Storms Produce Little
Rain And Small Hail

Frequent lightning, with the sky almost lighted up like daytime in the middle of the night, booming thunder that rattles buildings, but very little moisture, has been the story around Muleshoe for the past several days.

'Severe weather' bulletins have been issued constantly by both radio and television, and wary residents have kept their eyes turned skyward most of the time.

Around 4 p.m. on Thursday afternoon, residents of the Fairview community, southeast of Muleshoe, watched a large funnel come out of the sky about seven miles southeast of Muleshoe between FM746 East and Highway 84, and settle down on the ground as a full grown tornado.

Mrs. Cliff (Lucy) Mardis, told The Journal that her husband, Cliff, had seen the tornado forming and had come in to the house from a field where he was on a tractor.

As the Mardis's watched, a second, smaller funnel slipped out of the sky about one half mile south of 746, and snaked to the ground. They said the second tornado was much smaller than the first.

Other residents of the community, in the meantime, also had spotted the two tornadoes.

Although the larger tornado stayed on the ground for 10-15 minutes, it was in open country and did no damage.

The smaller tornado had a shorter life, and soon dissipated.

The Mardis live seven miles south and two miles east of Muleshoe, and reported the larger tornado was approximately 3-4 miles north of their house.

Residents of the northeastern areas of the county, along with Lazbuddie, Y-L, Clay's Corner and Dodd in Lamb County, all received more moisture, as well as more hail than did the Muleshoe area.

Friday night, just as graduation was beginning at Muleshoe High School, Hockley County and western Lubbock County were both hit with twin tornadoes that destroyed several homes, flattened mobile homes, menaced a wide area, including Reese Air Force Base, but resulted in only three injuries.

Residents of a wide area from Smyer in Hockley County, that also had tornado damage, had a few minutes to seek shelter before the tornadoes hit around 6:30 p.m.

Two of the injuries were residents of a flattened and scattered mobile home, and the third was a pizza deliveryman who left his car when he saw the tornado approaching.

All three were listed in good condition in a Lubbock hospital.

During the life of the tornadoes in Lubbock County, Lubbock television stations showed the tornadoes live on television

Mrs. Harris spends much time covering DeShazo and Dillman Elementary School's activities during the school year.

The U.S. Navy Life At Sea

(Muleshoe Journal Note: The following is the second of a series of "newsletters" from Will Anderson of Farwell. Mike and Judy Pomper of the State Line Tribune at Farwell have graciously given permission to reproduce the stories in The Journals. Joe Dan Briscoe, son of Kenneth and Ruth Briscoe, serves on the same ship.)

(Editor's note: Awhile back, the Tribune asked Navy Lt. Commander Will Anderson, son of Bob and Carrie Anderson of Farwell, to periodically write about his experiences aboard ship.

Currently, he is assigned as a staff materiel officer for Destroyer Squadron 25, homeported in Hawaii. Seven ships normally are assigned to it -- a destroyer, two guided missile destroyers and four frigates.)

BY WILL ANDERSON
On completion of the amphibious operations in the Bering Sea, Task Group 75.1 proceeded south and west past Japan towards the Philippines.

The seas in this part of the world are dicey at their best, and this time of year is particularly miserable. This part of our "Navy adventure" consisted primarily of replenishing our depleted supplies of food and fuel, and staying afloat in heavy seas which also excited a great deal of interest by all hands.

The ability of the U.S. Navy to replenish at sea is one of our strongest advantages. The Soviets have been trying to develop this talent for years. They've had to because they were almost totally reliant on returning to port for refueling, re-arming, and replenishing food stores. Transis time is lost time. A port can be blockaded or mined. Ships in port are especially vulnerable to attack.

Plus, the Russian land mass, for all its size, can be almost completely isolated by pinching a number of "choke points" around the world-narrow gaps between islands, straits, and narrow seas.

The Soviets have tried replenishment at sea in which two ships simply went "dead in the water" lashed beam to beam. Ships are unstable and unpleasant when they're dead in the water, and if any enemy cruiser, submarine, or attack aircraft happens by, the ships lashed side by side will very shortly be just dead (period). They are still trying to develop expertise at our method of replenishment.

The large replenishment ship carries everything -- weapons, fuel, water, oil, frozen food, fresh fruit and vegetables, repair parts, ice cream (if you're lucky), and mail (if you're really lucky). She will steam a steady course/steady speed while the receiving ship approaches from astern to one side or the other.

The trick is to get your ship alongside the replenishment ship at approximately 90 to 140 feet and keep her there for an hour or so. Shot lines are thrown across, the transfer-ar-sea rigging is strung between the two ships. The officer responsible for keeping the ship in this position (the "conning officer") must match the replenishment speed as exactly as he can by minute changes to the shaft RPM, and maintain the critical distancing by course changes of half a degree or so at a time. When you have a combined tonnage of about 70,000 tons steaming side by side at about 13 knots (about 20 miles per hour) there is an enormous potential for collision or accident.

Fuel is transferred through large hoses, normally through a "probe" hook-up. The replenishment ship sends over the probe and hose on a trolley where it is mated with receiver. Fuel is pumped at a very fast rate to minimize the time steaming alongside and up to 100,000 gallons can be transferred in less than an hour (which is faster than any service station in the Twin Cities can do it but replenishment ships do not clean your windshield or check under the hood).

On completion, the rigs are disconnected and hauled back to the replenishment ship. The receiving ship then puts on maximum RPM and as he pulls away, the ship's "breakaway song" will be blared over topside speakers. This varies from ship to ship and I have heard everything from "William Tell Overture" to "Beat It" by Michael Jackson.

Staying afloat in heavy seas is a different sort of adventure, although it is every bit as satisfying everytime you complete it successfully. I myself have never been sunk and I do not plan to change that perfect record any time soon.

When you see heavy seas in the forecast, all hands must make preparations. Anything topside that can be taken below will be taken below -- first to protect it and primarily to move topside weight deeper in the ship to improve stability. Everything that is not already welded to the deck must be tied down -- chairs, office equipment, stores, publications. A galley that is not properly secured for sea can lose or damage every piece of cooking utensil or dish and glass in it.

On this part of the cruise, we were steaming into oncoming seas which is a frightening experience. The bow rises and hangs and trembles as if it is undecided where to go next. Then, it starts to drop into the next oncoming wave and as the ship drives faster and deeper, it sounds like a locomotive thundering down.

The shock of diving into the seas bow-first can be felt throughout the ship. The seams between metal plates scream as if they were in pain. The ship seems to stop and shudder and you always wonder if she'll climb out of this one. The seas are black and they cover the foc'sle up to the gun mount and the foam completely obscures the windows of the bridge and it gets very quiet. Then slowly the bow starts shoving off the tonnage of the sea and begins the long climb to the top of the wave again.

For all the punishment the ship takes in oncoming seas, it is much better than having the seas approaching from the beam -- that is directly off the port or starboard side of the ship. A ship riding "in the tough" (as it is called) is subject to rolls (the movement of a ship from side to side). It is very distressing to look out the port bridge door and see nothing but stars and to look out the starboard bridge door and see nothing but seawater almost close enough to reach out and touch.

Then, in a few seconds, the ship rolls the other direction and the views out the doors are reversed. Every effort must be taken to avoid damage and injuries. It can be like a horror show -- every swinging door a guillotine, every item not tied down an unguided missile. Riding in the trough makes oncoming seas seem like heaven by comparison.

Both USS Elliot and USS Ramsey came with a week and half of steaming through storm after storm with no injuries and no great damage other than the might that the 40 gallon coffee machine broke loose from its securing bolts on the messdecks during chow (hot showers are normally great for morale but it didn't do a lot for the shipmates that night!).

We pulled into Subic Bay and hooked up shore power, which allows the ships to shut down their steam plants for maintenance. After the brows were put over, the word was passed for Liberty, which is undeniably one of the most beautiful words in the English language.

After a cruise like this, it takes a while to adjust walking on dry land. It is after all, immobile, and unless you're in a quake or something, it does not tend to move around between steps. How do people manage to walk on it day after day?

The seas on the way to and from Thailand were pretty dull, but the operations were very interesting and I will discuss that soon.

Local Girls Balloon Travels To Kansas

Following a recent stay in Community Hospital in Lubbock, Kayla Newton three and half year old daughter of Presley and Rena Newton, released a "Get Well Balloon."

With hers and her 11 month old brother, Eric's name attached, the balloon was released around mid May, and traveled approximately 600 miles away landing in Lawrence, Kansas.

Last week Kayla and Eric received the following letter from Harley and Joy Stafford who reside in Houston but were visiting relatives in Lawrence, stating they they had found the balloon fully inflated out in the middle of Clinton Lake.

May 19, 1987

Dear Kayla and Eric,

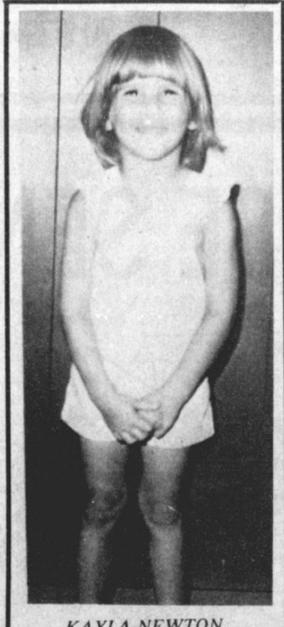

My wife and I are visiting our relatives here in Lawrence. They took us for a boat ride yesterday out on the Clinton Lake, and right out in the middle we found your balloon floating on the water, still fully inflated! We were so surprised when we saw your address, and to think that it had floated in the air all the way from Muleshoe. I located your town on the map, and I estimate the distance to be about 600 miles.

I was employed at the Johnson Space Center where I had lived for 20 years. I took early retirement two years ago, and so we have been traveling all around the United States. Some day we may come through Muleshoe.

We would be delighted to have you write to us. Also, I thought you might want to have the local newspaper print the story about your balloon.

We will be going back to Houston next week.

Sincerely,
Harley and Joy Stafford

Nutrition Recommendations For Women

Women have unique health and nutrition requirements which warrant special attention. An American Dietetic Task Force responded to this demand with 14 nutrition recommendations for women.

"Good nutrition for women of all ages is extremely important, and its need is becoming increasingly evident," says Mary Kinney Sweeten, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. "These recommendations incorporate a healthy woman's special needs and can also help improve how she eats now and in the future."

The Task Force formulated the following recommendations by encompassing and building upon the 1985 Dietary Guidelines for Americans developed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

* Eat a daily variety of foods from all major food groups.

* Maintain healthy body weight.

* Exercise regularly.

* Reduce total fat to no more than one-third of daily calories.

* Include at least one-half of daily calories from carbohydrates.

* Include a variety of fiber-rich foods.

* Eat 3 to 4 daily servings of calcium-rich foods.

* Eat plenty of iron-rich foods.

* Reduce intake of salt and sodium-containing foods.

* Eat foods for necessary nutrients, using vitamin and mineral supplements only under specific circumstances.

* If you drink, limit alcohol intake to 1 to 2 drinks daily.

* Change diet, exercises, and other health promotional behaviors to correspond with an individual's own identified risk factors.

Sweeten adds, "A woman's knowledge of nutrition is extremely important to her growing family and herself, now and in the future. These recommendations will help her meet nutrient needs during every period of her life."

and many residents used video cameras to record the disastrous path of destruction. Reese Air Force Base reported no damage or injuries.

Many residents in the path of the tornadoes reported they heard no "train-like" warning sound from the approaching tornadoes.

Lubbock authorities reported the tornadoes to be on the ground for at least one half hour.

Contrary to the usual southwest to northeast movement, all authorities reported the tornadoes to be moving from the southeast to the north-northwest.

By the time the tornadoes reached Highway 84 between Lubbock and Shallowater, they went back up into the clouds and ceased to be a threat to Lubbock.

The National Weather Service predicted the same type weather for Saturday and Sunday, followed by a brief respite on Tuesday and Wednesday, with the same type weather returning to the South Plains by Thursday.

IN MEMORY OF A Leader

Monuments have been erected to great men in all parts of the world. Some are in recognition of Leadership, others for specific brave acts, and others to those who have shown love and compassion for their fellow men.

The Bible is a monument to God. It reminds us of His great leadership, of His compassion and love, and tells of His great gift to us. But it is even greater than other monuments, for it still leads us.

"...that He might make thee know that man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord."
Attend Church

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love. The man and of His demand for men to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, we should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and support the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live in a child of God.

By: Larry Rasco

H.E. Reeder is the Fireman For the Month of May, 1987. H.E., Barbara and their family live at 1208 West Avenue B in Muleshoe, Texas. H.E. is the owner of Muleshoe Truck and Auto Service Center on Highway 70 near the Muleshoe Airport.

He joined the Fire Department in April of 1962. Since that time, he has held many jobs within the department ranging from fireman to Chief and President, which he holds now.

He has attended several kinds of training schools from Texas A&M University Engineering Extension Service, Canyon Fire Schools, Lubbock Fire Schools, Jaws of Life Schools, plus others. He is active not only as a student but also as an instructor.

In gratitude for the time and training H.E. has devoted to the Muleshoe Fire Department, the people of Muleshoe and Bailey County should be very proud to have H.E. serve them as both a fireman and friend.

The next time you see H.E. shake his hand and tell him you appreciate his service. Speaking for the members of the Fire Department, we are very proud to have H.E. and Barbara as members of the Muleshoe Fire Department family.

Thanks,
Larry Rasco

Scholarship Recipients SPC Announces

Two MULESHOE area May high school graduates have been selected to receive a $2,000 Smallwood Scholarship at South Plains College in Levelland, Texas, for the 1987 fall semester. SPC officials announced this week.

Recipients include Douglas Scott Williams, honors graduate from Muleshoe High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Williams, and Dustin Wayne Jesko, honors graduate of Lazbuddie High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Jesko of Lazbuddie. They are among 54 South Plains and Eastern New Mexico graduating seniors who have been selected to receive South Plains College's most prestigious freshman scholarship award. It is the largest number of incoming college freshman at SPC ever to be named to receive the scholarship award.

"We feel this group of young men and women represent the very best of those college-bound seniors who are graduating from our area high schools this month," said Dr. Marvin L. Baker, president of South Plains College. "They have shown themselves to be scholars and leaders in their respective high schools and we are proud to name them Smallwood Scholars at South Plains College."

Williams plans to major in engineering. He has been named to Who's Who Among American High School students and has received school awards in physical science and creative and technical writing. He was active in the band and National Honor Society.

Jesko plans to major in electronics and drafting. He is a member of the National Honor Society and was an officer of the FFA chapter. He participated in football and track.

The Smallwood Scholarship is a $2,000 award which is dispensed in amounts of $500 per semester for the student's two years at South Plains College. Recipients are selected from a pool of scholarship applications by the SPC Scholars Committee comprised of college faculty and administrators. Recommendations are sent to the college president and the trustees of the Smallwood Estate for approval.

The scholarship was established by the late John L. and Vergie Belle Smallwood, who were active community and church leaders in Levelland. The Smallwoods had no children, but they knew the value of a college education and helped a number of young people attend college.

To be eligible to receive the Smallwood Scholarship, candidates must make application for the award and graduate in the upper 50 percent of their high school class. Selection is based on academic potential, scholastic achievement and leadership potential.

TOUCH OF HISTORY

Vision Of New Life Brought Farm Family To Southern Bailey County

A vision of a new way of life in a new land must have obsessed Thomas A. Gaddy as he left his home in Dickens County and traveled toward Muleshoe with his wife and two daughters, Lyndell and Frances, to sink the first plow into the land south of the sand in extreme southern Bailey County.

It was Christmas Eve, 1922 when they made their way to the land Gaddy had traded for, located on the Figure T Ranch, right out on the bald prairie. The first year, the land had to be grubbed out before it could be plowed. Gaddy completed the grubbing and got about half of it tilled using a team and a Sulky Rod plow - the untilled portion was planted with a knife plow.

First was trouble with range cattle tromping the field and fences had to be built. The chief crops were cotton and corn which thrived in the newly turned soil. Their next problem was with land agents. The agents were there in droves bringing prospective buyers to their farm to see the crops being raised. Gaddy soon began to notice that the cotton bolls were fast disappearing along the edges of the field and that almost half-way down the field the ears were gone from the corn. He discovered that the land agents were pulling them and giving them to the people who take back home and show as an enticement to them to settle there. Gaddy made a deal with some of the agents, selling them an acre along the edge for sampling purposes and then harvested what they hadn't pulled by gathering time.

Gaddy remembers the excursions operated by agents bringing people here from northern states as prospective buyers. One agent he recalls, bought a plot of land, plowed it and brought sacks of Idaho potatoes with him as he came, buried them in the plowed spot and as he showed people the land, he would scratch in the soil and come up with a fine Idaho potato - trick was that he told them they were grown right here in the native Texas soil. His scheme sold many acres of land, Gaddy said. Some of them with small capital didn't make it and their land was resold.

Mrs. Gaddy had her garden spot near one end of the field and among her vegetables was a squash she was saving to enter in the fair. She went out one day and found her prize missing. Later, she learned that a Muleshoe land agent, R.L. Brown, had pulled the squash, entered it in the fairs. The squash measured 36 inches in length, she said. Years later, she teased Brown about taking her squash and they had lots of fun over it through the years, however, Mrs. Gaddy said, "I was furious at the time."

From his first crop of cotton, Gaddy won the prize $375 for the best cotton, given by the Blackwater State Bank. The cotton judging was done by the County Agent making a hat test. The agent came to the fields and tossed his hat 30 times per field and counted the boles on each stalk his hat landed on. The most boles on the thirty stalks won.

Ranchers didn't want their cattle to water with Gaddy's 16 head of milk cows and told him to keep his gate shut. Gaddy told them that there was no need to shut the gate as he had a big black shepherd dog that knew every cow he had and would let them come through the gate-but never let a range cow inside the fence.

The nearest school was Baileyboro. The Gaddy children were suppose to attend school at Circleback, but with Baileyboro nearer, they were allowed to go there. Gaddy hired a man to take his daughter to school each day in a Model T. There were no roads and they drove across the range and through "stop gaps." Gaddy said they kept the old car torn up chasing coyotes in it over the pastures on the way to and from school.

asked for a school district and were told by the Board of Education that there was no use to try to utilize the land south of the sand for anything other than ranching and refused to grant the district. They threatened to go to Austin with the request for a school district and a precinct and commissioner, so the local board gave them 71 sections of school land and $5,000 to start. They erected a small building and named the school "Figure T" after the ranch.

Their first teacher was Lois Parker from Hereford who was described as a black-eyed wildcat who never ceased to lash the cowboys with her tongue and eyes everytime they crossed her path. She lived with the Gaddy family as no housing was provided for her. Gaddy was a trustee and a member of the County Board of Education. A. Mr. Elmore was commissioner of the newly established precinct.

Mail came out of Sudan and was brought to Baileyboro by whoever happened to be passing and went there for their mail. The Gaddy girls would ride horses to Baileyboro for the mail and it would take them over half the day. The men again launched a campaign, this time for a mail route. Before they could have the route, they had to have roads. Commissioner Elmore obtained a grader from precincts north of the sand and they followed the section lines and graded roads.

Next the route had to be mapped out and declared. Gaddy plotted the route from Sudan connect with Baileyboro, Goodland, Watson and along routes to best accommodate the people.

The Gaddy home was 15 miles from two ranch houses. They did most of their shopping in Sudan, but when they came to Muleshoe, they drove over what was called "Cake Shack Road" an ungraded, two-track road and had to cross Black Water draw which often had water in it. The last gate they went through was just to the south edge of Muleshoe.

The second years' crop brought enough money to improve their house and as they hauled cotton to Sudan they would bring back a load of lumber. Their truck had no windshield, no cab, and traveled approximately 12 miles per hour.

As they came home from hauling their last bale of cotton, November 18, 1923 a terrific blizzard struck that howled for days. Snow drifted, covering everything and it was January 7 before they saw the tips of the baregrass.

When the storm hit, 16

Mashed O cowboys were camped a short distance from the Gaddy home near a dipping vat and the dipping operation had just been completed. They slept in bedrolls on the snow-covered ground and ate in a tent used as a cook shack. They had to remain there for the duration of the spell to try to save what cattle they could. They would ride by day moving and milking the cattle.

Gaddy kept the camp in groceries, driving to Sudan for supplies and they in turn furnished beef for his family.

A cake line was strung from the railroad for miles, stretching across the prairie to feed the cattle. Everyone available worked, hauling cake from the railroad to the furthestmost end of the line. At night the cowboys often came to the Gaddy home and sang while the girls played the piano and talked and laughed until midnight most of the time. The tale of the wild, wooly cowboys aren't true, say the Gaddys. The cowboys never heard to speak vile language in their home-they were just good boys - full of life and loving every minute of it. Even though their days on the range were rough, it didn't take the joy out of their happy souls!

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gaddy commented that the pioneer years were the most enjoyable in their life. Mrs. Gaddy said she didn't care for a repeat performance, but it was an adventure and a challenge back then when they, and the country was young.

The couple leased their farm in 1943 and moved to Portales, N.M., where they are presently making their home.

Whats Right With Muleshoe

I can think of a bunch of things right with Muleshoe. In the school system the teachers are wanting us to learn more and our principal is real nice and wants us to pass to Jr. High. The school system lets us get ready for basketball and baseball.

The weather in Muleshoe is good. We don't have hurricanes, earthquakes, smog or too much rain or snow.

Muleshoe is a safe community. Us kids do not have to worry about going outside our house and getting kidnapped or murdered by someone but we still have to be aware.

In Muleshoe the people are friendly. There are not very many so it is not hard to find friends. Like when your walking down the street people wave or say Hi. When you need help they are nice to help you. I love living in Muleshoe.

Whats Right About Muleshoe

Our family heard about Muleshoe when my fathers company built a new power plant in this area. We have lived here five years and we love Muleshoe.

Muleshoe is a quiet, little town, and it has the friendliest people.

Businesses and organizations get involved in projects to make activities such as skating, Easter egg hunts, and kite flying contest. There are also organizations to help the needy. There are far to many businesses and organizations to mention. However, we are grateful to all of them for their participation.

The school has a very good and nice staff. Mr. Cearly for example, just by looking at him you can tell that he loves children, and the teachers are very nice.

I'm sure glad that my family is a part of the Muleshoe community.

What's Right With Muleshoe

Muleshoe is a great town in my opinion. Muleshoe has alot of good qualities to it like our MAC Buck drawing that takes place every month. It gives people a hope of winning cash then spend it here in town.

We have a good Chamber of Commerce that stands behind its town with their different types of programs.

You have a variety of shops to choose from. You have a good selection from each store.

Muleshoe gives you the choice of churches to attend. You also have a good choice of which restaurants you would like to go to.

My sister has told me that our schools are more advanced then the ones she attended.

We have parks for our young people to have alot of fun or if you just want a quiet place to sit and think about life.

I think it is really special that we have a Senior Citizens Housing Development and a Nursing Home to show that we do care for our elderly.

"What's Right With Muleshoe"

I think Muleshoe is a great place to live. Everyone is friendly and helping in Muleshoe. There are nice places and sights to town and see. Such as the Depot and Jane's Ranch House, Galante, Talk Station, Wildlife Refuge, and the Mule-Memorial. After work, school, or on a nice sunny day there are some nice outdoor activities, such as the miniature golf course, Muleshoe city pool, and the park, and the country club.

When visitors come to Muleshoe there is a new motel, The Heritage House Inn. There are nine restaurants plus the Country Club has a little restaurant.

In Muleshoe there are also a few organizations which help people and provide activities in Muleshoe.

I was born and still live in Muleshoe. It's a pretty neat place.

EATING OUT by Rose Hughes

ONE of the fads to avoid these days, if the price isn't right, is charbroiled chicken. BECAUSE health experts are advising Americans to eat less red meat, fish and fowl are very much in vogue. And many restaurants have reacted (to their own benefit) by serving gussied-up chicken dishes at high prices. IT's not unusual these days to see one piece of charbroiled chicken on a luncheon menu, priced at five, six or seven dollars. For one piece of chicken and a vegetable or two!

MEANWHILE, fried chicken is still available at half the price, often half the price for twice the chicken.

THE irony of this is that charbroiled chicken is easier to prepare than fried chicken. And some so-called charbroiled chicken is charbroiled with a special charcoal-taste sauce!

If fried chicken is cooked in vegetable oil, and the diner avoids some of the crispy outside (what a shame!), then it isn't overly fattening or loaded with cholesterol.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK by Edward Thorlund

Financial planners who expected to know by the second quarter of the year in which direction the economy was headed, and how vigorously, are still unsure of the trend.

The GNP showed a hefty growth rate in the first quarter and this has led optimists to say that 1987 is going to be a good year for the economy. They look at the first quarter rate of 4.3 percent with enthusiasm.

They point out that this is the highest quarterly growth rate in two years and is much higher than last year's growth rate. But there is confusing information about inventories.

Some estimates show inventories rising, which would mean a likely slowdown in goods and services production. But other estimates show inventories declining.

So what many thought would be a clear picture of the U.S. economy by this time is a very unclear picture. The consensus view on interest rates and the dollar seems to be that the dollar will fall a bit more and that interest rates may rise another half point, before stabilizing. That isn't enough of a move to make the economy's future direction clear.

KNOW THE WEATHER

Unlike cold fronts, warm systems have an upward direction, or northerly push, as they cross the United States from west to east. Some come in from northern California and up as far as Washington. Those coming in to the north usually cross with a southerly tendency until they reach the Chicago area, and then slant upward and pass over New England. Those coming in over California slant downward toward the Gulf and then moving up the east coast. Others, which never cross into the United States, come out of the Caribbean and move up the east coast. Then there are the lows which cross in on the west coast, moving northeast. They may cross into the country from New Mexico to Oregon, and usually pass out of the country along its northern borders, between eastern Montana and New England. The main route of these lows is the Great Lakes region.
