

Texans optimistic about state's future

By The Associated Press

As the state ends 150 years of independence amid its worst economic problems in decades, Texans are optimistic but believe significant changes lie ahead.

Many of those surveyed as the Sesquicentennial year drew to a close predicted lean times in the next few years and warned that Texas must wean itself from a dependence on oil and gas.

They said preparation through education and job training is necessary as the state ushers in a period that will see changes ranging from the way Texans earn their money to the way they fight crime.

"There's just a spirit about Texas that will never die, and through the difficult times, we'll learn from it and get stronger," said former

Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach. "The foundation is solid and I think the future is very bright."

"I'm betting with Texas," said U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm. "Anyone who bets money on the future of Texas and the future of America is going to be a big winner."

Despite difficult times in agriculture and the oil and gas industry, Gramm noted the state's increasing involvement in defense contracting and high technology.

"My batting average has been rather poor in trying to forecast the future of the oil and gas industry over the last several years," said Fort Worth oilman Eddie Chiles, who also owns the Texas Rangers baseball team.

But, he said, "The oil business is not over in Texas. I think it peaked out about '83 and I think we'll probably never see that sort of drilling boom again."

Oilman Jack Grimm of Abilene, who made news with his search for the Titanic, said incentives are necessary to make the industry attractive again for investors.

"Oil and gas played a most prominent role in the past of Texas and it certainly will in the future," Grimm said. "The great state still has a lot of reserves to drill for and produce, but we've got to have the prices right to justify doing that."

Houston defense lawyer Percy Foreman predicted a rough period of up to four years before things get better.

"I think it's likely to be as bad as it's ever been, as it was in the '30s," Foreman said. "I think that it'll come back. I think Houston will be the third greatest city in the world, second only to maybe New York and Los Angeles, and maybe Mexico City. Certainly the largest city."

Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire said she also sees a growing role in international business.

"We have so many nationalities here now, 30,000 Indians and 300,000 Asians, for instance, they're helping us establish contacts around the world."

"If you can last long enough, Texas will come back," said merchandiser Stanley Marcus. "But it's not going to happen in a hurry."

Gov. Mark White, whose administration oversaw the passage of substantial education reforms said, "No one can predict what the future holds, but it seems the best educated always get there first. I'm convinced that if Texas is No. 1 in the country in education, Texas will also be No. 1 in jobs, No. 1 in opportunity and No. 1 in prosperity."

Ruben Bonilla, chairman of the Mexican American Democrats, pointed to the state's swelling population of Hispanics, especially in schools along a line from El Paso to Corpus Christi.

"The challenge, then, for all Texans, is how we're going to educate these students and prepare them for jobs in a highly technological society that we're now living in," Bonilla said.

"The next 50 years, as we move toward the bicentennial, will be a period of redevelopment and diversification of our assets and resources to the point that things will get better and people will start to migrate here again. As we approach the year 2000, Texas will regain its prominence," predicted state Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston.

Agriculture Secretary Jim Hightower said Texas farms of the future will be more diversified. In addition to raising beef and grain, a farmer also might produce pinto beans and wine grapes, he said.

"If there's a price problem with a staple commodity, you've got this other stuff to see you over," Hightower said. "That means an agriculture that is much more consumer-oriented than it has been in the past."

And Col. Jim Adams, director of the Texas Department of Public

Progress reported in negotiations on funds

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — U.S. and Iranian negotiators in The Hague have made progress toward return of $507.7 million in Iranian funds held at the New York Federal Reserve Bank, an informed Iranian source said today.

Officials from the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the U.S. Treasury Department, the Iranian Central Bank and the Iranian government arranged a second straight day of talks this afternoon at the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal.

The two sides met for 3½ hours Monday.

Tehran has linked return to Iran of all its assets blocked in America to Iran's possible intercession on behalf of American hostages in Lebanon.

This is the third series of meetings the United States and Iran have held recently on the issue of Account Number One, the $507.7 million residue of a $3.66 billion account at the New York Federal Reserve. That account was established with Iranian money in 1981 to pay off syndicated bank loans.

The amount was given earlier as $506 million. Today's figure of $507.7 million was given by the New York Federal Reserve and reflected continuing interest.

"They have progressed," an Iranian source privy to the negotiations told The Associated Press. "I hope they reach some outline (for a solution) by today."

"The tribunal already gave the view that this money is the property of the Islamic Republic of Iran, and they (the United States) should transfer it immediately and promptly," said the source, referring to a tribunal decision last August which led to the negotiations.

The tribunal was set up in 1981 to mediate billions of dollars in financial claims between the United States and Iran that resulted from the 1979 Iranian revolution which overthrew the shah.

Account Number One took on added significance when Hashemi Rafsanjani, the Iranian parliament speaker, stressed that Iranian assets in the United States must be returned prior to any Iranian intercession on behalf of American hostages in Lebanon.

"That is the statement, including all Iranian assets and all Iranian property in the United States," said the Iranian source, who demanded anonymity.

While both sides in The Hague negotiations have specified that these discussions are only financial in nature, the Iranian source said Account Number One is considered part of those assets.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said earlier. "We see no link whatsoever between these funds and the hostages." She described the talks as "technical discussions."

Six Americans are missing in Lebanon, and most are believed held by pro-Iranian Shiite Muslims.

The United States has agreed to the return of the bulk of the funds sought by Iran.

Woman killed by gunshot

Hereford police are investigating the shooting death of an 18-year-old woman at the Grand E Trailer Park Monday night.

Police reports say that Marina Tamez was shot twice in the head at around 11 p.m. last night while at her sister's home.

Police have issued a warrant for the arrest of Florentino Carbajal, 22, of Hereford, in connection with the slaying.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine said the victim was apparently the common-law wife of Carbajal.

Turrentine said the victim received a shot from what appears to be a .38 caliber bullet.

Turrentine added that the bullet that killed Tamez lodged in her spinal cord in the base of the head.

There were no details of what may have caused the shooting.

Duplex Fire

David Kreig, center, pulls wood from the eaves of a duplex at 118 Fuller which burned Saturday. The structure was fully engulfed in flames when firefighters arrived at 10:06 a.m. The duplex, owned by Sam Ruiz and occupied by Sylvia Soliz, was gutted. There were no injuries. Fire Marshall Jay Spain said the fire started due to a faulty wall heater. During the weekend firemen also doused a vehicle fire at Southwest Feedyards and an auto accident in the 600 block of 15th.

Sarpalius fractures back in four-wheel accident

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Bill Sarpalius was hospitalized in Amarillo after suffering a fracture in his back when a four-wheeler he was riding ran into a ditch and flipped twice.

The accident occurred Friday as Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, and his 13-year-old son were riding their four-wheel recreational vehicles in the basin along the Canadian River in Oldham County.

Sarpalius was listed in good condition at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo with a cracked vertebra in the second lumbar of his back. He is expected to remain in the hospital another seven to 10 days.

His son David was not hurt in the accident.

According to a statement from Sarpalius' Austin office, doctors told the senator no permanent paralysis or loss of feeling is expected as a result of the accident. Sarpalius said, however, his left thigh is numb.

"It's pretty rough going right now, but the doctors tell me I'll be ready to go by the time the regular (legislative) session starts on Jan. 13," he said in a statement. "I'll have to wear a back brace for awhile and undergo a lot of therapy, but the doctors say I shouldn't have much trouble working through the session."

Economists forecast growth rate similar to this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy is likely to stumble a bit in the early part of 1987, but then rebound to a growth rate very much like this year, many economists believe.

These analysts believe that the economy will receive a jolt from the massive overhaul of the tax system in the first three months of the year, but will recover in later months as the trade deficit finally begins to show improvement.

More about future economic activity will be known today when the government releases its November report on the Index of Leading Indicators, its chief forecasting gauge.

In advance of the report's release, many analysts were looking for a strong gain of around 1 percent.

The leading index rose 0.6 percent in October after a smaller 0.2 percent rise in September.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, said he expected a 1 percent rise, reflecting strong gains in factory orders and stock market prices. But he cautioned against reading too much into the November index.

"The leading index is reflecting the relatively strong growth we are having right now, not what we can expect for the first part of next year," he said.

Evans and other economists believe that the current strength is coming from a last-minute buying spree on the part of businesses and consumers who are rushing to take advantage of expiring tax breaks before the new tax law takes effect Jan. 1.

Many analysts believe that the economy, as measured by the gross national product, is growing at close to a 3 percent rate in the current October-November quarter. However, economists believe this growth is being borrowed from the early part of 1987 and they are predicting economic activity will slump dramatically in the January-March quarter.

Reagan expected to announce retaliatory trade measures

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan is expected to announce retaliatory measures against some European farm exports in a trade dispute the United States says is costing American farmers $400 million to $500 million a year.

The White House said presidential decisions in this and another trade dispute, involving Brazilian computer imports, would be announced here today by U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter.

Reagan flew here from Los Angeles Monday after awarding Presidential Citizen's Medals to Richard Rutan and Jeana Yeager, pilots of the globe-girdling Voyager aircraft, and Burt Rutan, the plane's designer.

Boarding Air Force One in Los Angeles, Reagan was asked how ailing CIA Director William J. Casey is doing and replied, "I don't have any information on it."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters aboard the plane that the president is not looking for a successor to Casey, who is recovering from surgery to remove a malignant brain tumor.

After arriving here, the president retired behind the fences and high hedges of Sunnyslands, an estate belonging to publisher Walter Annenberg.

Anyone desiring to contribute to Hereford's Christmas Stocking Fund may do so today or Wednesday, since the CSF committee is extending help to several families the week after Christmas.

The fund total reached $10,596.40 yesterday with an additional donation of $25 from Larry and Daphne Sowers. It is by far the largest total ever accumulated for the Stocking Fund, with the previous high being $8,417 in 1982.

There was a typographical error in the last report. The contribution from "GJH" should have been $360, not $350.

Police sent to Howard Beach

NEW YORK (AP) — Police fearing further racial violence beefed up patrols in Howard Beach today after a judge dismissed murder charges against white youths in an attack on three black men that has sparked two retaliatory beatings.

Criminal Court Judge Ernest Bianchi threw out murder, manslaughter and assault charges Monday against the three teens after the two surviving victims of the Dec. 19 attack in the white neighborhood refused to testify.

Bianchi substituted reckless endangerment charges against Jon Lester, Scott Kern and Jason Ladone, leaving no one charged specifically with the death of Michael Griffith, who was hit and killed by a car as he fled a white gang.

Black gangs chanting "Howard Beach" have since attacked a white youth and a light-skinned Hispanic man, the latter Sunday, in apparent retaliation.

Three dozen blacks among those who packed the courtroom Monday reacted to Bianchi's ruling with screams of "injustice," and elected officials and black leaders voiced criticism of it and of maneuvering by the victims' attorneys.

Attorneys for Cedric Sandiford and Timothy Grimes said they would only let them testify if Dominick Blum, 24, the driver of the car that hit Griffith, was charged with murder. Police have said Blum had no connection with the attack.

Sandiford's lawyer, Alton Maddox, contends Blum was a willing participant.

"There will never be a conviction of a white man who murdered a black man in New York City," Maddox said outside the Queens courtroom.

Manhattan Borough President David Dinkins, the city's highest elected black official, said the ruling "creates the impression that New York City will tolerate the vicious actions of a racist gang."

Emigres say used for propaganda

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Soviet officials hailed 50 emigres who returned to the U.S.S.R. as the vanguard of an exodus, but the Soviet people will regard them as fools, says a group that helps emigres adjust to Western life.

The emigres who decided to abandon life in the United States arrived Monday night in Moscow on a flight from New York City in what Radio Moscow portrayed as the first wave of hundreds of returnees from the West.

Although Soviet officials have said they were the largest single group to return from the United States, Rabbi Elazer Grafstein, executive director of the Committee for the Absorption of Soviet Emigres, said the number was insignificant except for propaganda purposes.

"When you have thousands of people clamoring to get out of the country, it is helpful to have even a handful come back and say America is not the oasis in the desert they thought it was," Grafstein said Monday.

Some of the returnees may even have come to the United States with the intention of returning as part of a propaganda campaign, Grafstein said.

His group, known as CASE, has worked since its founding in 1974 with about 700 of the 1,000 Soviet emigre families that have settled in this Hudson River city. None of Sunday's returnees were affiliated with CASE, officials said.

Alex Milstein and Victor Golubchik, both 31 and Jewish Soviet emigres who work at the center, said they recalled seeing reports in which returning Soviet emigres told of their disenchantment in America.

Baptist missionary files suit

ATLANTA (AP) — Saying he was forced out of a Snellville congregation, a Baptist missionary has filed a $2 million libel suit against the church and its former pastor.

The Rev. Pat Clark and his wife Dodie Clark, who now live in Henderson, Texas, filed suit in U.S. District Court against the Dogwood Drive Missionary Baptist Church of Snellville Inc., and its former pastor, Bobby Bear.

Clark contends Bear expelled him from the church in May 1985 and then sent letters to the 2,000 member churches of the American Baptist Association, informing them that Clark had been dismissed from the church "for immoral conduct" involving two women members.

Clark denies that he ever did anything improper involving the two women church members.

Tax hike may be needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading Senate Democrat says the Reagan administration will have to either raise taxes or cut some defense programs if it wants Congress to approve $2.8 billion in new Pentagon spending, including a down payment on new, more powerful rockets for "Star Wars" missile defenses.

The budget request was unveiled Monday by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who told a news conference that the money is necessary for "a vital set of needs."

The extra money would finance a pay raise for the country's 2.1 million uniformed personnel, changes in the health care system, destruction of old chemical weapons and add $500 million to the Star Wars budget.

If approved, the money would raise the defense budget for fiscal 1987, which began last Oct. 1, to $292.2 billion. It was the latest shot in the long-running defense budget fight between the Reagan administration and Congress.

Reagan's defense buildup won large Pentagon budget increases during his first term, but Congress has essentially frozen defense spending in each of the past two years. Next week, Weinberger will unveil the defense budget for fiscal 1988, which begins next October, and he is expected to ask for about $312 billion.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., incoming chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Monday that Weinberger will have trouble winning approval for the $2.8 billion addition.

Congressional passage of the measure is unlikely, said Nunn, unless the administration comes up with new revenues or cuts in other programs "because the till is empty. There is no more money in the cash register."

One of the main parts of the new request is $500 million for the Strategic Defense Initiative, Reagan's anti-missile research program popularly known as Star Wars. Reagan wanted $5.4 billion this year for SDI, but Congress cut it to $3.6 billion and the new request would raise the total to $4.1 billion.

Nunn noted that the SDI budget has risen 20 percent a year for the past several years and added, "the burden is going to be on the administration to tell us why" last year's 20 percent hike wasn't enough.

Of the SDI request, $110 million would go for research into new types of rockets which could eventually boost huge payloads of 50 to 75 tons into orbit.

That would be far larger than the 32-ton capability of the U.S. space shuttle, the largest current American rocket system. It would also be bigger than the estimated 30-ton payload capability of the Soviet Union.

Weinberger declined to offer details on the new rocket system, beyond saying that "it's a logical next step" in the program to develop defenses against Soviet nuclear missiles.

OPTIMISTIC

Safety, said crime may change.

"One-hundred and 50 years ago, livestock theft was more of a threat to frontier society than drug abuse, but the basic problem remains. ... What has and will change is that technology available not only to law enforcement but to criminals," Adams said. "The time when law enforcement could be accomplished with good, willing, well-armed volunteers on fast horses is long gone."

El Paso Mayor Jonathan Rogers jokingly suggested his city might secede.

"We're sending more taxes to Austin than we're getting," he said.

"I see good things happening in El Paso," said Rogers, whose city is not as dependent on oil as the rest of the state. "I see continued growth and more jobs."

Another border mayor, Othel Brand of McAllen, said one problem facing the entire country is wages far above the rest of the world in some industries.

"We are in an international competitive world today where we are not the only future industrial force," he said.

Many Texans look to Mexico as the source of many changes.

"For Texas, Mexico has become a contiguous state with an enormous mushrooming population and an enormous reserve of oil," said Charles Pistor, chairman of RepublicBank of Dallas. "It has to be politically and economically stabilized. Otherwise, it's a ticking Cuba."

San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros said he would like to be optimistic about Texas' future.

"But I think to be naively optimistic is to miss the severity of some of the fundamental problems facing the state," Cisneros said. "Perhaps, if we set them out as fundamental as they are, then we will get by all the myths, realize we're all in a corner and we'll brawl our way out of it."

In December, the state's second- and third-largest banks announced a merger and another announced it was merging with a New York bank.

"Even before the downturn of the economy, the state was overbanked," said Ronald G. Steinhart, president of InterFirst Corp. of Dallas. "It is just like having too many truckers or too many airlines. There will be a consolidation phase, and the weakness in certain sectors of the Texas economy will accelerate that."

C. Austin Montgomery of Malakoff, Henderson County Republican Party Chairman, said that as a result of the past two elections, "We will finally see Texas become a two-party state, to the extent of being in the local level, as well as the state level."

Pat Boyers, 30, of Greenville said she sees Texas as an "exciting place to live," with the beginnings of a new economy and more than ample room for growth.

"I think you're going to see more of a move toward the metropolplex-type areas," said Ms. Boyers, the senior draftsman at E-Systems. "I think you're going to see a greater growth in the small areas."

"Texas will come through," said retiree Richard L. Terry of Big Spring. "Out here in West Texas, they're working hard to get some government-related industry started, and I think they'll do it eventually."

Boyd Foster, a natural foods distributor in Hereford, said farmers always have shown an ability to bounce back.

"They've survived drought, depression and low prices," Foster said. "Growing methods likely will need to be adapted to methods more in balance with nature, with less dependency on extensive use of chemicals. Strength, courage and innovation will be keys to survival for near and long term."

And Jed Mahon, night manager of the Bar-L Drive Inn in Wichita Falls, said he believed the oil economy would get better.

"I think we'll stay depressed for the next year as far as industry goes, but oil will come up some. Not to where it used to be, though," Mahon said.

"I think we're in for some rough times, and I don't think it's going to leave overnight," said Tyler assistant city manager Pinkney Butler. "I don't feel real good about it but, by the end of the decade, Texas will bounce back leaner and smarter."

Much of the "crisis" mentality may be due to Texas' shift toward a service-oriented economy, said Connie Calloway of Palestine, chairman of the East Texas Council on governments.

"Since we're not seeing a tangible product, we think we're in a crisis," she said. "Just because we do not have a boom going does not mean we are in bad shape."

"It's been said so many times it sounds like a cliché, but what we need is diversification," said Earl Brickhouse, executive director of public affairs at Lamar University in Beaumont.

"Dallas started to diversify years ago," Brickhouse said. "Houston is in the same fix as Beaumont. Their whole economy is based on oil. History repeats itself. We have a late start, but we'll pull out in a few years."

Said Laredo school spokesman Gilberto Reyes: "I think Texans have a very strong will to make things right, correct a problem and find solutions to it. We're experiencing some hard times, but Texas will be ahead once all of this has been addressed. We don't give up. That's a quality Texans have."

Some 131 debtor countries, mostly in the Third World, have a combined debt of more than $1 trillion. At the start of 1986, the top debtors were Brazil ($107.3 billion), Mexico ($99 billion) and Argentina ($50.8 billion).

County declared eligible for disaster funds for crops

Deaf Smith County has been declared eligible for disaster payments on 1986 crops, but ASCS executive John Fuston said it is likely that very little of the $400 million appropriated nationally will reach West Texas.

Fuston said the money was originally directed to the drought-stricken southeastern part of the U.S. and that payments will be prorated unless Congress appropriates more money.

Deaf Smith County, Fuston explained, was declared a disaster because it adjoins Castro County which had more extreme crop damage.

Each eligible crop needs an application from each producer if less than 50 percent of his ASCS program yield has been, or is expected to be, harvested. Applications should be done by January 10, 1987. Fuston requests that his office be called starting Friday to make appointments to better serve farmers.

Insured crops and non-program crops may also qualify for the disaster payments.

The disaster program will apply mostly to cotton, due to a wet spring and wet fall. The early freeze does not qualify a crop for disaster payments.

New tax laws to take affect Jan 1

COLLEGE STATION -- Tax management is taking on some new twists with the new tax code that goes into effect Jan. 1, 1987.

One change relates to the adoption of taxable years different from the calendar year, points out Dr. Ashley Lovell, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Under the new law, in general, all partnerships, S-corporations and personal service corporations must conform their taxable years to the taxable years of the owners, says Lovell. However, if the entity can establish a business purpose for having a different taxable year than that of the owners, to the satisfaction of the IRS, then it can have a taxable period different from the calendar year.

Regarding development expenses in farming and ranching, the new tax law provides uniform capitalization rules that cover costs of preproductive periods that exceed two years for developing orchards and breeding livestock, effective Jan. 1, 1987. There is a special election under which farmers may elect to deduct preproduction expenditures currently rather than having to capitalize them.

Amounts that are expensed off annually during the preproduction period will be subject to recapture as ordinary income when raised plants or breeding livestock are sold, notes Lovell. If the special election is made, then all assets placed in service during that period are ineligible for ACRS depreciation. Instead, they must be depreciated under the alternate straight-line method.

Deductions for soil and water conservation as well as land clearing also have been restricted by tax reform. The new law limits deductions for soil and water conservation expenses to those investments approved by the Soil Conservation Service or a plan drawn up by a state conservation agency, effective for such expenditures after Dec. 31.

Land clearing expenses are no longer deductible after Dec. 31, 1985. This means that agricultural producers will have to capitalize such expenses, adding them to the basis of

Donations to scholarship still being taken

Contributions to the Casey Smith Memorial Scholarship Fund can still be made at Hereford State Bank, a spokesman from the Key Club announced today.

Wednesday will be the final day of 1986 for contributions to be made at the bank. Smith, a former member of the Key Club, died Dec. 2 following injuries sustained in an auto accident.

A scholarship will be awarded each year to a HHS graduating senior athlete who plans to attend West Texas State University, and the Key Club will administer the plan.

the land, says the economist. Producers will still be able to deduct brush control costs an other maintenance type expenses.

Beginning this Jan. 1, meal, travel and entertainment expenses for business purposes will be limited to 80 percent of the cost, adds Lovell. The new tax law also includes a phaseout of deductions for luxury skyboxes at stadiums, a limit on deductions for travel on cruise ships, and elimination of deductions for educational travel and other travel, such as to attend investment seminars.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I find your column very helpful and interesting. I'd like to share some thoughts on teenage pregnancies.

I am 21 years old and got pregnant when I was 16. I didn't think of an abortion and when I told my parents it was too late. I refused to put my baby up for adoption although now I know it would have been for the better.

I lived with the baby's father for four years and had another child. Bill drank like a fish and ran around on me. I was a high school dropout, stuck with two kids, and I was not a terrific mother. To be honest, I felt trapped and hated it.

I finally got fed up, went for counseling, left Bill and moved back home with two kids and no education. I had never learned to drive, never held a job, and I had to apply for welfare. Now I am starting my life over and I've learned a lot. Believe me, it is not easy to be 21 and have two kids.

PLEASE, Ann, tell those kids out there to use some form of contraceptive at all times. Taking chances is stupid and crazy. Ask me - I know. -PHILADELPHIA

DEAR PHILADELPHIA: There's a big campaign urging kids to say no. I think it's great, but I am aware once you've said "yes" it's not likely you'll say no. So - the realistic approach is, if you've been sexually active, or plan to be, be prepared. Contact Planned Parenthood for information and counseling centers. Write to the antinatal headquarters, 810 Seventh Ave., New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sending this letter to you because I can't reach the appropriate person directly. I'm sure he'll see it. Everyone reads Ann Landers.

Dear Fool: Tonight you nearly killed me, yourself, and your two passengers.

When you ran that red light, you put your life in my hands. We were incredibly lucky. I'm not a drinker. My eyesight and reflexes are good. I'm a cautious driver. I don't panic. Thank God I saw you in time and was able to stop. You sped by inches in front of my car and never even slowed down. It was bonechilling.

Had I been tired, or in a hurry or a less skillful driver, we would both be dead now. It has been half an hour since we almost died and I am still shaking. I hope that close call will turn you into a sane and sensible driver. -THANKFUL IN CAMBRIDGE

DEAR THANKFUL: The only way to stay alive behind the wheel of a car these days is to drive defensively. ASSUME the other fella is going to do the wrong thing. Be alert and ever-ready to protect yourself against his stupidity, ineptness and carelessness.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is marrying a fine young man. We are delighted. So, what's the problem?

It's the father of the groom. We had the wedding reception all planned, just as our family has done it for years - punch, coffee, wedding cake, mints and nuts - but the groom's father insisted on ordering lunchmeat, beans, potato salad and cole slaw. He said, "Don't worry, I'll pay for it."

Our daughter picked out the flowers she wanted and he went ahead and changed the order. He wants bigger corsages and roses instead of carnations. Again, he said, "Don't worry, I'll pay for it."

We are not poor people, Ann, and would prefer to do things OUR way. How can we keep this man from imposing his will on us? -DAVENPORT, IOWA

DEAR DAV: The way to keep people from imposing their will on you is to simply say, "Sorry, the plans are exactly the way we want them. Please stay out of it."

Obviously you were unable to utter these two simple sentences. I suggest you rehearse them for the next time someone tries to run roughshod over you.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement, Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage - What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Woman arrested on life television files suit

HOUSTON (AP) — A 28-year-old woman who claims she was defamed when she was arrested during a television program is suing reporter Geraldo Rivera, two production companies and law enforcement officers for a total of $30 million.

Terry G. Rouse also contends invasion of privacy, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution and conspiracy in the state district court action filed Monday.

The lawsuit stems from Ms. Rouse's arrest Dec. 2 during a drug bust broadcast on a two-hour special, "American Vice: The Doping of a Nation." A cocaine possession charge filed against Ms. Rouse after her arrest was thrown out by a state district judge after she spent two days in jail.

"We have discovered that this particular entertainment program was seen by over 15 million, so we have asked for $2 per person on that. We have asked for $30 million in exemplary damages," said Mary Heafner, Ms. Rouse's attorney.

Rivera, his production company, Maravilla Productions Co. Inc., the program's syndicator, Tribune Entertainment Co., as well as Harris County Sheriff Johnny Klevenhagen, sheriff's Sgt. W.F. Kessler, County Attorney Mike Driscoll and his assistant, John W. Mahoney, were named as defendants.

The suit states that during the raid Rivera said: "A pimp and his prostitutes are supplying truckers with coke and speed," and "A dude and his ladies are allegedly dealing out to the truckers."

Klevenhagen participated in the raid in Channelview, about 10 miles east of Houston.

Joan Torres, a secretary for Rivera in New York City, said he was out of the city and could not be reached for comment.

Chuck Senet, attorney for Chicago-based Tribune Entertainment, said, "I was expecting it (the lawsuit) only in the sense that they told us they were filing it."

Klevenhagen and Kessler are on vacation and could not be reached for comment, their secretaries said Monday.

Driscoll said he will ask the court to dismiss him and his assistant as defendants because there was no reason for them to be included in the suit. He also said he believes the sheriff acted correctly and wants to represent him.

"It's not the first time and not the last time I've been mentioned in a suit," Driscoll said. "As far as I'm concerned, this lawsuit will be handed just like the others."

Mahoney said he was not worried about the suit.

"I haven't seen a copy of it yet so I don't have any particular comment. Anyone can file a lawsuit," he said.

Ms. Heafner said the program was shown for a second time Dec. 4, but no mention was made of the charges being dismissed. Ms. Heafner said she asked Tribune Entertainment for an apology, but the request was denied.

Senet refused to comment on that allegation.

"I cannot understand that an investigative journalist as Geraldo Rivera — his job in life is to bring truth out to the public, then he shows such a lie on national television. And he still doesn't want to set the record straight on his own lies," Ms. Heafner said.

Now, between Christmas and New Year's, is the time the relatives gather for a gift-rapping session about what you gave them.

DR. GOTT

See doctor about dandruff problem

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have tried all sorts of home treatments and special shampoo for dandruff of the scalp and one eyebrow. I might just as well have used plain water. What can I do?

DEAR READER — Dandruff is caused by a skin condition called seborrhea. It usually responds to medicated shampoo. Ask your doctor about your dandruff, because your problem could be caused by another skin condition, such as psoriasis, for which other treatment would be more effective.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Why do men spit? You never see women spit, but men do it all the time. Is there a physiological reason for it?

DEAR READER — None whatsoever. Spitting is an unattractive and unsanitary habit that is both unladylike and ungentlemanly. Men spit for a variety of reasons, one being that their parents failed to teach them proper manners. Spitting may be a gender-related activity, but there is no physiological basis for it.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter, 52, has had a heart attack, nine operations on her nose to remove skin cancer, and she has allergies and bad sinuses. She gets bad nosebleeds — it's scary how much blood she loses. What do you think is causing them?

DEAR READER — Nosebleeds (epistaxis) occur when a vein or artery within the nose leaks blood. This can come from severe allergies (in which the nasal lining becomes inflamed), sinus infection, cancers that are present in the nose or injury (like that commonly produced by nose-pickers). Your daughter needs a thorough nose examination by a specialist, who might choose to cauterize (burn) the blood vessel that keeps bleeding. For more minor epistaxis, patients usually can stop the bleeding by applying firm pressure on either side of the nostril just below the nasal bone. Also, the use of nose sprays, like neosynepherine, can prevent nosebleeds and aid healing, but should not be used for more than two weeks. Incidentally, the folk remedy of putting ice or cold water on the neck does not stop nosebleeds.

Bears play Colorado in Bluebonnet Bowl

Baylor QB enjoys success

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Baylor quarterback Cody Carlson had fun sharing the quarterback position with Tom Muecke for four years because the team had success.

Now he's having more fun without the shuttle because the team is still having success.

"I would have liked to do this for four years," said Carlson, who led Baylor to an 8-3 record this season and a spot opposite Colorado in Wednesday's Bluebonnet Bowl.

"But it's easy to look back now and say things like that," Carlson added. "I wouldn't change my decision to go to Baylor and compete against Tom Muecke. But this year was very enjoyable, being the lone starter."

Baylor compiled a 21-13-1 record with the Carlson-Muecke shuttle system and played in the 1983 Bluebonnet Bowl and the 1985 Liberty Bowl.

This season, Carlson finally got his chance to solo and he adjusted quickly. The Bears rallied from a 4-3 start with four consecutive victories and the reward was a second appearance in four years in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

"It was a big change physically and mentally for me to have to prepare for a full game," Carlson said. "After that first game at Wyoming, I was really tired."

Sharing the quarterbacking position with Muecke was made bearable by success, Carlson said.

"If I had gone to a school with a highly recruited quarterback and never played, then I might have thought about what might have been," Carlson said. "But it was fairly easy. Everything has worked out well in the end. A lot of things that could have happened didn't."

"I learned a lot of patience with the shuttle. We always had success with the system and that made it easier to accept."

Carlson completed his college eligibility as the SWC's No. 5 ranked quarterback in total offense with 5,835 yards. He is ranked seventh with 366 completions, sixth with 5,411 net passing yards and ninth with 705 pass attempts. Each figure is a Baylor career record.

Colorado Coach Bill McCartney fears Carlson's experience.

"When you play against a fifth-year quarterback that's been to the floor as much as Carlson, that's what concerns me the most," McCartney said. "Those guys have a way of doing what needs to be done."

The Bears ranked fifth in the nation with 438.8 yards per game total offense with a balanced attack — 2,250 passing yards and 2,577 yards rushing.

"I don't know what else this offense could do," Carlson said. "We run the option, pass short and long, just about everything except quick-kick," Carlson said.

Carlson took over as team leader this season and helped the Bears through the tough part of the season after they dropped to 4-3.

"That was definitely the hardest part of the season," Carlson said. "A lot of dreams went out the window. It took us a couple of days to forget that loss (31-30 to Southwest Conference champion Texas A&M)."

"We knew we had a great team but sitting at 4-3 we could have a losing season if we folded our tents. We decided to win out the season and go to a bowl game."

In Clovis Holiday Tournament

Herd beats Portales, 72-46

The Hereford Whiteface varsity boys' basketball team scored a 72-46 victory over Portales Monday in a first-round game of the Clovis Holiday Tournament.

Hereford will play Clovis at 9:15 p.m. today, Central Standard Time. Clovis defeated Perryton 57-51 on Monday.

In other first-round games, Borger beat Tucumcari 102-78 and St. Pius X beat Muleshoe 76-37. Other games scheduled today are Perryton versus Portales, Tucumcari versus Muleshoe, and Borger versus St. Pius X.

The Whitefaces moved out to a 33-20 halftime lead in defeating Portales 72-46. Two Hereford players scored in double figures — Bobby Baker with 19 points and Todd Weaver with 18 points.

Baker hit eight of 10 field goal attempts, and Weaver made seven of 10 shots from the field.

Other scorers included Rodney McCracken with nine points and David Manchee with six points.

"We played a little bit better on offense, and our defense is still not as good as it needs to be. Fourteen players played and 12 of them scored," HHS Coach Mike Fields said.

"We're using this tournament to get the football players ready for district," he adds.

The Whitefaces made 27 of 47 field goal attempts for 57 percent, and also hit 18 of 24 free throws for 75 percent.

Baker led Hereford in rebounding with eight, and Kevin Hansen led the Whitefaces with six assists. Brad Smith had five rebounds, Hansen and Weaver each grabbed four rebounds, and McCracken and Weaver each had three steals.

HEREFORD WHITEFACES: Bobby Baker 8-10 3-4 19; Todd Weaver 7-10 4-4 18; Rodney McCracken 4-8 1-2 9; David Manchee 2-4 2-2 6; Brad Smith 1-3 2-2 4; Vincent Brown 2-2 0-0 4; Brian Townsend 0-0 2-2 2; Kevin Hansen 1-3 0-0 2; Kyle Streun 1-3 0-0 2; Chris Johnson 1-1 0-0 2; Blake Confer 0-1 2-2 2; Mark Artho 0-2 2-5 2; Cody Davis 0-0 0-1 0. By Maj. Amos B. Hoopie
Wizard of Odds

Egad, friends! For the first time in years, we have a major bowl matchup that will decide the national champion of college football.

Yes, dear readers, the Fiesta Bowl has two undefeated teams — the No. 1 Miami Hurricanes vs. the No. 2 Penn State Nittany Lions. Who will win? You better watch for an upset — in the biggest game of the year.

Let's take a look at all of the major bowl games:

PEACH BOWL: North Carolina State (8-2-1) vs. Virginia Tech (8-2-1), at Atlanta, Ga.; Mizlou-TV, Wednesday, Dec. 31, 1 p.m. EST.

N.C. State, No. 18 in the Hoopie ratings, was one of the real surprises this fall. In his first year with the Wolfpack, coach Dick Sheridan turned a 3-8 club into a second-place ACC finisher with its best record since 1974. Coach Bill Dooley (131-91-3 lifetime) bows out as the Virginia Tech Hokies' head man after seven straight winning years. Dooley is an excellent motivator. But we believe the Wolfpack is too tough. N.C. State will win, 28-17.

BLUEBONNET BOWL: Baylor (8-3) vs. Colorado (6-5), at Houston; Raycom-TV, Wednesday, Dec. 31, 3 p.m. EST.

My No. 14, the Baylor Bears, came within two points of dethroning Texas A&M as SWC champ. The Bears' total offense — 439 yards per game — is the fifth best in the nation. Their defense, allowing 248 yards per, is third best. From that you can see Colorado is in for a tough game. However, Colorado, a 20-10 upset winner over No. 8 Nebraska, will put up a good fight — before falling, 27-21.

ALL-AMERICAN BOWL: Florida State (6-4-1) vs. Indiana (6-5), at Birmingham, Ala.; TBS-TV, Wednesday, Dec. 31, 8 p.m. EST.

Bobby Bowden's Florida State Seminoles are an explosive club, equally adept at passing or running. Bill Mallory's Hoosiers ran off four straight wins to open the season, then lost close ones in the rugged Big Ten. The key to the game is the Seminoles' QB Danny McManus. If he can go all the way, it will be a long evening for Indiana. We see it for Florida State, 38-22.

FLORIDA CITRUS BOWL: Auburn (9-2) vs. Southern California (7-4), at Orlando, Fla.; ABC-TV, Thursday, Jan. 1, Noon EST.

Pat Dye's Auburn Tigers, No. 10, capped an excellent year with a last-minute TD victory against Alabama. Tiger RB Brent Fullwood averaged 126.5 yards per game. Southern Cal finished on a sour note. Notre Dame rallied to win their fourth straight over the Trojans, 38-37, costing coach Ted Tollner his job. Overall, the Tigers are sounder. It's Auburn, 31-24.

COTTON BOWL: Texas A&M (9-2) vs. Ohio State (9-3), at Dallas; CBS-TV, Thursday, Jan. 1, 1:30 p.m. EST.

champs. have a record of winning the close ones with Kevin Murray at the controls; the junior QB tossed for 17 TDs this year. Ohio State is the first Big Ten team to play at least once in the Cotton, Rose, Orange and Sugar Bowls. Earle Bruce's Buckeyes have finished 9-3 for the past six years. But the Hoopie System is calling this for Texas A&M, 28-24.

SUGAR BOWL: Louisiana State (9-2) vs. Nebraska (9-2), at New Orleans; ABC-TV, Thursday, Jan. 1, 3:30 p.m. EST.

LSU, No. 5, took the SEC crown, Nebraska, No. 8, lost a heart-breaker in its Big Eight showdown with Oklahoma. LSU's attack is well-balanced with "Freshman of the Year" Tommy Hodson throwing for 19 TDs. The Cornhuskers prefer the infantry route, averaging 305 yards per game on the ground. In a squeaker, Nebraska will grind out a 35-24 victory.

ROSE BOWL: Arizona State (9-1-1) vs. Michigan (11-1), at Pasadena, Calif.; NBC-TV, Thursday, Jan. 1, 5 p.m. EST.

John Cooper, "Coach of the Year," won his first Pac-10 title in his second year at Arizona State. The Sun Devils, No. 7, have a very balanced attack with 211 yards passing and 195 yards rushing per contest. TB Darryl Harris is the workhorse with 1,048 yards in 11 contests. Michigan's Bo Schembechler, 207-56-7 lifetime, is the winningest active big-time coach. The Wolverines, No. 3, have an even more balanced attack than the Sun Devils: 213 yards rushing, 218 yards passing. Michigan's senior QB Jim Harbaugh has won 23 of his 27 starts. Mark this one for Michigan, 33-31.

ORANGE BOWL: Oklahoma (10-1) vs. Arkansas (9-2), at Miami; NBC-TV, Thursday, Jan. 1, 8 p.m. EST.

The Oklahoma Sooners, No. 4, last faced Arkansas, No. 9, in the 1977 Orange Bowl, and the Razorbacks dealt them a devastating 31-6 defeat. Coach Barry Switzer will minimize talk of revenge, but you can bet it will be there. The Razorbacks have a strong running game. However, Oklahoma grinds out 405 yards per on the ground, while limiting their foes to just 61 yards per contest. The Sooners get the call, 42-28.

FIESTA BOWL: Miami (11-0) vs. Penn State (11-0), at Tempe, Ariz.; NBC-TV, Friday, Jan. 2, 9 p.m. EST.

"The Game of the Year." No. 1 Miami and No. 2 Penn State play for all the marbles. Miami boasts authentic All-Americans in Heisman Trophy-winning QB Vinny Testaverde, DT Jerome Brown and FS Bennie Blades. Penn State's LB Shane Conlan is a consensus All-America. On paper, the Hurricanes appear to have the edge. But with wily Nittany Lion Coach Joe Paterno (198-44-2 lifetime) having a month to prepare for the Testaverde onslaught, we are going for the upset. Make Penn State the winner, 27-24. Har-rumph!

That's all for this year, folks. We'll see you next fall.

In busy years of sports in Hereford

Football was biggest sports news of 1986

High school football was undoubtedly the biggest sports news of 1986 in Hereford, with the Hereford Whitefaces qualifying for the playoffs and winning three playoff contests before losing in the state semifinals.

The successful football season came under Coach Don Cumpston, who returned to Hereford after Jerry Taylor resigned to take the head coaching position at Odessa High School.

A UIL realignment put Hereford High School in class 4A, a change from class 5A. Other achievements among HHS teams and athletes in District 1-4A athletics included a district championship by the tennis team, and two cross country runners qualifying for the state meet.

In the spring, while Hereford High School was still in class 5A, two track athletes qualified for regionals, with one of them qualifying for the state meet. The HHS girls' golf team played in regionals.

In addition to school sports, there was lots of sports action in Hereford during the year, including leagues for various sports at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA, youth and teenage baseball and softball leagues organized by Kids Inc., community softball leagues and other community and club sports.

Here is the first part of the 1986 "Year in Sports" in Hereford, covering the months of January through March. Part two will appear in the Wednesday-Thursday issue of the Brand.

JANUARY

The second half of the high school basketball season began with the Hereford Whiteface varsity teams both defeating Lubbock Coronado. Bobby Baker hit a last-second shot in the HHS varsity boys' 51-49 win over Coronado, and the HHS varsity girls beat Coronado 52-33.

The Hereford High School junior varsity boys' basketball team won the Bovina Tournament, beating some varsity teams to win the championship.

In another varsity boys' basketball thriller, the Whitefaces won over Palo Duro in double overtime, 77-76. Stefan Hacker scored the winning basket in this game. The Herd then won its third close game in four

Dickerson named offensive player-of-year in NFL by AP

NEW YORK (AP) — Eric Dickerson of the Los Angeles Rams, who set an NFL rushing record with 2,105 yards two years ago but lost out on the off-season honors to Miami's Dan Marino, was named the NFL's Offensive Player of the Year today by the Associated Press.

Dickerson led the NFL with 1,821 yards rushing, the third time he's gone over 1,800 yards in his four years in the league. That represented 37.6 percent of the Rams' total offense of 4,837 yards as Los Angeles earned a playoff berth with a 10-6 record.

That was enough to give him a margin of two votes, 27-25 over Marino, who came on strong to nearly duplicate his record-setting season of 1984.

Wide receiver Jerry Rice of San Francisco received 13 votes; running back Joe Morris of the New York Giants got 7; and quarterback John Elway of Denver, tight end Todd Christensen of the Los Angeles Raiders, and quarterback Ken O'Brien of the New York Jets had one each.

Dickerson started fast and was ahead of his record-breaking pace of outings in a 53-51 win over Tascosa.

The HHS sophomore boys' basketball team won the Canyon Tournament, beating Plainview 52-37 and defeating Dumas 46-42.

Hereford High School's head football coach Jerry Taylor announced his resignation on Jan. 14, announcing that he had accepted the head coaching position at Odessa High School. Upon leaving Hereford, Taylor had a 76-32-3 overall coaching record in 10 years as a head football coach, including a 21-10 record in three seasons at Hereford.

Six other coaches decided to go to Odessa with Taylor — Gary Wilhelm, Eddie Richardson, Ken Fowler, Don Long, Mark Turner, and Jim Fish.

A Hereford athlete at the University of Texas, Lee Brockman, discussed his freshman season with the Longhorn football team, believing he could earn a starting position in the 1986 season. Brockman did start at linebacker for the Longhorns before an injury in midseason sidelined him.

The Southland Conference all-academic football team included a former Hereford High School athlete, Don DeLozier. DeLozier, who played tight end for the University of Texas at Arlington football team, was an honorable mention selection on the all-academic team.

Another high school double overtime took place in late January when the HHS sophomore boys beat Caprock 65-61.

League championships in the YMCA youth racquetball leagues were won by Chad Sandoval, Josh Tice, and Kara Sandoval.

On Tuesday, Jan. 30, it was revealed at an executive session of the Hereford Independent School district that Don Cumpston, who had coached at Hereford from 1978-82 and at Abilene High from 1983-85, would return to Hereford. Cumpston directed the 1981 Whiteface football team to the state semifinals in class 5A.

The UIL classification realignments were announced, with Hereford High School moving down from class 5A to class 4A. Other teams in the class 4A district, District 1-4A, would be Borger, Canyon, Dumas, Levelland, Lubbock Dunbar, Lubbock Estacado, Pampa, and Frenship.

Man creates eloquence in stone for those who no longer speak

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — You wouldn't really call Bill Farish a talker. When he has something to say, he says it. Otherwise, he's got work to do.

Folks he's had dealings with might not remember he wears a red bill cap in the winter. They might not even recall his name.

But as long as they're alive, they'll know him as the man who made a statement for them when there was no one else to make it.

Bill Farish speaks most eloquently on tombstones.

The names and dates he stamps in with a stencil press where he works at Sabine Monument Co. The person he stamps in with his soul.

Then he sandblasts his designs to make memories that defy any amount of weather or years. And he keeps those memories warm for people who might forget he wears a red bill cap.

A conductor still sounds the whistle of his engine, southbound Santa Fe Number 2938.

Fish are biting where a man fishes from his piroque underneath generous bows of cypress trees, laden with Spanish moss.

A perplexed Winnie the Pooh runs to seek advice from the Owl over a 4-year-old who won't get any older.

Bill Farish puts a signature of love on the last, lasting public document of a life.

So he does it gently.

Never looking at the clock that hangs on his office wall, he scarcely breathes as he sandblasts the curve of a rose petal.

He takes the safety hood off with a casual, backward swipe of his hand, eyeing the stone like a new father.

He brushes off the monument with a quick caress and looks you square in the eye.

"You get to know these people," is all he says.

"Almost every one of these has a story behind it," he says as he yanks open a filing cabinet drawer that screeches in protest. Pieces of tracing paper crackle as he unfolds them, and he explains a man's weekend obsession with fishing as his 65-year-old hands trace the lines of a hefty bass in midair.

"People come in wanting names and dates on stones, but when they come in wanting something unusual, like this fish, that's when you really get to work," he says.

With each tombstone, Farish begins a process he's perfected in his years as an engraver. He covers the stone with thin rubber matting that has adhesive backing.

On the rubber, he pencils in the designs, either ordered from a catalog or requested by family members. Although patterns for the catalog items are available for Farish to trace onto the rubber, he prefers to draw them himself.

"I have some patterns but I don't use them," he says. "I can draw it quicker than I can go get it to trace it."

He stamps in the stenciled letters and numbers for the words and dates, cuts along the lines he's made with his pencil and removes the rubber pieces, leaving areas that a sandblaster will later remove of their glaze.

After the glaze is removed, Farish adds finer details in the design and the letters are inked with lithochrome, a substance made especially to weather the elements.

A youthful artistic flair turned into a career for Farish, when his uncle asked if he would like to learn engraving and work at his monument company. He quickly found a niche in a business where there are no typos.

"The first place I worked at in Greenville, Miss., had a dirt floor," he laughs. "They didn't even have cranes to move the stones and I got toes missing to prove it."

Farish took his job at Sabine Monument Co. in 1963 and is the only engraver in the area who can do custom designs, says company owner Graham Clayton. Other custom work must be done in Houston or elsewhere and transported back.

Although Farish is old enough to retire, he hasn't made any plans. "Not as long as I can hobble around, I like what I'm doing too much."

Just as artists admire their own work and writers read their own writing, Farish enjoys driving through cemeteries where his tombstones are and looking at the ones he considers his best works.

"I do it all the time. When you've done a good job on something, you've got a right to be proud of it."

But pride in his work is just part of the reason Farish loves his work, he says. Helping a family put their personal mark on their farewell to a loved one is his main source of satisfaction.

"You can't help but get involved," he says. "When they come in and tell you what happened and they're standing there crying, you've got to help them."

"And like I said, by the time I'm finished, I feel like I knew that person, too."

Paraplegic prevails over tragic accident

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — This is not the story of a young life destroyed by tragedy.

True, Patricia Mount was 19 when she lost the use of her legs and painfully learned to say "paraplegic" when describing herself.

True, a traffic accident put an abrupt end to an active life at Southwest Texas State University, where she was studying agriscience.

True, she now spends several hours each day simply learning how to crawl and lift her body with her arms.

But people who meet this 20-year-old from Taft won't be tempted to use sympathetic tones and polite eyes. That's the way Patricia wants it. And, most often, that's the way she gets it.

"I'm a paraplegic," Patricia said, in a matter-of-fact tone that sounds almost as if she's joking. "There is a possibility I can walk again. There is a possibility I can't. I learned to crawl a couple of months ago, which is real good."

Her relatives and most of her friends "don't treat me any differently," she says, but strangers seem uncomfortable.

"I still get some stares in the mall. It used to bother me, but it doesn't anymore," Patricia says, pushing her brown hair behind her ears. "They're just curious. I'm so young and they want to know why somebody so young is in a wheelchair."

She sat at a breakfast table in her parents' home, where she lives with her older sister, mother and father. It was late in the afternoon and she had just returned from a rigorous two-hour therapy session.

"We were going to Kingsville on a back road," Patricia said, describing the wreck that left her paralyzed. "My sister was driving, and we were going around a curve. I was in the front seat and my cousin was in the back. Our car hit a little bump, and it hydroplaned and hit them," she said, referring to another vehicle. "We were only going about 40 mph, but it was misting."

She laughed about the incident, smiling over the memory of a George Strait tape blaring from the cassette player after the crash.

"My cousin flew forward, and her head hit the tape deck and punched in a George Strait tape," she said. "We all had a good laugh about that later."

Her older sister, Karla, was hospitalized 21 days with a broken leg and other injuries, and her cousin was treated and released at Memorial Medical Center, she said.

Patricia suffered a broken back and spinal cord injury that kept her in the hospital 19 days. She then spent seven weeks at Warm Springs Rehabilitation Hospital in Gonzales.

"A year ago while I was at Southwest, I wouldn't have thought of all the things I could be thankful for," she says. "But there are a lot of people out there who are a lot worse off than me — some, all they can do is move their head."

Life goes on for Patricia. She takes classes at Del Mar College in the mornings. She has big plans for the future. And she still keeps in touch with old friends.

Recently, she traveled to Kansas City, Mo., to receive an American Farmer Degree, the highest award given by the Future Farmers of America.

More than four years of work went into the award, which she was applying for at the time of the accident in May. To win, she raised chickens, planted cotton and tilled a vegetable garden from her freshman through senior years. She earned $5,000 and invested it in "my 40 acres of cotton."

Today, she still has the cotton field about five miles from her home. But instead of honing her agriculture skills, the bubbly, brown-eyed young woman wants to pursue rehabilitation counseling and use those skills to help handicapped people in the agriculture industry.

"You can sit there and cry about it and not get anything done, or you can smile and get something done," she says. "I remember thinking 'Why me?' But then, why not me?"

Four Challenger families settle financial claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — An attorney for the widow of an astronaut killed in the space shuttle Challenger explosion said a financial settlement accepted by some of the families would be inadequate if it is less than several million dollars.

The families of four of the seven astronauts killed in the Jan. 28 accident agreed to settlement of all potential claims in exchange for undisclosed financial arrangements, the Justice Department said Monday.

Under a separate agreement with the government, Morton Thiokol, Inc., the manufacturer of the solid rocket boosters used on the Challenger, will make a "substantial contribution" to the undisclosed sums paid to the four families, the department said.

Ronald D. Krist, a Houston attorney representing Cheryl McNair, the widow of astronaut Ronald E. McNair, said he found it "curious that the four families they settled with were the four that didn't file claims, and weren't represented" by counsel. "Those that didn't file are getting paid."

That agreement did not constitute an admission of negligence by Morton Thiokol, according to the department. A presidential commission blamed faulty joints on the boosters for triggering the fireball that engulfed the spaceship shortly after launch.

The settlements involving the families of school teacher Christa McAuliffe, mission commander Francis R. Scobee, mission specialist Ellison S. Onizuka and payload specialist Gregory B. Jarvis preclude any future legal actions against the National Aeronautics and Space Administration or its contractors. Compensation for the other three astronauts killed in the accident, including two whose families have filed legal claims, has yet to be resolved.

"If they're not getting several million dollars each, they're being underpaid," said Krist of the families involved in the settlement. "This accident cost the lives of the best our society can produce. But I'm certain the government and Morton Thiokol got out as cheaply as they could."

Krist, who has filed suit in U.S. District Court in Houston against Morton Thiokol for an unspecified amount, said he has not been approached by the Justice Department regarding a settlement. "And I know this," he said. "They're a long way from settling with me."

The Justice Department said the settlements "involve payments over an extended period of time" and "are designed to provide adequate financial security for the families of these crew members."

"At the request of the families, the amounts and terms of the settlements will remain confidential," the department said.

One possible clue as to the amount, however, lay in the fact that the out-of-court settlements were sent up the department ladder to Deputy Attorney General Arnold I. Burns, the No. 2 official in the Justice Department, for final approval.

Under department guidelines, amounts less than $750,000 could have been approved by an assistant attorney general — although Burns' involvement does not necessarily mean the figure was greater than that.

Spokesman Terry Eastland said "the Department of Justice and the families are pleased that these settlements were achieved with concern for the dignity of all involved, and in a timely and non-adversarial manner without the need to engage in litigation."

Scobee, a former Air Force test pilot, was an employee of NASA. Onizuka was a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force. Jarvis was a former Air Force engineer assigned to the Challenger crew as a representative of Hughes Aircraft Co. And Mrs. McAuliffe, a high school teacher in New Hampshire, was on the crew as America's first teacher in space.

In Concord, N.H., widower Stephen McAuliffe, an attorney, declined comment on the settlement for himself and his children.

Groups plan world day of peace

HOUSTON (AP) — Millions of people throughout the world will pause for an hour Wednesday to pray and contemplate peace on the last day of 1986, according to organizers of the vigil.

"The whole idea is to get people all over the world thinking about the same thing," said Debbie Ward, a spokeswoman for Houston's Center for Civic Transformation.

More than 400 million people in 75 countries are expected to participate in World Peace Day, said Ruth Larkin of the Quatrus Foundation, a nonprofit spiritual awareness center in Austin that acts as census keeper for a loose network of participants.

Musicians, singers and Houston residents will do their part beginning at 6 a.m. at Jesse H. Jones Hall, Ms. Ward said.

The 6 a.m. time corresponds with noon Greenwich time, the only time the entire world is on the same calendar day, she said. Wednesday also is the last day of 1986, designated by the United Nations as the International Year of Peace, said Larry Patton, co-chairman of the Houston group.

At Jones Hall, performances will include a children's choir, ringing of peace bells and a minute of silence.

"Some people want to do it with joyful singing, others want to do it with quiet contemplation," she said. "The idea is to pray, contemplate, meditate."

Ms. Larkin said getting millions of people to "honor peace for one hour has got to have impact."

"Peace is a conscience choice that we make," she said, adding that she believes concentrating on peace will help improve the world's quality of life.

"Theologian Randolph Price, who launched the idea for the event in a book he wrote in 1984, The Planetary Commission, said he chose the last day of 1986 because he hoped Jan. 1, 1987 will mark a new age of peace in world history."

Events honoring the hour are also planned in El Paso, Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas and San Antonio.

Border bandits now, prison gangs later

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Lucarelli, the producer and one of the stars of the movie "American Justice," is quick to admit that his name alone won't draw patrons to the box office just yet.

So, add Wilford Brimley and the "Simon & Simon" team of Jameson Parker and Gerald McRaney to Lucarelli and his wife, Jeannie Wilson, and the main cast is complete. Parker is co-producer of the independent production.

"I'm not a recognizable name with a high visibility," Lucarelli said in a recent visit to Dallas for the area opening of the film.

In "American Justice," Lucarelli portrays an ex-cop who visits a friend and a deputy sheriff, portrayed by Parker, and witnesses the killing of a young Mexican woman along the Arizona-Mexico border.

When he reports the crime to the local sheriff, played by Brimley, he realizes the killer was one of Brimley's chief deputies, whose shoes are filled by McRaney.

McRaney's character, who sports a crew cut and spits a generous amount of tobacco, is the brain behind a group of reprobates who disguise themselves as Border Patrol agents, rob from illegal aliens trying to sneak across the border and, for good villainous measure, carry off Mexican women into bondage.

Lucarelli's character, Joe Case, tries to find the truth, only to be stymied by the sheriff, who also is involved in the scam.

"It's about an American hero trying to find justice," said Lucarelli.

Justice — at least the type popularized by Charles Bronson — is found only after Parker's character is killed by McRaney with a shotgun that lines up the target with a small laser, and Case returns the favor.

Lucarelli said the idea for the movie came from news reports he read about so-called "border bandits" who prey on Mexican aliens trying to get into the United States. His next project, called "Dolan's Walk," involves prison gangs that have pervaded penitentiaries in California and Texas.

"The prison gangs are as organized as organized crime," he said. "It would be fascinating to make a film about them."

Lucarelli's interest in story lines dealing with law enforcement is not a chance matter. The California native's father was a police officer.

"I like action-genre films," he said. "I'm fascinated by law enforcement."

Lucarelli, who is considering Texas as a shooting site for his next venture, previously appeared in "The Boy Who Cried Werewolf," "Simon & Simon," "The Rockford Files" and "Celebrity."

Ms. Wilson, a former Miss Texas, is an ex-regular from "Simon & Simon," and was a regular in the short-lived television series "Street Hawk."
