

UGH! — Cluttered alleys such as this one will be the main target for city residents in their efforts to help clean up the city during the month-long "Trash Round-up Month."

Clean-up campaign launched

A month-long anti-litter campaign, started by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee, kicked off here Thursday, and people are being urged to get involved in the campaign to clean up Hereford.

The campaign, "Trash Round-up Month," began Thursday and will continue through May 15 in conjunction with the state round-up week of April 26 through May 1.

The campaign will include a house-to-house canvass of the city by Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and the Chamber of Commerce where leaflets will be distributed that provide residents with a copy of the city ordinance pertaining to junk cars, littering, trash containers and other items.

The project also includes possible erection of litter fine signs throughout the city and strict enforcement of violations of litter laws. The litter campaign also will be carried into the public school system where students will get involved as well as the adults of the community.

The campaign was first proposed by the Beautification Committee of the Chamber of Commerce after a close look at the city disclosed many areas where littered yards, vacant lots and streets were becoming public "eye sores."

A representative group of the committee met with the city commission at its last meeting on May 5 and discussed the drive with the commissioners. The commission gave its okay and endorsement of the plan and said it would aid in the project in any way it could.

Civic organizations will also be asked to participate in the campaign.

It Rained

Farmers, ranchers find out it 'still knows how'

A moist front moved into the area late Thursday, depositing variable amounts of moisture and ending a six month drought, but area farmers are still screaming for more to help save their crops.

Amounts ranging from 1.05 to .65 were reported throughout the county, with the parched northwest getting the most benefit of the brief thunderstorm visit.

The moisture was a blessing to the dry Panhandle, but dryland farmers fear it came too late to save their wheat crops. Much of the area crops were past the stage where moisture would have helped, but some farmers feel there still might be a chance to salvage some parts of their crops.

On the Bruce Coleman farm in the northwest part of the county, one inch of moisture fell Thursday, coming in late in the evening and early night.

Mrs. Coleman said the rain's effects remain to be seen, but she was afraid "it's too late."

The moisture came in a steady downpour she said, but there were no winds accompanying the front.

Phillip Miller, who also lives in the dryland section of the county, reported the highest amount of moisture at 1.05.

"There was no hail, just a good rain cloud, it started about eight o'clock, there wasn't no wind, and it was just pretty dadgummed steady," he said.

The brief storm also spawned what a local family said they believed to be a small tornado that never touched the ground.

Charlie Odell, his wife and several other people at 706 E. Third, said a tornado went "right over us about 9:55 p. m. Thursday night." He said no one saw it, but everyone heard the noise.

"We didn't have time to look. We would have if we had had time, but it was over in one or two minutes. It didn't touch the ground, very fortunately, but it was altogether too low for comfort," Odell said.

J. E. McCabe, who farms east of Hereford, said he received about half an inch from the Thursday rain, but again, as in the case of most farmers, "it was too late to do the wheat stuff any good."

McCabe was optimistic however, saying "at least it showed us it still knows how to rain around these parts."

Greg King, at Community Grain, said the area there received about half an inch and made people feel better, but failed to do the area any noticeable good.

"It would take a week of steady downpour then a real good one before we could get anything out of the ground," he said. "Things are in pretty bad shape around here."

The county was put under a tornado watch for 45 minutes Thursday, but none were reported.

Beet growers get extra $$

High Plains sugarbeet growers for Holly Sugar Corporation will receive an additional payment of about $630,000 Tuesday for their 1969-70 crop, Bob Ginn, Agricultural Manager for Holly's Hereford factory announced.

This payment will bring the total returns to growers to approximately $7.4 million, which includes Holly payments and the Sugar Act payment.

Ginn said the 1971 crop looks "real good" and that based on current sugar prices and recent market trends, "there is a good possibility that total cash returns to growers for the 1971 crop could exceed $18.50 per ton of beet with improved sugar content."

"The current crop appears to be making excellent growth and if this growth continues, the beet contract agreed upon in December could mean the highest returns in history per ton of beets for Texas-New Mexico growers."

"With acreage restrictions lifted this year, High Plains growers are free to grow as many beets as the Hereford factory can handle," he said.

The factory has the capacity to process 37,000 acres of beets and additional acreage is still needed for this year.

Booster Club hosts athletes' parents Monday

The Hereford Whiteface Booster Club is bringing parents of high school athletes to La Plata Gymnasium Monday night to give them a close look at what their sons go through during the off-season.

The program will consist of a football and a basketball off-season demonstration.

"You can see what your boy is doing when he is not representing Hereford High School in interscholastic league athletics," a letter to parents said. The program will start at 7:30 p.m.

Booster Club members also will be at the affair, which Booster Club president Milton Durham termed a regular club meeting.

The meeting will be one week before the All-Sports Banquet, which will be in the Bull Barn April 26. Gene Mayfield, athletic director and head football coach at West Texas State University, is the key speaker for the banquet.

Mrs. Joe Charest is in charge of ticket sales for the banquet, and Durham said anyone wanting either to buy or to sell banquet tickets can pick them up from Mrs. Charest at Family Medical Clinic.

Seminar Friday on drug problem

An Adult Drug Seminar, sponsored by the Two Hereford Kiwanis Clubs, will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday in the Hereford High School cafeteria.

A five-man panel will answer questions from those attending the seminar. The five men include Tom Burdette and Rex Easterwood, local attorneys; Gene Brink, local minister; Dr. Duffy McBrayer, and either a representative of the sheriff's office or police department.

The Kiwanis Clubs have issued a strong invitation to all the community's parents to attend the seminar. The seminar will be directed at the local drug problem and also will hit on the general drug situation.

The seminar is part of the national drug abuse program being sponsored by Kiwanis clubs across the country.

Shriners announce annual clinic date

Specialists in the field of medicine from throughout the state will be in Hereford May 8 for the 16th annual Oasis Shrine's children's diagnostic clinic at the Community Center.

Dr. A. T. Mims of the Hereford Medical and Surgical Clinic is the medical director for the clinic. Specialists in the fields of speech, hearing, radiology, neurology, pediatrics, cardiology, plastic surgery, orthopedics and dentistry will examine children and recommend treatment.

Youngsters up to 18 years of age from throughout the area will be examined free of charge at the clinic.

Dr. Mims said any child whose parents plan to take them to see a specialist must be pre-registered by the family's doctor.

Any child that has not been pre-registered should do so as soon as possible before the date of the clinic.

The clinic will begin at 9 a.m. May 8. Oasis Shrine members will provide transportation from the center to the Hereford Medical and Surgical Clinic where the patients will be examined.

Hereford's medical, optometric, and dental doctors and their nurses, as well as laboratory and x-ray technicians, will assist in the clinic.

The specialists and the local doctors all are providing the clinic with no charge. Funds for the clinic are raised by the members of the Oasis Shrine through various projects throughout the year.

Jaycees get club charter

The state president of the Jaycees told a crowd of about 85 local and area Jaycees and civic leaders that the Hereford organization in receiving its charter Friday is facing overwhelming responsibilities to itself and its community.

The Hereford Jaycees received their state charter, and officers for the Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes were installed by state officers in ceremonies at the Civic Club Center Friday.

Malcolm Tallmon, state president from Everman, making his second visit to Hereford, told the local Jaycees the challenge and responsibility "you are accepting as charter members is overwhelming."

"The responsibility of developing young leaders is really a tremendous challenge, but by the presence of your city leaders here tonight it is evident that the city fathers and community are behind you," Tallmon said. "They are supporting you, but this faith and trust will not always be available to you unless you earn it each day, each week and each year as Jaycees."

Tallmon said the best relations the local Jaycees will have will be in serving and developing the community, "but you must be out constantly serving and developing."

The state president told the gathering that the Jaycees must be recognized as an active group of young men, then take positive action in trying to solve the problems facing their community.

"But you must never feel you have solved all your problems. Every time you solve one, there will always be another and you will, during the course of your work, hear the word 'action' many, many times."

"The needs of your chapter and community should be equal and side by side. If the things you do are not good for your chapter, then they are not good for your community," he said.

Tallmon said the Jaycees face a tremendous challenge in luring young men to their ranks because of the great work being done by other organizations. He said the challenge of these other organizations is a large hurdle for the Jaycees because these other organizations are "doing a good job."

"But when you think of it, is it any wonder why they are finding followers? Everyone, young or old, is looking for leadership and these other organizations are providing it," he said.

"In my opinion, the reason they are finding so many followers is because they are being heard and seen and some of this is beginning to rub off."

He said he has never seen a Jaycee who wasn't proud enough to stand in public and salute his flag and pledge his allegiance to his country.

"Yet I'm afraid we are standing by while other people spit on our flag and openly denounce our flag."

"These problems are not going to get better until someone goes out and is seen and heard. I am not saying fight force with force, but we must be seen and heard."

Installed as officers for the Jaycee-ettes were Mrs. Larry Jackson, president; Mrs. Harvey Milton, vice president; Mrs. Charles Richards, secretary; Mrs. Jerry Tisdale, treasurer; Mrs. Terry Hill, State Director; and directors Mrs. Robert Hay, Mrs. Larry Knowles, Mrs. Bill McKinney.

TSTA asks board for study okay

By MARSHALL DAY
Staff Writer

Members of the local unit of the Texas State Teachers Association began work this week on a study of a Professional Consultations committee that would "improve the educational system" of the Hereford school district.

A representative group of the county unit of TSTA, comprised of Mike King and Margaret Bell, met with the school board Thursday and was given permission by the school board to continue a study into the area of Professional Consultations on the local level.

In a short but busy session, the school board also:

- heard a report from Supt. Roy Hartman for the possible hiring of another orchestra teacher for the elementary and junior high level,
- discussed the possibilities of an experimental program for 4-year-olds under the migrant program services,
- accepted the resignations of seven teachers, and
- approved the hiring of two teachers.

Mrs. Bell and King, representing the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the TSTA, asked the school board, and were granted, permission to continue a study into Professional Consultation.

King is president of the local TSTA unit and Mrs. Bell is on the district committee of the organization.

"We are trying to bring about Professional Consultation in an effort to try to improve the quality of education in the school system and at the same time give teachers the opportunity to be heard on their grievances and problems," King said.

The Professional Consultations proposal was passed by the Texas Legislature about four years ago on a permissive basis.

"Professional Consultations would ensure the teachers that they would enjoy the good conditions they are enjoying here now. It would also be a drawing card for Hereford because teachers would see by this system having Professional Consultation that it is interested in its teachers," King said.

"This is not a means to arbitrate, but just to give the teachers an opportunity to express their viewpoints," he told the board.

The committee would be composed of six teachers, three administrators and one member of the Hereford Independent School Board. All decisions reached by the school board would be final and the committee would have no voice in that decision.

King said this committee would meet with the teachers and administrators and problems would be heard by this committee. The committee in turn would present this problem to the superintendent who would in turn present it to the school board. If the school board does not agree with the requests of the committee, it can fix any proposal.

Hartman, speaking on behalf of band director Ben Gollehon, told the school board that the increase in the lower level schools in interest in orchestra has prompted a request from Gollehon for an additional orchestra instructor for the coming school year.

Under the present set up, Charles Jones is in charge of all six elementary orchestra classes and the junior high classes. Hartman said if another man was hired, this would be divided up to three elementary and one junior high orchestra classes for each of the two instructors.

The board agreed the local orchestra and band program was one of the best in the state (Turn to TSTA, Page 3)

Amarillo banker takes position at 1st National

Pat Malone, a loan officer with the First National Bank in Amarillo for the past 19 years, will become executive vice president of the First National Bank of Hereford on May 3, president Jim Sears announced Saturday.

Malone, 44, is married and has four children ranging in age from 7 to 18.

"We're looking forward to being in Hereford. The whole family is," Malone said.

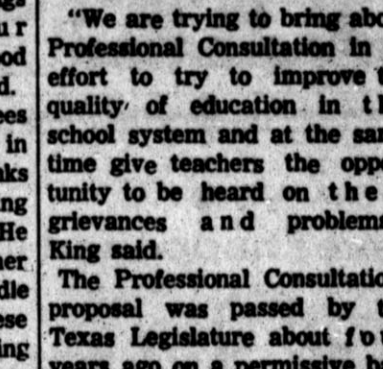

At Hereford, Malone will be responsible for the loan function. He probably will commute to Hereford until after school ends. The family plans to sell its Amarillo house and move to Hereford in early summer.

The Malones are members in the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Amarillo, where he has served as an elder. He is a member of the Lions Club and is serving on the Chamber of Commerce board of directors and is in his second term as chairman of the chamber's agribusiness committee.

The Amarillo Jaycees named Malone "Young Man of the Year" in 1961. He has served on a number of city boards. He was active for eight years as a Scoutmaster. He is a retired lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve; he served in World War II and the Korean Conflict.

Malone was born and reared in Amarillo. After graduating from Amarillo College, he went to West Texas State and then to the University of Texas. He graduated in 1960 from the Hartman said the schools expect an increase of about 75 students in the orchestra courses by next year, but "the drop-out rate will rise if you don't have the correct instructors."

The orchestra started five years ago on an after-school basis before Jones was employed two years ago and the course was moved into the regular curriculum.
Hartman also told the board members of a possible pilot program for migrant 4-year-olds though nothing definite has been decided by the state. He said he talked to an official in Austin recently who said the state was looking at McAllen and Hereford as possible cities for testing the migrant program.
"Things at this point all depend on whether Southwest Educational Development Laboratories will fund this project," he said. "Southwest Lab already has programs for 3, 4 and 5-

So you think your life is private?

How private is your life and activity?

Probably not as private as you think it is.

On the basis of testimony given in Washington recently before the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, it appears that a wealth of personal information about local people has been stored in the data banks of computers in Washington and elsewhere, ready for instantaneous inspection.
"Each time a citizen files a tax return, applies for credit or for life insurance, seeks Government benefits or interviews for a public job, a dossier is opened under his name," according to one witness, Prof. Arthur Miller of the University of Michigan Law school.
Included is such data as age, birthplace, schooling, income, property holdings, political and social affiliations, tax payments, military record, marital status, law violations and a host of other tidbits of information.

On the computers of the Internal Revenue Service, for example, are details of the earnings and expenditures of approximately 7,000 residents of Deaf Smith County.

Although this is supposedly confidential information, it is being made available to state and local governments and may be "leaked" to others, it was testified.

In the files of the Social Security Administration are the records of some 1,700 local residents who are receiving retirement or disability benefits. In addition, the administration has the employment records of nearly everyone in the area who is in the labor force.

Another collector of data is the FBI, which has an estimated 8,100 fingerprints on file of men, women and children living in Deaf Smith County.

Included are prints of persons on public payrolls, of those who have been in military service, of people who have been arrested for felonies and of others who have voluntarily submitted their fingerprints for identification purposes.

The surveys made periodically by the Census Bureau also produce much private information about people but this is only for statistical purposes and is kept confidential.

The purpose of the Senate inquiry is to find a way to control the data banks and prevent the misuse of the information in them.

Horn fly control gives stock break

Contented livestock usually perform well on the range or in the feedlot, but often their contentment is interrupted by horn flies as warm summer weather makes the scene.

"Horn fly control is an important phase of any livestock program," points out Dr. Bill Clymer of Lubbock, area entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "An animal may lose as much as half a pound a day during fly season, and milk production may be reduced as much as 20 percent."

Numerous materials and methods of application are available for controlling horn flies, explains the entomologist. However, one of the most-used methods that has proved effective is the self-treatment dust bag. This method of control eliminates the time and labor required to collect, pen and treat the animals.

Clymer, with the assistance of county agricultural agents, conducted demonstrations on controlling horn flies with dust bags in 42 West Texas counties last year. Insecticides used in the dust bags included coumaphos (Co-Ral), methoxychlor, methoxychlor plus toxaphene (Lintox) and clodrin (Simax). Several other test materials were also evaluated. Where dust bag usage was adequate, all labeled materials gave good horn fly control.

"The key to controlling horn flies with dust bags is to locate the dust bags at sites where the livestock gather, such as watering and feeding areas," explains Clymer.

Other insecticides approved for horn fly control are malathion, toxaphene, dioxathion (Dela), carbaryl (Sevin), ronnel (Korlan), crufomate (Ruelene 2SE) and trichlorfon (Neguvon). Application methods depend on the material used and include spraying, dusting, dipping, backrubbers and treated mineral or salt blocks.

The entomologist urges stockmen to check their herds regularly during the spring and summer months since horn flies reproduce rapidly. And he cautions them to read the manufacturer's recommendations carefully before using a particular product.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor & people of Hereford:

The controversial subject of abortion is of national concern. A Christian nation whose founding fathers guaranteed the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, I am sure never dreamed some of our states would be liberalizing laws to commit murder on one of its citizens. In New York, where this liberalized abortion law is a reality 79,000 babies have been destroyed in last months.

The receding figure does not include those performed illegally, in doctor offices, or clinics, self-inflicted. Abortions in California can be financed by the state, in other areas, they cost from fifty dollars to one thousand. Besides New York, four other states (as of December 1970) have liberalized their laws.

New York is the only state without a residency requirement. Abortion services have sprung up all over the state. One of them, Abortion Counseling, Information and Referral Service has written a letter to practically every doctor in the nation, soliciting business, enclosing a pamphlet titled "A Need Fulfilled."

In Illinois, both the Illinois and the Chicago medical society called the letters of these greedy men unethical, and immoral. The society urged New nationwide "huckstering of abortions."

The solicitations were termed a disgrace to medicine by Ernest Breed, president of the Illinois Medical Society.

In Los Angeles, Anthony P. Cima is opposed to the U.S. governmental birth prevention programs. Retired, and on a limited income, he has been taking out advertisements opposing governmental efforts at birth prevention.

He ran a series of articles in the "Washington Post" which were addressed to president Nixon. He also placed one in the Chicago Tribune when the American Medical Association was conventioning there.

He hammers at three ideas. 1. The mother's rights end where her unborn baby's begin — at conception — 2. It is better to have lived and suffered than not to have lived at all; 3. The Empty America.

This last phrase refers to the fact that in 90 per cent of the United States there are only 23 persons per square mile. Abortion is an unjust destruction of a human life, and morally that is "murder."

Those who like to cause abortions, therefore, try publicly to make their case on the ground that up to such and such a time of pregnancy the fetus is like a piece of flesh, like an appendix or a sore tooth and may be lawfully removed.

At the very first moment of pregnancy means that an independent person is present; at NO time does the fetus appear as ordinary tissue in the mother's body.

"Murderous and ghastly are the words of D. H. P. Dunn, a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons and the Royal College of Gynaecologists, and Obstetricians of London, uses to describe this practice.

It is ironic that at a time when so much is written and spoken about the new age which we allegedly are about to enter — one of "love", of "awareness of others;" of "sensitivity and humaneness;" — the frenzied drive to do away with any legal restraints against abortion continues unabated.

Christ, on His way to the cross said, "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children. For behold, days are coming in which men will say, Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bore, and the breasts that never nursed! Then they will begin to say to the mountains, 'Fall upon us; and to the hills, 'Cover us.' For in the case of green wood they do these things, what is to happen in the case of the dry? Luke Chap. 23 V 29, 30, 31.

There are many organizations today to help women who do not want to keep their babies — the newest, and perhaps most effective, is an emergency pregnancy service for married or single, which helps, free of charge, and with complete secrecy. It is an international organization with national headquarters in Washington D. C. and branch offices set up in each state.

Let your senators and representatives know how you feel about this bill. We must stop the slaughter of these little in-nocents. Bill 193 will be introduced on the floor of the House of Representatives Monday at 2:30 by Sam Coats. It advocates abortion on demand.

Pre-registration set at SA school

Pre-registration for St. Anthony's School kindergarten for the 1971-72 school year will be from 8 to 10 a. m. and after 3:30 p. m., Monday through Friday at the school office.

Sessions will be offered for five, three and two-day weeks and children must be 5 years of age by Oct. 1.

St. Anthony's School kindergarten is organized as an integral part of the elementary school program. Learning activities based on each child's developmental level are drawn from various subject areas in a series of experiences planned to meet the needs and interests of the 5-year-old. These activities include language arts, science, mathematics, social studies, health and physical education, and the fine arts.

Pre-registration for grades one through eight also will be held Monday through Friday at the same times as for the kindergarten.

Going Camping? We've Got What You Want . . . All of these CAMPERS NOW IN STOCK

Chevy recreation trucks. More models. Better features. Longer truck life.

The same reputation for longevity and superior product features that make Chevy pickups, chassis cab and four-wheel drive models the best light-duty work vehicles available make them ideal for travel and recreation, as well.

What's more, Chevy simply gives you more ways to travel. From Series 10 models ideally equipped to receive lightweight shell campers. To Series 30 Longhorn with its 133" wheelbase. Lengthy 81 1/2" box. And beefed up leaf-type rear suspension to accommodate the largest over-cab camper bodies. Even 12 feet in length.

And for the roominess and convenience of a lot of motor homes, you can have an over-cab camper mounted directly to a Chevy chassis cab model.

You get plenty of head and walking room. And a lot more road stability stemming from a more solid integral unit.

Why leave the comforts of home, home?

Once you've picked your model of Chevy your choosing has just begun. Now select your power team from Chevy's wide range of engines and transmissions. The suspension system and rear axle you'll need. And the camping accessories that will contribute to the family fun and comfort.

Put your vacation home on the best foundation.

Chevy frames are as strong as they come. They are ladder-type, formed of heavy-gauge channel side rails with securely riveted alligator-jaw crossmembers. The drop-center design of the frame allows lower cab mounting for easier entry and exit. Even for smaller members of the family.

Leaf-type rear springs available.

Two-stage rear coil springs are standard on most Chevrolets.

However, many camping families prefer leaf-type rear springs.

So we make them available in a two-stage design for Series 10 and 20 models.

Sliding rear window.

To facilitate conversation between people in the cab and people in camper bodies, Chevy now offers an easy operating sliding rear window.

It consists of four sections of clear solid safety sheet glass in an anodized aluminum frame set right in the fat butyl rubber weather stripping that surrounds the rear window.

Of course, it's lockable.

Chevy supplies more horsepower.

Nothing any other pickup offers can top Chevy's 400 V8.

Match it with our burly 3-speed Turbo Hydra-matic transmission and special trailing axle ratios and you've got a recreation truck that'll measure up to the most rigid travel demands.

Front stabilizer bar.

Adding a camper body to a pickup can alter the vehicle's center of gravity as much as 8 inches.

A front stabilizer bar is available and recommended to help compensate for the loaded vehicle's tendency to lean on curves and when cornering.

In the bargain it provides improved handling ease.

Heavy-duty equipment.

A wide selection of heavy-duty suspension components and electrical equipment is available to meet the added requirements of heavy loads and extended traveling.

Like heavy-duty shock absorbers and front and rear springs.

There are wide-base and flotation-type tires available for optimum handling, traction and tire life.

Higher capacity 42-amp and 61-amp Delco-tron generators may be ordered.

For increased electrical storage capacity you can order a big 80-amp-hr. heavy-duty battery.

If you wish, order a heavy-duty radiator for extra engine cooling capacity.

Custom equip your Chevy recreation truck.

Dress-up items for your Chevy camper range all the way from full wheel covers to the luxurious new Cheyenne interior/exterior trim package (see page 6).

CustomCamper/20

Recommended equipment.

Camper bodies can alter the weight distribution characteristics of Chevy pickups to the extent that certain basic minimum equipment (including some extra cost items) is highly recommended.

For a complete list of recommended minimum equipment for camper bodies by Chevrolet truck series ask your dealer for a copy of the 1971 Chevrolet Recreational Vehicle Catalog. For recommended trailering specifications, ask for a copy of the 1971 Trailering Guide.

NOT A JUNK YARD — This yard, visible from a city street, is one of the residential areas resembling commercial junk yards that are targets of the clean-up campaign now in progress.

by MELVIN YOUNG
It's amazing what a little rain will do. And in spite of the fact that it was overcast and drizzling Saturday morning, the amount received up to that time was not really enormous. We've heard many reports, but believe the official in town was less than an inch (.70) and we suspect that most of the county got something near that. A few received more than an inch but not many.

It is encouraging however. Some folks had given up on it ever raining again.

And if it continues raining, it may be a little difficult to get the local Clean-Up Campaign started, but frankly, it will be worth it. As badly as we need to clean-up the alleys and vacant lots around the city, we would just as soon see a good soaking rain.

ning of the annual clean-up campaign, sponsored by the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, and the gals would appreciate your cooperation in beautifying the city. In fact, everyone would.

The First National Bank is getting a new executive vice president, effective May 3. Pat Malone, a loan officer with the First National Bank in Amarillo for the past 19 years will be moving to Hereford to take over duties as executive vice president according to an announcement made Saturday by bank president Jim Sears.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Roberts are riding on "Cloud 9." They now have a granddaughter. She is Traci Michaelle Miller, born April 14, at 11:47, weighing a healthy 9 lb. 3 oz.

our congratulations to the parents, or to the grandparents, or to both. Perhaps we had better stay on safe ground and wish them all well.

One more comment about the rain. This little item was taken from The Texas Outlook, and we thought it very appropriate at this time.

One of the most popular small-town weekly newspaper editors of West Texas was M. S. (Doc) Sellers. He was the owner of the Brady Sentinel for several years and then for a long time published the Rising Star Record.

On those somewhat rare occasions when a heavy down-pour visited his area, he would write a headline, "Rising Star Area Receives Million-Dollar Rain."

The practice caused a temporary to quip, "Doc Sellers reported two 'million-dollar rains' this season and we looked up the statistics and found the entire value of the crops in the Rising Star area was $399,000. What we want to know is, Doc, what did you do with that other $1,110,000?"

It was Benjamin Franklin who said, "Keep your eyes wide open before marriage, half shut afterwards."

Malone is 44 years old, married and has four children ranging in age from 7 to 18. He will probably commute between Hereford and Amarillo until the end of the school year, but will be moving over after that time.

'Underground' film scheduled Tuesday

A 35-minute film, "To Russia With Love," will be shown at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at the First Christian Church Fellowship Hall.

Evangelism production graphically portraying the life for thousands of Christians in communist lands today. Many of the shots were filmed inside Russia and give testimony to the fact that hunger for the Word of God is very real in that land of multiple closed churches. "This film was one of the most difficult projects we have ever undertaken. In our first attempt to put it together we ran into a number of problems," said Rev. L. Joe Bass, director of the missionary organization Underground Evangelism.

living under Communism. The film "To Russia With Love" faithfully records all this.

"The second was highly successful and today we are justifiably proud of the picture. Premiere performances across the nation have resulted in a high degree of interest among viewing audiences and much praise from the critics.

An actual border crossing is also shown in the film which helps portray Underground Evangelism's wide-scale Bible-smuggling ministry.

Author suggests better pay scale for writers

By DONALD M. McNICOLL, Associated Press Writer LONDON (AP) — Veteran British author Sir Alan P. Herbert recalls wryly what a woman reader once wrote to the London Evening Standard.

Now government and local officials are to confer with authors and librarians on the proposed new deal.

A check at the St. Bride's Library, tucked away behind Fleet Street in the heart of London, brought an almost completely different list.

"Writers shouldn't do too well out of their books," she claimed. "They need to be kept hungry to write more. What good book was ever written on a full stomach?"

There's no library equivalent of pop music's "Top Ten" chart, since the librarian simply files the borrower's ticket with the book ticket, without trying to keep track of what is most in demand.

The St. Bride's borrowers currently favor "The Godfather" by Mario Puzo; "The Levitas Man," by Hammond Innes; "Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell; "Lord of the Rings," by J. R. R. Tolkien; "Katharine," by Anya Seton; "Caravan to Vaccares," by Alastair MacLean; "Babi Yar," by Anatol Kusnetsov; "The Crystal Cave," by Mary Stewart; "Pride and Prejudice," by Jane Austen, and "Dr. Zhivago," by Boris Pasternak.

But a check made in Barnet, a northern London suburb with 18 libraries catering to 310,000 residents, showed that modern authors are in less demand than the authors of days long gone.

Of course, the people in Barnet do read modern books, but "they're just a flash in the pan, really, compared with the year-after-year insistent demand for the old favorites," said a leading Barnet librarian who asked not to be named. The list comprises "We Danced All Night" by Barbara Cartland; "The Way to Become a Sensuous Woman" by "J"; "Ladies of Langollen," by Elizabeth Mayor; "The Hunt for the Tear," by Guy Richards; "Civilization," by Kenneth Clark; "Books to Furnish a Room," by Anthony Powell; "A Soldier Erect," by Brian Aldiss; "The Secret Woman," by Victoria Holt; "The Levitas Man," by

Infant daughter born to Michael Miller and wife

An infant daughter, Traci Michaelle, was born this week to Mr. and Mrs. Michael L. Miller, both former residents of this city and graduates of Hereford High School.

Traci was born at 11:47 at Nebbett Hospital in Canyon. She weighed 9 lbs. 3 ozs.

While the ordinary book-buyer would pay the ordinary price as usual, a lending library whether private or public, would have to pay a higher price. The extra money would go to the author.

Still to be worked out is who would pay the extra money, the central government, the local authorities or the borrowers.

Herbert once checked with "my most friendly library" at Hammersmith, West London, and found that his earnings through the library from his two most successful books worked out at 36 cents for a year.

Plans started for July 4th ceremony

Preliminary plans for the annual July Fourth parade and courthouse lawn ceremony were made during a meeting last week of representatives of the July 4th Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and Elks Lodge.

It was discussed at the meeting whether to have the annual event on a day other than the Sunday that July 4 falls on this year, but it was finally decided to stage the annual event on that day, at a later time than in the past.

In past years, the parade and ceremonies began in the morning and carried over into the afternoon, but the committee tentatively set an all-afternoon affair for this year.

Reich said possibly as many as 125 units will be in the parade this year as compared to the 35 that made up the parade last year. He said route details are still pending, but several out-of-town bands and units have been invited to the ceremonies.

An invitation has been extended the 4th Army Band of Fort Sam Houston, and other area bands. Response Reich said has been very favorable.

WAITING FOR TOTAL—Members of the district golf teams crowd around the score board Friday to wait for the final tabulation of the district standings. Monterey won the district title and Hereford finished the season in third place.

Golf team ends up in 3rd place

The Hereford High School Golf team shot the low total on the final match of the season here Friday, but failed to make up the points lost earlier in the season and finished third in the final district standings. The Whitefaces shot a 304 Friday to give them a season total of 934. James Jorde outdistanced his nearest competitor by three strokes to win the local medalist honors. He shot a 71. Monterey shot a 307 to win first place in the district with a 916 total score, followed by Coronado at 924, Hereford at 934, Lubbock High at 941, Monterey "B" at 952, Plainview at 966, Lubbock "B" at 983, Plainview "B" at 986 and Coronado "B" at 1001.

Individuals who shot for the Hereford team were Jorde, Blake Arwine with a 78, John McNeey 75, Dana Rush 80, Brent Combs 85, John Martin 87 and John Jorde 87.

Girls vie soon for cheerleader

Nine sophomores and eight juniors will try out in the high school auditorium April 26 for the six cheerleader spots open to girls in next year's junior and senior class.

The girls must do two yells and can have any amount in a group to do these yells.

The girls are learning to do arm movements, jumps, and splits during a workshop that began Thursday and continues through next Friday.

School honors Rojean Block, Charles Allison

Rojean Block and Charles Allison, both juniors at Hereford High School, were selected as students of the month for April.

Rojean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Block, 200 North Texas, is active in Tri-Hi-Y, Drill Team, Pep Squad, and mixed choir. Rojean also plans to run for cheerleader this year.

Charles, who is the son of Mrs. Daisy Allison, is an active member of key club, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, student council, band, and is now serving as junior class president. Charles plans to run for president of Student Council for next year.

Lori Hopson is new editor of The Whiteface

Lori Hopson, junior student at Hereford High School, has been named editor of the 1971-72 school newspaper, the Whiteface.

Responsibilities which Miss Hopson will have are proof-reading, writing editorials, assigning stories and editing new articles.

Besides serving as the assistant to this year's editor, Mark McBride, Lori is active in the national honor society, and the Future Teachers of America.

Miss Hopson will attend a journalism workshop at Texas Tech July 25-30 to participate in competition in gathering and writing news. At this workshop, a special staff will be selected to publish the regular summer issue of The University Daily, Tech's newspaper.

Miss Hopson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Nathan Hopson.

of $8,000 during the conference. With one Sunday left the church has raised $7,500 for mission work. It supports 31 missionaries and hopes to take on three or four new ones during the conference, Rev. Smith said.

Church hosts missionaries in 4-day conference

A mission conference will begin at Greenwood Baptist Church Wednesday night and continue through Sunday.

Nine missionaries from various fields are expected to come into Hereford for the meeting, according to the Rev. Prentice D. Smith, pastor.

"We know that many will be here, and there could be more," Rev. Smith said. Robert Schmidt, mission director of World Baptist Fellowship in Arlington, Tex. will be the main speaker at next Sunday's final day of the conference.

Some of the missionaries have been involved in their work for as long as eight to 12 years, and some are new and will be in Hereford raising support to go on mission, Rev. Smith said.

The church has invited the public to each of the meetings, which begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be two missionaries each night, one showing a slide of the mission field and one speaking and preaching.

The church will attempt to reach its yearlong mission goal

Sanchez pleads guilty on new DWI complaint

Frederico Sanchez, whose driving while intoxicated charge was dismissed Tuesday in a pre-trial hearing, was filed on again Thursday. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and cost and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

County Judge H. C. Williams put the jail sentence aside for a probation period of one year. The charge was dismissed in court Tuesday by Judge Williams, ruling favorably on a motion by attorney Bruce Miller that the complaint was signed by an officer other than the one who arrested Sanchez.

The complaint was re-filed by County Attorney Andy Shuval Friday, again bearing the signature of another officer other than the one who arrested Sanchez. The judge upheld the complaint and received Sanchez' guilty plea.

Shuval had objected to the first filing, contending that law allows the complaint to be signed by another officer.

"This year over one million servicemen and women will complete their military service in the Armed Forces and return to civilian life. Almost four million Vietnam era veterans have already returned to civilian life. These servicemen and women deserve every opportunity that a grateful nation can provide."

Richard M. Nixon

The President has announced a program to help veterans get jobs.

Now he's asking for your help.

Most veterans returning to civilian life seek jobs. For many; this is a period of uncertainty... perhaps difficulty. Veterans not only deserve your help, but they have something extra to offer—clerical, trade, technical, professional, and supervisory skills learned in the service—plus the use of the GI Bill to learn while they work. Equally important, they have maturity, self discipline and motivation!

The Jobs for Veterans program is designed to widen job and training opportunities for veterans. The Federal Government is mobilized. States, cities and counties have been encouraged to form local Jobs for Veterans Task Forces.

Do your part! Urge your firm to hire and train vets. Work with your local business, labor, government, veterans and civic organizations to help veterans find meaningful jobs.

To hire a veteran—see the local office of the State Employment Service. For information on training programs for veterans, contact the local office of the Veterans Administration.

DON'T FORGET. HIRE THE VET.

Department chairman Mrs. J. E. Euler, Mrs. J. B. Nolan and Mrs. George DeLozier, reported department activities to Summerfield Study Club members following a noon luncheon on Thursday in the home of Mrs. Guy Walser. Mrs. DeLozier, chairman of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs Fine Arts Department, said "Art can exist and flourish in small places as well as large, with or without money, according to our interest and will. "Everyone has a measure of creativity," she said, displaying oil paintings, flower arrangements, embroidered, knitted crocheted items, and wood and metal works done by members. Mrs. Nolan, public affairs chairman, announced the Woman's Worry Seminar coming Wednesday to Amarillo. The event is co-sponsored by the Top of Texas District TFWC and the Texas Panhandle Mental Health Association. The seminar will be conducted by Dr. Gerda P. McCahan, psychologist, from Greenville, South Carolina. It will begin at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 2 p.m. Mrs. Euler, international relations department chairman, read a resolution concerning international relations to be voted on at the May 5-6 state convention in Ft. Worth. Mrs. O. G. Hill Sr. gave the review, "John Gardener's Self-Renewal," saying "A caged mind is a handicap to self-renewal. Societies are renewed by people who believe, care about and stand for something." Mmes. L. F. Shannon, Leroy Edwards and Adkins were guests for the luncheon. Members present were Mmes. R. B. Baker, Lee Curry, Ray Johnson, Earl Lance Sr., R. E. Lance Jr., L. H. Lookingbill Sr., L. C. Roots, Clayton Sanders and O. E. Williamson. Final meeting for the Summerfield Study Club season will be at 12:30 May 6 with Mrs. J. B. Nolan.

KIWANIS SALE — Members of the local Kiwanis Club last week held their annual Mop and Broom Sale with the caravan located at Gibson Discount Center parking lot. Individual members and members of the High School Key Club also went from door-to-door selling their wares.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION — Mr. and Mrs. Al L. Lee, 706 Cherokee, will be honored at a Silver Wedding Anniversary reception today given by their children, Mrs. Ben Old of Amarillo and James Lee, a student at South Plains College at Levelland. The reception, to which all friends are invited, will be from 2-5 p.m. in the Lee's home. The couple were married in 1946 at Nolan in a Methodist Church ceremony and have resided in Hereford since 1956. Mrs. Lee is the former Josephine McKee.

DPS investigates 11 March wrecks

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 11 accidents on rural highways in Deaf Smith County during the month of March, according to Sergeant W. E. Wells, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area. These crashes resulted in no persons killed and six persons injured. The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first three months of 1971 shows a total of 28 accidents resulting in no persons killed and 19 persons injured. The rural traffic accident summary for the 60 counties of the Lubbock Department of Public Safety Region for March, 1971 shows a total of 521 accidents resulting in 39 persons killed and 251 persons injured as compared to March, 1970 with 643 accidents resulting in 39 persons killed and 275 persons injured. The 28 traffic deaths for the month of March, 1971 occurred in the following counties: Palo Pinto, 3; Armstrong and Cottle, 2 each; Archer, Lamb, Lub-

Hereford band heads Saturday for music meet

Hereford High's Whiteface band will journey to Amarillo April 24 for the first annual Greater Southwest Music Festival to be held in the Civic Center. After garnering the Sweepstakes Trophy for the ninth consecutive year in the regional contest, the band is now eligible to compete in the Buccaneer Music Festival in Corpus Christi. Judges for the Southwest Festival are Mark Hinsley, William Revell and Weston Noble, all well known bandmen. Ben Gollehon, band director, said that the Southwest Music Festival is the largest Festival held in the Panhandle. Bronco plans two meetings

Two meetings involving operations of the new Bronco Baseball League will be held this week. Managers, coaches and umpires of the Bronco League will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the Pioneer Natural Gas Warehouse to discuss the operations of the league for the coming year. Mothers of Bronco League players will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Blue Flame Room at Pioneer Natural Gas Company to elect officers. All mothers are to attend this meeting. CARD OF THANKS WE would like to thank our many friends for the beautiful flowers, prayers, cards, food and visits while we were both in the hospital. May God bless each one of you. Florence and Cecil Wilkins.

Witkowski, Zinser on ballot of state wheat producers board

Leo Witkowski and Frank Zinser Jr. of Hereford are up for election to the Texas Wheat Producers Association board of directors in an election set for May 11. Some 14 area wheat producers filed for the nine posts that will be filled in the May 11 election, which will be in connection with a wheat research and promotion referendum in which producers in 34 counties will decide whether to assess themselves not more than five mills per bushel on their production for research and promotion. After a public hearing in Austin, March 5, the Commissioner of Agriculture, John C. White, certified Texas Wheat Producers Association to hold such a referendum and election. If two-thirds of the wheat producers voting in the referendum favor the self-assessment program, the nine-man producers board will have total authority for the collection, use and accounting of all funds and implementation of programs designed to strengthen wheat growers income. It is envisioned that programs would entail new research on drought-resistant wheat varieties for better early grazing and grain production, foreign market development through such organizations as Great Plains Wheat, Inc., which is pushing for better trade policies and more export sales of U. S. wheat, disease and insect studies for more efficient production and other such activities which might strengthen

Each name submitted for inclusion on the producer board ballot was, according to statute regulations, supported by the signatures of ten other producers of wheat in the 34-county area.

CARD OF THANKS Words cannot express the heartfelt thanks for the beautiful flowers, cards, calls, visits and your prayers during my stay in St. Anthony Hospital in Amarillo the past six weeks. Also, I shall always feel most grateful for the wonderful care I received from the nurses and Dr. Chas. Sadler and Dr. Milton. Many, many thanks. May God bless each of you. Mrs. J. B. McMinn.

Clean water bill ready for debate

Representative Bill Clayton announced last week that the enabling legislation for Constitution Amendment 4, The Clean Water Amendment, was passed out of Committee this morning, and will be ready for floor debate probably next week. The enabling legislation makes it very specific that the money from the $100,000,000 bond issue, if passed by the voters on May 18, would be used only for municipal waste water treatment facility construction. It would be a loan from the State for 25 per cent of the total cost of the project, to be repaid with interest. This would provide for an increased level of federal funding from the present 30 percent to 55 percent of the total cost, which is a direct grant. Clayton stated that it is a necessity for our cities to clean up their sewerage discharges. This would not only provide for clean water which could be reused, but would also enhance the environment by protecting our streams and rivers from unnecessary contamination and pollutants from municipalities. Some 78,000 foreigners live and work in Kinshasa, the capital of the Congo.

Paul Ramirez -- 'policemen are human like everyone else'

By MARSHALL DAY
Staff Writer

"Pigs" are human too. And nothing irks a policeman more than to be called a "pig," according to Paul R. Ramirez Jr., a member of the Hereford Police Department the past five years. Ramirez has been called that before. When it happens, he of-tens asks them why they do it. Most of them say they are only joking, that they call a policeman a pig because that's what they hear others calling them. "Police are human. We're not a machine. We enjoy the things we do and we don't like being called 'pigs.' Pigs are the dirtiest things alive.

Policemen are a part of the community. We are not extracted from the rest of the people and the community."

Ramirez, 27, 6-foot-4, 240-pounds, is a native of Hutchinson County. He graduated from Amarillo High School in 1962. He always has loved sports, and was good at it. He attended Texas A&M University on a football scholarship, Oklahoma State on a wrestling scholarship and North Texas State University on a basketball scholarship. He's also good at Karate and boxing and tennis.

He first became interested in police work when he was a small boy living in Hutchinson County. He lived only a couple of blocks from the county sheriff and much of the time he could be found riding patrol with the sheriff, tinkering with the radio.

"This man really got me interested in being in law enforcement. He told me you really had to love that kind of work because you lived from paycheck to paycheck without much compensation," he said.

"And, I guess it was always in the back of my head to be a police officer."

Ramirez, after dropping out of Oklahoma State University, joined the U. S. Marines where he qualified for a berth on the Marine boxing team. For the two years he was in the service, he taught and participated in the boxing program then applied for a transfer so he could finish college.

"I got it and went back to school at Navarro City College in San Diego where I helped coach the intra-city boxing club before coming back to Texas," he said.

After his return to his native state, Ramirez decided he wanted to be a dentist, so he enrolled at a pre-dental school in Amarillo. He went about two months and "got bored stiff," before he made his move to join the ranks of the law enforcers.

He met a friend while attending the dental college, and his friend's dad, who was head of the Department of Corrections of Texas, helped him make up his mind on the field of law enforcement.

"I started in September of 1966 when I went to the Correctional Officer Training school at Huntsville. There I went through special training and after my training, I stayed there about a year when a friend of mine in Borger told me the department there was looking for young recruits," Ramirez recalled.

He applied for a job with the Borger Police Department, and was given a job there. He stayed there about a year before coming to Hereford where he has been since.

Ramirez' love for sports has provided him with some of the most rewarding experiences any man could hope to have. Through sports, he has become friends with Russ Duncan, runner-up to the national championship in collegiate wrestling, Charles McKinley, who plays professional tennis; Jim Nance, who plays professional football; and Jerry West, super-star for the professional Los Angeles Lakers basketball team of the NBA.

Ramirez, while at Oklahoma State, wrestled in the light heavyweight class, but often found himself wrestling men in the heavier brackets. This was where he met Duncan and experienced one of "the happiest days of my life."

"We wrestled to a draw, and he came over later and told me it was one of the best matches he had ever had," Ramirez said.

He came within an inch of winning what he called one of the most memorable matches of his life when he took to the mats against Nance.

"He was one of the strongest men I have ever wrestled. I was ahead of him in points, but I tried to pull a "Fireman's Carriage" on him and was not quite positioned right. He fell over on top of me and knocked me out and won the match," he said.

Nance was undefeated in two years of collegiate wrestling.

"Sports build character," he said. "I guess the only reason I went on to school was because I would be able to participate in sports."

Ramirez and his wife Mary have four children, Jesse, 10, Michael, 8, Anne, 7, and Paul Frank, III, 16 months, and his love of athletics has been carried on to his children. Jesse was a member of the Little Dribblers' Basketball League this year and Ramirez coached a team for older boys.

His idea of sports goes hand in hand with his deep rooted religion. He teaches a Sunday School class at Sacred Heart in Amarillo, making the drive to Amarillo each Sunday he can. When he and his family is unable to make the trip to Amarillo, they attend St. Anthony's Catholic Church here.

But, even in church, his image as a policeman often comes to light. And, because of several widely-publicized instances, some of his public confrontations are not always good.

"One day in my Sunday School class a little girl said she heard her father and another man talking about a certain police officer, which happened to be me, who had beaten a man up so bad he was in the hospital," Ramirez said.

"Well, when you read about things like 'Policeman Beats and Chokes a Man,' and things like this are put before children they get the wrong idea about a police officer. They all tend to look at him like he was bad.

"I consider myself a very religious man. It has helped carry me in my work and it is a shame more youth doesn't ask for spiritual help," he said.

"But, I think in Hereford we are real fortunate with our young kids. We have some real fine kids here."

Though still several hours away from graduating from college, Ramirez still hopes some day to complete his education. He is taking correspondence through the West Texas Extension Service.

"I hope to finish one of these days because that (education) is one of the best weapons an officer has these days. Policemen are now professional and where back a few years ago it was just a job," he said.

Scientific methods in crime detection are fast taking the old system of law enforcement into another era, Ramirez said. He said the best weapon a policeman can have is the training he gets and the personnel he works with.

"We are not 'goons' or 'crimebusters' of the '30s, we are policemen and the new ideas and methods are being used now that we just have to have in order to be a good policeman," he said.

While his work as a policeman has had its moments of danger, it also has had its moments of humor. His first assignment as a loner with the Borger Police Department provided one of those humorous moments.

"I was just off probation (period officers go through to see if they can "cut it" as an officer) and on my first evening shift by myself. I was working the warehouse district and stopped by one of the warehouses to air up my tires," he recalled.

"I drove back by this same warehouse about an hour later and saw one of the windows broken out. I snuck up to the window and there were two boys inside really raking in the tires that were in the warehouse.

Ramirez, in his haste, attempted to radio for help, but failed to realize his car was not running and therefore the radio would not work. With the idea the radio was dead, he went back to the building, started to tap on a window and arrest the boys, but instead, tapped a little too hard and knocked the window out.

He dropped his flashlight. It broke.

He finally arrested the two boys, but not without making another mistake. He handcuffed them on the outside of their shirt sleeves. That makes it easy for them to slip right out of the cuffs.

He stopped a passing highway patrolman and got help from other members of the sheriff's office and police department.

"I must have made every mistake in the book that night. The only reason the burglars didn't get away, I think, was because I was so scared I had them scared," he said. Another time, when investigating another broken window, he rounded a corner and came face to face with the burglar, who immediately fainted.

Ramirez handcuffed him to a near-by grease rack. In the excitement that followed, he lost the keys to the handcuffs.

Ramirez has nothing but praise for the local police department, the city commissioners. He talked about the potential Hereford has in the way of future police enforcement.

"We have a fine chief, a young chief who is always looking to better the department. We have real fine equipment and I think our entire city commission and city manager are the best there is," he said. "I'm just tickled pink over the situation here."

Some 30 years from now, by the year 2000, Ramirez said he hopes violence will no longer be as strong as it is now.

"By the year 2000, if we live that long what with the world situation the way it is now, I hope violence may be a thing of the past. This will not cut down on the number of policemen, but will probably increase the number, simply because of the rapid increase in the population of the world," he said.

"Police," he said, "do not only cope with violence, but with other things such as traffic and everyday life. If a man gets locked out of his car, he calls the police. If a woman runs out of gas, she calls the police.

"Our job is not only to put people in jail that break the law and curtail violence, it is to help. We give our service away."

Opportunities abound at Tech school

Agricultural sciences field hungry for personnel

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of releases telling of the opportunities at Texas Tech in the agricultural sciences and the continuing need in industry and education for students with degrees in the agricultural sciences.)

LUBBOCK — Although many business and professional fields are lying back overstaffed with applications from college graduates, the wide open area of agricultural sciences is hungry for personnel.

The College of Agricultural Sciences encompasses eight departments — Animal Sciences, Agronomy, Range and Wildlife Management, Agriculture Education, Food Technology, Park

Administration, Agricultural Economics and Agricultural Engineering.

"The opportunities for a man going into agribusiness are almost limitless," said Dr. Anson Rabb Bertrand, recently arrived Dean of the College.

"Agriculture at Texas Tech continues to serve the farmer and rancher," he said, "but it does much more than that. It serves the entire agricultural industry starting with the companies that grow the seeds to those that process agricultural goods into food and feed."

"Agriculture is the food base on which all people — including those in the urban area — depend."

Presently there are approximately 1,200 undergraduates and 130 graduates studying agriculture at Texas Tech.

Every year the college makes available scholarships to students entering the field of agriculture. "Last year," said Dr. Bertrand, "our college provided approximately $7,000 in funds for undergraduate students majoring in agriculture."

Two departments in the college which are growing rapidly are Agricultural Engineering and Agronomy.

Agricultural engineers study in six major areas — mathematics, physics, humanities, engineering sciences, agricultural sciences, and agricultural engineering.

A further breakdown includes research, design, development, and sales and service of farm machinery and equipment.

Agricultural engineers use basic engineering principles and a knowledge of agriculture to find economic applications of scientific knowledge in agricultural production and processing.

According to Dr. Willie L. Ulich, chairman of the Agricultural Engineering Department, "Declining farm population means more mechanization and more opportunity ahead. Agricultural engineers with imagination will be needed to adapt new energy sources and material to the refinement of present tillage, planting, cultivation, harvesting and materials handling equipment.

"Agricultural engineering — shaping and surfacing fields, terracing, canal design and pond construction — is a major factor in economic agricultural production," said Dr. Ulich.

Soil and water are also important factors that must be dealt with by the agricultural engineer. Irrigation, drainage, erosion control, land and water management practices, aid in the wise use and preservation of our vital soil and water resources.

Automatic farming, allowing one farmer to manage more efficiently a large farm, will require extensive use of computers, electronics, quality control devices, electrical systems, materials handling equipment, and engineering know-how.

Another area that will require the engineer's help is the processing and handling of food products. This will include the canning, roasting, drying, sterilizing, freezing and packaging of food products, the design of food processing plants, waste disposal facilities, and the automation of plant operations.

"The food processing industries employ large numbers of engineers," said Dr. Ulich. "Opportunities for development of new processes and equipment offer exciting challenges to the agricultural engineer."

Agronomy is another dynamic field which deals with soils and crops and their interrelationships. Training as an agronomist will prepare students to enter into an area where their services will be used to help agriculture provide the food and fiber that will be needed in the growing future.

Agronomy is an applied science. Agronomists take information from the pure sciences — chemistry, botany, biology, mathematics, economics and others — and apply it in plant breeding, plant nutrition, soil fertility, production, and many other related fields.

The Department of Agronomy at Texas Tech has the second largest undergraduate enrollment of the non-land-grant colleges and universities in the nation.

At the present time a graduate instruction program is available at the master of science level in agronomy. A Ph.D. program is being planned for the future.

A research program complements the department's undergraduate and graduate training program and provides new information and new challenges for agriculture's progress.

Research facilities include modern laboratories and growth chambers in the Plant Science Building. To complement these basic research facilities, an agronomy farm located near the campus is available for researching the many problems faced by farmers today.

Many varied opportunities are open to the agronomist. Commercial and industrial concerns utilize agronomic assistance in the production, marketing and utilization of seed, fertilizers and agricultural chemicals.

Farm managers, farm advisors and farm operators have backgrounds in agronomy. The same is true for agricultural loan agents in banks, land appraisers and crop inspectors.

Educational work in the mass media of radio, television and newspaper is carried on by agronomists. County Agricultural Agents are often trained in agronomy. Agronomic researchers are used by state experiment stations, private industry, the Soil Conservation Service and other agencies.

For those who want more specialized training, many fields of work are available. These include plant genetics, soil physics, plant breeding, crop physiology, soil chemistry and others.

Specific opportunities are available in commercial and industrial work, research, education, farm operations, services and consultant work.

For further information regarding career opportunities, persons should contact the College of Agricultural Sciences, Agricultural Building, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Tex. 79409.

Farmers returning to crop insurance

With the many "ifs" present in today's agriculture outlook, more and more Deaf Smith and Oldham County farmers are returning to the stabilizing influence of crop investment insurance to make certain of a guaranteed income.

Arthur Keesley and Ross Smith, field representatives for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation from the district office at Amarillo, say insurance safeguards now are available on cotton, grain sorghum and wheat in the counties to help guarantee a cash return at harvest.

Some 156 crops in Deaf Smith County and 30 crops in Oldham County already are protected by the All-Risk insurance with their owners underwriting $371,035 in Deaf Smith County and $90,006 in Oldham County in guaranteed agriculture income no matter what natural hazard should destroy the crops between planting and harvest.

"FCIC insured farmers are using their insurance not only to protect crop investment dollars, but to strengthen credit, to reduce specialization risks, to aid in long-term financing of expansion programs and to allow maximum use of operating capital.

"All these add up to the sound money management farmers need to cope with the changes and uncertainties in agriculture," Keesley and Smith say.

Texas farmers pledged more than $3,651,000 in crop insurance protection last year to secure farm operating loans. On a national basis this total was more than $60 million.

Complete details about the insurance program, sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture agency, may be obtained at no obligation by contacting Keesley and Smith. They may be reached through the FCIC district office, Room 1165, Hering Plaza, 317 E. Third Avenue, Amarillo, Texas 79101.

Ink can be made for children by adding food coloring to water. It is safe for them and also washes out of clothes, tablecloths and hands.

Of the 36 rare white tigers in captivity, most remain in their native India. England's Bristol Zoo has nine; a female is owned by the Crandon Park Zoo in Miami; and three roam the National Zoological Park in Washington, D. C.

More than 5½ billion frankfurters and approximately 1½ billion servings of kraut will be consumed by Americans during 1971, according to the National Kraut Packers Association.

Plan now, get nice fall mums

Proper planning now can guarantee a strong, sturdy plant later to support flower heads of blooming chrysanthemums this fall, according to Everett Janne, Extension landscape horticulturist at Texas A&M University.

Large clumps of small green plants will soon appear where plants were carried over from last fall, he says.

This is what Janne suggests: Divide these clumps, saving only the best ones for replanting. The entire clump should be removed from the perennial border with a spading fork or shovel and placed in the shade out of the wind. This should be done as you prepare beds for the coming season.

Fertilizer should be incorporated into the soil at a rate of two to three pounds per hundred square feet of bed area. Several inches of coarse sphagnum peat moss or well-decomposed compost should also be added over the entire bed.

Raking and leveling the bed after spading is important to assure removal of all trash and debris. The selected plants from the clumps can be spaced about 15 inches apart. Pinch out the top of each plant selected to encourage branching.

After planting, water the bed thoroughly. A mulch of coarse peat moss, redwood bark or pine bark will provide an attractive, yet effective way to conserve moisture and reduce weed growth.

Each time a new shoot produces about three sets of leaves, pinch out the top set to encourage side breaks from the leaf axils, the specialist advises. This pinching of the tip growth should continue until mid or late July. After then, discontinue pinching so that flower buds may develop properly.

Fertilizing every three to four weeks and watering at regular intervals will produce strong stems and large leaves. The compact, bushy plants will have little tendency to fall over when the flower heads are produced.

Housewife uses her talents to make furniture, lamps

MRS. JERRALD DIXON — Her facility with a saw and gluepot have enabled Mrs. Dixon to improve the family home. At left is a desk and shelves that Mrs. Dixon made, and to the right, she is working on still another project. (AP Photo)

CROWN POINT, Ind. — Mrs. Jerrald Dixon is one housewife whose facility with a saw and glue pot should make her the envy of any man who pretends to be handy around the house.

She literally has almost rebuilt the family home, although she claims to have done it mostly with white glue and modeling clay.

And she devotes a day each week supervising a craft program at the Lake County Convalescent Home.

Mrs. Dixon's husband, who refers to her as a "glamorous workhorse," gives her shop tools as well as negligees for Christmas.

Each Tuesday morning she coaxes creativity back into hands that have become stiff and gnarled with age during a class for about 35 men and women.

"I just love all of them," Mrs. Dixon said of her 35 elderly students. "They're all so eager to learn. We even have one blind man and three people in their 90's."

The oldests make such things as flowered mail holders to hang on the walls of their rooms.

They have also made banks in the shape of animals, flowers fashioned from pop-top rings, tiny bird houses from paper cups, bunnies from bleach bottles and tiny umbrellas of yarn and coat hangers.

All the ideas are Mrs. Dixon's own. She makes elaborate centerpieces, upholsters furniture, sews, gardens extensively, builds furniture from "almost anything," and uses odds and ends to fashion pictures and plaques.

When asked, she will readily admit her home is held together with glue.

She uses it to make ingenious pictures out of drapery material mounted on sections of an old television cabinet. By brushing white glue over the picture to be mounted she effectively creates an "instant antique." The glue is transparent when dry and gives the same effect as clear shellac or varnish.

Mrs. Dixon also makes lavish use of plaster.

To create distinctive lamps for her early American styled home, she set the bases of two formerly modern table lamps in coffee cans filled with plaster. The cans were topped with roses shaped from modeling clay which she coated with glue. Beige homespun shades were added.

On a large coffee table that once belonged to her husband's great-grandmother, Mrs. Dixon arranged and glued bright scraps from magazine pages in a design on the top, then coated the whole thing with five coats of varnish.

Growing tired of what was once an open rectangular-shaped living room she designed and erected a wall to define the dining area. The top half of the wall has book shelves on the living room side. In the dining room, the new wall helps form a cozy corner desk-storage area. Waist-high storage comes from an old console phonograph to which Mrs. Dixon added a solid desk top that goes around the corner ending at a Federal-styled breakfast. Prized amber glassware is in a small cabinet hanging above the desk. The tiny cabinet cost a total of 50 cents — the price of the wire mesh installed to replace the former door.

Old shoes and plaster have also proved to be a happy craft combination. Mrs. Dixon filled one of her husband's army boots with plaster and use it as the basis for an "Old Woman in the Shoe" Christmas centerpiece.

In addition, she has added a sunny sleeping porch to the rear of her home, including all measuring and fitting, insulation and ceiling. Couches in the room were made from a mattress "I cut in two and covered."

Currency in the Congo is named the zaire, named from the reply tribesmen reputedly gave early explorers who asked what the Congo River was called. The word means river.

Texas ranked 11th among the states in tornadoes per square mile during the period 1931-1967. It recorded 3.4 tornadoes yearly per 10,000 square miles.

VISITOR GREETES HOSTESSES—Mrs. John Tower, in Hereford Wednesday for a reception at the Country Club greets Mrs. Ed Reinauer Jr., left foreground. Others shown, are Mrs.

Mrs. John Tower visits Hereford amidst flurry of wind and dust

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

Wind and dust call for no apologies in West Texas, Mrs. John Tower assured area residents who greeted her at a coffee in Hereford Country Club Wednesday afternoon, a stop on a tour of the Panhandle made last week by the wife of the U. S. Senator.

"Everywhere I've been up here, people have been apologetic about the wind, but they needn't. They forget that my home is in West Texas, too, and the dust blows in Wichita Falls," she smiled as she spoke informally after shaking hands with several dozen persons, men as well as women.

The senator's wife took note that the state-wide drought is the reason for an unusually dusty spring, remarked on its serious aspects and then quipped, "I'm going to ask my husband to introduce legislation right away to get some rain."

Mrs. Tower said her family still considers Texas their home, although they spend much of the time now in the nation's capital and "I'm glad for the experience of living in Washington, both for ourselves and our children; it's exciting to be right in the middle of history being made."

But they have a special feeling for their home state, she continued.

"The atmosphere here is better." Then she joined in a general laugh as her hearers mentioned the sand in Wednesday's atmosphere.

"We want you all to know — and I'm making this tour to say it — that John Tower is up there as senator for Texas, Democrats as well as Republicans," his attractive blonde wife finished.

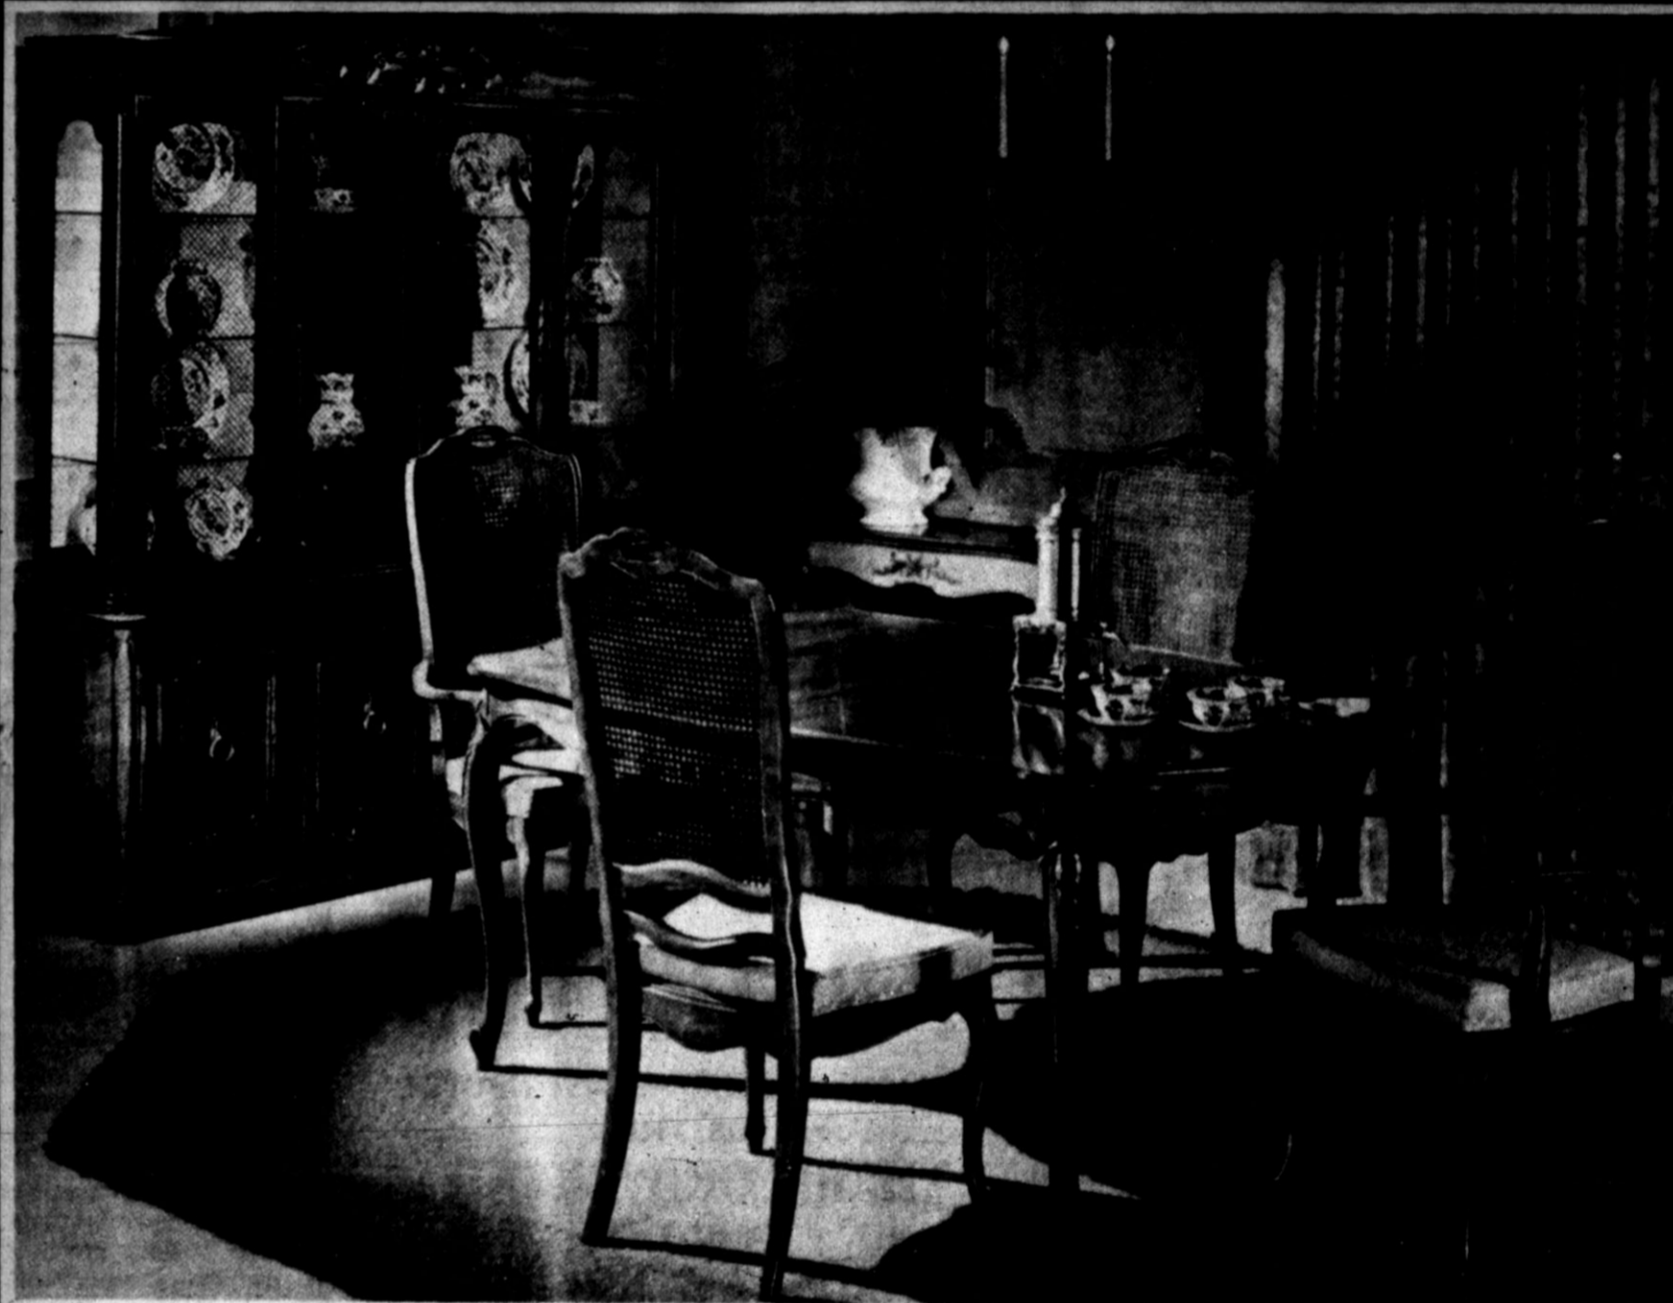

Mrs. Tower spent from Tuesday to Friday in the Panhandle area, left Hereford for an evening reception in Amarillo and went on to visit cities in the North Panhandle before flying to Houston Friday afternoon to meet her husband.

Mrs. Keith Taylor of Amarillo was acting as guide for her party, Mrs. Tower was accompanied by Mrs. Malcolm Milburn of Austin, vice chairman of the Texas Republica party; Mrs. Marvin Selig of Seguin, vice president of Texas Federation of Republican Women, and Susan McCormick, staff assistant in Tower's Austin office.

Elegance that flowered in France translated now in that Thomasville look. The charm of Louisville XV Style . . . the craftsmanship of Thomasville . . . in every detail of PLACE VENDÔME.

Named after Paris' most elegant square, Place Vendôme reflects the influence of 18th Century design in the reign of Louis Fifteenth. The Rococo style was then at its peak, full of movement and elegance. Straight lines were replaced by a graceful Rococo curves. Carved masterpieces of cabinet-work were created for the Court at Versailles. New styles in upholstered furniture were introduced, covered in rich fabrics.

AFTER HOURS RETURN — Bobbi Yeager, fourth grader at Northwest Elementary School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Yeager, sometimes uses the after-hours book depository outside the library for the many books she reads, as many as three each week.

ADULT STUDENTS TOO — Mrs. Cameron Gault uses the library twice each week while she studies for a course she is taking at Amarillo College to obtain a degree in dental hygiene. Charlene Wright, in the background, is a freshman at Stanton Junior High and first year worker at the library.

THE RIGHT TO READ is the theme for 1971's National Library Week, April 18-24, which is being noted in Deaf Smith County Library as well as in school and public libraries in all parts of the nation.

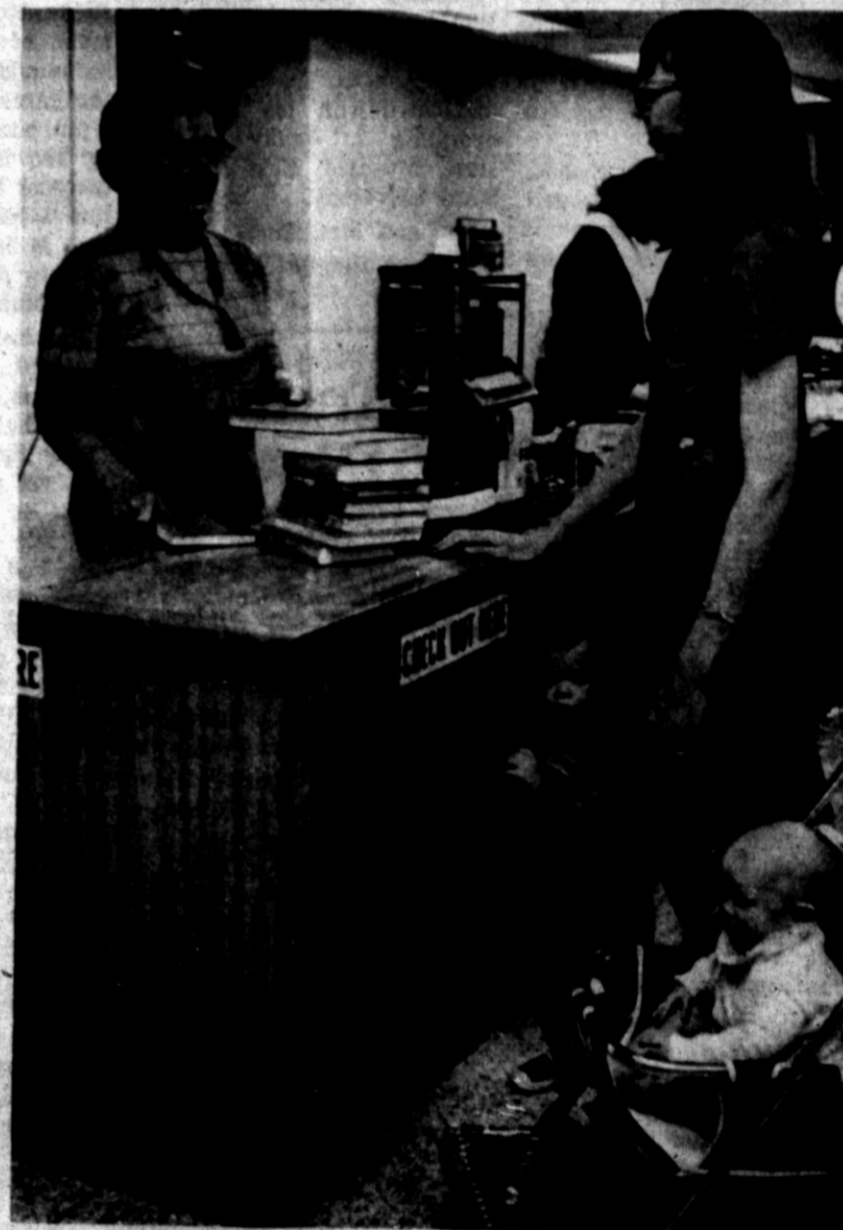

LACK OF SPACE is the major problem faced by the county library here, which was started early in this century by women's clubs and has grown steadily until approximately 35,000 volumes now occupy its shelves. Supported by the county, it is housed on the first floor of Deaf Smith County courthouse, a convenient location for its patrons but now crowded until its small reading rooms offer no inducement for residents to spend time in them.

BOOK CIRCULATION in the library totaled 60,331 volumes last year, in addition to 4,400 magazines checked out. Subscriptions to more than 100 magazines are maintained. Special shelves, including those for genealogical books, rare books, sheet music and books on Texas are featured along with the usual division of fiction, children's books, reference volumes and various non-fiction. A clipping file is another aid to patrons doing research.

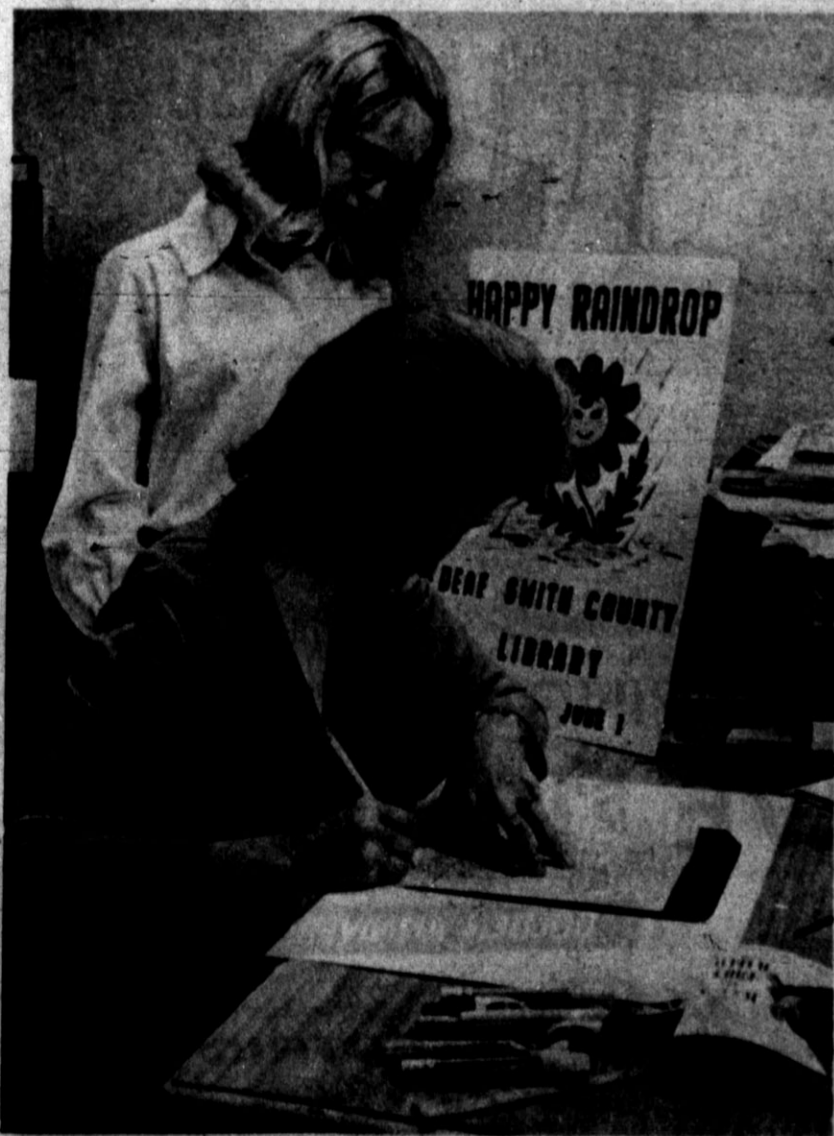

THE LIBRARY STAFF comprises Lorene Newman and Gwen London, librarians, and two student assistants, Gwen Davis and Charlene Wright. Free to all residents, the library is open from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; 9 a.m. to 12 noon Saturdays during the school term.

A FARMER - READER — Andrew Gray, who lives a quiet 34 miles from town, frequents the library to obtain the three or four books that he reads each month.

BUSY MOTHER READS — Mrs. Cecil B. McCullar, mother of Russell, 18 months and Sharon, 6 months, reads at least one book each week at their home 25 miles west of Hereford. Librarian, Mrs. Lorene Newman, is shown checking out Mrs. McCullar's latest supply of reading material.

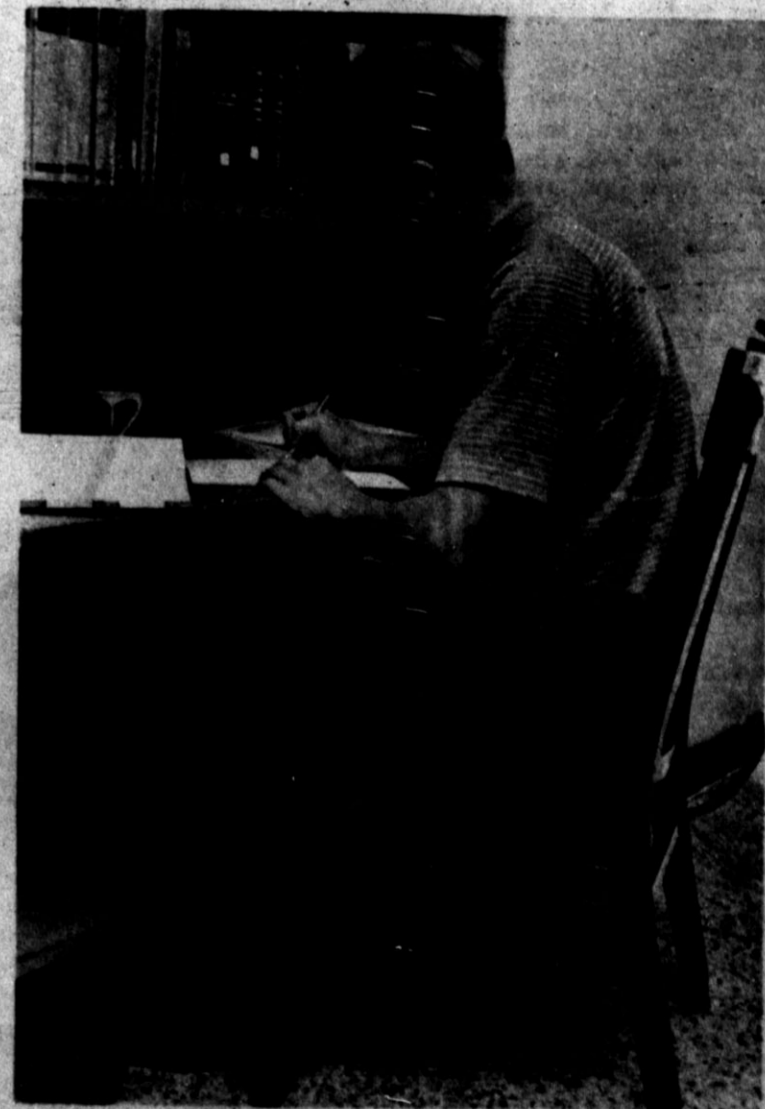

PREPARING FOR SUMMER READERS—Assistant librarian, Mrs. Gwen London and high school senior Gwen Davis, who is a fourth year student worker, prepare posters to announce the children's summer reading program, which will begin June 1.

Mrs. Edward F. Subject
nee Cheryl Allen

★ ★ ★ ★ ★
Former resident marries at Dallas

Miss Cheryl Jo Allen of Dallas, who formerly resided in Hereford, is the bride of Edward Francis Subject of Dallas, married in an afternoon ceremony Friday at Mary Immaculate Catholic Church in Farmers Branch, Dallas suburb.

The Rev. Frank Cabanski, pastor of the church, officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Howard M. Allen and the late Mr. Allen; the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Subject of Dallas.

Bill Noland of McAllister, N. M., brother-in-law of the bride, gave her in marriage and Mrs. Noland was her only attendant. Ron Stevens of Dallas acted as best man.

The bridegroom's brother, Jim Subject, and Tom Wall of Dallas were the ushers. The flower girl was the bride's niece, Amy Jo Noland.

Baskets of spring flowers decorated the church for the wedding. The bride wore a simply-styled gown of snowflake crepe, the empire waistline marked by a narrow belt beaded with hand-sewn pearls as were the standing high collar and the cuffs to which full sleeves were gathered.

Her bouffant illusion veil, caught to a cluster of roses on pearl-beaded lace, fell in tiers to form a long train. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

Yellow dotted Swiss made dresses of the matron of honor and the flower girl, both in empire style and daisy trimmed. They carried bouquets of yellow and white daisies.

The Allen home was the scene of the reception, where Mrs. Gary Williams of Lubbock and Miss Pamela Howard served wedding cake and punch assisted by Mrs. Mack Noland of Hereford.

The three-tiered cake, ornamented with yellow roses and bells, was set on a handmade Irish linen cloth with a bouquet of yellow roses and matching tapers.

The couple left for a trip to Tennessee. Mrs. Subject wearing an A-line frock of yellow linen with orange and white accessories. After April 22 they expect to be at home at 9824 Dibsworth, Dallas.

Glady's Garden
By Gladys Howton Maniet

One of the most talked about subjects, especially now days, is THE WEATHER.

We of the plains country always look forward to the tomorrow.

"When the sun emerges from the dust laden clouds, We're amazed at its radiant splendor.

Take new hope and continue to plan and plant our gardens. And later when a small green plant from its dark seed house bursts forth so dainty and tender,

A real wonderful secret of life is revealed to us.

And we take hope, and continue to plant and work."

The tulips are really beautiful this year, there is so many of them, and the colors are varied, both the solid colors and the blends contribute beauty to our town. The red "Matador" tulips growing the The Pioneer Study Club Park, are colorful and most of us look forward to their brightness. Mrs. O. G. Hill Sr., has a new one, a cottage type, called "Fireside". It is a two tone color, bright fiery red and golden yellow, very striking.

The yellow tulips throughout town have been very pretty, always enjoy the plantings at the U. S. A. Post Office.

Much as we like tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and narcissus, some of the less well-known bulbs add a piquancy that sets the garden apart. This last fall I purchased some of these lesser known bulbs, at the insistence of Anne McCullough. One that I have been well pleased with is Scilla, and another one that is dainty and pretty is Puschkinia Libabotica.

The last named one is a beautiful dainty flower and blossoms come on a spray like stem, the color is sweet and a dainty light blue. Another old one, yet not grown here very much is Star of Bethlehem. The late Mrs. Rex Tynes always had some of these in her border plantings. She told me that they always were a real weather guide, and in their blooming let her know rain was coming. They have petite white velvety star like white blossoms. Put some of these on your list for purchase in the fall or late summer. I have already received some orders for bulbs for The Pioneer Study Club.

Have also received much satisfaction from the bed of White Lion Double Daffodils. They have had nice long, deep green foliage, and the blossoms have been pretty and very fragrant.

They are also excellent keepers in arrangements.

GOOD NEWS: Was pleased to read in the Home Garden, that by 1972 the Elm Research Institute predicts that there will be a disease-resistant elm. Steps are also being made in a cure for the disease which has killed so many of the American Elms, which is one of the favorite shade trees throughout the nation. So many have been lost, and is good news that a cure is almost perfected. This information is not a guess but is results of efforts at Cornell University, and other research Centers. Let us be hopeful, and look forward to the new elm and to the steps being made to preserve the stately American Elm.

When you come in from the garden with stained or grubby hands, put a teaspoon of salt into the soap lather as you wash. This is an aid in cleaning the stains and the washing doesn't take so long.

If your garden tools have rusted during the winter a quick remover is a soap-filled steel wool pad dipped in kerosene or turpentine. Rub briskly with a piece of aluminum foil wadded into a ball. Wash and dry. Then use the cleaned tool with pleasure and better results.

CAUTION:
BEWARE THE VERDANT GREENERY ALL ABOUT US, which is now coming into growth.

Safety experts are doing their best to warn the public as to the dangers of the summertime flora. In many of these poisons lurk, some only make a person uncomfortable, while others contain poison. Many are common in flower and vegetable gardens and in ornamental landscaping, as well as in the wild plants which grow along the roadside or in the pastures. An example which I have remembered from childhood is the Oleanther as my grandmother grew the oleanther plants, and we children were cautioned to leave them alone. This plant contains a deadly heart stimulant similar to digitalis. The toxin is so strong that a single leaf can kill a child. People have been known to die from merely eating steak speared on oleanther twigs and roasted over a fire.

The following is a list which should warn us, to be careful. Peach tree leaves contain hydrocyanic, which is a dangerous poison.

Potato and tomato plants, which are close kin to the deadly nightshade, each have folage that contains alkaloid poison which can cause severe digestive upset and a nervous disorder if eaten.

Jimson weed, sometimes called thorn apple and stinkweed, grows almost everywhere and causes more poisoning than any other plant. It grows from two to five feet tall, has large leaves with white funnel shaped flowers resembling morning glories.

All parts are poisonous especially seeds and leaves. Castor bean seeds are especially dangerous because they are so deadly and so readily available. They are sold in garden stores in packets and are very popular with flower arrangers, because of their shape and that they can be skeletonized. They produce lush plants both in green and red. Each seed contains enough ricin, a powerful blood poison, to kill a child.

Mountain laurel, is another dangerous plant. It has a poison bean with a hard coat. If it is swallowed whole there may be no ill effects, however if it is crushed or chewed it can be lethal.

Other plants which are common in our gardens that have poisonous parts are, elephant ear, larkspur, azaleas, lantana, canna, yew, oaks, water hemlock, poison hemlock and sumac.

File the list and check your garden plants, and be watchful of these given, there are others, but some of these are the most commonly grown here.

Gardeners must be concerned with many things; plant growth and care, selection of seed, and plants, indoor plants, whether to try some of the new introductions. Inform themselves on conservation measures, also how to build good soil, which plant to grow for fragrance (this is something every gardener should have). To be a successful gardener is now and sets try-outs

to fill spots

Boys who did not attend the Pony League try-outs last week will have another chance to be placed on a team as a second try-out day will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. today at the Pony League park.

A draft was conducted Tuesday, and several of the teams did not have enough boys to fill their roster. There still are some 28 spots to be filled on the six Pony League teams.

Boys 13 and 14 years of age are eligible to participate in the Pony League baseball program.

Who are the Mossbacks?

Imagine that a liberal Democratic President proposed to update the creaky operation of federal social programs. Imagine that he were thwarted in Congress by Republican committee chairmen and lobbyists whose prerogatives and powers were threatened. Imagine the clamor about "reactionaries" and "selfish interests" and "mossbacks."

Well, from the current silence you would scarcely know that the last of President Nixon's six special revenue-sharing messages went to Congress last week. This one was on education, and it would consolidate 108 existing programs into six broad categories of educational aid. It would eliminate truckloads of paperwork, and just conceivably it might free local officials to think instead of push federal forms.

The education message promptly drew opposition of the same tenor that greeted the previous five consolidation proposals. Rep. Carl Perkins, head of the relevant House committee, denounced it, promising not "to stand idly by and see good programs destroyed under the pretense of revenue sharing." The educational lobby, spectacularly successful in the last two sessions of Congress, also declared its opposition on the ground that the funding is too low.

Yet in fact the consolidation proposals would not "destroy" anything now going on in my school district in the land. Local schools would be perfectly free to spend their aid money exactly as at present. But they could spend it on something else if they decided to, without searching through 108 programs to find one the new idea might fit. And they would be spared having to file one federal application under one set of rules to buy microscopes and another under another set of rules with a different deadline if they need help with guidance counseling.

Congress also will be perfectly free to increase funds for the proposed program just as it has for the 108 separate programs, but it is true that the source of the education lobby's recent power may be diluted. It has pledged to back any and all education programs, which in effect means hitching the rest to a politically popular piece of pork, aid to schools that teach children of federal employees. Naturally, these impacted aid programs have sucked up a large share of the new funds the lobby has "won," while programs like aid to slum schools have been less-than-average increases.

The administration's proposals would not threaten the impacted-aid program that does have some justification, the one pertaining to children who live on federal installations. But the other, pertaining to children whose parents live in and pay taxes to the school district like anyone else, would be subject to state decisions to transfer 30 per cent of its funds elsewhere.

The administration formulas also guarantee that as federal spending on education rises, the proportion going to the educationally disadvantaged can be increased but never decreased. The formulas further prevent disproportionate increases for the impacted programs. This might remove a lever the education lobby has used and give it lower totals to brag about, but it is exceedingly hard to see how the public interest would suffer.

With any of the special revenue-sharing proposals, in fact, it's a tough job to ferret out an objection based on principle rather than in cozy relationships on Capitol Hill. It sounds like a matter of principle to argue that federal officials are more competent than local ones, and in general it is probably true. But if you actually look at what the present system asks those competent federal bureaucrats to do, this objection deserves to be laughed out of court.

To take education again, does anyone really believe that even the most competent set of bureaucrats can sit in Washington applying their wisdom to advance plans and applications for 108 programs in each of 20,000-plus school districts? Does anyone seriously believe these plans receive thought as opposed to pro-forma checks against arbitrary regulations? Someone who believes so is someone who, like Albee's Red Queen, can believe six impossible things before breakfast.

In this continent-wide nation there is simply no alternative to relying on whatever wisdom and ability local officials may have. One question is whether the federal government will stop bedeviling them and let them try to do their jobs. Another question is whether Washington will reduce its oversight to few enough things, like auditing and civil-rights compliance, that it might conceivably oversee them effectively.

This problem area is by no means the sole property of President Nixon's "new American revolution." The education office, the urban affairs department and so on were working on consolidation proposals before they ever heard of "special revenue sharing." Democrats like Sen. Edmund Muskie have done important work on the problems consolidation attacks.

The President's special revenue-sharing program may not be the best way to solve these problems, but we will hardly know until its opponents drop their mossback objections and put their energy toward advancing some thoughtful alternatives.

A valid charge

Slanted television is back in the news again, and if the people are confused, there is little wonder.

There is a strong temptation to categorically condemn television and the press in general when the spotlight is thrown on certain distorted "documentary films" or newspaper writings. This of course, is not fair, for much that we see and read is factual and honest, and needs the penetrating light of publicity.

Two CBS documentaries have come under wide criticism in recent weeks, and rightly so. It has been proven that the opening scene of "Hunger in America" was taken out of context when an investigation showed beyond doubt that the child pictured as dying of starvation — "This baby is dying of starvation. He was an American. Now he is dead" — was in reality a premature baby born in a San Antonio hospital. An FCC investigation ascertained that the child died, three days after the film was taken, of meningitis and peititis due to prematurity, that had nothing to do with malnutrition, either of it or its mother.

Then shortly thereafter, CBS aired "The Selling of the Pentagon." We missed it on the first round, and as a result of the stir it caused and the criticism it evoked from Vice President Agnew, it was shown again last week, followed by 15 minutes of criticism by public figures and defense by CBS officials.

Frankly, we think the film was way off base, and an actual disservice to the United States. It pictured the Department of Defense public information program as a gigantic, wicked effort to militarize the country, brutalize our children and do many other evil things, all of great expense to the taxpayers.

True, many of the film clips were pro- (See CHARGE, Page 5)

Nader — powerful hero, villain and nuisance

Washington, D. C. — Crusader Ralph Nader is a hero to many consumer activists, a villain to most businessmen, and a nuisance to bureaucrats. But unquestionably he is one of the most important men in Washington today.

Some admirers have even suggested that Ralph Nader be nominated for President. That is not likely to happen but it shows how far the 37-year-old lawyer has come in five years on the Washington stage. Originally his image was that of a David battling Goliath. Now he could be considered a Goliath himself.

Nader appeared on the national scene in 1966 as the author of "Unsafe At Any Speed." Senator Abraham Ribicoff (D., Conn.) was his original sponsor but now Nader has scores of admirers in Congress and the automobile industry is only one of many targets. Also, Nader has a small army of aides, paid and unpaid.

Nader has well-placed friends among the Washington press corps, and every move he makes is reported thoroughly and sympathetically. Several recent magazine articles have enhanced his image as a battler for the public good. To have served as one of "Nader's Raiders" is a mark of distinction. Biographies of Eddie Cox, the Harvard Law student who will marry Tricia Nixon at the White House in June, never fail to mention that he was one of the original "Raiders."

Lives Monastic Life
Ralph Nader's address and telephone number is not a matter of public record. He has a number of offices around town and is seldom to be found in any of them. The way to find him is to leave word with one of his trusted associates and await a return call.

A bachelor, Nader is said by his friends to live in a boarding house near Dupont Circle, and to have spent only $5,000 on personal living expenses last year. He does not own a car, does not take vacations, and advocates a 100-hour work week for his associates. An aide who slips away for a weekend at the beach is likely to be chastised, particularly if he doesn't leave a phone number where he can be reached at midnight.

Working for Nader is tough but there is no lack of candidates. Last year there were 4,000 candidates for 200 summer jobs for students. One-third of the student body at Harvard Law School sought employment as a "Raider." Some who were selected became disillusioned and there was a near revolt in 1970.

Despite support from several foundations and many volunteers who work for no pay, Nader has many problems. He has so many projects going at once he needs a lot of people. He believes in thorough research and using the law to bring about reform, whether at the government or corporate level.

Nader won a $425,000 settlement from General Motors Corporation to end his invasion of privacy suit, and part of the money went to found the Public Interest Research Group. This was supposed to be a public interest law firm, but up to now it has concentrated on research. Most Nader reports are issued by the Center for Study of Responsive Law, established in 1968. Advocates "Whistle Blowing."

A Nader technique used against both corporations and government agencies is called "whistle-blowing." He told one interviewer that he defines a "whistle-blower" as "anyone in any organization who draws a line in his own mind where responsibility to society transcends responsibility to his organization."

That means a "whistle-blower" is a spy who uses his position in government or business to obtain information which is transmitted secretly to Nader. The classic example is the General Motors engineer who supplied details of an alleged defect in Corvair automobiles, causing them to roll over.

Nader even arranged a "Whistle-Blowing Conference" in Washington, to encourage others to tattle to him. The scheme works, and government officials are frequently amazed at the inside information obtained by Nader and used against a department or agency. One Nader technique is to learn from an inside source that a certain action is about to be taken, then issue a public blast against inaction on this particular subject. When the action is taken, Nader gets credit for having caused it.

Talk of Texas

By JACK MAGUIRE

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY — On April 18, 1897, the Dallas Morning News solemnly reported that a strange airship from outer space had crashed in the Wise County town of Aurora. And after 74 years, the legend persists. It didn't, of course. The story was the creation of an Aurora cotton merchant named E. E. Haydon. Concerned because many residents were moving away from Aurora after the railroad by-passed it, Haydon decided to do something to focus attention on his town.

In the story he wrote for the Dallas News, he said that an airship believed to be from another planet had crashed on the farm of a prominent local citizen named Proctor. The pilot, supposedly identified by an Army Signal Corps officer as being from out of this world, was buried the same day in the town cemetery.

The hoax was discovered, and Haydon's hopes of reviving Aurora failed. Today the once-thriving community has virtually disappeared from the map except for the cemetery where the visitor from outer space supposedly was buried.

TEXAS FIRST — San Antonio's St. Anthony Hotel was the first hostelry in the world to be completely air-conditioned, the first to have a drive-in motor entrance where guests could register and go directly to their room and the first to have both a tub and shower in every room.

Built in 1909, the St. Anthony also is one of the few hotels in the world that has an original oil or watercolor painting by a famous artist in each of its 550 rooms. And each room, incidentally, is decorated entirely differently from any of the others.

No wonder the St. Anthony, New York's Waldorf-Astoria and San Francisco's Fairmont have been voted by a national travel writers organization as America's only three truly distinctive hotels that are more than 50 years old.

COMING EVENTS — Texas' oldest outdoor drama will be presented again this summer at Albany, Shackelford County.

It's the famous "Fandangle," written, directed, produced and acted by the residents of the town. It tells the story of Albany and historic old Fort Griffin. Six performances will be given at 8:45 p.m. June 17, 18 and 19 and June 24, 25 and 26.

WELL, NOW — San Augustine residents often drop into Stripling's Drug Store for nothing more than a drink of water.

The old town well, dug 111 years ago by slave labor, is inside the store. Stripling, who has been doing business at the same spot for 68 years, believes that his is the only pharmacy in the U. S. with a water well as a part of its equipment.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Anthony Harrigan

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

The verdict in the court martial of First Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is causing grave concern and anguish throughout the country. Great numbers of thoughtful citizens fear that the verdict will seriously damage morale and combat effectiveness in the U. S. armed forces.

Insofar as the action of the military jury is concerned, one can only say that it did its duty as it saw it. Individual jurors should not be subjected to harsh criticism. The criticism should be directed elsewhere. It should be directed at the peacenik bloc in the Senate, at the merchants of defeatism who monopolize reporting of the news on television, at the academic advocates of surrender to communism, and at the architects of "no-win" strategy in Vietnam — former President Lyndon Johnson and former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

From the start of the Vietnam conflict, American servicemen have fought under outrageous handicaps. The verdict in the Calley case is only one of many government rulings that, in effect, forbid U. S. servicemen in combat to do everything necessary to protect their lives and to defeat the enemy.

It should be remembered that for several years U. S. troops in Vietnam were refused permission to fire their weapons until they were fired upon — often until Americans had been killed or wounded. For years, communist troops enjoyed privileged sanctuaries in Cambodia. American units were not allowed to follow in hot-pursuit. They had to halt at the Cambodian border. Finally, President Nixon ordered a move into Cambodia last spring. Immediately, the communists launched a global propaganda war against the United States. The Kent State riot last May, it should be recalled, was a protest against the President's action in protecting U. S. servicemen in Vietnam.

In assessing the verdict in the Calley trial, Americans should bear in mind that the events at My Lai were used by the enemies of the United States in a worldwide effort to discredit the United States. Moscow and Hanoi must have been vastly pleased when the U. S. Army was pressured into ordering court martial proceedings against American officers and enlisted men. The communists succeeded in having the U. S. Army placed on trial.

No one denies that civilians were killed at My Lai. But millions of Americans — veterans of World Wars I and II and of Korea — know that civilians are killed in wartime incidents. Soldiers on the battlefield have to beware of enemy tricks. If the soldiers aren't suspicious — if they don't shoot first in many incidents — they are likely to end up on a casualty list.

The war in Vietnam involved civilians from the beginning. The communists resort to terrorist warfare, utilizing women and children as bomb carriers and grenade-throwers. An American soldier can be killed as quickly by a Viet Cong woman with a grenade as by a uniformed North Vietnamese regular soldier.

Veterans of Vietnam know this. In combat training, they were taught to beware of terrorist tricks. But the Washington architects of the struggle never told the American people the facts of life in the Vietnam War. The bleeding-heart liberals were busy shedding tears for North Vietnam. The day before the Calley verdict was announced, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D-Me) was deploring American bombing raids on the enemy.

bably authentic, but the way in which they were used and edited and the accompanying commentary distorted the original intent. Apparently, film editors as well as political writers can pull things out of context.

Since when is it wrong to keep the public informed on the progress of its military forces? The practice of holding open house at military installations and equipment demonstrations before public gatherings is all a part of the citizen's right to see and know. But what a distorted spectre was pictured in the documentary as hovering over the American scene. It made you feel that our nation had more to fear from the Department of Defense than it did from the Kremlin.

To us, "The Selling of the Pentagon" was not in keeping with the high standards usually seen in TV documentaries made by responsible networks.—

The bride in her dangerous disguise

Eight generations of brides in the Arkwright family inherit the secret hiding place of the Arkwright emeralds; the story is told in a novel now available at the Deaf Smith County Library. Also available is Ashes to Ashes. Check these books out today.

THE GIRL IN A MASK
By Helen K. Maxwell
Mrs. Arkwright came into the room carrying a small carved chest, about a foot and a half long, eight inches wide, and six inches deep. She set it carefully on a table.

"This is the bridal chest that has passed on the eight generations of the Arkwright brides. Generation after generation,

Guest of the Floyd Coles Sunday, was Jana's friend, Herman Vinson, who is a teacher in Pampa Junior High School. Also visiting the Coles Sunday, were the Thurman Coles, the D. C. Millers. Bill was also home for the Easter holidays, from S. M. U.

Mrs. Claud Price, Floydada, came Wednesday to the home of her sister, Mrs. H. M. Mobley. The two then went to visit Mrs. Mobley's daughter, Mrs. Earl Reno, and Mr. Reno, at Midland. They returned Sunday.

The H. E. Lindleys entertained the Thurman Coles at breakfast, Tuesday morning. The Elza Warricks also ate with them.

the Arkwright emeralds were kept in here and the secret of the hiding place has been handed on from one bride to the next. It belongs to you now, Dora...

Caught in a ruthless power struggle at Modern Design magazine, young Dora Fenton confronts a perilous opportunity, yet an oddly attractive one, when she is asked to pose as another man's fiancée and become the Girl in a Mask.

She knows it is a chance — perhaps the only chance — to realize her dreams. But what help could she be to William Arkwright, the charming, confident editor-in-chief, a man clearly accustomed to success?

Dora realizes the extent of her dangerous masquerade when she finds herself battling two deadly opponents — a flamboyant, arrogant woman and an unscrupulous power-hungry man — and discovers that her deception now threatens her own life and the man she has come to love.

The Girl in a Mask — a thrilling blend of mystery and romance set against the background of a beautiful country estate.

Along the Frio

By MRS. OWEN ANDREWS
Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Cole, of Yuma, Ariz., were here during the weekend, attending Sunday church services at Frio. Mrs. Cole, the former Hazel Shiftet, is attending to business, having sold her beauty shop in Hereford, and otherwise clearing ties here in order to make her home in Yuma.

Mrs. Robert Davis brought their baby daughter, Angela, home from Methodist hospital, Lubbock, on Saturday. The baby is doing quite well. She has been there since her birth, Feb. 28 in the Dimmitt hospital, having been taken that day to the Lubbock hospital and undergoing surgery. Mrs. Davis and the baby are staying with her parents, the Anderson Axes, presently, as Robert is in the service.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Vogler were at Lamesa during the weekend to be with his father, S. C. Vogler, who suffered a stroke on Friday.

Guests of Virgil Barber at the home of his parents, the Harlan Barbers, during Easter weekend were college students, Neal Armstrong, of Earth, Kent Sanders, Bowie, Joe Estes, Dallas, Dan Allred, Dallas, and Lloyd Stansberry, Houston. Steve Robbins also spent Saturday night with the group. They are all members of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, of Texas Tech. All the young men attended church at Frio Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Andrews went to Lubbock, Tuesday, to visit her brother, Lonzo Shannon, and Mrs. Shannon. The Shannons returned home a few days ago from Mayo Clinic, where Lonzo began use of a kidney machine. He has one now in his home and is getting acquainted with its use there. Lonzo visited this community often, when the family lived here while their father, R. L. Shannon was pastor at Frio Baptist church from about 48 to 51.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Andrews went home with the Marsh Pitman's Sunday, as they returned to Waco after the Easter holidays here. The Andrews flew to Lubbock, Tuesday, and came home with the W. H. Andrews.

Frio Homemakers Club went to Vega, Monday afternoon, to visit the Sunripe Industry. Mrs. Johnson, who with her husband operate the business, showed the ladies through and explained various parts of the greenhouse. The 5 acre tomato and chrysanthemum business was very impressive, as it is beginning to produce ripe fruit and flowers in a large way.

Those making the trip were Mesdames T. L. Spartzman, Jr. Eugene Baldwin, Tommy Spartzman, Chesley Johnston, Harlan Barber, David Yandell, Frank Robbins, E. F. Vogler, Owen Andrews, Miss Alma Andrews and a guest, Mrs. James Bullard.

Mrs. Carlton Dobbins went with the Edgar Vinsons to near Dallas, to visit the Wayne Betts, during the Easter

TO MY FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you why I seek the job of Criminal District Attorney which will take the place of the office of County Attorney to which I was elected last fall.

I came to Hereford nearly six years ago and set up law practice on my own. Hereford has been good to me. Besides a good living, I've found my wife, Betty, and together we have made a home here in Hereford and had two wonderful daughters.

Last fall when no one else would take the County Attorney's job, I decided to accept the office. I did so, not only for the financial reward, but also because I wanted to help law enforcement in Deaf Smith County better and more effective.

As County Attorney I have strived to fulfill my first obligation—to make sure that justice is given in Court. I believe sincerely that we must have "rule by law" and not "rule by men"—that the State as well as the Defendant must follow the law. Through the efforts of my secretary, Virginia Easley, and the law enforcement officials, we have been able to clean up the back log in County Court and get the hot check problem under control. In fact we have been able to collect about 86 per cent of the misdemeanor checks.

I would like to serve as your District Attorney for the next 3½ years. I promise you that I will not be obligated to any one man or any faction. I will do my best to serve the interest of ALL the people of Deaf Smith County.

I would sincerely appreciate your vote and your voice in my behalf. Should you have any suggestions to give me or any questions to ask, please be sure and call me either at home or at my office.

Sincerely yours,
Andy

JUNE BRIDE-TO-BE — Miss Dianne Lynette London's engagement to Bill C. Ailshie of Hereford is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Baxter O. London, 306 Western. The wedding is to take place June 18 in the First Christian Church. Miss London is a 1970 graduate of Hereford High School and a freshman at West Texas State University. Ailshie is the son of Mrs. Charlotte Ailshie of Brownfield. He attended schools in Brownfield and is presently employed by Walco Drilling Company of Hereford.

Small talk

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

NOBODY likes to have his name appear in a newspaper with incorrect spelling, much less an incorrect first name, and some people complain loudly about the errors that just will occur in an issue where hundreds of names are printed.

Brenda Kay McCutchen did not come to our office with a horsehair or write an indignant letter to the editor, but I'm sure she wasn't happy when her name was given incorrectly in a list last week. We would never have known it if her teacher hadn't told us, and we are glad she did.

If Brenda Kay had received publicity because she did something bad it might be different, but she wrote one of the essays on American History which received a merit award in the recent DAR contest, and we want her to get the proper credit.

She is a pupil at Aikman Elementary, and her name is NOT Deborah Kay. I'm sure her Certificate of Merit has it correctly — Brenda Kay.

MR. AND MRS. E. T. Ward of Portales joined Jewel Awtrey last weekend for an Easter visit to Ulysses, Kan., with her son, W. H. Awtrey Jr., and his family. . . Another Easter visit with kinfolks was made by Betty Thomas, whose mother and grandmother, Mrs. R. E. Drager and Mrs. Will Kallinsky, accompanied her to Lubbock.

IT'S TIME for spring clean-up — and by the way how are your backyard and alley? — so we've shuffled through the accumulation in our desk and come up with some things too good to throw away; you know how that is.

These are recipes, some that we didn't have space for at the time they were given to us, but that sound so good we kept them for a time like right now. They are all for sweets, the first from Mrs. Don Laridin.

Careful choice of set-aside acres advised

Deaf Smith County farmers enrolled in the feed grain, wheat or cotton programs are being reminded that the acreage set aside under each program should be as productive as the acreage normally used to produce the crop.

Frank J. Bezner, chairman of the Deaf Smith County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, suggested that producers check with the county ASCS office as soon as possible if they have any doubt about their proposed set-aside acreage meeting the qualifications.

Bezner pointed out that at the time producers come in to the county office to certify their set-aside acreage, they must specify precisely where the set-aside acreage is located. Final dates for certification are May 15th for wheat and August 15th for feed grain and cotton.

After a producer has certified, if a mistake is found in his set-aside acreage, he could lose some or all of his farm program payment.

"A farmer who is not quite sure whether his set-aside meets all requirements would be well advised to check with the county ASCS office ahead of time. Also, he can request measurement service, which, if followed, will give him a guarantee that he has enough set-aside acreage. Measurement service is offered by the county ASCS office at cost," Bezner said.

Producers in the voluntary feed grain, wheat and cotton programs for 1977 set aside a percentage of their land to conserving uses, and will also maintain their farm's conserving base acreage. On the rest of their acreage they may plant as much feed grain, wheat, cotton or other crop they choose, with the exception of quota crops. Quota crops include peanuts, tobacco, rice, extra long staple cotton and sugarcane, which may be planted only on farms with allotments for these crops.

a hard ball in cold water.

Remove from heat and add 2 tsp. vanilla, half a stick of margarine and red food coloring. Beat until the mixture thickens. Spoon onto buttered cookie sheet or into muffin tins to cool.

NEXT IS a cake, from Mrs. T. B. Thomas, the kind that can be made with the use of just one bowl.

MOM'S PINEAPPLE CAKE
Mix 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1 tsp. soda, 2 cups flour, 1/2 tsp. salt in the bowl. Add 2 eggs and a No. 2 can of crushed pineapple, juice and all. Beat well.

Pour into a greased pan and sprinkle on top of batter a mixture of 1/2 cup brown sugar and 1/2 cup chopped nuts or coconut. Bake 30 to 35 minutes at 350 degrees.

This may be topped with an icing made of 1 stick margarine, 1 cup evaporated milk, 1/2 cup sugar and vanilla to taste. Mix and bring to boil. Boil 3 minutes and pour over warm cake.

FOR A variation in desserts, here is Mrs. Aaron Speer's recipe for a special pie.

CHEESE PIE
Beat well the yolks of 5 eggs. Cream 1/2 cup butter with 2 cups sugar, 1 lb. flour and 1 lb. cornmeal. Mix with beaten eggs and add cup milk and 1 tsp. vanilla.

Pour into unbaked pie shell, put in 400-degree oven and cook at that temperature until it begins to brown, then reduce temperature to 350 degrees to finish baking.

ROTC service can cancel off loan payment

Lt. Col. John U. Childs, professor of military science at West Texas State University, has reminded that students participating in the National Defense Student Loan Program may cancel repayment of up to half of the loan if they receive a commission through ROTC and serve in the active army.

Under the National Defense Student loan, an undergraduate student may borrow up to $1,000 each academic year to a total of $5,000.

The repayment period and the interest do not begin until nine months after the student completes his studies.

The loans bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent per year, and repayment of principal may be extended over a 10-year period. Students who participate in ROTC while in college receive $50 per month during their Junior and Senior years.

Students who receive their commission and serve in the Army will also be eligible for cancellation of their National Defense Student Loan at the rate of 1 1/2 per cent per year up to one-half of the total obligation.

Inquiries or requests for additional information should be directed to the professor of military science, West Texas State University, or by calling AC 898-656-3556.

Area farmers get cut on loan rates

The Federal Land Bank of Houston announced Thursday that it will reduce the interest billing rate on variable rate loans to 7 1/2 per cent, Woodrow B. Wilson, manager of the Federal Land Bank Association of Hereford, disclosed this week.

"This reduction will be effective on installments maturing on or after June 1, and affects more than $110 million in variable rate loans to over 3,200 Texas farmers and ranchers," Wilson said.

The variable rate loan, which was introduced by the Houston Bank in July 1969, lets the interest rate "float" over the variations in the money market. This is the second time since January 1 that the billing rate has been reduced and the third such reduction in the past year.

"This action is in line with the Bank's policy in providing farmers and ranchers credit at

Pottery technique is shown

Techniques of modeling pottery were described and shown to Ceramic Arts Club members by Mrs. Robert Hickman at a meeting in Mrs. Ray Carille's home Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Hickman, a club guest, demonstrated by molding a vase from clay on a potter's wheel, and other objects by hand. Each one present was given a lump of clay to shape into form, and then carve to decorate. Mrs. Hickman shared with the club methods she has learned in a ceramics class at West Texas State University.

Mrs. Bill Stengel presided for business and named Mrs. W.H. Awtry Sr. and Mrs. Hardy Benson as a nominating committee for next year's officers. They are to report at the next meeting, May 15, in the home of Mrs. Florence Fluit, where officers will be elected.

Molds were selected to be ordered for use of club members in coming months. Mrs. Stengel announces that membership in the club is open to women of this area interested in ceramic arts, who may contact any member.

Those present at the meeting included Meses. O. H. Culpepper, W. C. Hromas, Joe Kendall, Velma Kuykendall, Fluit Benson and Awtry.

SPRING IN BLOOM — Flowering fruit trees have supplied much spring beauty to Hereford yards in recent weeks, and so have the many early-flowering bulbs. The two are combined in Mrs. W. C. Hromas' backyard, where a picturesquely rugged plum bush with its lacy white blooms makes a background for a clump of tulips with bright red blossoms, admired by Mrs. Hromas. She has had many blooms this spring from jonquills, hyacinths and other bulbs; she is a member of Pioneer Study Club, which sells bulbs each fall as a city beautification project.

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: BEN ZIRARA LEADS PRINCE VALIANT AND ARN ACROSS BRITANNY AND DOWN THE COAST OF BISCAY BAY, A ROUTE THAT IS SAFE FROM THE MIGRATING GOths. BUT THERE ARE OTHER DANGERS. A SEAPORT TOWN IS IN FLAMES, EVIDENCE THAT VIKING RAIDERS HAVE PAID A VISIT.

THEY STABLE THEIR HORSES AT A TAVERN AND CARRY IN THEIR BAGGAGE. THE PLACE IS EMPTY. EVERYONE HAS GONE TO FIGHT THE FLAMES.

A MAID ENTERS CLUTCHING HER TORN GARMENTS, HER HAIR IN DISARRAY. "OH, THOSE ROUGH VIKINGS!" SHE EXCLAIMS ANGRILY, "THE BRUTES! THEY DO NOT KNOW HOW TO TREAT A LADY."

ZIRARA LEAPS TO HIS FEET, EYES BLAZING. "SHOW ME THESE MISCREANTS. THEY SHALL PAY IN BLOOD FOR THESE MISDEEDS, FOR MY SWORD IS EVER READY TO PROTECT PURE WOMANHOOD!" "OH, THEY HAVE GONE NOW," ANSWERS PURE WOMANHOOD AS SHE GOES TO TIDY UP. THERE IS JUST THE HINT OF A SMILE ON HER FACE.

WHEN SHE RETURNS SHE PLACES FOOD BEFORE THEM, SEEMING NONE THE WORSE FOR HER EXPERIENCE. BUT VAL IS WORRIED. ZIRARA'S OUTBURST SHOWS HIM TO BE SUCH A ROMANTIC THAT HIS DEDICATION TO PROTECT WOMANHOOD MIGHT LEAD TO DELAYS IN THEIR QUEST.

WAKING OR SLEEPING THE FACE OF ALETA IS EVER BEFORE HIM, SPURRING HIM ON HIS RESTLESS WAY, FOR WELL HE KNOWS THE DANGERS OF HER LONG SEA VOYAGE.

EACH DAY THE DISTANCE BETWEEN VAL AND ALETA WIDENS. PERHAPS THEIR SEPARATION WILL BE FOREVER. TOO LONG HAS SHE NURSED THE PAIN IN HER HEART. THE RECORDS THAT HAD BEEN SENT HER EACH YEAR ARE BROUGHT TO HER CABIN AND SHE THROWS HERSELF INTO THE WORK OF PLANNING THE FUTURE OF HER KINGDOM. BUT WHO CAN CONTROL THEIR DREAMS?

PONYTAIL BY LEE HOLLEY

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
My husband happens to be six-foot-six, and ties were one of his big problems. They just never seemed to be long enough for him.
So I remedied this situation by buying a regular long tie, measuring the proper length for him, and then tying the tie on one of those little tie clips that you can purchase in a tie shop.
After making the knot nice and neat, I cut off the fashioned a matching pocket handkerchief.

I have made at least twenty sets for my husband and he has received many comments about them, and what makes me so proud is that he never fails to mention, "My wife made them for me."
I might also add that I usually buy cotton and dacron, and when he spills something on the tie I just wash it in a basin of water, rinse and hook the clip on a wire hanger and let it drip-dry.
Betty Bostrom

"Proud as punch!" — bet that expresses the Mister's sentiments exactly. And, sweetie pie, do you realize how much extra you pay for a set with pocket hand-

ALL CURLED UP!

DEAR HELOISE:
I found the best way to make curlers for my doll's hair.
I cut plastic drinking straws into one-inch pieces and secured the "curlers" with small bobby pins.
Really works great for those teenage dolls.

Sure have, sweetie... All you have to do is dampen a piece of cotton with plain ol' rubbing alcohol, wring it out real good, and rub it all over the shoes!
This will remove the build-up of polish. Also it will remove any marks on the shoes. How about that? Heloise

GOOD BOOKKEEPING

DEAR HELOISE:
I received an adorable favor at a baby shower recently and thought I'd share the idea with you.
First, fold a paper napkin, preferably white, in the shape of a triangle diaper when folded on a baby.
Next, take small pieces of nylon net (pink or blue), fill with mints, nuts, or what have you, pull up the corners and tie with a small velvet ribbon.

Then tuck the goodies inside the napkin "diaper" — they are so cute and very inexpensive too.
Pam K.

DEAR HELOISE:
I just had to tell you about how I received one of your books.
At one of my bridal showers it was used as the guest book and then, of course, presented to me. I thought that this was such a clever idea and now my book is really one of my cherished possessions.
Periodically I reread it from cover to cover because hints that I did not need before become valuable as our family habits change.
Thank you for the very helpful hints and the pain-on-the-back that make the "housewife" regain her perspective.

All of a sudden this brainstorm struck, so I got a knife and sliced just the tiniest bit off the bottom of each egg.
Then, as I filled them, they stayed perfectly in place. And they looked so much better than upside-down deviled eggs.

My sister just recently gave me a very old ten-gallon milk can and I completely reddid it and put it to good use.
Since it wasn't in very good condition, I removed all the rust, gunk, and what have you, and painted it with black wrought-iron paint.
I put a large sponge inside on the bottom of the can and now have a very lovely Colonial umbrella stand.

I've been doing a lot of sewing lately—emptying in the process countless spools of thread.

BULLETIN BOARD

● UNSPEAKABLE WORD! Draw a vertical line to it, at bottom right, add a small semi-circle. To semi-circle, add two small circles. What three-letter word (which some people never say) have you drawn?

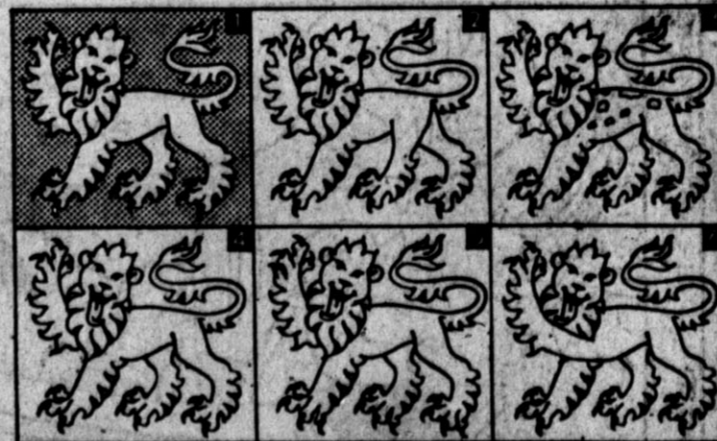

● Repeat aloud as rapidly as possible: Daily diet don and don'ts are driving Daisy dotty. Given and Ben are bride and groom.

An artist searching for a perfect model seeks a girl with these proportions: Waist, twice the diameter of the neck; Neck, twice around the wrist; Ankle, once and one-half the girth of the wrist.

If his perfect girl has a waist measurement of 24 inches, what are her other dimensions? How long will it take you to figure them out?

Time limit: Two minutes.

IMAGINARY LIONS! Lions 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, above, all wish they looked exactly like number 1. Can you point out how each one differs? Example: One of lion number 2's legs is different.

OPEN SESAME! To bring forth the hidden scene above, apply these magical colors: 1-Red, 2-Blue, 3-Yellow, 4-Brown, 5-Pink, 6-Orange-red, 7-Green, 8-Gray, 9-Light brown.

SPELLBINDER!

SCORE 10 points for using all letters in the word below to form two complete words:

STRANGER

Score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters. Try to score at least 20 points.

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST your eyes? There are six differences in details between the top and bottom panels above. How quickly can you point out what these differences are? Answers below.

REMEMBER MOTHER ON HER DAY SUNDAY, MAY 9, 1971

Catherine Westhoff is bride of Leo Freeby

Marriage vows were exchanged between Miss Catherine Westhoff and Leo Freeby Saturday afternoon in St. Mary's Catholic Church at Umbarger. The Rev. M. F. Schafle, pastor, officiated and was celebrant of the Nuptial Mass. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Westhoff of Umbarger and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Freeby of Weinert. Mrs. Don Dolle and St. Mary's Choir presented the program of nuptial music.

Bouquets of Easter lilies, daisies and yellow carnations flanked the altar. The bride wore a formal gown of Alencon lace over peau de soie featuring full lace sleeves gathered to form ruffles at the wrist. The empire gown featured a slightly flared skirt with lace overskirt embroidered down the front with sequins and pearl beads. Lace medallions hand-appliqued at intervals accented the lace-edged illusion veil of cathedral length held by a bow of lace, sequins and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and pompon mums. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Miss Dorothy Wieck served her cousin as maid of honor with Misses Deloris Artho, the bride's niece, and Dorothy Freeby, sister of the bridegroom, as attendants. They wore frocks of yellow jonquil chiffon over satin, with empire waists and high necklines. White Venise lace accented the waistlines, necklines and cuffs which caught the full chiffon sleeves. Each attendant carried a white basket of daisies and daffodils. Lee Ross served as the couple's best man with Steve Wieck, cousin of the bride, and Vincent Meyer as groomsmen. Virgil Artho, the bride's nephew, and Jim Wieck, her cousin, ushered. A reception followed in the parish hall with Mrs. George Frank inviting guests to register. Mrs. Steve Wieck, Jim Wieck and Marlon Hicks served cake and punch. The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with yellow spring flowers and topped with a miniature bride and groom. For a honeymoon trip to New Mexico, the bride wore a low-waist dress with white bodice and lime green pleated skirt and accessories to match. The bride graduated from Mt. St. Mary's Academy at Little Rock, Arkansas in 1966 and St. Anthony's School of Nursing at Amarillo in 1968. She is a registered nurse at Deaf Smith County Public Health Clinic. Her husband, a 1965 graduate of Weinert High School, attended Ranger Junior College and Stephen F. Austin College, at Nacadoches. He is presently employed at Deaf Smith County Hospital.

Essay on Washington is among winners in DAR-sponsored contest

The subject chosen by Delfina Perales, one of four winners in a recent essay contest sponsored by Los Ciboleros Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, is George Washington. Elementary school pupils wrote essays on the U. S. Constitution or any of its signers, and four winners were named. Delfina attends Tierra Blanca school. Her essay follows:

GEORGE WASHINGTON
On a hot sunny day on February 22, 1732, a little baby boy named George was born. The place was called Westmoreland County, Virginia. Three years later his father moved to Truro Parish. His father's name was Augustine Washington.

George was still very young, but he liked to read books; they were very expensive in those days. It was known that George didn't have much formal schooling. He didn't like school very much, he would rather play with boys or ride horses.

When George was 11 years old, his father died. Much of the land was left to the two older brothers. George and his five brothers and sisters were left to care for their mother.

His half-brother Lawrence when George was 14, took George to Mount Vernon, a plantation he had inherited from his father. Near Mount Vernon was Belvoir, the estate of the wealthy Fairfax family, whose daughter Lawrence had married.

There lived Thomas Lord Fairfax, who liked George very much. From this family he learned good manners. When fully grown, Washington was six feet tall.

Lord Fairfax owned an enormous tract of land west of the Blue Ridge mountains. In 1748, he decided to have it surveyed. He sent out a small group and George went along as an assistant to young Fairfax.

There Washington and his friend Fairfax met new kinds of troubles. When they came back, Washington got his license and became a public surveyor.

At the age of 19 he went to the Island of Barbados; there he became ill with smallpox and nearly died. Lawrence did not find a cure and a year later he died. He left Mount Vernon to his daughter, but if she were to die without any children, (which she did) Mount Vernon would be left to his brother George.

When George was 20, on November 6, 1752 Washington was made general of the Virginia militia. He was paid 500 dollars a year. On May 28, 1754, Washington attacked a party of armed Frenchmen and captured them. Then, after the French sent out larger forces and attacked Washington, George retreated, but he was defeated anyway.

In October, 1754, he resigned from military service. On July 9, 1755, another battle was started. Washington was so sick with fever that he took a pillow instead of a saddle on his horse. General Braddock was killed and Washington helped in carrying him from the battlefield.

There Washington became famous. Washington returned to Virginia and again resigned his commission.

In 1759 he married a wealthy widow named Martha Custis and became the guardian of her two young children, Patsy and Jacky. Washington and Martha never had any kids from their marriage.

The fierce battle of words between the colonies and England reached a crisis in 1774. Men of the colonies became increasingly alarmed. Secret organizations and agreements began to spread from New England and Virginia into other colonies.

Because he was from Virginia and had had military experiences, the Second Continental Congress appointed Washington commander-in-chief of all colonial forces. On July 3, 1775, Washington took command of the colonial army at Cambridge, Mass.

In 1783, Washington, now 51 years old, reached Mount Vernon in time to spend Christmas with Martha and Patsy and Jacky. The war had aged him and he now wore glasses.

As he had told his officers,

PLANS SUMMER WEDDING — A summer wedding, planned for Miss Jenice Rae of Amarillo, and James Henry Short, formerly of Hereford, is announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Dale Duer of Hooker, Oklahoma. Short is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Short of Stratford. Toboggans originated with prehistoric man who used animal skins to haul food, according to Werlich Toboggans. The modern toboggan was developed in Canada about 1880.

Wheat farmers seed 3.5M acres for 1971 harvest

Texas winter wheat seedings for harvest in 1971 are estimated at 3,512,000 acres, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is approximately one percent less than acres seeded for the 1970 crop.

Texas wheat production is forecast at 7,240,000 bushels. This is approximately eight percent below the 1970 estimate. Wheat in the Northern High Plains continues to experience adverse conditions. Dry and wheat is in critical need of moisture, while irrigated wheat is being hampered by blowing dust and mite infestation. In the lower part of the Northern High Plains, wheat has started putting out flag leaves as it approaches the boot stage.

Of the 47 counties reporting to this office, the condition of the crop as of April 10 was reported as follows:

— 31 counties reported their crop in poor condition.
— 15 counties reported their crop in average condition.
— No counties reported their crop in good condition.
The county reported their dryland crop in poor condition, but their irrigated crop in good condition.

Past residents become parents

A son was born at 8 p. m. Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rayburn, former residents of Hereford, at Canyon's Neblett Hospital.

Russell Lynn weighed 6 lbs. 5 1/2 ozs. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Guthrie of Canyon and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Rayburn of Hereford.

Lake Erie actually is two contiguous basins, each with its own currents and characteristics, according to National Geographic.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED — June 12 is the date announced for the wedding of Miss Maella Sue Crosthwait of Garland and Charles Atchley of Hereford, student in Texas A&M. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Crosthwait of Colorado City and Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Atchley, who live west of Hereford. The marriage will be conducted in First Baptist Church of Olney and the couple plans a home in College Station. Miss Crosthwait, a teacher in Garland Schools, is a graduate of Olney High School, Howard County Junior College and Hardin-Simmons University. Enrolled now in the school of veterinary medicine at A&M, Mr. Atchley formerly attended West Texas State University and was graduated from Hereford High School.

Simms community house has taken on new life

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

BUILT AT a crossroads in northwest Deaf Smith County in 1950, Simms Community Center was for a good many years the center only of widely scattered farm and ranch homes. Now a community has grown up around the building, with a store, businesses with supplies for farmers, a grain company and several residences.

Used for many purposes through the years, the building was put in that location principally for a place to vote, says Mrs. Glenn Hetzler of 517 Star, a longtime resident of the Simms area who helped plan its construction.

Not only to hold elections, but as a club meeting place and a site for square dances, shows, showers, community parties on Thanksgiving and Christmas, ice cream socials and young people's parties, it proved its worth in a few years, Mrs. Hetzler adds.

RESIDENTS of the community, who put their own work and money into building it, took care of it in those first years, "as long as the ones who built it were living out there," the former resident says.

Then for a time it was not used so much, although people of the neighborhood still voted there and there were occasional community gatherings.

Recently, though, it has taken on new life with organization of the Simms Lions Club, which meets in the building. Women of Simms Study-Craft Club, who have been largely responsible for keeping in usable condition in the past, have plans for cleaning and repairs to be done this spring.

THE COMMUNITY center is almost a necessity when it was built, Mrs. Hetzler says, because unlike most rural neighborhoods there was not even an old schoolhouse or church to be used as a voting place; elections were held in homes.

Businessmen and farm supply companies in Hereford contributed to the building fund, and men of the community did most of the work with some done by hired carpenters.

"We used to have a lot of fun in that building, and I hear they do still," Mrs. Hetzler smiles, remarking that she feels the new Lions Club will be a big asset to that part of the county.

She was a member of the women's club from its reorganization in 1938 until she and her husband moved to Hereford in 1965. They had lived in Simms neighborhood since 1931.

"WE CERTAINLY picked a fine time to move there, just in time for the dust-bowl years," Mrs. Hetzler says. However, they moved from Western Oklahoma, which had its own troubles with the drought of the 1930's. They were farmers in both locations, growing wheat and row crops.

"There were a lot of 42 games played by the farmers during those dry years," Mrs. Hetzler remembers. "Many days the wind blew so hard and it was so dusty that outdoor work couldn't be done, and besides it was too dry to farm.

"Women couldn't do their work, either; it would have been silly to clean house in a sandstorm, or try to hang out a washing. Neighbors often gathered at one house and spent most of a day playing 42, until the children came in from school.

"But when we did get a pretty day, we sure worked!"

YEAR AFTER year the farmers of Simms community planted wheat and failed to harvest a crop, she relates, and then says with a grim, "We did not get our seed back, but the seed only cost 25 cents a bushel. We had made a crop in 1931, and sold it for that price."

The Hetzlers hauled water from a well a mile and a half from their place, for their own use and to water their milk cows.

This was not an irrigation well; that part of the county had no irrigation at that time, except, Mrs. Hetzler says, there was a place on the Vega-Hereford highway that had a well from which a truck garden was irrigated. She remembers the name of that farmer as Carl Croff, and tells of buying fresh vegetables from him.

She believes the drought conditions of the 1930's will never be repeated in this country, since land use practices have changed and so much of the area is irrigated.

"BUT SOME people think it didn't rain at all during the dry years," she smiles. "It rained every year, twice a year. Looking back, seems like I can remember a rain every year in August, just before school started, and another in May, just before the end of school. Big gully-washers, but the water ran off and the

Mrs. Crump to head committee

Mrs. C. J. Crump was appointed to head the nominating committee for Calliopean Study Club with the assistance of Mrs. Gene Parsley and Mrs. Dale Furr. They were named at a Thursday evening meeting to select a slate of officers for next season.

Mrs. Irving Alexander, hostess, welcomed Miss Emma Barnsley from New York City, a guest of Mrs. George Warner.

Sue James presented the program, Age of Enlightenment - Eighteenth Century, saying "People began to think for themselves on issues concerning religion and government during the 18th Century."

During a brief business session the group discussed club participation in the month-long Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce's Clean-up Hereford program.

Members present for the meeting were Meses. Dale Furr, David Gibson, Ansel McDowell, D. C. McWhorter, Millard Nobles, Gene Parsley, D. W. Palmer and Warner.

Mrs. Tom Kendrick will be hostess for the April 29 meeting. Program will be given by Mrs. Palmer on the topic, A New Age Begins.

Mrs. J. V. Perrin, a member, presented a program for Bippus Home Demonstration Club members concerning the proper way to sew lingerie.

"Tricot has all the quality desirable in lingerie - durability, easy care and comfort. Because of stretchability a medium weight tricot is most generally used in sewing lingerie," she said.

Mrs. J. A. Hanson of Plainview, sister of the hostess, Mrs. C. T. Douglas, was a guest.

Members present were Meses. G. V. Hall, C. F. Burk, C. T. Homfeld, Wayne Sifford, John Hill, Kenneth Tolbert and Jimmie Bradley.

The May 12 meeting will be held at 2 p. m. in the Sifford home.

Rebekahs survey cleanup month

Responsibility of each person in the city cleanup month here, was emphasized as members of the Rebekah Lodge discussed the community campaign at their meeting this week. Twenty members joined in the informal program.

Mrs. Bea Cox and Mrs.

Henry Murrell were elected delegates to the Panhandle Association of Rebekahs to be held in Amarillo April 24 and 25. Mrs. Jim Loving presided for the meeting.

Mrs. David Rettman was hostess, and served refreshments in a social period.

First birthday marked in DAR

First anniversary of Los Cluboleros Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, was marked in its meeting Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. L. W. Norvell.

A major service of the DAR on a national level, support of schools for American Indians, was the subject of the program, given by Mrs. Alfred Smith.

She discussed Bacone College near Muskogee, Okla., and St. Mary's School for Girls in Springfield, S. D. Both these schools were organized in the late 1800's and have long records of accomplishments in education of Indians, she said.

Some 50 tribes are represented to Bacone, located in the center of the Cherokee, Choctaw, Creek, Chickasaw and Seminole nations. It is a private, church-related junior college which will soon become a four-year liberal arts college.

St. Mary's is a boarding school for 85 girls in grades five through nine, Mrs. Smith continued, and emphasis is put on teaching domestic skills. Most of the graduates continue their education, she reported, and many choose careers of teaching or other aid to the Indian.

A patriotic theme appeared on the tea table, centered with an arrangement of red, white and blue carnations. A large red candle in the center of a white cake honored the birthday of the chapter.

Refreshments were served to Mmes. Jess Robinson, Ray Carlisle, Sue James, H. M. Booser, Roy V. Smith, V. O. Hensen, Joe Reinauer, Jeff Smart, Smith and Miss Mildred Elliott.

KPAN is No. 1 in conservation; will get award

Radio Station KPAN was selected last week as the outstanding radio station in the state in the field of conservation.

The award, a plaque, will be presented to representatives of the radio station at a banquet May 1 in Fort Worth.

The Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District entered KPAN in the contest in the radio division. The district also nominated entries for the district conservation farmer and newspaper divisions.

The award, sponsored by the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, is an annual affair and the award to be presented to KPAN will mark the first time in the awards 26 years that a Hereford entry has won the state award.

KPAN assists the SCS office by airing a weekly program, helps with the annual fall crops tour and provides occasional spots.

Guests present music for club

Guests presented a special program for Dawn Music Club this week, and other guests were present to hear it in Dawn Baptist Church. Mrs. Allen Cansler and Mrs. Bill Devers of Hereford gave the program of famous opera arias.

Songs by Mrs. Cansler, with Mrs. Devers as pianist, were When I Am Laid in Earth from Purcell's opera, Dido and Aeneas; Jewel Song from Gounod's Faust; My Man's Gone Now, and Summertime, from Porgy and Bess, folk opera by George Gershwin. Another solo was Without a Song, by Youmans.

Mrs. Clarence Betzen, vice president, poured tea at a table decorated with spring flowers.

Guests welcomed by Mrs. Alfred Smith, president, were Mmes. W. T. Beavers, Garry Smith, Eldon Owens and Miss Betty Stewart, also Mrs. Bill Carthel of Black. Ten members were present.

H.D. club plans birthday party and bake sale

Members of North Hereford Home Demonstration Club met Thursday with Miss Roberta Campbell to discuss plans for a trip to Gristown and a bake sale slated for next month.

The group will journey to Gristown May 22 with a birthday cake and gifts for Kathy Skinner a Gristown resident who is sponsored by the club.

A bake sale is scheduled May 8 beginning at 9:30 a. m. at Sugarland Mall.

Miss Campbell presented the program on Air and Water Pollution.

"If nothing is done to curtail air pollutants, by 1980 there will be no oxygen left in the air for us to breathe," she said. "We must teach our families not to litter, which eventually will pollute our water supplies."

Refreshments were served to Mmes. Gaylon Bryan, J. A. Crofford, T. E. Brisendine, W. J. Lueb, Hylton Brown, Otto Olson, Iva Salzman, C. L. Whitehead and Clinton Ward.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gracey, Brownfield, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Judy Jon, to Weldon Wayne Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Miller, Route 3. The date has been set for June 5 in Crescent Hill Church of Christ in Brownfield. Miss Gracey, a 1965 Brownfield High School graduate, attended Lubbock Christian College and commercial college. She is employed by Lubbock State School. Her fiancé was named Outstanding Football Player his senior year at Hereford High School, and, now a resident of Lubbock, is employed by Joe Fry Electric. He will resume studies this fall at Texas Tech, where he is a junior.

Mission standout signs with Buffs

Merced Solis, a standout football player from Mission, Tex., has signed an athletic scholarship agreement with West Texas State University.

The 6-3, 200-pounder was signed by WTSU assistant Leldon Hensley. Solis was named to the all-district 29-AAAA team last fall as a defensive back. He was a running back and tight end on offense.

"Merced is a fine athlete who will be tried at several positions," said Hensley. "He has the size, speed and aggressiveness to develop into a fine college linebacker or tight end."

Solis was a three-year starter in both football and basketball. He was the district scoring leader in basketball this past season, scoring 27.9 points per game.

Mission head football coach Bob Holloway said, "Merced has figured in on better than half of our tackles from his safety position. He is one of the finer athletes I have ever been associated with and will be a fine collegiate player."

Clyde Whitaker takes top series

Clyde Whitaker rolled a 684 handicap to take Bowler of the Week honors in the Major League.

He also had the high three game scratch of 574 while Bobby Watts rolled a 227 for the single game scratch.

The Athletic Shirts won the high single game team honors with a 994 and Team No. 6 rolled a 288 for the high three game team tokens.

In play last week, Team No. 6 won four from the Rounders, E-Z-Way Grocery won three from Ink Spot, Boyd Machine Shop won three from Orval Watson Ford, P.Piggly won three from Sulleys Vending, Athletic Shirts won three from Sunset Lanes, and Missouri Beef and Worley and Robb split.

Standings have Athletic Shirts, 48 1/2-7 1/2; Sunset Lanes, 34-22; Ink Spot, 31 1/4-24 1/4; Piggly Wiggly, 31-25; Missouri Beef, 30-25; Boyd Machine Shop 28-28; Team Nmo. 6, 27 1/2-25 1/2; Worley and Robb, 26 1/2-29 1/2; Orval Watson Ford, 26-30; Sulleys

Vending, 22-34; E-Z-Way Grocery, 22-34; and Rounders, 11-45.

Dale Carnegie courses begin Thursday night

The Dale Carnegie course in public speaking and human relations will begin in Hereford Thursday night.

The course will continue each Thursday night thereafter for 14 weeks. The meetings, at the Cattlemen's Restaurant, start at 7 p. m.

Forty-four persons, including five out-of-town residents, have signed up for the course. They have been asked to come at about 6:45 p. m. for the first session, which will be devoted to learning how to remember names and developing courage and self confidence.

Each of the classes will run for four hours.

shapelings

It's today—and the Shapelings take over! They fit—perfectly. They cling—tightly. Yet they show not at all. Just a hint of shaping—with maximum stretch but never a line, even under the skin-tight parts of the slinkiest knits. Lorraine's new Shapelings are cool and contained and totally comfortable. Start with the bra—for the "no bra" look... without the embarrassment. The panties react—either bikini panties or brief. And, how about the lace-trimmed pant-lier? The Shapelings are a brand of 85% Acetate Nylon and 15% Lycra® Spandex so they dry in the blink of an eye. Each of the Shapelings comes in a wide range of colors.
