JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Several thousand black workers went on strike today at dozens of branches of major chain stores in renewed protests over the detentions of labor leaders under the week-old nationwide state of emergency.

In Johannesburg, black workers — mainly packers, storemen and drivers — staged sit-down strikes at least 50 outlets belonging to six big chain stores. It was the second straight day of strikes, concentrated in Johannesburg and its satellite gold-mining centers.

At least 40 union leaders reportedly were among the thousands of people jailed without charge under the state of emergency declared June 12. In the past week, according to the government, 45 people have been killed. Executives, many of whom were reluctant to be identified because of the state of emergency regulations, said that in most cases managers or non-union blacks were able to keep the stores open.

The emergency regulations imposed severe restrictions on journalists. The issue of desegregating the beaches has been front-page news in Port Elizabeth since General Motors managing director Robert H. White, an American, pledged legal aid to black employees who used white beaches.

It was the first time a foreign firm had promised aid for breaking apartheid. (See SOUTH AFRICA, Page 2)

In Port Elizabeth, a vote tally announced today showed whites rejected a referendum to desegregate beaches. The defeat embarrassed business leaders battling a black consumer boycott in the Eastern Cape industrial city, headquarters of South Africa's auto industry. It also was seen as a setback for the government, which says apartheid is being dismantled.

The proposal to desegregate the beaches was defeated Wednesday by

Canyon crash brings call to end unregulated flights

GRAND CANYON VILLAGE, Ariz. (AP) — The collision of a helicopter and a twin-engine sightseeing plane over the Grand Canyon that killed 25 people may help end unregulated flights over national parks, a congressman says.

"As is so often the case, it takes a sad tragedy like this to point out the need for some reasonable safeguards," Rep. Richard Lehman, D-Calif., a member of the House Subcommittee on National Parks and Recreation, said of the collision Wednesday morning.

Emergency crews reached the crash site on a sloping shelf one mile from the Colorado River and 2,000 feet above it, and were to begin removing bodies today to a temporary morgue and then to Flagstaff 130 miles away.

The plane's tail section was found roughly one-quarter of a mile away from the rest of the wreckage and probably was sheared off in the collision, said Park Ranger Charlie Peterson, the first to reach the crash site.

The pilots of both craft had been keeping track of other aircraft visually and neither was being tracked by FAA radar, said Larry Bjork of the Federal Aviation Administration's flight service at Prescott.

Those aboard the Grand Canyon Airlines plane included 11 Dutch, two Swiss, one South African and six Americans, said Charles Farrabe, a National Park Service management assistant.

Authorities said the four passengers aboard the helicopter and the pilot were Americans.

Authorities released only the names of the airplane crew — James Ingraham and Bruce Grubb — and helicopter pilot John Thybony. There were no survivors. Helitech Inc., which owned the five-person Bell 206 helicopter, was new to the area, said Grand Canyon National Park Superintendent Dick Marks.

"They've been open a matter of three weeks, but the pilots have all flown in the area for many years," he said.

Grand Canyon Airlines spokeswoman Mary Donaldson and a spokesman for Helitech both declined comment.

Environmentalists have opposed the more than 50,000 low-level flights over the canyon each year, saying they keep hikers and backpackers from enjoying the grandeur of the park amid natural sights and sounds. Tourism companies counter that mechanized transportation is the only way the infirm and handicapped can experience the same sights.

But Lehman said the crash raises another question, one of public safety.

"It is clear ... that the days of voluntary supervision and self-regulation of these flights are over," said Lehman, whose district includes Yosemite National Park.

He said he wants federal law to prohibit flights over the canyon below a certain altitude. The FAA and the park service have set a floor of 2,000 feet above the canyon rims, but park veterans say it is not enforced.

The park service has rejected proposed limits on days and times of flights around the canyon but is studying proposals to ban planes below the canyon's rim in an effort to reduce noise.

'Weed watcher' seeks unsightly property

City Manager Darwin McGill said today that the city has been surveying the city to find vacant lots or unsightly yard that may need mowing.

McGill said that the city has hired a college student to work throughout the summer finding these overgrown yards and notifying people that if they do not mow the yard within 10 days, the city will mow the lot for them — at $30 per hour with a one hour minimum.

"We have mostly been noticing vacant lots being overgrown," said

McGill. "But if we see a residence with a problem, we will notify them too."

McGill said that the landowner will first receive a notice stating that there is a problem, the owner then has up to 10 days to respond before the city will take any action. McGill also has a list of people who will mow the lawns for people if people feel they can't do it themselves. There will be a fee assessed by the mowers, but it may be less than what the city may charge.

Judge will consider settlement to grant aliens unemployment

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler on Friday will consider approving an out-of-court settlement that would extend unemployment benefits to some aliens and refugees living in Texas, the Longview News-Journal reported today.

The agreement stems from a lawsuit filed against the state in 1983 by Fred Ibarra, who was denied unemployment benefits because he wasn't a U.S. citizen.

Ibarra is represented by the federally-funded East Texas Legal Services Inc., which represents the poor and indigent.

The Texas Employment Commission has authorized the attorney general's office to settle the lawsuit with the proposed agreement, Assistant Attorney General Carla Crisford, who is representing the state, told the newspaper.

Ms. Crisford said she did not know what it would cost the state to extend the benefits, but she said that the number of previously rejected applicants who would qualify if the agreement is approved is about 1,500.

"In my opinion those people are not eligible for these benefits, period," said William J. Chambers, a member of the board of the Federation of American Immigration Reform, which is opposing the agreement.

"My prime point is that only those who are permanent residents are eligible, and none of these categories they list are permanent residents, and none of them are legal residents," said Chambers, who also is a retired director of the Dallas office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

According to the News-Journal, under the terms of the agreement the Last-minute amendments slow vote on tax revision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's effort to approve the most thorough revision of the federal tax code in a generation is being delayed by a last-minute flurry of amendments to grant special tax breaks.

The tenth day of Senate debate on the landmark measure was beginning today with legislators scrambling to try to have amendments protecting special interests attached to the bill before it is finally passed.

Predictions of when there will be a final vote on the legislation drafted by the Senate Finance Committee have slipped all week as legislators sought support for their particular amendments.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., becoming increasingly frustrated at the pace of activity, said the Senate's pace was "like watching paint dry."

He also noted that at 8 p.m. Wednesday, about 20 amendments were pending. Senate debate droned on through the evening and by 11:20 p.m., Dole announced that "50 some" amendments were pending.

The number grew as the Senate remained in session past midnight for the second night in a row.

In general, the bill would compress more than a dozen individual tax rates into two rates: 27 percent and 15 percent. The top individual rate is now 50 percent.

It also would cut the top corporate rate of 46 percent to 33 percent. Small businesses would pay as little as 15 percent.

In addition, the legislation would end an array of popular tax breaks for individuals and businesses.

Ever since the Senate first took up the measure, Senate leaders have predicted the legislation would pass with nothing short of a unanimous vote.

The last major obstacle to passage of the bill was cleared Wednesday when the Senate voted 71-29 to kill an amendment by Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, to collect more from wealthy taxpayers to increase the tax cut for middle-income people.

Mitchell said he offered the amendment to change the tax rates in the legislation to "fulfill the missing promise" of the legislation "by extending middle-income taxpayers the real tax relief which the bill promises to all, but delivers only to the rich and the poor."

Mitchell was seeking to change the rate structure in the bill by adding a new top rate of 35 percent for the wealthiest taxpayers and using the additional revenue to finance a bigger tax cut for middle-income people.

However, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Finance Committee, argued that Mitchell's amendment would unravel the bill and defeat the overhaul effort.

"This is the most extraordinary piece of tax-reform legislation since the initial code was passed in 1913," Packwood said. "And if we adopt the amendment of the senator from Maine, we will be starting right back up the stairs of escalating rates and increased privileges and escalating rates and increased privileges."

After that amendment fell and final passage was in sight, the race was on to attach amendments.

The Senate approved by voice vote an amendment offered by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., that would allow The Associated Press to make an accounting change to enable the not-for-profit news

Harvest ahead of schedule

Wheat harvest in Deaf Smith County is "way ahead" of schedule, according to John Fuston of the local ASCS office.

Fuston said cutting should be nearly done in about another week on the approximately 180,000 acres in the county.

"It's the most varied crop that I've ever seen in this country," Fuston noted. He said that yields are not consistent throughout the county and that the overall yield is below average due to a dry early spring.

County yields usually net about 7 million bushels, and some harvests have brought up to 10 million bushels. Fuston speculates that about 5 million bushels will be gleaned this spring.

Cotton crops have even more dismal prospects. "If we open the gin, we're going to be lucky. It doesn't look good," Fuston said. Reports he has received indicate very little good cotton from the 10,000 to 15,000 acres in the county.

While crops are not looking healthy, neither are finances. Fuston's office has been handing out "generic" certificates for payments on the 1986 farm programs for about 10 days since the Commodity Credit Corporation ran out of funds. Fuston said that between 300 and 400 such certificates have been given by his office. Farmers can take the certificate to grain elevator and get a dollar value or grain.

Convicted killer is executed

HUNSTVILLE, Texas (AP) — A 37-year-old convicted killer was put to death by injection early today for the 1974 shooting death of a Houston convenience store clerk despite pleas from the victim's father and a prosecutor.

"Naw, I'm ready," said Kenneth Albert Brock of Houston when asked if he had any final words before the lethal drugs flowed through his veins.

"Take care of yourself Bob, Nancy (Dodson)," he told his brother-in-law and sister who were his personal witnesses. "Thanks."

Bob Dodson gave the 37-year-old inmate a thumbs up as he entered the death chamber.

After he took a deep breath Brock said "OK, bye."

Mrs. Dodson told her brother, "Kenneth, I love you." He replied, "I know."

Brock, who was wearing his glasses, then took about eight deep breaths and then snored before going silent.

Mrs. Dodson called for her brother three times as she leaned against a rail, crying softly and holding a Kleenex in her hand while her husband had his arm around her.

"Kenneth, can you hear me?" she asked.

Doctors pronounced him dead at 12:18 a.m., eight minutes after the last lethal solution was injected into his right arm.

Brock was convicted in the May 21, 1974, shooting death of 31-year-old Michael Sedita, a manager of a northeast Houston 7-Eleven convenience store.

Oil slump hurts city revenues

DALLAS (AP) — City workers in Dallas recently received an unwelcome reminder of how the oil industry slump is affecting government — their pay was cut.

In Houston, officials are considering laying off more than 700 employees, and throughout Texas, cities are scrambling to ward off huge projected budget shortfalls, brought on as the municipal mainstays of sales and property tax funds sink under the weight of declining oil revenues.

Most cities are reporting flat sales tax revenues, a radical change from the years when the Sunbelt state seemed immune from the economic ailments of the rest of the nation, said Ted Willis, executive director of the Texas Municipal League in Austin.

"Although we may have weathered some previous dips better than other parts of the nation, by Texas standards we're in a very serious situation," Willis said.

League members are considering such measures as layoffs, tax hikes, reduction of services and switching to a 37-hour work week, Willis said.

Dallas officials were caught by a $7 million deficit this spring, necessitating a pay cut that took a 5 percent chunk out of administrators' pay checks and 1 percent from rank-and-file employees.

Woman dies of cyanide poisoning

SEATTLE (AP) — Investigators testing Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules following the death of a woman from poisoning found cyanide in a second bottle, prompting a nationwide recall of the product and an investigation of an earlier death.

The Food and Drug Administration late Wednesday issued a warning against use of the medication, and the manufacturer, Bristol-Myers, followed that with a recall of Extra-Strength capsules.

"The bottle shown to us did show positive for potassium cyanide," said Sue Hutchcroft, an FDA spokeswoman in Seattle, after a lab inspection.

That second bottle was taken to authorities by Stella Nickell of Auburn, Wash., whose husband's death June 5 was initially attributed to natural causes.

Ms. Nickell noticed that the lot number, 5-H102, on the bottle from which her husband reportedly took capsules matched those on a bottle used by Katherine Sue Snow, 40, of Auburn, who died June 11 of cyanide poisoning, authorities said.

The death of Bruce Nickell, 52, "is now being investigated as a cyanide-related death," the King County medical examiner's office said in a statement Wednesday night.

Test results on Nickell's remains were expected late today, said Bob Hill, spokesman for the medical examiner's office.

Bristol-Myers asked all consumers who have Excedrin capsules to return them for Excedrin tablets or a cash refund to P.O. Box 1000, Baltimore, Md., 21288.

Coffee drinkers face cancer risks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Heavy coffee drinkers may face an increased risk of cancer but they suffer no greater risk of heart attacks than other people, separate studies have concluded.

Colorectal cancer, or cancer affecting the intestinal area, occurs 2½ times more often among people who drink more than two cups of coffee a day than among those who consume fewer than two cups, researchers found in one study.

The results were outlined to the Society for Epidemiologic Research on Wednesday by Cedric Garland, assistant professor of epidemiology at the University of California at San Diego.

But other researchers also reported Wednesday that they found no correlation between coffee drinking and heart disease in a nine-year study of 12,866 men around the country, contradicting earlier reports linking the two.

An estimated 60,000 people are expected to die of colorectal cancer this year, and 140,000 new cases of the disease are expected to be diagnosed, according to the American Cancer Society.

Garland's findings are based on a 10-year study of 703 people living in Rancho Bernardo, Calif., a retirement community that is part of San Diego.

Of the 703, most of whom were in their 60s, 14 developed colorectal cancer, said Garland. Seven of the cases were fatal.

Three percent of those drinking at least two cups of coffee a day eventually developed the cancer, Garland said. The incidence rate was 1.4 percent for those consuming less of the beverage or none at all.

Smoking and other high-risk factors were taken into consideration, Garland said.

"It's a big difference, but I'm cautious," he said. "This is the highest relative risk that has ever been reported. At this point, we don't have enough information to be able to make a dietary recommendation."

Previous studies have shown a link between coffee and colorectal cancer among people 65 and older but not for younger consumers, while other researchers have found no correlation at all or possibly even a preventive effect.

"We need to do studies that determine how coffee is prepared and the method of preparation," Garland said, adding it may not be caffeine that is responsible for the increased risk of cancer.

Defense tries to accuse fourth man

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys in the organized crime trial of three men have tried to point the finger at a fourth man also facing the same charges but awaiting separate trial.

Grain war may thwart African farm recovery

ROME (AP) — U.N. crop specialists say a grain war between the United States and Europe threatens agriculture in Africa, which is emerging from deadly drought, with the crippling effects of too much food at bargain prices.

Delegates to the annual World Food Council ministerial conference that ended here Wednesday differed in heated discussion over how to prevent such a crisis on the African continent.

Said U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng, "Unless developed countries cooperate to reform their agricultural policies, I see no end to the pitiless cycle of economic crisis in Africa."

Later, he said there was American ambivalence over U.N. efforts to raise money to move food from surplus to deficit countries within Africa.

"The idea of surpluses in Africa is something we hadn't anticipated," he said with a slight laugh.

SOUTH AFRICA — their laws and raised a debate over the involvement of non-South African firms in the country's politics.

In Port Elizabeth, GM personnel director George Stedman confirmed the company stood by its offer.

Beaches in most major South African cities, including Durban and Cape Town, have been wholly or partially desegregated over the past few years.

Hamilton is charged along with Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 55; his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33; and Carlton Robert Caldwell, 21; in the March 1984 death of Anthony Bates.

The prosecution claims the Ellebrachts lured Bates and other hitchhikers with the promise of work to their Hill Country ranch and then forced them to stay.

The state also alleges Bates was tortured to death with a cattle prod, then his body burned.

The defendants are charged with conspiring to commit aggravated kidnapping and murder in connection with Bates' death.

The defense Wednesday called Sheri Hamilton, Mark Hamilton's wife, who denied her husband is violent.

But she admitted under further questioning "when he gets mad, he threatens me."

Mrs. Hamilton, who earlier testified for the prosecution, told the court she had seen her husband use a cattle prod on Bates.

She said he also told her he had helped burn Bates' body.

The prosecution played tape recordings of alleged torture sessions involving Bates. The tapes were found at the ranch after the Ellebrachts were arrested.

Mrs. Hamilton testified earlier she heard her husband's voice on one of the tapes.

When Haynes began questioning Mrs. Hamilton about how violent her husband is, prosecutor Gerald Caruth objected, saying the line of questioning is irrelevant.

"We are just trying to show Mark Hamilton was predisposed to violence and was the active aggressor in the tapes," Haynes said.

But Judge Tom Blackwell sustained the objection.

The defense later called Mrs. Hamilton's aunt, Carol Dar, who testified she had been in the Hamilton's Los Angeles home when Mark beat and threatened his wife.

Mrs. Dar said a representative from Haynes' office called her in Los Angeles and asked her to come to Kerrville and testify.

"Did they (defense representative) tell you they needed someone to come out here and assassinate Mark Hamilton's character?" Sutton asked.

Mrs. Dar denied the statement, but testified Hamilton told her not to travel to Kerrville to testify.

'Legal Eagles'

Movie stirs memory of 1949 classic

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

Just when you thought that sophistication had vanished from the silver screen, along comes "Legal Eagles" to gladden the heart and charge the intellect.

It surprisingly comes from Ivan Reitman, the filmmaker who proved with "National Lampoon's Animal House" (as producer) and "Ghostbusters" (as producer-director) that excess can bring success.

"Legal Eagles" presents another side of Ivan Reitman, who also directed "Meatballs" and "Stripes." He has produced and directed a film that some critics may call old-fashioned, in that it has a sprawling cast, well-crafted script, sharp dialogue and a happy ending. Naturally, Reitman can't escape his past, and he provides explosions, fires and car chases. But all seem applicable to the plot.

The script by Jim Cash and Jack Epps Jr. (from the story they wrote with Reitman) evokes memories of the 1949 classic, "Adam's Rib." Debra Winger plays the Katharine Hepburn role as the attorney dedicated to defending her clients against heavy odds. Robert Redford subs for Spencer Tracy as the accomplished prosecutor who opposes her. Daryl Hannah takes over for Judy Holliday as the ditsy beauty accused of murder.

The difference in "Legal Eagles," though, is that Redford and Winger are not married, and they end up on the same side of the case.

The movie opens in the 1960s, when a famed New York artist dies in the fire of his studio. His small daughter is rescued, but his valuable paintings were presumably destroyed.

In today's New York, the grown-up daughter (Hannah) is arrested and charged with the murder of one of her father's associates, who happens to have been her lover. Winger agrees to defend her, though the case seems hopeless. Redford is the prosecutor — until he is photographed in bed with Hannah.

Winger and Redford are the best combination since — well, Hepburn and Tracy. The chemistry is terrific. The sequence in which each battles insomnia in their separate apartments is marvelous, and fans will adore Redford trying to imitate Gene Kelly's "Singin' in the Rain."

Darryl Hannah is not only gorgeous but provides a feyness that adds to the mystery. Brian Dennehy again provides a powerful presence, and Terrence Stamp and John McMartin are fine menaces. Roscoe Lee Browne plays the judge with bemused dignity. Manhattan never looked lovelier than through Laszlo Kovacs' lens.

"Legal Eagles," a Universal Picture, is rated PG for language and excitement. Running time: 114 minutes.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

G — General audiences. All ages admitted.

Neighbors shun 'terrified' label

DALLAS (AP) — Countering their ugly label in the British press as "terrified Texans," the newest neighbors of Mark Thatcher want to invite the son of the British prime minister to tea.

Ruby Beene, assistant manager of the condominium complex where Thatcher recently moved, said there has been "very little" support for a memo circulated by one resident who said Thatcher should be forced out because he was a terrorist target and posed a threat to his neighbors.

"Most of it's (the reaction) the other way," she said Wednesday. "They would like to invite him to tea."

She later amended that: "They said if he's here, they want to invite him to tea."

Ms. Beene said she couldn't verify that Thatcher actually lives in the luxury high-rise. "We have nothing official," she said, although one unidentified resident said management had confirmed Thatcher lived there.

Thatcher was evicted from one Dallas apartment where his landlords said they couldn't protect him from terrorist threats that followed the U.S. bombing of Libya, which garnered the support of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

After his move into a condominium complex, one of the residents last week circulated a memo to neighbors asking them to urge management to force him out again because his protection by the U.S. State Department doesn't extend to other residents.

News of the memo prompted former U.S. Sen. John Tower to say the fearful resident made Texans look like "a bunch of yellow-bellies." "This reads bad back in London," he said.

In a Monday story, the tabloid London Daily Mail said, "Mark Thatcher is being hounded from his home for the second time by terrified TEXANS."

With the label of "chicken Americans" already flying from the British press, America's most macho state was suddenly at risk of being branded a wimp.

A Houston newspaper, in an effort to distinguish Houston from Dallas, invited Thatcher to move to Houston.

"The son of the British prime minister would find a welcome at a number of Houston apartments," the Houston Post said. "And in Houston he would see the real Texas, not a TV-show clone."

Tom Lewis, vice president of economic development for the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, commented, "That's interesting. If he lived in Houston, maybe he would have the same problem. When you say problem, it's obviously a few people."

One of Thatcher's new neighbors, in fact, said he threw away the memo calling for Thatcher's eviction.

"I felt, and most everyone in the (condominium) office felt, that it was ridiculous. It seemed so high school," said the resident who was walking his dog outside the well-secured building. He declined to give his name.

Former U.S. Ambassador Richard Rubottom, director of Dallas' Office of International Affairs, said he doubts Dallas' image will be permanently stained.

"I seriously question whether that is the case. I think this is regrettable, but almost inevitable in view of the media attention given Mark Thatcher," he said.

"It also shows that personal security and public security interests don't always coincide. But above all, it shows all of us become involved whether we like it or not," said Rubottom, who has served in several international posts, including U.S. ambassador to Argentina.

Added Lewis: "I guess this is something that's new to probably all Texans, this terrorism situation."

Six-year-old Tammy Moore shows the perfect technique needed while sliding into stock tanks. First trick is to gain speed; second, hit the water full force. The hard part is keeping your hair from getting wet, as Tammy displays in the last two photos. Tammy was found playing Wednesday afternoon at a homemade playhouse built by Dewey and Diane Olson. Tammy and her friends were trying to escape the afternoon's 80-plus temperatures. (Brand Photo by Shawn Cockrum)

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (AP) — The Church of the Redeemer, a new Vietnamese congregation of the Episcopal Church, has lost nearly all of its equipment in a series of thefts, but the national church has extended some redeeming help.

"Almost everything we need for our program was taken from us," says the vicar, the Rev. Duc X. Nguyen, including computers, fans, vestments, clocks and diskettes containing the denomination's Book of Common Prayer in Vietnamese. Los Angeles Suffragan Bishop Oliver B. Garver Jr. of Los Angeles called the succession of burglaries a "very painful and emotional trauma for this new Vietnamese congregation." In New York, the Presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief authorized an emergency grant of $5,000 to help ease the loss.

Stripling, Coupe vows spoken recently

Susan Marie Stripling and Kevin James Coupe were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony June 7 at South Main Baptist Church in Pasadena.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Ron Lyles and Father Eugene Gillice.

Music was provided by organist Phil Southern with Debra Dane playing the violin. A reception followed at the church's fellowship hall.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Stripling of Pasadena. The groom is the son of Joan Coupe of Hereford and Joseph R. Coupe of Ft. Collins, Colo.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown that she designed. Her fitted bodice of alencon lace featured a standing scalloped collar and puffed sleeves that tapered to soft points at the wrists. The bodice was encrusted with bridal pearls and iridescents. The back and sleeve openings were button and loops. The full-length satin skirt extended to a chapel length train.

The bride's coronet headpiece in matching lace and pearls held a veil of illusion that fell gracefully to the hemline of the train. She carried a bridal cascade of white tiger lilies, stephanotis, pink alstroemeria, and English ivy.

Her attendants were gowned alike in tea-length dresses of azelea pink taffeta, and carried teardrop shaped bouquets of pink azelea, white gladiola and greenery.

Maid of honor was Mary Ann Webb of Pasadena, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Janelle Casey, sister of the groom, from Dallas; Amber Blank of Baton Rouge, La.; Cynthia Miller of Waco; and Donna Thomas of Clear Lake.

Best man was the groom's twin brother, Jeffrey Coupe, of Lubbock. Groomsmen were Jack L. Stripling, brother of the bride, from Crosby; Jimmy Roton of Houston; and Bruce Clark and Ken Cosper, both of Lubbock. Ushers were Kelly Cassels of Lubbock and Trent Thomas of Austin.

Houseparty members included Miranda Pleasant, niece of the bride from Crosby; Susan Marie Carrol, Kim Humphreys, Danna Richardson, all of Pasadena; and Elizabeth Kraus of Friendswood, Tx.

The bride is a graduate of Sam Rayburn High School in Pasadena and graduated from the University of Texas School of Allied Health Sciences of Houston. She is employed at M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

The groom is a graduate of Hereford High School and received a B.A. from Rice University. He was the recipient of the G.L. Hermance Award in physical education at Rice this spring. He will attend the University of Texas Medical School in Houston this fall.

Following a honeymoon trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will reside in Houston. Out-of-town guests included several of the groom's relatives from Maple Creek, Sask.; Calgary, Alberta; Vancouver, B.C.; Dillon and Denver, Colo.

BAINBRIDGE EXHIBITION

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Walker Art Center says it will premiere the first American solo museum exhibition of British sculptor Eric Bainbridge from Aug. 10-Oct. 26.

The museum says, "Bainbridge creates highly individualistic sculpture with surrealistic overtones. His work, made from chicken wire and plaster and covered with fake fur, combines shapes suggestive of body parts with other less readily identifiable objects into complex forms. The serious intention of the artist to attempt a definition of reality is leavened by the humorous connotation and somewhat outrageous character of the materials."

The National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. is a cooperative agency of 31 Protestant, Orthodox and Anglican churches seeking to advance programs and policies of mutual interest to its members. The Council's member churches now have an aggregate membership totaling approximately 40 million.

Benefit supper, musical jamboree plans discussed

Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met in regular session Tuesday evening with Noble Grand Kee Ruland presiding.

A discussion was held concerning the benefit spaghetti supper and musical jamboree set for 5:30 p.m. Saturday, June 28, at the Odd Fellow Hall, 205 E. 6th St. Proceeds will be used to help defray medical expenses for Levita Fitzgerald who is suffering from leukemia. Price of admission is $3 per person.

All musicians are welcome to attend and may contact Wallace Shelton at 364-2735 or Susie Curtsinger at 364-4114 for additional information.

A fund for Fitzgerald has also been established at both Hereford State and First National Banks.

It was announced that Hereford Rebekah's Degree team will travel to Dimmitt tonight to bring in new members of Dimmitt Rebekah Lodge No. 54.

Peggy Lemons served as hostess to Curtsinger, Beattie Lawrence, Guy Lawrence, Anna Conklin, Glessie Shelton, Wallace Shelton, Karrol Rettman, Verna Sowell, Lydia Hopson, Faye Brownlow, Sadie Shaw, Ada Hollabaugh, Dorothy Lundry, Leona Sowell, Ben Conklin, Helen Bishop, Gene Bishop, Ursalee Jacobsen and Kee Ruland.

Ann Landers

You can lick two demons

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Over the years you have given well-deserved praise to Alcoholics Anonymous. There is no denying that they often succeed when everything else has failed.

There exists, however, a situation that has kept many people in need of help away from A.A. meetings. I hope you will address it in your column.

The overwhelming majority of alcoholics are heavy smokers. I can tolerate the smoke (which is so thick you can cut it with a knife), but three of my friends who desperately need what A.A. has to offer have quit going to meetings because they can't stand the smoke.

I hope you will publish this, Ann. It's something that all A.A. members ought to see.—FIGHTING THE FOG IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR FIGHTING: Yours is not the first complaint I have received about the heavy smoking at A.A. meetings.

I implore those of you who see yourselves in the column today to take this to heart. Why not apply those wonderful 12 steps to tobacco as well as alcohol? If you can lick one demon you can lick two.

Meanwhile, if an air-cleaning machine is not affordable, several saucers of plain vinegar placed around the room will help absorb the smoke. Try it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more letter about an open fly? I am a female teller in a bank. Recently I noticed a co-worker's trousers were unzipped after a trip to the men's room. I telephoned his wife at home and asked her to call and tell him. She thanked me and made the call at once.

Mr. "R's" desk is next to mine. I heard him say, "You're right, but how in the h—did you know?"

Within a few seconds he figured it out and we had a good laugh. He thanked me profusely and I felt that I had done my good deed for the day.

This might be the solution for other women who are also shy.—BLUSHING IN MO.

DEAR BLUSH: A telephone call seems like a lot of trouble when it's so easy to say "XYZ," which means, "Examine your zipper."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Did you ever hear from the "Second Wife" who was put on the spot by being invited to attend her husband's first wife's family functions? She desperately tried to get out of going and you told her she had a "golden opportunity to handle herself with confidence, class and dignity." I wonder if she went.

I know I did. I followed your advice a few weeks later and came off smelling like a rose. Since then I've applied the Ann Landers "class and dignity" admonition to other areas of my life.

It has extended to waiting patiently in supermarket lines, snarled traffic, facing sour clerks, and other challenges we are called upon to face every day. I tell myself, if I can't control the situation at least I can control my own behavior and attitude. Thanks for reminding us all that we have "golden opportunities" every day to be more than we can be.—ROGUE RIVER VALLEY GIRL

DEAR GIRL: What a day-brightener! The most rewarding part of this work is to know that I really am getting through to my readers and that I have helped in some way, however small, to improve the quality of their lives.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

DR. GOTT Neuralgia merits second opinion

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have tic douloureux. My doctor says it's rare and has no known cure or cause. All I know is that it's very, very painful. I'd be interested in getting a second opinion.

DEAR READER — And I'd advise you to get one. Tic douloureux (trigeminal neuralgia) — spasms of stabbing facial pain — is common and treatable. See a neurologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I get outbreaks of acne and oily skin that seem to be accompanied by sour stomach, gas and constipation. Are the two related? Would a change in diet help, or does this indicate an underlying digestive disorder?

DEAR READER — The relation of acne to certain foods seems unclear at present. In the past, young people with bad complexions were counseled to avoid chocolate and greasy foods. Dermatologists are much less dogmatic about food restrictions now. Nonetheless, in my experience, some people with oily skin and acne often seem to improve if they omit certain foods. If, when your acne is worse, you also have digestive disturbances, you may be one of these people. Try to identify which foods give you symptoms, then avoid them. Also, you might consider seeing an allergist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Since moving to a different part of Florida, I've had itchy eyes (near the tear ducts), an itchy nose, sneezing and red spots on my throat. I never had this before. Should I see an allergist?

DEAR READER — I think that would be an appropriate next step. All plants pollinate, and you may be reacting to specific pollens in your new locale. Also, some forms of air pollution can cause allergic symptoms. An allergist who is familiar with the flora and fauna in Florida may be able to discover the cause of your complaints and recommend treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I dislocated my knee four months ago. Is it OK to wear an elastic bandage all the time? What surgical procedure can correct this problem?

DEAR READER — An elastic bandage will not harm the knee; in fact, it may give added support and make the knee feel better. The corrective surgical procedure involves tightening the ligaments that support the knee and keep the bones in place. If conservative measures (e.g., an elastic brace) give you relief, you may be able to avoid the nuisance and expense of surgery.

DEAR DR. GOTT — At dinner, my 15-year-old granddaughter placed one hand on her chin, the other on top of her head and gave a twist. You could hear her neck crack. Aside from making her dinner companions slightly nauseated, will this procedure harm her?

DEAR READER — Your granddaughter is simply giving you a home-style demonstration of chiropractic manipulation. As she twists her head, the articulating surfaces of the spinal vertebrae snap on each other. Aside from the fact that this practice is not suitable dinner-table behavior, I think it should be discouraged because, over time, she may tend to develop small areas of arthritis in the bones of her neck. Ask your granddaughter to desist and to develop some other adolescent trick to put the grown-ups' teeth on edge.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a son who has been diagnosed as having astrocytoma, stage I. He refuses to go back to his doctor for treatment. He reads your column, and maybe you can tell him how urgent it is for him to do something about his condition as soon as possible.

DEAR READER — I hope your son is reading this particular column. If he refuses further treatment, he is likely to have a much more serious problem in the future.

Astrocytoma is usually a slow-growing tumor of the brain. However, it tends to invade surrounding tissues. Often, in its center, it harbors a highly malignant tumor called glioblastoma. If the astrocytoma is discovered early — and in your son's case (stage I), it was — it usually can be completely removed by surgery. If it is allowed to grow, it can become (at worst) inoperable — or (at best) so difficult to remove that disabling neurological damage will result.

I unqualifiedly urge your son to follow the doctor's advice. Before long, it may be too late.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently my pediatrician suggested giving my daughters (age 2 and 5) vaccinations against diseases caused by the germ "Hib," such as spinal meningitis. What do you know about this inoculation?

DEAR READER — I am in favor of preventing diseases; therefore, I recommend that children be given all the inoculations that their pediatricians advise.

Doctors are often criticized for being less prevention-oriented than disease-oriented. In my experience, this isn't so. I cannot think of a medical specialty that is more dedicated to prevention than pediatrics. Please follow the doctor's suggestions. The Hib injection refers to Hemophilus influenzae type B, a cause of meningitis in young children. The vaccine is safe and is given to youngsters between ages 2 and 5.

Rodeo Queen Contestants

Vying for the title of the Hereford Riders Club Young Riders Rodeo Queen are, from left, Kelly Burrus, Brandy Messer, and Sherri McQuigg. The three competed in horseback skills last Friday and one will be named as the rodeo queen following the grand entry on Saturday night.

Performances are set at 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday night at the Riders Club Arena. Admission is $3 for adults, $1 for children 6-12, and free for senior citizens and children under 6.

For Young Riders Rodeo

120 entries are received

Approximately 120 phone entries have been received, and secretaries are waiting for mail-ins, for the Hereford Riders Club Young Riders Rodeo set for Friday and Saturday nights.

Fourteen events for seven age and gender categories are slated for the two 7 p.m. performances at the Rider's Club Arena behind the Bull Barn.

Following the grand entry of the Saturday night performance will be the coronation of the queen. Vying for that title are Kelly Burrus, Brandy Messer, and Sherri McQuigg.

Points will be collected at the rodeo to combien with the August 15-16 rodeo for trophy saddles to be given to all-around girl and boy.

Each night's performance will include a free stick-horse race for children under 6-years-old which will net the winner a belt buckle. For those under 12-years-old, a $5 prize is up for the free calf scramble.

Admission is $3 for adults, $1 for children 6-12 years and for senior citizens. Children 5-years and under are admitted free.

22-year-old Len Bias of Maryland

Celtics' No. 1 draft pick dies from heart attack

RIVERDALE, Md. (AP) — Len Bias, the 22-year-old University of Maryland basketball star drafted Tuesday by the National Basketball Association's Boston Celtics, died suddenly early today after suffering an apparent heart attack, a hospital official said.

Bias was brought to Leland Memorial Hospital, outside Washington, at 6:50 a.m. after suffering cardio-respiratory arrest, said Frank Berry, a spokesman at Leland Memorial Hospital. He was pronounced dead at 8:50 a.m.

Bias was brought to the hospital in an ambulance, said Berry.

Jack Zane, the University of Maryland's sports information officer, said Bias was stricken ill at his campus dormitory. He said his teammates summoned help.

Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell and members of the team also went to the hospital, Zane said.

Bias was the second man chosen in the first round of the NBA draft.

A two-time Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year for Maryland, the 6-foot-8 forward averaged 23.2 points during his senior, All-American season.

Shortly after the draft Tuesday, Bias, and his father, James, left New York for Boston and a chance to meet the Celtics media. The trip forced postponement of a celebration party for Bias and his family at their Landover home.

Bias is the third University of Maryland basketball player to die suddenly, either while still a student or shortly after graduating, in about the last 12 years, Zane said.

In 1974, about a year after he graduated, Owen Brown died while playing in a pickup game. Also during the mid-1970s, Chris Patton, while still enrolled at Maryland, died after being stricken ill while playing basketball near Byrd Stadium, said Zane. Both were found to be suffering from Marfans Syndrome.

Only one Maryland basketball player had ever been drafted higher than Bias. John Lucas was the No. 1 player taken in 1976 by the Houston Rockets.

'The Vulture' strikes at World Cup

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — He came swooping in from nowhere. He pounced on loose balls, sped to waiting passes, outmaneuvered the opposition at every turn.

"The Vulture" had struck.

Emilio Butragueno scored four times Wednesday, tying a World Cup record for goals in a game, leading Spain to a 5-1 romp past previously unbeaten Denmark and into the quarterfinals. It was the ninth four-goal game in the World Cup's 56-year history and first since Eusebio accomplished the feat for Portugal in 1966 against North Korea.

Spain joined England, which downed Paraguay 3-0, in the final eight. The Spanish will play Belgium in Puebla on Sunday, while England takes on Argentina in Mexico City in their first major sporting encounter since the 1982 Falklands war.

The other games feature host Mexico against West Germany in Monterrey and Brazil playing France in Guadalajara, both on Saturday.

Eric Davis hits two-run homer in ninth inning

Reds rally to beat division-leading Astros

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds celebrated like they had won a championship after taking the division-leading Houston Astros for a second consecutive game.

The last place Reds players stormed onto the field after Eric Davis smashed a two-run home run in the ninth inning to win 3-2 Wednesday night.

"The reaction was really the first like it this year," said Reds first baseman Dave Parker. "But really, we haven't had much happening."

"Two in a row over the league leaders can help us out. They've been treating us like step-children," Parker said. The two teams meet again tonight for the finale of a three-game series.

The Reds had been behind the whole game and didn't get their first hit until a solo home run in the sixth inning.

Houston starter Mike Scott, who kept the Reds hitless through five innings, tired and left the game in the ninth with a three-hitter, leading 2-1.

Then, with one out in the ninth, Parker singled and Davis hit his homer.

"Scott told me after the eighth inning that he was tiring," said Astros Manager Hal Lanier. "After he struck out Pete Rose to lead off the ninth inning he told me he had given everything. I didn't hesitate to take him out."

Then Lanier brought in his bullpen ace, right-handed Dave Smith, who has 16 saves.

"Even if DiPino had gotten Parker out, I would have made the same move," said Lanier. "Smith's the best reliever in the league and it was his time. I don't care if everyone second guesses that move."

Reds player-manager Rose agreed with Lanier's strategy.

"The first pitch by Smith was fastball and then he came in with a forkball. It was up, and Davis caught up with it quick with a nice, easy swing."

"I am very happy I was able to come through at the right time," said

Second session of girls' basketball camp next week

Girls in the fifth through eighth grades may sign up for next week's session of the Hereford Girls' Basketball Camp.

That camp session will start on Monday, June 23, and conclude on Friday, June 27. Girls in the ninth grade and older cannot attend the camp in Hereford, according to UIL rules.

The camps are scheduled for two hours each day, 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., Monday through Friday. The cost for the basketball camp is $20 for each girl.

For more information on the basketball camp, contact Sowers at 364-8077.

Davis. "He's one of the best in the National League. I knew I had to concentrate against him."

"Eric dictates the game," said Parker. "He has phenomenal ability and world class speed. He has great ability and he's going to stand this league in it's head."

Smith fell to 1-3. The victory went to reliever Ron Robinson, 5-0, who worked a perfect ninth.

The Reds scored in the sixth on Eddie Milner's one-out home run.

The Astros scored once in the second inning when Phil Garner singled, took second on a groundout and came home on a single by Bert Pena.

Houston's Glenn Davis hit his 13th homer of the season in the third for a 2-0 lead.

In other National League games, Montreal beat New York 7-4; Chicago edged Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 innings, Los Angeles beat Atlanta 5-2 and San Francisco stopped San Diego 6-3. Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 2-1 in 12 innings after the Cardinals beat the Pirates 4-2 in a game resumed after it was improperly stopped Monday night.

Expos 7, Mets 4

The statistics showed that Dwight Gooden should have blown away Tim Wallach. So much for statistics.

Wallach, who entered the game 1-for-19 with 11 strikeouts in his career against the New York ace, hit two homers and drove in five runs against Gooden on Wednesday night, powering the Montreal Expos past the Mets 7-4.

"In the past, I've been glad if I could just make contact," Wallach said. "The way I've hit him in the past, it would have been unthinkable."

Wallach hit a sacrifice fly in the first inning and then led off the fourth with his 11th home run of the season. Wallach knocked out a shaky Gooden in the seventh with a three-run homer, marking the first time anyone had homered twice off Gooden in a game.

"I didn't know the statistics, but I knew I was getting him out a lot," Gooden said. "I just didn't make good pitches against him."

Dodgers 5, Braves 2

Franklin Stubbs homered and drove in three runs and Fernando Valenzuela became the NL's second 10-game winner as Los Angeles beat host Atlanta.

Stubbs lined a two-run single that keyed a three-run third and hit his 12th homer in the ninth.

Valenzuela, 10-4, joined Houston's Bob Knepper as a 10-game winner.

Pirates 2, Cardinals 1

Bill Almon hit a sacrifice fly in the 12th inning, lifting Pittsburgh over St. Louis in the night's regularly scheduled game.

Prior to the Pirates' victory, the Cardinals wrapped up a 4-2 triumph in the resumption of a game improperly halted in the sixth inning Monday night because of rain.

Mike Bielecki and three relievers combined to hold St. Louis to four hits in the Pittsburgh victory. Bielecki gave up two hits in eight innings, but Don Robinson, 2-0, got credit for the victory.

The Cardinals sent the game into extra innings by scoring a run in the eighth on a bloop, RBI single by Jose Oquendo.

Pittsburgh, trailing 4-1 in the sixth at the time of Monday's halt, was unable to rally and win the suspended game despite successfully arguing its protest to NL President Chub Feeney that umpire-in-chief John Kibler should not have called the game after a 22-minute rain delay.

Feeney ruled that Kibler did not follow either a league directive calling for at least a 45-minute wait or the Official Baseball Rules, which mandate a 30-minute wait. There had been an earlier 17-minute delay in the inning.

Cubs 5, Phillies 4

Ron Cey scored from third base on a wild pitch by Philadelphia reliever Don Carman with one out in the 10th inning, giving Chicago its victory over the visiting Phillies.

Giants 6, Padres 3

Chris Brown, Bob Melvin and Jose Uribe hit home runs that powered San Francisco past San Diego.

The visiting Giants pounded Mark Thurmond, 3-6, for five hits and three runs in 1-1/3 innings. Thurmond is 1-6 lifetime against San Francisco.

Like Father, Like Daughter(s)

The Hereford Girls' Basketball Camp this week could be said to include a "like father, like daughter" camp. In the photo at the left, camp director Larry Sowers, head girls' basketball coach at Hereford High School, watches his daughter Lara shoot the ball. Sowers' other daughter,

New wave commercials compete

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The television commercial's biggest competition was once the kitchen or the bathroom, but electronic advances of the 1980s have raised the battle for attention to new creative heights.

"It's gotta be entertaining, it's gotta grab the viewer," said Josef Lubinsky, writer of music for the compelling, mood-soaked Levi's 501 jeans commercials. "You can't say, 'Look here, this is the widget,' anymore. You have to make the widget fly into space and come back down."

Lubinsky, 32, is part of a crew devoted to finding ways of putting the widget in orbit with viewers, and the blast from their ideas may singe the stragglers.

Commercials are now aimed at grabbing emotions rather than feeding information. Some are mini-epics that evoke patriotism, romance or a particular lifestyle in just 30 seconds.

These new-wave commercials typically are aimed at affluent baby boomers and feature either a catchy new jingle or a hit song from the 1960s, platinum production qualities and little or no announcing.

Lubinsky and others attribute the new creative approaches to the influence of MTV, which also is counted as one of the competing interests for today's advertisers. Viewers sometimes switch to the cable-delivered music video channel as an escape from ads.

There's a lot riding on keeping commercials interesting. Advertisers spent more than $20.7 billion last year for all types of television, according to Advertising Age magazine.

In the Levi commercials, moods and ideas come across in music and visual settings. In half a minute, the viewer has identified the jeans with living in New York City lofts, strutting down streets and falling in love.

Ford's Lincoln-Mercury cars chase down Big Chillers with rerecorded versions of such 1960s hit tunes as Steppenwolf's "Born to be Wild," Creedence Clearwater's "Proud Mary," and the Beatles' "Help" and "Good Day, Sunshine."

At expense of Texas Rangers

Don Sutton finally wins game No. 300

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

Don Sutton, who says he's a man of little outward emotion, joyously thrust his right arm into the air and suddenly was hugging his teammates, his manager, his family.

As a backdrop, an Anaheim stadium crowd of 37,044 continued a roaring ovation that had begun with the start of the ninth inning.

Wednesday night, the California Angels' right-hander became just the 19th player in baseball history to win 300 games.

He did it in grand fashion, with a three-hit, no-walk, complete-game performance in the Angels' 5-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Earlier, the 41-year-old Sutton had said he might prefer to go after 300 in front of empty stands, but asked if that was the case Wednesday night, he replied: "No. It was hard to remain unemotional."

"That was the nicest, sweetest roar I've ever heard."

Sutton smiled as he recalled a brief conversation with California Manager Gene Mauch just after the game.

"Gene said, 'Nice going; I got a thrill out of that, too,'" Sutton related. "I said, 'I know you're against this kind of thing, but you can hug me if you want.'"

"He said, 'This one time and this one time only.'"

His 300th win was vintage Sutton, as he got the Rangers 14 times on flies, nine times on grounders including one double play while facing just two batters over the minimum.

The only hits by the Rangers — who lost their fifth straight and saw their American League West lead over the Angels dwindle to a half-game — were singles by Ruben Sierra in the second and eighth innings, and Pete Incaviglia's 12th homer, a solo shot in the seventh.

Bobby Valentine, the Texas manager who used to be a Los Angeles Dodgers teammate of Sutton, said he didn't think back then that Sutton would go on to win 300 games.

But Valentine quickly added: "He's been a great competitor and he's battled all the way and made the best of his ability."

Rangers pitcher Charlie Hough, also a former teammate of Sutton's with the Dodgers, said he'd have preferred that Sutton get his 300th against another club.

"He's going to the Hall of Fame whether he won this one or not. He was going to win another one somewhere."

The Angels staked Sutton, who now has a 300-233 career record and 5-5 mark this year, to a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

The Rangers' Jose Guzman, 6-7, walked Gary Pettis to open the inning and Pettis eventually scored on a groundout. Later in the inning, Rob Wilfong singled home two more runs.

The other California runs came on solo homers by Ruppert Jones, his sixth, in the fifth inning, and Brian Downing, his eighth, in the seventh inning.

"The fact that I got three runs early kept fresh in my mind my last time out," said Sutton, who'd gotten an early 4-1 lead against the Kansas City Royals last Saturday but wound up with no decision in the Angels' 6-5 win.

"I didn't intend to let that happen again."

Sutton, who describes himself as a "mechanic, an unspectacular grinder," said it would take him some time to really digest what reaching the milestone means to him.

But he did say: "I've been trying legally ... and illegally ... to get here for years. What it means is that I just stayed around 21 years to win 300. You have to sacrifice, you have to discipline yourself."

"You're playing for something other than money. You set goals and go after them."

Asked what his goals are now, he answered: "Seven hundred starts, 5,000 innings ... and 301 wins."

"What it means is that I just stayed around 21 years to win 300," said Sutton. He got his first victory for the Los Angeles Dodgers against the Houston Astros on April 18, 1966, and collected 230 victories with the Dodgers from 1966-1980. He won 24 with the Astros, 26 with the Milwaukee Brewers and 13 with the Angels owner Gene Autry, congratulating Sutton, said: "I've had a lot of thrills and a lot of heartbreaks in baseball, but nothing has made me as happy as seeing you and your batterymate, Bob Boone, get 300."

"You've been an asset to baseball, an asset to this club, and I wish I'd had you 20 years ago."

Sutton, asked if he'd now finally reveal whether he was guilty of long-standing allegations that he illegally doctors the ball, grinned and said: "I didn't die when I got 300; I still have to go back out there and pitch again. Three hundred's not terminal."

Oakland A's before coming to the Angels late last season and spitting four decisions.

In other AL games, Oakland edged Kansas City 1-0, Boston trimmed New York 5-2, Detroit downed Baltimore 6-1, Minnesota outslugged Chicago 10-9 in 10 innings, Milwaukee beat Toronto 3-1 and Cleveland stopped Seattle 5-1.

A's 1, Royals 0

Dave Kingman's second-inning homer, his 15th of the season and 422nd of his career, enabled Curt Young to win a battle of four-hitters from Bret Saberhagen.

The Royals got their leadoff batter on base in six innings but did not get a runner past second base until the eight when Mike Brewer doubled and was sacrificed to third but was out at the plate on Lonnie Smith's grounder to shortstop Alfredo Griffen. Young, a left-hander, who began the season in the minors, struck out two and walked two.

Red Sox 5, Yankees 2

Don Baylor, traded from New York in March, ripped a tie-breaking three-run double with one out in the ninth inning and Boston completed a three-game sweep behind Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd's eight-hit pitching. Baylor's double came on a 3-2 pitch after he fouled off four consecutive pitches from Brian Fisher, who relieved Bob Shirley with runners on second and third and one out.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Yankees, their longest losing streak of the season.

New York's Ken Griffey, who was fined $10,000 earlier in the day for missing Tuesday night's game, homered with two out in the sixth to tie the game.

Tigers 6, Orioles 1

Rookie Eric King pitched a five-hitter for the first complete game of his major-league career and Larry Herndon hit a two-run homer. The Tigers had lost 12 of 16 games before winning three straight over the Orioles, who have dropped eight of their last 10. King walked two and struck out 10 in his third major-league start.

Twins 10, White Sox 9

Minnesota tied the game with four runs in the bottom of the ninth on Kent Hrbek's two-run homer — his second home run of the game — and Mickey Hatcher's two-run pinch single, then won it on Steve Lombardozzi's 10th-inning triple. Kirby Puckett opened the 10th with a single off Gene Nelson. After failing to sacrifice, Lombardozzi slammed a hard grounder down the third-base line that rolled into the left-field corner as Puckett steamed home.

Brewers 3, Blue Jays 1

Rookie Mike Felder drove in two runs with his first major-league homer and Teddy Higuera scattered eight hits. Higuera struck out eight to give him 98, second in the AL. His eight complete games leads the league. He gave up a run in the first inning on Cliff Johnson's double but Felder put the Brewers ahead in the third when he homered off Jim Clancy after Charlie Moore walked. Clancy left the game after the homer because of a cramp in his left hamstring.

Indians 5, Mariners 1

Ken Schrom allowed three hits in seven innings and Brett Butler doubled, tripled and scored twice as Cleveland snapped Seattle's four-game winning streak. Schrom struck out four and walked three before leaving with a strained Achilles tendon. He allowed a solo homer by Phil Bradley and singles by John Moses and Danny Tartabull.

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on a minimum of 20 words. One day is 13 cents per word or $2.60 minimum. Rates below are for consecutive issues, no copy change, and apply to solid ad lines only.

TIMES	RATES	MIN.
1 day per word:	.13	2.60
2 days per word:	.22	4.40
3 days per word:	.31	6.20
4 days per word:	.40	8.00
5th day FREE

Add 9 cents per word for additional days: 10 days (2 free) is 15.20 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is 22.40; month 27.80.

Classified display rates apply for special captions, paragraphing, bold type or larger type, and ads not set with full lines. $2.00 per column inch, $2 a column inch for additional insertions, or $1.75 a column inch per month.

LEGALS
 Advertising rates for legal notices are $3.50 per column inch for the first insertion and $3 per column inch for consecutive issues.

Deadlines for classified ads are 3 p.m. daily for the next day's edition; 3 p.m. Friday for Sunday's edition.

Cash is required on advertisements under $10.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in Classified Ads and legal notices. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. In case of errors not the fault of the advertiser, an additional insertion will be given.

The Hungarian Revolution was all but crushed in 1849

Juneteenth celebration set today

By The Associated Press

For most of her 91 years, San Antonian Lella D. Thomas has subscribed to the philosophy that people should never be afraid to fight for their rights.

She says it has served her well, including the era when discrimination against blacks was common — and legal — in Texas.

Her 14-year-old granddaughter, Phyllis Callies, said it means hope during an era when all ethnic groups share equal opportunities.

Today, both could reflect on their freedoms with other Texans observing Juneteenth, the celebration of the day in 1865 when Texas slaves finally learned they were free.

"This is not like a birthday or national holiday. We're celebrating people who were once enslaved and now they're not," says state Rep. Al Edwards, a Houston Democrat who wrote and sponsored the 1980 bill making June 19 an official holiday.

The Emancipation Proclamation was issued by President Lincoln in 1862. But word did not reach Texas until June 19, 1865, when Union Maj. Gen. Gordon Granger issued an order in Galveston that freed all slaves.

Since then, Juneteenth has been celebrated officially and unofficially in Texas. The 1980 bill made the day a state holiday but employees have the option of exchanging that holiday for another.

Edwards said he hopes to persuade more private companies to recognize the holiday and will work in the next session of the Legislature for a measure closing state banks.

Thomas, the mother of community activist the Rev. R.A. Callies and 12 other children, said she will spend today remembering when whites forced her to sit in the back of a train and go to segregated schools.

She will recall being threatened while traveling to church as a child and while sitting in her home as an adult.

Discrimination, she said, "broke our heart ... but as far as being afraid, my daddy taught us all the time not to be afraid of nobody. And I'm not afraid of nothing because I know God knows right from wrong, and out of one blood God made all men."

Juneteenth activities across the state include a prayer service in Galveston in historic Ashton Villa, featuring a reading of the Emancipation Proclamation.

In San Antonio, Miss Juneteenth will be crowned and an Afro-American Style Show will be held.

In Austin, there will be a parade and a second annual Juneteenth celebration at the Capitol, co-sponsored by the Legislative Black Caucus and the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History.

Ways with Wine
by David Hutchins

CALIFORNIA STYLE

The wines of California have their own style, developed out of necessity and based on European tradition. The necessity stems from the limitations of climate. California has a Mediterranean climate with cool spots. Parts of the coastal regions are like the best of Europe. However, the growing seasons do not stress the vines as much as in Europe. Stress is considered necessary to the making of a great wine. The grapes have a tendency to lack acid. It results in a difficulty in obtaining a perfect balance of sugar in the grapes. However, this problem is largely overcome by skill in tending the vines and controlling the fermentations. While the wines of Burgandy and Bordeaux emphasize dryness, the wines of California emphasize fruitiness and softness.

At THE STORE you will find a terrific selection of wines from around the world including many vintage Californian wines. Years ago it was necessary to purchase an imported wine if you were looking for quality. That has all changed as California wineries now present wines that are of the same or better quality and in many cases are less expensive. For quality and service that will please you we are here at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Open: Mon.- Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

"Body" is a word to describe the wateriness of a wine.
