPEC nations also have become oil powers.
Also, consumers, governments and industries in the oil-importing nations have learned to function with less oil. In the United States, oil consumption fell nearly 20 percent from its peak in 1978 before bottoming out in 1983. Oil use in the 10-nation European Common Market dropped by 21 percent in the same period.
The result has been a glut of oil that continues to force down prices, even though economic recovery has boosted oil consumption.
In the United States, the price offered by refiners for the top grade of U.S. oil has fallen as low as $25.90 a barrel from $30 last October. Norway has abandoned its official contract price to sell its North Sea oil at a reported price of $27.35 a barrel this month, and Britain is considering a similar move.

While OPEC has sought to reduce its production in order to prop up prices, economic strains on some of its members have undermined the plan.
After agreeing last October to cut most OPEC members' production by 9 percent, oil prices on the free market — where OPEC has no say — fell by about $1 a barrel in the next two months. That was mainly because production was not actually reduced.
But when freezing temperatures earlier this month swept across Europe and much of the rest of the industrialized world, the open-market price of Saudi Arabian light crude, the standard around which the prices of all other grades of OPEC oil revolve, jumped more than 50 cents to about $28 a barrel.

However, the surge in prices is not expected to outlast the cold spell.
Chase Econometrics Associates, a U.S.-based economic forecasting firm, said in a report to its clients last week that the average world oil price was likely to fall by $1.27, to $26.90 a barrel, by the end of March. It foresaw a further drop of 40 cents a barrel by summer.
Each $1 decline in the price of a barrel of oil is equivalent to a drop of about 2½ cents a gallon on the price of refined petroleum products, such as gasoline and heating oil, if entirely passed on to customers.

Sport Briefs

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls, who averaged 31.0 points, 9.8 rebounds and 8.8 assists per game in four games, has been named the National Basketball Association's Player of the Week for the period ending Jan. 20.
Jordan's biggest game of the week came Jan. 14 when he collected 35 points, 14 rebounds and 15 assists — the first triple-double of his pro career — in a 122-113 victory over the Denver Nuggets. He closed out his week with 28 points, 12 rebounds and seven assists in a 110-107 loss to the Indiana Pacers Saturday night.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Confirming months of rumors, the Kansas City Kings announced Monday they had petitioned the National Basketball Association for permission to move to Sacramento, Calif. in time for next season.
Poor attendance this season, poor season ticket sales and "generally weak support over the years," were cited for the move, Kings President and General Manager Joe Axelson told a news conference.

Gregg Lukenhill, a Sacramento resident who heads a group which purchased the Kings in June 1983, called it a "joyous day" for Sacramento.

HOCKEY

MONTREAL (AP) — Right wing Craig Laughlin of the Washington Capitals scored three goals and added four assists in four Washington victories to capture National Hockey League Player-of-the-Week honors for the period ending Sunday, Jan. 20.
Laughlin, in his fourth NHL season, scored the game-winning goal and added an assist in the Caps' 6-3 victory over the Minnesota North Stars, Jan. 14. He scored two goals in the Caps' triumph over the Penguins Jan. 17 and finished the week with an assist in Washington's 7-1 victory against the New York Rangers Jan. 19.

NORDIC SKIING

SEEFELD, Austria (AP) — Anette Bøe's outstanding skating technique keyed a 10.3-second victory in a 5-kilometer cross-country event as the 35th Nordic Ski World Championships, leading from start to finish.

In near-perfect weather, Bøe covered the course in a fast 15 minutes, 14.8 seconds. Maria-Liisa Hamalainen of Finland, the 1984 triple Olympic champion, duplicated her finish in the earlier race by taking the silver medal in 15:25.1. Grete Nykkelmo of Norway was third, missing the silver by just 1.5 seconds in an identical medal finish of the 16-K.
