DOE may consider other sites for first nuclear repository

By KATHRYN BAKER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's first nuclear waste dump does not necessarily have to be at one of the five sites — including Deaf Smith County in Texas — currently under consideration, according to the Department of Energy.

Sites in 17 other states in the East and Midwest, currently being considered for a second waste dump, could become candidates for the first dump if the current candidates all prove unsuitable, a DOE spokesman testified last week at a hearing held in St. Paul, Minn., by the House subcommittee on energy, conservation and power.

The controversial Deaf Smith site, located beneath the massive Ogallala Aquifer water supply, is listed by DOE as one of the top three candidates for the first nuclear dump.

The state of Texas has sued the federal government, contending DOE did not adequately consider the environmental impact of the waste dump.

According to subcommittee chairman Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., the department has said it might not get the same rankings if it conducted the selection process again.

"I have always assumed, and I gather the 17 states under consideration for the nation's second repository have also assumed, that any repositories in a second-round state would necessarily be the second national nuclear waste repository," Markey said at the hearing.

"However, because of serious problems with the selection of the first repository, I asked the DOE whether it believed second-round states could be considered for the first repository if first-round states were found to be inadequate.

"The department's office of general counsel has responded that indeed, under some circumstances, the nation's first nuclear waste repository could be located in a second-round state, such as Minnesota," Markey said.

Six items on city agenda

Six items fill the agenda of the Hereford City Commission for Monday's regular meeting at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to routine business the commission will conduct a public hearing on annexation of a 22-acre tract on Fifteenth Street just west of Centre. The site has been considered by a purchaser for a sub-division development.

City leaders will consider authorization for a railroad crossing improvement at U.S. 60 and Lawton. The project will be 90 percent paid by federal funds, five percent by state, and five percent by city if approved.

The agenda includes a closed session to discuss litigation about single-member voting districts.

An ordinance to change speed limits is the final item requiring a vote Monday night. The state and the contractor in charge of the U.S. 385 improvements has requested a 30 mph speed limits for the strip of that highway from Park Avenue to the city limits for protection of construction workers.

Gramm calls town meeting

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm has called a regional town meeting for Sunday, Oct. 27, in Amarillo.

The meeting will be at 5:45 p.m. in the second floor conference room of the Amarillo National Plaza, Fifth and Taylor.

In his testimony, William J. Purcell, associate director of DOE's office of civilian radioactive waste management, said there was nothing in the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 to prohibit consideration of a site in one of the 17 other states, if the currently proposed sites all prove to be unacceptable.

In December, three sites — the others expected to be Yucca Mountain, Nev., and Hanford, Wash. — will be formally recommended to President Reagan as worthy of further drilling and testing.

Final recommendation of a site for the first waste dump is expected in 1990 or 1991, DOE says. The department proposes to have the dump operating by 1998.

DOE says selection of a second dump site is expected to trail the process for the first one by five or six years.

The 17 states are Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

Lawsuits filed on voter districts

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Official reluctance to convert at-large voting systems to single-member districts has forced a minority voter registration group to file lawsuits against three West Texas cities, a member of the group said.

San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project filed challenges in federal court to the at-large voting systems in Snyder and Littlefield city elections and Snyder school district elections.

Another suit filed Friday by the group challenges wording of Lamesa city election ballots.

The suits were filed because cities have been reluctant to change voting systems when not faced with legal action, said Roland L. Rios, litigation director for the project. Based on the outcome of previous suits, Rios said, a change to single-member district voting is likely through negotiations and without a lengthy legal trial.

"We're trying to dismantle the at-large system because it discriminates against Chicanos and blacks," Rolando L. Rios, litigation director for the project, told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Rod Waller, mayor of Snyder, said a special council meeting probably will be called to discuss the suit. He said he does not think at-large systems discriminate against minorities.

Lamesa Mayor Don Bethel said it was too soon to respond in detail to the suit but indicated future ballots may indeed make it clear that voters

Anti-U.S. feeling growing

ROME (AP) — Anti-U.S. sentiment grew over American criticism of Italy's actions in the Achille Lauro hijacking, and politicians said Premier Bettino Craxi, who resigned under fire for his role in the crisis, may head the next government.

In other developments stemming from the two-day seizure of the Italian luxury liner and its aftermath:

—Italy's largest newspaper, Corriere della Sera, quoted a Portuguese waiter Friday as saying he and the ship's hairdresser were forced to dump the body of slain American passenger Leon Klinghoffer overboard.

—Reports said the New Yorker's body would probably be flown to the United States on Sunday from Rome, where an autopsy has been performed.

—Genoa's Il Secolo XIX newspaper, the Achille Lauro's home port, said magistrates are looking into the possibility that the four hijackers who seized the ship Oct. 7 may have planned to take it to Syria.

—Deputy U.S. Secretary of State

John D. Whitehead was expected to arrive in Rome today in an apparent attempt by the Reagan administration to mend frayed relations with Italy.

Craxi's resignation on Thursday touched off strong anti-American comment in Italian media. The Reagan administration had asked Italy to arrest a PLO official it accuses of masterminding the hijacking, but Craxi said Italian magistrates found insufficient cause.

A front-page editorial in Rome's moderate newspaper Il Messaggero said U.S.-Italian tension over the affair was caused by Italy's refusal to act like a "banana republic."

The cover of Europeo, an Italian newsweekly, shows Reagan, dressed as a cowboy, putting Craxi over his knees for a spanking.

President Francesco Cossiga consulted Friday with major political figures before naming a new premier-designate, which could occur Monday. Craxi, a Socialist, is acting as caretaker until the president makes his decision.

Some politicians said another five-party Cabinet led by Craxi was a strong possibility, and public opinion polls showed general approval for the government's performance during the crisis.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says nothing increases prices more these days than "including the tax."

Yesterday is experience; tomorrow is hope; today is getting from one to the other as best we can.—Anon.

The way the no-pass, no-play rule is set up makes it a form of child abuse, claims one Panhandle football coach. "I think it's a foolish rule where you have to take six subjects and not fall below 70 in one. The punishment is too harsh," another coach was quoted on Friday when the first six weeks grades were posted.

Already, some school officials are hinting that many school districts were not playing by the same rules. "There seems to be a direct correlation between winning and losing, and the number of students not playing because of no-pass, no-play," said a superintendent in one area of the state.

Gov. Mark White and Ross Perot have been brushing aside criticisms of the rule by claiming that winning football coaches were the only unhappy citizens. Teachers and administrators are unhappy. So are parents with children in band and other extracurricular activities.

Supt. Harrell Holder of Hereford doesn't like the provisions of the rule. "I can see where some students are bypassing some subjects they need for college, and they're doing it because there's a chance they might be suspended from an extracurricular activity."

In an interview this week, Gov. White said he was "dismayed" that a Republican candidate for governor wanted to weaken his school reform bill. If he seeks reelection, White may be more dismayed when he learns how many voters agree that the no-pass, no play rule is too harsh.

What White and H. Ross Perot don't seem to understand is that most citizens favor an eligibility rule, they just don't believe in making it so tough that good students avoid tough courses, and that poor students who traditionally make better grades during their "season" might drop out or lose interest in school.

When we were in school (many years ago), athletes had to pass 3 of the 5 "solid" subjects and grades were checked on a weekly basis. A student could be suspended for a week but had the opportunity to bring his grades up and get back into

Minor quake shakes NYC

NEW YORK (AP) — A minor earthquake shook the New York City area Saturday, rattling dishes and shaking people awake in several states.

The tremor at 6:08 a.m. measured 3.8 on the Richter scale and was centered near New Rochelle in Westchester County, about 20 miles north of New York City, said Russ Needham, a spokesman for the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

The quake was felt throughout the city, as far north as Rhode Island, Connecticut, on Long Island, in New Jersey, and as far south as Philadelphia.

Sgt. Ron Severin, a Police Department spokesman, said he received numerous calls from concerned people, but said he had received no reports of damage or injury.

Big Sister builds Little Sister relationship with simple activities like reading books

By MARGARET BELL Staff Writer

Receiving the status of a big sister from someone other than one's parents is an unusual situation, but such a relationship does indeed come into being when an adult volunteer agrees to share an hour or two each week with a young girl who is enrolled in Hereford's Big Brother/Big Sister program. Dolores Foster made such a commitment early in June and has spent some very happy hours with her Little Sister April during the summer months.

"I felt very good about the conversation with Director Alva Lee Peeler of the BB/BS agency when she told me that she had chosen me to be the special friend of a little girl in the program. She made me feel that perhaps I was the only one who could really help April," Mrs. Foster, who is also a teacher at Bluebonnet Elementary School, says. She adds that her decision was made easily and quickly because she was made to feel needed. Another factor which made her acceptance of the Big Sister role easier was the fact that her own two sons, Michael and Hunt, will both be away from home at college this fall.

Being a teacher, Dolores' first impulse was to enroll six-year-old April in the summer reading program at Deaf Smith County Library. Since she has only completed pre-reading instruction in kindergarten, April can not read herself, so Dolores proceeded to read more than 100 low-level, easy vocabulary books to her. Dolores liked to do the reading, and April, in turn, loved to do the listening. This Big Sister is hopeful that this experience will make April's entry into first grade easier and that she will more likely have a lifelong love for reading. The twosome also made trips to the library to attend the weekly story hour sessions.

Both feel special

Other happy hours shared by Dolores an April included jaunts to Sugarland Mall for ice cream cones and shopping, a drive to Amarillo to attend the movie "The Return to Oz" and time at the Foster home. April has also become great friends with the family dog, Cookie, who loves her attention. A very pleasant afternoon was spent making casseroles, one of which ended up being a surprise gift to Mrs. Peeler, whose family enjoyed the tasty dish while on vacation in Colorado.

Boots 'n Tattles

By Jeri Curtis

By JERI CURTIS
Managing Editor

Why are sales up however much in Hereford?

I have a theory.

It is because we have less time to shop.

Sound ironic? Okay, let's look at this closely.

With very few stores open after 5:30 or 6 p.m., men have little buying power.

And the working women trying to patronize Hereford - instead of getting off work, driving to Amarillo and still having three hours to walk through a mall - must bolt through the door, zip to a favorite store and hope to find what is wanted in 25 minutes before the clerks and lights start to dim.

The other prime time is lunch. If one can buzz through the fast food drive-in, to the store and out of the checkout line within an hour, that's dandy.

Consumers simply have less time to shop.

Hence, my theory is explained:

As I hastily dart through one of the only stores still open one evening, I spy a red and white sign that tells me "today" my favorite brand of pantyhose are on sale for 64 cents less than regular price.

What a bargain! Better than a coupon! Just when my last pair bit the dust! With winter just around the corner! And - wow - it was payday and I could get two or three pair!

Gloating on my find, I gather up a couple of the egg-shaped packages with my other items. I'm not a compulsive shopper, but if it is a good deal on something I will need anyway, I do take advantage. Would you pass up four for a dollar loaves of bread?

Checkbook in hand I steal away to the register.

Fortunately, it was one of very few times in my life have I watched the cashier.

Surely I must have shrieked.

"Wait, that's not right. These are on sale," I corrected.

Now the checker looked down at the little fool who had not realized we were into space age cash registers and said very matter of factly, "Well, the register didn't skew it on sale."

"Well, they are on sale," I told her. She replies, "If they were on sale, the register would have said so."

"Well, there is a sign back there that says they are on sale. I will go show it to you," I said. "Today, on sale ... blah, blah, blah."

She pulls her microphone over and calls for someone to check it out.

People are in line waiting, surely beginning to wonder about their own merchandise.

A young girl comes up to the register.

"Yes, there is a sign back there that says they are on sale," she explained.

At least we were both literate. However, she continued, "But they aren't on sale."

"Then why do you have the sign up?" I inquired.

"Well, they're not on sale," she repeated.

"You're kidding," I said.

How stupid of me to think the sign meant what it said. How unsophisticated I must have looked to them.

They didn't even squirm.

"Forget it. I don't want them if they are not on sale," I said, feeling quite haughty, but wishing my other purchases weren't so dire that I couldn't dramatically walk away from them all.

The checker had to do all her overring business and then re-check all my other merchandise.

I went home.

It's been several months since I've been into that store, too.

Perhaps soon there will be an irresistible advertisement for something I need at a price that I can't pass up and my weakness for a true value will overcome my begrudging boycott.

I think I'll ask the manager to browse through the store with me to ask him about every item, "Now this says it's 99 cents, is that right? Are your high-tech cash registers programmed to skew this at four for $1? Why are these marked 'on sale' for more than the regular price? Why are the blue ones on sale and the red ones aren't? Is this rain check still valid? I know it says it doesn't run out until next week, but ..."

Couple wins Hawaii excursion

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

"It was a big surprise when the GM central office called explaining I had won a trip for the dealership's service and satisfaction," said Ken Billingsley, service manager at Stevens Chevrolet Olds.

Billingsley explained that Chevrolet had a contest where the customers send in an evaluation form describing how the customer was treated, care of the car, and how quickly the service problems were resolved. The forms were sent to the central office without the service men's knowledge, they did not know they were being evaluated.

"Stevens Chevrolet Olds ranks 300 in the nation in service preparation on new vehicles," said Billingsley, delighted to have won. "It would not have been possible if the four technicians and the assistant were not so involved in keeping the customer satisfied," said Billingsley.

Billingsley said he won the trip because the entire dealership (parts dept. included) was satisfying the customer with having their vehicle repaired properly and promptly. "With one bad report the trip would have been out," said Billingsley.

When the call came saying he had won, Billingsley remembered he had been told earlier that he was a potential winner but had almost forgotten until the call came.

"They announced we (he and his wife) were winners and gave us a choice of a trip to Hawaii, a trip to Monte Carlo and Switzerland and a third choice of a Caribbean cruise," said Billingsley of the phone call.

How did the couple decide which trip to take?

"It was a spur of the moment thing," said Billingsley, explaining that the head office called and needed to know his choice right away.

Greeted by representatives of Chevrolet Motor Division, the couple had leis, the popular floral necklace, placed around their necks. "And they were real flowers, too," said Mrs. Billingsley.

The tour guide led the couple to Royal Lahania; an eleven story resort hotel featuring three swimming pools, a shopping center, three separate restaurants, and a giant golf course.

A barbecue reception, including a live band, was held on the terrace welcoming the service managers and their wives from different states.

Billingsley explained that each day was filled with different activities as the tour service provided the agenda for the week.

"We went on the 'Windjammer' on a sail-away to one of the other islands owned by Dole Pineapple Company," said Mrs. Billingsley.

After getting off the Windjammer, the couple was treated to a hamburger cookout on the beach and snorkeling was offered.

Billingsley said he did try the snorkeling... and drank half the ocean while he was at it!

On the bus tour of the plantation Mrs. Billingsley was amazed to discover how the pineapples are grown.

"They don't grow on trees and they don't grow in the ground," said Mrs. Billingsley, "the pineapples grow in a bush that produces only one pineapple at a time."

Back on the Windjammer, the couple was surprised with a boat party where natives sang Hawaiian music during a cocktail hour.

Getting back to the resort, another party was celebrated on the terrace and the Billingsleys sampled Polynesian food at a local restaurant.

The couple was flown to Honolulu to tour Pearl Harbor, the U.S.S. Arizona, and the national cemetery with 30,000 soldiers buried in it.

"That was a real moving experience to tour the Arizona," said Billingsley. "All hands on a ship entering or leaving the harbor, stood at attention to salute the Arizona every time."

Both agreed that every minute of the trip was certainly filled.

"We had a young boy, a tour guide, tell us about the bombing of Pearl Harbor," said Billingsley. "He was a survivor."

Remembering other native tales, Billingsley said it was still on the books that the law says when a married man hits the island, they automatically become single.

"Ken thought he was single," joked Mrs. Billingsley.

At the lous the Billingsleys attended, hula girls danced and a prince from a native island did a fire dance. "They put on quite a show," smiled Mrs. Billingsley.

Billingsley noted some of the tourist prices of the island. He noted that the cabannas next to the resort they were staying in, rented anywhere from $300 to $600 dollars a night, "and the cabannas are occupied 85 percent, year round!"

Other differences that came to the couple's mind was the sugar cane crop in Hawaii. It takes two years for sugar cane to mature from being planted to harvest time.

The cane requires takes a ton of water during its growth for each pound of sugar that is produced.

"It's all irrigation over there...." said Billingsley. "The irrigation hose is like the regular water hose we have here," noted Mrs. Billingsley, "it's just seepage that keeps the ground wet for two years."

"On the coast there, the yearly rainfall is 12 inches and in the mountains it rains two to three hundred inches a year," said Billingsley.

The Hawaiians burn the sugar cane in a pile after it is cut, then the cane is taken to be refined.

The refineries in Hawaii operate full time because the crops are planted in order to be harvested year round.

The Billingsleys were both impressed with the Haleakala Crater. They drove up to the volcano which rises from sea-level to 10,000 feet.

The heavy rainfall creates a climate for lots of vegetation.

Billingsley said there are 200 different species of plant life on the island, but none of it is native.

Conversely, there are only 200 full-blooded Hawaiians left in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Billingsley win trip to Hawaii for outstanding service at Stevens Chevrolet Olds.

BIG SISTER

"Now that school has started, we will have less opportunity to see each other," Dolores says, "but I intend to include April in my weekly activities as much as possible. She is a delightful little girl, and we have both enjoyed our times together."

An unidentified Big Sister volunteer tells about her involvement in the new-found role of sister to a younger girl: "I had never had a sister of my own and decided that it would be neat to adopt a little girl and do things with her. We have shared such experiences as baking cookies, shopping for groceries, going to Amarillo for a special movie, and having lunch together while she has been out of school this summer. I know that the thing I have enjoyed most have been the hours in which we have simply talked, perhaps while sipping tall glasses of lemonade. She has told me all about her life from the time she can remember, and I have tried to give her some "words of wisdom" which will make her life more stable. I try to allow her to pour out some of the frustrations which she feels because of long-term separation from her father without being judgmental. She just needs someone who will give a kind hearing to all the problems which life seems to hold for her."

Any man or woman who is 18 years of age or older may be considered to fill the role of a Big Brother or a Big Sister. The first step in the process is to visit the BB/BS office at the YM-CA building in order to receive an application form. After completion of this basic information survey, the prospective volunteer is interviewed by Mrs. Peeler, the agency's director, both in the agency office and later in the person's home. The purpose of the home visit is to meet other members of the family and to observe the general milieu of life there.

On the application, the volunteer names at least four persons as character references, and each of them must file, in writing, a checklist evaluation of the applicant's potential as a companion to a LB/LS. The evaluator may add remarks concerning the person's suitability if he chooses. This information becomes a matter of record in the applicant's file.

Another reference which the volunteer is expected to supply is a notarized statement from the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department as to his arrest record in this county. Again, this is filed for use in the process of approving the person to be a BB/BS.

Four members of the BB/BS Board of Directors serve on the screening committee who has the responsibility of reviewing all references and information about the candidate to determine whether or not he will be invited to serve as a BB/BS. A key member of this committee is Mike Moon, who describes himself as a "case manager" with Hereford's Family Services Center. Mike is a certified social worker and advanced clinical practitioner which gives him important expertise in the screening process.

An agency spokesman says, "We are not looking for paragons to serve in the BB/BS roles, but we do want our volunteers to be dependable individuals who can bring stability into the lives of our children from one-parent homes. We simply cannot be too careful in the screening process to assure that we have found the best people possible to fill these BB/BS roles."

ing the hijacking.

The 26-month-old, center-left government fell apart after the Republicans, led by Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini, pulled out of the coalition to protest Craxi's release of the Palestine Liberation Organization official, Mohammed Abbas.

Abbas had been aboard the plane carrying the four hijackers, which was forced down by U.S. warplanes in Sicily Oct. 11.

The Achille Lauro waiter, Joaquim Pineiro da Silva, 27, told Corriere dresser, Ferruccio Alberti, if they did not obey.

Nieman to direct spelling bee

AMARILLO Speedy Nieman, publisher of the Hereford Brand, has been named by the Amarillo Globe-News and West Texas State University, Canyon, to direct the Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee.

The Amarillo newspaper and WTSU are sponsoring the National Spelling Bee for the 38th year for students in all public and parochial schools.

Rules state that no student who will be older than 16 by the end of the current school term or in a grade higher than the 8th may participate, beginning at the school level.

Directors choose dates for their respective county eliminations and are requested to report the best speller(s) in the county to the Amarillo Globe-News by March 29. Winners from 46 counties will meet on the WTSU campus on April 26 and name the 1986 district champion. This student will represent the area in the National Spelling Bee, sponsored by the Scripps Howard Newspapers, in Washington, D.C., during the last week of May.

All expenses for the 1986 area champ and one parent will be provided by the Amarillo Globe-News.

Gene Parker, director of placement, WTSU, serves as bee coordinator.

"We've worked with this program for 10 years and believe it serves to further our efforts in education. The young people who come to our campus as county finalists are outstanding and we encourage all schools in our four-state area to participate," Parker said. "The benefits are great."

The booklet, "Words of the Champions", containing more than 3,000 total words - an increase of 500 new words from 1985 - is used in most schools and county bees. The booklet, priced at 50-cents each, is available from Jeane Bartlett, Spelling Bee Editor, Amarillo Globe-News, Box 2091, Amarillo, Texas 79166.

Interested students and school officials are encouraged to contact either Parker or Mrs. Bartlett for additional information.

A Junior Bee for young students, grades six and under, will also be conducted in each county at the discretion of the directors. All county junior winners will be special guests of the sponsors on April 26 in Canyon. Each will be given a trophy.

LAWSUIT

could vote for only one candidate, as SVREP desires.

"If something could be worked out without going to court, I think that would be desirable," Bethel said.

In the Lamesa suit, SVREP contends the ballot instruction to "vote for two" candidates is "deceptive and misleading" because it indicates voters must vote for two candidates.

Rios said the Lamesa ballot language discourages "single-shot voting" in which a minority voter could vote for a black or Hispanic.

SVREP in July sued the city of Brownfield and its school district, as well as Littlefield and Levelland school districts, challenging at-large voting systems.

The class-action suits name about a dozen black and Hispanic residents of the three cities as plaintiffs.

BULL

the activity. This didn't scare the better students away from tough courses, and it gave the poor student an opportunity to recover.

Some things need changing over the year, but some of the old values should be retained, too.

Still on the subject of school reform legislation, we mentioned in this column some weeks ago that Gov. White and Perot should be happy with the controversy over the no-pass, no-play rule because taxpayers are overlooking what is really happening to them.

Local control of our schools is being shifted to Austin, while more of the tax burden is being placed on local districts. Many school leaders have said the state-mandated programs will cause drastic property tax increases in the next few years.

Supt. Harrell Holder of Hereford

In a prepared statement, SVREP contended that the present at-large voting systems in Littlefield and Snyder "dilutes the voting strength of the minority community members."

Velasquez said a pattern of "polarized voting," in which voters select members of their own races, makes it impossible for blacks and Hispanics to win elections.

warned of the local-tax problem when the legislation was approved. He estimates the local district might make ends meet for two years, then taxes would have to be increased to cover state-mandated programs.

This week in Lubbock, State Rep. Jim Rudd said that a price indexing plan in the school reform bill only serves to benefit larger Texas school districts. Rudd said the "price differential index" (PDI) took much of the state's education funding away from smaller schools and pumped it back into Dallas, Houston and San Antonio.

Rudd said the PDI—which he dubbed the "Protect Dallas Interests"—needs to be changed when the legislature meets again in 1987. He added that changes in the PDI lost by only two votes during the last regular session. The PDI gives more money to schools in higher cost-of-living areas.

Airman Lauro A. Carrasco, son of Aurelio and Basalisa Carrasco of 208 Lake St., has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

He is a 1973 graduate of Hereford Senior High School.

School brouhaha

If you've been keeping up with the controversy in our public schools over the implementation of a mastery learning program, you may still be confused as to what is taking place and why.

It is a complex matter that needs to be solved so that our teachers can get on with their jobs. They don't need the added pressures to distract them from educating our children.

From a layman's point of view, the right and wrong of the situation is difficult to determine. On the one hand is the administration's argument that the program will work and improve our system. On the other hand, a group of parents and teachers argue that the school is going full steam ahead with a program that is ill-conceived and administered with intimidation of teachers.

We are among a number of citizens in the middle who wonder to what extent personality conflicts have played in this controversy. Is the program okay but parents and teachers don't like the way it was "shoved" down their throats? Or is it really a bad program that needs to be changed? Is the administration too unbending in administering the program, or are teachers too reluctant to make changes?

We don't pretend to know all the answers or solutions. At the school board meeting this week, parents complained that first graders are placed in the reading program only on the basis of tests. Board policy allows parents to override testing placement with teacher approval, but parents contend that teachers are intimidated into going with the tests.

If that is the problem, it should be easy for the administration to make certain that there is no intimidation. It may sound simplistic, but if the board has approved the policy to override the testing placement, there should be no hangup on that point.

How many parents are really concerned over the school curriculum? That's difficult to say. There are a few who would be satisfied only if the board got rid of the superintendent and the person implementing the mastery learning program. There are a number of parents and teachers who want only for the administration to make a few changes. There are many parents who don't want to get involved.

Despite the personality conflicts and egos involved in the issue, we have no doubt there are sincere motives on both sides. And, when there are two sides to an issue, there is usually no end...unless some compromises are made.

It may sound like a cop-out on our part but maybe the time for compromise is now.

As the years turn

75 YEARS AGO

Quite a crowd was attracted Monday by the whirl of the cotton gin and a number went down to see the ginning of the first bale of the season. Daniel Garrison brought in 1,550 pounds of seed cotton.

A farmer in the central portion of Texas this year produced $900 worth of cotton on 22 acres of land, one five acres of land he produced 200 bushels of corn besides plenty of hay to feed his stock the entire year; also potatoes and other vegetables for home use.

50 YEARS AGO

It took the Hereford Whitefaces three full quarters to overcome the sudden thrusts of the Amarillo Yannigans last Thursday afternoon at Whiteface Field, but they came out fighting and hung up another thrilling close-margined victory, 14 to 12.

Ballots have been mailed to all corn hog contract signers and they will cast their votes and return them to the county agent's office not later than Saturday as they join the national referendum to decide if they favor a corn hog adjustment program for the coming year.

25 YEARS AGO

Although the year 1960 is only 10 1/2 months old, total rainfall in Hereford through this week pushed the water level passed all previous annual recordings for the past 19 years. Hereford's official rain gauge this week added another 2.49 inches to the year's 23.89 inches, making a total of 26.38 inches through Tuesday this week.

Request for a rate increase for natural gas service was tabled Monday night by the Hereford City Commission.

10 YEARS AGO

Plenty of judges will be in Hereford starting today, but hopefully there won't be crimes to match as about 70 Justices of the Peace and their wives convene here for the 16th Annual Convention of the West Texas Justice of the Peace Association.

The long awaited end to the grain export embargo imposed by the administration came to an end Monday when President Ford announced that the U.S. and Soviet Union have sealed a five year agreement providing for U.S. grain sales to Russia.

1 YEAR AGO

A "blockbuster" storm lugging record shows left 100,000 Utah homes without power, trapped hunters in Colorado's mountains and spit more than a dozen tornadoes across three states, killing one person. And forecasters said the third storm of the week is moving in today from the Pacific.

Texas agriculture officials, saying the state hasn't adequately regulated pesticide use in the past, has proposed rules to allow people to require their neighbors to give advance notice of aerial applications.

Bootleg Philosopher

You can't take credit card from Congress

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsonsgrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek is not excited over a new plan in Washington to end the deficit.

Dear editor:

Some people think television reporters lead glamorous lives, being seen by millions as they and their wellgroomed hair show up on the screen day after day, excitingly reporting the news.

The excitement is mostly manufactured, or it doesn't take much to excite them.

For example, for years now Congress has been faced periodically with raising the debt ceiling, so the government can keep going on borrowed money. "Will Congress do it?" TV reporters ask. "If it doesn't, will the government come to a halt? Will Social Security checks bounce?"

To get excited about this every time it happens requires a certain youthfulness, say a 10-year-old's youthfulness. Anybody whose memory span is at least 12 months long knows Congress is going to vote to raise the debt ceiling.

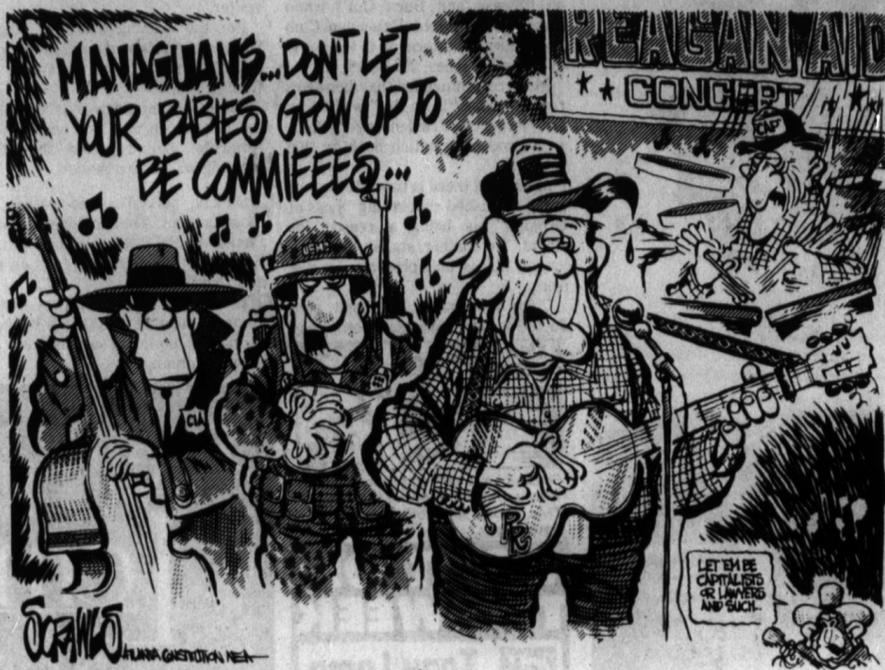

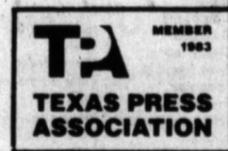

With the debt ceiling raised, reporters are now excited over a bill to require the deficit to be whipped by 1991, with a certain percentage automatically being out each year between now and then.

This is a splendid law, with only one drawback. It'll never be enforced.

Somewhere in there there'll be a provision allowing Congress to change its mind, as the financial circumstances warrant. You can take a credit card away from an individual but not away from Congress.

Merely voting to end the deficit or to maintain a debt ceiling is like trying to stop a forest fire by yelling King's-X.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Doug Manning

The Penultimate Word

TIME TRIALS

Now that Medicare has gotten completely out of hand, Uncle Sugar has a new plan. They now have a time limit set for each illness. That sounds a little far out since illnesses do not fit our schedules very well. The result can be a real problem when someone's time is up and the illness isn't through.

The idea may not be a good one but something had to be done. Maybe the idea would work better if we applied it to the court system. This is an area that is totally out of hand. Cases are backlogged, trials last forever and then are settled out of court.

Everyone seems to be entitled to at least four trials, since the first three will be reversed on a technicality. It is sort of like matching for quarters and, when you lose, you then say, "How about two out of three."

Anyone who has been on jury duty or called as a witness can figure out why the courts are backlogged. You wait for days while the trial goes on in the judges chambers. I don't have any idea what the lawyers and judges have to talk about that takes so long.

Maybe we could adapt the Medicare idea and cure the problem. Each crime could be rated as to how long the trial can take. Work expands to fill up whatever time is allotted to it. If a trial has four hours it will be done in four hours. If it has four days it will take at least that long.

The idea will work if one simple rule is applied. Anything over the allotted time is paid for out of the lawyer's fees.

When the verdict is guilty, then set up a new trial for the next day and get it over with. Two strikes and you're out. No fads, no fancy stuff, just two shots and that's it.

Of course, this will never happen and maybe it is just as well. If they set time limits for trials, the lawyers might est a time limit for sermons. That will never do.

Warm fuzzies,
Doug Manning

Letters to the Editor

Boosting boosters

Dear editor:

The Hereford Band and Orchestra Booster Club would like to thank the many businesses and individuals who contributed their time, talent and donations so generously. Thanks to them our Fajita Supper was a wonderful success.

The proceeds received from this supper will be used to help several projects of the band and orchestra throughout the coming school year.

The Boosters congratulate the "Big Red Band" for attaining its twenty-eighth superior rating at the UIL marching competition held in Borger, Texas. We appreciate the time and effort these young people put forth to achieve this award.

Again, thank you Hereford for supporting the band, and thanks "Big Red" for being such an outstanding representative of your school and Hereford.

Sincerely,
Carol Gerk
Booster President

Fajita helpers

Dear editor,

The Hereford High School Band Fajita Supper was a great success thanks to the local merchants who donated food and other products to our fund-raising project. We would like to thank you for all of your donations.

The Band Booster Club did an outstanding job under Carol Gerk, president, and her officers. The support you gave us in planning and organizing the supper is deeply appreciated.

We would also like to thank our parents for preparing and serving the meal, and cleaning up afterward. We know a lot of time and effort was given by each of you.

Thanks also goes to the band members for selling tickets and working at the supper while they could.

I'd like also to say we appreciate Johnny Martinez, the other directors, and sponsors for working with the band and Booster Club in planning our supper.

It's great to know we can depend on the people of Hereford for the support of our high school band when we need it.

Thanks again,
Natalie Sims,
Band president

Nuclear waste

Dear editor:

Two gentlemen were quoted in the Hereford Bull on October 17, both of whom had previously been the subjects of news articles in the Amarillo Daily News. One is Dr. Paul Robinson, an associate at Los Alamos Labs, who does research in nuclear energy. Also Dr. Linn Draper, a VP with Gulf States Utilities, which has had severe quality control inadequacies in the construction of its River Bend nuclear plant.

The article went unchallenged in Amarillo, but I just couldn't resist it, so here goes:

1. There is a difference in nuclear energy experts and nuclear waste experts. Neither of these men have nuclear waste credentials, and it becomes even more evident when you read what they say.

2. Both men ignore the absence of any type of recoverability in the DOE's program. The plan is to bury it over a 30 year period, seal it up and walk away. If the nuclear waste were such a treasure, surely monitored retrievable storage would make more sense than the present scheme of permanent "disposal." But the DOE evidently doesn't think so.

3. If it were such a treasure, why don't utilities such as Gulf States keep the waste? What companies do you know of that want to get rid of something that will become "valuable" in the future?

4. Reprocessing begin in 30 to 50 years? So what? Reprocessing can remove some of the valuable elements in spent nuclear fuel, but it also leaves a significant amount of highly radioactive waste. It still doesn't solve the problem of what to do with the waste.

5. Nothing is said of the dismal 20-year record of reprocessing in the U.S. There have been several attempts, both by private corporations and the federal government, which have simply not worked, technically or economically.

6. Do either of these men have an axe to grind? Are these quotes really attempts to inform, or attempts to confuse?

7. And the inevitable question that everyone has asked before, "If it's so valuable, why doesn't anyone else want it?" Why are they letting us in on this great deal?

Experts like Dr. Robinson and Dr. Draper should stick to their own specialty. I'll bet most of your readers have advanced beyond the periperal arguments and questions that always crop up when one first looks at the nuclear waste question. There are plenty of real experts on real issues that can provide real answers. These two guys should spend an afternoon at the DOE information office to get their facts straight.

The nuclear waste dilemmas has little to do with whether or not nuclear energy is a viable power source. We must dispose of the huge amount of existing waste even if all nuclear power plants shut down tomorrow. The same can be said for the waste that would remain after reprocessing.

A faithful reader,
Chip Formby
Box 1757

Sex education

Dear editor:

It has been brought to our attention that Planned Parenthood has been invited into some of our schools to tell our children about birth control. We feel that parents should be informed about Planned Parenthood and the ideas which it supports and promotes.

The organization is the largest advocate in this nation of abortion as a means of birth control. In fact, 15 percent of the income of Planned Parenthood in the United States comes from fees for abortions performed at Planned Parenthood Clinics!

Faye Wattleton, president of Planned Parenthood International said, "They (teenagers) know better what the situation is and what the relationships are, and the greater good here is gained by giving a young woman the means to end an unwanted pregnancy than to uphold a standard of parental authority that doesn't serve anyone any good."

One of the arguments of Planned Parenthood is that abortion cuts down on child abuse by decreasing the number of unwanted children, but just the opposite is true. Child abuse has increased in the degree that abortion has since the Supreme Court decision, in 1973.

As part of our closing remarks, we would like to remind parents that the Hatch Amendment which Congress passed several years ago gives parents the right to keep their children out of sex education programs.

In conclusion, we would like to ask a question. Are any of the Pro-Life Organizations invited to the schools to talk to our children?

Sincerely,
Gerald & Laura Joy

Thanks to parents

Dear editor,

We would like to take this opportunity to give a public and heartfelt "Thank You" to those magnificent, marvelous, dedicated Senior parents who toiled so diligently during the weeks preceding the Senior Supper held on Sept. 20.

Thanks are also in order for the fantastic work force at the supper itself. We, as senior sponsors, have never witnessed such a turn out. Everything was well-organized, everyone was there and things went so smoothly.

Parents—we appreciate your support more than words can adequately express.

Thanks again,

Strengthening Families:
 Improving communication
 Families seem to come in more shapes and sizes than ever before. In our own community we see many examples of traditional "nuclear" families, single-parent families, "blended" families resulting from remarriage, dual-income families, retired-couple families, childless families, newlyweds, extended families and adoptive families.

Each type of family probably has its own unique set of problems. For example, in families where both parents are employed, they may feel they don't have enough time with their children. Yet a parent who stays home may feel the pressure of too much time spent in childcare.

Strong families—regardless of type—seem to have some skills and traits that help them deal effectively with their problems. Researchers in family relations tell us that one of the key traits of a strong family is good communication. They describe how these families communicate as follows:

—Strong families do more than have feelings of appreciation. They express feelings in words and actions. They let each other know they are special.

—Strong families spend a great amount of time together in work and play. They enjoy being together.

—Strong families don't just happen to have more time to spend together; they look at "activity overload" and intentionally cut down on outside activities that fragment family life.

—Strong families have developed the ability to look beyond each member's faults to see their needs. They put forth the effort to hear what the other person is saying and feeling.

—Quarrels and disagreements are very much a part of most families. But the strong ones know how to get the issues out front and attack these issues rather than each other.

Why do strong families communicate well? Maybe it's because they are committed to promoting the happiness of each other through actively helping and sharing in the concerns of other family members.

MORE WOMEN POETS

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — There probably are more accomplished women poets today than at any other time in the history of the written English language, according to J. Paul Hunter.

Hunter, dean of the University of Rochester's College of Arts and Science and editor of the fourth edition of "The Norton Introduction to Literature," says he came to that conclusion when he noticed that more than half of the poems he added to the newest edition of the college anthology were written by women.

National High School Oratorical Contest set

Hereford High School students are invited by the Hereford American Legion Post to compete in the annual National High School Oratorical Contest.

Church to host bazaar

Booth applications are available for those interested in participating in the Wesley United Methodist Church's fifth annual Festival of Arts and Crafts.

The event is planned from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Nov. 23 at the Hereford Community Center.

Only a limited number of booths are available with applications being screened. Booth fee is $15.

Applications may be obtained by writing Marilyn Bell, 114 Northwest Drive, Hereford, Texas 79045 or calling 364-0181.

President Richard M. Nixon arrived in Peking Feb. 21, 1972, for an eight-day visit to China. His unprecedented action in visiting the Communist country was hailed as a landmark move toward communications between the United States and China. The visit ended with a joint communique pledging that both powers would work for a "normalization of relations."

The local contest will be held at the American Legion Hall on the evening of Tuesday, Dec. 17.

Those interested in entering the competition may get contest information sheets from their teachers or they may contact Mary Williamson, Post Commander, or Robert Lohr, Post Adjutant.

The subject in the prepared oration portion of the contest must be about some phase of the Constitution of the United States, emphasizing the duties and obligations of citizens.

The prepared oration must be the original effort of each contestant and must be 8-10 minutes in length.

In addition to awards by winners of the various elimination rounds of competition, university scholarships of $16,000, $14,000, $10,000 and $8,000 will be awarded to the first through fourth places in the national finals.

This contest has been sponsored by the American Legion since 1938 and is designed to instill a greater knowledge and appreciation of the Constitution of the United States in high school students.

Other objectives include the development of leadership, the ability to think and speak clearly and the preparation for acceptance of the duties, responsibilities, rights and privileges of American citizenship.

"Credit Union Youth: Our Next Generation"

Stephan Hacker, Mark Artho,
 & Trent Bowling

Our theme for this year's International Credit Union Day, "Credit Union Youth: Our Next Generation", honors and recognizes the importance of the youth of our community. At the Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union, we feel the young people of Hereford should understand the value of cooperation and self-help ideals that the Credit Union philosophy embodies. If we can teach them the very same cooperative ideals which have made the Credit Union work for everyone, they will be better prepared to face the challenges that the future holds.

Young high school students such as Stephan Hacker, Mark Artho, and Trent Bowling have already realized first-hand, the self-help ideals we incorporate at the Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union. In turn, our community's success will be built upon by these members of the new generation—today's youth!

Houston has 5-game losing streak

Oilers battle Cincinnati Sunday

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Almost everyone in the Houston Oilers organization is attempting to accept the blame for the Oilers' five-game losing streak.

Head coach Hugh Campbell says it's his fault. Offensive coordinator Joe Faragalli says he's formulated the game plans so it must be his fault.

Players have even stepped forward, including members of the often-criticized offensive line, to grab their share of the blame.

And now the Cincinnati Bengals would like to add themselves to the list of Oiler headaches when the two teams meet in an American Football Conference Central Division game in the Astrodome Sunday.

Kickoff is at noon CDT. "Sooner or later, somebody's got to stand tall and say 'it's my fault,'" said Faragalli, who left the Bengals last season to join the Oilers. "So here I am, standing tall on a ledge that's about two inches high and saying it's my fault."

After showing promise in a season-opening victory over Miami, the Oilers have lost five straight games and they've looked worse each week offensively.

The offense ranks last in the NFL and quarterback Warren Moon is feeling the effects of a league high 33 quarterback sacks.

While there are numerous volunteers to shoulder the blame, nothing has happened to turn the tide. Moon and backup quarterback Mike Moroski, waived this week, were canned seven times in last week's 21-6 loss to Cleveland.

Campbell said last week's game plan was simplified to eliminate mistakes. Starting guard John Schuhmacher thought it was too simple.

"Against Cleveland, we ran seven different plays... each about five or six times," Schuhmacher said. "I don't like that. The problem is not the game plan or the system. It's the choice of plays."

While the Oilers are trying to recapture their opening game magic, the Bengals are coming off a 35-30 victory over the New York Giants.

Bengal quarterback Boomer Esiason completed three touchdown passes against the No. 1-ranked defense in the NFL.

The Bengals have struggled defensively but Coach Sam Wyche said the defense won last week's game.

"Our defense is getting better," Wyche said. "The last few weeks we've given up the points but we've taken away the big plays. Against the Giants, we made them turn the ball over in crucial situations and our defense actually won the game for us."

The Bengals, 2-4, lead the American Football Conference with 184 points scored and 196 yielded.

When Oiler fullback Larry Moriarty ended his contract holdout prior to the regular season opener, Oiler Coach Hugh Campbell said the team needed Moriarty's enthusiasm as much as his running skills.

Moriarty is the team's leading rusher going into Sunday's National Football League game against the Cincinnati Bengals. But his leadership qualities still are in demand with the Oilers in the throes of a five-game losing streak.

"We can't let outsiders tear us apart," Moriarty said. "I think it's a situation where we have to come together to build each other's confidence from within."

The Oilers, 1-5, haven't been hearing or seeing much to boost their confidence as the losses have mounted.

They were booed in the Astrodome Sunday in a 21-6 loss to Cleveland after leading 6-0 at the half. Every segment of the team has been criticized, from Coach Hugh Camp-

Gun club plans

merchandise shoot

A merchandise shoot, with a variety of games, has been scheduled Sunday by the Hereford Gun Club.

The games will include ones for children. Ammunition will be available and a concession stand will be open.

Club officers say anyone is invited to attend the merchandise shoot.

bell, to the high-priced offensive line, to quarterback Warren Moon.

"We can't let outside things distract us," Moriarty said. "To be quite honest, the press is getting on us and there's heat and friction. I understand it's the press's job to do what they can to sell papers."

"But we can't let that distract us right now. I can say one thing for the fans of the Houston Oilers. When they come to a game they will see people are hustling."

Despite the hustle, the Oilers' mistakes have continued to mount. Houston's offense ranks last among the 28 NFL teams and Oiler quarterbacks have been sacked a league-high 33 times.

Moriarty thinks confidence is the key to reversing the team's fortunes.

"We need to start winning and getting us to it," Moriarty said. "That's the attitude we have to take right now."

Dallas plays Philadelphia Sunday

Landry concerned about Eagles

By RALPH BERNSTEIN AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry says he thinks there is an increased emphasis in the National Football League on pressuring the passer.

"Miami, the (San Diego) Chargers, all these teams that throw the ball, you just have to get pressure on them," said Landry, who brings his Cowboys here Sunday for a National Football League game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Eagles' quarterback Ron Jaworski agrees, saying the key to an Eagles victory Sunday will be containing the Cowboys' front four — Ed Jones, John Dutton, Randy White and Jim Jeffcoat.

Both Landry and Jaworski say the Dallas rush is mainly responsible for the Cowboys' NFL-leading 18 interceptions in six games.

"I think that's (the rush) is exactly what you're seeing, just like you saw in the Jets' game (against Miami) Monday night. Everybody is trying to get a little more pressure on the good passers," Jaworski said.

Landry, whose team is 5-1 and leads the NFL's National Conference East by two games, insisted he's concerned about the Eagles, 2-4 and last in the division.

"I think they're doing an excellent job. They started in a tough situation, a lot of holdouts, a lot of (distracting) conversation. But they've been in the games. They've turned it around. They beat a good St. Louis team (30-7). They beat a Washington team. They can beat anybody in our division if they've done that so far," he said.

"I've always been impressed with the (Eagles) defense. They're well coached and play extremely well."

Landry said he's hoping for another day of at least 100 yards from running back Tony Dorsett, who last week amassed 113 yards to become the sixth player in league history to gain 10,000 or more. In games when the nine-year veteran has gained 100 yards or more, the Cowboys have amassed a 41-2 record.

"He (Dorsett) plays just about as good today as he did when he first came with us," Landry said.

"He has been kind of overlooked through the years because he isn't one of those dominating runners like Eric (Dickerson) is out at Los Angeles (Rams), the ones who gain 150-200 yards a game. He doesn't do that. We don't run him that much to have him gain that kind of yardage. But each year he tacks up his 1,000 yards or more ... and I think he's doing it again this year. It's a remarkable record for a back that's no bigger than he is."

Landry also talked about Randy White, who he described as one of the great tackles in the game.

"He (White) gets double-teamed probably three quarters of of the time when he's trying to rush the passer and he still does a good job. He's just a phenomenal player. He's one of those self-motivating players who doesn't care who he lines up against up front."

No clubhouse lawyers is big difference for Cowboys

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The biggest difference in this season's Dallas Cowboys compared with the 1984 team that missed the playoffs is the absence of clubhouse lawyers, Coach Tom Landry says.

In training camp, several Dallas players made the point that the 1984 Cowboys were a selfish bunch. "There was too much back-biting going on," defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones admitted.

With harmony in the locker room, the Cowboys have streaked to a 5-1 record and a two-game lead over Washington, St. Louis and the New York Giants, all 3-3, in the National Football League's NFC East.

"We have a lot of things we have to get better at," Landry said at a press luncheon, "but if you told me this summer we would be 5-1 right now, I'd be very surprised.

"Last year we got down in the gutter with a 9-7 record, including a loss to Buffalo. We were embarrassed by that."

Now, Landry says, the Cowboys have Super Bowl potential because of "the way we are playing as a team. We are playing together and helping each other. That's the only time you're ever going to have a good team."

But Landry also cautioned that "it's still a five-team race in the NFC East. Philadelphia (2-4) still believes it has a chance and if you believe it enough, you can."

Philadelphia's belief will be put to the test on Sunday when the Eagles host Dallas.

Lonnie Smith plays against old team in World Series

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Lonnie Smith had heard all the trade talk. He just thought that was all it was — talk.

He turned out, of course, to be quite wrong.

Smith had seen Vince Coleman in spring training with the St. Louis Cardinals. He knew people would stop what they were doing, just to watch the rookie run the bases. He knew Manager Whitey Herzog was searching for roster space for the young outfielder.

"You had to foresee what the guy could do," Smith said. "They knew he could score a lot of runs for them, that he could run the bases. He was like David Green and Willie McGee, a guy with unbelievable abilities. The question was how long they would wait for him."

The answer was, not very long. So what does a veteran do in those ominous circumstances?

"You only hope you can hang around," Smith said, sounding a trifle rueful. "In my case, I didn't."

Coleman's potential forced the issue and in May, the Cards swapped Smith to Kansas City in exchange for minor league outfielder John Morris. How did Smith respond to being traded?

"Emotionally," he said as he prepared for tonight's opening game of the World Series against his old team, "I was not prepared for it. I was taking the rumors as rumors."

The move 250 miles west on I-70 did not go all that smoothly for Smith. He had spent his happiest baseball years in St. Louis, where he was an integral member of a World Series championship team in 1982.

The Cardinal ties were tough to sever and when Smith was quoted as saying American League baseball did not match the National League, it did not make his life any easier.

"It was a joke, but people took it seriously," Smith said. "I was talking about all the finesse pitchers in this league and how pitchers don't challenge hitters like they do in the National League."

Now he's getting his World Series share with his new team, not his old one.

"That doesn't matter," says Smith. "All I want is another ring, a blue one."

Steelers, Cardinals to meet in pivotal game

By The Associated Press

The last time the Pittsburgh Steelers lost four straight games was in 1969, when first-year Coach Chuck Noll and the Steelers finished 1-13.

Noll refuses to call Sunday's contest at Three Rivers Stadium against the St. Louis Cardinals a pivotal game, even though the Steelers have lost three straight and are two games behind the Cleveland Browns in the AFC Central with a 2-4 record.

"Every game is important," said Noll, whose team is coming out of a brutal stretch in the schedule with their last two losses to Miami and Dallas on the road.

"You have to remember that the National Football League season is a long season. It doesn't make very much difference, with 10 games left to play, whether you're two games ahead or two games behind."

While the Steelers play the Cards, the division-leading Browns also face a pivotal game at home against the Los Angeles Raiders, one of three teams tied for the lead in the AFC West. The other two leaders, Denver and Seattle, meet each other at Denver's Mile High Stadium.

In other games Sunday, Cincinnati is at Houston, Dallas is at Philadelphia, Indianapolis is at Buffalo, the unbeaten Los Angeles Rams are at Kansas City, New Orleans is at Atlanta, Washington is at the New York Giants, San Diego is at Minnesota, San Francisco is at Detroit, the New York Jets are at New England and Tampa Bay is at Miami.

Green Bay is at unbeaten Chicago Monday night.

While Pittsburgh has been having its trouble with the schedule, St. Louis has just been having trouble. The Cards, considered the most solid team in the NFC East at the start of the season, have been manhandled in two straight games — 27-10 by the Washington Redskins and 30-7 by the Philadelphia Eagles.

One problem is quarterback Neil Lomax, who has fallen to 10th among the NFC quarterbacks and was lifted last week for reserve Scott Brunner.

"Things really changed quickly," Coach Jim Hanifan said. "It was a surprise to all of us and maybe an awakening to us, too."

"We've been misfiring most of the year," Lomax said. "There have been a lot of high expectations for us. We're trying to take a deep breath and get ourselves back together."

Lomax will be back at quarterback Sunday and so will Pittsburgh's Mark Malone, who was benched in last week's 27-13 loss to Dallas. Malone's replacement, David Woodley, completed only 6 of 23 passing attempts and was intercepted three times.

The Seattle-Denver game also features two teams whose expectations haven't matched their performances so far. Both are 4-2 but both have displeased their fans, coaches and players.

"We're not really a good football team right now because we haven't had a game when all three units were playing well," said Seattle Coach Chuck Knox, whose team had to score with 35 seconds left last week to beat winless Atlanta 30-26.

Echoed Denver's Dan Reeves, whose team beat Indianapolis 15-10 last week: "We haven't had a consistently good performance in all phases for four quarters of any game this year."

The situation was a little different last season when 9-2 Seattle came into Mile High Stadium to face 10-1 Denver and came away with a 27-24 victory. Denver went on to win the division with a 13-3 mark to the Seahawks' 12-4.

Joe Walton hopes that Steve Grogan isn't up to his old tricks against his New York Jets.

"Grogan knows the Jets and he's had success against us," the Jets coach said of the veteran New England Patriots' quarterback. "He's had a lot of experience, so I'm sure it's going to help him when he faces us."

Grogan, who will be starting Sunday's National Football League game in place of the injured Tony Eason, has practically made it a career playing against the Jets and playing very well.

In his 11-year career, Grogan has victimized the Jets with two of his nine-300 yard passing games, 25 of his 140 touchdown passes and his best single-game completion percentage and rushing performance. Grogan has beaten the Jets 10 times in the 13 starts he's made against them.

The 3-3 Patriots will be facing a difficult chore, though, against the visiting Jets, who are riding a five-game winning streak, a 5-1 National Football League record and are coming off a convincing Monday night upset over Miami in which they shut down Dan Marino to take the lead in the AFC East.

The Jets are alone in first place in the AFC East for the first time since 1969.

The Rams lead the National Conference in fewest points allowed (89) and boast an undefeated record despite a slow start by running back Eric Dickerson. Dickerson, last season's league rushing leader, fumbled twice and averaged only three yards per carry last Sunday against Tampa Bay.

While Dickerson is rounding into shape after his holdout, the Rams have turned into a passing team with Dieter Brock at the controls. Todd Blackledge may start at quarterback for the 3-3 Chiefs if Bill Kenney's knee isn't improved.

The American Conference East has the highest division race, with Denver, Seattle and the Los Angeles Raiders all holding 4-2 records.

The early showdown between Seattle and Denver pits two of the AFC's top-rated quarterbacks in the Seahawks' Dave Krieg and the Broncos' John Elway.

Both the Raiders and the Browns have three-game winning streaks. The Raiders have the AFC's No. 2 defense against the rush and the Browns have the AFC's No. 1 rushing attack.

The 4-2 Dolphins look for Dan Marino to get back on target against the 0-6 Buccaneers after last week's 24-7 shellacking by the Jets.

Danny White is expected to start at quarterback for Dallas, 5-1, against Philadelphia, 2-4, despite sore ribs. The Eagles have the NFC's top-rated pass defense and a rejuvenated Ron Jaworski, who regained his starting quarterback job last Sunday and beat St. Louis.

Buffalo, 0-6 this season, attempts to break an eight-game losing streak against Indianapolis, 2-4. Washington has won two straight while the Giants have dropped two in a row. New Orleans has won three of its last four for a 3-3 mark, while Atlanta has lost all six starts this year and 15th of its last 16.

Minnesota, 3-3, which has suffered two straight close losses, will face the AFC's No. 1-rated passer in San Diego's Mark Herrmann, who has taken over for the injured Dan Fouts. The Chargers are 3-3.

Quarterback Joe Montana and running back Wendell Tyler lead the defending Super Bowl champion 49ers against Detroit, a team ranked last in the league in passing and running. Both San Francisco and Detroit have 3-3 records.

Cincinnati, 2-4, has won the last seven over Houston, 1-5.

Former greenskeeper collects golf antiques

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ENNIS, Texas (AP) — John Henry's my new hero and I told him so.

You can have Tony Dorsett, Pete Rose or Tom Watson. Mark Aguirre, Dan Marino, Lee Trevino and Jack Nicklaus are all yours.

Henry is into antique golf clubs and other golf-related items. In 10 short years, he has the eye-poppingest collection you've ever seen of old hickory-shafted clubs and rare feathery and gutta percha golf balls.

The retired former greenskeeper at prestigious Brook Hollow Country Club in Dallas has long-nosed wooden clubs that were made in the 1800s and funny looking things like "rut irons" that have the sole function of hitting a ball out of wagon tracks.

He's got old golf balls stuffed with goose feathers (the featheries) and gutta perchas made from the sap of trees from Malaysia.

Years ago, wife Pat gave Henry an anniversary present of a trip to Scotland. He hasn't been the same since.

"You can blame me," she confessed. "I got him started."

Henry fell in love with Scotland's golfing history (it traces all the way back to 1482) and the people who revere golf the way Texans love football.

Henry makes an annual pilgrimage to Scotland to play St. Andrews, Troon, Carnoustie, Turnberry and all the other wonderful old courses on the other side of the Atlantic, where golf is believed to have originated.

He attends auctions and makes his discoveries, then brings them back to Texas to work into condition to either sell or add to his individual collection, considered one of the best in the world.

Which brings me to my meeting with Henry. A note by Harless Wade in the Dallas Morning News made mention of a Golf Collectors Society meeting several weekends ago at a Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport hotel.

After springing the door of my wallet for some rare old golf books, I signed up for a $5 raffle giving away to the winner an old hickory-shaft driver with a ram's horn plate from the late 1890s in Scotland.

Henry called up several days later to say I'd won and could I find Ennis, Texas, and pick up my prize.

Since I'd never won anything before but a place in Central Expressway traffic, I said, "Could I?"

Henry has a shop in downtown Ennis, cunningly placed next door to the police department, where he repairs

Early in the 1985 PGA tour, Lanny Wadkins was in a sudden-death playoff with Craig Sadler in the Bob Hope Classic. On the second hole of the playoff, Wadkins' ball was virtually buried in the sand. Instead of using a sand wedge to get under the ball, Wadkins used a pitching wedge with an open club face to scoop the ball out and put it on the green close enough to get down in two. About that shot, Wadkins said, "One of the golf magazines once wanted to pay me $100 to describe how I hit that shot." He turned down the offer, saying, "Not for something that I worked on for 15 years."

Morvich, the 1922 Kentucky Derby winner, was the first California-bred horse to win the classic at Churchill Downs.

clubs and works on his treasures.

But his rare collection is in his home. He has one old hickory club that you can adjust to hit any loft you wish. You could play a round with one stick. It since has been outlawed.

"My collection has just kept building," said Henry. "I guess you could say I'm in the Top Ten."

Henry can give you the history of each club and you almost can see young Tom Morris swatting a feathery ball over the Valley of Sin onto the 18th green at St. Andrews to clinch another British Open.

If you care anything about golf, you'd get golf dimples looking at Henry's magnificent collection.

His assortment of golf paraphernalia alone would rank him right up there as my No. 1 idol. He has golf lamps and golf walking canes etc.

He also gets to play golf six times a week, and sometimes he shows up in Scottish knickers with old hickory-shafted clubs. The former member of the Texas A&M golf team also is an excellent player.

Yep, John Henry is my hero. Not the steel-driving man, John Henry, nor the world championship horse, John Henry. It's John Henry, the golf nut.

When I grow up, I want to be just like him.

Oklahoma law made against illegal sports agent dealings

By OWEN CANFIELD Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Sports agents face up to $10,000 in fines for violations of a new Oklahoma law, designed to crack down on illegal agent dealings with college athletes.

The Athlete Agent Law, which took effect Oct. 1, calls for prospective sports agents and attorneys to register with the state and pay a $1,000 annual filing fee before they talk to players.

"I think eventually maybe most of the big football states in the country will have this kind of law, specifically the ones that produce high draft choices," said Coach Barry Switzer of No. 3-ranked Oklahoma.

"Obviously, the profession needs some help, if you want to call it a profession," he said. "They're the ones who come in and entice these young athletes with money and gifts. I think what it will do is possibly deter those people from coming around."

University of Oklahoma officials, meanwhile, were investigating reports that several former players received cash payments from agents while still in school, a violation of NCAA rules.

"Kids are usually gullible along those lines," said Coach Pat Jones of No. 12 Oklahoma State, "and there are a lot of agents who are ignorant, who really don't know what it takes to play in the NFL."

California is the only other state with an agent-registration policy. A similar Texas law died in committee during the recent legislative session.

In California, all prospective agents who are not attorneys must register with the state labor commission. The only penalty for not doing so is the voiding of any agreement with an athlete.

Julie Parrish, who handles agent registrations for the Oklahoma Secretary of State's office, said applicants also must sign a $100,000 surety bond, which, in effect, protects the athlete from fraud or misrepresentation.

Agents must list five professional references, prior employment, formal training and education, and the names and addresses of all athletes-clients.

Fines can be as much as $10,000 for an agent and or attorney who fails to obey the law.

Meanwhile, agents Bob Woolf and Leigh Steinberg think the law may go too far.

"I do welcome any constraints, restraints or restrictions of people representing athletes. I'm all for that," Woolf said. "But I think that is going to extremes."

"As an attorney I doubt that it (the fee) would be upheld in a higher court," he said. "A thousand dollars for what? For the right to talk to somebody?"

"Everyone knows that some form of registration is needed," said Steinberg. "A thousand dollars seems to be a rather large amount of money ... which would deter any prospective representative, except someone doing a large amount of business."

Steinberg said the $1,000 fee also might discourage attorneys who may only be supplying legal advice to a free-agent athlete.

John Leavens, the NCAA's director of legislative services, said that in the last year the association has tried to keep a closer check on athlete-agent relationships.

Only one key hit

Balboni struggles in playoffs

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The only knock anyone ever put on Frank White, a gold glove second baseman, was his hitting.

Raw home run power is what brought Steve Balboni to the big leagues. Yet, when the Kansas City Royals bat against the St. Louis Cardinals in the opening game of the World Series Saturday night, White will be hitting cleanup in the fourth spot and Balboni, the Royals' single-season home run leader, will be hitting eighth.

White jokes about it.

"Just call me Jim Rice," he smiled.

Balboni, whose only key hit in the American League playoffs was a bloop single to win Game 3, merely shrugs and vows to do his best.

"Sure, I'd like to start hitting some home runs. That's what I'm paid to do — hit home runs and drive in runs," he said Friday on the eve of the Kansas City-St. Louis World Series.

"But more than anything, I'd like to deliver some important hits, whether they're singles, doubles or whatever."

White, who set a career-high with 22 home runs this year, has batted cleanup before, although rarely. He's most comfortable in the fifth spot.

Royals Manager Dick Howser used veteran designated hitter Hal McRae in the cleanup spot most of the second half of the season. But this being an odd-numbered year when the World Series does not employ the designated hitter, some improvising was in order.

"I had a little funny feeling when I was first used there this year," White said. "I'm not that kind of hitter, but all I can do is do what I'm asked and do it to the best of my ability."

Balboni came to the Royals in a December 1983 trade with the Yankees, after New York gave up on the soft-spoken right-hander despite his 30-plus home run years in five straight minor league seasons.

Balboni did help the Royals win the AL West by hitting 36 homers and driving in 88 runs.

Campbell demonstrates art of making lace snowflakes

Brenda Campbell demonstrated how to make lace snowflakes when members of North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club met Thursday afternoon in the home of Peg Hoff.

Campbell explained that the snowflakes may be used as Christmas tree ornaments, adorning Christmas packages or can be used throughout the house during the holidays.

During the business meeting with Naomi Brisendine presiding, a nominating committee was appointed consisting of Evelyn Croford, Campbell and Marcella Hoffmann.

Also, a menus committee was appointed for the Thanksgiving supper. They included Edith Higgins, Martha Lueb and Hoff.

Lucille Gibbens was welcomed as a visitor by those mentioned above.

During the next meeting, Louise Walker, county extension agent, will demonstrate how to make bows. The group will meet at 2:30 p.m. Nov. 7 in the home of Brenda Campbell.

Miss West Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant set April

The 15th Annual Miss West Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant will be held at The Centre/Holiday Inn Holiday in Odessa on April 25-27, 1986.

Young ladies between 13 and 18 years of age, who are interested in competing for over $40,000 in scholarships and prizes, are invited to participate. Finalists are judged on scholastic achievement, poise, personality and appearance. There is no swimsuit competition.

This program is the official regional preliminary to the Miss Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant which will be held at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, June 6-8, 1986. The winner of the Miss West Texas Pageant will receive a $500 cash award, a $2,400 scholarship to Wayland Baptist University in Plainview, among other prizes. The newly crowned West Texas queen will be attending the state pageant in Fort Worth along with the first and second runner-up.

The reigning West Texas National Teen-Ager is Stacey Bradley of Denver City. Stacey also reigns as Texas' National Teen-Ager and recently was named fourth runner-up at the National Pageant held in Atlanta, Ga.

West Texas teenagers who wish further information may write to: Debra Barnard, 601-2 Harwood Road, Suite 221, Bedford, Tx. 76021.

Watercolor demonstration presented by guest artists

Mary Selfridge of Amarillo presented a watercolor demonstration when members of The Hereford Fine Arts Association met recently in the Community Center.

President Linda Minchew called the meeting to order. The following were appointed as a nominating committee for 1986 officers: June Owens, Norma Hendon, Vinita Wear and Melba Dillard.

Also, during the business session, Gary Hammett, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and gave the treasurer's report.

Jean Lyles, program chairman, who also served as hostess with Mary Aguirre, served refreshments to Hammett, Carmen Angel, Wear, Jolene Bledsoe, Hendon, Minchew, Frances Frazier, Dillard, Louella Cowser Mildred Furhmann and guests.

They included Nancy Harrington, Linda Muse, Sunny Lemons, Jeff Love, Janis Coulter and Euman Lyles.

To Pledge A Pin

Hereford Satellite Work Training Center will be sponsoring a Bowl-a-thon, Nov. 1, at the activity center at West Texas State University in Canyon. The workers will be asking for local pledges on each pin to raise funds to send them to Special Activities for the Mentally Retarded. Above, workers prepare for bowling as they will be practicing for the event.

Tax practitioner workshops being planned

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is cooperating with the Internal Revenue Service in offering 39 tax practitioner workshops across the state, reports Louise Walker, county extension agent.

Twenty-five general workshops will be held in all major Texas cities. The general workshop nearest this county is in Amarillo on Dec. 16-17. There will also be 14 advanced workshops offered in major cities.

The general tax workshops will concentrate mostly on personal taxes—the advanced workshops' emphasis will be on business tax problems.

In addition to the general and advanced tax workshops, there will be three partnership workshops, six oil and gas tax workshops, and new this year, three workshops dealing with IRS taxpayer disputes. Four estate planning and tax form preparation workshops especially developed for accountants will be offered in November.

The tax practitioner educational program has been highly successful. Last year about 3,200 people participated in this state-wide series. These practitioners reported filing more than 535,000 tax returns.

For additional information, please contact the Deaf Smith County Extension Office (364-3573) for a brochure explaining more about the program and registration information.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion handicap or national origin.

The first American flag with fifty stars was unfurled on July 4, 1960 at the Fort McHenry National Monument in Baltimore, Maryland.

Your young child may be able to hold onto a drinking glass better if you place two tight rubber bands around the glass an inch or so apart. This makes it easier for little hands to hold.

Installing locks may lower rates

Simply adding locks to your doors and windows may do more for your security—and your pocketbook—than an elaborate burglary alarm system.

"Before buying expensive gadgets and alarms, secure the critical points of entry into your home," advises Dr. Peggy Owens, a housing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

"With a relatively small investment, you can make the job of getting inside so tough, time-consuming and risky that most would-be intruders won't consider it worth the effort," she says.

Better quality locks may cost a little more, but will provide tighter security. Whatever you pay for added locks, it's a small price when compared to the cost of the televisions, silver, video-recorders, computers and other consumer goods burglars are likely to take, Owen points out.

According to Dr. J. Fred Cross, Extension community development specialist, installing locks can also qualify you for a 5 percent reduction in homeowner's insurance premiums. Cross says the following burglary prevention measures are required to qualify for the insurance reduction:

-Exterior doors must be of metal or solid wood at least 1 1/2 inches thick.

-The door must have a dead bolt lock with a bolt throw of at least one inch, that penetrates a metal strike plate. The lock must be key operated from both sides, if there is breakable glass within 40 inches of the lock.

-On double exterior doors, the inactive door must be secured at top and bottom by bolts into metal strike plates. If there is glass within 40 inches of the bolts, the bolts must be flush mounted in the edge of the door.

-Dutch doors must have concealed bolt locks to interlock the top and bottom and have a 1 inch throw dead bolt lock.

-Sliding glass doors must be secured by a secondary locking device that prevents lifting and prying.

-Garage doors must be equipped with key operated locks.

-All windows must have auxiliary locking devices, such as key operated locks, pinning devices, dowels or screws. Or you can substitute metal bars or grating for the extra locks.

To obtain the insurance reduction, a law enforcement officer certified as an inspector by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education must examine your home security.

After the inspection, the State Board of Insurance will be notified that you meet the requirements, and you will receive a certificate from the board to take to your insurance agent for the premium reduction.

FARMING AT A PROFIT - IS WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT. Many experts are advising farmers to acquire a broker to help market their wares for the best possible gain. But experts also urge to shop around for a competent broker. It's not easy to find someone who really knows agriculture and hedging and will take the time to understand each farmer's business Good brokers, though difficult to find, experts say, can really help a farmer develop a marketing plan. In choosing a good broker, experts advise: Check registration with the Commodities Futures Trading Commission; Look for a broker with a strong financial brokerage firm who have research and instant communication systems available; Demand assistance in developing a marketing plan and knowledge of all commodities and their relationships; Require an understanding of technical analysis And, finally, one who can fill orders promptly. Today, agriculture is really big business.

It's half a mile long. It's super-efficient. It's a ZIMMATIC.

We designed and installed this ZIMMATIC section machine for Roy and Jeff Robertson, a mile North and a mile West of Easter.

It's 2,650 ft. long, with 19 spans of 10-in. pipe, one span of 8-in. pipe and one span of 6-5/8-in. pipe. It has low-pressure drops at 60-in. intervals.

The Robertsons were using nine wells to irrigate this section of land. Now they feed this ZIMMATIC section with only three wells, which deliver a total of 2,000 gallons per minute at 24 lbs. of pressure, to irrigate 506 acres.

If they were to use four pivot sprinklers on this section, they would be left with 16 seven-acre corners. But with this system, they have four 28-acre corners, which are easier to manage.

A 6-cylinder, fan-cooled Moline engine powers the generator for the system's electricity, and also powers a booster pump that collects and pressures the water.

We're proud of this ZIMMATIC system. We urge you to study the economics of this very efficient irrigation machine. We can give you the details and literature in our new Dimmitt office.

Also, we invite you to ask Roy or Jeff Robertson what they think of our system and our service.

Actress Lynley visits Hereford

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

A customer who came into the Brand office Wednesday afternoon mentioned to a reporter that "the blonde headed lady in the car out front sure looks familiar, but I can't place her!"

The pretty blonde is known as Carol Lynley, national stage and screen star.

The actress is currently starring in the production of "A Dash of Spirits" being performed Tuesday through Saturday, beginning at 8 p.m. at Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo.

"I've done 38 feature films, seven Broadway plays, and over 100 television shows," said Lynley who has been acting since she was ten.

Lynley has been featured in such films as "The Poseidon Adventure", "Under the Yum Yum Tree" with Jack Lemmon, "The Shape of Things to Come" with Jack Palance and television roles including "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island."

Lynley said she liked all medias but enjoyed performing in films most.

"Usually in L.A., I work mainly on films," said Lynley.

Lynley's favorite movie was starring (not co-starring) with Lawrence Olivia in "Bunny Lake is Missing" which was written by one of her friends.

"In Possession" was also a lot of fun to do and it was filmed in London," said Lynley.

Coming to Hereford for an interview, Lynley explained that this was her first visit to West Texas. "I had never even heard the word Panhandle or Oklahoma," said Lynley.

'acting since she was ten'

Lynley said she is reading the bestseller novel entitled "Lonesome Dove."

"I thought it odd that no one has heard of this book," said Lynley. "It's all about the Panhandle..."

"I did a movie a couple of years ago in the bottom of the Grand Canyon," she recalled. "You don't know what the boonies are by living in Hereford, until you have no electricity, no telephone, and only 34 people (the crew) to call your town," laughed Lynley. (She seemed to have a lot of respect for Hereford, she is from a very small town herself.)

"It's really quiet in the Grand Canyon," said Lynley.

"You couldn't even pick up a radio station in the canyon, if your batteries went out on the cassette player, it could be serious," joked Lynley.

As for music, Lynley loves Rhythm and Blues and Jazz. She said she liked some classical but never developed a taste for the opera.

During her off-time, Lynley becomes a sportster as she runs, swims, does ballet, yoga's and aerobices.

For hobbies Lynley paints in acrylics and makes Japanese wood-block prints. She also likes horse-back riding.

In her spare time Lynley also enjoys watching other people's movies. "Last night I rented a VCR and watched some movies; "Buckaroo Bonzai" and a Dudley Moore film called "Micky and Maude" which was written by friends of mine," said Lynley.

Lynley will be leaving in about six weeks and said she travels the norm. "You get on a plane, get in a taxi, and go to the hotel like everyone else."

"My home is in New York and Los Angeles," said Lynley. "I live in a brownstone on the East side in New York," she said. "I do business on the phone, schedule meetings and do my mail."

About her daily routine as an actress, Lynley said, "I get up, go to work, study my lines, eat lunch, go back to work, study some more, go home and get up again."

"There is a difference between actors," said Lynley, "those that want to be; those that are; and those that have enough patience to earn a living at it!"

Lynley also noted that less than eight percent in SAG (Screen Actors Guild union) that are employed.

Her advise to those students in drama, (she was looking at the Brand with a picture of the local high school play on the front page,) is to keep at it- "It's very hard to make a living at acting."

Thomas A. Edison patented the phonograph in 1878. A 1983 train crash in Mexico killed 50 persons.

Special homecoming planned in Amarillo

The Third Annual Homecoming of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer center will be celebrated Friday in the main lobby of the center, 1500 Wallace Blvd.

The Homecoming gathering is a special reunion of patients, families and staff to celebrate and give thanks for the gift of life, according to Gerald Kelly, chaplain of the center.

"Life, not death, is why people come to us at the center," he said. "It is the hope they find here that gives them strength to face their cancer."

Honored guests will include the nearly 1,000 patients who have been treated at the Cancer Center during the past year.

"Our philosophy behind patient care is to treat the whole person—physically, emotionally and spiritually," Kelly said, noting the center's commitment to supportive care services such as pastoral, dietary and social counselling.

The increasing survival rate for cancer is another promise of hope. Figures published by the National Institutes of Health and the American Cancer Society indicate that today's cancer survival rate has increased from 25 to 49 percent.

Befittingly, is this year's theme, "Rejoicing in Life." Members of the Center staff submitted some 67 theme ideas for selection by a panel of patient judges.

Dian Cuellar, winner of the contest, is HCC's social work coordinator. She will receive a Joni Eareckson print during Homecoming ceremonies. Other presentations will be made to the oldest patient, youngest patient and the patient who traveled the farthest.

"This is a very joyful and moving occasion for patients and families," said Cuellar, whose theme serves to validate the center's hopeful approach to cancer care.

Activities will include a chapel service and reception. The chapel service will begin at 8:15 a.m. with Father Joseph Tash, corporate director, Missions and Ministries, St. Anthony's Hospital, as the featured speaker. A reception in honor of patients and their families will follow immediately after the chapel.

Approximately 4,000 cancer patients from the Texas Panhandle and surrounding five-state region have received treatment at the Harrington Cancer Center since the opening of its doors in 1981.

Sesquicentennial is discussed

"A Texas Celebration Is On The Way" was the program presented by Bessie Hill when members of Pioneer Study Club met Tuesday for a luncheon at the Caison House. Co-hostesses were Bea Hutson and Billee Johnson.

The speaker said Texas is a great place to visit anytime but in 1986 it will be really special. "Texans are proud of their state and we're going to show it off for the sesquicentennial in ways that have never been done before."

Beginning Jan. 1, 1986, every day of 1986 there will be a festivity in some location in Texas.

Hill added, "These events are too numerous to mention. They are being planned by the hundreds of local city and county sesquicentennial committees across Texas."

Some of the major events for the 1986 celebration include the wagon train that will follow a six month, 2,800 mile route around the state.

Also, two 2,200 mile Texas trail rides will travel the eastern and western halves of the state.

Four major museums are combining resources to produce Project 150 which will tour Texas next year. Also Ballet San Jacinto will tour Texas.

World famous author James Michener was invited to the University of Texas to write his novel "Texas." Within two weeks on the market, the book had reached No. 1 on the best seller list.

President Gladys Miller presided over the business meeting. A nominating committee to name new officers in January was elected.

The meeting was adjourned by members repeating the club collect.

Those present included Goochie Ball, Helen Bishop, Leatrus Clark, Mabel Heard, Hill, Hutson, Johnson, Etoile Manning, Gladys Miller, Mary Panciera, Fannie Rudd, and Elizabeth Wilson.

Dear Customers and Friends,

We are proud to announce we've taken new ownership of the former Moorman Feed yards, and we would like to take this opportunity to extend a cordial invitation for you to come by and visit us in our new location.

As previous owners and operators of Western Feedyard, a 3,500 head preconditioning yard here in Hereford for the past eight years, we feel that the Circle Three facilities are the finest in the area. In addition, we will also be able to offer extra capacity to better accomodate our customers.

Being cattle feeders ourselves, we are vitally interested in every phase of the cattle business. We will be glad to visit with you about buying cattle, hedging and options, or any other need you might have.

As always however, our ultimate aim will be to make sure your cattle get the best management and the best rations our experienced feedlot personnel and nutritionists can provide.

We appreciate your business, and assure you we will work hard to provide that little "extra" in quality service that can make our working relationship a pleasant and profitable one.

Sincerely,

Elmo Hall    Manager

Fire Marshal Jay Spain examines tower

Workers demolish wall

...and the walls came down

Out with the old

Hereford volunteer firefighters stood by Thursday and watched as city workers demolished their former fire station.

Last week the Hereford City Commission voted to build a new $350,000 fire station for the city of Hereford.

"I'm not sure this building would have made it through another winter."

The old building was constructed in 1926 to be used as a creamery and feed store. The fire department moved into the building in 1970, at that time the building was considered a temporary home.

Fire Marshal Jay Spain stated that the building served its purpose well and that it had seen better days. "The south wall was severely damaged in 1973 when a milk factory exploded near the center of town, we never really got around to fully repairing the damage," Spain said.

Spain also stated that city residents had mentioned that the building looked well kept, and felt the city should re-consider spending money on a new facility. Spain stated that indeed the building did look to be in good shape, but there were some problems. "The northeast corner of the roof was starting to cave in and any amount of extra weight could have brought the whole thing down."

Fire Marshal Jay Spain looks on as city workers demolish 50-year -old fire station

In with the new

Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain is happy now that a new fire station is in the not too distant future.

The Hereford City Commission recently approved a bid from High Plains Building Co. to build a $350,000 facility.

"The new building will have 4,000 more square feet."

"The main difference in the new building over the existing building will be about 59 years," Spain said.

The new building will also be equipped with areas for firefighters to maintain and wash the equipment, something the old building did not have. There will also be a larger meeting room and a recreation room that can be converted into living quarters if the city ever decided to implement a full time fire department.

The new building will also be equipped with floor drains and larger garage doors. The doors in the old station were 9½-feet wide, the new doors will be 14 to 16-feet wide. Most department trucks are about 9-feet wide, which can make for some pretty tight fits.

The new station will also be much more energy efficient, in the old station the heaters were having to be left on throughout the winter months to keep things from freezing.

Accepting Gifts

Honorary State Regent of Texas Society of NSDAR, Jayne Dawson Brainard, (at right) presented the Los Ciboleros Chapter of DAR with a book and a U.S.

Gifts presented to local DAR

"Defend Our Country With Honor" was the program presented by Jayne Dawson Brainard when members of Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR, met Thursday afternoon in Deaf Smith County Museum.

The speaker, honorary State Regent of Texas Society DAR, was introduced by Kathryn Ruga, vice-regent and program chairman.

Brainard, a professional registered parliamentarian, has served the Texas Society DAR as state historian, state recording secretary, state vice-regent and state parliamentarian.

She has been a member of the DAR for 28 years and has served at the national level as a member of the DAR Speakers Staff and a member of the National Board of Management of the NSDAR. She has also served as president in several organizations in Amarillo and is listed in Who's Who of American Women and Who's Who in the South and Southwest.

During her program, Brainard stressed the need for all America to realize the importance of national defense. Each individual should read and evaluate all facts, statistics and data and become well versed in this essential phase of daily lives.

The speaker stated, "There are many new and exciting challenges today—economic, political, spiritual and in the military. National defense must be supported by military strengths.

She closed her speech by quoting General and President Dwight D. Eisenhower, "One must be prepared for war to preserve peace."

Following her program, Brainard presented the chapter with a copy of the book, "The Arts of Independence—DAR Museum Collections." This will be given to the Deaf Smith County Library.

She also presented the group with a U.S. flag which had been given to her during her term as State Regent of Texas Society DAR. The flag has flown over the national capitol building in Washington, D.C. It was given to Pat Smart, the local chapter flag chairman, who in turn will make it a gift to the YMCA in Hereford.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report was filed. Several committee reports were also given.

The President's General Message was read by Ruga and Ruth Newsom reviewed the 1985 resolutions from National. Also, the finance committee presented the year's budget which was accepted by voice membership vote.

Regent Violet Reinauer called the meeting to order and led the opening ritual and Newsom gave the chaplain's prayer.

The chapter sang the National Anthem and Mary Williamson led the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. Pat Robinson led the group in reciting the American's Creed.

The next meeting will be at 3:30 p.m. Nov. 21 at First Christian Church parlor. The Rev. Mack McCarter will speak. Members are asked to bring cancelled stamps and gifts for the Veteran's Christmas Gift Shop.

Birthday tea attended by Hereford resident

Mrs. Joe Reinauer, Sr. of Hereford recently attended a birthday tea to commemorate the Amarillo's Philharmonic Music Club's 80th birthday.

The Philharmonic Music Club and the McDowell Music Club celebrated eight decades of promoting culture and music for Amarillo. The event was held at the Federation of Women's Clubs in Wolflin Village.

The festivities also honored the only living charter member, Mrs. Frank Storm, who served as president of the music club from 1914-15. She will be 101 on Jan. 21.

Jim Alfonte, managing director of the symphony, was the guest speaker for the tea and the Harrington String Quartet presented a special program for the event.

The Philharmonic Club was organized in 1905 with eight members who immediately arranged piano ensembles and brought guest artists to early Amarillo.

The club then organized an orchestra of 12 musicians under the direction of Grace Hamilton. As it grew in size, it became known as the Philharmonic Symphony.

Britain subjugated Burma in three wars between 1824 and 1884, and ruled the country as part of India until 1937. Then Burma became self-governing. It was overrun by Japan in World War II.

PERSONAL AUTONOMY By Bob Wear

IN A CAREFUL consideration of the concept of personal responsibility, 'personal autonomy' must receive important consideration. By 'autonomy' we mean self-government. Of course, there are some legitimate rules and laws which must be respected and to which we must submit; but this approved action does not destroy our 'personal autonomy', because submitting is our personal choice and we submit because the rules and laws are legitimate.

'PERSONAL AUTONOMY' means that we make our own choices about our personal conduct of life. "Nothing ranks a man so quickly as his skill in selecting things that are really worthwhile. Every day brings the necessity of keen discrimination. Not always is it a choice between good and bad, but between good and best."—A.P. Gouthey.

WE MUST LEARN to think for ourselves, recognize and accept our personal responsibility, and graciously accept the consequences of our actions. We choose the best available value system, and honestly and wisely function within this framework. Even when unpleasant and undesirable things are happening, we put forth great effort to maintain our integrity and our sense of direction.

WE CANNOT live a life of reaction and maintain our 'personal autonomy', because we will be permitting the words and actions of others to control and direct us. We will be treating others as they treat us, being pleasant to those who are pleasant to us; and unpleasant to those who are unpleasant to us. Thus, we allow the actions of others to control us.

POSITIVE RESPONSE IS the wise way to behave if we wish to be true to ourselves and maintain our 'personal autonomy'. Thus, we do not permit others to control our behavior by the way they talk and act. We make this choice on the basis of the best knowledge we possess.

WE HAVE A CHOICE between 'personal autonomy' and a subservient life of reaction.

Pickens to celebrate her 100th birthday

Tennie Pickens, a resident of Retama Manor in Weslaco, Tx., will celebrate her 100th birthday Tuesday.

Mrs. Pickens was born in Spartanburg, S.C. and moved to Texas in early childhood with her parents, a brother and five sisters.

She married I.D. Pickens in Bonham, Tx. in February of 1905. They had lived in Indian territory before it became the state of Oklahoma. They had three sons, Coy and Clifford, both deceased, and Her-rell who lives in Hereford.

Mrs. Pickens and her husband moved to Elsa in the lower Rio Grande Valley in 1927 where they farmed until Mr. Pickens retired. He died in 1948.

Mrs. Pickens continued to live in Elsa until she had a stroke in 1974 at which time she became a resident of Retama Manor.

Besides her sons, she had six grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Grandchildren and their children include Jeanette Cheatham and her children, Sharon Lowery and Ryan of Lubbock; Weldon Pickens of Lubbock; Billy of Slaton and Toby of Dallas; David Pickens, Elizabeth, Gayle and Nathan of Hereford; Joy Smith and Shawn of Wichita Falls and Hoby Smith with the U.S. Army stationed in Germany; and John Wayne Pickens, Israel Wayne and Michelle of Durant, Okla. One grandson, Louis Nolan, is deceased.

J.V. Pickens of Hereford is a nephew of the late I.D. Pickens.

Club tours museum at Canyon

Members of La Plata Study Club met Tuesday evening and traveled to Canyon to tour the Panhandle Plains Museum. Carol Cline, curator of exhibits, conducted the tour.

Those attending were Peggie Fox, Betty Taylor, Rosemary Shook, Lavon Nieman, Mildred Fuhrmann, Yvonne Simpson and Mary Lyles.

Following the tour, members stopped for refreshments.

The business meeting, conducted by Fox, was held in Fuhrmann's Suburban.

The next meeting will be a Thanksgiving dinner with husbands at 7 p.m. Nov. 19 at the hereford Country Club.

Bradley presents program

"Women and Credit" was the program presented by Kate Bradley when members of Bippus Extension Club met Wednesday.

During the business meeting, a discussion was held about members selling pecans at $3.75 a pound. Anyone interested in purchasing pecans may call Bradley.

Also, members discussed

"adopted neighbors."

The roll call was answered with "what experience have you had with credit." The next meeting was planned as a Thanksgiving dinner Nov. 13 in the home of Becky Mays.

Bradley was hostess to Lou Hall, Mays, Flora Homfeld, Mariellen Homfield, and LaFonda Mays.

COST REDUCTION
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Many executives shy away from initiating a cost reduction program because few of them know where to begin, according to Harry E. Figgie Jr., chairman of Figgie International.
Figgie says while many managers are experienced in productivity, sales increases and maximizing employee output, few have expertise in trimming fat, eliminating waste, and tightening operations.
"In addition," Figgie says, "no executive wants to be the one to trim the fat if it means eliminating part of the work force." Nor are many of them willing to "tell employees they have been performing inefficiently for the past 10 or 20 years."

Organization's growth important to Leasure

By SANDY PANKEY
Lifestyles Editor

"Because I'm not involved with any other club, I feel that I can devote quality time to the Women's Division," Lanette Leasure explained.

Leasure was named Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division president during the organization's quarterly meeting recently.

Although she has been a member of the division for only three years, she has already held the offices of vice-president, secretary and board director.

"I believe in the Women's Division and what it stands for," she said, "that's why one of my main objectives as president will be to increase membership. Hopefully, this can be accomplished by making the meetings more fun and fulfilling to members. I also plan for the division to get involved with the sesquicentennial celebration next year."

Leasure moved to Hereford from Amarillo in 1982 with her husband

Ray and son Brandon who is now four years of age. Ray is employed by Leasure Body Shop and Lanette works in the commercial loan department of Hereford State Bank.

"When we first moved to Hereford, I began working at the bank and wanted to get involved in something so that I could meet people and be a part of this community.

"A co-worker invited me to one of the Women's Division quarterly meetings and I joined shortly after," she added.

Leasure's hobbies include needlepoint, reading, and walking and she and her husband enjoy snow skiing. Both are members of First Baptist Church.

She was reared in Denver City, Tx. and graduated from West Texas State University with a degree in business administration. Her husband also attended WTSU.

If enthusiasm is any indication for the growth of the Women's Division this year, Leasure's slogan "Friends, Enthusiasm and Success" is quite appropriate.

Residents return from autumn foliage tour

Several Hereford residents returned recently from the Autumn in Eastern Canada and New England Foliage Tour.

The event was sponsored by Trailways Tours of Amarillo and attracted 156 people from the Amarillo area including Hereford.

Local residents, Margaret Moffett, Ora Mae Simpson, and escorts Robert and Alice Thompson, attended. On the same tour but on a different bus were residents, Elmer and Norma Carlson, and in another group was Ruth Rodriguez.

Also, enjoying the tour were former Hereford residents, N.D. and Ruth Bartlett of Canyon, George and Margaret Heard of Amarillo, Virgil and Geneva Justice of Dimmitt, Olga Tannahill Miller and husband George of Kingsland, Tx. and Buddy and Myra Witherspoon of Albuquerque, N.M.

The group traveled in four Trailways buses, one day apart, and visited attractions across the eastern part of Canada, and from Maine to Texas in the United States. The 20-day tour visited 21 states in the United States and two provinces in Canada.

Members of the group reported that the foliage in Ontario, Quebec, Maine, New Hampshire was at its peak of brilliance. Also, there was an unusual amount of brilliance along the Skyline Drive and the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia.

LOTS OF CHANGES

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — The 1985 edition of Rand McNally's "Road Atlas" contains 16,151 revisions from the 1984 edition.

The publisher says the changes are not the result of errors or mistakes made by editors. It says that "to be precisely accurate we must keep up-to-date with the thousands of miles of interstate and state routes added, altered or renumbered in North America last year, with new names and towns.

City tours were taken in Montreal, Boston, New York City, and Washington, D.C. The tour of Montreal featured a visit to the top of Mount Royal, old town, new town, the Cathedral of Notre Dame, lovely homes and gardens, and churches. An all-day tour of Boston included attractions all over the city, including the USS Constitution, the Old North Church, Bunker Hill Monument, and many other interesting points in that historical city.

The all-day tour of New York City included a trip to the top of the Empire State Building, a cruise in New York Harbor by Ellis Island and the Statue of Liberty, as well as a bus tour up and down and all around the Island of Manhattan, where all the famous places were pointed out. Many of the tourists attended plays in New York City.

At Washington, D.C., the travelers saw the Changing of the Guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Mount Vernon, the home of George and Martha Washington, the White House, the Capitol Building, the Lincoln Memorial, the famous buildings along Pennsylvania Avenue, Independence Avenue, and Constitution Avenue, and much more. In Virginia, they visited Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, the Skyline Drive, and the Natural Bridge.

Other highlights of the tour included Ste. Anne de Beaupre and the Cyclorama in Quebec, Niagara Falls, the Liberty Bell, Betsy Ross House, Liberty Hall in Philadelphia, where the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution were adopted. Farewell banquets were held on four successive evenings at Fountainhead Lodge in Oklahoma, as the end of the tour approached.

The last of the four groups arrived home Wednesday.

Kings Manor Auxiliary officers elected

Officers for 1986, headed by Jeane Dowell as president, were elected in the fall meeting of Kings Manor Auxiliary Tuesday morning. McDowell succeeds Norma Walden, who has served two years as president.

Nadine Hill was named vice-president; Mildred Fuhrmann, secretary; and Marguerite Cole, treasurer for the coming year. The new staff of officers was installed in a brief ceremony conducted by Walden.

Rev. Wallace Kirby, chaplain at Kings Manor, was the speaker on "Service of Volunteers." He commended the volunteer work of the Auxiliary members who aid the Manor and its residents in many ways. He recently attended a seminar on volunteer service, conducted for leaders in Northwest Texas United Methodist Churches, and a report on its program was a part of his talk.

Plans were begun for the Auxiliary's customary duty of decorating tables for the annual King's Manor Founders Banquet, which will be held this year on Nov. 14 in Hereford Community Center. Lottie Wertemberger is chairman of the decorations committee.

Coffee was served to members at the meeting by the social committee, with Carleta Harkins as chairman.

Between the Covers

BY DIANNE PIERSON
Director

James Michener's magnificent historical novel of Texas is available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library.

In "Texas," James Michener skillfully combines fact and fiction to present our richest, most expansive and most diversified state. Spanning four and a half centuries, this saga of Texas begins in the early 1500s, when the first Spaniards explore parts of it, and ends with its present-day eminence as one of our most powerful states, second only to Alaska in size, second to none in natural wealth and human enterprise.

In the eighteenth century, Mexican settlers (among whom the Garza family becomes important to the story) with their friars and soldiers are unable to convert or to subdue the Indian inhabitants. In the 1800s, many immigrants from various areas begin to settle on the rich land. From Tennessee come the Quimpers, and from Scotland, by way of Ireland, Maryland and the Natchez Trace, the McNabs. Fleeing oppression in Germany, the Aller-kamps arrive in the 1840s, followed by the cotton planters, the Cobbs, and their slaves from South Carolina and Georgia.

Twenty years later come the Larkins, on the move from west Alabama, and Earnshaw Rusk, the Pennsylvania Quaker. And recently, invaders from the Middle West and from below the Rio Grande.

The paths of these fictional characters and their descendants cross and recross as this engrossing narrative develops, producing complex interrelationships. There is a cast of over two hundred, including such actual persons as Stephen F. Austin, Sam Houston, Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, Davy Crockett, and Jim Bowie.

The major events of Texas history form the framework on which the story is constructed: independence from Mexico, famous battles of the Alamo Goliad, and San Jacinto; statehood (1846) and the Mexican War; the War between the states; and final victory over the Comanche only a little over a hundred years ago. James Michener's exciting account of how Texas became unique among our states is as very informative.

Other new books available this week are THE SECRETS OF HARRY BRIGHT by Joseph Wambaugh and JEALOUSY by Nancy Friday, author of MY MOTHER/MYSELF.

BIG MACHINES
HAVE BIG TIRES

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (AP) - Huge earthmoving machines in mines and quarries often have radial tires. The bulldozers, loaders and scrapers rarely travel on a highway, says Michelin Tire. However, it says, their oversize radials, up to six feet in diameter, provide much the same benefits as auto radials, including fuel savings and resistance to wear.

Anniversary Observed

Pilot Club International, one of the five classified service clubs for executive and professional women, celebrated its 64th anniversary Friday. Pilot Club members of Hereford will observe Pilot Club International's 64th anniversary Tuesday. Mayor Wes Fisher signed a proclamation declaring the local observance. The signing was witnessed by Margie Waddell (at left) and Joyce Ward.

Officers elected recently

Members of 4F's 4-H Club met recently at the Hereford Community Center to elect officers for the coming year.

Jennifer Hicks will serve as president; Jill Dutton, vice-president; Jamie Gallagher, secretary; Pam Price, reporter; and Lori Urbanczyk, council delegate.

Louise Walker, county extension agent, presented a program on cooking. Club members made Hurry Up Shakes and recipes for the upcoming food show were discussed.

The next meeting will be at 4 p.m. Nov. 12 in the Community Center lounge.

HOSES POSE HEALTH THREAT

DENVER (AP) - A submerged hose can be dangerous to your health, according to the American Water Works Association.

It says a sudden drop in city water pressure can suck water in a garden hose back into your home. If that hose is attached to a weed killer spray attachment, or submerged in a fish tank, darkroom tank, laundry machine or swimming pool then that contaminated water is also drawn in.

HIGH ROAD, LOW ROAD

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) - The highest road in the United States is Colorado State Highway No. 5.

The 1985 Rand McNally "Road Atlas" shows the road located off Interstate 70 near Idaho Springs. The road leads up to 14,264-foot-high Mount Evans.

The lowest road in the country is an unpaved local road through "Badwater Basin" in Death Valley, Calif. "Badwater Basin" is the lowest point in the U.S. (minus 282 feet).

Southern Light Gallery displays 'Crane'

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Robert Hirsch, photography instructor at Amarillo College, is responsible for acquiring out-of-the-ordinary (not the regular windmills and cattle at the feeding trough) art exhibits.

The exhibits are displayed by the Southern Light Gallery, located at Lynn Library of Amarillo College Washington Street Campus, which Hirsch is also in charge of.

"We actually started the displays in 1977," said Hirsch. "In '79 the exhibits had moved around and they finally found a home over there (Lynn Library)."

When the displays first began, Hirsch said he would see someone work that he liked and he would try and get a hold of the photographer.

Thus, was the beginning of Southern Light Gallery, featuring photographers throughout the world.

"We try to present a larger variety in what we show at our gallery," explained Hirsch. "We try to give the opportunity to see some of the things that normally you would not get a chance to see in the Panhandle."

According to Hirsch, the display also serves the student as a learning experience in class as the students are required to fill out reviews on each show.

During the school year, the photography department has gone to the trouble of getting the display space, maintaining the area, and actually hang the art work.

"I supervise all maintenance due to the value of the work (some of the work ranging in price into the thousands)," said Hirsch.

The photography department at AC also takes care of shipping, insurance, and corresponding. All general costs of showing the display are taken out of the photography budget.

"The space to show the displays is provided by AC, courtesy of the library," said Hirsch, "and we are hoping that after the first of the year we will get carpeted walls."

According to Hirsch, the art gallery has shown over 100 separate shows.

Currently, Southern Light Gallery will be presenting Barbara Crane's "Gardens, Brides and Berries" Oct. 21 through Nov. 15.

The public is invited to come and see Crane's exceptional exhibit as she explores a magnified closeness of her subjects.

Crane seems to capture the light and dark of harsh reality as she exposes the viewer to themes of far-off lands.

The graphic portrayal of placing two or more objects in a closed, ideal relationship reveals an emotional side of Crane.

Hirsch also gave a preview of next months display, photography from Bombay, India, entitled "The Joy of India."

"Jagdish Agarwal, the photographer, attempts to show the positive aspects of Indian culture," said Hirsch.

All interested art persons are welcome to attend the unusual displays of Southern Light Gallery.

Samuel Goodale of Cincinnati patented a motion picture peepshow machine in 1861.

The flying snake of Java is able to flatten itself out like a ribbon and sail like a glider from tree to tree.

Jimmy Bell appointed at PTA meeting

Jimmy Bell was appointed as first vice-president for the Northwest School PTA when that group met Tuesday evening.

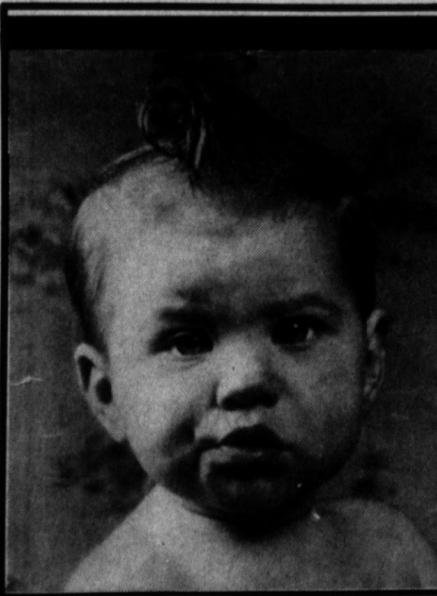

Amarillo representative for Planned Parenthood, Gwen Killmer, presented the film "Parents are the Facts of Life," which related how parents communicate their beliefs and values to their children both verbally and non-verbally.

Following the film, Killmer led a discussion in which PTA members explored ways to deal with their children's questions.

The group will meet again on Nov. 26, when the program will be "Estate Planning for Young Families."

Ann Landers
'Bondage'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 16 years old and have been dating a 19-year-old since April.

A few months ago "John" and I were goofing around in his house while his parents were gone. He asked me to play a game. I said OK. The next thing I knew I was tied to a chair and he was kissing and touching me. At first I was scared, but then I got to like it.

I've been tied to chairs, coffee tables, the bed and a post in the basement. Sometimes John takes pictures of me. He says he likes to look at them when we can't be together. I love him a lot and I want to please him every way I can. He promised we would never go all the way while I am tied up.

Is this behavior normal? I look forward to it and it doesn't hurt. I worry because none of my friends are doing this. John says if two people love each other it's OK to do whatever they both enjoy. Have you ever heard of anything like this? Please answer my question in the paper. My mother opens all my mail.—CONFUSED AND WONDERING

DEAR C.: The game you are playing is called bondage. It's kinky sex. Some of the players "graduate" to chains and whips and an assortment of weird paraphernalia.

It's OK for people to do whatever they enjoy, but it sounds as if your guy is leading you into some pretty bizarre stuff. My advice is to cool it—and him, as well.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I love my children, but I get upset whenever I go to my eldest daughter's place.

She is a terrible slob. There always are dirty dishes in the sink. The fridge hasn't been cleaned in a year. The bedsheets are a disgrace. Her idea of keeping house is to run the vacuum sweeper every few days and drag a filthy mop over the kitchen floor a couple times a week.

She has a job downtown but this is no excuse to live in a pigsty. Her husband and children are blind to the situation. They think everything is just swell. My daughter is attractive and dresses beautifully. She showers and washes her hair daily.

I have never mentioned a word to her about her miserable housekeeping but I think the time has come when I must say something. How can I broach the subject tactfully? I don't want to incur her wrath.—APOPLECTIC IN DAYTON

DEAR AP: There is no way you can tactfully tell your daughter she is a slob and that her home is a pigsty. My advice is MYOB. Since her husband and children think everything is just swell, you have no right to put your oar in their water.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read that a Minneapolis woman sued and collected $25,000 from her lover because he gave her genital herpes. Herpes is an illness. How can a court make such a nutty decision? Have you ever heard of such a thing?—SIGN ME SHOCKED IN SHEBOYGAN

DEAR S: The decision was a good one. People with herpes should inform and protect their sex partners. Not to do so is a crime. This case is not the first. A woman in Washington whose husband gave her herpes was awarded $40,000. An Iowa wife received $50,000. We need more decisions like these.

What's prudish? What's OK? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting—What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Accent on Health

Even before an unborn child feels a mother's touch, it can experience the cruel slap of sexually transmitted diseases (STDs).

"Infants born with STDs have no say about the matter, but they may pay a heavier price than any consenting adult," said Dr. Thomas Betz, Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Disease Services at the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

"Most of the STDs known today are easily treatable in adults. But the same disease can have devastating consequences for a fetus if it develops while a child is in the womb or during birth," Betz said.

Infants infected with STDs may be born prematurely, develop abnormally, be mentally retarded or even die, TDH physicians say.

Syphilis, a disease known for centuries, is still causing misery in Texas. Last year the state reported almost one half of all congenital syphilis cases in the United States; 103 of 236 cases were in Texas.

"We found that many of those infants were born to women who didn't get prenatal care," said Dr. Charles E. Alexander, Chief of the Bureau of Epidemiology at TDH. "If the women had gotten prenatal care, the syphilis should have been detected and treated. Only one in five pregnant women infected with syphilis has a normal infant."

Alexander said untreated syphilis results in fetal death 40 percent of the time and in the birth of an infected infant in another 40 percent of cases.

But other STDs that were unknown 20 years ago can be equally deadly to an infant, Betz said. An example is cytomegalovirus (CMV), a member of the herpes virus family, that can cause mental retardation and other problems.

CMV has only recently been recognized as an STD, Betz said, but it already is apparent that infected infants pay a high price. "It is one of the most common infectious causes of mental retardation and is also one of the most common congenital viral infections," Betz said.

CMV can also cause microcephaly (an abnormally small head), motor disability, hearing loss and an enlarged liver.

Infants are much more vulnerable to the effects of STDs than adults are for two reasons, Alexander and Betz said.

"First of all, an infant's organ systems and brain are developing. Any STD infection can alter the normal growth and development," Alexander said. "If an STD infection is present and abnormal development starts, it often continues that way. Once one thing goes wrong, there is a chain reaction affecting all further growth and development."

Secondly, Betz said, STDs are more harmful to infants because they have immature immune systems that aren't "capable of fighting off an infection. The fetus just isn't capable of protecting itself very well."

BOTH TDH physicians said good prenatal care is important in preventing STDs from destroying a baby's life before it starts. Good prenatal care often permits detection and treatment of STDs, Betz said.

Public invited to attend home security seminar here

A home security seminar will be held from 10 a.m. until 12 noon Thursday, Oct. 31, in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library.

There will be two speakers. Linda Thibodeaux, housing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, from Dallas, will speak on making your home safe. She'll show different kinds of locks. Randy Williams, Hereford Police Department, will discuss the Neighborhood Crime Watch.

The program is free of charge. For further information, call Louise Walker, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent, at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

LEADERS AND THE RIGHT STUFF
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sense of humor and the ability to recognize their own strengths and ignore their weaknesses are the right stuff of today's top business leaders, says a University of Southern California professor.

His recently completed four-year study of 90 top achievers also found many of the leaders had very different management philosophies, which were difficult to categorize.

Larry Linville to appear Wednesday on WT campus

Old "Ferret Face" himself, Frank Burns of M*A*S*H, will visit the campus of West Texas State University on Wednesday night.

Larry Linville—the actor's real name — will tell anecdotes from the popular television series and show an uncut, never-aired episode of M*A*S*H that has received a great response from military personnel overseas. His program begins at 8 p.m. in the Activities Center Ballroom on the WTSU campus.

Linville, of course, is more than just Frank Burns and more than a comedic actor. The California native studied with the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London, performed with various repertory companies, appeared on Broadway, and took roles in a number of television series before joining the cast of M*A*S*H. His "overnight success" took only 22 years!

Caudle receives scholarship

Mike Steven Caudle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles W. Caudle of Route 5, recently received a $150 scholarship at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

He was the recipient of the T.L. Leach/L.M. Hargrave scholarship awarded by the agricultural education and mechanization department.

Caudle is a senior majoring in mechanized agriculture production.

Other honors received this past school year include the Air Force ROTC scholarship, Laverne Noyes scholarship, Lubbock C of C Cadet of Semester, Deans honor roll, outstanding flight member and the Presidents honor roll.

Student activities include the Air Force ROTC, Mechanization Agricultural Club, Agricultural Council, Tech band and karate.

Chess

According to "The World Almanac Book of Inventions," chess originated in north India in approximately A.D. 500. The rules of the game, as they are known today, were established in Europe about 1550. The expression "checkmate," is derived from the Arabic phrase "al shah mat," meaning "the king is dead."

These days, Linville still appears in plays, movies and television productions. He also pursues some interesting hobbies: building and flying one-of-a-kind airplanes and designing stuffed teddy bears for children. He and his wife Melissa live in Brentwood, Calif.

Tickets for Linville's appearance are on sale at WTSU's Activity Center. They are $3 for the general public, $1 for students with activity cards and $2 for faculty and staff of WTSU.

Anniversary dance set

Freddie McKee called for members of Merry Mixers Square Dance Club when the group met Thursday at the Community Center.

It was announced that their 15th anniversary dance will be held at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 2 at the Community Center. Leonard and Arlene Marchbanks will call rounds and McKee will call.

All former members of the club as well as all square dancers are invited to attend.

Host couples for the evening were Trow and Marjorie Mims and Ben and Vondell Plummer.

Apples were imported to the U.S. from England in 1629 by John Winthrop, colonial governor of Massachusetts.

THE COUNTRY FLOOR

Three hues of wood work especially well in developing floors with a country decor. One is the soft honey glow of pine with a touch of henna. Another is a deeply stained floor that gives a room a kind of gravity and looks wonderful with handcrafted rugs. A third is a bleached floor that has a gray, weathered look. If a house is truly rustic, it can be kept that way with the application of a white stain followed by several coats of polyurethane to keep it clean and shining. This floor is especially useful if one wants more light in the room. Many a country house was built without any windows on the north side. A light-colored floor is one way to intensify the available light.

At FINISHING TOUCHES, we offer a highly professional design service to meet all your decorating needs. We will help you design one room or your entire home or office space. Call today at 364-8870. Open 9-5, Mon-Fri at 507 E. Park Street.

Many of our ancestors painted the floors of their country homes in solid colors.

Jewelry exhibited at meeting

Semi-precious jewelry reflecting the collector's years of study among Indians of New Mexico was displayed by Brenda Thomas as she discussed the Karla Jordan Collection for Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Tuesday evening.

Hand-strung necklaces and bracelets of such stones as onyx, amethyst, black stone, hemolite and turquoise make up Jordan's collection, which Thomas showed at the meeting in Kinsey Parlor of First Baptist Church.

Coming events for BSP members were announced, starting with a 1950's style Halloween party for the chapter, Oct. 26 at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame. Best costumes will be selected.

The next program meeting of the chapter will be Nov. 5 with Randy Hamilton presenting the topic, "The World Around Us: Reaching Out to the World." Oleta Tisdale and Thomas will be hostesses.

Nov. 11 is the date for the next BSP City Council session, at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Bonnie Deckard. Fall Rituals will be held Nov. 19 at Community Center and Spring Rituals are planned for April 15.

Hostesses Tuesday were Peggy Hayes and Rose Marie Robinson. They served refreshments to a guest, Cindy Forrest, and Margie Waddell, Sharon Bodner, Ronna Howell, Charla Edwards, Debe Graves, Lynda Brown, Mary Brinkman, Connie Matthews, Susan Shaw and Thomas.

To remove chewing gum from clothes, press ice cubes against the gum until it becomes brittle and breaks off. Then use a spot remover to vanish the last traces.

Because they look like deer, and because of their name, many people think that reindeer belong to the deer species. But they really belong to the caribou family.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - Former Vice President Walter Mondale urged college students Friday night to avoid romanticizing war and violence with the warning, "Rambo may be strong, but he is also a fool."

"I see where Rambo is now 'it' with the young. War is great. You can shoot and won't be shot. Complexity is blown away by simple violence," Mondale said in prepared remarks for an appearance at Brown University. "Be careful, for this is history's most difficult lesson."

Mondale, the 1984 Democratic presidential candidate, added that rather than isolation or pacifism, understanding is the key to finding alternatives to war.

Mondale's remarks came at a speech launching parents' weekend at the Ivy League school. Mondale's son, William, is a Brown student.

Ex-spouses fall into four categories

NEW YORK (AP) - Picture four sets of ex-spouses invited to the college graduation of their sons.

The Perfect Pals plan to get together for lunch and maybe dinner. Maybe they buy a graduation gift in common. One may even stay at the other's house during the visit. The Cooperative Colleagues sit together at the graduation, but spend less time together than the Perfect Pals.

The Angry Associates probably sit far apart and visit their child independently. And as for the Fiery Foes, "it's very likely one of the parents would not be at the graduation," says Constance Ahrons, associate professor of social work at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

Her study of ex-spouses found those four types - and found the Cooperative Colleagues have the most satisfying relationship with each other. "Their focus is on the kids, and they've learned to cooperate around the kids," a strategy bound to help the children as well as the ex-spouses, she said Thursday.

Ahrons described results of the study, conducted in Wisconsin, at the annual conference of the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy. The 98 pairs of ex-spouses had been married an average of 10.5 years, had at least one minor child, and were interviewed one, three and five years after divorce.

Results are still being analyzed from the five-year followup in the study, which began in 1979 and was financed by the National Institute of Mental Health and the University of Wisconsin graduate school, she said. Three years after divorce, about 12 percent of ex-spouses fell into the "perfect pal" category, Ahrons said. They tended to get along very well, spending lots of time together and saying they would continue to do so even if their children did not provide a natural tie.

They tended not to remarry, and the couples tended to share joint custody of children, she said. Yet they did not talk about reconciliation, often saying they got along better as divorced parents than married ones. Another 38 percent comprised the "cooperative colleagues" group, whose members did less together than the perfect pals and whose conversations and joint activities focused mostly on the children, she said.

The "angry associates" made up another 25 percent of the sample. Parents without custody tended to show up in this group. "Fathers in this group are angrier," Ahrons said. Finally, 24 percent comprised the "fiery foes," a group that comes closest to the societal stereotype of the angry ex-spouses, Ahrons said. The ex-spouses tried to avoid each other, using their children as intermediaries instead, she said.

Mondale urges against Rambo mentality

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - Former Vice President Walter Mondale urged college students Friday night to avoid romanticizing war and violence with the warning, "Rambo may be strong, but he is also a fool."

"I see where Rambo is now 'it' with the young. War is great. You can shoot and won't be shot. Complexity is blown away by simple violence," Mondale said in prepared remarks for an appearance at Brown University. "Be careful, for this is history's most difficult lesson."

Mondale, the 1984 Democratic presidential candidate, added that rather than isolation or pacifism, understanding is the key to finding alternatives to war.

Mondale's remarks came at a speech launching parents' weekend at the Ivy League school. Mondale's son, William, is a Brown student.

Couple to observe wedding anniversary

Friends and relatives are invited to attend an open house Saturday, Oct. 26, to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Gandy.

The event is scheduled from 2-4 p.m. in Temple Baptist Church, Ave. K. and Forrest St.

The couple married Oct. 26, 1935 in Plainview. Following their marriage they made their home in the Wyche Community and then moved to Hereford in 1960.

Mr. Gandy was a farmer and is currently employed by Hereford

Feed Yards. They have been members of Temple Baptist Church for approximately 15 years.

The couple have taught training union and have worked with the Mexican's Mission Sunday School program for 20 years.

Their children will be hosting the reception. They include Mrs. Kenneth Lowry of Houston, Julian Gandy of the home, Glenna Faye Bell of Bledsoe, Tx. and Troy Gandy of Carbondale, Ks.

The couple requests that no gifts be brought.

MR. AND MRS. CLIFFORD R. GANDY

Students encouraged to enter program

All high school age students are invited to participate in the 39th annual Voice of Democracy scriptwriting program being sponsored locally by VFW Post 4818 and its auxiliary.

The program, which is entitled "New Horizons for America's Youth", is open to all 10th, 11th and 12th grade students and offers local, district and national recognition and awards with the national award being a $14,000 scholarship.

John Yocum, post commander, and Betty Boggs, auxiliary president, urges students interested in participating to contact Lana Hall, Hereford High school speech teacher, or Marie Goheen, auxiliary chairman.

Deadline for entries in the local competition is Nov. 30.

Participants write and then tape record a three to five minute broadcast script expressing their views of "New Horizons for America's Youth." The tapes will be judged for content, originality and delivery.

For the state winners, there is also the broadening experience of a five day tour of Washington, D.C., and the opportunity to make lasting friendships with other state winners.

National awards in addition to the $14,000 first place scholarship include $7,000, $4,500, $3,500, $2,500 and $1,000 scholarships for second through sixth place winners.

Public invited to annual Fall Festival

The annual Fall Festival will be staged at First Christian Church Thursday, Oct. 31.

The festival will include a country store, lunch and supper and a carnival featuring booths and games.

Events will get underway with the country store opening at 10 a.m. Handmade craft items, toys, Christmas decorations and household goods will be featured.

The store, which will be located in the church parlor, will remain open through the day closing at 6 p.m. Coffee, cider and cookies will be served to store customers as they browse.

A fajita lunch and supper will highlight the festival. The meals will include several Mexican dishes and desserts. Lunch serving will begin at 11 a.m. and continue through 2 p.m. and supper will be served from 5:30-7:30 p.m. in the church fellowship hall.

The Halloween evening carnival will get underway at 5 p.m. and continue through 8 p.m. Carnival events will include a photo booth, pillow fight, dart throw, video games, tennis toss, wheel of fortune, sucker pull, bean bag throw, ring toss, apple bobbing and cartoon time.

Cotton candy and caramel apples will be available during the carnival.

Proceeds from all events will be used to fund repairs to the fellowship hall of First Christian Church.

Decorating topic of program

Keith Ann Gearn spoke about decorating when members of Young Mothers Study Club met Monday. She also exhibited new fabrics and floor and wall coverings that are available.

During the business meeting, members discussed the coming sale of pinsettias for the holidays.

The next meeting was scheduled Oct. 28.

Lisa Rollins was recognized as a guest by those present. They included Betty Coneway, Georgia Auckerman, Lisa Blakely, Jeanne Lomas, Kathleen Brockman, Tracy Coker, Kelli McCabe, Rene Leavitt, Jane Landers, Carla Hollinger, Vicki Kreighsauser, Pam Wagner, Jo Ann Carnahan, Vicki Wilson and Jackie Murphy.

NESSIE AND YETI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Greek word "Kryptos" means hidden or secret.

Cryptozoologists seek to discover previously unknown species of animals or species previously thought to be extinct.

Four of the most sought after "animals" in the field of cryptozoology are Nessie, otherwise known as the Loch Ness Monster, Yeti, alias the Abomonable Snowman; Sasquatch, or Big Foot, and Mokele-Mibembe.

Conkwrights attend festivities

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Conkwright of Hereford recently attended Parent's Weekend at Austin College. Their daughter, Robin, is a student at the liberal arts college.

More than 500 parents, grandparents and otehr relatives of Austin College students attended the seventh annual Parent's Weekend.

The canyon walls of the Yellowstone River in Wyoming consist of 15 fossil forests, one buried atop another.
