

Cattlemen sue USDA over dairy buyout

LUBBOCK — Cattlemen have filed suit against the U.S. Agriculture Department to halt the subsidized slaughter of nearly a million dairy cows, saying the influx of beef is seriously depressing cattle markets.

the Texas Panhandle — due to the dairy program — was nearly $4.5 million when cash prices plummeted $3.50 to $4.50 per hundredweight last week.

This means many cattlemen, even if not selling cattle immediately, may have to increase their equity margins with their bank or lender.

Monday on whether to make that junction permanent. The NCA said the department's failure to spread out the slaughter of dairy herds — numbering 1,500,000 head for a price of $1.53 billion — evenly over the life of the 18-month program has resulted in a heavy oversupply and plummeting prices in both the live cattle and futures markets.

surplus problem. Dairy farmers will pay about 25 percent of the subsidy cost through assessments on their milk production.

Fuston elected school board head, Wilson, Moore sworn into office

John Fuston was elected by acclamation as president of the Hereford Schools board of trustees Tuesday night following the installation of two new board members, Shirley Wilson and Kathy Moore, elected Saturday.

Patterson, Wilson and Bill Townsend were named to a Career Ladder Committee to study the issue. Superintendent Harrell Holder noted that the media specialists have been given "excellent" evaluations by their principals.

Doctor says family life here much better than in big city

By CINDY SMITH

Dr. Dhiraj Patel, his wife Indu, and their two sons, Preetesh and Satyen, actually moved to Hereford "because the family life out here seems much better than big city," says Patel.

Families seem to stay with patients

"I stress this very much. I would like to see all the family members stay with the patients all the time," he admitted. He explained that often the city lifestyle makes it very difficult.

Allen apprehensions on rise

DALLAS (AP) — The United States must find ways to curtail a record number of illegal aliens entering the country and protect jobs for the unemployed, an Immigration and Naturalization Service official said.

Acting INS southern region director David Vandersall, basing his projection on field reports compiled for the first half of fiscal year 1986, said more than 337,000 illegal aliens were apprehended over a six-month period.

The figure released Tuesday for the 13-state area, from New Mexico to Florida and along the Eastern seaboard to North Carolina, represents a 42 percent increase over the same period during fiscal year 1985, he said.

"Illegal aliens don't complain about lower wages, and he can be taken advantage of more than the U.S. citizen," Vandersall said. "It's not a good situation we have. The only way to control our borders is to eliminate the illegal alien's motivation to come to this country."

Vandersall attributed the increasing influx to economic problems in Mexico and Central America.

Congressmen urge better relations

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — United States relations with Mexico must be made a top foreign policy priority if the border's economy is to be helped, a U.S. representative told the International Trade Commission.

"We tend to conduct trade and diplomatic relations with Mexico on a crisis basis, and each U.S. agency seems to have its own independent Mexico policy," U.S. Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-Texas, said Tuesday.

Coleman and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, were among several witnesses testifying before the commission, which scheduled a hearing on border trade in San Diego, Calif., Thursday.

Bentsen said he opposes a proposal by the Reagan Administration to cut down on the number of U.S. Customs Service employees. "Customs produces more revenue than it spends," he said. "They collect $17 for every dollar appropriated to them."

A cutdown on Customs personnel at border points would slow down traffic at ports of entry and discourage tourism and commerce between the two countries, Bentsen said.

Trade between the United States and Mexico has increased in the three years since the peso devaluation in 1982 but the prospect of continued growth is not good, Bentsen said.

Voters make Eastwood's day

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, Calif. (AP) — Clint Eastwood, hero of detective films and spaghetti westerns, proved to be as big a draw at the polling place as the box office as voters turned out in record numbers to make him mayor.

Smiling broadly, Eastwood said the triumph "ranks solidly" with his successes as a director and star. "It's a hit movie at the moment," he said.

"It's surprising and yet it's not surprising," the star of 40 movies and one election said in his victory speech Tuesday night. "I knew there was a lot of dissatisfaction."

"I think the great turnout of the voters and the wide margin by which we won are very important."

According to complete but unofficial results, Eastwood had 2,166 votes, or 72.2 percent, to 799 votes, or 26.6 percent, for two-time incumbent-Charlotte Townsend. Two other candidates had a total of 37 votes, or 1.2 percent.

Business was brisk at all four polling places in the 1-square-mile village, with 72.5 percent of the 4,142 registered voters turning out. City clerk Jeanne Brehner said that in five years in office, turnout hasn't topped 30 percent.

"It was a fantastic, enthusiastic turnout," said official poll watcher Louis LaBarbera. "A lot of young people voted and a lot of the retired people. Some had trouble getting here, in wheelchairs and all, but they came."

Challenger debris to be displayed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Members of the National Transportation Safety Board were set to give the first public viewing of the space shuttle Challenger wreckage recovered from the ocean and laid out in two hangars.

NTSB expert Terry Armentrout, who is aiding NASA in an investigation of the Challenger accident, was to brief reporters today on the progress of attempts to assemble and study the winged spacecraft's wreckage.

Reporters were then to be allowed to walk through the hangars for a look at the space shuttle parts that have been laid out on a grid.

Between 12 percent and 14 percent of Challenger's wreckage has been recovered, J.R. Thompson, vice chairman of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration investigation task force, said in a briefing Tuesday.

The recovered debris includes parts of the crew cabin, the wings, external fuel tank and chunks of the solid rocket booster hulls.

A search of the ocean floor for more debris will continue through April, Thompson said. Nine ships and three small submarines are taking part.

Officials hope to recover key parts of the right solid rocket booster. Thompson said a faulty joint in that booster definitely caused the Jan. 28 explosion that destroyed Challenger and killed its crew of seven.

Challenger blew up just 73 seconds after being launched from the Kennedy Space Center. Debris was scattered over a wide area of the Atlantic Ocean just offshore from the space center.

students and assassinate certain black leaders.

The government knew the names of some of the targeted black leaders but was not prepared to disclose them, Nel said.

Nel said South African intelligence agencies had known for some time that Libyan leader Col. Moammar Kadhafi was "trying to export his madness to South Africa."

Meanwhile in the black homeland of Bophuthatswana, police and soldiers broke up crowds of black youths with tear gas and gunfire after banning a mass funeral for 11 people who were shot and killed by security forces two weeks ago.

Residents of the Winterveld squatter area said at least 100 youths were rounded up by police early today at an all-night vigil at the homes of one of the victims.

Reporters from CBS News said they saw policemen whipping about 40 youths in the courtyard of a police station in a neighboring township. The journalists said officers ordered youths to hold their chins high, then whipped them across the mouth five or six times each.

Associated Press reporter James Smith said policemen in three armored personnel carriers pulled up while he was trying to talk to a group of youths and chased the teenagers into a cluster of houses, firing at least three shots in the process.

There were no official reports on whether anyone was injured in that incident or other clashes seen by foreign reporters during the morning in the squatter settlement of at least a half-million.

The planned mass funeral was canceled after authorities released only one of the eight bodies scheduled to be buried.

also the weather is similar to India," said Patel.

Also brought from their homeland is the Patel's religion, Hinduism. "But we also have different religions in India. We have Baptists, the majority is of Hindus, but there are also Christians," said Patel.

"Our basic beliefs are God is everywhere, he has created everything, living or dead. That is the reason we pray as a family every morning and evening," said Patel.

"My prayers include asking 'God help me to live my day to day life in such a way where I don't hurt anybody's feelings, help myself in healing, major operations- critical operations, the elderly that you help me to not lose any patients. I appreciate You Good Lord, that has not happened, yet,'" smiled Patel.

Patel prays for the elderly because he has a soft place in his heart for them. He formerly worked in a nursing home with elderly patients and said he became more particular in his pronunciation to make sure they could understand.

"I have no problem in making even 95-year-old patients in understanding. I explain their disease and the operating procedure in real detail and they are understanding it very well. The outcome is great," said the doctor. He added that it was also important to him to be able to explain to the family and include post-operative treatment too.

"Once you explain to the family they are very much willing to work with the patient and I encourage this," said Dr. Patel.

He explained that people from India are very pro-family, this includes the first generation from which they came.

As a family they pray together, pray together, and help each other. "We try to stay together and believe in family bonding, not necessarily between husband, wife and children, but also in parents and grandparents," said Patel.

Both Dirajh and Indu's mothers live with them.

"I believe the parents and the grandparents should stay with their children as it used to be," Patel says. "All of our brothers and sisters live here in the states. So our parents visit all of us for a month or two months at a time."

"My wife and I think they should stay all of the time with us," he grinned. "I can go one step further, that I wish I don't have brothers and sisters, so I don't have to share."

Indu said her husband has two brothers and three sisters and she has two brothers and a sister. "So that's a big family to share," she laughed.

Being Hindus, religion is a vital link handed down through their family, but this family is more modern in its beliefs than past generations, but they still have customs that will never pass.

"Even in India educated and all people (the majority) eat meat," said Patel. He and his family enjoy eating out and eat all kinds of foods.

Patel particularly believes in eating meat because of essential amino acids and protein found in it. "But I believe in eating vegetables also a few times week. Because you've got to eat meat, but not necessarily three times a day due to heart disease and some form of malignancy," he explained.

Patel and his family, and most Indians, reserve a room at home for worshipping. "We have a prayer room at home, most all Indians here do," said Patel. "Some of the bigger cities, like New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, have Hindu temple because they have a lot of Indians there. The majority of them are professionals."

In India women wear saris, long gowns made of sheer material wrapped around a cropped blouse on top. "In India we wear saris at home and everywhere- in fact it is our custom," said Indu.

"But here we wear all type of clothing and we wear saris to our Indian functions such as our Indian Christmas, Indian New Year, and all of our Indian holidays," she said.

"When we go to prayers, gathering in different homes every Saturday or Sunday, we wear our custom dress," Indu said. Indian women don't make saris, but they buy them from sari palaces in big cities. The closest stores are in Dallas, Houston and Oklahoma City.

The family also travels extensively to visit family, attend medical conferences, and to participate in tennis tournaments.

"Even in medical conferences we go together," said Patel. "I try to attend the conferences when they have a vacation break from school."

The doctor and his wife do not leave their boys at home when travelling. One medical conference the boys particularly remember is a trip to Hawaii. When they flew in, the boys got to see Mount Mauna Loa erupting.

"Really, I stress vacationing together to such an extent that if there is any budget problem-that we don't go," said Patel.

The couple emphasizes marriage being a main ingredient in keeping their family together. "All Indians are very non-violent and family oriented because that is how we are raised and we hope that will continue at any cost," said Indu.

"Also the marriage life is very different," added Patel, who has been married to Indu for 17 years.

"To keep a good marriage you always think about your partner; what your partner's need is, what the partner's feelings are, and not to become selfish at all," said Patel.

"We sacrifice for one another in marriage but also sacrifice for the children and both families."

"We have not seen divorce from where we come from and it also used to be the same here. We would like to see the same happen again," admitted Patel.

"What I would like to see would be more silver and golden anniversary cards in the Hallmark stores being sold out," he grinned. "That's the way it should be."

"I don't have in my wildest dreams that I should be separated from my wife other than death," said Patel.

"We try to teach our children to live honest, decent lives. Also to sacrifice for others, classmates or students. If someone needs something or wants something, we teach them to go ahead and give it if possible," said Patel.

"And we don't encourage at all violence- at school, on television or at home. We very much believe in encouraging absolutely no violence."

Patel's wife works out of her home doing the office bookkeeping and general office records.

The family belongs to the Amarillo Town Club and are very active out on the court playing tennis. During the summer, the Patels travel all over the Texas to play in tennis tournaments.

Both the boys are math whizzes. They used to be in Cub Scouts, but because of a serious interest in tennis they now spend their free time taking lessons.

Patel and his wife are also avid tennis players, they enjoy doubles out on the court. Photography, family outings at the lake, and an annual family trip to South Padre Island are their main entertainment in life.

And, a lot of time is devoted to homework in the Patel family.

"We spend significant time on their homework. That is our first priority as parents," explained Patel, who studies the encyclopedia daily with Indu and their sons. "We want them to have a general knowledge about world events," he explained.

The Patels make sure their boys join in when watching the news and especially enjoy watching CNN together. "The boys are slowly increasing their knowledge about the world situation," smiled Patel, "and they are beginning to understand already."

organization, said the buyout "has totally disrupted normal cattle marketing ... It's just falling apart on us."

"The last six months of last year were terrible for cattlemen. The market was just starting to recover, and this has just knocked the feet out from under the market. Our producers are just suddenly losing their pants," he said.

The suit seeks an immediate halt to the marketing of dairy cattle under the program and requests that the department be forced to withdraw its regulations and rewrite them to minimize the impact on beef markets.

Judge Woodward set a hearing for April 22.

The buyout program, part of the 1985 farm law, pays dairy producers a subsidy based on past productivity if they sell their herds for slaughter or export and stay out of milk production for at least five years.

The Agriculture Department has accepted bids to send nearly 1 million cows to market, along with 600,000 heifers and calves, over the next 18 months. Nearly two-thirds of the animals will go to market this spring and summer.

"The fact that dairy producers have the leeway to market the subsidized cattle at their discretion (within three time periods) has the entire beef industry second guessing when the heaviest culling will occur," Bowles said.

Better breathing programs scheduled April 22-May 27

The American Lung Association of Texas and the Palo Duro Hospital are cosponsoring a Better Breathing Program to run on consecutive Tuesdays, from April 22 through May 27.

The six-week program is planned to help patients with Chronic Obstructive Lung Disease live more comfortably within the constraints of their disease. Families and friends of the patients are invited to attend the free programs also.

All of the meetings will be held in the Activity Center at West Texas State University at 7:00 p.m. John Sappington, Director of Respiratory Care at Palo Duro Hospital who is serving as coordinator for the program has announced the program topics and speakers for each of the six meetings. Dr. Robert Gross of Amarillo will be the speaker for the first meeting on April 22. He will explain the "Structure and Function of the Lungs." On April 29, Gary Rose, M.D. of Amarillo will address the topic of "Chronic Lung Disease—What Is It?" The importance of proper dietary habits will be covered by Mrs. Sarah Cameron, Inservice Director, Palo Duro Hospital on May 6. The West Texas State Physical Education Department will be represented by Mrs. Mary Hill on May 13, when "Exercise and the C.O.P.D. Patient," will be presented. Mr. Myron Dees also from WTSU will help the group explore "Sexual Concerns of the C.O.P.D. Patient" on May 20. The last meeting on May 27 will provide information about "Treatment and Medications," by Mr. Ted Raines, Registered Pharmacist.

Time will be allowed for a question and answer session after each presentation.

For additional information concerning the Better Breathing Program contact Sappington at 655-7751 or the American Lung Association of Texas at 1-800-252-LUNG.

Keith Anderson pitches three-hitter

Herd scores 7-2 victory over Coronado

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Keith Anderson pitched a three-hitter and did not walk any opposing batters Tuesday to help lead the Hereford Whiteface varsity baseball team to a 7-2 victory over Lubbock Coronado.

The win on their home field gives the Whitefaces a 3-3 District 3-5A record and a 10-6-1 overall record. Hereford plays at home on Friday at 4:30 p.m. against Lubbock Monterey, and has an open date on Saturday.

Anderson faced 25 batters in his seven innings of pitching. He faced the minimum three batters in the second, third, fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

The only hits Lubbock Coronado could get off Anderson were two singles in the first inning and a triple in the third inning. The triple came after the only Hereford error of the game was committed, and the Coronado player who hit the triple later scored on an RBI groundout for the only runs of the game for Coronado.

After a scoreless first inning, Hereford gained a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Curtis Cotten singled, stole second, and scored on Anderson's RBI single.

Hereford increased its lead to 4-0 in the third inning. Rodney Torres singled, and then Robby Collier hit an infield single.

Torres and Collier advanced to third and second, respectively, on a wild pitch, and Philip Webster walked to load the bases. Torres scored on a wild pitch, and Cotten hit an RBI single.

The Whitefaces then attempted a double steal, but Cotten was caught in a rundown between first and second base. Webster scored while Coronado was unsuccessful at tagging out Cotten, giving Hereford its 4-0 lead.

Webster crossed the plate for a run again in the fifth inning when he tripled and scored on a wild pitch.

The Whitefaces scored their other two runs in the sixth inning. Torres began the inning with a single into left centerfield, and Stefan Hacker hit an infield single.

After a forceout left HHS runners at first and third, another double steal was attempted. Torres scored from third base, and Collier went all the way from first to third on the play.

Webster then drove home Collier with a single, giving Hereford its final margin of 7-2.

Anderson, who struck out two batters in the game, got the first two Coronado batters in the seventh inning to ground out.

The third out of the inning and the game-ending out came in a most interesting way. Just before Anderson was to make a pitch, Hereford Coach Don Long signaled to second baseman Rex Baxter to move toward first base.

Baxter took three or four steps toward first base. Anderson made his next pitch. The ball was lined in the air about halfway between first and second base.

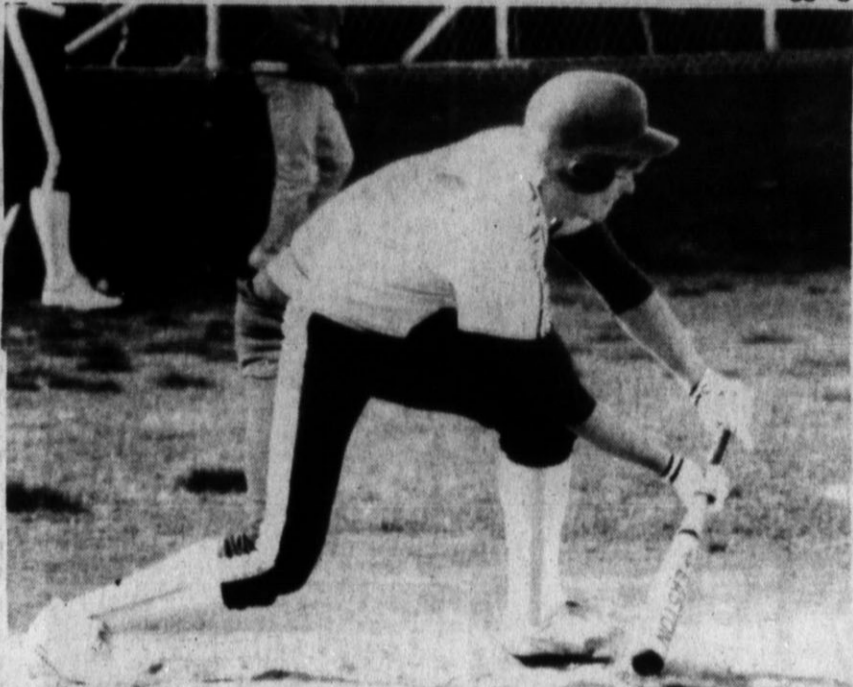

Baxter leaped and caught the ball for the out. Coach Long declared after the game that such a play was "one in a million."

"Many times when I have Torres (Hereford shortstop) move one way, the ball is hit through the hole," Long stated.

Hereford had 12 hits in the game, one triple and 11 singles.

Torres had three singles, and Webster, who hit the triple, Hacker and Cotten each had two hits.

Kids Inc. baseball registration set Saturday

Registration for the Kids Inc. baseball and softball leagues is scheduled for Saturday.

The all-day registration is planned at the Hereford Community Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Youth and teenagers who want to register for the leagues are asked to bring a parent with them when registering. Kids Inc. officers note that parent authorization is required.

League practice will start on April 20, and the league seasons will begin on May 5.

For more information on the league registration, contact Robert Ray at 364-3106 (home) or 364-0614 (work).

Edging Off Second Base

Rex Baxter of the Hereford Whitefaces edges off second base while concentrating on home plate where his teammate Robby Collier is at bat. The action came in the fourth inning after Baxter had singled. Baxter, a second baseman on defense, fielded many ground balls without an error to back up the three-hit pitching of Keith Anderson in the Herd's 7-2 victory over Lubbock Coronado Tuesday in Hereford. FAMILY FEUD
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — It was a family feud when Indiana played Michigan's Wolverines in football here last fall.

Bill Mallory is the head coach at Indiana and his sons, Mike and Doug, were on the Michigan squad. Mike, a linebacker, was a co-captain of the Wolverines.

Although Coach Mallory said, "I didn't really think it was a big deal," Michigan apparently felt otherwise. The Wolverines beat the Hoosiers, 42-15.

STEWART'S RECORD

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP)—Payne Stewart was 19th on the PGA money-winnings list in 1985 but he was No. 1 in all-around performance.

The PGA has been keeping a record of the way the golfers finish in the top nine departments of play since 1980, and Stewart posted a new record last year with 154 points.

The categories range from driving distance, where he was 23rd, to eagles where he finished sixth, the highest rating for Stewart in any department. But he was never worse than 26th in any area and his overall performance chart was the best among the tour performers.

Stephen Starring of the New England Patriots set a Super Bowl record he may not have wanted, returning seven kickoffs in the 1986 loss, 46-10, to the Chicago Bears.

In losing, 46-10, to the Chicago Bears in the 1986 Super Bowl, the New England Patriots made only one first down by rushing, a record for the game.

Expert swims along for best view of subjects

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — When Kent Vliet works on his doctorate, he speaks softly and carries a big stick.

Vliet is studying alligator behavior — up close — and the alligators don't always appreciate his interest, particularly when they're mating or just waking up.

"The first time was bad. Gators are really touchy in the morning," Vliet said. "When he entered the water with 150 alligators the first time, 'a gator was striking for me and another was firing right at me.'"

Vliet has spent six years studying both wild and captive alligators since beginning his doctorate work at the University of Florida. He pioneered the technique of swimming with them to view their behavior at their level.

Vliet's eye-to-eye encounters with alligators as they participate in the courting and mating behavior will be featured Wednesday, April 16, on most public television stations in the "National Geographic Special: The Realm of the Alligator."

The specials, which have been on four times in the 1985-86 TV season, are co-productions of the National Geographic Society and public TV station WQED in Pittsburgh.

British biologist John Palling, who owns a wildlife film company in Gainesville, is producer of "Realm of the Alligator," which was filmed in the 700-square-mile Okefenokee Swamp on the Georgia-Florida border and the St. Augustine Alligator Farm.

Although he has captured more than 600 adult animals and spent 45 hours swimming with alligators, Vliet has been bitten only four times.

"None of them was serious. They happened when I was doing show tricks," he said. "I've had only a few close calls while swimming."

Before he began his work, Vliet captured each of the alligators at the farm, determined their sex and then tagged them.

"This is the only project in crocodilian behavior in which each animal has been marked," said Vliet, who did his undergraduate work on reptiles at the University of Oklahoma.

Although Vliet has been studying alligators for five years, he continues to be amazed by the reptiles, which he said are the closest living link to the dinosaurs.

"One of the things that continues to strike me is their incredible range of habitats and their ability to eat an incredible range of things," he said. "They have real small brains and are not intelligent in the ways we are sharper than people are aware."

The alligators he works with now recognize him. His research also has shown that they are aware of their environment and potential food sources.

Redford opposes four lane highway

SUNDANCE, Utah (AP) — Actor Robert Redford says he opposes lengthening a four-lane highway through Provo Canyon even though it would improve access to his ski resort.

"For me the canyon is symbolic of many things, and it's something that I want to preserve," said Redford, who moved to Utah 22 years ago and owns Sundance Resort.

Actor afraid of terrorists

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Actor Rod Steiger said he was afraid terrorists might harm him after a photographer took his picture in a street here, according to a published report.

Steiger, who is in Israel to do a film about the exploits of a crack Israeli security agency, told the photographer "don't publish the picture. The terrorists will get at me," the daily Hadashot reported Monday.

The Oscar-winning film star is playing in a Canadian-Israeli co-production called "Gideon's Sword," which recounts some of the recent exploits of Israel's counter-espionage organization, the Mossad, in the war against terrorism.

Ann Landers

Concerning homosexual donors

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If a person suspects he may have been exposed to the AIDS virus, does he have the right to join the Living Bank?

I am a middle-aged male, homosexual (selective and discreet) who wants to donate as much of my body as might be of use.

Now with the AIDS crisis, I wonder if any part of my body (I am thinking specifically of my eyes) might possibly infect someone after my death. Also if my body is rejected because tests showed I had been exposed to AIDS, would my family be told? (I have never been able to admit the truth about my lifestyle to any relative).

Please don't suggest I check with my doctor. He believes the current tests are too inaccurate to predict whether I have the disease or even if I have been exposed to it. He also believes that any homosexual who has had sex with another man in the past five years has probably been exposed to the virus even though he may never come down with symptoms.

Should I resign from the Living Bank?—STILL IN THE CLOSET

DEAR STILL: I asked Anthony S. Fauci, M.D., to respond to your question. Dr. Fauci is Director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md.

He said, "The official guidelines for donating blood (as well as organs) state that a male who has had a homosexual relationship with another male since 1977 should refrain from donating blood. Since the guidelines for donating organs are essentially the same as those for donating blood, your correspondent should not be donating organs and should resign from the Living Bank. "Even if he took the test for antibodies and they were negative and he continued to expose himself to the virus by homosexual activity, there is a chance that he would be infected during his next sexual encounter. All practicing homosexuals should resign from the Living Bank."

DEAR DR. FAUCI: Thanks for an answer that should clear the air for many readers who have been unclear about this issue.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: People have been sharing their pet peeves with you for a long time. It's a great way to let off steam and often it wises up folks who have no idea they are irritating the living daylight out of others.

I have telephoned this certain woman many times and am annoyed beyond belief when her 3-year-old answers the phone and yells, "Who is it?"

I say, "Let me speak to your mother, please." I then hear her mother in the background coaching the child to say, "Who do you want to talk to?" I repeat, "I want to speak to your mother." The child says once more, "Who is this?"

If the mother were to receive an important business call, or worse yet, a call from a hospital reporting an accident in the family, it would be too bad.

I realize parents want to teach their children proper telephone etiquette, but it irritates me to have to identify myself to a 3-year-old. Am I wrong?—BEAUMONT, Tx.

DEAR BEAU: Actually, good manners require that the caller always identify him or herself from the outset. Example: "This is Mary Jones. May I speak to your mother, please?" If the child is too young to get the name and repeat the message to Mother, ring off, try again later and verbalize your frustration.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

POLLY'S POINTERS Wall mirror is baby room must

DEAR POLLY — Install a mirror (it doesn't have to be big) at your shoulder level in baby's room. This is a great help when you're walking a tired or fussy baby and you want to make sure baby's asleep before putting him or her in the crib.

Is your baby a picky eater? My husband discovered that by alternating a spoonful of a liked food with one of a disliked food, our finicky eater (who was not gaining weight well) would finish both foods! — DONNA

DEAR DONNA — Both your Pointers should be helpful to some new, and not-so-new, moms and dads out there. The mirror in the baby's room will also be useful in calming a fussing baby who has learned to look into a mirror.

My daughter frequently allowed herself to be entertained by making faces in the mirror with mom. However, just be sure to keep the mirror out of baby's reach unless it is an unbreakable, child-proof mirror. Your

Little tuition relief in sight next fall

For the sixth straight year, tuitions at many colleges will increase faster than the nation's inflation rate.

The reasons schools offer for the rising costs have grown so familiar you can almost hum along.

Professors' salaries haven't made up ground lost in the inflationary 1970s.

Classroom buildings and dorms are crumbling.

Books and lab supplies cost a bundle.

Federal student aid is shrinking.

Next fall's tuition increases won't be as steep as four or five years ago when inflation was just beginning to cool and colleges were announcing stunning increases of 15 percent or more. But they are hefty.

At Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania, tuition, fees, room and board will rise 11 percent, to $15,650. Harvard's will cost $16,145, up 6.9 percent, Yale will go up 6.8 percent to $16,040.

Syracuse University will go up 7.5 percent; St. Lawrence University in New York state 9.4 percent; Vanderbilt University 9.4 percent; Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla., 9.1 percent; Massachusetts Institute of Technology 6 percent; University of Miami 8.7 percent, Grinnell College in Iowa 8.6 percent.

Many colleges are still deciding next fall's rates. But it appears average increases may come close to last year's 7 percent, about 3 percent above the national inflation rate in 1985. That follows increases averaging 7 percent in 1984-85, 11 percent in both 1983-84 and 1982-83, and 13 percent in 1981-82, increases that exceeded the nation's inflation rate.

Is this justified, as higher education officials insist? Or was U.S. Assistant Secretary of Education Chester E. Finn Jr. right when he recently criticized higher education's "tweedy inefficiencies" like faculty tenure that keep costs perennially high?

There's truth on both sides. A recent analysis by the American Association of University Professors found that average professors' salaries have begun to rebound. Full professors now are paid an average $42,500. But their salaries still buy less than they did in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Many colleges postponed building maintenance in the 1970s, and now students have to pay the bill.

Campus energy costs are dropping, but the savings have been offset by rising insurance rates at some schools, like Mills College in Oakland, Calif.

Spokeswoman Susan Shea said the school was about to increase its tuition by about 9 percent, but a sudden big jump in insurance costs has forced the school to recalculate.

Others point out that tuition typically covers only a fraction of the cost of college. Federal student aid in fiscal 1986 was about $4.8 billion, roughly the same as the previous year, but was worth less due to inflation. The Gramm-Rudman budget balancing law may require deeper cuts, and schools are having to devote more of their resources to provide grants and loans.

Yale spokesman Walter Littell said tuition covered only about half the cost of an education at his school.

But critics say there are less justifiable reasons for the rise of tuitions.

"The trouble is that there are happy custodians of the academic profession that get in the way, like being on tenure," said Harold Howe II, a Harvard lecturer and former U.S. commissioner of education under President Lyndon Johnson.

"In higher education the public is asked to just sit back and take it. I don't think it's reasonable to assume, frankly, that every time a college fixes its roof that the federal taxpayers should provide more student aid," said Finn.

DO YOU WORSHIP "THE UNKNOWN GOD?"

Paul, standing before the people at the Mars Hill forum, addressed them as follows: "Men of Athens, I notice that you are very religious, for as I was out walking I saw many altars, and one of them had this inscription on it -- 'To the Unknown God.' You have been worshipping Him without knowing who He is, and now I wish to tell you about Him. "He made the world and everything in it, and since He is Lord of heaven and earth, He doesn't live in man-made temples; and human hands can't minister to His needs -- for He has no needs! He Himself gives life and breath to everything, and satisfies every need there is. He created all the people of the world from one man, Adam, and scattered the nations across the face of the earth. He decided beforehand which should rise and fall, and when. He determined their boundaries. His purpose in all of this is that they should seek after God, and perhaps feel their way toward Him and find Him -- though He is not far from any one of us. For in Him we live and move and are! As one of your own poets says it, 'We are the sons of God.' "If this is true, we shouldn't think of God as an idol made by men from gold and silver or chipped from stone. God tolerated man's past ignorance about these things, but now He commands everyone to put away idols and worship only Him. For He has set a day for justly judging the world by the man He has appointed, and has pointed Him out by bringing Him back to life again." When they heard Paul speak of the resurrection of a person who had been dead, some laughed, but others said, "We want to hear more about this later." But a few joined him and became believers.
