At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Let the word go out. Today is the first day of the reorganization of my stressful life. My family has insisted upon it. They say I'm a bundle of stress. They can tell by the way my muscles tighten in my neck and jaw, the frequent headaches and an occasional loss of words.

That's why I have set up a program of six goals.

First, I'm going to spend more time meditating -- especially before I put a fattening lunch on my charge card which arrives at the same time as the bill for exercising it off.

I'm going to stop trying to do two or more things at a time. This includes listening to a phone conversation while taking the burrs out of the dog's rump, eating my lunch, and closing the door with my foot while listening to my husband telling me why the car is knocking.

Whether it be working, eating, listening, or playing, I'm going to allow myself plenty of time to do things well and provide myself with an environment that promotes peace of mind if I have to break the door down to tell the kids to cool it with the stereo.

I'm going to take time to nourish a few of my acquaintances and friendships. This includes people who have borrowed my books and never returned them.

Another goal is to learn to spend time enjoying things such as music, reading, and hobbies. In fact, I have set a deadline for myself to read ten classics by March.

And finally, I'm going to develop a philosophy of living. I've been living a long time, but I never had a plan for it. That's why I'm going to establish life goals for myself and bring back rituals and traditions that hold meaning in my life.

Yesterday, when I told my husband that, I said, "Beginning with New Year's Day, I'm going to revive a wonderful old custom my mother used to observe."

"What was that?" he asked.

"She always used to serve pickled pig's feet and sauerkraut to bring us luck."

Before my very eyes his muscles tightened in his neck and jaw, his eyes blinked in pain and he couldn't seem to think of anything to say.

I didn't realize before that stress is catching.

4-H Firsthand

By AGNES TAYLOR
Assistant County
Extension Agent

4-H brings parents and their children together in a partnership that can lead to many worthwhile experiences.

4-H is a program for youth aged 9 to 19 and is administered by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of the Texas A&M University System.

Through 4-H, parents get involved with their youngsters by helping them with one or more of over 100 projects. By getting involved with projects, parents help their youngsters learn basic skills and information and help them to fulfill an obligation. The "partners" then build on these successes in areas of project work, leadership, community service and many other character-building experiences.

By spending time with their sons and daughters in 4-H, parents can overcome problems commonly referred to today as the "communication gap" or "generation gap." 4-H projects serve as a beginning to start the parent-youth partnership. This relationship can grow through mutual understanding and trust between parent and child.

With an understanding relationship, parents and 4-H'ers learn to share the joys of winning and the disappointment of losing and to jointly work out solutions to problems as they arise.

To learn more about the 4-H program, contact the county Extension office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Ann Landers

Unappetizing Sight

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for the newly married widow (age 67) who feels "left out" because her husband refuses to remove his partial plate in her presence. She has the idea he is not acting "natural" -- the way her first husband did -- and it makes her feel there is a wall between them.

Look, Dearie, count your blessings. My husband has a bothersome bride that he will remove anytime, anyplace, in front of anybody, if he feels like it. It makes no difference if he is in the home of a friend, at a high-class restaurant or at the speaker's table of a fancy affair. If his teeth bother him, he will take them out. He couldn't care less if he ruins a few appetites.

I have told him several times that the sight of him taking out his teeth is very unappetizing. He says, "If people don't like it, they can look somewhere else."

I wish I could trade places with you, dear. Sign me -- Richmond Va., Wife

DEAR RICHMOND: Some people don't know when they have it good. Thanks for giving Mrs. Second-Time-Around the word.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 19, a male in my second year of college, and I live at home. I have a sweet kid sister, a terrific mother, plenty of friends, a pretty home and my own car. The problem is my father.

He is hot-tempered, unreasonable, never has a decent word for me and is always on my back about something. He thinks I'm goofing off because I get a few B's instead of straight A's. I guess what I resent most is that he is always telling me what to do, comparing me to him when he was my age, and treating me like I was a kid.

Money is his God, and he insists on giving me lectures on now to make it big." I want to be comfortable, but I am not interested in being rich. Dad came from a very poor family, so I can understand his attitude. But why does he try to force his values on me?

I need to know how to get along better with him. Please help me. -- Trying Hard In Newark

DEAR TRYING: The fact that you want things to be better bodes well. They will be, I promise.

Be respectful and gentlemanly, even if your father is not. Stay off subjects that create conflicts. When he gets on these subjects, don't argue. The greater the contrast between your calm behavior and his angry attacks, the sooner he will realize that you are a mature person who can no longer be dealt with as a child.

DEAR ANN: I am a 26-year-old woman who recently found out I'm pregnant. I have been afflicted with Herpes Simplex II for several years, and though I have learned to live with it, I'm terrified of the effects it could have on my unborn baby.

I read somewhere that this virus can be passed on to the child, or that the child could be born blind as a result of it. If I keep the sores under control, will I have a better chance of delivering a healthy baby?

Would there have to be an active sore at the time of birth for the child to be affected?

Please check with your experts. I'm sure others in your reading audience would like to know the facts. Thanks, Ann. -- D.

DEAR D: Women who give birth while suffering from a siege of Herpes Simplex II should be delivered by Caesarian section. The child will not be infected if it does not pass through the birth canal.

Discuss this with your obstetrician. He will put your mind at ease.

★ ★ A 1979 Roundup in Area Sports News ★ ★

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

Each year of sports news compiles a collage of battles won and lost while bringing forth new faces in the lineup of recognition and special achievement. And the year 1979 was no exception to the rule for Hereford athletes and sports enthusiasts.

The athletes and coaches mentioned in this yearly roundup are not considered by any means to be the most important, but simply the most prominent in this last years headlines.

As two of Hereford's most exciting athletes and recognized as such, Paul Bell and Velma Arroyos shared the honor of being named Hereford Athletes of the Year at the annual Hereford High School Sports Banquet.

Arroyos was a three-time regional qualifier in the cross-country and the 880 yard dash. She was also a part of the regional qualifying mile relay team for three consecutive years and earned a second place berth in district for her efforts in the cross-country.

Among other feats accomplished in football, Bell captured the District 4-AAAA title in the 200 meter dash and advanced to state after he placed second in regional competition.

In the state preliminaries he had the third fastest time in the state in the 220 dash plus he netted the top time in the area for the 440 dash as well as the furlong. He later went on to cap the fastest time in the 220 dash at the South Plains Invitational Track Meet and recorded a 21.4 time in the furlong to tie the best existing record in Texas Schoolboy racing.

Bell's first place in state competition was the only state honor garnered by the Herd. After graduation Bell signed a letter of intent to play football with West Texas State University.

---FOOTBALL---

The 1979 Hereford Whiteface varsity football team, led by second year mentor Don Cumpton, finished out the season with an overall record of 5-5, but only managed to accumulate a dismal 1-3 slate in district play.

The Herd netted 1,083 yards on the ground and amassed 851 yards passing for a total of 1,934 yards. That yardage amounted to an impressive average of 214.9 yards per game, but unfortunately they gave up more than they made as 2,070 yards were racked up against the HHS defense for an average of 230 yards per game.

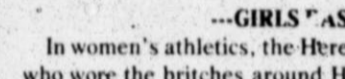

However, statistics don't always tell the whole story because the Herd still managed to land five players on the Class 4-AAAA district team. Aubrey Richburg was named to the first team defense as a defensive end and was the only sophomore to earn such a berth on the entire All-District team.

Others who grasped spots on the district team were Joe Mitchem who placed spots on both the offensive and defensive teams, and Edward Dominguez and Max Gonzales who were named to the second team defensive squad.

---BOYS BASKETBALL---

Second year head coach Bobby Decker and the Whiteface varsity cager squad also had more than their share of troubles in 1979 as they ended up the season with an 8-21 ledger and evened up a second half district standing at 2-2.

HHS senior cager, Jackie Mercer was selected to the District 4-AAAA first team as the Whiteface's only representative. Mercer averaged more than 18.6 points per game during district play. He had also been selected to the All-District second team in 1978.

JACKIE MERCER

---GIRLS BASKETBALL---

In women's athletics, the Hereford High girls showed the boys who wore the britches around HHS this year as they succeeded in fielding two very good teams in basketball and track.

The girl's varsity basketball team fared very well in their second year of District 4-AAAA play, as they tallied a 8-10 record for the year. The team also raked in a 6-1 slate in district action and as a result shared the district championship with the Monterey Plainswomen.

In track the girls won the Class 4-4A district championship after scoring 128 points in the district meet held in Plainview. The team had three individuals and two relay teams make the finals in the first round of regional track competition in April at Texas Tech University.

Darlene Sanders, Lindy Walterscheid, Velma Arroyos and Louise Mays made up the team which lowered its preliminary qualifying time by two seconds (4:01) to gain the third fastest qualifying time in the meet.

Others to qualify in the regional meet were: Beverly Nixon, Jennifer Griffen, Connie Huffacker, and Theresa Schilling. Arroyos and Colleen Keating also qualified for regional action in the cross-country competition after running times of 13:08 and 13:50 in the Class 4-4A meet.

---BASEBALL---

The Hereford Whiteface baseball team under the supervision of second year coach David Ashby concluded the 1979 baseball campaign without a district win, dropping a twinbill to the Lubbock High Westerners in their last scheduled game of the season. They packed up the season's play with a 7-22 slate and a 0-16 mark in district play. The team did land a player on the All-District squad however, in Edward Dominguez. At the plate, Dominguez hit three homers and was one of the top hitters on the squad with a .348 average. Defensively, he played throughout the entire season without an error.

PAUL BELL

JUAN FLORES

---BOYS TRACK---

In boy's track, Paul Bell was joined by Juan Flores in the 880 dash, while the regional qualifying relay teams consisted of Joe Walker, Norman Brown and Keith Adams in the spring relay. Glenn Yosten qualified in the mile relay. However, Bell and Flores were the only two harriers to make it to the finals of the meet.

---TENNIS---

Varsity racketeers, Jimmy Ramirez and Pudgy Vargas represented the Whiteface tennis team in April during regional competition in Lubbock, but the pair were defeated in the first round by a doubles team from El Paso. Ramirez and Vargas capped the second place doubles competition before going to regional play.

---BABA RUTH ALL-STARS---

The Hereford 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars hit fame and stardom and they reached the Southwest Regional Tournament following two consecutive post season wins in Pampa and Plainview.

As a representative of the West Texas area, Hereford was one of eight teams to reach the third round of post season play in New Orleans.

The All-Stars included: Dale Holligan, Dale Denny, Michael LaFuente, Jeff Streun, Robert Martinez, Robbie Snyder, Jimmy Layman, Craig Jones, Le Andrew White, J.D. High, Joe Villareal, Mickey Stengle and Stacy Evens. Gene Combs managed the all-stars while Ron Houston and Paul Holligan were the coaches.

OTHER HEADLINERS

Some of the other personalities receiving headlines in the Brand's sports news this past year were: Gary Goodin - former HHS head track coach, James Mays - former HHS track star, and Dave Charest - former football standout.

Hereford's head track coach Gary Goodin was named the head mentor of the Wayland Baptist College track program at the beginning of the '79 year.

The former track coach was a four year letterman for the Hereford Whiteface track team and helped spur his team to a win in the district race (District I-AAA at that time). In addition to that he was a state meet qualifier in the 120 high hurdles, 330 intermediate hurdles and the 400 yard relay team.

Goodin then lettered three years in track, running sprints and relays, while at West Texas State University. After his graduation from WT, he served as the head track and football coach at Shallowater and had stints at Muleshoe and Hereford where he coached numerous regional and state meet qualifiers. In the fall of 1978, his cross-country team at Hereford finished fourth in district and qualified two individuals for the Region I-AAA championship.

James Mays, former track standout and winner of the state schoolboy 880 dash title as a senior for the Whitefaces, grabbed local and national sports news space after he finished second in the fastest 800 meters race in the country.

Mays clocked a 1:40.71 time in the race setting a new school record at Texas Tech for the third consecutive time.

Dave Charest, a 1976 graduate and member of the Whiteface football team, will be the first Hereford ballplayer to ever be named as a participant in the Hula Bowl which is scheduled to be televised Jan. 5. Charest who is a senior Cadet at West Point, will be part of the All-Star Team from the East.

He is a starting cornerback for the Army and has been a letterman for all four years while at the academy.

Bluebonnet Bowl

Quarterbacks Will Be Targets

HOUSTON (AP) — Purdue defensive end Keena Turner and Tennessee safety Roland James will play key roles in trying to stop quarterbacks Mark Herrmann and Jimmy Streater in the 21st Bluebonnet Bowl tonight.

Turner, the Boiler-makers' all-time leader with 57 tackles for losses, will try to restrict Tennessee's Streater to the pocket while James will be eyeing the passes of Herrmann, the Big 10's all-time passing yardage leader.

Purdue, 9-2 in its third season under Coach Jim Young, went into the 7 p.m. kickoff in the Astrodome with the favorite's tag but Tennessee, 7-4, has played what Coach Johnny Majors calls "some of the best football I've been associated with."

Herrmann and Streater will be the primary targets of each opposing defense.

"He's the most dangerous when he gets into the open field," Turner said of Streater. "He is so quick and it helps him in both running and passing. He sets up so quick on his passes, he's hard to get to. That accounts for his completing 60 percent of his career passes." James will go after Herrmann from a safety position after starting earlier in the year at cornerback.

"Earlier in the year they were avoiding me," James said. "But when I moved to safety, that gave me a little more freedom to go for the ball."

"That's what James expects to have to do against Herrmann, who has passed for 6,431 yards during three seasons at Purdue. "We've worked a lot on our reaction to the ball," James said. "That's about all you can do because we know he's going to throw it."

The Boiler-makers, 9-2 in their third season under Coach Jim Young, are attending a bowl for the second straight year. Purdue blasted Georgia Tech 41-21 in last year's Peach Bowl to complete a 9-2-1 season.

Turner and defensive tackle Calvin Clark spearheaded a Purdue defense that led the Big 10 in defense against the rush, allowing an average of 101.4 yards per game.

Tennessee, 7-4, also is in the third year of a rebuilding program under Coach Johnny Majors. The Vols' record was the first winning season in the Majors era and marked Tennessee's first bowl trip since 1974.

Tennessee's running attack is led by Hubert Simpson, a 6-1, 204 junior from Athens; G.A. Simpson gained 792 yards on 157 carries that included 100-yard plus performances against Notre Dame, Mississippi and Kentucky.

Fueled by his late season surge, Simpson set school records for most rushes in one game with 35 against Kentucky, tied the record of four touchdowns in one game and most points in one game at 24.

Wally Jones led the Boiler-maker rushing attack with 742 yards on 178 carries and eight touchdowns.

Purdue tight end Dave Young, who operates as an unusual tight end in motion, led the Big 10 with 57 receptions for 512 yards and eight touchdowns.

The Blazers tied the score at 88 and 90, but after Portland center Tom Owens left the game with his sixth personal foul, the Sonics took control. Sikma had 16 points in the fourth quarter, including 12 in the final 5:49. His jumper with 5:07 left to play gave Seattle the lead for good at 92-90.

"We just didn't have enough aggressiveness in the fourth quarter," said Ramsay.

The Lakers kept pace with the Sonics by beating Phoenix 113-105. In the only other NBA game, Utah whipped Mil-

April 15 Not That Distant For Tax-Harried Americans

Associated Press Writer
Federal income tax forms are appearing in mailboxes along with post-Christmas bills, and employers soon will be handing out W-2 slips, signaling the approach of April 15.

The tax deadline may seem a long way off, but it's not too early to start thinking about your return—particularly if you expect a refund.

The first thing to decide is whether you want to prepare your own return. The Internal Revenue Service regularly reviews the forms in an effort to make them easier to understand, but studies show that many people still find the paperwork too confusing.

If your financial life is relatively simple—if most of your income, for example, comes from wages and the tax has been withheld by your employer—you should be able to handle the job yourself.

If, however, you have complicated money matters by making a major purchase like a house or by getting married or divorced, you probably need help. (If you itemize deductions, the cost of the help usually can be deducted on the 1980 return you file in 1981.) There are several sources of aid, including the IRS itself. You can call one of almost 60 toll-free IRS telephone numbers or visit one of the nearly 1,000 agency offices. There is no charge.

There is no guarantee that the answers you get from the IRS will be correct. Surveys show they all make mistakes and you are responsible for your return no matter who fills it in.

There are several types of commercial and professional tax preparers. Training programs vary widely and so do error rates. Ask about the educational experience of employees and whether the office is open throughout the year.

Local tax services are often part-time operations that open in February or March and disappear after April 15. They may be less expensive than national services, but they may not be available to handle complaints or problems after the filing deadline.

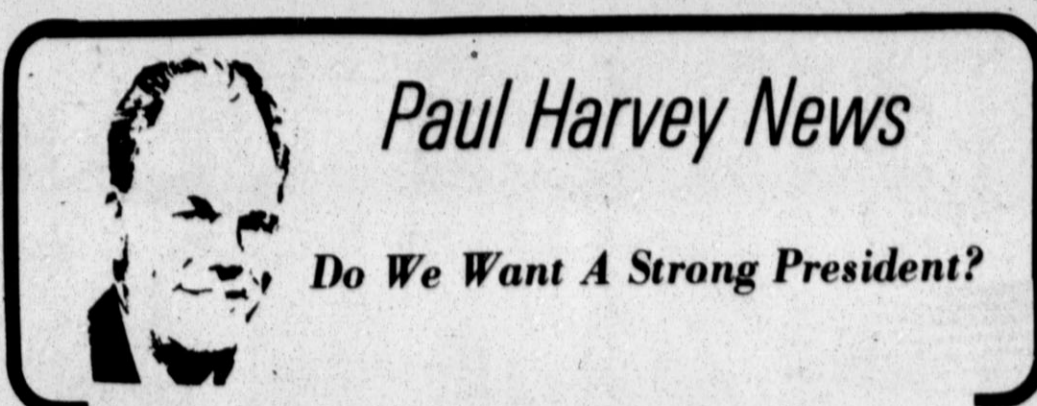

Certified public accountants—CPAs—have the most training and undergo the strictest testing. They are more expensive than tax services, with fees running anywhere from $25 an hour on up, but you may find them worth the price if you have a particularly complex return. Unlike commercial tax preparers, CPAs are allowed to represent you before the Internal Revenue Service.

By law, anyone who prepares your return for you must give you a completed copy of the return. He—or she—also must keep, for three years, copies of all returns or a list of taxpayers for whom returns were prepared. The copies or list must be available for IRS inspection. The preparer must sign all returns and must include on each one his identification number or that of his employer.

Beware of any tax preparer who guarantees you a refund in advance, suggests that you lie on your return, or tells you to sign a partially completed form. Be careful, too, of someone who offers you an "instant" refund; it is usually nothing more than a loan and you have to pay interest on it—often at a high rate.

Sir Francis Drake attacked the Spanish Armada in 1588.

Paul Harvey News

Do We Want A Strong President?

Do we want a strong President? Americans, contemplating the nominees, are inclined to criticize each for his shortcomings.

But do we really want a strong President?

Clare Booth Luce has a gift for distilling into a few words the essence of complex considerations.

Former congresswoman, ambassador, playwright, editor, columnist—Mrs. Luce at 76 has examined our political system from inside and out. She says we don't want a strong leader.

She says the Constitution will not tolerate a strong President.

Mrs. Luce says the strength of democracy is its weakness. In our country we have millions of kings and queens who demand that their leader follow them.

By its very nature, democracy is antagonistic to strong leadership.

Mrs. Luce remembers that our only strong Presidents --

Washington, Lincoln, Wilson, Roosevelt, Truman -- were wartime Presidents. They could set aside the Constitution in the name of "national emergency."

Yet, she remembers, that even in the middle of a war our strongest Presidents have had a devil of a time leading.

I remember President Eisenhower, when he moved from the professional military into politics, said that his greatest surprise was when he discovered that a President of the United States can pick up the telephone in the oval office and command, "Do so and so..."

After which, nothing happens.

Alistair Cooke says, "Every four years the American public looks for a Moses to lead them out of the wilderness. We elect him. By the third year we're not out of the wilderness; he's not Moses any more. So we look for another."

There is an understandable tendency for Presidents -- frustrated by their inability to move Congress on domestic issues -- to preoccupy themselves with foreign affairs. In foreign relations a President does have some prerogatives.

But we've seen that this is likely to leave the homefront snafu unresolved in the hands of a bipartisan Congress that can't even agree on such nonpartisan things as how to generate more energy.

In essence, our system of government is monumentally inefficient -- until you compare it with all others.

Then you have to be thankful that we are not ruled by a religious fanatic or a corrupt king or a military dictator -- or a fuhrer.

'All in The Family' TV Series of Decade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It being customary to comprise "best-worst" lists at the end of a year, almost obligatory to do so at the end of a decade, I tried to construct a pair of lists of my own:

The best and worst TV shows of the 1970s. It didn't progress well. Candidates for the "worst" side fairly leapt out of the files, arms waving; the best side, after two hours, still had some vacancies.

So, in the interest of symmetry, I chucked the idea. Instead, I offer a single show, a TV program that shook commercial television to its foundation and, for better or worse, laid the course of network television for the 1970s: The series of the decade, "All in the Family."

Television was a very different creature before that January night in 1971 when Archie Bunker's family circus hit the air:

Two years earlier, this same CBS had yanked the Smothers Brothers off the air because guest David Steinberg jokingly took the Lord's name in vain. In 1968, Chrysler tried to quash a spot in a Petula Clark special in which Miss Clark's white hand came to rest on the arm of Harry Belafonte, a black.

And there was that infamous evening in 1960, when Jack Paar walked off the set after NBC censored his use of the term, "W.C.," which stands for water closet, or toilet.

Mention "Water Closet" to Archie Bunker, and he'd respond, "Geez, what are you, out of your mind?" with a waffling motion of his hand.

Before Archie, a toilet had never been flushed (or seen or mentioned) on television, a man and wife never slept in the same bed on television; before Archie, the world of prime time TV had very little in common with the people it sought to entertain.

Carroll O'Connor as Archie

Bunker, bigot, cussed and belched and berated; he blasted pinkos, "Hebes," "spades," "fruits" and Walter Cronkite. He was loved and hated intensely, and instantly. "All in the Family" zoomed to the top of the ratings, while sociologists tried to figure out whether Archie was okay because he poked fun at bigotry or rotten because he made folks laugh at it.

But there was more to "All in the Family" than off-color jokes. The people, the crises, that crossed the Bunker threshold were death, abortion, birth control, vasectomy, old age, crime and punishment, rape, cancer; such were the themes of this comedy, and the show had the hard edge to carry it off.

The thing even looked different than other sitcoms. Norman Lear and Bud Yorkin shot "All in the Family" with Desi Arnaz's old three-camera technique, but they used tape instead of film. The use of video tape emphasized the action over the picture, further enhancing the show's impact.

It is amazing, in light of the times and a pervasive "cover your neck" mentality at the networks, that "All in the Family" ever made it to TV. The show was made for ABC, which decided against going with it. But Robert Wood, then president of CBS, took a gamble.

Med School Sending Students to Country

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — George Stoltzfuss knew by the time he hit high school that he wanted to be a country doctor.

So he picked a medical school where he could sample the life, a school set amid green fields instead of city streets, a school whose curriculum was oriented towards farm communities and small towns.

Stoltzfuss, 34, is now the only doctor in Friendsville, Md., a town of 650. He lives on a farm.

The Hershey Medical Center, taking a cue from its pastoral surroundings, is sending students to the country and hoping they'll like it enough to return as full-fledged physicians.

The 7-year-old Hershey preceptorship program, affiliated with Pennsylvania State University, is among 94 apprenticeship programs at medical schools in 10 states, according to a 1978 study by the American Academy of Family Physicians.

But Hershey appears to be a leader. The school has recruited 288 doctors around the country to work with medical students. None of the doctors is paid for participating.

The school has sent more than 500 students out to live and work with family doctors in rural areas plagued by skimpy medical care.

The breadth of the program is tied to Hershey's rural setting.

"Penn State is more committed than other schools," said Richard Hill, who until two months ago was chief of the Health, Education and Welfare Department's health manpower branch in Region III.

"They felt it was necessary in their location and they went after it. The medical school is in a much more rural setting than most."

Stoltzfuss chose Hershey precisely because of its location. The nearest city is Harrisburg, population 63,000, about 10 miles away.

"There's no other school in the country as firmly oriented towards small towns as Hershey," Stoltzfuss said. "Just about every other medical center is in the middle of a big city and tends to be oriented towards big city practices."

Stoltzfuss chose Friendsville after a search committee contacted him. The old lumbering town had been without a doctor for 10 years.

"Everyone in the Friendsville area that I know is just tickled to death. It's one of the best things that ever happened," said Bruce Jenkins, a retired school superintendent.

"A lot of doctors ... just can't see coming into the sticks," Jenkins said. "Dr. Stoltzfuss didn't come in with that idea. He came in with the idea that this is the kind of community he knew and understood and would like to be a part of."

Dr. Eugene Engle, 28, said the Hershey program "cemented" his decision to go into family practice. He is practicing with a partner in Manheim, a town of about 5,400 near Lancaster.

"It was an underserved area when we came here six months ago," Engle said. "Three doctors died in the last four years. We picked up their practices."

Michael Mesoras, a fourth-year student at Hershey, plans to open a rural practice in western Pennsylvania, where he grew up. He is apprenticed to Dr. Jon Schiller of Windber, a Pennsylvania coal mining town of 5,000.

Windber has five doctors, but should have eight, Schiller said.

Schiller, who has helped train about 10 students from Hershey and the University of Pittsburgh over the last five years, said the program benefits all involved, not just the students.

"The patients are glad to see them," he said, "and it makes for a stimulating atmosphere. We learn, they learn, our practices are questioned and we have to keep up."

Dr. Fergus Pope, who serves the 500 people of Bakersville, N.C., said exposure to rural patients helps students adapt to the realities of country medicine.

"It doesn't really matter what their specialty is," said Pope. "Gradually, they suit their practice to fit into the lifestyle and economics of rural people and generally poorer people."

The Bakersville Community Clinic takes 10 medical students a year from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. State law requires medical students to spend a month at a small clinic.
