Health Truck Bids Finally Accepted

City And Monkey Business Don't Mix

By BOBBY TEMPLETON Brand News Editor

When the Hereford City fathers say they want something done a specific way, they don't monkey around with anything

The City Commission decided in a regular meeting Monday night that they didn't particularly like the way area car dealerships were tampering with the usual method of submitting bids for three trucks for the City Health Department. The governing body had solicited bids last year and finally settled on the highest bid submitted in this last round of

THE FIRST SET of bids were thrown out during a December meeting because bidders requested changes from the original figures submitted. In hopes of receiving firm bids, the commission asked again for submissions.

However, such was not the case as two of the three bidders raised the amount of their original bids. Doyle Johnson Chevrolet-Olds' bid of $27,659.01 was firm all the way and commissioners voted unanimously to go with it. The other two bids were from Orval Watson Ford with $27,581.84 and Orsborn Buick-Pontiac with $27,230.55. Each of the rejected bidders had requested changes in their total bids based on different quotations they had received for steel belted radial tires.

Mayor Jim Sears said, "I think we should go with the firm bid and cut out this mickey mouse business."

As it turned out, the mickey mouse business didn't quit, but the city needed the trucks even at the highest bid. City Attorney Earnest Langley had advised the commission that it is really not legal to change a bid after being turned in.

JOHNSON HAD received a higher quotation than the other bidders on the steel belted radial tires and Sears explained that $2,000 could be saved by getting the bidder to agree to delivering the trucks with the standard tires that come with them. Then a lower price could be obtained for the required steel belted radial tires.

Commissioner H.A. (Hap) Caviness retorted that a bid must be accepted as written before anything else can be done.

The commissioners obliged and then agreed to get the lower priced tires.

Bid trouble for the commission didn't end with trucks. The city also had received complaints about obscured view of traffic lights at South Main and Highway 60, where the lights are at the side of the road. side of the road.

Since the city received bids early last year for mast arms and other equipment needed for overhead signals, commis-sioners decided to extend the bids at the bidded cost of about $9,000.

Although the signals are considered a

Langley said no since the bids were in effect rejected since they weren't

Based on an earlier request, the commission reviewed a report on delinquent personal property taxes owed the city. Bayne read off businesses and individuals with the highest amounts, which ran over $3,500.

The commission authorized the city attorney to file suit on the selected larger amounts in order to stop the practice of

THAT FELLER on Tierra Blanca Creek says variety may be the spice of life, but it's monotony that gets the groceries.

IN THIS age of inflation, the only thing free of charge is a rundown battery.

WE RAN across some definitions on the difference between "recession" and "depression." A recession is when your neighbor loses his job. A depression is when you lose your job.

Out here in rural America, recessions usually come late, last a shorter period of time and don't have as much lasting effect as in the cities. By the same token, gigantic business gains aren't as usual for us as they are in the big city.

We'll take the small-town living with good neighbors and friends.

DON'T YOU long for the days when Uncle Sam lived within his income and without most of ours?

HEREFORD is a great community.

Another prime example of that fact was illustrated here last week when a special appeal was made for blood bank donors. They turned out in record-breaking numbers-so many, in fact, that the mobile unit ran out of supplies.

EVERYONE connected with the campaign to build up Hereford's blood bank was extremely pleased, but they were not too surprised. There's a community pride, reflected on many other occasions, that is not satisfied with the norm. Hereford citizens, on the whole, believe if something is worth doing, it's worth doing better.

Most of the cases involved simple

"plead outs," except for the murder case against Tommy Perez, who was charged with the February 1974 stabbing death of Jose Zapata, a 31-year-old Hereford man who at the time was living at 302 Norton

Perez had requested a jury trial on a plea of not guilty and was successful in having a trial postponed about five times. HOWEVER, as the prospective jurors were waiting patiently in the district court, the defendant was presented with the state's case against him and decided it would be futile to go on trial.

He pled guilty at about 12:30 p.m. to murder without malice and was sentenced to four years in the Texas Department of Corrections penitentiary.

The defending attorney had tried for another delay but the judge ordered the trial to proceed, at which point Perez pled guilty. When he was arrested, officers confiscated a large pocket knife, which was said to have caused two stab wounds in the chest of Zapata. The defendant had offered no resistance when arrested.

Another case in which a jury trial was requested involved Norbert Lynn Young, who was charged with theft, sale of marijuans and possession of a narcomdrug. He pled not guilty to the sale charge and was tried before the court, which granted a motion for an instructed

Oldham County Okays District Bill

The Oldham County Commissioners Court has approved the formation of the new district court for Oldham and Deaf Smith Counties.

This allows the local bill establishing the new court to be introduced into the state legislature. Usually, a local bill introduced by the local representative is passed in seconds.

The Hereford Bar Association initiated the bill last month. It was then approved by the Deaf Smith County Commissioners.

Tom Burdett, chairman of the Bar's committee sponsoring the bill, said Wednesday that a delegation of local lawyers, composed possibly of himself, Rex Easterwood, Mack Tubb and Bruce Miller, were set to go to Austin Friday or at the first of next week to have the bill acted upon.

The new district judge would be appointed by the Governor and Burdett said no specific recommendations would be made to the local lawyers as a whole.

"Several confidential recommendations will be made individual lawyers in both Deaf Smith and Oldham Counties, Burdett indicated.

The newly sworn-in Deaf Smith County Grand Jury returned 14 indictments and two no-bills against defendants charged by the Criminal District Attorney.

The jury, selected Monday morning by temporary District Judge Gene Jordan of Amarillo, begins a new six-month term. They were selected from a panel of 20 local residents.

Of those indicted, Norbert Lynn Young's case of theft was the only one completely disposed of as he pled guilty to the charge along with a possession of marijuana charge in the 69th District Court Tuesday. Other indictments will be placed on the district court docket as soon as defending attorneys and the prosecution prepare their cases.

Indicted for burglary were Howard

Mike Hernandes Mendoza was indicted on two counts of auto burglary and one count of auto burglary was lodged against an at-large defendant.

Farmer Turns Piano Mechanic in Fall

Winter Hobby Dabbles in Past Era

Sorrells is a farmer during the spring and summer, but come fall and winter, he turns to his avocation. He speeds as many as seven months out of the year rebuilding player planos. The small shop behind the Sorrells farmhouse houses six or seven player planos in various stages of rebuilding. The barn close by is storage for more than 20 of the antique musical instruments.

PLAYER PIANOS graced the pariors of well-to-do families at the turn of the century. They fell from popularity during the Great Depression, probably due to their initial high cost (about $800 or $900 Sorrells says) and cost of paper rolls. They only recently became popular again. They only recently became popular again. Sorrells began tinkering with player pianos a few winters ago and now spends most of his free time working on one

Through the years, player mechanisms in many player pianos were pulled out and discarded as unnecessary pieces of junk. But Sorrells locates the old player pianos all over the nation and brings them to Hereford where he rebuilds them to an astonishing good condition. And when he's not tinkering with the old pianos, he rebuilds antique clocks and other furniture.

Renovation of the pianos begins in the barn. Sorrells picks a piano from his stock of old players and removes all metal hardware from the case. Paint remover strips any paint and varish on the wood finish, and many of the pianos have several coats of paint that have been added by uncountable owners through

AFTER THE PAINT has been stripped off, a vibrator sander is used to bring the original wood to a smooth finish. The sanding and stripping can take up to two weeks. Several coats of varnish are applied to finish the piano

Sorrells says he never stains the refinished pianos. He prefers the natural wood grain usually found underneath the myriad coats of paint. The grains of wood in the pianos he displays vary from golden oak to pecan to mahogany. One player features three types of wood in its

After the outside of the player is finished, the insides are pulled out and completely rebuilt. The player piano works from air. Inside are bellows that work the roller, 88 bellows that each work a key, and bellows that work loud and soft SORRELLS EXPLAINED that the bellows were made of a cotton-rubber cloth around the turn of the century, and in most of the pianos, these bellows have long since rotted and developed air leaks. Each of the 88 tiny bellows is removed and rebuilt with a nylon cloth, which Sorrells says will outlast the original equipment by nearly 10 times.

Besides the bellows, air tubes crisscross the insides of the pianos. Many of the original tubes were made of lead, but oxidation has eaten away from inside Sorrells replaces the lead tubes with neoprene because of its flexibility and long life. them, causing disastrous air leaks.

The piano itself is refurbished, new ivory placed on the keys, new hammers installed, old broken strings replaced. The player mechanism is reinstalled and all flardware replaced on the outside. A player roll is placed across the tracking bar and music fills the little shop.

COMPLETION of the rebuilding by

Sorrells usually places the player planos in better condition than they were in when new. The old upright pianos contain huge cast iron soundbounds and the tone produced by these pianos is incompar-

Among all the upright pianos stand two pianos that are even more rare than their sisters. They are grand pianos that were fitted with player mechanisms at the factory. A 5'4" Steck Duo-Art is within a few hours of completion and belongs personally to Sorrells. A 5'8" Duo-Art player grand will be Sorrells' next project but it belongs to an Arizona family.

The original finish on this grand, more than 70-years-old, is still in perfect condition. It is decorated on the sides with intricate inlaid pearl. Sorrells has

J.E. Sorrells, who looks more like a farmer in coveralls than a piano rebuilder, pumps the bellows of the player piano in his own living room. offered a huge sum of money to the family for the grand piano, but was turned down. He will have the joy of rebuilding it, however.

THE AVERAGE REBUILDING job takes anywhere from four to six weeks, Sorrells said, although he never really sat down and figured it up.

"I can come out here and work in this shop during the winter and a day will pass in what seems like a couple of hours," he said. Roll after roll of current songs and songs from the original days of player pianos played as Sorrells talked. He's also a dealer for the company that has revived the art of roll-making.

Asked if he made a profit for all his work, Sorrells said that he never really had figured up his labor and parts.

"Rebuilding these pianos is not too expensive, just what leather and cloth and a few materials I have to buy. But I guess the hours and labor are what add up. I really could make more money if I worked as a street sweeper, But I'd rather do this," he explained.

Sorrells can rebuild any of the over 150 brands of player pianos that were made during that era, and he learned the trade by himself.

"A few years ago I got interested in them and got to tinkering with them. Besides, they do make pretty music," the piano player confided.

Hereford, like her larger sister city to the north (Amarillo), is experiencing a fair amount of problems with abuses of the state welfare program.

The problems result mainly from the local Food Stamp Program, in which a number of abuses have been uncovered. The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court held special meetings at the first of January to hear state investigators and food stamp recipients discuss local fraud cases in connection with applications for food stamps.

As of Wednesday morning, the Criminal District Attorney's Office filed five cases of welfare fraud in the County Court. This follows one case already

Absences Show Flu Bug Swept Through Schools

The Flu Bug, whatever his latest nationality (Hong Kong, Asian or London), has passed through Hereford recently. But it would appear the worst of the bug that's been going around is over.

Talking with school officials in Hereford, it seems the Flu Bug swept through the elementary schools just after the Christmas holidays, then moved into the junior high and high schools. Attendance rolls are about back to

There were 71 students absent from the high school Wednesday, while normal absences run about 50.

"For two or three days last week and the week before, though," George said, "we had 90 to 100 kids out of school. Of course there were various reasons given for absence, but we feel the rise was due mainly to the flu." Ray Todd, Stanton Junior High principal, says the flu situation at his school is getting better. Fifty of his students were absent Wednesday, more than normal, but in the past two weeks the absence rate has reached as high as 83 absent.

"Absences due to the flu have been heavy, but we've had a lot of reinstatements that gave flu and fever as the reason for absence. It's not as bad as it was," said Todd.

Pat Hughes, La Plata Junior High principal, said that about 45 of his students were absent Wednesday, 10 more than the normal amount of Teachers at the high school and junior highs have either missed the bug or reported to work despite it. The secondary principals said very few teachers had been out.

In the elementary schools, where the flu bug passed through earlier, it is catching up with the teachers. One elementary principal was even the victim of the bug for a two-week bout.

The consensus of opinion is that the bug reached his peak about two weeks ago, using absences as a guideline. But, cold and wet weather may bring those absences to a peak again in the coming

Q. I know several middle-age and younger people who are entitled to Medicare. I thought Medicare was only for people age 65 or older.

Q. Congress has provided Medicare coverage for people who suffer from Chronic Renal Disease (CRD). Is a person suffering from CRD automatically entitled to Medicare?

Hotline' Recently Completes 1st Year

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission's toll free "HOTLINE" recently completed its first full year of operation having logged nearly 60,000 calls from consumers during that period.

Calls to the "HOTLINE" have ranged from requests for information about product safety to reports of product-related accidents and complaints about the safety of a consumer product.

Actions by the Commission to ban or recall a hazardous product have at times been triggered by calls received over the "HOTLINE "

Peak calling times for the "HOTLINE" usually occur during heavy volume buying periods, such as holidays or whenever the Commission issues a warning about a hazardous product. During the 1974 Christmas season, for example, the "HOTLINE" received over 5,000 calls in two days from consumers concerning a particular brand of Christmas tree lights which were being recalled.

The "HOTLINE" has been described as an "instant two-way communication system" between the Commission and the consumer. But this is true only if consumers make use of it. To report a product-related injury, product hazard or to request information on product safety, consumers may call the toll free "HOTLINE" number from anywhere in the Continental U.S. 800-638-2666.

Unemployed persons who have filed initial claims for benefits within one year prior to Jan. 26, and who have exhausted those benefits, are Persons claiming unemploy ment insurance benefits as ex-servicemen or ex-Federal employees are also eligible for these extended benefits.

Extended benefits are available only so long as the rate of unemployment remains at levels specified by law.

Claimants who file for extended benefits on or before Feb. 19 may file claims backdated to include Jan. 26, if they meet the usual requirements for drawing unemployment insurance. Claims for extended benefits may be filed at the nearest Texas Employment Commission office.

disabled people in Texas received nearly $97.2 million more in government assistance payments under the new Supplemental Security Income (SSI) Program in 1974 than under the prior Federal-State Assistance Plan in 1973. Consumer

by John L. Hill Attorney General

Much has been heard recently about the discounts being offered to new car buyers to tempt them back into the market. But some shoppers are still more interested in locating a good used car than in asing a brand new model.

Lawyers in the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division say that most consumers looking for a used car realize there's a chance of getting a real bargain, or getting stuck with a

But few consumers, they note, are really knowledgeable enough about cars to be 100 per cent sure of a used car's potential either for useful service or for expensive trips to the repair shop.

There are some relatively simple things a consumer can do, however, to reduce the odds of getting stuck:

.-Buy a car from someone you know. If you have an idea of how the car has been driven and cared for, you should be able to assess fairly accurately whether it is a good buy.

-If you can't buy from an individual you know, buy from a reputable dealer—either a new car dealer who has a used car lot to sell customer trade-ins or a used car dealer. Get recommendations from relatives or friends as to the dealer's reliability, and also check with the Better Business Bureau.

-Buying a used car in response to a newspaper classified ad can be risky, so always be especially careful in such cases.

-If you buy from a new car dealer's used car lot, you'll likely pay a higher price, but usually you will also get a car that has been reconditioned and carries some warranty. If you choose a lower-priced car from a used car dealer, plan to have any needed repairs made right

-While appearance may not have much to do with the car's performance, it might be an indication of the kind of car has received. But be wary of too much attention to cosmetics -remember that a new paint job could indicate the car has been in wreck.

-Check the interior for signs of wear or poor maintenance. This means lifting floor mats, looking in the glove compart-ment, under the dashboard, and in the truck.

-Note the odometer reading. If the car has low mileage but seems to have a lot of wear, be suspicious of an odometer rollback. Tampering with a car's odometer is illegal, and should be reported to the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division or your county or district attorney.

The average consumer can't tell much about a car by looking at its engine—chances are it has been cleaned up to look almost as good as new anyway. Instead, spená some time trying out the car.

-Start the car several times, listening for any odd noises. Then have a friend check to see if any black smoke is emitted when you race the motor. Before leaving the car lot, try the brakes several times.

-Drive the car in traffic, on the road or freeway, and over as big a variety of surfaces as possible. Try out all gears and test the car's ability to accelerate.

-If the car passes these basic tests, you like it, and the price seems right; you still shouldn't make an immediate decision. Instead, shop around-go to at least three dealers before deciding. Look for the best deals in trade-in on your old car as

-When you have finished comparison shopping and have made a selection, take the car to a trusted mechanic for a complete professional check before committing yourself.

-Remember, too, that you should then shop around for the best deal in financing the car. You don't have to accept the terms the dealer offers. Banks, credit unions, savings and loan institutions, and finance companies all make car loans. In comparing finance terms, always look for the annual percentage rate that you would have to pay.

While it may seem troublesome to check on all these details, failure to do so could mean that the used car you bought to save money might end up costing far more than you planned.

If you have a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Methods Thwart Bacteria

Most consumers know how easy it is for harmful bacteria to grow in raw meat or poultry held for several hours at room temperature.

But equal concern should be given to being sure cooked food is properly refrigerated, also, one foods and nutrition specialist pointed out this week.

Sally Springer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said that most bacteria in raw food are destroyed at cooking temperatures above 140 degrees F. But cooked foods can also be a haven for growing bacteria through recontamination or cross-contamination, she

"Cooked foods may be recontaminated if kitchen utensils used for preparing the food before cooking aren't washed before handling the same food. cooked.

"Foods can be cross-contaminated by handling uncooked meats, then fresh vegetables without washing kitchen uten-sils and hands," the specialist

She suggested that a good rule to follow is to wash all utensils and hands in hot soapy water after handling raw food-since it may contain bacteria-and before touching cooked food.

"Cooking food at proper temperaturs will destroy bacteria that cause food poisoning,"

Patterns Designed For Multi-Sizes

available in the U.S., one clothing specialist reported this

"Patterns of this kind accommodate figures that require two or more sizes to fit or that are in between regular sizes," Marlene Odle with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, explained.

She said that homesewers in Europe have been able to purchase these kinds of patterns for years, but now U.S. pattern companies are offering a multi-size pattern series—each pattern includes three sizes.

"They are available in men's, nen's and children's clothing. The big advantage to this idea is children's clothing is that multi-size patterns provide room for growth, and one pattern suits different age brackets.

GREAT EMANCIPATOR

No American who ever lived had a greater grasp of the true meaning of Freedom than Abe Lincoln, the kindly and rugged-featured man who describe this nation as having been "conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

But Abraham Lincoln knew that Liberty could not be won and maintained by men alone. le acknowledged Divine power. The Great Emancip made that clear in all his classic tterances. The closing lines of the "Early to bed - Early to rise, Makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise." This statement is taken from

'Poor Richard's Almanac." Although many may think it is old and elementary, I think it offers a suggestion for our country, and for the success of individuals.

"Poor Richard's Almanac" was written by one of the greatest Americans of all time: Benjamin Franklin. He was a statesman, patriot, writer, and scientist. To me, he was one of the most interesting Americans who ever lived. I only wish that every person in this country would restudy his life and follow the examples that he has set.

He not only was a jack-of-all trades, but also a master of manner. Thomas Jefferson once said, "He is the greatest man and ornament of the age and country in which he lived." A French statesman, Count Honore de Mirabeau called him "The sage whom two worlds claimed as their own."

Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston in 1706, and was the 15th child and youngest son among 17 children. As a child. he was an apprentice in his father's candle and soap shop. In 1723, he ran away from home to Philadelphia. This would later become known as "his city" in which he loved and improved

From 1733-1758, he published Poor Richard's Almanac annually. This book had many of his own wise sayings, such as, "He's as fool that makes his doctor his heir" in it. It advised people now to live. In the time span from 1730-1774, Franklin participated in numerous events that helped our country. To name a few: In 1730 he helped organize Ephrata Cloister, a religious community. In 1737 he became the postmaster at the United States Post Office in Philadel-

In 1743 he had founded the American Philosophical Society. In 1751 he founded the Pennsylvania Hospital, and three years later he helped write the Albany Plan. In 1760 he planned a good tax law, and from 1754-1763, he supported (and founded) the Paxton Boys, who helped protect the United States. In 1764, he helped negotiate the Currency Act.

He also was interested in science, and did many experiments. One of his best was proving that lightning was electricity. He also invented the Franklin Stove, the lightning rod, and bifocal glasses.

At the age of 41, he went to Europe where he spent many years representing the colonies. Soon after he found out the colonists were going to fight, he returned to help them. He also helped write the Declaration of Independence, and also signed endence, and also signed it. He then went to France, where he won help for the colonies in their war with

After the war was over,

Specifically, Franklin first represented Pennsylvania. In 1766, he appeared before the House of Commons to answer a series of 174 questions dealing with taxation without representation. It was his answers that prompted the repeal of The Stamp Act, a measure that ned the American colon-

In May, 1775, he arrived back in Philadelphia, just two weeks after the Revolutionary War began. On May 6, 1775, the people chose him to serve in the Second Continental Congress. He submitted a proposed Plan of Union that laid the ground work for the Articles of Late in 1776, at age 70, he set forth on what may have been his most important task of his life: this being to represent the Constitutional Convention as Minister to France, and he was sent there to seek an alliance with the French.

He signed the Treaty of Alliance on February 6, 1778; the French then gave the Americans money and gifts. The aid that we received from France was a great factor in helping Americans win their as Chief Executive of Pennsylvania, and as statesman in many endeavors until his death on April 17, 1790.

The name Benjamin Franklin will certainly be on any list of the great Americans of this country. His face has appeared on stamps and silver and paper money. Many buildings, insti-tutes, and meeting places have been named after him.

Perhaps George Washington best summarized Franklin in a letter in 1789, "If to be venerated for benovolence, if to be admired for talents, if to be esteemed for patriotism, if to be beloved for philanthropy, can gratify the human mind, you must have the pleasing consolation that you have not lived in vain."

A record crop of navel oranges is coming to market, according to a consumer marketing information special-

Mrs, Gwendolyne Clyatt with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service termed navel oranges "most economical" this year.

"Grapefruit quality is excellent and prices attractive especially in the 15-and 18-pound bags," she added.

Other vegetables on this week's shopping list could be dry beans, dry peas, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, turnips, rutabagas, hard shell squash onions and sweet potatoes, The Texas A&M University System specialist said.

'At fruit counters, apples still offer a good buy, pricewise, and winter pears—the anjou variety. which is green even when ripe. and sweet-are in ample supply with prices steady."

Other choices are bananas, grapes and strawberries.

"At pork counters, supplies are about the same as a week ago. Boston butt, quarter-loins cut into chops, and liver offer reasonable prices, while semiboneless ham and frankfurters head the list of smoked items." Mrs. Clyatt said.

'Good beef values include both heavy and light beef. Feature cuts are chuck roasts and steaks, round steaks, ground beef and beef liver.

A big question, soon to be answered in Congressional hearings, is what will happen to automobile emission standards now that President Ford is pushing for an energy program designed to conserve the use of fuel. Detroit is pushing for some big concessions by maintaining that the 1977 and 1978 models can't meet the emission standards without a drop in fuel mileage and another increase in car prices.

Those are two plenty tough arguments, these days. Congress is faced with a triple trade-off involving air quality. fuel mileage and new car prices. Consumers benefit either way if they aren't pollution conscious.

President Ford has called for a slight tightening of emission standards by 1977 followed by a five year freeze through 1981 models. In return, he wants the industry to increase fule mileage to 18.7 miles per gallon by 1980, a 40 per cent improvement over 1974 models. General Motors says the 1977 emission standards would boost new car prices by $35 to $50 with an additional $60 to $70 required to replace the catalytic converter at 30,000 miles. Chrysler claims the price increase would be $260 more initially. Meeting the 1978 nitrogen oxides standard would cost hundreds of dollars more.

Detroit also says that tightening of the emission standards could mean cutting efficiency, resulting in a fuel loss of 15 per cent to 20 per cent and the 1978 rules would drain even more fuel. The Environmental Protection Agency
