C of C Picks Rogers As President in '79

Ken Rogers, president of Lone Star Agency, Thursday was named as the 1979 president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. He will succeed O.G. "Speedy" Nieman when new officers are installed in January.

The selection of Rogers came during a regular C of C board meeting Thursday following a report from the board's nominating committee. Also elected by the board to serve on the chamber's executive committee next year were Jake Webb, vice president, and Dr. Milton Adams, treasurer.

Webb is the local manager of Southwestern Public Service, and Dr. Adams is a local optometrist. Webb is a new board member and served as president of Floydada C of C before coming to Hereford.

Rogers served as vice president of the chamber this year. Active in a number of civic organizations, he is a Rotary Club director, past president of Friends of the Library, a former Hereford Opportunity Plan director and past district chairman of Boy Scouts of America. He's been a resident of Hereford 14 years and is a graduate of Baylor University. He and his wife, Lucy, have two children—Melinda, 14, and Blair, 12.

One of the highlights of the board meeting yesterday was a report on the "Strictly Bull Follies" which was sponsored by the chamber. Nieman praised the cast of the show for making the project a success, with the chamber netting about $2,900 from the event.

The C of C president also expressed appreciation to directors who were involved in the project, and especially to committee chairmen and to C of C manager Mike Carr and Women's Division president Margaret Formby for their dedicated efforts.

Susie McGee, talent co-chairman, appeared at the board meeting to tell directors how much the show meant to her and members of the cast. "It was a very heart-warming experience. I've been associated with a chamber project which I enjoyed more than this." She added that she wished some of the directors had become more involved in the production itself.

"I hope that you'll look at the list of cast members—many of whom are not chamber members—and thank them for their time and efforts in putting on this (See CHAMBER, Page 2)

Carter Warns of Possible 'Depression'

Labor Camp Gift

San Jose Catholic Church Men's Society president Reyes Cano, second from right, presents a $3,500 gift to United Way president Paul Sims for this year's fund drive. Others participating in the

WASHINGTON (AP) - While some Carter administration officials have been busy trying to refute predictions of a recession next year, the newest members of the president's economic team is raising the possibility of a worse danger: a depression.

The only depression in the United States this century was in the 1930s when one-fourth of the nation's labor force was without work. It had such a terrible impact on the lives of most Americans that it is remembered not just as a depression, but as the Great Depression.

The majority of Americans today were not even born when the depression occurred; it is something they have heard about and learned to fear from textbooks and from relatives who suffered through it.

It's such a serious and emotional prospect that the threat of a depression presumably would not be raised in idle speculation by the government.

So there were some private expressions of surprise and dismay when President Carter's new inflation adviser, Alfred Kahn, said Wednesday the United States will face a "deep, deep depression" if the new anti-inflation program doesn't work and inflation continues unchecked.

Although more ambiguous in his response, Carter himself seemed to take the same basic position when asked

Thursday about Kahn's depression talk. The president said failure of his inflation and dollar-support programs would raise the threat of "a recession or even a depression."

But he added, "I intend to hold my course; I meant and do mean business." Two other key officials dismissed suggestions of a depression as unfounded, even if the Carter program fails.

"I'm not that pessimistic," G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said Thursday. "If this plan doesn't work, we'll have another plan."

Asked what other plan he had in mind, Miller declined to speculate. "This plan is going to work," he said.

And Lyle E. Gramley, a member of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, said, "The idea that we're going to have a depression of the kind we had in the 1930s seems to me to be preposterous."

Gramley said the 1930s experience is the only reference he has for defining a depression, since there is no precise definition for one.

The World Book Encyclopedia defines a depression as "a condition in economic life in which a great many men have no work, machines stand idle and the general level of economic activity is low or depressed."

A recession is more precisely defined as being two consecutive quarters, or six months, in which the economy not only does not grow, but contracts. The most (See ECONOMY, Page 2)

At Realtors' Banquet

Andrews Earns Honor; Cooper Named President

By SPEEDY NIEMAN, Publisher

Mark Andrews was honored as "Realtor of the Year" and Neil Cooper accepted the president's gavel at the annual installation banquet for the Hereford Board of Realtors Thursday night at the country club.

For Andrews, who is also the outgoing president, it marked the second year in a row to be selected as "Realtor of the Year." He is associated with Property Enterprises.

Cooper, First Realty of the Southwest, moved up from the vice president's post to assume the presidency of the board. Other new officers installed were Jeane Coker, vice president; Billie Sonnenberg, secretary-treasurer; Lloyd Sharp, multiple listing chairman; and directors Pat Ferguson, and Marn Tyler.

One of the country's top humorists, James "Doc" Blakely, was featured speaker for the event. Mixing his fast-paced humor with a message on attaining success by "soaring like eagles," Blakely lived up to his billing as "America's No. 1 intellectual humorist."

Blakely told his audience of Realtors, Realtor affiliates and guests that some of the factors in success were getting involved, service to others, using wisdom or common sense, and having faith. Blakely, who writes a weekly syndicated column entitled "Pokin' Fun", is from Wharton. He also has a daily radio program called "The Face of Agriculture."

Andrews served as master of ceremonies for the installation banquet, and Ted Schuler of Amarillo was the installing officer. Schuler is a state officer for Realtors and is associated with Security Federal Savings and Loan.

Jeane Coker introduced guests at the banquet and Tommy Bowling presented three special plaques. The awards went to retiring president Andrews, to Don Tardy for his outstanding work as local Texas Real Estate Political Action Committee chairman, and to Nancy Moore for outstanding service as secretary the past year.

The "Realtor of the Year" award was presented by Lee Umsted, who cited the eligibility requirements for nominees and listed the many accomplishments recorded by Andrews during the year.

Old, New Presidents

Mark Andrews, left, was named "Realtor of the Year" and Neil Cooper was installed as the new president when the Hereford Board of Realtors held its annual Installation Banquet Thursday night at Hereford Country Club. Andrews, the retiring president, received the coveted Realtor award for the second year in a row. Nationally-known humorist James "Doc" Blakely was featured speaker for the event.

Catholic Church Men's Society Contributes $3,500 to United Way

San Jose Catholic Church Men's Society Thursday presented a check for $3,500—a portion of the money raised in this year's Fiestas Patrias celebration—to Deaf Smith County United Way.

Society president Reyes Cano gave the check to UW president Paul Sims in a presentation held at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office.

"We're doing this to help the community," Cano said. "Also, all the United Way officials reported this morning that $113,575.13 has been collected in this year's fund drive.

The total represents nearly 57 percent of the UW goal of $199,815.

The next report meeting will be at 5 p.m. Tuesday at Southwestern Public Service.

organizations that we've helped previously are in United Way."

The $3,500 is part of the approximately $21,000 raised by Fiestas Patrias queen candidates prior to the annual September celebration of the Mexican independence.

The church men also announced

Thursday that they have donated $250 to Meals on Wheels, $250 to Migrant Farm Workers Union, $250 to orphans in Monterey, Mexico and $1,000 for the development of the Roman Catholic Church in the Panhandle area.

Sims said the United Way donation was the largest ever from the church.

"These people saw the need this year to support our local agencies. I hope this great example of support inspires others to help the organizations in United Way meet their operating expenses," Sims said.

The Rev. James O'Connor, pastor of the San Jose church, stated after the check presentation: "We are very grateful for the cooperation of the community with our efforts in Fiestas Patrias every year, and especially to the business community."

Proceeds from Fiestas Patrias will be used to build a new San Jose Catholic Church.

Homemakers Set Banquet

The Annual Deaf Smith County Young Farmers-Young Homemakers Awards banquet will be held tomorrow at 7 p.m. at K-Bob's Steak House.

Highlighting the event will be the announcement of the Outstanding Young Farmer and the Outstanding Young Homemaker for 1978.

The awards are presented each year to the top members of the two organizations for their efforts on behalf of YF and YH, as well as the community.

The Young Homemakers will also present a Distinguished Service Award to a local member during ceremonies Saturday.

Among award sponsors for the banquet are Deaf Smith Rural Electric Cooperative, Southwestern Public Service Co., and George Warner Seed Co. of Hereford.

Local Toastmasters International member Bill Allen will be the banquet's featured speaker.

Texas Pollsters Join Hill, Krueger on Losing Side

DALLAS (AP) - Democrats John Hill and Bob Krueger weren't the only losers in this year's general elections. The pollsters who picked them to win have also been nursing post-election headaches.

What happened to those polls that showed Hill leading in the governor's race over Republican Bill Clements and Krueger poised to move from the U.S. House to the Senate, knocking Republican incumbent John Tower out of a job?

The men who did the polling offer no definitive answers - just some educated guesses.

Clements and Tower each used Houston pollster V. Lance Tarrance, whose opinions more or less coincide with those of Hill pollster Alex Louis of Dallas and Krueger surveyer George Shipley of Austin.

Tarrance said late surveying by his team made results more accurate for his side, while Hill and Krueger polls shut down too early.

Shipley said Wednesday that the Krueger polling suffered from a lack of funds.

"We never really had the money to say who would vote and who wouldn't," Shipley said. "We had severe budget limitations. We did not have the resources to poll until the last day."

Louis did not plead poverty, but said Clements had two things going for himself and his money.

"There were so many factors...any one of them could stand more or less on its own, but I really think it was a combination," Louis said.

How about the theory that the undecideds carried the day for Clements?

Not according to Tarrance: "Both Hill and Clements apparently were winning equal amounts of the last-minute undecided votes."

The theory that Democratic voters just didn't turn out in enough numbers to carry the day was more likely, the experts said:

"Clements moved people to the polls that do not normally vote, a lot were conservatives that are not normally Republicans," said Shipley associate John Henson. "The normal Democratic percentage represented a lower percentage of the turnout."

Henson's observations would also lend credence to the theory that Tower rode home on Clements' efforts.

Louis said that he polled what he was told to poll, and that he wouldn't change anything if he had to do it again.

"I don't believe a pollster knows enough to advise," he said.

Louis did offer a couple of observations that he said could have contributed to Hill's decline, which did not show up in his polls.

Louis said the final Hill poll began just after a Dallas newspaper published a story in which allegations were made against Hill's performance.

"That was a factor," he said. He also said Clements' image was as a Texan (See POLLSTER, Page 2)

Officer Killed During Drug Search

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - It was just a routine assignment for crack narcotics officers - serving a drug search warrant for an apartment in a dreary Southwest San Antonio housing project.

But when the two plainclothes officers identified themselves, 9mm pistol shots ripped through the closed door, striking one officer above the eye and killing him. Another shot grazed the head of the other policeman.

Detective Bernabe "Barney" Salazar, 31, a nine-year veteran of the force and the father of two young children, was dead on arrival Thursday afternoon at a local hospital.

Bexar County Sheriff's Deputy Frank Ashton, 45, escaped with only the slight head wound.

"We've lost a very fine officer. What else can be said?" said a stunned San Antonio Police Chief E.E. Peters. "This is a very bad day, the kind of day we all know can happen but hope never does."

"He was a very good cop," said Police Inspector Marion Talbert said of the victim.

After the gunfire struck the officers, a small army of city, county and state policemen riddled the apartment with shotgun blasts and pistol shots. Three persons inside surrendered, and no one else was hurt.

Rhodesian Power Transfer Postponed

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) - The transfer of power to Rhodesia's black majority has been put off for four months by a biracial transition government increasingly beset by internal bickering and stepped-up guerrilla attacks from neighboring Mozambique and Zambia.

An official announcement Thursday said the elections scheduled to take place before Dec. 31 had been postponed to April 20 because the Executive Council "has not yet completed all the political decisions required for the finalization of the new constitution."

The Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, who along with Prime Minister Ian Smith, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Sen. Jeremiah Chirau make up the Council, said, "We have had to accept the inevitable. It has been physically impossible to meet the date owing to the lagging behind in certain measures which should have been taken."

He did not specify which "measures" were causing the problems. However, the entire transition program is running more than two months behind schedule and the draft of the new constitution has not been published so far.

At the same time, black nationalist guerrillas led by Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo have stepped up their six-year-old war from Mozambique and Zambia to wreck the transition process. Casualties have reached nearly 30 a day and 60 percent of Rhodesia is under martial law.

Bodies Discovered

Under Hotel Rubble

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) - The bodies of two men trapped under a cascade of rubble when an old hotel collapsed were found Thursday, less than 48 hours after a third worker was rescued alive.

Searchers used a trained German shepherd and a natural gas utility's equipment - both capable of detecting the scent of decaying flesh - to find the bodies.

The body of Frederick C. Coe III, 29, of Topeka, Kan., was recovered Thursday morning about two hours after it was spotted by a rescue worker.

The body of Thomas Edward Oakes, 45, of Jenks, Okla., was found two hours later by workmen using shovels and a backhoe to sift through wreckage of the landmark Connor Hotel. It was removed 1 1/2 hours later.

"We believe everyone is accounted for," said Joplin Police Chief Larry Tennis.

Coe and Oakes worked for the firm preparing to demolish the nine-story hotel when it gave way Saturday - one day before it was to be blown down with explosives.

Assistant Joplin police chief Major Frank Harris said Oakes was found about 35 feet from the cramped tunnel of debris where Alfred "Butch" Summers, 30, of Joplin, was found alive Tuesday.

Israel Studies 'Ideals' As Talks Progress

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Mideast peace talks, now in their sixth week, are inching ahead as Israel weighs "new ideas" by Egypt to link their proposed peace treaty to future negotiations over the Palestinian issue.

The proposals, delivered to President Carter by Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak, are understood to involve a series of steps to be taken toward Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip once the treaty is completed.

Before flying home to prepare for a Sunday Cabinet meeting, the Israeli defense minister, Ezer Weizman, told reporters: "The peace talks will continue. They are not stopped. They are not going to stop."

Weizman, after a meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, said he believed the Egyptian proposals "should not be stumbling blocks in continuation of the talks and in finalizing the peace treaty."

He said he would return with Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan Monday or Tuesday.

Mubarak, who served as an emissary for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, met with Weizman after seeing Carter. He is remaining here for a meeting with Vance.

Israel has resisted directly linking the treaty with Egypt to negotiations over the status of the West Bank and Gaza and the 1.1 million Palestinian Arabs living in the Israeli-occupied territories.

The Abundant Life

SELF-CARE

BY BOB WEAR

"TAKE CARE OF YOURSELF" is a very good expression of wholesome interest in a loved one or a friend. It also reveals a knowledgeable view of human behavior, and an understanding of a basic personal need. It is supportive of the importance of "self-care." A cursory consideration of this idea will surely lead us to the wrong conclusion, and may even cause self-neglect. It can also cause unjustified criticism of the people who are "taking care" of themselves.

"SELF-CARE MUST NOT become an obsession. If it does, it is no longer "self-care" but self-centeredness. We are not taking care of ourselves, if we become "concerned solely about our desires, needs, or interests." Permitting our lives to become self-centered is one of the worst mistakes we can make, but neglecting ourselves is equally harmful. Self-care is the view of one's life that lies between "self-centeredness" and "self-neglect."

IN THE LEARNING PROCESS of early life, we are often warned that certain things are harmful. We are given help in learning to identify these, and are told some of the safeguards to use for our safety. In fact, in a variety of ways, every day, we are warned to be careful. This continues to be part of the living experience, and most of it is justified and helpful.

Therefore we are conscious of most of the external dangers which threaten our well-being, and most of us do reasonably well in guarding ourselves against them. This is a very important part of "self-care" but here is more.

"SELF-CARE" MUST include the mind, the inner nature. This area is even more important than our outer nature. The charge is often made that we are more careful about what goes into the stomach than we are about what goes into the mind. We may be, and, if we are, we are being very foolish; however, we realize that such a mistake is easy to make. If we are making this mistake, we can correct it, and should.

SUCCESSFUL "SELF-CARE" is accomplished by "keeping the mind with all vigilance," because "out of it are the issues of life."

IF WE ARE MORE PARTICULAR in our adornment of the outer man than we are in the adornment of the inner man, we are missing the main point in rewarding "self-care." The intelligent view of living requires us to do our very best with both.

"HE IS HIS OWN WORST ENEMY" is not an uncommon remark to hear about someone. This describes the person who is, in some way or ways, careless about himself. Such harm to one's self usually involves faulty attitudes, or inadequate self-management, or an unbridled tongue, or some such consequence of "self-neglect."

WE MUST TAKE CARE OF OURSELVES, in order to be useful; and in order to be most helpful to our fellowmen. This "SELF-CARE" is life, at its best.

Texans Thank King

MADRID (AP) - Wiggled and in Spanish grenadier uniforms, a group of Texans Friday formally thanked King Juan Carlos for Spain's help two centuries ago during the American Revolution.

Led by San Antonio industrialist Carlos Barrera, the Texans, including members from Houston, Galveston and Corpus Christi, presented a joint resolution from the Texas Legislature to the king.

The resolution expressed recognition and thanks for the leadership of Spanish Gen. Bernardo de Galvez Gallardo Ortega, the 18th century Spanish military leader whose troops helped defeat British forces at the Battle of Pensacola.

"The king thanked each of us personally, even though we were more than 200 years late," said State Rep. S.L. Abbott of El Paso.

With his 10-year-old son Felipe, the prince of Asturias and heir to the Spanish throne looking on in roller skates, the king welcomed the Texas group for a 90-minute private audience at his Zarzuela Palace residence on Madrid's outskirts.

Queen Sofia was out of town and regretted she could not attend, Juan Carlos told the 40 Texans and their wives.

Under its rules, the "Grenadiers of Galvez" are required to pay homage to Spain's monarch every two years for the Spaniards' contribution to the U.S. war of independence.

The group also presented a Spanish flag carried into space by American astronaut Vance Brand during the linkup between the U.S. spaceship Apollo and the Soviet Soyuz. Brand handed the flag to the king.

"The king was absolutely charming," said Mrs. Gilbert Carvajal of San Antonio, whose husband's ancestors came to the United States from Spain in 1715 and helped found the town of San Antonio. The audience took place in both Spanish and English, she said.

The Texans met the king after an early morning visit with Lt. Gen. Manuel Gutierrez Mellado, vice premier and defense minister. They also visited the Spanish army museum behind the world famous Prado Museum.

"We wanted to acknowledge the long due help that Spain gave to the American Revolution," Barrera said. "It is part of American history and deserves more recognition."

The group is scheduled to be received Saturday by Army Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Tomas de Liniers.

Nixon Again Linked To Wrongdoing

LOS ANGELES (AP) - An attorney for the former No. 2 man in the FBI has linked former President Richard Nixon to an illegal campaign of wiretaps and break-ins against friends and relatives of fugitive terrorists, the Los Angeles Times said Thursday.

Brian P. Gettings, attorney for W. Mark Felt, said in a federal court motion in Washington that "certain recommendations" of the "Huston plan" to spy on revolutionary groups were implemented after a mid-August 1970 telephone conversation between Nixon and former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, the newspaper said.

Felt faces trial on charges of conspiring to violate the rights of associates of the radical Weatherman group in the early 1970s.

The plan, named for then-White House aide Tom Charles Huston, involved domestic surveillance and illegal wiretaps, mail openings and break-ins. It also would have created a permanent committee from the FBI, CIA, the National Security Agency and the Defense Intelligence Agency to coordinate spying on citizens, particularly students.

"On campuses," the paper reported, "the plan sanctioned virtually unrestrained spying on anti-war activists and even would have resulted in the recruiting of secret agents under age 21 in colleges and high schools."

Nixon has said that he had anceled the plan July 28, 1970, five days after the Hoover conversation, because the FBI director objected so strongly to it.

Gettings said "overwhelming evidence" supporting Felt's contention that authorization for the spying came from the Nixon-Hoover communication was culled from material prosecutors supplied in response to defense requests, the newspaper reported.

Following the phone call, Gettings said, Hoover sent Nixon a copy of a strongly worded letter which he had written to the FBI's 59 field offices. In the letter, according to Gettings, Hoover said he was holding agents "personally responsible" for the outcome of the fugitive hunt, the newspaper reported.

However, the newspaper quoted one unnamed source familiar with FBI procedures as saying the "personally responsible" phrase was "vintage bureaucracy."

Felt, former FBI Director L. Patrick Gray and former Assistant FBI director Edward S. Miller are scheduled for trial in January in Washington on charges of conspiring to violate the civil rights of the friends and relatives of the Weatherman members.

R. Stan Mortensen, one of Nixon's lawyers, said in Washington that Nixon and Hoover spoke frequently on the phone but that "a lot of things could have been said without saying implement" the plan.

Names in the News

LONDAON (AP) - Formally, the British are showing customary courtesy about former President Richard Nixon's planned visit later this month. Informally, officials are asking: Why us?

Leading government officials were scathing in their private comments Tuesday on Nixon's role in the Watergate scandal, informed sources said. Many were wishing Nixon would go elsewhere to measure how the world now views him.

Nixon will address the Oxford Union, Oxford University's debating society, on Nov. 30 after a four-day visit to Paris where he will appear on state-run television.

It appears neither Prime Minister James Callaghan nor his senior cabinet colleagues are enthusiastic about receiving Nixon, but one informant who asked not to be identified says: "The prime minister will, of course, have the former president around for a chat if Mr. Nixon requests a meeting."

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) - The cameras should have been rolling from all accounts of the real-life drama that confronted actress Ali MacGraw when her 1978 Mercedes convertible struck a telephone cable dangling above a Pacific Coast highway, police said.

Accounts were sketchy about the Saturday accident, but reportedly her companion, producer Larry Spangler, managed to pull her from the badly-damaged auto, and both avoided injury.

California Highway Patrol Officer Fred Carpenter said Tuesday that Miss MacGraw's car was the last of five to run into the fallen three-inch-wide cable that hung about four feet above the ground.

The greatest danger was the live voltage. Damage to the Mercedes is estimated at $5,000, said Miss MacGraw's publicist, Warren Cowan.

LONDON (AP) - An egg splattered on her pink and black sari didn't stop former Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi from reaching center stage, but resounding boos finally forced her to abandon a speech at an Indian rally in West London.

As Mrs. Gandhi entered the Dominion Theater Tuesday night, an egg smashed against the marquee and splashed her.

She continued inside to address about 1,800 people, but the jeering grew louder and finally Mrs. Gandhi departed through a back door, police said. No arrests were made.

The rally was sponsored by the Indian Workers Association and Indian Overseas Congress for Mrs. Gandhi who arrived in London Sunday for what she called a "personal visit." She began a political comeback by winning a seat in India's parliament in a Nov. 5 by-election.

Hugs Lauded

JAMUL, Calif. (AP) - The "Jamul Swings" bumper stickers that poke fun at this sleepy little town of 3,000 are being edged by a new sticker, from the Jamul Huggers Society.

For one crisp dollar bill, you get a bumper sticker, a membership card and a constitution for the club, which says in part:

"The first, most fundamental right of children is the right to be loved - hugged."

"The first few minutes of the day are the most important. They set the spirit of the whole day. Have a morning love hug."

"Stop what you're doing in the middle of the day, shout 'Time out for love,' and take the time for a big hug."

"Bedtime - 'Good night, Mommy loves you, Daddy loves you, everybody loves you.'"

The Huggers Society was born when Judy Toneck, a police officer's wife, was asked to give the daily thought at a PTA meeting last month.

Her 9-year-old son, Lan, approves. The hugs, he said Wednesday, "make you feel better."

Economy

recent recession, and the worst economic slow-down since the depression itself, was in 1974-1975, when the economy declined by 2.7 percent.

One government economist quipped that the difference between a recession and a depression can be defined as follows: "When you are out of a job, it's a recession; when I'm out of a job, it's a depression."

Presumably a depression would occur somewhere between the impact of the 1974-1975 recession, when unemployment hit a peak of 9 percent, and the Great Depression, when unemployment was three times as bad and 10 million people were out of work. That depression lasted from the stock market crash in October 1929, virtually to the outbreak of World War II.

Prior to the 1930s, the next most recent depression was in 1884.

While some officials said privately they thought it was a mistake for Kahn to raise the specter of a depression, it was understood that Kahn did it purposely because he believes one would occur if inflation continues worsening indefinitely.

If Americans are aware that a depression could be the ultimate price to pay for continuing inflation, then they might be more willing to cooperate with Carter's wage and price guideline program, said one source.

"He isn't saying there will be a depression in six months, but he is saying a severe economic disaster is inevitable sometime, if we don't get a handle on it," said the source, who did not want to be identified.

But another official, who also did not want to be identified, said, "I don't know what's in Fred Kahn's mind. He may sincerely believe these things, but I think he's wrong."

In other economic developments Thursday:

A new Associated Press-NBC News poll showed that about six of every 10 Americans believes inflation will worsen in the next year. The suggested solution most favored by those polled was to reduce federal spending.

The Federal Reserve reported that the nation's factories opened at 85.3 percent of capacity in October, a slight increase over the previous month and the highest level since an identical level in September 1974. But Miller said the economy has avoided excessive factory activity that could fuel inflation.

The Commerce Department reported that foreign governments increased their holdings of U.S. government securities in the July-September quarter by $4.5 billion, after a decline of $5.1 billion in the previous quarter. The development reflects strengthening of the dollar's value overseas.

Businesses, showing continued caution, built up their inventories by only 0.6 percent in September, the Commerce Department said in another report. Before the 1974-75 recession, businesses built up huge inventories and were unable to sell them when the economy slumped.

Pollster

rather than as a Republican. "He (Clements) won it fair and square, the way the game is played in Texas," Louis said.

Tarrance said both winners made late surges that threw off the Democratic polls.

He said Hill probably under-estimated the strength of the Clements campaign and may have made a mistake by thinking too much in terms of the actual governorship after beating Gov. Dolph Briscoe in the primary.

Tarrance said his polling allowed his clients to modify their strategies after studying indicated strengths and weaknesses.

He said pictures of Tower refusing to shake hands with Krueger hurt Tower in areas where they were accompanied by a story, but not in Houston, there they were accompanied by a story.

Tarrance said Tower reversed the losing trend through late television spots giving his version of the story behind the pictures.

Brown Patch Attacks

St. Augustine Grass

COLLEGE STATION — Brown patch, one of the most prevalent lawn diseases in Texas, can be especially severe in the fall on St. Augustine grass.

The disease-causing fungus attacks almost all species of grasses but is more serious on bentgrass, bluegrass, and centipede and St. Augustine grasses, says Dr. Walter Walls, plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Turf is very susceptible to brown patch after an excessive application of nitrogen fertilizer, because a lush growth is readily attacked," says the Texas A&M University System specialist.

Prolonged wet periods and late evening watering also contribute to development of the disease. Walls points out that a buildup of grass and plant debris (thatch) in the root and crown area further creates a favorable environment for the brown patch fungi.

"Brown patch appears as a brownish to grayish discoloration, forming irregular circles a few inches to several feet in diameter," explains the plant pathologist. "Left uncontrolled, it can spread rapidly and can kill large areas of turf."

Walls says prevention is the best method for controlling the disease. This includes using grasses adapted to the area and practicing recommended watering, fertilization and mowing procedures. Steps should be taken to avoid that buildup, and fall nitrogen fertilization should be limited if brown patch has been a problem in the past.

Fungicides available for controlling brown patch include Terraclor, Tersan 1991, Daconil 2787, and Ortho Lawn and Turf Fungicide.

REV. AND MRS. EUGENE MEACHAM ...on furlough from mission work in Africa

Meacham Couple On Furlough Here

The Rev. and Mrs. H. Eugene Meacham, former residents of this area, will be on furlough here from missionary work in Africa this week.

Rev. Meacham, who was raised in Hereford, will be speaking during morning and evening worship services Sunday at Temple Baptist Church. Interested persons are welcome to attend.

Rev. and Mrs. Meacham were appointed by the Missions Board in 1974. They arrived in Blantyre, Malawi in February, 1975 for their first assignment. In May, 1975, the mission voted approval for the Meachams to move to Mzuzu to help with projects in the northern region of Malawi.

Before receiving work permits for the move, however, Rev. Meacham served as pastor of Blantyre Baptist Church and worked in the Baptist mass media. Mrs. Meacham was active in the music program of the church and taught religious education at a nearby school.

After several delays, the Meachams finally arrived in Mzuzu in May, 1977. They have been working in that area since that time.

Born in Linn County, Kans. Gene Meacham graduated from Texas Tech University with a bachelor of science degree in engineering and physics. He earned his master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth.

Before being appointed as a missionary, Rev. Meacham was pastor of Dawn Baptist Church. Lavonne Meacham was born in Dimmitt and grew up near Hereford.

The couple has three daughters, Sharon, Lori and Cheryl.

Accident Precautions Needed in Bathrooms

COLLEGE STATION — Take precautions to avoid bathroom accidents, urges Carla Shearer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

An estimated 120,000 injuries and more than 200 deaths occur each year in the bathtub and shower.

The most serious bathroom accidents include falls, burns, electrocution and drownings, she points out.

FALLS Soapy water and the smooth surface of bath tubs are a slippery combination.

Use a rubber mat or rough surface adhesive strips to make getting in and out of the tub or standing while taking a shower, the specialist advises.

easily be scalded by accidentally turning on the hot water faucet.

ELECTROCUTIONS

The combination of water and electricity can be fatal, Ms. Shearer warns.

Don't use electrical appliances while taking a shower or bath.

Even when not taking a bath or shower, be cautious of electricity, she says.

Dry hands completely before touching any electrical fixture and make sure that you are standing on a dry floor.

When disconnecting an electric shaver, hair dryer, electric toothbrush or other appliances, disconnect the cord from the wall outlet rather than from the appliance.

Dangling cords left in the wall outlet can be lethal if kicked into the water.

DROWNINGS

Children can drown in a very small amount of water, so never leave a small child unattended in the bath or bathroom.

This also holds true for the elderly and handicapped, the specialist adds.

Ford Motor Co. was incorporated and sold its first car in 1903.

Harold Lord Tennyson, poet, died in 1892.

Disco Dance Scheduled Tonight

A disco dance is to be staged tonight in Knights of Columbus Hall with the music of Z-93, sponsoring the dance is the Catholic Youth Organization.

The dance will begin at 9 p.m. and conclude at 12:30 a.m.

THE U.S. AND YOU

William Steif
Help for home owners

A Denver family moved into a new home and soon began to notice the foundation was sagging. Reason: Soil subsidence. Until 1974 the owner would have been out of luck unless he wanted to go through a long, expensive court proceeding. But in Denver the family held a Home Owners Warranty from the builder. The local HOW Council was called in and appointed an impartial conciliator. Result: The builder bought the home back for $7,000 more than the purchase price, fixed it up and sold it at a profit. The case may be extreme, but it illustrates a trend to relying on HOW, a program first developed by the private National Association of Home Builders but now endorsed by the Federal Trade Commission. Last May builders "enrolled" 19,000 new houses in HOW, bringing the total covered to more than 300,000. About 9,000 home builders now participate in the program and they cover 70 percent of all U.S. metropolitan areas with 100,000 people or more. HOW works this way: The builder pays $2 per $1,000 of sales price to "enroll" all his new houses in the warranty program with the Home Owners Warranty Corp., through the local HOW Council. He agrees to abide by HOW-approved quality standards in construction, and must show technical competence, financial soundness and fair dealing with customers. The buyer gets a solid warranty against major structural defects, backed by 10 years of insurance underwritten by the Insurance Co. of North America. The warranty and insurance are transferable if the original buyer sells his home. If a dispute between the builder and the new owner develops and can't be settled by them, the local HOW Council names an independent expert to conciliate. The conciliator is supposed to keep the dialogue going, to come up with settlement ideas that have to be accepted within 20 days. If informal conciliation fails, the local council can bring in an arbitrator from the American Arbitration Association, putting the process onto a more formal plane. Anywhere along the line, the buyer has the option of going to court, but this may be expensive and often means going to small claims court, where the rewards may not be worth the trouble or cost. Eighty-four percent of all cases that reach the conciliation stage are settled there. No other warrantor, under a recent law, is allowed to bring in independent industry experts, nor is informal conciliation permitted. But the FTC specifically has exempted HOW to allow conciliation for 20 days. There are 116 local HOW Councils in 44 states and the program is continuing to grow under the aegis of the Home Owners Warranty Corp., run in Washington by Richard J. Canavan, a former Federal Housing Administration official. Like FTC, the program has impressed the two chief federal mortgage-guarantee agencies. If a new home has been built by a HOW builder, the Veterans Administration accepts it as mortgage-worthy as it nears completion, eliminating time-consuming inspections and paperwork.

Ann Landers Gunning Down Gun Ownership

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I live in Long Island, where recently several children have been shot by playmates. I was sickened recently when I read about a nine-year-old boy who was accidentally killed by a 13-year-old neighbor. The boy used a "toy" pellet gun his father bought him. (It is illegal for anyone under 16 to have one.)

I was angered when a pellet gun manufacturer said, "Pellet guns are not dangerous." What a cruel (and foolish) remark in view of what had happened.

I recently read a poem in Family Circle magazine which, I believe, would interest your readers. — Mom Of A Little Boy
TOY CANNON

When he was five, his mother bought him a toy cannon. And he played war with his friends.

His father was proud of his soldier son.

When he was six, he broke the toy cannon.

And cried in his room all day.

His father told him big boys don't cry.

So he choked back the tears and went on with life.

When he was ten, his mother bought him a machine gun.

It sounded just like the real ones.

All his friends had guns, and they played war in the backyard Under the watchful eyes of their proud parents.

When he was thirteen, his father told him

To throw away the machine gun

Because big boys don't play with guns.

He wanted to cry, but remembered

What his father had told him when he was young.

When he was eighteen, Uncle Sam

Gave him a rifle.

And sent him off to war.

So he went to war, wondering about

What his father had told him when Hewas young.

When his parents got the letter,

His father cried. — Author, Ron MacLean

DEAR MOM: Thank you for your letter — and the splendid poem.

I have been a long-time advocate of federal legislation to control the sale of hand guns in this country. It's an uphill battle. Although every poll shows the majority of Americans want gun-control legislation, it gets voted down repeatedly. Guns are big business and their lobby is extremely powerful.

We'll win one day — if we keep at it — and I intend to do just that.

CONFIDENTIAL to In Hot Water Again: Resolve to stop fibbing. Life is much less complicated when you play it straight. If you don't tell the first lie you won't have to tell the second.

New Jersey City Tries 'Workfare' Over Handouts

BORDENTOWN, N.J. (AP) — The government of Bordentown, population 5,000, pays Joanne Gibbs' rent. In return, when she has time, she goes down to the community center and washes chairs so they can be painted.

4-H Club Meets For Discussion

Deaf Smith County 4-H club met Monday, at the Pizza Hut. Pizza was enjoyed by the members followed by the calling of order by Shelley Gerk.

Members are in the process of forming a horse judging team which will meet Nov. 21. People are encouraged to attend the meeting. Drill team will meet Monday's and Thursday's starting at 4 p.m. at Rowland Stables. Individuals are invited to attend these meetings, also. Reporter for the meeting was Jana Johnson.

Ms. Gibbs is the town's only welfare recipient this month under a "workfare" program that state officials term illegal and callous.

Mayor Joseph R. Malone III, a fourth-generation resident, says, however, that nobody seems to be suffering. "If there is, we'll take care of them," he said.

Malone yanked Bordentown out of the state welfare system because of the cost of the welfare bureaucracy and because he felt it was "degrading" for an adult who was capable of working to be supported by what he called "handouts."

The Bordentown experiment does not affect people receiving assistance from programs such as aid to dependent children and aid to the handicapped.

Malone, 29, got his chance to stop the "handouts" last June when the town's part-time welfare director retired.

The mayor and two other city commission members took over the duties themselves. They decided the city, located about 10 miles south of Trenton on the Delaware River, would pay its own welfare costs, rejecting state aid. Adult recipients would have to work off their allotments. They directed the 34 persons then receiving welfare to reapply. Only four did.

Before that, Bordentown had an average of 25 to 30 adults on welfare, each getting $119 a month. Seventy percent of that came from the state, 30 percent from the city.

In the fiscal year that ended June 30, about 30,000 of New Jersey's 7.4 million residents received general assistance at a cost of $50 million. Malone said Bordentown's share was about $12,500 - $2,500 for the welfare director and $10,000 toward payments.

The state has had its own "workfare" program since July 1, but no definitive information on that program has been issued.

Digby's Celebrate 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Digby, 809-B Miles Ave., will be celebrating their 25th anniversary Nov. 17. An open house will be held in honor of the Digby's at Hereford State Bank, Saturday, from 2-4 p.m.

Mabel Martin married Barney Digby in Clovis, N.M. Nov. 19, 1953. They are the parents of two daughters, Donna Walker of Walcott Community, and Kathy of the home.

Mini-Marathon a Win For Disabled Youth

EDITOR'S NOTE — When hundreds of runners competed in a recent mini-marathon, not all the winners were at the head of the pack. The following account is by Edwin Pope, sports editor of The Miami Herald.

By EDWIN POPE
The Miami Herald

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Timmy limped in and announced to his mother: "They're having a mini-marathon, six and two-tenths miles. I'm going to enter."

Martha Brattain blanched. God had played it down the middle with her Timmy. Eleven years ago he was born with a 50,000-watt glow in his heart — and cerebral palsy.

"Timmy, you can barely run around the block," she said gently. "How can you expect to race more than six miles?"

Timmy grinned and said he didn't know but he was going to try.

She thought he would forget the Key Biscayne mini-marathon. Then, one Sunday last month, he shouted: "Mom, hurry! The race starts in a few minutes."

They barely made it. Seven hundred runners were at the starting line on Key Biscayne. Timmy took a look at the mob and said, "I better get to the end of the line or they might run over me."

Mrs. Brattain watched the runners start then went back to their home a few blocks away. She was sure Timmy would stop the first time by the house.

So were others who had seen him drag his unsynchronized right leg through soccer and baseball games, grinning, forever grinning, every heaving half-stride.

"I waited in the house," she said, "but he didn't come back in."

Mrs. Brattain bicycled across the island asking if anyone had seen Timmy. They had. "He's still going," they said.

Because of the race, police had shut off traffic into Cape Florida, the state park at the tip of Key Biscayne. Timmy entered Cape Florida more than an hour behind the other runners, who had already threaded their way through and out of the park. Officers saw him and held up motorists. No car would go inside until Timmy came out.

They waited. And waited. Timmy emerged, gasping and flushed, nearly two hours behind the pack. His mother wanted to ride the rest of the way behind him on her bike. But Timmy sent a message: "Tell Mom to stay way behind me."

Out of the park and down the finishing stretch came Timmy. He was half-running, half-hopping, all on his better left leg.

An old man on a lawn hailed Mrs. Brattain: "Was that your kid that just went by?"

She nodded. Jerome White won the minimarathon in 32 minutes 23 seconds. Timmy crossed the line in two hours six minutes.

His mother tried to be casual. "Are you alright?" she asked.

Timmy grinned. He said he was "a little tired, that's all."

1979: Another Big Year for Presidential Vetoes?

WASHINGTON (AP) - It looks as though 1979 will be a big year for vetoes, and a bad one for leftover presidential campaign promises. President Carter's austerity program is going to override some of candidate Carter's more ambitious proposals.

Carter has said repeatedly that he will use the veto as he deems necessary to enforce federal spending restraints and hold the deficit next year to no more than $30 billion.

He warmed up with 20 vetoes during his first Congress, 14 of them exercised to kill legislation that reached his desk after adjournment. Carter called them "a clear indication that the federal government is prepared to do its part to reduce inflation."

But Carter will not make his budget goals by rejecting only measures that Congress wants and he does not. He is not going to have to drop or defer some programs he wants but cannot afford.

That means a welfare reform plan far less costly than the total overhaul he promised during the campaign, or even the scaled down version that failed to win congressional approval this year.

It could mean further scaling down of his plans for national health insurance, which he had said should be universal and mandatory.

Federal public works and public service jobs programs for the unemployed may have to be trimmed.

Presidential aide Hamilton Jordan acknowledged that some of the steps Carter will take to rein in spending probably are at variance with what he said during the 1976 campaign. Jordan said that is because of changed economic circumstances.

That explanation does not cover another evident change, on defense spending. Carter promised to cut it. He now plans annual increases of about 3 percent in real dollars, above the inflation rate.

There is no way I can cut down on the ability of our nation to defend itself," Carter said in explaining his defense budget plans.

During the campaign, he had said he could do it for less money. "Without endangering the defense of our nation or our commitments to our allies, we can reduce present defense expenditures by about five to seven billion dollars annually," he told the Democratic platform committee in 1976.

Later on, Carter and his aides said what they meant was that tighter management would enable them to save that much money from projected levels of defense spending, not necessarily to cut the outlays of the Republican past.

In any event, the current plan on defense spending means an even tighter squeeze on domestic outlays to meet the Carter target.

"The President means business and is willing to run the political and other risks that are associated with the effort to fight inflation," said presidential adviser Stuart Eizenstat.

internal efficiencies, better mortality experience and high interest - continue is not totally guesswork. The investment returns to companies, for example, can be almost guaranteed.

But, as a spokesman for John Hancock observes, you can't expect medical advances to prolong life indefinitely.

Which is to say, unfortunately, that improvement in the all-important mortality table isn't guaranteed.

Major Insurers Lowering Rates

NEW YORK (AP) - Some prices are coming down. Major insurers have already lowered their rates on individual life policies, and more cuts are likely by the first of the year.

Officials say the decline in premium rates reflects at least three factors:

- The increases return on company investments, particularly the yield on fixed-income securities.
- Greater efficiencies, particularly through use of electronic computers.
- Lower than anticipated death rates that might be attributed to medical progress, better personal health habits and safer driving.

An industry study of 90 companies shows that the average price of policies already has dropped from $15.60 in 1975 to $15.10 in 1976 and $14.30 in 1977. A sharper decline may have occurred over the past year.

Among the largest insurers, New England Mutual and John Hancock already have cut premium rates, and New England Mutual plans another cut Jan. 1. Metropolitan is "seriously looking into" the possibility.

Even if their own underwriting experience fails to warrant reductions, other companies might for competitive reasons be forced into line with the lower rates, an industry source suggested.

The better mortality rates - or less than anticipated death rates - are most pronounced in the 30-year to 60-year age bracket, said Walter Buszewitz of the Washington-based National Council of Life Insurance.

He said the trend has been observed for 25 years or so, and that it has compelled the Society of Actuaries to embark on the production of new actuarial tables, a task he said takes considerable time.

In the interim, he said, some companies have decided to go ahead with lower premium charges, or in some instances improved dividends, based on their own rather than general actuarial experiences.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Statistical Bulletin shows the average longevity of the residential population reached a record high of 73 years in 1977, with both sexes sharing in the improvement.

The investment return for insurers has also been better than expected, one of the rare positive consequences of inflated interest rates. While moderation is expected, levels could remain relatively high.

How far the three trends relocated to Minnesota in years. And, says Mackay, the state graduates more students each year than there are jobs produced.

Curtis Carlson, a soap salesman in 1938 who went on to found the Carlson Companies in nearby Plymouth and become a multimillionaire, says commercial tax assessments are discriminatory.

Owner of the Radisson Hotel chain, Carlson notes the tax on a Minneapolis hotel is five times that levied on a hotel in New Orleans. He argues inheritance taxes almost preclude dying at home.

Mackay says it is not always the regulations and rules - workmen's compensation, pollution control, building codes, public services - that are onerous, but the "liberal" interpretation of them.

"Somehow," he concluded, "we've got to make these legislators realize that a healthy business climate benefits everyone, not just businessmen, and profit isn't a nasty word," said Mackay.

What these studies indicate to me is that some of our lawmakers seem to act as if they wish business would just go away and leave them alone," said Mackay, president of the Greater Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce.

So far, business threats to leave have been far more numerous than moves, but the threats might be real.

Equally important, business is not producing enough jobs to fill future needs. Manufacturing employment has been stagnant. No major companies have

Business Leaders Battling Over Rights in Minneapolis 'Climate'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Business leaders here are angry about the climate. No, not the icy cold of winter, which they endure and perhaps thrive on, but the business climate. They feel business is not welcome.

Almost every day, it seems, there comes another threat to leave, another blast at an "insensitive" Legislature they claim is made up of farmers and teachers who squander business' hard-earned money.

Perhaps nowhere in the country is business arguing more vocally for its rights, and many see the situation here as the prototype of similar clashes erupting or bound to erupt in other states.

So vociferous is this battleground, home to 28 Big Board companies, that forebodings occasionally arise that the atmosphere, instead of being improved, conceivably might become polluted by the debate.

The 201-member Legislature says the business climate is good, and it produces what it says are supporting figures. Businessmen argue that business and personal taxes are driving them out of the state.

Harvey Mackay, president of Mackay Envelope Co., personifies the dynamism that produced so many major concerns in the Twin Cities area. In 17 years, he built his concern from near bankruptcy to annual sales of $10 million.

The environment is different now, he says. He cites a management consultant's study showing Minnesota ranked 41st among the 48 contiguous states in "legislative climate."

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Defense Department has ordered all the armed services to study cutting minimum enlistments to improve the quality of volunteers, fill gaps in combat units and shorten overseas tours.

Officials who declined to be identified said Friday the focus of the studies, made under congressional directive, would be to restore some two-year enlistments.

Only three years ago, the Defense Department upped the minimum to three years because, officials said, there was too much turnover under two year hitches and because training was more expensive.

Although the services claim a steady increase in quality of their volunteers, the Army in particular has been unable to attract enough enlistments for the infantry, armor and artillery branches, even with bonuses and there is rising dissatisfaction in Europe with overseas duty tours that now extend up to four years.

About 11,000 or 12,000 two-year volunteers would be signed up.

One of the blandishments proposed by the Army would be cash payments to help in financing college education and other civilian training after leaving service.

The officials estimated that a successful two-year enlistment program might help solve the problem of moral in Europe where Gen. George Blanchard, the U.S. Army commander, has been seeking to cut overseas duty tours to 18 to 24 months. Presently, such tours can be much longer.

Aliens Arrested In Louisiana

HAHNVILLE, La. (AP) - Agents from the U.S. Border Patrol and the St. Charles Sheriff's Department arrested 17 Mexican laborers Thursday and booked them with being illegal aliens, authorities said.

Sheriff's spokesman Lt. Ben Pelot said the men were working in a remote area building plank roads to an oil field.

He said they were discovered bs three hunters who were checking their traps.

The Mexican laborers did not resist when agents came to arrest them.

"They didn't know where they were," Pelot said. "But as far back up in the woods as they were, I didn't know where they were either. They didn't know which way to run."

He said the plank road was being built under a contract to a company called Ragley Enterprises of Carthage, Texas.

The hunters notified authorities when they came across two large tents and then saw the workmen. Pelot said the hunters - who have leased the land - suspected that the men were hunting.

8th Graders Win Title, Too

La Plata Freshmen Go Undeclared, 9-0

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Bruce Clarke scored on a one-yard dive following a blocked punt late in the fourth quarter to lift Herford La Plata's freshman team to a 6-0 win over Canyon Thursday for the ninth-grade Panhandle Junior High League championship.

The win gives La Plata a 9-0 record, marking the first undefeated freshman season for the school in 16 years.

In the eight-grade league championship game, La Plata whipped host Canyon White, 18-6, Thursday.

Clarke dived over right tackle for the winning touchdown several plays after Vincent Cortez blocked a Canyon punt. Ken Cosper recovered the loose ball on the visitors' 30-yard line.

Canyon was unable to move the ball inside Herford's 20 for the entire game, prompting La Plata Coach Joe Spann to remark:

"Our defense was outstanding again. It's been great all year, but today (Thursday) we had an especially good game. This was probably our best overall game of the year."

The La Plata freshmen have allowed only 60 points in nine games.

"These kids have a lot of football savvy. They proved it against Canyon," Spann said. "All year long, we've let our players shake off plays, like in baseball, when they didn't think one of the coaches' plays would work. They shook off a lot of plays today and beat Canyon."

Raymond Martinez scored twice to lead the La Plata eighth-grade to their sixth win of the year and the league championship. La Plata has been tied three times this season.

Canyon scored in the first quarter to take a 6-0 lead, but Martinez broke off right tackle for three yards and a touchdown to tie the game early in the second period.

Isaac Gamboa was stopped on his running try for the two-point conversion.

Martinez broke 20 yards for another touchdown midway through the third quarter. Again, Gamboa was stopped on the conversion attempt.

Hereford made it 18-6 when Kerry Beard scored on a 10-yard run off right tackle in the final period. Canyon stopped Abelar do Tijerina on the conversion try.

Eighth-grade Coach Asher Isaacs praised his offense, which he said adjusted well to Canyon's nine-man defensive front.

"We moved the ball pretty well on their defense. We didn't expect them to be in a defense like that, but our kids picked up on it well," Isaacs said.

"Defensively, we didn't play too well. We held them when we had to but we let them run on us pretty regularly.

"The conditions were terrible, and that had something to do with our defensive play. We played in about six inches of water."

La Plata's seventh-grade, which did not play Thursday, wound up its season with a 4-1-1 record.

In other eighth-grade action Thursday, host Stanton crushed Canyon to finish Herford's season with a 7-1-1 record.

Thirty-four seniors will play in their final Herford High School football game tonight when the Whitefaces, who have a chance to finish second in the District 4-AAAA race, host Lubbock Monterey.

Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. in Whiteface Stadium, where a large home crowd is expected to watch Herford battle for a 4-5-1 record. Monterey is 2-6-1 after winning the district title a year ago.

Defending district rushing champion Paul Bell of Herford has an individual goal tonight—he is trying to chalk up his second straight 1,000-yard-plus season. Bell, with 785 yards, needs 215 against the Plainsmen to reach the 1,000-yard plateau.

Besides Bell, seniors playing for Herford tonight include:

Cagers Meet Tascosa

Basketball will pick up as football leaves off in Herford, as high school cage action begins Saturday for both boys and girls' teams who meet Amarillo Tascosa.

The boys' varsity plays at 7:30 p.m. in the Tascosa gymnasium, preceded by the JV class at 5 p.m. The Herford sophomores travel to Pampa for a 4:30 p.m. contest.

In girls' action, the Herford junior varsity hosts Tascosa at 4:30 p.m., followed by the varsity game at 7:30.

Season basketball tickets for the Herford school system are now available at the school administration office according to athletic director Don Cumpston.

The tickets cost $25, and will admit the holder to all local basketball games this year with the exception of tournament games. That includes all games in junior high through high school, boys and girls.

The cage season begins officially tomorrow night with the HHS boys on the road against Tascosa, and the HHS fems at home against the Rebel girls.

The Herd cagers will be honored by the Whiteface booster club Monday night at the high school cafeteria at 7 p.m. All players from the sophomore teams to the varsity, boys and girls, will be recognized along with their coaches.

Wrestling Set For Saturday

A rugged match between two muscular powerhouses highlights the Lions Club wrestling card Saturday night at the Bull Barn, as Super Destroyer meets Roger Kirby in the main event.

The 250-pound masked man has not been unmasked in nearly nine years of wrestling, and has contended for top honors everywhere. Kirby is the former Junior Heavyweight Champion of the World, but now weighs 242 pounds. He holds the world leg press record of 2,800 pounds.

Larry Lane, 243-pounder from Canyon, formerly of Colorado, meets Doug Somers in the semi-main attraction. Somers is 245 pounds, and was taught by world champion Harley Race. Lane was a world-class amateur while in the service, and prior to that took Rocky Mountain and Intermountain Titles wrestling for the University of Northern Colorado at Greeley. He also coached at Farmington, N.M. where two of his grapplers won state titles.

Noah Jones, brother to Rufus, steps in at 255 pounds against Dennis Stamp of Minnesota. Stamp, 235, was All-American in football and wrestling at Concordia College. Jones is from Kansas City, Mo.

Penn State Seeks To Keep Top Rank

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Penn State is in an enviable position.

Not only are the Nittany Lions ranked No. 1, but they don't even have to put their helmets on Saturday to get the best available post-season bowl game this season.

While the idle Lions sit and wait, their colleagues will beat their heads together in a hard scramble for bowl bids.

The ones closest to gaining a bowl spot opposite high and mighty Penn State are the Nebraska Cornhuskers, who will stay second-ranked if they beat the Missouri Tigers.

The Huskers would presumably go to the Orange Bowl, win or lose against Missouri, since they have already clinched a tie for the Big Eight championship with a victory over previously top-ranked Oklahoma. However, a loss to Missouri would send Penn State elsewhere because the Nittany Lions would want to meet the highest ranked team available in their quest for the national championship.

That would leave either the Cotton or Sugar Bowl as possible New Year's Day sites for Penn State.

Eighth-ranked Georgia can nail down a Sugar Bowl berth as Southeastern Conference champion by beating Auburn. Sixth-ranked Houston, meanwhile, has the inside track as host in the Cotton Bowl. The Cougars have an easy road to the Southwest Conference championship with games against soft touches Texas Tech and Rice later this season.

Part of the picture in the Rose Bowl, the last of the Big Four in post-season play, will be cleared up Saturday when fifth-ranked Southern Cal meets No. 14 UCLA in their annual Battle of Los Angeles. The winner of that game will represent the Pac-10 against the eventual Big Ten champion in the Pasadena, Calif., classic.

The Big Ten title is still up for grabs with No. 15 Purdue holding an uneasy lead over seventh-ranked Michigan and No. 19 Ohio State. Michigan hosts Purdue while Ohio State meets Indiana.

Oklahoma, now the country's fourth-ranked team after losing to Nebraska last week, faces a stiff challenge from Oklahoma State Saturday. The Sooners could wind up in one of the four major bowls with a triumph over their tough Big Eight rivals.

The championship of the Atlantic Coast Conference will be decided Saturday when 11th-ranked Maryland hosts 12th-ranked Clemson in a battle of two of the top defensive teams in the nation.

Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Arkansas and Louisiana State are four other teams with high bowl aspirations and could get them with victories on Saturday.

Tenth-ranked Notre Dame plays No. 20 Georgia Tech in a game involving teams with seven-game winning streaks. Arkansas, ranked No. 13 in the country, hosts Southwest Conference colleague Texas A&M and No. 17 LSU plays Mississippi State in a Southeastern Conference game.

Fiesta Bowl officials have their eyes on Arkansas and say they will invite the Razorbacks if they beat Texas A&M.

Vikings, Broncos Picked

Arkansas Could Clinch Fiesta Trip

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)

Arkansas will be invited to play in the Fiesta Bowl on Christmas Day if the Razorbacks stop Texas A&M Saturday. Fiesta Bowl President Bill Shover said Thursday.

Shover confirmed an earlier Associated Press story that the Razorbacks would receive a bid Saturday afternoon with a victory over Texas A&M.

"Arkansas is the No. 1 team for one of our berths," Shover said. "Our interest in Arkansas has always been high."

Shover said Ohio State has been added to the list of possible teams for the other berth. He said Ohio State was added when the school's athletic council voted to rescind a 1975 decision which limited the Buckeyes to the Rose, Orange, Sugar and Cotton bowls.

"We would like to see Michigan become available," he said. A loss to Purdue would eliminate the Wolverines from the Rose Bowl and put them in line for the Fiesta Bowl.

In addition to Ohio State, Arkansas and Michigan, also under consideration are Oklahoma, Texas, Southern California and UCLA.

"We've always felt very strongly about Arkansas," said John Reid, Fiesta Bowl executive director. "Arkansas is a very colorful team, very high-profile. Arkansas's national image is enhanced by Coach Lou Holtz's personality."

Reid scouted Arkansas five times last year and was prepared to offer them a bid when the Orange Bowl entered the picture. The Razorbacks went on to beat Oklahoma 31-6

The calendar page says November, a time when the weather turns brisk in Minnesota and the Vikings start to heat up.

The elderly Vikes got off to a stumbling start this season, tripping over their beards, no doubt. But four straight victories have turned things around and now here they are tied for first place in the National Football Conference Central Division.

Green Bay has been coming back to meet the onrushing Vikes. The Packers, who once were 6-1, have dropped three of the last four.

The tie ends this week because the Vikes will keep right on rolling against San Diego while Green Bay's bubble bursts once and for all in Denver's thin air.

'Red-Hot' Dallas To Tackle Saints

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Barcly a week ago, Coach Tom Landry was muttering that the worst thing that could have happened to his Dallas Cowboys was to beat Baltimore so convincingly at the start of the National Football League season.

My, how his tune had changed.

"The best thing that could have happened to us was the Green Bay game," he said as the Cowboys prepared for this Sunday's meeting with the New Orleans Saints.

The Cowboys' 42-14 victory over the Packers last Sunday was every bit as convincing as the 38-0 shellacking of the Colts 11 games ago. But while the first one gave Dallas false confidence, the second one restored flagging confidence.

"It gave us the confidence we needed, believe it or not," said Landry, whose Cowboys are the defending Super Bowl champions but stand second in the National Conference East, a game behind Washington. "We kept hearing negative things and we were starting to believe them."

"Sports is a tough thing," he added, "because everybody believed he's an expert. We weren't just reading the negative things in the newspapers. We were starting to hear them in the grocery store."

In Sunday's other games it's St. Louis at Washington, San Diego at Minnesota, Green Bay at Denver, Detroit at Oakland, Buffalo at Tampa Bay, New England at the New York Jets, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, Atlanta at Chicago, Cleveland at Baltimore, Seattle at Kansas City, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh and Los Angeles at San Francisco. On Monday it's Miami at Houston.

"When I first started coaching," said Landry, the only coach the Cowboys have ever had in their 18 years. "I wanted to win 'em all. But now I realize you're going to have valleys... The key is you've got to win when you're not playing well."

The Cowboys played very well last time out with Robert Newhouse and Tony Dorsett running for two touchdowns apiece and Roger Staubach throwing for two. The game against the Saints and the Redskins' game against the Cardinals is only a prelude to the Thanksgiving Day collision between the Skins and Cowboys in Dallas.

Dental X-Rays
Help Mummy Study
SEATTLE (AP) - King Tut's dentist says dental X-rays of the ancient Egyptian boy-king are helping modern scientists decide who his parents weren't. "Weren't?"
"Most Egyptologists cannot agree on the dates and successions of the New Kingdom kings and queens," Dr. James Harris said recently. "But, working backward from our data, we can say with some certainty, at least, who probably wasn't related to someone else."
Harris, a University of Michigan orthodontics expert, is part of a research team which X-rayed Tut and thousands of other Egyptian mummies, trying to find family similarities. Mouth and facial X-rays, plus other data fed into computers show similarities in skeletal structures which help the scientists trace family lines.
Amenhotep IV, for example, also known as Akhenaton, had a "rather bizarre" facial structure which indicates he probably couldn't have been Tut's father, Harris says.
There is no similarity between Tut and Amenhotep III, either, but Tutmosis IV, or at least his X-rays, "look a great deal like Tut."
Harris assigns the blame for some of the familial confusion to 21st-dynasty priests, who collected numerous mummies after they had been sacked and plundered by grave robbers, and rewrapped and re-labeled them.

Lost desire for sex

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 57 and I had my uterus removed when I was 25 because of a tumor. Everything was just fine until after I went through the change of life, and then my sex desire left me completely. That was about four years ago. My doctor says he does not have a pill to take care of it. Do you have any thoughts of advice that would help me?

DEAR READER - Your letter points out a fact that I have tried to make to many of my readers about hysterectomies. If you have all of your uterus removed, but the ovaries are left alone, you will continue to have a normal hormonal balance. That's why you had a normal balance from the age of 25 when you had your surgery until age 53, which is when your ovaries failed. The woman who has a hysterectomy and needs hormone support already has ovarian failure, or may have had her ovaries removed because of disease at the time of the surgery. It's the ovaries that provide the hormone function and not the uterus.

Your doctor can check to see if you have an adequate amount of female hormones, or if you need additional hormone for your body. While I don't know what the tumor was that caused you to have a hysterectomy 32 years ago, it's unlikely that it would be a significant factor in deciding whether you could or could not use female hormones now. Certainly, 32 years after removal it would seem logical that you wouldn't need to worry about a malignancy. Since you don't have a uterus, you certainly can't develop a malignancy of the uterus now. The other question is the status of your breasts. If you do not have a lumpy breast and need female hormones, there shouldn't be any good medical reason why you couldn't use them. Of course, if you don't need them, then there is not much point in prescribing them.

Group Aims To Preserve Carousels

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - People used to tease Jerry Betts about his interest in merry-go-rounds - until he became an authority on carousels. Now, as a member of the National Carousel Association, he is one of 600 merry-go-round aficionados who share a goal of preserving and restoring historic carousels.

Betts, an insurance company officer, recalls his first ride on a merry-go-round at Niles Center, Ill., July 4, 1937. "I was impressed, not only with the fun of the ride but with the beauty and the music," he said. He became obsessed with the colorful mechanisms. "My father used to take me to carnivals and kiddie shows around Chicago. I loved it," he said. When he was old enough, Betts went to carnivals alone. For three years in high school he operated a carousel. But the carousel business came on hard times after World War II. "After the war, carousels weren't pretty any more. They were all plain, made with aluminum and there were no carvings," he said. "They even began using fluorescent lights instead of incandescent bulbs." Betts blames rising labor costs for the bland merry-go-rounds.

"The beautiful old machines were all carved by hand," he said. "No one could afford to produce a machine like that any more."
His love affair with carousels remained dormant until 1962, when he read a history of the machines and learned there was national interest in them. He began making forays to amusement parks and carnivals where old carousels were used, bought a band organ that had been part of a carousel in Elgin, Ill., started a collection that now numbers more than 1,000 pictures of carousels and a scrapbook stuffed with bits of carousel information. The National Carousel Association, he said, wants to see that the machines are kept operating as complete machines. "They are really an endangered species," he said. "The estimates are that there are only 300 to 400 still in existence." He said some carousels fall prey to speculators who find the antiques more valuable in pieces than as a whole unit. "The hand-carved horses can bring $3,000 to $7,000 apiece," he said. "A guy can make four times as much money selling a carousel in pieces as he can selling it as a unit."

"GASOHOL" ENERGY
MILTON, Conn. (AP) - Scientists estimate that the nearly 145 million tons of waste thrown away each year by Americans could be converted to some 10 billion gallons of useable automotive fuel, or about 10 percent of the nation's annual consumption of gasoline. A new enzyme process that can convert materials derived from trees and other plants into alcohol is the key to turning garbage into fuel, according to researchers at Novo Laboratories, Inc., the world's largest producer of enzymes for industrial use.

Combining this alcohol with regular gasoline to form a fuel called "gasohol" would reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil and help alleviate waste disposal problems, the company says. UNIGATE, England (AP) - Lynne Walker, 23, got her wedding ring back after losing it on the job recently in a dairy. Searchers used a metal detector to find it in a vat of butter.

Canadian Group Striving To Help Return of Falcons

By MATT BELLAN
Canadian Press Writer
HULL, Quebec (AP) - They appear in the sky most evenings toward sunset.

Swooping low over Hull, across the river from Ottawa, four eastern peregrine falcons land on the roof of a downtown skyscraper and devour freshly-killed small birds left out for them.

It's the final stage in an annual Canadian Wildlife Service program to breed the rare hunting birds in captivity and return them in stages to the wild to breed and replenish the species.

Eastern peregrine falcons born in the wild have for years been dying young after feeding on smaller birds containing concentrations of DDT, says wildlife biologist Lola Price. Put on the endangered species list several years ago there are now only 120 to 200 left in Canada.

For three years the Wildlife Service, a branch of the Department of Fisheries and Environment, has been combatting the problem by flying falcons hatched at a breeder station in Wainwright, Alberta, to a cage bracketed to the roof of the Fountain Building, a 15-story commercial tower.

The rationale for the urban penthouse cage is simple: wild baby falcons are hatched in cliffside nests facing water. A cage on the roof of the Fountain Building, located on the Ottawa River, closely resembles that environment while allowing biologists to keep a close watch on the birds. The falcons age fed DDT-free food until they are old enough to fly, eventually departing to make room for next year's imports.

Wildlife officials hope they will fly to traditional nesting grounds on eastern lakes and rivers.

The mortality rate of birds raised and freed in earlier years has been estimated at 50 percent. Some have been killed running into wires and windows and at least one was shot.

Since the experiment began three years ago, two birds bred in the rooftop cage have been sighted - one at a nesting site in Alberta and another on Lake Erie.

This past spring a wildlife service employee spotted another peregrine falcon flying past her office window.

"We like to think it was one of ours," said Mrs. Price. The birds are dark brown, have a beak-to-tail length of 15 inches and a wingspan of 40 inches.

During the 18th century, they were prized by falconers and called "big-footed falcons" because of their powerful talons.

The birds are known for sure how many make it back to the wild and breed until the next peregrine falcon survey is taken in 1980, said Mrs. Price.

They also aren't sure whether levels of DDT, now banned in Canada, will be low enough for the birds to breed safely.

"We may be five years too early, releasing them now," said Mrs. Price. "But they're near extinction; it's a chance we'll have to take."

Gilded Orchids New Gift Idea

SINGAPORE (AP) - Looking for a special gift for the person who has everything? Maybe the answer is a gold-plated orchid.

Fresh orchids coated with 22-karat gold are fashioned into pendants, brooches, cuff links and tie pins here. Most of the golden orchids are designed to adorn milady's throat as pendants.

The flowers come from nurseries, private hobbyists and the island-city's botanic gardens. Only those plucked at their freshest early in the morning are preserved in gold, said a spokesman for the Singapore Institute of Standards and Industrial Research (SISIR). They are called "risis" orchids from the institute's initials in reverse.

Technicians started electroplating live orchids with gold in 1974. Research showed how to prevent the flower's natural moisture from corroding the metal and which anti-corrosion chemicals would not harm the petals that the gilding was meant to preserve. The complicated process is a patented secret, an official said. Three main steps involve dipping the flowers in a preservative, electroplating with base metal, and then electroplating with gold.

The finished product preserves the exact contours of the fresh bloom sealed inside. Individuality is assured by the use of hundreds of different types and the variety found in nature.

Production by Seteco, a subsidiary of SISIR, started two years ago at about 4,000 orchids a month. Capacity has been expanded five times and the work force increased from 24 to 180.

The golden orchid is an offbeat example of using technology to upgrade traditional exports. Live orchids have long been shipped from Singapore. The first exports of the risis variety started a year ago.

Several imitations of what its promoters call "a truly original Singapore creation" are on the market. A company in Thailand has started selling orchids that are said to be first dried, then covered with copper before being plated with gold.

The original risis line of about 15 species retails for about $13 in Singapore. These constantly blooming varieties are in plentiful supply from commercial growers.

A mini-collection of smaller orchids is priced from about $11 to $15. They cost more in relation to size because petite blooms are more difficult to process, a spokesman said.

Rarer orchids are marketed in a "special collection." Price tags range from $15 to $40 for a single flower and from $40 to $124 for a spray.

A written pedigree gives the flower's Latin name and assures buyers that special risis orchids are not garden-variety plants: "Every orchid from the special collection is either a rare hybrid or a hybrid named after an important personality."

Topping the line are 52 species in the "certificated collection" which bloom only once in three or four years. These come in a fancy container, wear an extra layer of gold and bear a "certificate of authenticity" signed by the president of the Orchid Society of Southeast Asia. Prices range from $44 to about $133.

A new line of orchids in 24-karat gold is scheduled to be introduced in time for the Christmas season.

SEE AUTUMN'S BEAUTY THROUGH EYES OF FAITH

The climax in our orbit of the sun
Is when at last the summer days are done;
When shades of green give way to autumn's gold.
The richest of the seasons will unfold.
The leaves become arrayed in brilliant hue,
Before their turn to disappear from view.
In brief descending spirals through the air,
Propelled by winds that strip the branches bare.
Through eyes of faith you'll see this all displayed;
The wonders of this world that God has made
Are never more alive than in the fall;
Through Church, you will appreciate them all.

— Gloria Nowak

Some of us call it Autumn,
And others call it God.
— William Herbert Carruth

"A land which the Lord thy God careth for;
the eyes of the Lord thy God are always up on it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year."
— Deuteronomy 11:12
