Hereford teen falls to death in canyon

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

The body of a 17-year-old Hereford High School senior was found Sunday morning after he and another hiker fell from a hill late Saturday night at Palo Duro State Park near Canyon.

An autopsy report stated that George Bermudez III suffered head and neck injuries in a single impact consistent with a fall, according to Randall County Justice of the Peace E. Jay Hail.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ubaldo Bermudez.

Bermudez, along with Frankie Villegas, 18, also of Hereford, were reported by witnesses to have started to hike up the hills at around 8:30 Saturday evening. The two youths were part of a larger group who were camping at the southeast fringe of the park. Bermudez and

Texans cost Uncle Sam less than other states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texans cost Uncle Sam less than residents of other states in 1985, according to a Census Bureau report comparing the states' per capita receipt of federal money for the fiscal year.

Texas ranked 39th among the states in the amount it received per resident — $2,692 — including all types of federal payments, and ranked 50th — $273.47 per capita — in grants to state and local governments.

The federal government spent a total of $44 billion in Texas in 1985, the Census Bureau report said. In 1981, the state received $33 billion.

Texans working for Uncle Sam earned $7 billion in wages. Californians topped the list, earning $14.4 billion, followed by District of Columbia-neighbor Virginia's $8.1 billion.

The military paid Texas personnel $2.5 billion, and the Postal Service paid its employees in the state $1.5 billion.

Texas companies received $12 billion worth of federal contracts, the bulk — $10.6 billion — being in defense contracts. Total federal procurement contracts awarded for the year were valued at $194 billion. DOD contracts totaled $154 billion.

The Department of Health and

No foul play ruled

Villegas were last seen by another Hereford youth, Rick Cantu shortly after the hike began.

"I told them I would wait for them at the bottom of the hill," Cantu said. "After a while I started to worry about them, then at about 10:30, I saw somebody coming down the hill. It was Frankie. He told me that he and George had fallen and to go get help."

Villegas was reported to have been in satisfactory condition at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Cantu said that he and another camper stopped a park ranger as he was making rounds through the park and told him that there was a lost hiker on the hill. "They told us not to worry about him, they said he would probably go to sleep up there and find his way back in the morning. They also said they would come back and start to look for him early in the morning," Cantu said.

Park Supervisor Elon Baker refused to make any comment on the incident.

Cantu said that he and the other campers started searching for Bermudez and continued until approximately 4 a.m. "We went back to camp and waited until the sun came up," Cantu added.

After dawn, the campers began searching again, until they found Bermudez' body at around 10:30 a.m. Sunday. "We called the rangers after we found the body," Cantu said.

Randall County Sheriff's Lt. Joel Richardson, who is conducting the investigation, said Bermudez fell an estimated 60 feet from a cliff located due east of the Mesquite Camping area and the end of the main road which winds through the camping area.

Richardson, who was in Hereford Monday to question witnesses, said that all the evidence pointed to an accident. "We cannot substantiate any wrong doing."

Hail stated that there were no other injuries on the body other than those incurred in the fall. Hail also stated that autopsy tests indicated Bermudez had a blood alcohol level of .167, Hail said. A person with a blood alcohol level of .10 is con-

Oil prices plunge again

By The Associated Press

The downward spiral of oil prices has picked up momentum, sending the cost of a 42-gallon barrel below $11 for the first time in eight years.

Contracts for May delivery of the benchmark U.S. crude, West Texas Intermediate, closed Monday on the New York Mercantile Exchange at $10.42 a barrel.

The market was closed Friday in observance of Good Friday. On Thursday, the same contract sold for $11.44.

On Nov. 25, the day before the current price slide began, futures contracts for near-term delivery closed 66 percent higher — at $31.01. In 1978, refiners were paying an average $10.61 a barrel for domestic crude oil.

In other economic news Monday: —The Reagan administration announced that unless the European Community rescinds restrictions on American agricultural exports, it will establish quotas and increase tariffs on European farm imports.

—The Agriculture Department said prices farmers get for raw products dropped 0.8 percent in March, falling to 9.7 percent below the level of a year ago. The report said the decline was mostly the result of lower prices for cattle, hogs, corn and milk.

—The government reported that new-home sales fell an unexpected 3.8 percent in February, suggesting that the lowest mortgage-interest

Human Services was the biggest spender in Texas when it came to grants to the state or local governments. HHS sent $1.5 billion to Texas with most of it, $911 million, for Medicaid.

The Department of Transportation spent $770 million, with $587 million of that earmarked for highways.

The Agriculture Department was third, spending $595 million in Texas. The biggest chunk, $281 million, went

Bond rating lowered on banks

By The Associated Press

Concerned over the grim outlook for Texas' oil-based economy, Moody's Investors Service Inc. and Standard & Poor's Corp. have lowered the credit ratings of several major banks in the state.

Moody's on Monday reduced its rating on three Dallas bank companies — MCorp, InterFirst Corp. and Republicbank Corp. — as well as First City Bancorp of Texas Inc. in Houston.

"The potential for those banks is negative over the next few years because of the hostile operating environment," said Don Noe, Moody's associate director for financial institutions.

"They had been above-average performers earlier, but the prospects now are not as good because of the entire regional economy has turned into a fairly hostile one," he said. "It has been meandering downward for some time."

S&P said it cut the rating on MCorp's senior debt to "reflect expectations that the dramatic decline in oil prices will materially affect Hail stated that park rangers reported that a group of hikers stopped them and told them there was a hiker on the hill, but that they did not know if he was injured. The rangers told them that they would start looking the next morning. According to witnesses, park rangers did not return until after the body was found.

Bermudez was a member of the Hereford High School Key Club and the varsity football team. Key Club sponsor Gene Brock said that he was a fine young man who brought life into everything he was involved in. "He was always laughing and joking with the other students," Brock said.

"George excelled in art and was very well liked by all the other students," Brock said. "It was very much a shock. There has been an atmosphere of silence and disbelief around school since the accident."

Former Hereford football coach

Jerry Taylor told The Brand that Bermudez was a hard worker who cared about his teammates. "We were deeply saddened to hear about the accident," Taylor said. "It is such a waste of life, we are very sorry for George and his family."

In an interview with The Brand last November, Bermudez said that he was planning to attend West Texas State University after graduation. He was hoping to become a freelance commercial artist.

Wartes Lands Whopper

Larry Wartes, Hereford assistant superintendent, bagged a record sailfish from the Tierra Blanca Creek during the spring break last week. It is rare for a sailfish to venture this far north and it's the largest ever grounded in the Panhandle. Wartes, who was hunting rabbits along the creek, saw the sailfish "just skipping along the water." He claims he downed him with one shot from his .357 Magnum, then hauled him out of the creek. Chuck Cospo, a local game warden, said such a fish tale could only happen on April 1.

Negotiators question Reagan's refusal of offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee and three former U.S. arms control negotiators are expressing regret over President Reagan's rejection of a proposed

U.S.-Soviet summit on banning nuclear weapons tests, calling it a missed opportunity to slow the arms race.

Paul H. Nitze, the president's senior adviser on arms control, said American critics were trying to "exploit" the administration's position. "Most in the West recognize we must depend on nuclear weapons as the bottom line in Western defense, and testing is necessary," Nitze said.

Gorbachev, in a 20-minute speech Saturday night, offered to meet Reagan as soon as possible in a European capital to negotiate a nuclear test ban. He said he was giving the administration one last chance to halt Soviet underground nuclear tests, which have been suspended for seven months.

The president, from his California vacation retreat, turned Gorbachev down immediately, saying a superpower meeting should "deal with the entire range" of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Supporters and critics alike seem certain the Soviets would resume testing and that the U.S. blast on March 22 would be followed by other weapons tests. Rep. Les Aspin, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said Reagan's decision was "disquieting," even though the Soviets were "demagoguing" and approaching the testing issue "in a propagandistic way."

But, the Wisconsin Democrat told The Associated Press, "we ought to call their bluff and see if they are serious."

"I'm certainly not surprised," said Paul Warnke, chief U.S. negotiator in the Carter administration, of the administration's position. "Since 1981, the Reagan administration has made it clear they have no interest in a comprehensive test ban."

He dismissed as "nonsense" the argument by Kenneth L. Adelman, the U.S. arms control director, and

Twenty-three diners hospitalized

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — At least 34 people who ate Easter brunch at a suburban country club sought medical attention for apparent food poisoning, and 23 of them were hospitalized, the executive director of the El Paso city-county health district said.

As many as 60 people may have become ill from the Sunday meal at Santa Teresa Country Club in Santa Teresa, N.M., just across the state line west of El Paso, Dr. Laurence Nickey said Monday.

New Mexico health officials are examining food from the brunch and are questioning employees of the country club restaurant, Nickey added.

The club restaurant, which is open only to members, served about 850 people from the time the Easter brunch began at 11 a.m. until about 4 p.m., when restaurant manager Kenneth Krieger said he started getting calls from diners complaining the food had made them sick.

After receiving reports from doctors, El Paso health officials notified the New Mexico Health and Environmental Department of the possible food poisoning.

Ray Krehoff of Las Cruces, N.M., a spokesman for the New Mexico agency, said results on the food tests will be available Thursday or Friday.

Number of taxpayers rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of taxpayers who itemize deductions is rising despite government efforts to simplify the tax system.

More than 38.4 percent of the 99.6 million couples and individuals who filed returns last year itemized deductions, the sixth straight year of increase. Since almost half of all returns are joint returns from couples, the number of itemizing taxpayers is estimated to be about 65 percent of the taxpaying population.

"Increases in average income and deductible expenditures, without a corresponding increase in the zero-bracket amount (standard deduction), may have been factors causing more people to itemize," the Internal Revenue Service said in a new report.

When inflation is considered, the standard deduction was unchanged between 1979 and 1985, although Congress changed several other tax provisions during that time to simplify the tax system by reducing the number of itemizers.

More than 98 percent of the itemizers last year deducted state and local taxes paid; 91 percent claimed charitable contributions; 90 percent wrote off interest; and 28 percent took a medical deduction.

The percentage of itemizers last year ranged from 26 percent of taxpayers in South Dakota and West Virginia to 50 percent in Minnesota and Utah.

Lockheed, MIT lead nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Lockheed Missiles and Space Co. led the nation's businesses last year in performing research work for the Pentagon, while the Massachusetts Institute of Technology finished first among non-profit organizations, a new report shows.

The report, released Monday, also shows the Defense Department spent $18.94 billion in fiscal 1985 for "research, development, test and evaluation" work, compared to $18.28 billion in fiscal 1984.

The totals include all contract awards totaling $25,000 or more.

During fiscal 1985, which ended last Sept. 30, "the top 500" recipients of such research contracts included 390 businesses; 95 educational or non-profit institutions; six U.S. government agencies, and nine foreign contractors, the report shows.

Lockheed Missiles and Space, a unit of the California-based Lockheed Corp., bumped The Boeing Co. out of first place last year, the report shows. The one unit of Lockheed received research contracts totaling $1.53 billion, compared to $1.07 billion for No. 2 Boeing.

In fiscal 1984, Boeing led the list of the top 500 research contractors with awards totaling $1.8 billion. Lockheed Missiles and Space was No. 2 that year with awards totaling $1.16 billion.

U.S. deaths at record level

WASHINGTON (AP) — America recorded more deaths in 1985 than in any year in history, a toll boosted by a rising proportion of elderly in the population, according to government figures.

The 2,084,000 deaths listed last year exceeded the 1984 figure by approximately 37,000, according to preliminary data compiled by the National Center for Health Statistics.

"Contributing to the increased number of deaths were the continuing increase in the proportion of older persons in the population and the influenza outbreak during the first quarter of 1985," the center reported.

Despite the larger death total, however, the nation's death rate remained unchanged at 8.7 per 1,000 people because the increase in deaths was about the same as the increase in the general population.

Among causes of death, an increase was noted for cancers, particularly lung and lymphatic cancers. Death rate increases also were observed for chronic lung disease, pneumonia and influenza, diabetes, kidney disease and blood poisoning, according to the study.

Mobs rampage, attack homes

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Ramping Protestant mobs attacked Roman Catholics and police in several Northern Ireland towns today following a clash in Portadown between police and hundreds of participants in a banned march.

Authorities reported that 49 people, including 13 policemen, were hurt in a clash between hundreds of youths and police in Portadown on Monday.

Three injured in wreck near Vega

Two Amarillo men and a Vega woman were hospitalized following a head-on collision Monday morning approximately 24 miles north of Hereford on a county road.

The two Amarillo men, Knox and Clem Bonifield, were taken to Deaf Smith County General Hospital. Both were reported to have been in stable condition with multiple fractures and possible internal injuries.

The driver of the other vehicle, Dana Sides of Vega, was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo with a fractured right arm and shoulder. Officials of the hospital reported that she may have a possible injury to the stem of the brain.

It took Hereford firefighters approximately one hour to free the driver from the Bonifield vehicle.

Firefighters also responded to a dumpster fire Sunday morning behind 320 Blevins and a trailer house fire 11 miles west on Harrison Highway. The trailer belonged to Johnny Galan. No determination has been made on the damage.

other senior administration officials that nuclear weapons must be tested for reliability.

"We do very little in the way of proof-testing," Warnke said.

The usual procedure, he said, is to inspect weapons stockpiles for rust and corrosion and to test the trigger mechanism. All that can be done without a nuclear explosion, Warnke said.

Gerard Smith, chief U.S. negotiator in the Nixon administration, also said the Reagan administration was "not interested" in ending weapons tests. He said the failure to pursue an overall ban breaks with a commitment to other nations in the 1968 Non-Proliferation Treaty, which was designed to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

rates of the decade have yet to translate into a buying surge.

—Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities plunged further with the rate on six-month bills dropping to their lowest level since 1977 and on three-month bills to their lowest since 1978. The Treasury Department sold $7 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 6.35 percent, down from 6.36 percent last week.

Meanwhile, the White House outlined three trade moves it said were aimed at eliminating foreign unfair trade practices and securing open markets for American exports.

"The United States will take action against new European Community agricultural restrictions which could affect as much as $1 billion in U.S. farm exports," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

The restrictions were imposed after Spain and Portugal joined the community, also known as the Common Market.

for child nutrition programs.

Puerto Rico received the most from USDA — slightly over $1 billion — and most of that, $824 million, went for food stamps. Comparatively, Texas received $66.5 million for the food stamp program. Texas has an estimated 16.4 million residents; Puerto Rico 3.3 million.

The Housing and Urban Development department expended $500 million in Texas, with much of that going for low-income housing and housing assistance.

Uncle Sam spent about $3,250 on every man, woman and child in the nation, with Alaskans receiving the most per resident.

Overall, the federal government spent $788.5 billion in fiscal 1985.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

Recently, Lupe Chavez wrote a Letter to the Editor in which he suggests that only strongly motivated and community conscious people should be allowed to vote and that it's a bit misguided for other politically motivated people to go around registering just anybody they can find.

This is probably a valid point, but it should be said that there's more to it.

Two things specifically:

a) The "register 30 days in advance" system is in itself a way to prevent the common, unaware person from exercising their constitutional right. It's devised by the same people who set up the property owning requirement, poll tax and literacy tests of old. Advocates of more fair procedures propose lifetime registration and "register the day of voting" concept. With our powerful computer, these and other methods would be feasible if we had the will.

b) In our complex life environment, voting is often something we put off thinking about until we are faced with a deadline, like paying bills and buying a car license. Also, some people really do need to be shown their count. So, registering the unregistered is like bringing the Word to the unchurched, i.e., a work of great love.

c) The more broad a population that can vote for an official, the more broadly aware of needs and want of the constituency an official is forced to be.

So, Lupe, rather than gripe about registration activists, one should carry blank registration cards wherever one goes and encourage every soul to fill them in. That way government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall never perish from Deaf Smith County.

Sincerely,
Al Dzulk

Eccentric or smart?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I must comment on the letter from "Sincerely Sentimental." She is the clod who wanted to know how to get her gifts back from a dying friend. I was brought up by a large family of piranhas. My relatives descended on their victims by moving out furniture and items that had sentimental value while the patient was still in the hospital. Every death of a relative resulted in an ugly incident perpetrated by the left-out siblings and others who took sides.

When I married I discovered that my husband's family had a lot more class than mine. His grandparents not only left wills specifying who should get what, they taped the names on the backs of pictures, under furniture and inside books. They put tags on various pieces of jewelry designating to whom they should go. Eccentric? Maybe. Smart? Yes. It may have appeared weird to outsiders, but it saved a great many family fights and nobody could say that he or she had been treated unfairly.—A MICHIGAN TRANSPLANT

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem is inconsequential compared to those that many people write about, but it is driving me up the wall.

A woman in our office constantly whistles to the piped-in music. Not only does she whistle out of tune but she often whistles a different song altogether. She distracts me from my work and I feel that I am not giving the job my best. Others in the office are also annoyed but no one has the nerve to say anything. Do I have the right to ask her to stop? The second term of the 4-H Bucket Calf Project is drawing closer. This project is geared for those youth between the ages of five to 12.

The last project 18 4-H'ers participated and all enjoyed their experience with 4-H calves. Many new 4-H'ers and other youth have already enrolled and we still are looking for more bucket calf feeders. If you or someone you know might be interested please contact the extension office. Project begins between April 15 and May 15 and is completed on August 16 at the Hereford Jubilee.

The livestock judging teams have begun training for the upcoming district I contest at WTSU. Presently they are practicing the evaluation process of steers, hogs and sheep. They meet each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon.

Those 4-H'ers include Chris Connally, Jeff Hicks, Ricky Vogel and Chris Urbanczyk on the Senior team. Junior team consist of Greg Urbanczyk, Jeffery Carlson, Jim Brett Campbell, Michael Carlson, Hollie Ebeling, Shannon Mannschreck and Garrett Easley. The group plans to participate in the South Plains College contest on Friday, April 11 at Levelland.

The Horse Judging Team with coach Cecil Blasingame traveled to Dumas this past Saturday to participate in the Gray County Judging Contest. Members participating include Briss Matthews, Chris Burrus, and Shamayne Blasingame. The team continues work toward the District I contest on April 19th.

Summer Shooting Sports will begin soon and the club is preparing for opening day. Pat Betzen presented the club with an interesting program over reloading shells. The club has a meeting set for April 17th at which time 4-H'ers will sign up for participation in the summer shooting sports program.

Summer 4-H Camps are taking shape. This year three camps are planned. 4-H Electric Camp, for 4-H'ers 13-19 is sponsored by Southwestern Public Service. This camp will be held in Cloud Croft, N.M. Junior County Camp will be July 9-12 at the Texas 4-H Center on Lake Brownwood. Senior camp will be held as a tour around parts of Texas with a two night stop at Sandy Beach on Lake Brownwood for skiing and fishing. For information on any of these camps contact Davy Vestal, County Extension Agent at 364-3573.

Fight crashes, killing all 166 aboard

MORELIA, Mexico (AP) — Helicopter crews began lifting bodies from the wreckage of a Mexicana Airlines jet that smashed into a mountain peak, killing all 166 people aboard. An airline official said five Americans were among the dead.

The Boeing 727, en route from Mexico City to Los Angeles with stops in the Pacific resorts of Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan, hit the 7,792-foot mountain known locally as El Carbon about 90 miles northwest of Mexico City shortly after takeoff Monday morning.

"Unfortunately, there are no survivors," Mexicana spokesman Fernando Martinez Cortes said of the 158 passengers and eight crew members aboard Flight 940.

The cause of the crash was not known, but the airline said the pilot had reported pressurization problems and asked permission to lower his altitude shortly before the crash.

Helicopters began taking the bodies down to a base camp Monday, but the recovery operation was suspended at nightfall and was to be resumed today. Officials said crews at the site were looking for the flight recorders.

Jorge Sanchez, a helicopter pilot who brought down six bodies, said the jetliner was "in pieces. ... The largest single piece was the tail, and everywhere there were bodies."

In Los Angeles, Robert R. Crigler, manager of the Mexicana office there, said Monday night the doomed flight carried five Americans and two Canadians, but was unable to identify who they were. He earlier had said seven Americans were killed in the crash.

However, U.S. Embassy spokesman Vincent Hovanec in Mexico City said Monday night that embassy officials have not received official confirmation of any American victims. He said U.S. officials were at the crash site to aid in the identifications.

Hovanec said airline officials reported 25 non-Hispanic surnames were on the passenger list, but the manifest did not list citizenship. "We have no way of knowing now if there are any Americans aboard," he said.

Jose Luis Munoz, an official of the Mexican Civil Aeronautics Agency, quoted residents near the crash site as saying the plane was on fire as it was losing altitude and that they heard two explosions on impact.

A flight over the crash area in a chartered aircraft revealed a plume of white smoke slightly more than halfway up the mountain, and several small fires around it.

Three hangars were converted into makeshift morgues at the airport at Morelia, capital of Michoacan state about 45 miles west of the crash site, but airport manager Faustino Cervantes said he did not expect to receive any bodies until sometime today. He said the bodies first were taken to the village of Pomuco at the base of the mountain and probably would be brought to the airport sometime today.

Manuel Sosa de la Vega, Mexicana president, told the Televisa television network he hoped all the bodies would be back in the capital this afternoon.

It was the worst air disaster since a chartered DC-8 with a crew of eight that was carrying 248 U.S. servicemen home for Christmas from the Middle East crashed just after takeoff from Gander, Newfoundland, on Dec. 12, and all perished.

Jose Henonin, an airline spokesman in Mexico City, said in a telephone interview, "The captain asked for permission to descend because they had problems about the pressurization of the plane."

"That was the last time they heard from the captain, when he asked for authorization to descend 6,000 feet. He was flying at 26,000 feet."

The Civil Aeronautics Agency's transcript of conversations between Mexico City air traffic controllers and the pilot, Capt. Carlos Guadarrama Sistos, contained references to the plane losing altitude but not to pressurization problems. There was no immediate explanation for the discrepancy between the airline's statement and the transcript.

The airline said Sistos had logged 15,000 hours of flight time.

President Miguel de la Madrid ordered an investigation of the crash. Special teams from the federal Attorney General's office and Mexicana were going to the site.

The worst commercial aviation disaster occurred March 27, 1977, when 582 people were killed in a collision of two Boeing 747s operated by Pan American and KLM at the airport on Tenerife in Spain's Canary Islands. The second worst disaster occurred Aug. 12 when a Japan Airlines Boeing 747 crashed into a mountain on a domestic flight, killing 520 people.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — Yet another education controversy, this one involving home schools and Christian academies, has reared its ugly head in Texas.

On one side is a relatively small but vocal group of parents who worry that our public schools have completely de-emphasized traditional Christian values. They say that de-emphasis leaves them with no choice but to pull their children from public schools and educate them in the home or at newly created Christian academies.

Taking a somewhat opposite view is the State Board of Education. Its members fear home education or schooling in the new academies may not be in the best interests of the children involved.

Members of the board fear these home schools or new academies do not offer the same quality of education found in the public schools. If, after what one hopes will be a thorough investigation, those fears are confirmed, the board conceivably will outline educational guidelines for the home schoolers or Christian academies.

Children being educated in situations not conforming to state board guidelines could be forced back into the public schools under Texas' compulsory attendance laws.

Board action originally was set for early March but has been postponed until mid-April. The mere thought of state interference in Christian education programs, though, already has stirred a storm of protest throughout the Panhandle and South Plains. If the number of calls to our Austin office during the past few weeks is any indication, this is not an issue that will go away quietly.

Frankly, we can understand both the parental outrage and the state concern. We have in this issue two basic sets of rights that are on a collision course.

We agree that every parent has a right to educate their child in a manner that best conforms to their beliefs and principles. If parents feel the public school system has strayed too far from those principles, they should have alternatives available.

At the same time, we must remember that a child has certain inalienable rights and chief among those rights is the opportunity to receive a quality education. We must never lose sight of the fact that the purpose of an education is to properly equip a person to earn their way in the "real" world.

Is there room, then, for a middle ground in this issue? We believe so. The public school system has co-existed for years with parochial schools and elite private schools that cater to the wealthy. There is no reason the public schools can't find a way to live with home education and Christian academies.

But, we fear there will be more controversy before we all live happily ever after. It is likely the state board will impose guidelines in April that parents find too strict. Their response almost certainly will be to file suit against the state board and the Texas Education Agency.

The whole matter eventually will wind up either before the Supreme Court or the Legislature. The latter option represents the best for everyone involved.

Since the Legislature doesn't meet until January of next year, there is plenty of time for everyone to sort out their positions. Members of the state board need to decide if they can live with this new alternative education. Parents need to decide to what extent they will allow the state to monitor their children's progress.

We frankly are optimistic that everyone will be reasonable. We have visited with home schoolers who say they are willing to let the state periodically test their children to make sure they are advancing academically.

We hope everyone involved begins to think along those lines. That's the kind of compromise we're going to need if this controversy is to be settled anywhere besides the courts.

CUSTOMER LOYALTY

DENVER (AP) — Retailers like to have credit cards with their own name on them to build repeat business.

Statistics from a recent survey for Citicorp Retail Services, a service firm for private label credit cards, show that during 1984 shoppers with department store cards purchased more than 15 times with the card. The average store card sale was $39, compared to $31 for cash and checks.

Crews battling wildfires; no rain in sight

By MARTIN STEINBERG Associated Press Writer

Crews battled hundreds of wildfires today in the drought-parched hills of Dixie, and forecasters held out little hope that rain would end the siege that has charred more than 90,000 acres in the past week.

Forest fires, which contributed to two deaths since last week, were raging today in Alabama, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina, Ohio and Missouri. Many of the blazes were set, officials say.

Large fires were extinguished Monday night in New Jersey and Massachusetts.

More than a half million acres across the Southeast have been consumed this year in nearly 38,000 fires, said Bruce Jewell, regional information officer for the U.S. Forest Service in Atlanta.

At least 300 fires blazed across 2,000 acres in North Carolina during the weekend, while Alabama officials reported 158 blazes Sunday alone.

Dry weather was expected in the fire zones for the next few days.

"Without rain there isn't a whole lot we can do," said Ralph Glover, deputy state forester in West Virginia, where 56 new fires were reported Monday and 12 continued to burn.

Officials expanded a fire alert Monday to 40 of Alabama's 67 counties. Since last Tuesday, 905 fires have burned 15,000 acres, said Cynthia Page, a spokeswoman for the Alabama Forestry Commission. The cost in "timber, jobs, products and taxes" exceeds $26 million, she said.

This year, 7,394 fires have burned nearly 80,000 acres in North Carolina, compared with 4,952 fires on 114,800 acres in the first three months of 1985.

Four trained "hot-shot" firefighting teams from New Mexico and Arizona were battling a 344-acre blaze Monday in the Daniel Boone National Forest in Kentucky, which had at least 65 fires raging.

Last week, more than 650 fires blackened 23,000 acres in Kentucky. In West Virginia, more than 25,000 acres have been charred this year, the worst since 1976, said Jerry Atkins, assistant state forester. More than 460 fires blackened nearly 19,000 acres last week, and Atkins said arson was suspected in at least one-third.

Three juveniles believed to have set several fires in Raleigh County, W.Va., were arrested Monday evening, forester Robert Dameron said.

In southwestern Virginia, seven forest fires burned out of control Monday. Acreage was not available. Since Jan. 1, 895 forest fires burned 4,900 acres, said Division of Forestry spokesman Lou Southard.

Tennessee had 283 fires Sunday that blackened 2,745 acres, said Roy Ashey, director of the state Forestry Division.

So far this year, 3,730 fires have claimed 40,000 acres across Tennessee, which usually loses 40,000 to 42,000 acres of land to fires in an entire year, officials said.

Since February, at least three people have died in Tennessee fires, including a firefighter who died Sunday apparently of a heart attack.

An estimated 10,000 acres of Ohio forest had burned since last week. In Missouri, 20 weekend fires burned an estimated 1,400 acres, mostly along the Arkansas border. And, in Massachusetts, up to 2,000 acres of an artillery practice range burned on Cape Cod.

NEUTRON BEAM THERAPY

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Neutron beam therapy, an experimental form of radiation treatment for cancer, uses heavy, subatomic particles — neutrons — to produce a high-speed "beam" that is directed at tumors.

Dr. Robert Graves of the University of Rochester Cancer Center says research he is conducting will determine the physiological effects that treatment may have on patients. The energy emitted by the neutron beams will indicate the amount of radiation patients receive and verify safe yet effective radiation levels, he says.

Neutron beam therapy may one day provide a cancer treatment method superior to current techniques of radiation therapy, cancer researchers say.

HIGH GRADED DRINKING WATER

DENVER (AP) — Drinking water gets high marks for quality from consumers.

A survey by the American Water Works Association found that 87 percent rated their tap water average to excellent.

What about concern about cancer-causing substances found in water? The association says that most other common beverages contain higher amounts of known carcinogens than does tap water. It says that with few exceptions, municipal water supplies meet or exceed safety standards set by the federal government.

GOOD USE FOR SOLID WASTE
NEW YORK (AP) — The 50 million Americans who actively recycle paper each year are making a sizeable contribution to solving the nation's solid waste problem.

In 1985, 21 million tons of waste paper were collected for recycling in the U.S., says the American Paper Institute. That's enough to extend the life of the world's largest landfill on New York's Staten Island by more than three years.

TAXES

TAXES noun a compulsory payment for the support of government.

Benjamin Franklin is credited with saying "In this world nothing is certain but death and taxes."

While we all must pay some taxes, now there's a way to pay less. It's with an Individual Retirement Account. This allows you an opportunity to place $2,000 a year ($4,000 if both you and your spouse work, $2,250 if only one of a married couple works) into a special account that is free of federal income taxes. Even the interest you earn isn't taxable.

Don't pay more taxes than you need to pay. Come to the First National Bank of Hereford and open your I.R.A.

Penalty and/or interest penalty may apply for early withdrawal of your I.R.A.

Few changes expected on passbook savings

NEW YORK (AP) — People who put money in passbook savings accounts, the traditional family nest egg, may get a few perks starting today now that the accounts are open to unlimited interest, but shouldn't expect a big boost, industry experts say.

The government ended its 5.5 percent interest ceiling on passbook accounts as the last stage in its six-year deregulation of consumer interest rates paid by banks and savings institutions.

"There's no good reason to boost your cost of funds by raising the passbook," said Bob Schosberg, president of the New York League of Savings Institutions. "You may attract some new deposits at the higher rate, but you're having a profound and dramatic effect on your cost of funds on deposits that are already there without gaining anything by it."

The industry also is reluctant to change a product that remains popular despite higher returns on other accounts, officials said.

"The passbook has a permanence to it," Schosberg said. "You can't go up to 7 percent and then reel it back to 6 percent a few months down the line."

Stefanie Steel, a spokeswoman for Citibank NA, the nation's biggest bank, said Citibank had no changes in the works for passbook accounts, "but of course we're always reviewing our products and looking at them to see if we need to make any changes."

About 75 percent of all American households have at least one passbook or statement savings account, totaling about $304.9 billion as of February, according to the Federal Reserve Board.

Passbook savings have shrunk from $348.4 billion since 1982 as bank money market accounts were introduced, but many savers still prefer them because of stable return, unlimited withdrawals and relatively low minimum balances.

"A lot of people didn't move out of their passbook accounts when interest rates were considerably higher," said Ms. Steel. "Passbook customers seem not to respond to those kinds of things."

The newsletter Bank Rate Monitor said its nationwide survey of 50 banks and thrift institutions in the week ended March 26 found that the effective annual yield on money market accounts was 6.52 percent, just a point higher than the passbook rate.

Schosberg said most changes in passbooks probably would hinge on the balance. For example, American Savings Bank of New York will offer discounts on travelers checks and other perks to encourage passbook savers to keep their money in place, he said.

Other institutions are offering such extras as no-fee credit cards or interest-bearing checking accounts to encourage passbook savers to keep a minimum balance.

Medicare trustees say changes are needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress must either restrict Medicare hospital spending or increase its tax income, trustees for the program say, or face the possibility of system bankruptcy by the mid-1990s.

The trustees, who manage the $21 billion trust fund that pays for the hospital insurance program for the elderly and disabled, said the fund could go bankrupt by 1996 if changes are not made.

The prediction is contained in the annual report by the board of trustees to Congress.

In the report, a series of projections are made that vary according to possible economic developments in future years. But the projection foreseeing bankruptcy by 1996 is considered the middle range, the one fund managers rely on most.

Under more optimistic economic conditions, the trustees said, the trust fund may remain solvent for 25 years. But under more pessimistic assumptions, they said, it could go bankrupt even earlier — by 1993.

"Early corrective action is essential in order to avoid the need for later, potentially precipitous changes," the trustees said Monday. "The board therefore urges that the Congress take early remedial measures to bring future ... program costs and financing into balance."

Under the most likely economic conditions, the trustees said, "balance" will require either a 22 percent reduction in spending or a 28 percent increase in income. The board made no more specific recommendations.

The call for further congressional action ended a one-year lull in warnings of the system's potential demise. Three years ago, the trustees warned that bankruptcy could come as early as 1987.

But reforms were initiated, and the trustees last year said the system likely was safe until at least 1996 and possibly into the next century. The new report resurrects the questions about the system's financial footing.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen, one of the trustees, noted in a statement accompanying the report Monday that bankruptcy is not imminent. He said the recent reforms have given the government breathing room it did not have before.

Changes in Medicare payments have slowed the growth of spending, "giving us more time and opportunity to take the further steps needed to ensure long-term solvency for the Medicare trust fund," Bowen said.

But something must be done, the board said, because current Medicare income is "barely sufficient" to pay benefits and maintain the trust fund at the recommended reserve level — six months worth of payments — over the next seven to nine years.

The report said the Medicare hospital insurance trust fund took in $50.93 billion in the fiscal year ending last Sept. 30, while paying out $48.65 billion. Assets of the fund stood at $21.28 billion at year's end.

The Medicare hospital insurance report was the gloomiest of a series released Friday on the various trust funds administered by the Social Security Administration.

In other reports, the trustees said the Medicare supplementary medical insurance trust fund, which pays doctor bills and other medical expenses under so-called "Part B" Medicare coverage, is financially sound, but is growing in cost too rapidly. It recommended that Congress take action to curb the rising cost, but made no specific proposal.

And the trustees said the principal Social Security trust funds — which pay for old age, survivors and disability pensions — are sound and will be able to pay benefits on time "for many years into the future" under even the most pessimistic economic assumptions.

The six trustees are Bowen; Treasury Secretary James A. Baker, Labor Secretary William Brock, Acting Social Security Commissioner Martha McSteen and public trustees Mary Falvey Fuller and Suzanne Denbo Jaffe.

In 1981, Roy Wilkins, leader of the NAACP, died in New York of kidney failure at the age of 80.

DR. GOTT

Diagnosing eye problems

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For 16 years, I took eye drops for glaucoma. Then my doctor gave up his practice, and the new doctor says I don't have glaucoma. I stopped the drops and my eyes got worse. Another doctor also said I didn't have glaucoma. A third doctor was uncertain and said I had nerve damage, but not to use the drops. My eyes just keep getting worse and I have lost much of my sight. How can I find out what I have and how it should be treated?

DEAR READER — When doctors are unsure about the presence of a disease, the patient is usually best served by an evaluation in a teaching or university hospital. In such an institution, specialists have the training and sophisticated equipment to analyze the more difficult and puzzling health problems. If your doctor cannot seem to help you and your vision is failing, I suggest you make an appointment to be seen in the eye clinic of a large medical center.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What tests should be given when one asks for a physical? When blood is taken from the arm, what is it tested for?

DEAR READER — The answer to your question depends on the age and health of the patient and the preferences of the examiner.

Children need periodic evaluations to monitor growth, general health and the need for immunizations. Blood tests are seldom necessary for youngsters.

On the other hand, adults have individual requirements that may include X-ray examinations, cardiograms or stress tests, Pap smears, fecal-blood evaluation and analysis of other body fluids.

In my opinion, a complete history and physical examination, including a urinalysis and blood count, usually suffices for a healthy young adult. Elderly patients need additional evaluation that may include blood chemical analyses, sigmoidoscopic examinations and other more involved testing, performed at regular intervals.

The history and physical are the cornerstones of the medical evaluation. I believe that additional testing is a subject more properly addressed by the patient and the doctor, depending on individual needs.

As a general rule, most examinations of adults (over age 40) usually involve blood counts, blood chemical analyses (including sugar and cholesterol), urinalysis, cardiograms, chest X-rays and smears for blood in the stool. These tests are not necessarily required every year, but should be performed at appropriate intervals.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says one must take vitamin D along with calcium or it won't be absorbed. Are people just wasting their money and getting no good from taking calcium supplements without the D?

DEAR READER — In theory, yes. However, very little vitamin D is required for calcium absorption, so vitamin D in a well-balanced diet is usually enough to ensure proper calcium balance. Older people need more calcium; therefore, they may have to take supplemental D, too. Check labels. In general, 125 units of vitamin D is considered sufficient for each 250-500mg. of calcium. Remember that D is present in many foods (including fortified milk) and the vitamin is activated in the body during exposure to sunlight. The Recommended Daily Allowances for calcium and vitamin D in adults are: 800-1200 mg and 400 units, respectively.

The talent is there, so the key may be attitude. And Cincinnati Reds player-manager Pete Rose has a jump on the others in that department.

"I think if our guys come back with the same attitude they left with in '85, we have a good chance of winning the West," Rose said.

The Los Angeles Dodgers won the National League West by ½ games over Cincinnati last year, but with almost all the teams in the division on the rise, it's time for a shakeup.

"I just feel we're going to be a lot stronger ballclub with Bo Diaz for a whole year, with Buddy Bell for a whole year, and John Denny and Bill Gullickson," Rose said. "With those four guys, we ought to be able to make up the games the Dodgers beat us by last year."

In 1985, the Reds closed to within four games before falling back another 1½ games at the finish. They were followed, in order, by Houston, San Diego, Atlanta and San Francisco.

In 1986, the division will look more like this:

Cincinnati Reds
Bell, the third baseman, and Diaz, the catcher, came to the Reds in midseason 1985. Then, the Reds went out and got Denny from Philadelphia and Gullickson from Montreal to help out rookie 20-game winner Tom Browning and Mario Soto.

"I don't want to go out on a limb,"

Rose said. "But I'll be very disappointed if we don't win the West."

Los Angeles Dodgers
"We've managed to do very well in the pitching department over the years," Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda said. "This year will be no different."

In fact, on the strength of their pitching, many are picking the Dodgers to repeat in 1986, something no West team has done since the Dodgers in 1977-78.

With Fernando Valenzuela, Orel Hershiser, Bob Welch, Jerry Reuss and perhaps Alejandro Pena in the rotation, and Ken Howell, Tom Niedenfuer and newcomer Ed Vandenberg in the bullpen, the Dodgers are undeniably strong.

It could be a close race — one of the most hotly contested in baseball — but not too close to call.

Dodgers No. 2
Atlanta Braves

There was a changing of the guard in Atlanta. Bobby Cox took over as General Manager, and Chuck Tanner was brought in to manage. Both have made immediate impressions — Cox with two key trades and Tanner with his infectious optimism.

If it weren't for some uncertainty on the staff of starting pitchers, the Braves could give either Cincinnati or Los Angeles a good run.

Problem is, however, that after opening-day starter Rick Mahler and young left-hander Zane Smith, the rest of the starting jobs still are in a state of flux.

Cox made two important trades in the offseason, getting Ozzie Virgil from Philadelphia to catch and Ted Simmons from Milwaukee to strengthen their No. 1 preseason priority, the bench.

With Bob Horner healthy and Dale Murphy a model of consistency, the Braves are good enough for third.

San Diego Padres
The Padres can't help but be a little disorganized this year, at least early on. Manager Dick Williams dug his trenches for a battle with the front office, then went AWOL. He quit during spring training, leaving the job of finishing what he started to Steve Boros.

Boros has at least one bright side — some pretty good pitching with starters LaMarr Hoyt, Andy Hawkins, Eric Show and Dave Dravecky, and a strong bullpen with Goose Gossage and corner Lance McCullers.

After a slow start, the Padres will have trouble finishing any better than fourth.

Houston Astros
Playing in the Astrodome, the Astros generally have been a team built for speed. Not last year, though.

In 1985, the Astros stole only 96 bases, better in the league than only San Diego and Atlanta. First-year Manager Hal Lanier spent five years as a coach with the St. Louis Cardinals before coming to Houston, so he recognizes the deficiency.

To that end, Lanier will be asking Bill Doran, Kevin Bass, new acquisition Mickey Hatcher and even veteran Jose Cruz to start running.

Another problem: pitching. After Mike Scott, Nolan Ryan and Bob Knepper, there aren't any proven major league starters.

No better than fifth.

San Francisco Giants

There doesn't appear to be any way out of the cellar this year for the San Francisco Giants, despite some player moves that could help. They got Candy Maldonado from the Dodgers to help Chili Davis, Dan Gladden and Jeff Leonard in the outfield, and Juan Berenguer has been added to the pitching staff.

The starting pitching probably will give new Manager Roger Craig fits, but at least he has a good bullpen with the lefty-righty combo of Mark Davis and Scott Garrelts.

Alas, last again.

Cowboys meet with USFL quarterback

DALLAS (AP) — Reggie Collier, quarterback of the Orlando Renegades of the USFL, met with Dallas Cowboys officials at their training facility last week, offensive passing coordinator Paul Hackett confirmed.

The Cowboys first requested and were granted permission from the Renegades to speak with Collier, Hackett said Monday.

Hackett said he and Collier, who was drafted by the Cowboys in the sixth round in 1983 but opted for the USFL, had lunch together and Collier toured the facility.

Collier could figure prominently in the Cowboys' plans should backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom be traded, as he has requested.

"Before I could talk with him, we requested permission from Orlando and they granted it," Hackett said. "I can't call (any USFL players) unless I get it cleared by the team."

Hackett said he didn't talk about a contract with Collier.

"There are so many things involved with the USFL," including an anti-trust suit against the NFL that is expected to go to trial in April or May, Hackett noted. "We just wanted to go by the book."

Collier said he also met with Cowboys head coach Tom Landry and team president Tex Schramm.

"The main purpose of my visit was to meet Paul, and I was very impressed by him. We see eye to eye on a lot of things," Collier said. Hackett, an assistant coach last year with the San Francisco 49ers, was hired by the Cowboys during the off-season to try to put new spark into the Dallas passing attack.

Collier has one year and an option year remaining on his contract with Orlando. He makes approximately $250,000 a year.

Collier signed with the USFL's Birmingham Stallions out of the University of Southern Mississippi. He later was traded to the Washington Redskins, the franchise that transferred to Orlando last year.

BASEBALL
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals right-hander Danny Cox, who won 18 games for the National League champions in 1985, suffered a bone chip in his right ankle on a fishing trip Sunday and could be sidelined for two months, a team spokesman said.

Cox, second in the Cardinals' starting rotation, injured himself during a fishing trip in St. Petersburg on Sunday. Cox, the Cardinals' No. 2 starter, was 18-9 in 1985 with 10 complete games and four shutouts.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Marge Schott, owner of the Cincinnati Reds, has picked the Lettermen to perform the "Star Spangled Banner" for the baseball team's season opener Monday and may someday choose a Monday group, she said.

Looking ahead, she said, "You know, rock would be good for opening day. It would be different. We'll have it some day."

The Lettermen sing in at least a dozen baseball parks each year.

"Whenever we sing 'The Star Spangled Banner,' the home team usually wins," said Letterman Mark Preston.

BASKETBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Barkley, the powerful second-year forward for the Philadelphia 76ers, has been named Player of the Week in the NBA for the period ending Sunday.

Barkley, who is second in the NBA in rebounding this season with an average of 12.4 per game and is averaging 20.0 points, averaged 20.5 rebounds and 27.5 points in four games last week.

Whitefaces fall to Sandies, 11-5

The bottom of the fifth inning, when Amarillo High scored six runs, was the deciding inning of the game Saturday when the Hereford Whiteface varsity baseball team lost to the Sandies 11-5 in Amarillo.

After four and one half innings, the score was tied 4-4. The loss dropped the Whitefaces to 1-1 in the district and 8-4-1 for the season.

Hereford plays on the road again today, traveling to Amarillo to battle Caprock High School at 4:30 p.m.

Later this week, Hereford plays at home Friday against Plainview at 4:30 p.m., and plays Tascosa in a road game Saturday at 1 p.m.

In the first inning of last Saturday's game, Keith Herrera and Stefan Hacker both singled for Hereford, but the Whitefaces failed to score.

Amarillo High scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning with a home run, a double and two singles. Amarillo added a run in the second inning with a pair of hits, both singles.

Hereford scored one run in the third inning. Hacker walked and later scored on an error. In the fourth inning, Kyle Streun and Paul Maes each singled but were stranded on the base paths.

The Whitefaces tied the game at 4-4 in the top of the fifth inning. Curtis Cotten slugged a home run over the leftfield fence, batting in a teammate ahead of him who had reached base on an error.

Hereford then loaded the bases when Keith Anderson, Streun, and Robby Collier all walked. Maes hit a sacrifice fly to bat in Anderson with the tying run.

But in the bottom of the fifth inning, Amarillo High hit a double and four singles, and Hereford committed two errors, leading for six runs for the Sandies. Amarillo scored its 11th run of the contest in the sixth inning with a home run.

Hereford's other run came in the seventh inning. Cotten led off the inning with a single. With one out, Streun and Doug Watts both walked to load the bases. Cotten scored on an error.

The Whitefaces, who had seven hits, left 14 runners on base. Amarillo High committed one error in the game.

Anderson pitched the whole game for Hereford, giving up 13 hits, striking out five Amarillo batters, and walking just one batter.

Rod Carew still has no team to play with

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Rod Carew will undoubtedly be introduced with great ceremony into baseball's Hall of Fame in a few years.

But Carew, who's not ready to hang up his spikes just yet, apparently is being ushered quietly out a side gate as a player.

"I guess I expected it. I'm 40 years old and it seems like everyone's going with youth."

Carew, a seven-time American League batting champion, was the California Angels' leading hitter for five of the past six seasons, including a club-high .280 last year.

He said then that he wanted to play the 1986 season, then retire.

The Angels, however, decided during the winter that they would give Carew's first base job to rookie Wally Joyner and didn't offer the veteran a new contract.

So far, only the Minnesota Twins have shown any interest whatsoever in Carew, but they apparently have decided against signing the man who starred for them for 12 seasons.

He made $900,000 last year with the Angels and his high salary might have scared off any potential employers.

Angels Manager Gene Mauch has said that Carew wasn't offered a new contract because the club didn't want to insult him by offering him a much lower salary, usually about $250,000, to be a reserve player.

Carew, noting he is already financially secure, was at a loss to explain his situation. "I don't understand. No one has even taken the opportunity to call and say 'Can we work something out?'"

"I'm not bitter, but I am disappointed. I think I could help a club. I know I can still hit, and could be a role player for a team."

Carew, with a career batting average of .328 and 15,300 seasons in 19 years, said he has kept in condition and figures he could be back in hitting form within a week or so. But if he doesn't get a call from a team this season, he said he'll still get along just fine.

"I'll be content," he said. "I'm writing a book on hitting and working on opening up a batting school. I keep myself real busy."

St. Anthony's III wins 'A' church volleyball title

The St. Anthony's III team won the YMCA "A" church volleyball league championship Monday night.

St. Anthony's III defeated St. Anthony's I in the championship match, 17-15, 6-15, 11-4.

One semifinal match and the championship match are scheduled tonight in the "B" church volleyball league.

First Methodist plays Church of Christ II in the semifinal match, with the winner going against St. Anthony's III in the championship match.

St. Anthony's III won in the semifinals over Avenue Baptist II, 15-9, 10-15, 11-3, in a match played on March 21.

Gary Hogeboom still wants to be traded

DALLAS (AP) — Backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom said he would attend the Dallas Cowboys' minicamp today and Wednesday, but has let it be known he hasn't changed his mind and wants off the club as soon as a trade can be arranged.

Cowboys new quarterback coach Paul Hackett said he has met with Hogeboom, and the meeting lasted "about three minutes."

"Gary explained to me his position, and that is that he has asked to be traded by the Dallas Cowboys. Gary said that he just did not want to play in Dallas. He said it was nothing personal, he just wanted to be traded," Hackett said.

However, the Cowboys have said they have found little interest in Hogeboom around the National Football League, and Hogeboom's agent has come to the same conclusion.

The team has given agent Joe Courage permission to speak with other NFL teams in an effort to arrange a trade.

Courage said he has talked with 14 teams about a possible trade, and all expressed the same sentiment — little or no interest.

Hogeboom, who asked to be traded after the 1985 season when he was second-string to Danny White, was told the Cowboys would do the negotiating. However, after months of little progress, the Cowboys decided it would be better if Courage made the effort.

"What we have said is, they are free to find out if other teams have an interest in him," Cowboys personnel director Gil Brandt told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"Instead of us calling around and having people say we're not trying very hard, we decided to let them find out if there is any interest. They're going to find out there isn't much at this time," Brandt added.

Courage declined to say which teams he spoke with, but did say he expects the Cowboys to trade out of the National Football Conference if and when they trade.

"It's just not the right time," the agent said. "This thing will start to heat up as the draft draws near. I think we might be able to work something out then."

Hogeboom will attend the minicamp and will attend training camp this summer if he is still a member of the Dallas team at that time, Courage said.

"Gary is not a rebel. He just needs to be in a situation where he can play," Courage said.

Little girl repelled by picture of Soviet life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Katerina Lycheva, the 11-year-old peace emissary from Moscow, pronounced "Rocky IV" a distortion of Soviet life and said she has not seen anything in the United States that her friends at home lack.

The little girl visited Universal Studios on Monday and nestled in the grip of King Kong, the theme park's newest attraction. She is scheduled to visit Disneyland today before leaving the United States for Mexico City.

Although Katya has been lavished with gifts, including a cocker spaniel puppy, she was unimpressed by displays of capitalist Hollywood entertainment, particularly actor Sylvester Stallone's latest boxing epic. She said she would not like to live in America, and added: "So far, I haven't seen a single thing that my friends don't have."

She was matter-of-fact about the trip to Disneyland. Asked if she had asked to go there, she responded, "No, it's on my schedule, so I am going there."

Katerina said she watched "Rocky IV" on television in her hotel room.

"It was horrible," she said of the box office hit in which Stallone portrays an all-American boxer who defeats a hulking Soviet opponent.

"There was not a word in that film that was true," she said. "Soviet people have friendly, open faces. I was frightened. I didn't know that kind of distortion was possible."

Stallone and MGM contend the film isn't anti-Soviet, as it features a reconciliation of sorts at the end.

The sandy-haired, green-eyed Katya, wearing a calico dress, black patent pumps and white socks, told reporters she's tired on the 11th day of her U.S. tour "and I'm homesick."

She was barely able to squeeze in 15 minutes for what she really wanted: to talk with American children about peace.

A group of children from Commonwealth Elementary School asked questions like, "What have you learned about Americans?" while her mother, interpreter, sponsors, teachers, public relations people and the news media hovered.

"I've answered that a million times," she replied. "We play the same games and call them differently. ... I found kids are basically the same everywhere."

Asked about her White House visit with President Reagan, Katya said, "I only saw Mr. Reagan for about four minutes, so I cannot really pronounce any judgment on him."

She said she passed along a message calling for the "abolishment of all nuclear weapons before I grow up. Mr. Reagan said he would do his best toward that goal."

Before leaving Moscow, Katya had said: "I dream of peace and having a dog."

The Caspian Sea is really a lake as it is bounded by the Soviet Union and Iran. It is fed by eight rivers.
George Washington delivered the first annual presidential message to the U.S. in 1790.

HE TOOK HIS FIRST STEP AT AGE FORTY!

Peter and John went to the Temple one afternoon to take part in the three o'clock daily prayer meeting.
As they approached the Temple, they saw a man lame from birth carried along the street and laid beside the Temple gate--the one called The Beautiful Gate--as was his custom every day.
As Peter and John were passing by, he asked them for some money. They looked at him intently, and then Peter said, "Look here!"
The lame man looked at them eagerly, expecting a gift. But Peter said, "We don't have any money for you! But I'll give you something else! I command you in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk!"
Then Peter took the lame man by the hand and pulled him to his feet. And as he did, the man's feet and ankle-bones were healed and strengthened so that he came up with a leap, stood there a moment and began walking! Then, walking, leaping, and praising God, he went into the Temple with them.
When the people inside saw him walking and heard him praising God, and realized he was the lame beggar they had seen so often at The Beautiful Gate, they were inexplicably surprised!
Acts 3:1-10

Stage curtains frame Houston man's career

HOUSTON (AP)—William Barthorst made miniature sets for Charlie Chaplin movies before moving to Houston and opening a business to produce stage curtains and scenic backdrops.
He founded the Houston Scenic Studio in 1919, and three years later moved to 7026 Sherman in the Harrisburg area, where it still operates. Its quaint building is a cavernous labyrinth with all accommodations necessary to fabricate curtains, drapery and scenery.
In a way, going there is like going back in time because there are many relics, ranging from old scenery to hardware for stage installations long out of date.
Before his death in 1966,

Barthorst, a talented artist, produced curtains for a flock of theaters and schools across Texas. Working from his own water color paintings, he created scores of scenes for theatrical productions. He also designed hundreds of floats for parades.
His wife, Lois Barthorst, continued to operate the business until last year when Robert B. Williams, a family friend, took it over. Mrs. Barthorst died in December.
For Bob Williams, the curtains have gone up on a new theatrical career. At one stage in his youth 30 years ago, he thought that had become an impossible dream.
After studying drama three years at Syracuse University, he says, he hoped to break into big-time show business, but trying to do that, first in New York, then in Los Angeles, demanded a price he didn't want to pay.
"It's vastly different now," he says, "but back then you literally had to sell your soul to work in the theater. It was who you knew or who you were willing to go to bed with. It's true there was a casting couch, for men and women."
Williams would get back in the theater again, but it would be in Houston where things didn't work the same as in New York and Los Angeles.
In the mid-1950s, he was working here as assistant sales manager for a lumber company when he agreed to fill in temporarily as stage manager for Houston's Theater Inc., which staged musicals in an old theater in the Montrose area. Eventually he would go to work for the theater full time and become its general manager.
Williams recalls meeting the Barthorst when he first went to work at Theater Inc., whose survival could be a struggle at times.

"The theater needed new curtains so we went to Barthorst," he recalls, "but we decided we couldn't afford the price. About a week later a truck pulled up, and they unloaded the curtains. I called Billy (Barthorst), and said, 'We can't pay for this.'"
"He said, 'Do not worry about it. I have faith that you will pay me.' And sure enough we did."
Many people attending events presented on conventional stages may overlook the way the curtains can produce dramatic, even spectacular effects that enhance a presentation.
"Everything on stage works in conjunction with your curtains," Williams says. "It's really a challenge to get the desired effects, doing the right thing for a particular show."
By changing the lighting, curtains can convey different moods. Light a special curtain with a red, he says, "and you get a sunset or a sunrise."
The design of the curtains should suit the hall, he says. Contemporary design curtains in Jones Hall in downtown Houston complement the overall decor, he says, while the appropriate curtains for Galveston's old opera house are Victorian, painted in the old fashion.
However, fashions change, he says, and the trend seems to be back to more decorative curtains with scallops and coutours.
Last year, Williams designed curtains for a Waco farm that auctions expensive Arabian horses. Installed in a special hall, the curtains serve a stage 180 feet long and 30 feet deep. They can be raised at 28 different places so that attention can focus on individual horses.
For a production of "The Nutcracker" by the Lone Star Ballet in Amarillo, he designed a three-dimensional tree that goes from 6 feet tall to 30 feet tall.
Williams, 53, has had a varied career. After Theater, Inc., went out of business 20 years ago, he worked with a costume rental agency that branched out into the design of uniforms and children's clothes.
Through the Houston Scenic Studio, Williams hopes to find new avenues of creativity, just as he did when he was 14 and started working in a community theater in his native Pennsylvania.
Someday, he says, he hopes to have his own theater.

OLD FAITHFUL.

The IRI is a reliability because it is self-contained and self controlled. The Electronic Drain with a solid state electronic timer drive is entirely independent of the air compressor and governor. And the timer drive is safely mounted in the cab. (Disable can't touch it!)

Have's Electronic Drain maximum reliability. Have's innovative design maximizes efficiency. Have's Air Dryer has unique control line. It can be outside and is more in a "chimney" in the middle. The cooling air flow is directed and through the IRI. Vertical fins help the heat go up and out, especially at slow speed when some after-cooler over-heat, causing a loss of efficiency.

Have's choice the after-cooler method of drying air because it delivers high, consistent efficiency without frequent replacement of desiccants. Have's enhanced it to have efficiency with built-in turbine plates and expansion and cooling chambers. Yes, after a five-step cooling, drying and draining process, air going to the tanks is 92% free of water and solid contaminants, which go out of the Electronic Drain every 7 minutes.

The IRI has a standard pre-wash heater and in-cab LED monitoring lights.

Our old Faithful will keep your brake system young.
