

Car Industry Making Comeback

Used 'Horseless Carriages' Bring Higher Prices In Recent Months

By JOE LACKEY
Brand Staff Writer

People who own used cars have a possession which is worth more than used cars have been worth in the past, according to automobile dealers contacted this week.

Much has been written about the poor health of the economy in general and the automobile industry in particular, but the dealers who were contacted indicate that car sales, especially used car sales, are improving, which may indicate improving chances for general economic recovery.

Johnny Blocker, owner of Blocker Auto Sales, which handles used cars, said "Sales of used cars are going pretty good right now. The only problem is that there is a shortage of cars on the market."

GOOD USED CARS are worth more now than a few years back, he said.

He indicated that the automobile industry is making a definite comeback. "New car sales may be a little slow," he said, "but used car sales are good."

Blocker said that situations involving people buying used cars as second or third cars for their family is about the same as it has been for several years.

Clint Sims, sales manager for Orval Watson Ford, which handles both new and used car, said that used cars are definitely worth more now. "Some used cars are bringing as much as $400 more than they would have a few years ago," Sims said.

He said that the price of the average new car had increased about $600 over last year, but the increase is insignificant when the price of the trade-in is considered. He also said that the new cars get much better gas mileage than cars have in the past, which also works to offset price increases.

FACTS AND FIGURES relating to automobile sales are not available, Sims said, stressing that his comments were opinion only. However he did say that car sales are progressing well, and that car sales in general at his dealership have increased over 1974.

More people are looking toward used cars because of higher prices on new cars, Sims added, but the price of used cars will increase as demand increases.

N.E. Milburn, owner of Milburn Used Cars, said "The used car situation is not too bad at the present, and has been a lot worse. Most used cars are worth a little more now than they were a year ago."

THE USED CAR BUSINESS is better primarily because people have more money to invest in used cars, Milburn said.

"We are having a hard time keeping good used cars," said Earl Stagner, who works for John Orsborn Buick & Pontiac, a dealership which handles both new and used cars. "Good used car sales are extremely good," he said.

Stagner also said that a lot of people are currently looking for good used cars.

Used cars are probably as high as they've ever been on trade-ins, he said.

The relationship between new and used cars, price-wise, is much closer now than it has been in the past, Stagner concluded.

Valuable Vehicles

Lined up for public display are a sampling of used cars available for Hereford consumers. The value of the cars has gone up in recent months as the automobile industry makes a slow but sure comeback.

Father of Two Dies In Plane Crash While Spraying Fields

CHARLES SEALE

A 30-year-old Hereford man was killed early Thursday morning in a plane crash in Oldham County.

Charles Seale, father of two, died when his single engine Cessna Ag Wagon spray plane crashed and burned after striking a utility pole. The crash occurred in a wheat field 2.4 miles east of U.S. 385, near the Deaf Smith County line, according to Department of Public Safety investigators. The crash site was located five miles north and two miles east of the Ford community, near Vega.

Time of the accident was set at about 6:45 a.m. Thursday.

Seale was flying for Whiteface Aviation of Hereford at the time of the accident, and had been spraying a milo field just west of where the crash occurred.

The plane crashed approximately 1/4 mile east of the point where its wingtip struck the utility pole, and apparently burst into flame on impact.

Services for Mr. Seale were held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the First Baptist Church with Rev. Doug Manning, pastor, officiating. He was assisted by J. Robert Moore of Lubbock.

Graveside services were held in Resthaven Memorial Park in Lubbock with burial under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home of Hereford.

Pallbearers were Ralph Pedigo, Neil McNutt, Leland Shelton, Zack Miller, John Robinson and Olin Parris.

Honorary pallbearers were Hereford agriculture pilots.

Mr. Seale moved to Hereford from Lawton Okla. in August of 1969. He married the former Merlyn Grigsby in 1966 in Lubbock.

He held a multi-engine airline transport rating and was an active member of the Civil Air Patrol. He was also a certified flying instrument instructor.

Mr. Seale was a Vietnam war veteran, and a Baptist.

Survivors include his wife and two daughters, Cathy and Carol, all of Hereford; his father, Charles T. Seale of Farwell; his mother, Mrs. Mary Thomas of Lubbock; and three sisters, Mrs. Barbara Polk of Irvin, Mrs. Carolyn Saunders of Amarillo, and Mrs. Jerry Wolfe of Lubbock.

Seale was killed instantly upon impact and was taken to the Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home in Hereford.

Anesthetist's Bill Up 500 Per Cent

Doctors, Patients -- Both Hurt By High Price Of Malpractice Insurance Premium

By BOBBY TEMPLETON
Brand News Editor

It seems society has become suit oriented an any and all angles are exhausted to extract money from those who have it by those who do not and want something for nothing.

They range from typographical errors that are turned into libel suits to bent fenders displayed as major damages that are turned into profitable liability suits. Even a public figure elected fairly by his constituents can't act in his capacity unless backed by large insurance coverage policies.

However, nowhere in recent months has the situation deteriorated as in malpractice suits for which doctors are having to cough up three to five times as much in premiums to buy needed coverage.

IT IS ESPECIALLY bad for the first line of medical care before an operation—administration of anesthetics. Anesthetologists and nurse anesthetists are acutely concerned of what is happening in their field since it means whether they will be allowed to continue their practices.

Anesthetologists, medical doctors with special training in anesthesiology, have even reached the point of going on strike in three Texas cities. Of course, this isn't a welcomed sight for doctors as their ethics are against this kind of retaliation.

The Texas Medical Association and the Texas Hospital Association have voiced negative opinions of strikes, but to some it has become the only avenue to take.

HEREFORD HAS remained free of any real medical cutbacks due to the malpractice mess, although it came close as doctors here were considering cutting back on drop-in obstetric cases about two months ago. In other towns such as Dimmitt, doctors have decided to curtail elective surgery.

The Deaf Smith General Hospital uses basically the services of a nurse anesthetist, (NA) a registered nurse who has gone through two years of specialized training in administering anesthetics. An NA works under the supervision of an anesthesiologist or surgeon and therefore experiences lower malpractice insurance premiums, but just as much risk as any member of the surgical team.

Other anesthetic treatment at the local hospital is provided by contract through an Amarillo hospital.

However, the major case load for anesthetics is provided by Frank Bethune, 38, who is the only local nurse anesthetist.

Handling on the average about 65 to 70 cases a month, Bethune is constantly under the scrutiny of those who might want to file malpractice suits. So far, his luck has been good as he has not been sued. But it costs him for the mistakes of others.

"I'M NOW PAYING more for less coverage," he emphasized. His rates had been about $165 a year until recently. The insurance companies, at least the ones who will still take doctors, now charge him about $800 annually, almost 500 per cent more than a year ago.

This coverage has another drawback since he is covered for only three months at a time instead of yearly. He said anesthetologists have a greater expense of between $12,000 and $18,000 annually. That is about double or triple their previous rates.

Some relief may be given the medical profession with the passage of two malpractice laws by the Texas legislature. These in effect require the State Board of Insurance rate approve professional liability insurance rates, set two-year statute of limitations for malpractice cases, requires reports of statistical data on claims to the insurance board, guarantees a rate will remain in effect for one-year period, requires 90-day notice for rate changes, and dictates that no dollar

Beet Research Tour Begins Here Tuesday

Field tours on sugar beet research will be held Tuesday at Hereford and Bushland according to Calvin Jones, assistant agricultural manager for Holly Sugar Corporation of Hereford.

Tuesday's tour will begin about 1 p.m. in a field of research plots just east of the sugar plant. Tour members will view weed control and variety evaluation experiments conducted by Paul Scott, agronomist for Holly Sugar and Dr. A.F. Wiese, weed researcher with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Holly Sugar Corporation.

The tour will arrive at Bushland about 3:30 p.m. Dr. Steve Winter will explain his research in areas including variety evaluation, planting to stand, nitrogen fertilization, leaf spot control and herbicide evaluation.

Persons attending the tour will be able to view results on those combinations of new preplant and post emergent herbicides that have almost eliminated pigweed, Russian Thistle, Kochia and watergrass.

According to Scott, herbicides utilized in the weed control experiments include Nortron, an experimental herbicide, Betanex, Roncet and 503, a mixture of Batanex and Batanol.

"The trend in sugar beet growing is toward more extensive use of herbicides for weed control in order to help reduce the expenses for production. We've obtained some good results from some of the herbicides in our experiments," said Scott.

Scott anticipates a good turnout for the beet field tour. He pointed out that cards have been sent to all area beet growers inviting them to attend.

The tour is sponsored by the Research Committee of the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Holly Sugar Corporation.

The three will guide a field tour on beet research which will begin at the Holly research plots at 1 p.m. Tuesday. The tour will arrive at Bushland about 3:30. Tour members will have an opportunity to view weed control and variety evaluation experiments.

Applications Flood Office

TEC Needs More Student Jobs

The Texas Employment Commission office has been consistently busy this week as high school and college students start flooding the office with applications for summer jobs.

It is just the beginning of about a two week period in which the students start looking for employment after enjoying a bit of the summer sun after the grueling hours of classes during the past nine months. So far the TEC has received from about 50 to 60 new applications for jobs. Others have come in to request that their applications be put back on the active file.

Lester Rape, director of the Hereford

TEC office, said, "Most of the jobs filled so far are clerical jobs, but these have only been available for about one in every 10 applicants." Five or six applicants have been given jobs.

However, Rape said this is usually the first week when the students come in and that the next two weeks will show the majority of the students coming in as they finally decide they need a job.

The biggest problem so far is that jobs are few and far between. Rape encourages employers to call the TEC office and inform them of any jobs.

"We will be able to fill them immediately as we have the prospects," he said.

Usually the local office receives 200-300 requests for jobs by the middle of the summer.

Spot jobs such as yard work or weed pulling allow jobs for the volume of younger students. The TEC needs residents who might normally do such work themselves to call the TEC and employ students on a spot basis.

"There are a lot of weeds growing around, so work could definitely be available if we get calls," Rape explained.

As wheat harvest comes into an active state, more jobs will be available for older students, who could possibly follow the crews northward. It is the college students who usually fill these and are the most eager to work as they know that it will finance their next year of schooling.

Industrial Foundation Drive Extended 2 Weeks

The Hereford Industrial Foundation is steadily approaching its goal of about $50,000 or $60,000 with which to set up an organization which can attract new business to the community.

At a fund drive reporting meeting Friday, members of the drive totaled up the receipts, which are above the halfway point. They decided to extend the deadline of the drive for another two weeks until Friday, June 20, when the foundation expects to announce the collection figures.

Ray Cowser, and Jake Webb, leaders of the fund drive, indicated that collections so far have definitely allowed the final signing of papers for the Sue Ann, Inc., garment plant here. It was possible through $30,000 in donations to the foundation.

It is being financed through a $40,000 loan from the Texas Industrial Commission with the rest of the $130,000 cost being raised through local institutions. The building and land will be under the ownership of the foundation with the company having a 10-year lease-purchase option on the facility.

Bill Albright, vice-president of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, said Friday that the papers had been signed here and copies were being sent to the TIC and the Sue Ann firm in Dallas.

The foundation hopes to gain as much as possible to build a reserve on which to arrange financing for other businesses. The foundation fund raisers meet next Friday to report donations to date.

A 16-member board oversees the foundation operation. Members of the foundation pay $15 yearly dues. It is a non-profit organization and Tom Burdett, a local attorney, is president.

Ford Urges Citizens To Fly Flags During National Flag Week

This is National Flag Week and the local Bicentennial committee as well as President Gerald Ford encourages all residents and businesses to fly the American flag and the official bicentennial flag during the week.

Ford proclaimed National Flag Week from June 8 to Flag Day on June 14. He has ordered all government agencies to fly the two flags in recognition to the country's heritage.

Also, arrangements are being sought for local Boy Scouts to perform flag raising ceremonies at the Post Office each morning at about 8:30.

County Commissioners, School Board Set To Meet This Week

The Hereford Board of Education is set for a fairly heavy agenda Tuesday as the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court prepares for a relatively light one at its meeting Monday.

The school trustees meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday at the administration building.

The school board, which is presently seeking a new name for the elementary school replacing Central, will act on a depository contract for the district funds, discuss the building of a tennis complex at the high school, listen to a presentation by A.B. Lyles, chairman of the math department, hear a summer enrollment report, decide on a new name for the school and decide the disposition of the old Central School.

Also the board members will contemplate the finances for the 1975-76 school year, discuss the preliminary average membership (ADA) of the district, accept or reject participation in PESO media services and consider resignation and election of teachers.

An executive session of the board is listed on the agenda which could be to discuss pending litigation involving a recent hearing for Wayne Woodward, a teacher whose contract was not renewed.

The Commissioners will meet at 10 a.m. in the courthouse to consider bids to pave the Bull Barn and courthouse parking lots, act on a gas line for Homer Garrison in Precinct 3 and discuss the proposed tennis Complex at the high school.

Observing State Government

Several seventh and eighth grade students from the Walcott school and their sponsors pose with Senator Max Sherman in the State Senate chambers in Austin. Chamber Slates Fun Breakfast Hearty food, games and cash prizes are drawing cards for the Chamber Fun Breakfast at 6:30 a.m. June 17 at the Hereford High School cafeteria.

Reservations for the event, which is sponsored once every two months by the Downtown Merchants Association, are available by contacting the Chamber of Commerce office, 364-3333. There is no charge.

Anyone attending will have an opportunity to win the $100 cash prize which will be the object of a drawing. An additional $200 will be awarded to one of the Chamber members in attendance.

Begun in October, the Fun Breakfasts extend a special invitation to women of the community, according to Bill Albright, executive vice president of the C of C Dickies Restaurant will cater the meal.

including a cost of $1.70 to $1.80 a gallon for gasoline. The people are great, adds Ken, "kind, helpful, and considerate." Rogers earned the trip through an insurance company he represents.

Cash prizes, entertainment and fellowship will be emphasized again when the chamber's fun breakfast is held June 17. Drawings for $200 for a C of C member and $100 for anyone in attendance are planned for the next breakfast, sponsored by the Downtown Merchants Association.

School trustees will discuss the naming of the new elementary school at a regular meeting Tuesday, and the administration hopes a decision will be made. The board has asked for suggestions from the public, and a number of names have been submitted. If you have a preference, you may want to call the administrative office Monday.

A number of parents have reported that their children have already put a label on the un-named school: The TG&Y School.

Government power to control and influence the decisions of business threatens the very existence of many firms and the financial health of many thousands more, says a former federal official in the recent issue of "Nation's Business".

Dr. Murray Weidenbaum, a specialist in government regulation, warns that Washington is snatching away much of the vital decision-making power from businessmen and handing it over to a growing federal bureaucracy, he complains that it costs $4 billion a year to support all the federal regulatory agencies that ride herd on business.

"What all this so-called governmental protection does is protect the consumer against new products, new processes, and lower costs," he emphasizes.

amount will be set in malpractice suits. The laws cover hospitals, medical doctors, podiatrists, and those certified to administer anesthesia.

The rates alone for hospitals have gone up from $20 per bed in 1964 to $2,300 per bed now according to the Texas Hospital Association. The Association president O. Ray Hurst said, "this cost increase must be passed on to the patient in the form of higher charges."

"It's really bad. I don't know whose fault it is—the lawyers, patients or who, but it's not good," he explained.

Bethune, a native of South America, doesn't see the need for the suits that have been filed in a lot of cases as he thinks that people want something for nothing. "Suits should be filed only when gross negligence has taken place," he said.

The anesthetist thinks part of suits might be cut down if the courts took a strong approach to which cases would be allowed to reach the prosecution stage.

"SURE REASONABLE suits should be allowed in courts, but only for negligence," he said. Others with reasons of no foundation, he indicated, should be thrown out.

"Another problem is that it's hard to retell what went on during an operation, and defendants like to play on the emotions of the jury," Bethune said. "During an operation, I look for the patient's reaction to surgery to determine the use of anesthetics."

Lawyers were given part of the blame. "They may get about 40 per cent of the money (awarded in a suit)," which he said might cause some lawyers to promote cases. The patient also brings some of the problem upon himself since Bethune notes that people wait until something hurts them for three or four days before they go to a doctor.

"They should take better care of themselves and give the doctor the best chance to cure them" he said.

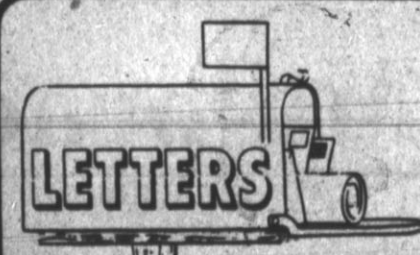

IN HIS OWN CASE, Bethune thinks anesthetists and anesthesiologists should see patients before operations as the patients' doctor does to explain the anesthetic procedure and build confidence in the patient.

In the teaching end of anesthetics, he said schools are developing training programs and current seminars are sponsored to keep those administering anesthetics better informed on the latest techniques.

One thing he is against is teaching spinal anesthetics to nurse anesthetists as it is the trouble spot for malpractice cases. Headaches and other pains may occur with some patients following this type of operation. He said only qualified doctors should use it while anesthetists should stick with just general anesthesia.

The medical associations keep close track of their members and Bethune thinks it is necessary to weed out the unqualified.

Not only concerning malpractice abuse but probably life in general, Bethune reflected on his upbringing, which he said taught him respect for others and an appreciation for things one has. "Care must be taught early and it will continue into adult life," he concluded.

to the Editor

June 6, 1975

Dear Sir:

Manpower Training Programs have been providing services for the economically disadvantaged, unemployed, and under-employed within Deaf Smith County for approximately 8 years. We are indeed proud to have been sponsored throughout this period of time by the Texas Panhandle Community Action Agency in Amarillo. The success of our programs is largely due to the overwhelming support of our local elected officials. We are especially grateful to the Honorable Judge Sam Morgan and the Commissioner Court of Deaf Smith County for their sincere dedication in providing services for local citizens. Our local elected officials have also gone to great lengths in trying to develop adequate programs which would serve the needs of our less fortunate citizens.

Manpower Training Programs is currently providing services in all 25 counties of the Texas Panhandle. Twenty-two of these counties are presently governed by a consortium of county judges and the other three counties are handled by the balance of state. As I previously stated, the Texas Panhandle Community Action Agency is our sponsoring agency and we are in turn responsible to our local elected officials for developing programs which will meet the total needs of the community. Our agency is currently providing training, work experience, and or employment for more than 75 persons in Deaf Smith County. Within this past fiscal year we have provided ongoing services for more than 85 youth and 33 adults which is a grand total of 118 individuals that have received direct services from our program. Of these 118 people served, 87 percent were economically disadvantaged or unemployed, 11 per cent were just unemployed, and 2 per cent were under-employed.

Throughout the years we have earnestly developed and created new training sites for our enrollees so that we may provide the very best training available to our local residents. We are very pleased with the response of local agencies in regards to providing employment and fulfilling the needs of our local residents. We would also like to point out that we serve all groups of people who fit the Manpower criteria which is unemployed, under-employed, or economically disadvantaged. We are not limited to any one specific group or segment of the population.

It is our sincere desire or wish to serve all eligible individuals. We would also like to point out we are not affiliated with any other Manpower Program within this geographical area and that we are directly responsible to our local elected officials for developing Manpower Program which will meet the needs of our Community!

In conclusion we would like to publicly and openly state that we have some of the most dedicated and conscientious elected officials within this geographical area. It is our pleasure to be allowed to continue to deliver Manpower services within Deaf Smith County.

Sincerely,
Paul Cateo

Foreign confidence in the quality of U.S. grains is eroding due to scandals that have been brewing for over a year.

These scandals involve the conduct of inspections at Gulf ports from which U.S. grain is shipped overseas. The Secretary of Agriculture has stated that all major export ports are now under federal investigation. A Senate subcommittee is also preparing to hold hearings.

The Agriculture Department inspects other farm exports, but Congress has legislated the inspection of the nation's huge grain shipments overseas to others, such as state inspectors, employees of boards of trade or private inspection companies.

Convictions and indictments in New Orleans and Houston point to private inspectors taking bribes to expedite grain shipments. One top executive of a grain exporting firm was quoted as saying "Bribes have been a part of the business for 50 years."

Grain shippers have also been under pressure to participate. A loading delay could cause penalties as high as $20,000 a day in demurrage charges and some Gulf port inspectors have been charged with accepting bribes as high as $5,000 to certify ships with dirty holds as clean.

Critics put part of the blame on the Agriculture Department because U.S. wheat exports almost doubled from 1971 to 1972 when the Russians made their huge purchases, but supervisory manpower in the Agriculture Department inspection branch did not increase proportionately. The supervisor of the private part inspectors for the USDA has resigned and now his boss, the director of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, has announced his retirement on June 30th for reasons of health.

Henry Kissinger, Secretary of State: "The impact ought to be made clear that there are limits beyond which the United States cannot be pushed."

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

One of the most productive pieces of legislation ever passed by the Texas Legislature, from the standpoint of public health, was the 1971 compulsory immunization law. This law, with adequate funding provided by the Legislature, has produced dramatic results in reducing disease among school-age children and influencing a downward trend in immunizable diseases in all age levels.

Today, from one end of the state to the other, the average immunization levels for all school children are above 95 per cent, reports the Texas State Department of Health.

Many people doubted that the Texas law would be effective. And, there were those who thought a compulsory law for school children would cause pre-school immunizations to lag. But these doubts have long since been dispelled.

Along with school immunizations, the Texas State Department of Health has conducted a sustained educational campaign, operated an Infant Immunization Surveillance Program among parents of newborn, scheduled additional clinics and expanded outreach work by immunizations division staff. In addition, a companion law provided for immunizations of children enrolled in day care centers and child care institutions.

The Texas school immunization law requires protection against smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus, poliomyelitis, rubella (measles) and rubella. The requirement for smallpox has since been deleted. Exemption to the law may be granted for religious reasons or medical contraindication, but religious exemptions may be set aside by the State Commissioner of Health in time of emergency or epidemic.

Individual and combination immunizations are given. Individual protection is given for polio, measles and rubella, while the combination shot is given for diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis.

Success of the school immunization program, plus intensification of the pre-school efforts, resulted in another drop in reported disease during 1974, according to the Bureau of Communicable Disease Services.

The State went through an unprecedented second year in 1974 without a case of paralytic polio being reported. Only nine cases of diphtheria were reported. Measles dropped to just 212 cases and rubella to 317 cases, while 99 cases of pertussis (whooping cough) and four cases of tetanus were reported. Figures can be compared with those of 1970 showing: 234 cases of diphtheria during a bad outbreak; measles, 8,494; rubella, 8,409; polio, 22 cases in a relatively high year; and tetanus, 14 cases.

An unusual aspect of the school immunization program has shown up during 1975 with outbreaks of rubella in some parts of the state.

The effectiveness of the immunization program was reflected in a recent rubella outbreak in Beville. Among 15 to 18-year-old high school students (too old for immunization), more than 100 cases occurred. Among the 1800 younger children, who were almost completely immunized, only three cases were reported.

Those who are now 15 years and older were above the recommended age for rubella immunizations when the compulsory school immunization law went into effect in 1971. Rules were established then for while the combination shot is given for diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis. School immunization levels reported to the Texas Education Agency in these various categories—for the top 20 major cities in Texas—show these figures: DTP/Td 96 per cent; polio, 95 per cent; measles, 97 per cent; and rubella, 97 per cent.

One city—Arlington—reported 100 per cent immunization among its school-age population, while Pasadena showed a perfect mark for all but the combination shot—registering 99 per cent in that category.

Success of the school immunization program, plus intensification of the pre-school efforts, resulted in another drop in reported disease during 1974, according to the Bureau of Communicable Disease Services.

immunization up to the 12th birthday. Beville had only four late-arrivals among its 1,861 elementary students under age 12 who weren't immunized. The 15 to 18-year-old population—in which outbreak occurred—numbered 745 students. The county health officer, Humberto Enriquez, M.D., who reported the original cases, took immediate action when the outbreak started to urge immunization of pre-school children and to warn pregnant women to check in with their doctors. Birth defects can result if pregnant women contract rubella.

Band Members Organize

Texas Tech University Band and other Music Department officials have announced a round-up of former members of the "goin' Band From Raiderland."

The round-up, according to M. Dean Killion, Director of Bands at Texas Tech, will tie in with a band homecoming program in 1976 for the dedication of the new Music Department-University Center facility and the organization of a Texas Tech Red Raider Band Club.

Killion and other band officials have asked that former members of the band get in touch with the Band Office at Texas Tech as soon as possible in preparation for the organization of the club and for the homecoming next year.

There are some 3,500 former members of the musical group which has gained national and international recognition for its performances, particularly during Texas Tech University's football games, under Killion's direction which began in 1969.

The marching band has won national acclaim on several occasions for its performances and execution of intricate formations during half-time ceremonies in several post-season football bowl games, including the Sun Bowl, and the Gator Bowl.

Check Presented

Noon Kiwanis president R.C. Hoelscher presents Gene Brock with a check for $320 that will be used for four camperships to Camp WigWam. Kiwanians responded to a plea for more help with the sponsorship of campers to the summer camp for mentally retarded children.

'Child Abuse Can Kill Children' Ruiz Tells Kiwanis

"Child abuse is the number one killer of children in Texas," Carlos Ruiz told Noon Kiwanians at their meeting Thursday. Ruiz, who is vice-president of the Hereford Jaycees and their chairman of child abuse, also reported that between 90 and 125 open cases of child abuse in Deaf Smith County had been reported since the beginning of the year. Texas Jaycees have begun a massive public education program on the problem of child abuse. Jesse Vasquez, caseworker with the local State Welfare Department, and Gene Mauser, caseworker for the Welfare Department's Foster Home in Amarillo, were present to help present the program. A slide presentation was the focal point of the program. The film stated that 2,000 cases of child abuse were reported last year, but that experts agree that number is only "the tip of the iceberg." At least two children a week die in Texas with the direct result of their death child abuse. Child abuse is divided into three forms: physical, sexual and emotional abuse. Child abusers come from all walks of life, from rich and poor, and all races. Most experts agree that child abusers were victims of abuse in their own childhood and fail to realize they are committing any wrong. The aim of the Welfare department and the Jaycees is to find the abuser and try to help them. Under Texas Law, persons aware of any type of child abuse must report it. Failure to report child abuse is a misdemeanor and could mean six months in jail and a $500 fine. The law provides immunity from prosecution for those who report, and they are not even required to give their name. The Welfare Department and Jaycees are working to promote a "Child Abuse Hotline." This toll-free number can be called 24-hours a day to report child abuse. The number is 1-800-252-5400. Other highlights of the meeting included a presentation by Kiwanis President R.C. Hoelscher. Hoelscher presented Gene Brock a check for $320, a donation by the Kiwanians for camperships to Camp WigWam. Brock said an added number of mentally retarded campers would attend the camp this summer, and thanked the Kiwanis for its support. Weldon Scarborough, of Amarillo's Hi-Plains Kiwanis Club, presented golfballs to four Hereford Kiwanians who competed in a tourney held by that club last week. R.C. Hoelscher, Dub Boyd, Bartley Dowell and Dean Herring were rewarded for their duffer efforts. Club sweetheart Monica Herring was presented a ring from the Noon Kiwanians for her graduation.

With 660,000 tons of fertilizer placed on Texas High Plains soils each year, research scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Lubbock are keeping a watchful eye on chemical changes in the soil profile.

"It's definitely changing," says Dr. Art Onken, TAES soil chemist. "But we don't know what rate nor what adjustments we should make in fertilizer applications from year to year."

Onken says that he and research associate Herb Sunderman have succeeded in delineating nitrogen changes and have developed procedures for measuring these changes. Nitrogen is the first limiting plant nutrient. Phosphorus is the second most important, and is the next target for comprehensive research. Additionally, the researchers are trying to determine plant nutrient requirements and peak fertilizer efficiency levels for major crops of the High Plains, based on actual farming operations.

"If we were all extremely efficient with our fertilizer, we would solve a number of problems at the same time," he adds. "We would reduce our crop production costs, slow down rate of change in our soil profile, get peak production yields, and reduce adverse effects on our environment. With thousands of farms, each one with different fertilizer requirements for any given crop, this absolute efficiency is physically impossible, of course."

Research has been conducted with nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, sulfur and micronutrients. Using data gathered from more than 200 tests and portions of seven major research projects, the researchers have correlated fertilizer needs on major soil types with crops grown on the Texas High Plains. Most of the tests were in cooperation with county extension agents and farmers.

Working with Jim Valentine, who heads the Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratory at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock, the scientists are continuing to refine their correlations in light of changing plant requirements, soil conditions, climatic factors and cultural practices.

Farmers are able to draw on this and other information available at the soil testing laboratory to have their soil nutrient requirements analyzed. Fertilizer recommendations are made, based on these tests and yield potential.

Over a long period of time, Onken believes, fertilizer use on the High Plains will become more efficient, stimulating higher yields, greater economic returns and reaping additional related benefits.

Fertilizer use over the last two decades, he adds, has increased 13-fold. With spiraling production costs and limited fertilizer supplies, farmers are developing new fertilizer strategies. This, he believes, will help not only to increase their returns but over a long period will have some beneficial effect in reducing soil changes.

"Our research has continuously shown two factors to be predominantly important in efforts to use fertilizers efficiently," Onken emphasizes. "These are proper timing of applications and proper rates. Best results have been obtained when only enough of the right rates and ratios of fertilizer are used to achieve a given yield goal. This is possible, of course, if supplies are available. If they're not available, then we would want to produce as much crop as possible per unit of applied fertilizer."

Both situations, Onken says, require proper application rates, which in turn require a knowledge of the plant nutrient status of the soil. And that, he adds, requires a soil test.

A good farmer will have his soil tested periodically, Onken explains. This is because the soil changes with each crop that is produced. Sometimes residues of fertilizer are left over because too much was applied or it was not applied at the right time for the plants to use it up. Soil moisture and climate conditions affect the soil profile, also. Sometimes nitrogen moves down out of the root zone, rendering the fertilizer ineffective. Any number of things can happen, making it necessary for soils to be analyzed.

Soil changes not only from year to year, but over a long period of time can characteristically be affected so that soil amendments may be of little value. Onken points to phosphorus buildup as an example of changes in soil profile.

"Phosphorus accumulates and chemical reactions take place within the soil to form insoluble compounds," he explains. "We don't know at what rate this change is taking place nor what effect this will have on future crop production."

"Aggressive, knowledgeable farmers are a valuable resource to us," Onken says. "In any one year we work with as many as 20 farmers, and we're able to find the soil type and farm management practice to meet our particular research needs."

Probably one of the biggest boosts to the soil research program at Lubbock, he believes, was the development of a precision fertilizer dispenser. With the equipment

Area Troops Win Top Honors In Scout Jamboree Contests

Hereford Boy Scout troops came out on top of the heap as they took home with high honors in the Llano Estacado Council Jamboree last weekend at Camp Don Harrington, southeast of Canyon. It was attended by more than 600 scouts from throughout the Panhandle.

The Bob White patrol of Troop 51 took the top honor of the whole event as they won the "All State" designation. They were led by Scoutmaster Ron Matthews and it is sponsored by the Temple Baptist Church.

Also winning honors were Troop 50 with the "unit award" and Troop 151 won the council award.

Saturday was packed with activities beginning with "wide games" in the morning and followed by an afternoon of skills, scout craft, demonstrations and fun. Among the highlights were canoe jousting, log rolling, bucking bronco, tug of war, "slide for life", bull chip throwing, and tower building.

After supper on Saturday evening all the Scouts, Scouters, parents and friends gathered at the council ring for a ceremonial council fire honoring a long time Scouter Earl O'Keefe. O'Keefe was presented a painting to recognition of his service to Scouting. Awards from the days activities were presented and skits, songs and fun were shared by adults and youngsters.

Sunday wound up a busy weekend with sunrise religious services and the "Be Prepared" competition to select the top patrol at the Jamboree.

The Jamboree was held in preparation for the National Jamboree to be held in Pennsylvania in 1977. Scout officials look forward to another such council-wide affair next year.

The Scouting Program is open to boys 11 through 18 years of age and is widely recognized as the greatest youth activity in our nation.

$11.8 Billion Surplus Result Of Farm Trade

AUSTIN—Spurred by a heavy demand for food, U.S. agricultural exports reached a record $22 billion last year, leaving the country with a net agricultural surplus of $11.8 billion in the balance of payments.

This 25 percent increase in national agricultural exports helped to offset a $14.8 billion trade deficit in non-agricultural products caused by rising oil imports and prices.

The U.S. petroleum import bill shot to $24 billion, three times higher than it was in 1973.

Overall, the U.S. had a $3 billion trade deficit compared with a favorable balance of $1.3 billion in 1973.

According to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, Texas export sales more than doubled 1973 levels, recording nearly $1.7 million in sales. Texas ranks a third in the country in agricultural exports.

Nationwide, export volume dropped six percent, but worldwide inflation pushed values up more than 33 percent. Wheat, feed grains, rice, soybeans and vegetable oils all showed price increases. Prices for meat, hides and skins and soybean meal fell from the previous year's records.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reported that exports of food and feed grains reached a high of $10.3 billion, more than a fifth above the 1973 level. Exports to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and other less-developed nations accounted for most of the increase.

The Abundant Life

Making Peace

By BOB WEAR

There Will Be Friction, disagreement, misunderstanding, and other disharmonies in most, if not all, areas of human associations. We can add to these, or we can find words and ways for "making peace"; at least we can try.

For some reason, or for a variety of reasons, perhaps; some people seem to deliberately cause discord. Of course, this is exceedingly low class action; it is a special kind of meanness.

There are other people who will feed a hassle that has already begun. They add fuel to the fire by carrying tales back and forth, or by outright encouragement of someone involved in the squabble.

These persons inject

Let Carol Rose show you how you can qualify for FHA, VA or Conventional Loans disruptive influences, and add to some of the very worst elements in unhappy human behavior.

WE ARE TOLD that such persons are not at peace within themselves, and there is dependable data to support this conclusion. This is a problem for all of us, but it is helpful to know that inner peace is available to all of us. If we desire such peace, and are willing to be diligent in making the necessary corrections and adjustments in our thinking and behavior; we can have a reasonable measure of this inner peace.

We Can Be Peacemakers, and this is a very useful and rewarding work. It is very necessary, however, that all of our well-meaning efforts in "making peace" be controlled and directed by wisdom and good judgment. We must also be discerning enough to know when to try this, and when to leave a situation alone. We cannot perform miracles, but will be able to help; now and then.

OUR GENERAL VIEWPOINT concerning our fellowmen, and the whole range of human associations should be that of "making peace." In our regular and continuing associations, we will have many opportunities to say and do things which help create and maintain a climate of peaceful interaction.

We can Tell Others the good things that their friends and associates are saying about them, and we can help them put the best possible interpretation on what others say and do. We can also help convince them, to be very charitable to both their special and general evaluation of the people within their scope of their life activity. This will not be the behavior of naivety; but of good judgment, and of well-thought-out action. The same general posture can be maintained in the more casual associations, too. IN "MAKING PEACE", we must not become involved to the extent that we take sides; to the extent that we become part of the quarrel or the misunderstanding. We can be "objective", and this is just exactly what we must do; in order to succeed. We May Not Always Succeed, but "making peace" must be our purpose in all we say and do.

THE PRESENT IS VALUABLE for a number of reasons. It is valuable for itself, and because it is the only time of which we can be certain. Yesterday is gone forever, and tomorrow belongs to an uncertain future. We have no guarantee that there will be a tomorrow; however, this fact must not be permitted to disturb us.

There is a wise view and a unwise view toward the future. There are many helpful observations to be made, and they are certainly worthy of our consideration. It is not the purpose of this writing, however, to explore all of the facts of these different views; but to emphasize one of the very necessary ones.

We must "keep planning" for tomorrow, and the other possible or probable tomorrows.

There is no better way to make today a satisfactory one, because today cannot be all that it has the potential to be; unless we have something to which we can look forward with pleasant anticipation. Of course, this planning must be reasonable and sensible. It is not to be done with anxiety, but with the greatest possible degree of wholesome concern.

"Everything that looks to the future elevates human nature; for life is never so low so little as when occupied with the present." -Landon

WE DO NOT SLIGHT THE PRESENT, as we "keep planning"; but we actually enrich the present. In fact, there are two mistakes that can be made about the present. One mistake is in thinking that the present is all there is, and no thought is given to the future. The other mistake is in overlooking the valuable present, and to be always promising ourselves that we will do better tomorrow.

Living will be more interesting, more enjoyable, and much more rewarding; when we are using the present in the very best ways, and when we "keep planning" for the near and the distant future.

H 3 / HUSTLE HUSTLE HUSTLE

By Bill Albright, Executive VP
Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce

Opportunity! Progress! Economic improvement! Quality growth!

Those are good sounding words. They have meaning too—a real good meaning—for any society, or community, or group, or individual. They hold promise of better things—even increased happiness. But they are only—words—until something is added.

"That something" is known as HUSTLE! Now, HUSTLE doesn't just fall out of the sky or come from the water—you don't plow it up out of the earth or find it in store. It comes from within—from the spirit—the attitude and the will of our citizens. Everybody has some, but not everyone knows how to use it.

There is a group in this community who has it, who knows how to use it, and who is using it now; and through their efforts provide all of us with Opportunity, Progress, Economic Improvement and Quality Growth. Those people are associated together to make things better for all of us. They are known by their involvements, their concern, their contributions of effort and resources, and they are called members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

These folks are the real leaders of the community. You'll find them working on the Goals for Progress Committee—planning for our future! You'll find them working on projects sponsored by the Women's Division—youth activities or Miss Hereford Pageant; The Sports Committee—conducting a county wide athletic event or on the "CARE" (Culture, Arts, Religion, and Education) Committee—promoting the the Hereford Chamber Singers, reinforcing the volunteer program at the Deaf Smith County Museum or helping establish a better understanding of Free Enterprises in our school system.

Chamber members work with all phases of agriculture and government to help create more favorable legislation and a more comprehensive understanding of problems affecting all of us. They contribute time and energy to developing a more attractive tourist environment and to improve the transportation situation in our part of the country.

The chamber member may be active in publicizing this community in a manner which promotes our status as a regional trade center and encourages our people and others to buy their goods and services "here at home" where the money works harder for us; concerned Chamber members work to gain new members to strengthen our organization—not just numbers, but citizens and firms who really have an interest in our community. In addition, some of our folks are working to conserve our water and our environmental resources and to improve our well being through health and safety programs.

Then there's another group which many of you have met in the last few days—The Industrial Development people. These folks are working to bring "new dollars" into our economy by attracting new payrolls. They are really "hustlin'" to help us improve our economic structure.

And we can all help ourselves by participating in the Industrial Foundation. Let's get with it folks—call Jake Webb or Ray Cowser or any of the Foundation officers and ask to become a part of our future quality growth and development.

Know what all that means? It means Hustle, Hustle, Hustle!

'Watch for Children,' Group Pleas

School is now out in most Texas communities—and with it, will come children of all ages engaged in countless activities that will bring them near or upon the streets for the next three months.

Texas Safety Association reminds motorists that the plea for caution toward children that was issued when school opened in the fall is now of even greater importance.

Gone for the summer are the regular hours during which drivers might expect crowds of children on their ways to and from school. No longer present in most areas are the crossing guards and school playground supervisors who provided adult protection for these youngsters.

Operators of vehicles will find the need for increased awareness, as protective measures for young pedestrians and cyclists will be operating at reduced efficiency during the vacation season.

TSA hopes Lone Star State motorists will double the lookout for children enjoying the summer's reward for nine months of hard study. Drivers should remember that these youngsters' young minds may be on other things, and take extra effort to watch out for them so they can return safely to their classrooms next fall.

Local 4-H'ers Set For Tour

About 23 4-H'ers from throughout the High Plains will join other young Texans in Dallas, (Monday) to embark on a heritage tour to Washington, D.C. and points in between. They'll be participating in a six-day National 4-H Citizenship Short Course in the nation's capital.

The delegation will include three boys and girls from Deaf Smith County, said Garland Stewart, Assistant County Extension Agent.

Among those attending will be Frankie Wells, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. W.E. Wells; Wes Strain, son of Mr. & Mrs. Robert Strain; and Randy Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Coleman.

Accompanying the group will be two 4-H adult leaders from District 2— Mrs. Barbara Albright and Mrs. Novel Griffin, both of Lamesa. They are among the five adult leaders selected from throughout the state to accompany the group.

In all, the trip will cover 15 days travel to and from the nation's capital, by charter bus. 4-H members entering their junior or senior year in high school next school term are eligible.

The 94 Texas youth and their leaders will leave Dallas June 10th, arriving in Washington, June 15th. The excursion will take them through Tennessee and Virginia, with visits to historical sites at Gatlinburg, Tenn., and other points.

In Washington, they'll participate with other youth from throughout the nation in a six-day citizenship short course. The program, Stewart said, is designed to supplement the citizenship education and leadership development training young people receive through the home, school, church and other organizations.

Citizenship short courses are conducted at the National 4-H Foundation in Washington. Topics relating to the individual's concept and responsibilities of citizenship are covered in assemblies and opportunity sessions at the center.

Learning experiences are gained through visits to operational centers of many branches of government and to memorial centers in the nation's capital, Stewart added. Tops on the agenda of the 4-H'ers will be a visit with their local congressman.

They will return via Christian burg, Virginia, and Oakridge, Tenn., Stewart said, touring other historical sites enroute home. The group will return to Dallas, June 26th.

Hiring and Firing

THE SCHOOL BOARD hearing this week, requested by a teacher whose contract was not renewed, drew much interest and comment around the community. The teacher apparently will pursue the question in court, so we believe it would be inappropriate to editorialize on this specific case.

We have some observations and opinions, however, on the subject of renewing teacher contracts. It seems to us it is the principal's duty and responsibility to recommend whether a teacher should be employed in his school. In reporting on school board meetings for almost 20 years, the only problem I've noted is that most principals are bashful about discharging that responsibility.

I can recall an incident that happened in another community a few years back. An elementary principal, appearing before the school board, recommended all of his teachers' contracts be renewed. Several of the trustees, however, challenged the principal, reporting that a number of parents had complained about a teacher in that building.

"Well, she does have some deficiencies," replied the principal, "but I'm not sure we could replace her with a better teacher." That didn't sit too well with the trustees, who decided they could try to find a better teacher for the children of their community. And, some trustees later mentioned the possibility of needing a new principal.

LET THERE BE NO misunderstanding. We are not "knocking" the teaching profession. We count some teachers among our best friends, and we are not envious of their jobs. We may joke with them about having three months off in the summer, but that's the only time we'd want to change places!

What we're saying is that no one should be immune to getting "fired" if they are not doing the job required of them. We've fired some reporters and editors for not "measuring up" and, in many cases, it was not due to a lack of ability, training or educational background.

In the newspaper business, we can buy eight hours of an employee's time on the job, but wages don't buy loyalty, morale and teamwork. Given people with comparable abilities, we hang on to the ones with these other factors.

WE CAN'T HELP but believe it works the same way in other businesses, other professions, and in school systems. Businesses have "key" people—foremen, department heads, supervisors—who make hiring and firing decisions, and the boss, or top management, either backs up the decision or finds a new supervisor.

We must remember, of course, that attitudes such as loyalty and teamwork are not a product of the employee, alone. The employer must create the conditions, the management and leadership which cultivates these emotional states of mind.

June, 1975

A ship at sea—and a bride in June—
Ivy and bitterness in Fall—
But the bride is the loveliest of all!
—Anne Mary Lawler

Although it seems hard to believe, the arrival of June brings us almost to the half-way point of 1975. By the end of the month, a fiscal year will have been completed, and 1975 will be in its second half.

June brings with it summer, commencements, weddings, school vacations and beautiful weather, and is thus, perhaps, the most welcome of all the months. In this month the days are longer than during any other month of the year; there is more daylight and less darkness.

The Allies landed in France on June 6th, 1944, in World War II, which proved to be the beginning of the end of the war.

Father's Day also falls in June (the 15th) as does the birthday of the first and only President of the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis, on the 3rd.

Texas Prisons-- No Place for Man

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, reprinted from The Fort Worth Press, was submitted by a Hereford man who spent more than a year in the state prison. From his experience, he thinks the article is basically correct. However, he thinks young men are more likely to be mistreated. He says he was treated "as well as could be expected," but he wants young people to know that prison is no place for a man.)

BY JEAN WYSATTA

A tale of murder, extortion, bribery and the selling of prisoners for homosexual acts in the state prison system was woven before a citizen group here today.

Describing life in prison was Wilbur Herring of Dallas who voluntarily appeared before the Citizens Advisory Committee on Prison Reform, a fact-finding body for the legislature.

"I worry mostly about the young group and I stayed in and out of solitary taking up for them. I've seen men lose their lives," Herring told a packed auditorium in First National Bank.

"I saw two inmates beat a man to death a year ago in a cell in Eastham unit. I was in the next cell."

Herring said there was a "fat chance" of a hearing on the fatal beating, that it was put down that the murdered man got his head caught in the gate.

He said he was told he did not see the incident and when he answered that he did he was put into solitary.

"I plan to get as far away from Texas as I can. After this meeting, I've had it," Herring told chairman Charles Sullivan of Austin and his committee. He was released a week ago.

He said he turned down a job as a building attendant five times, because he didn't want to beat anybody. He said he observed no rehabilitation of inmates. "You can't rehabilitate a man by strumming him on the head with a stick."

He said he saw many of the inmates in the population get schooling, apparently referring to those who could pull strings or get money for bribery.

He said guards had blackjacks and knives and guns were available. "Guns are like buying food out here."

Herring, dressed in sports clothes and a planter's hat, said inmates were sold to one another for homosexual practice. Not of comply meant "your head got strummed or more than that."

Herring was given 25 years for robbery by a assault and served 12 years. He did time in the federal Leavenworth prison for car theft previously and was able to contrast conditions in federal and state systems.

"You're a man in the federal prison but in the state you're 'nigger' and the white people are 'old trash.' I was never called by my name," he said.

He criticized medical treatment and food, "swine every day."

"You have to walk in carrying an arm or leg over your shoulder before they'll treat you." He said it takes nine months to see the warden, and that a written request must be made.

Herring was asked for suggestions on improving the system. He said the first step should be "getting rid of the old-timers."

He agreed with a committee member that a minimum wage or salary as small as $30 a month could be paid inmates for work and cut down on bribery and extortion.

The Texas system does not pay inmates. He said the taxpayers are getting for their money "criminals and killers," because when prisoners are released they are not rehabilitated but want to "get even."

He said once he was tear-gassed and hit on the head with a baseball bat and he witnessed an inmate getting his arms torn out by a thresher, because there was no attendant nearby to help him.

He said the only job he learned was shelling peanuts.

Another witness for the committee was a Fort Worth woman a federal employee, who said her husband had a heart attack July 11 and was hospitalized nine days and she was not notified of his illness.

The Fort Worth woman said she could not send her husband typing paper and he was a typing teacher in prison. She said he was an admitted alcoholic but had received no treatment. He's serving time on a hot check conviction.

She cited "petty things," like taking away her husband's wedding band and not allowing him to wear his watch.

Business and You

By Jack Wooldridge
Communications General Manager
U. S. Chamber of Commerce

Do you think of employers and employees as enemies?

Actually, they are basically very dependent on each other. Like the old song said, "you can't have one without the other."

Even though governments at all levels are employing more and more people, a big majority of the jobs in this country are provided by business. And in turn, business couldn't get its work done without employees.

Under our system, people get goods and services through a combination of capital and labor. Business is the machine that puts the two together to get results. Sometimes, of course, the capital comes from the owner of the business himself, but generally it's from many people, who can be either partners in the business or owners of shares of stock in it. Their money is used to buy the store or factory and the equipment or inventory necessary for the business.

But few businesses can be run by one or two people, so the need for help immediately arises. The people who work in the business contribute their effort, just as the investors have contributed their money.

So it's difficult to see how employers and employees can be considered as enemies when they are both doing their part toward trying to make the business a success. They both have the same objective, and—as a matter of fact, they both have survival at stake. If the business goes broke, both management and the workers have failed.

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maguire

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY—Col. E.M. House, the Texas "kingmaker" who was the close friend and principal advisor of Woodrow Wilson, once conspired to break up the president's romance.

Edward Robb Ellis, the historian, tells the little-known story in his book, "Echoes of Distant Thunder" (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, $15).

President Wilson's wife, Ellen, had died in the White House on August 6, 1914. Since two of the Wilson daughters were married and had homes of their own, and a third chose to live away from Washington, the president was very lonely after his wife's death. When a handsome Washington widow, Edith Bolling Galt, was introduced to him in March, 1915, at a White House tea, the president began seeing her as often as his busy work calendar permitted.

However, when the dates progressed to a romance and there was a rumor that the president might even propose marriage, Col. House decided to act. He feared that a new wife would disrupt his own close comradeship with Wilson. He found an ally in Treasury Secretary William Gibbs McAdoo, the president's son-in-law.

The pair went to the president with a story intended to scare him away from the altar. They told Wilson that a divorcee whom he had known earlier was ready to make public some of his letters to her. House and McAdoo warned that the letter's "would be compromising" and that the press would crucify him.

Wilson, shaken by the news, sent his personal physician to see Mrs. Galt, tell her the whole story and say that the president was willing to release her from the engagement. Mrs. Galt heard him out but didn't change her mind. On December 18, 1915, she became Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

TRAVEL NOTE—Now that the U.S. government is enforcing the laws that require a veterinary to inspect animals brought into this country, the burro trains no longer operate at the Boquillas ford across the Rio Grande.

There are no bridges across the river in the Big Bend National Park. As a result, travel between the park and the village of Boquillas, Mexico, has been limited to those willing to wade the Rio Grande or ride a burro across. For many years, young Mexicans eked out a living hauling passengers and commerce across the river by burro at 50 cents for the round trip.

Apparently too many tourists were bringing back unlimited amounts of alcohol and other merchandise without paying any duty. Now a U.S. Customs officer operates on this side of the Rio Grande. The burros, lacking a veterinary to give them a clean bill of health, are barred from the U.S. shore.

THE CHANGING TIMES—In the 1870's, hanging a horse thief was not a criminal offense. Flogging, however, was.

No charges were ever filed against a citizen who followed the "natural law" and hanged a horse thief. If he only flogged the offender, however, he could be charged with assault.

The Bootleg

Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner seems a little worried this week, whether it's justified or not.

Dear Editor:

A week or so ago in this space I was joking about New York City, how it had so much brains and talent and yet couldn't pay its bills and was facing bankruptcy if Washington didn't lend it a billion dollars immediately.

Washington declined, and I have now decided this is no laughing matter.

For example, what if New York does go under, the banks fore-close, and everybody has to move out, like the people of that Cambodian city I can't pronounce, Prom Penh? (On the other hand, how many Cambodians can pronounce Philadelphia or Schenectady?)

All right. Here we'll have 8 million displaced people, all swarming out across the United States seeking food, shelter and jobs. How many New York refugees do you figure Hereford can handle? Can you find a place say for 15 taxicab drivers and 20 subway conductors? How many of those high-priced refugee editors can you place on The Hereford Brand? You know how many dogs and cats those refugees will bring with them?

I know the Statue of Liberty says we should welcome these huddled masses but the more you think about this the more frightening it gets. I mean, what if the domino theory was right and other cities start falling too? San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Baltimore, and Amarillo?

You spill that many people out over the nation and the country-side and the small towns will be ruined. We'd like to do our part but we just can't handle that many people. Couldn't start to find that many tents. As for jobs, it's hopeless. Probably not over a dozen tractor drivers in the whole lot.

No sir. If we're smart we'll start a financial drive right now to save the cities of America. Here we've spent years herding those people into cities and trying to make them feel happy there, and to let them break out and over-run us now would be disastrous. It'd take us years to get them all back in again. I'm warning you, we'd better start doing something about it.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Pioneer Gas Outlines Boiler Fuel Position

Pioneer Natural Gas Company officials, in testimony prepared for delivery to the Railroad Commission of Texas hearing in Austin, have taken a position concerning the use of natural gas as a boiler fuel. Pioneer officials, who are in Austin for the hearing which started on Tuesday, are prepared to tell the Commission that the six points in Pioneer's position are as follows:

1. There should be no restriction on the use of gas for the purpose of generating steam by existing or new customers using less than 100 Mcf per day. Maximum efficiency of the gas usage should be encouraged.
2. The use of gas to create hot water or steam for the purpose of heating and cooling buildings is a superior use of gas and should continue both for existing and new customers.
3. The use of gas to create hot water or steam for sterilization, equipment cleaning, steam turbines for air-conditioning, process heating, feedstock, agriculture and manufacturing processes should continue both for existing and new customers.
4. Newly-planned plants should not rely on natural gas as a primary source of boiler fuel for the generation of electricity. Where steam is generated by some other primary fuel, natural gas could be used for ignition and other specialized purposes as well as in emergencies.

5. Replacement or conversion of existing plants using natural gas as a primary source of boiler fuel for the generation of electricity should be considered on a case by case basis looking to the available supply of natural gas, cost of conversion and economic waste involved.

6. Each large boiler fuel user and some smaller users be encouraged or required to provide standby fuel facilities and maintain flexibility in the use of fuels.

Company officials are prepared to testify that any immediate drastic change in the use of natural gas as a boiler fuel could have a very serious effect in Pioneer's service area.

The hearing in Austin will provide an opportunity for utility companies and owners and operators of gas-fired boilers to present evidence on their position regarding the use of gas for boiler fuel.

Upshaw Gives Athletics Update to Lions Club

A report on spring football drills and a review of the overall athletic program were given when Fred Upshaw, athletic director and football coach for Hereford Schools was guest speaker at the Hereford Lions Club luncheon Wednesday in Civic Club Center.

Upshaw told Lions that about 300 boys and girls were participating in the school's athletic program from grade 7 to 12. "We feel we have a successful program due to the quality of the young people, the ability of our staff, and the support and cooperation of the community, school administrators, and school trustees."

The Herd mentor thought spring grid practice "went real well because of the enthusiasm of the young men." He had about 100 prospects in the drills and said he plans to have about 40 on the varsity team next season, 30 on the junior varsity, and 30 on the sophomore team. He will have 13 returning lettermen on the varsity squad.

Upshaw explained that Class 4A is the only division that is allowed to hold spring football training, and teams are limited to 20 workouts in a 21-day period. "We use it primarily as a time to determine who can play where," he observed. Upshaw was introduced by program chairman Kenneth Hansen.

Joe Don Cummings, a director of the Hi Plains Eye Bank, was a guest at the meeting. He announced that a regional eye bank conference is scheduled in Amarillo's Hilton Inn on June 21-22. Lions are invited to attend the conference.

Wayne Lady, club president, introduced Bob McFarland as a new member of the Lions Club. A number of guests and visiting Lions were recognized during the weekly club meeting.

Conservation-Key To Future

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following essay was selected as the winner in the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District essay contest.

By SUSAN PAETZOLD

The wise use of natural resources is called conservation. Soil, water, forests, wildlife and minerals are natural resources. Conservation prevents their waste and makes sure of a supply for the future.

When the Pilgrims came to America they didn't take care of our natural resources. They wasted the riches for more than two hundred years. At last some people began to realize that it must be stopped. They began to do something about conservation.

Today we are faced with the job of feeding a large population at home and also sending much food to other countries. The farmers need to grow more crops on the same amount of land, so they have to practice soil conservation and good land management.

Water covers nearly three fourths of the earth but much of it is salty. In many places fresh water is scarce. Water conservation can be practiced by keeping our rivers and streams clean, building dams and by planting grass on hill sides so rain and snow will sink into the ground.

The conservation of forests include three things. First the prevention of forest fires, second, proper cutting methods and replanting and third is the complete use of all trees cut.

Wildlife can be protected by providing food, water and places for them to make their homes. The government has many wildlife reservations and game refuges. They also protect many animals by having special, hunting seasons.

In the conservation of minerals better ways of mining have been developed and substitutes are being found for scarce materials.

In the production of oil and natural gas better ways of pumping, storage and use have been found. Some things that can be used in place of oil are hydroelectric power, nuclear and solar energy.

The United States Government has done much to stop waste. Many laws do not help unless people obey them. Conservation is not something that can be turned over to the Government. Everyone has a part in it.

Hereford's CowBelles are always backers of beef, but they've been making a special effort this month in pushing beef for Father's Day.

The CowBelles encourage housewives and children to treat Dad to beef on his special day, and it's not such a bad idea.

The CowBelles will hold a drawing for a free cut of beef June 17 and they have registration boxes scattered over the city, with a special emphasis on placing them in barbershops from what I'm told.

The Brand's special agriculture section will be featured next Sunday. We've been doing some legwork and snapping a few pictures in preparation for the special section and things are shaping up for some interesting and informative features on our area's diverse agriculture.

Calvin Jones, assistant agricultural manager at Holly Sugar reports that the recent hot weather has been just right for the sugar beet crop. Jones reports that the beets are growing off well now with the hot weather assisting them in doing some catching up, and adds that the next order of business is to keep the beets wet.

According to Jones, there is some leafhopper infestation and growers will have to watch for curly top, but there is no major problem with the beet crop at present and beet acreage is still in the 38,000 acre range.

A bill has been introduced in Congress that would protect producers against packing house bankruptcies. The bill would give the Secretary of Agriculture authority to require all packing houses to be bonded and producers would get preferred status in recovering debts from bankrupt producers. Senators Carl Curtis of Nebraska and Dick Clark of Iowa are backing the bill.

Texas Tech economist Willard F. Williams, writing for the Texas Cattle Feeders Association states that he feels there will be marked improvement in the cattle feeding situation in 1977, and adds that there will be temporary price increases in the meantime that will generate optimism.

Hybrid Corns Improve Hybrid corn varieties of today yield about 40 percent more grain than those in the 1930's did.

New Prompt Payment Law To Be Enacted

On September 1, the Texas livestock industry will have a new law of major importance which will set a precedent for other states to follow. The bill is unofficially known as the "prompt payment" bill.

"This bill will give livestock producers protection and stability that can help stimulate the economy of the state," said Rep. Dave Finney (Fl. Worth), when he introduced the legislation. Other primary sponsors of the bill were Rep. Susan McBee (Del Rio) and Sen. Grant Jones (Ablene).

Its major goal is to give livestock producers greater assurance of payment by speeding payment for livestock and by giving the seller a superior lien against the packer.

Under the new law, livestock sold for slaughter must be paid for by check, cash or wire transfer of funds on the day that transfer of possession occurs. Also, instruments of payment must be drawn on banks so located as not to artificially delay collection of funds. Currently, the Packers and Stockyards Administration requires payment roughly within two days after the cattle are delivered. And payment according to the P&SA occurs when instrument is mailed. Time consuming delays have been created by packers using banks located great distances from their area of operation.

Probably the most important aspect of the bill is the provision giving the seller a lien on animals sold for slaughter. The seller's lien is superior to all other liens of the packer. Up to this time, the seller of livestock has not had any protection which would assure payment in case of default by the packer. Generally, upon bankruptcy by a packer, the livestock producer has become a "common creditor" and is paid only after all other claims are satisfied.

Joham Heads Plant Sciences

The new head of the Texas A&M University Plant Sciences Department is Dr. Howard E. Joham, teacher and researcher associated with the university for 34 years.

Joham has been acting head of the department since September of last year. He succeeds Dr. David W. Rosberg, who has returned to full time teaching and research.

Dr. H.O. Kunkel, A&M dean of agriculture, said Joham as acting head has provided able leadership in administration of the Plant Sciences Department. The department is among the College of Agriculture's largest that involves coordination of staff and programs in teaching, research and Extension Service Activities.

Joham has been with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station for 27 years and is a recognized authority in plant physiology and mineral nutrition.

One of his special research projects through the years is cotton nutrition, with major emphasis on the relation of sodium, potassium and calcium. His work shows that sodium may partly substitute for calcium and potassium, and can affect cotton yields.

AAU Jr. Olympics Slated For Borger

This year the West Texas A.A.U. Junior Olympic Track and Field Championships will be held at Bulldog Stadium, Borger, Texas, on June 28, 1975.

Preliminaries for the running events and the finals for the field events will begin at 9:00 a.m.

This meet is sanctioned by the West Texas A.A.U. Association and is sponsored by the Borger Chamber of Commerce. The Chevrolet Motor Division is the National Sponsor of the Junior Olympics Program.

This phase of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States is designed to encourage age-level competition between both boys and girls up to 18 years of age. The Program includes a variety of sports and is conducted each year throughout 58 District Associations of the A.A.U. and involves in excess of 100,000 A.A.U. VOLUNTEER WORKERS.

In 1974 millions of youngsters competed in some phase of the A.A.U. Junior Olympics Program.

Four individuals in each of the selected events will qualify for Regional Competition.

First place at the Borger Meet this year in the Intermediate (Born 1960-61) Division and the Senior (Born 1958-59) Division will qualify to compete in the Region IX Championships to be held July 12, 1975, at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattisburg, Mississippi.

In addition, the next two best times or distances in these Divisions will be qualified. Winners at the Region IX Meet will qualify to compete in the National Championships.

AAAU rules will govern the meet. Competitors may enter only one age division for individual events and relays.

Competitors may enter a total of three events, including relays and field events.

Medals will be awarded to the first three places in each event.

Events include the 50 yard dash, the 100 yard dash, the 440 yard relay, the long jump, the high jump, discus, 880 yard run, shotput, high hurdles, 220 yard dash, 440 yard dash, the mile run, the mile race-walk, and low hurdles in various age categories, for both boys and girls.

Parents or guardians must sign forms permitting minors to participate. Arrangements have been made with the West Texas AAU for participants to register as members of the AAU in Borger the morning of the meet.

In The Neck

Two men went duckhunting. They crouched in a small punt waiting for the birds to appear.

"Duck!" said the first. "Where?" said the second, as he stood up in time to be shot in the neck.

Aerosols are blamed for 125 deaths a year.

McGahen-Graham Nuptial Vows Pledged At Candlelight Service

Nuptial vows were exchanged Saturday evening in Calvary Baptist Church, Pampa, by Miss Karen Sue McGahen of that city and Randy Graham Cook of Hereford. The Rev. Dave Adkins, pastor of First Southern Baptist Church, Fritch, performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGahen of Pampa. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.G. Cook of 509 Willow Lane.

Two mistral candelabra entwined with greenery were flanked by large bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums on pedestals at the altar. Foliage highlighted by yellow pompon mums decorated a rainbow candelabrum before the kneeling bench. Yellow roses clasped with white bows worked the sanctuary pews.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Linda Branham of Monahans with other bridesmaids Miss Kay Wylie of Dodge City, Kans., and Miss Pamela Looper of Pampa. The bride's cousin, Angela Phillips of Pampa, was flower girl. Ricky Cook saved his brother as best man. Britt Brown of Claude and Richard Mills of Canyon were groomsmen and ushers. Head usher was Dicky McGahen, brother of the bride. Another of the bridegroom's brothers, Robby Cook, lighted candles during chiming of the hour by the organist, Mrs. A.L. Phillips, the bride's aunt. Mrs. Phillips accompanied Randy Land of Amarillo, who performed the wedding prayer, "Bless This House." Processional selections included "O Promise Me" and "Bridal Chorus." "The Wedding March" was the traditional recessional. Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal satin gown of Victorian design. The gored, fitted bodice was fashioned from heirloom lace embroidered with seed pearls and tapered to a point at the centerfront waist. It was edged with a lace ruffle which also trimmed the high fluted neckline, entwined with satin ribbon lacing. The full bishop sleeves of silk organza and elbow-length fitted cuffs of heirloom lace outlined with seed pearls and were caught at the wrists with deep lace ruffles falling over her hands. The A-line skirt swept to back fullness and cascaded into a full chapel train. Rose appliques of lace and seed pearls adorned the skirt and banded the scalloped lace hemline. Her three-tiered veil of bridal illusion, styled with a camelot cap of lace and seed pearls, fell to waist-length and swept down over the long train. Yellow sweetheart roses, miniature white carnations, stephanotis and babybreath formed the cascading bridal bouquet, from which she drew two long-stemmed roses, one each for her mother and Mrs. Cook. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length lime green dress designed with a jacket. Mrs. McGahen was attired in a carpet-length floral sheer over a long black knit dress. Each wore a corsage of yellow orchids. Bridesmaids were clad in floor-length dresses of yellow dacron dotted Swiss with bodices patterned identically to the bride's. Lace ruffles edged the flounce and short bouffant sleeves. They carried nosegays of yellow and white daisies and babybreath tied with ribbon streamers. Matching flowers formed their hairpieces. The flower girl, in a dress similar to those worn by bridal attendants, carried a basket of yellow and white daisies and babybreath and donned a matching floral hairpiece. Traditional piano selections were provided by Mrs. Phillips during a reception in the church Fellowship Hall after the wedding.

Yellow roses, green leaves and scrolls of frosting decorated the three-tier cake which was topped with white love birds. An epergne filled with yellow tapers, daisies and roses centered the serving table which was draped with floor-length white satin. Presiding at the table were the bride's aunt, Mrs. Fran McGahen of Borger; Suzanne Buck and Rene Pilcher, both of Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Myrel Looper, Mrs. Robert Reddell and Mrs. S.E. Cole, all of Pampa. Alice Armstrong of Panhandle, registered guests. The couple will reside here after a wedding trip to the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Chili Bean Sauce Gives Beefburgers Spicy Western Zip

Give your next round of burgers a zesty western topping that will quickly round up the gang. All the hands of the house will go for these hefty flavor-packed burgers.

All it takes to turn ordinary catsup into a zippy sauce is a touch of chili powder and onion, says Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. When the sauce is fortified with red or pinto beans and used to top beefburgers, it's mighty good.

Beany Beefburgers
2 to 3 pounds ground beef
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup catsup
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 can (16 ounces) red or pinto beans, drained
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely

chopped green pepper
6 to 8 split hamburger buns
Combine ground beef, salt and pepper and shape into 6 to 8 patties 1/2 inch thick. Combine catsup and chili powder in saucepan. Add beans, onion and green pepper and heat slowly 5 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Place patties on grill 3 inches above ash-covered coals and broil 3 to 4 minutes on one side. Turn and continue cooking 5 to 8 minutes longer, depending upon degree doneness desired. Place beef patties on bottoms of hamburger buns and top each with 3 to 4 tablespoons hot bean sauce. Place bun tops over sauce. 6 to 8 servings.

Double-Ring Ceremony Performed Saturday

The marriage of Miss Deborah Anne Evans of Hereford and George Truett Borden of Farwell was solemnized Saturday evening in First Baptist Church at White Deer. The Rev. Phillip G. Carpenter of Plainview officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

A fourth-grade teacher at Tierra Blanca Elementary School, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Edward Evans of White Deer. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Truett M. Borden of Grady, N.M., is engaged in farming.

The setting for the candlelight ceremony was a large branched candelabrum flanked by smaller spiral and branched candelabra entwined with greenery. Matching ivy and lighted tapers enhanced the chancel railing. Each end of the prayer bench was marked with large baskets of white spring flowers. The bridal aisle and pews were donated by white satin bows.

Mrs. Kenneth Gardner of Eagle Nest, N.M., served her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Miss Rachel Borden of Grady, and Miss Phyllis Gerdson.

Best man responsibilities were filled by Jerri Weddush of Muleshoe while groomsmen duties were filled by the bridegroom's brothers, Kim Borden of Plainview and Walter Borden of Grady.

Escorting guests to their seats were the bride's brother, Ed Evans of White Deer, and Kenneth Gardner of Eagle Nest.

The daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Phillip Carpenter, Camille Carpenter appeared as the flower girl and was escorted by Master John Browning, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Browning of Plainview. Both of the children are cousins of the bride.

Master Scott Kelly was ring bearer; he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kelly of Amarillo. Another of the bridegroom's brothers, Philip Borden of Grady, lighted the candles at the altar.

Miss Frieda Heron of Amarillo sang "Whither Thou Goest," "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the service. She was accompanied by Mrs. Douglas Smith of Panhandle, the bride's cousin, at the organ.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of imported white satin designed with a fitted bodice and sheer yoke of English net bordered with Venice lace. Scallops of lace formed the Victorian neckline.

The sleeves of sheer Swiss organdy were closely fitted and tapered to lace points over the wrists, accented by tiny, self-covered buttons. A narrow band of Venice lace in floral pattern edged the full chapel train and A-line skirt, which was embellished by inserts of organdy outlined in lace. Floral appliques highlighted the center of each inset.

A matching floral motif adorned the camelot cap, which suspended the tiered veil of bridal illusion cascading over the train. For good luck, she wore a gold wedding band which had belonged to her great-grandmother. Platanopsis orchids and stephanotis formed the cascading bridal bouquet.

Floor-length gowns of white eyelet were worn by bridal attendants. Ruching formed the high neckline and encircled the wrists on the long, fitted sleeves. Venice lace threaded with apricot-colored satin ribbon decorated the waistband.

Each ensemble was complemented by a large picture hat of apricot hue. They carried colonial styled nosegays of apricot-colored roses and carnations.

The newlyweds were honored after the candlelight ceremony at a reception in Memorial Parlor of the church.

The all-white wedding cake was built in seven tiers and crowned with a small nosegay of roses and carnations in the bride's chosen colors. Centering the serving table was a tree of imported crystal, bearing tiny baskets filled with miniature apricot roses and carnations. Draping the table was a French organdy cloth with linen embroidery.

Serving refreshments from silver appointments were the bride's aunts, Mrs. J.L. Browning, and Mrs. Phillip Carpenter, both of Plainview.

Pale blue antique satin covered the groom's table, which offered a chocolate cake decorated with small sugared marzipan fruit. Borden's great-aunt, Mrs. Bernard Sabean Jr. of Garland, served the cake while Mrs. L.A. Corcoran of Garland, the groom's aunt, presided at the copper coffee service.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to points of interest in New Mexico and Colorado, Mrs. Borden wore a three-piece white suit with matching accessories. White orchids lifted from the bridal bouquet were her corsage.

The couple will be at home at Farwell after June 14.

Employed by Hereford Independent School System, Mrs. Borden received a bachelor of science degree in elementary education from Wayland Baptist College at Plainview where she was listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" and "Spinning Wheels."

Borden attended Wayland and West Texas State University.

The bridegroom's parents were host and hostess at the rehearsal dinner at Jim's Steak House, Pampa, prior to the ceremony.

Wedding solos, including "More," "The Lord's Prayer" and "Follow Me" were vocalized by Larry Kuper and "All of My Life" was sung by Miss Amy Cox. Mrs. Allen Evers provided accompaniment at the organ.

Scalloped lace formed a deep border above a shallow flounce around the hemline of the full circular skirt which swept into a chapel train.

A Juliet capulet of pearl-encrusted lace caught the veil of bridal illusion which was edged in lace and fell over a long panel veil which drifted beyond her

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Juliet style gown of white silk organza combined with Alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls and antiqued Brussels lace. The moulded bodice was fashioned with a yoked neckline of sheer lace with a high Duchess collar of Brussels lace. A cameo motif was outlined in seed pearls in the center of the yoke, which was appliqued with beaded Alencon lace. The V-waistline was accented by lace outlined in pearls.

Full-blown Juliet sleeves of Brussels lace blossomed from caps of Alencon lace and were shirred to deep cuffs clasped with button and loop closures. A lace ruffle trimmed the cuffs, flaring over her hands.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, baby breath and English ivy, which rested on a bride's Bible.

The bridegroom wore a white tuxedo with black velvet collar and lapel and white ruffled shirt with black accents on the ruffles. His boutonniere was a white rose and stephanotis.

Bridal attendants wore gowns styled similarly to the bride's. Each was attired in a pastel shade: Miss Johnson in pink, Mrs. Nunley in mint green, Miss Stevens in baby blue, Miss Schwertner in lemon yellow and Miss Sanders in peach.

Their dresses were made of soft flowing jersey with yokes of Brussels lace and scalloped duchess collars. An embroidered cameo design was focal point on each yoke. High rise bodices were complemented with full, gored skirts and long sleeves.

Completing the ensembles were white crocheted hats interwoven with ribbons to match each individual dress. Mixed spring flowers in pastel hues were combined in their nosegays.

Lavender jersey gowns trimmed in lace with empire waistlines, cameo necklines and caplet sleeves were worn by candlelighters. Pastel spring flowers were clasped to their wrists and they had matching floral hairpieces.

Pink and white gingham checked gowns with white eyelet pinafores were worn by flowergirls. Pink gingham appliques shaped like roses accented the waistlines of the outer garments, which had scalloped hemlines. They wore headpieces created from the cloth roses and white silk forget-me-nots and carried baskets of pink rose petals.

The bride's mother was attired in a formal gown of peach-colored fiesta jersey styled with empire bodice and overlaid with layers of Venetian Gros on the bodice and deep cuffs. She had white accessories.

A long coat dress of nylon lace over knit in turquoise blue was selected for the ceremony by the bridegroom's mother. The full, sleeveless dress was patterned with a redingote which was clasped at the waist with ornamental frog fasteners.

Gardenia corsages were presented to mothers of the couple.

At a reception in Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room, the newlyweds and their parents greeted guests who were registered by Miss Frankie Wells.

A silver epergne with lighted tapers and pastel flowers centered the bride's table which was covered with a white tulle skirt over satin with a lace runner. A nosegay of spring flowers capped the four-tiered white bridal cake.

Outdoor Cooking is Flameless and Clean with an Electric Grill

An electric grill eliminates the need for charcoal, flame starters and smoky fires. You enjoy the charred flavor of grilled steaks and hamburgers without the charcoal chores mess.

When you buy an electric grill or its ideal companion, a lightweight portable refrigerator, be sure they're made by a reputable manufacturer and backed by a guarantee. Read instruction books carefully and follow directions. And be sure they carry the Underwriters' Laboratories symbol of safety.

You can buy your electric outdoor grill from Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, plus we can give you suggestions for saving money and electricity. Remember, electricity is too good to waste.

Caviness Packing Company, P.O. Box 790, Hereford, Texas 79045, has applied to the Texas Water Quality Board for a permit for an amendment to permit No. 01261 pertaining to process-generated wastewater and any amount of rainfall runoff containing wastes from its meat processing plant which is located approximately two (2) miles west of the City of Hereford, on the south side of U.S. Highway 60, in Deaf Smith County, Texas. There will be no discharge to the surface waters of the State. A Hearing Commission of the Texas Water Quality Board will hold a public hearing on this application at 10:00 a.m., July 10, 1975, Municipal Building Conference Room C, Amarillo, Texas.

to receive evidence on the conditions, if any, under which the amended permit may be issued, and to determine whether State Certification in accordance with Section 401 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 may be issued. Preliminary information available to the staff of the Texas Water Quality Board indicates that a waste discharge conforming to the conditions in the proposed permit would not unreasonably impair the quality of waters in the State.

The hearing may be continued from time to time and place to place, if necessary, to develop all relevant evidence bearing on the subject of the hearing. Further information concerning any aspect of the discharge, if available, may be obtained by writing the Texas Water Quality Board, P.O. Box 13246, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711. S-46-1c

ALL AMERICA WINNERS, rose selections. Do not become discouraged. If roses do not respond and there is trouble with insects. Just keep on trying and be sure to add at least one or more roses to your garden. The following are the new selections:
"America" is a real delight when in full flower. It is really new as it is the first climber rose selected, by the AA Rose Society in 18 years. Color is salmon with a beautiful sheen and blossoms measure 3 1/2 to 4 inches. It is full petaled, and recommended especially for its continuous blooms. Also noted because it is an excellent keeper and lasts exceptionally well in arrangements. Was bred by an American, William Warren of California.
Its parentage is exceptional-
Peace, Crimson Glory, Don Juan, New Dawn and Fragrant Cloud. The combination has produced a real winner, which will be noted for many attributes, one of which is the spicy fragrance. Has been listed as a true Bicentennial choice.
"Cathedral" is a Floribunda with large buds. When open it is ruffled and the color is a rich golden apricot. Large clusters of 7 to 9 flowers. Has continuous blooming period, extra strong Basal branching, excellent border planting because of low growth pattern. Luxurious dark green foliage, which is a real eye catcher. It will become a great favorite for these many attributes, along with its fresh tangy fragrance. Also has a full, good parentage.
"Seashell" is a hybrid tea, truly a great selection by the AARS. Three inch flowers of a rich blend of peach and salmon pink (reminds one of the famous Camelot rose) base of bloom is a delicate yellow. Could almost be classed as a bicolor. Its upright growth, with heat tolerance, known to be resistant to black-spot...all giving it real winning qualities. Its parentage, of course is the producing factor. They are Peace, Korde, Perfecto, Tro-

THE ROSE "Sunrise, sunset, the colors flame and go...How to catch and keep that glory, the rose alone doth know"...Rita Heyden.
June is the month for roses, in their beauty. There is not a flower grown in our gardens which gives more satisfaction than the rose. We are having a bit of trouble this spring with thrips, but they can be controlled. To do so, remove all the faded flowers and the buds which are starting to open, as well as the open blossoms. Place these in a container, put in a paper bag and throw into the dumpster, or, if you are situated so that you can, burn them.
After having done this, spray generously with a recommended rose spray- malathion, Sevin or the spray you have used and found satisfactory. Add a new dressing of peat moss, after having fed them either with a liquid spray or via roots. If the latter, the water thoroughly (slowly) and be patient; soon there will be new blossoms.
It would be wise to check other opened blossoms for thrips and other insects. I found there are several insects which are harming the roses, but thrips are doing the most harm. If you do not recognize them, pull a partially opened bud, place a black piece of paper underneath the rose bud, and open it, removing all the petals. Gently shake pod over the black paper or other black material, and there will be many tiny grey insects swarming on the paper. They are a real plant enemy and can hide away causing a lot of harm.
Soon gladioli will be starting their flower stald and when the blossom buds show, it is wise to check them for thrips; they really do like glads. They can be controlled in a measure by soaking the corms, for your second or third planting which can be made through the 15th of July) in a disinfectant, or use an insecticide on the soil where the corms are to be planted.
These same tiny enemies did harm to the Dutch iris and other early spring flowers. One way to learn about the damage is to check the cut flowers, which are brought in the house for arrangements, or to be made into corsages. The flowers do not hold up in infested with thrips.

GARDEN PROBLEMS It is obvious that the gardener has problems; one of which is Rose Black Spot. This is a leaf disease and can be found by the black soft fungus on the leaves. If you are interested in seeing these winners in growth and production, visit one of the 114 American display gardens where they are grown.
If rain follows your spraying, then it will be necessary to repeat, especially when the wind is not blowing. This is an early morning chore, which brings best results. Foliage should be dry when remedy is applied.
It is advisable to remember that there are plant diseases and there are two kinds of insects which attack plants. Before applying a remedy, know what you are fighting. Inspect plants carefully and diagnose, then apply remedy.

First, it is best to keep plants in good, healthy condition, and they will not be so susceptible to the above mentioned enemies. To attain this, it is recommended that the best plants be purchased, if not home grown. If planted, then select recommended seeds from a reputable company.
Quality is what we seek in gardening. It is a good character builder for us too, as it teaches patience, understanding, knowledge and perseverance. The gardener who is consistent, and has an appreciation of nature (with all its quirks and turns) will win in the long run.

REMEMBER, within these plants, there sleeps a wealth of beauty, waiting upon the sun's warm kiss, to blossom forth into the world. 'Tis a miracle of joy and a reward for the true Gardener. GLAD.

P.S. I had a wonderful visit with the four Manjeots and was really a pleasure to pick gardenias, pansies, roses and other garden flowers and arrange them for our enjoyment.
Lloyd Sr. is a "lover" of African Violets... (has grown them in many countries successfully) and he had three of the most beautiful plants I have ever seen grown. They were like huge "nosegays" resplendent with color, and form: His collection was in my bedroom and each day they were a real delight.

The Cancer Battle

After three and a half years of massive spending, following former President Nixon's declaration of war against cancer almost five years ago, there is wide controversy over results obtained-and whether the considerable sums of money spent have been politically or wisely distributed.
There is a feeling among some that money alone, even lavish outlays of taxpayers' funds, will not necessarily solve the cancer riddle. And a number of prominent scientists believe that large sums of money have been spent for the wrong purposes in the wrong places.
It seems that, unlike conquering the moon, the answer to cancer cannot be quickly bought.

Careful selection of foods is especially important during pregnancy because a mother's nutrition directly affects her baby's health. Nutrients are necessary for total development of the fetus. If the mother doesn't eat correctly while carrying the baby, the baby may be malnourished, resulting in low birth weight. This may keep brain growth from developing normally.

This child may grow slower, have more illnesses and have limitations in brain development and behavior as compared to the "normal" child at birth. A weight gain of about 20-24 pounds is generally recommended during pregnancy. This is not the time to diet or restrict calories and needed nutrients.

Need for most nutrients rises about 30 per cent above normal during the second three months and climbs to about 50 per cent above normal during last three months of pregnancy. But calorie needs do not increase this much - only about 200 calories during the last three months.

Those nutrients needing particular attention during pregnancy are energy (calories), protein, folic acid, iron and calcium. Many physicians recommend routine vitamin and mineral supplements. Sodium intake for healthy pregnant women should not be routinely discouraged. The normal changes during pregnancy increase the requirement for this mineral.

Follow a food plan that can be adapted to fit cultural, economic and personal needs and tastes. Additional calories should be obtained from foods in this plan-it's best to avoid foods containing calories with few other nutrients.

Mild Group-three or more cups of fortified skim, lowfat or whole mild or cheese equivalent.

Meat Group-two or more servings (two-three ounce cooked) of lean meat, fish or poultry or meat alternate including dried beans and eggs.

Fruit-Vegetable Group-four or more servings (one-half cup) including one dark leafy or deep yellow and one citrus or other food rich in Vitamin C.

Bread-Cereal Group-four or more servings enriched breads and cereals.

WITH THE FOOD preservation season just around the corner, I'd like to remind you that we have a good supply of resource books available at your request. Two of the most popular ones we have on hand, include: Frozen Foods and Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables. A 4-H CLOTHING Workshop will be held Thursday and Friday, June 12th and 13th at the Bull Barn. All interested 4-H members, ages 9-19, should be there at 9 a.m. on the 12th. Call our office for more details.

MOST OF TODAY'S comics for children relate adventure and noble deeds, rather than comedy. Since comics are stories told in pictures, they should be evaluated like other children's literature.

Children read comics for many reasons: they identify with the comic characters and gain an insight to their own emotional problems. Comics

Beauty Spots Chosen

Homemakers Participate In Program

Highlighting the summer phase of the local homemaking program Thursday at La Plata Junior High School was a class entitled "Patio Fun" which emphasized the use of the electric ice cream freezer and the char-grill. Mrs. Bryan Bim and Mildred Prince, home economists with Southwestern Public Service, demonstrated the uses.

Advisors for the summer program are Mrs. M.T. Burismith and Mrs. Joe Bradley.

Enrolled in the program are 30 adults, including local Young Homemakers of Texas appeal to the child's imagination and his curiosity about the supernatural.

In serial form, comics give children a sense of timing and something to look forward to. They offer children a temporary escape from humdrum routine; comics are easy to read, inexpensive and often motivate a child to read more. Comics have characters with which children can identify. The art is colorful and simple enough to understand.

Appeal of certain comics is related to children's ages. Preschoolers' favorites are Walt Disney characters or animals that dress and talk like people. But comics with terror have little or no appeal to young ones.

In late childhood, children like comics about heroes and heroines. Boys tend to prefer adventure, success over crime and violence, sports and humor. Girls enjoy comics about women, children and animals and are less interested in adventure, mystery and thrills than boys. Research studies indicate that boys tend to read comics more than girls. Visual materials such as comics have more appeal than books to slow learners, who also concentrate on certain kinds of comics.

Families Cutback To Cope With the Inflation Battle

For many months now Americans caught between the jaws of inflation and recession have been trying to cope with the problem of maintaining their standards of living. It has been a losing battle.

A recent poll, for example, found that Americans are spending more time at home, eating in restaurants less, giving fewer gifts and shopping more frequently for sale bargains and discounts.

Budgeting, savings, working wives, part-time jobs—all these strategems people are following in their fight to hold onto their life-styles.

Americans apparently are not aware that managing household expenses is only part of the story. Americans spend far more in taxes to pay for their share of the high costs of government than they spend on food, housing, utilities, transportation or recreation.

And taxes are going up the swiftest!

The Department of Labor recently reported that the cost of supporting a family in the United States rose a record family, the increase was from $8,200 a year to $9,199; for an intermediate-budget family, the rise was $12,600 to $14,333, and for high-budget family, from $18,200 to $20,777. Taxes accounted for the largest increase in all three budgets. Security taxes rose by 21.5 per cent and personal income taxes by 26 per cent.

The federal budget for fiscal 1975, which starts July 1, when finally agreed upon by the Congress, will cost upwards of $4,886 per household in the United States, depending on how much actual spending exceeds President Ford's original budget estimates.

Perhaps, instead of directing all their wrath at supermarkets, Americans should aim some of it elsewhere.

Let your representatives in Congress know how you feel about ever-rising taxes. The life-style you save may be your own.

Dawn School Dismantled

By KERRIE WOMBLE
Women's editor

Residents of the Dawn area are in the final stages of tearing down the small school building which was built in 1921, renovated in 1927 and finally served as a community meeting place.

However, now that the structure stands in the shadow of a new and modern community center, it is falling in the wake of progress. More than 30 men have volunteered this past month for the dismantling project.

The abandoned school was the fourth facility for learning established at Dawn, with the first being built at the turn of the century. In 1903, that original building was moved 1 1/2 miles west and 2 miles north to the community's current location. However, it burned down shortly after the change when a tramp started an accidental fire which spread to the prairie and took half a day to extinguish.

The next school was based in the north room of the old Walker home where Miss Ida Bourland taught 12 pupils. In 1904, the enrollment had dwindled to eight students who were taught by Miss Millicent Griffith. It was eventually discontinued.

W.E. Neal of Lawrenceville, Ill. pioneered numerous improvements at Dawn and in 1916, he donated land for erection of another schoolhouse. Miss Myrtle Vore of Springlake was the first teacher there.

It was five years later when the two-room school (which is now being demolished) was constructed. The little system flourished and two more rooms were added in 1927 when Dawn, Askren and Rice communities unified their education programs into one site. However, most of the students were gradually absorbed into the mushrooming schools at Hereford. The building was then used as a location for community gatherings until the current center was raised.

Formal open house ceremonies at the new facility are tentatively scheduled as soon as a few minor alterations are completed.

President Ford told bipartisan congressional leaders that he reviewed confidential records of the Nixon administration and found no evidence of any secret agreement between Washington and Saigon.

Comings And Goings At King's Manor

By FAY GAUGGEL
King's Manor Reporter

Fay Gauggel visited a niece and husband, the Fletcher Nesbitts in Comanche, Texas for two weeks recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker Watkins of Ralls visited Mrs. Ruby McLaughlin, Mrs. Audrey Heard, Mrs. Emma Beaird, Mrs. Roxie Travis and Mrs. Ruby Jennings.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bates Jennings from Muleshoe and their daughter Tamara and husband Edsardo Gonzales and small daughter Tanya from Mexico City, Mexico were Sunday visitors of their mother, grandmother and great grandmother, Mrs. Ruby Jennings and their aunt, Mrs. Roxie Travis.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Evans received a copy of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary

News for May 1975. On the third page appeared a picture of Wayne Evans, their son with seven other persons on the faculty, who have been voted as 1975 Outstanding Educators of America.

On Thursday morning sixteen Manor residents visited the museum. Many interesting experiences were recalled of "life in the good old days" as the different displays were viewed. Thanks to Mrs. Gilliland, James, Sears, and McBride for their time in explaining many objects and making us feel so welcome.

We then drove through the Southwestern Feed Lots. Several had never seen so many cattle in one place at one time.

The Polk Street Methodist Church retreat center overlooking the valley just north of Canyon, provided the location for the spending of our lunch. The fried chicken and baked beans along with all the trimmings was enjoyed by all. There were about 10 members attending and about 20 third graders in a school chorus. Mrs. Don Davidson was Master of Ceremonies.

CIRCLE MEETING

The Alice Ward Circle of United Methodist Women met in Lamar Garden room on Tuesday afternoon. Circle leader, Mrs. Grant Hanna presiding. Mrs. Hanna called on Mrs. Nora Gillis to open with prayer.

Mrs. Lena Pryor read minutes which were adopted. Then she reported briefly on our financial status. Mrs. Alma Cross reported cards mailed as needed. Then Mrs. Hanna gave a statement as to the June, July and August meetings.

Mrs. Don Davidson introduced our beloved Mrs. Grooms who gave us a thought provoking talk on the subject of time. She spoke first in general.

All people have to deal with time in modern day living. Watches, clocks, schedules and procrastination were mentioned and the very sobering thought that lost time can never be recaptured.

She quoted others as follows: Marcus Aurelius said do not write correspondents saying there wasn't time to answer letters because actually we make time to do the things we want to do. Brother Lawrence said "Keep in time with the Universe" (Could he have been thinking of "When the Morning Stars sang together?"), and take time for the growing of the soul. The preacher, in wisdom literature of the Bible, said "There is a time for all things" (Ecclesiastes Chapter 3). We are either a conqueror or a victim of time.

The speaker recommended two books for personal meditation - "Eventide" and "God Calling" written by two women who, wishing to remain anonymous, called themselves "The Listeners."

In closing we were admonished to choose beauty over ugliness, to look beyond and find radiant moments as time passes.

A closing moment was spent as Mrs. Don directed our thoughts in prayer for our own Lonnie Hutton and family as we consider the tragic illness of Mr. Leroy Hutton.

There were 24 members in attendance.

CLUB PARTY

The Friona Study Club made its annual trek to King's Manor and entertained us with their May program, as usual. Mrs. John Benger, club president, was introduced.

There were about 10 members attending and about 20 third graders in a school chorus. Mrs. Don Davidson was Master of Ceremonies.

Mrs. Benger asked all adults in the audience to rise, in turn, and tell a happy recollection of mother. This done, the chorus, trained, led and accompanied on piano by music teacher Mrs. Lee Witten, swung into action.

Little girls in long frilly dresses and carrying Easter baskets, marched as their director played and sang "The Easter Parade." About ten little boys then joined the girls on the stage as they sang "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You" and "Take Me Out To The Ball Game."

They all sang an acrostic "M-O-T-H-E-R A Word that Means the World to Me." Then Disney's "Everybody Wants to Be a Cat," and "Surrey with the Fringe on Top" (Oklahoma). Some Religious favorites, "The Good Old Summer Time" and "Tie a Yellow Ribbon Around the Old Oak Tree." They reached their height of excellence as they knelt, folded hands and did Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer". They looked like cherubs and cherubim in a Michaelangelo.

Mrs. Witten's rhythmic hands and strong personality pervaded the atmosphere so one could plainly see she had established a splendid relationship between leader and performers. Personally it made us misty-eyed with nostalgia for the old days in school. Thanks to singers and director-accompanist.

Mrs. Joe Moyer gave a closing prayer, after which we gathered around the punch bowls where Mes. Ellis Tatum and Ed White were hostesses.

We laud and salute the Friona Study Club. Please return.

Evadne Cox had her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dill, Mike, David and Brad from Fort Morgan, Colorado, as guests on Tuesday. With their was an exchange student from Greece, Harry Patsos, who has been living in their home this past winter as he attended high school, graduating in May.

Harry has been admitted to the Colorado School of Mines, Golden, Colorado. After a short visit to his homeland, he will return and begin study in some field of engineering.

Mrs. Jessie Boardman was visited by Mrs. David Rickles and children from Tulsa, Okla. She was treated to a picnic in the park and a shopping excursion in Hereford.

Mrs. Ruby Hewitt was visited by a cousin from Morton, Mrs. Lillie Steed, and a niece and her husband, the O.W. Snelling's from Modesta, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. Snelling have had a lot of experience with nursing homes in California. They mentioned that King's Manor - Westgate Nursing Unit was the nicest nursing unit they had visited. They were here on a business trip.

Mrs. Virgil Toles had a granddaughter, Mrs. Lynn Frost, and a little granddaughter from San Jon, N.M. this week.

Jim Shaw was welcomed by all gentlemen this week as he gave them their usual free hair cut.

Mrs. Edna Lippard visited relatives in Dimmitt this past week. She attended church services on Sunday in Dimmitt where she taught a Sunday School Class for about ten years.

Mrs. Emma Payne visited her sister, Mrs. W.R. Franklin, in Canyon this weekend. She was visited by various other friends and relatives while there.

The Ancil Greenways and daughter and their pianist Mrs. Dorothy Troxell gave their time Tuesday for a chapel program, which is a weekly feature at the home.

There were four birthday friends honored at Westgate's monthly party on Wednesday. They were: Fred Blakey, Gertrude Probasco, Clara Williams and Emma Woods.

The Friendship Sunday School Class of the United Methodist Church of Friona furnished the refreshments for the birthday party. Assisting with the program and refreshments were Mrs. Lillie Gaye Gee, Mrs. Sharon White, Mrs. Tommy Mercer, Mrs. Lewis Gorge and Mrs. Fay Reeves.

A group of second graders and two kindergartners' children gave a singing program with Mrs. Sharon White directing. Everyone enjoyed the birthday party.

Bible School Will Begin Tomorrow

Children between the ages of 2-11 years old are invited to attend Bible school classes Monday-Friday at First United Presbyterian Church.

Bible study, craft projects and games are scheduled during the sessions, which will be from 9-11 a.m. each day this week. Church members as well as other youngsters in the community are welcome to participate.
