Garment Firm To Hold News Conference Friday

Hereford has landed another new industry!

manufactures a name-brand line of women's sportswear.

A major company in the garment industry has selected bustling Hereford as the site for a new plant, according to a report Saturday morning from Dickie Gerles, chairman of the industrial development committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the local industrial development team were very impressed with the firm's financial strength, according to Gerles. He added that the company's board of directors met this week and agreed on Hereford as the site for a new plant.

Formal announcement of the details to be worked out between the company and the industrial development team are expected to come at a news conference Friday.

Five members of the industrial team went to Dallas Wednesday to meet with company officials. These included Gerles, Emory Brownlow, Tom Burdett, Ken Rogers, and Jake Webb.

Tentative negotiations call for the local industrial foundation to construct a building and sign a 10-year lease with the firm. The company is expected to employ as many as 150 women as sewing machine operators.

The industrial committee has selected a tentative site on which to locate the plant. Plans for activating the local industrial foundation are also expected to be announced this coming week.

The potential availability of the women employees was one of the company's prime considerations in selecting Hereford. The firm has seven plants in operation at present, so this will be the eighth in Hereford. The company has been in business since 1944 and

The company, with headquarters in Dallas, had total sales of approximately $22 million for the year ending March, 1975. This compares to sales of $13 million for the previous year. The firm markets its lines in 46 states from 3,200 different accounts--no one of which accounts for more than one percent of sales.

Hereford Men Say Income Tax Method of Farmland Deleted

Two Hereford men were in Austin this week to give area support in protesting current proposals to tax farmland on the income or productivity method. Roy Hartman, school superintendent, and Jim McMorris, tax appraiser consultant for the school, county and city, came back with an optimistic report. "We believe we've stopped the productivity aspect of the proposed financing bills," said McMorris. Three of the bills which took the productivity approach on ag land have been consolidated and amended, he added.

BOTH MEN THINK that authors of the bills have agreed that land for ag use should not be valued higher than the fair market value. However, the local men are still not satisfied with the proposal, in that grazing land and timber land is still on the productivity approach. "I think we have convinced some of the legislators that the productivity approach on farmland is nothing more than an income tax on the ag producer," Hartman stated. "What they don't seem to realize is that rangeland and timber land would go on the tax rolls for practically nothing under this method." Local taxing officials and the ag committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce have been active in presenting their views against the income capitalization method of tax valuation of farmland. They feel that supporters of the proposal didn't see the inequities of the bill. Some farmland in the area would probably be valued at up to $1,200 per acre under the provisions. McMorris said he believes High Plains farmers will not protest a fair, equitable tax over the state. "They do not want to sit still for a discriminatory valuation that would put their land above market value."

HARTMAN MET with several hundred school superintendents while in Austin. They discussed the various proposals on school financing, and he said it was the consensus that the governor's bill was unacceptable. "We think the governor's stand on 'no new taxes' could mean that the local tax load would have to be increased tremendously," Hartman said. School chiefs also agreed that the ad valorem tax had reached its limits in all school districts. School leaders, as well as other state officials, seem to agree that an additional one per cent state sales tax, earmarked for education, would be the most equitable way to provide funds, said Hartman. This would increase the sales tax from 5 to 6 per cent, if such a move was approved.

McMorris and Hartman met with administrative assistants in Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's office while in Austin, and conferred with Speaker Bill Clayton and other legislators.

MCMORRIS SAID it appeared to him that HB-1463 is headed for passage in both houses. This is the bill that would establish a system of single, countywide appraisals of property for all property tax purposes. The bill also provides for the administration and enforcement of the act. The bill would provide for a state "Property Appraisal Division" with a director appointed by the comptroller. The director would outline methods of determining fair market value and specify rules to be followed in appraising property. The act also requires training and certification of appraisers. The bill also provides for a county board of adjustment, consisting of nine members appointed by the governing bodies of the county and city. The commissioners court is named the board of equalization.

Paving Bids Top Commissioners Agenda

Advertisement of bids for County Bull Barn parking lot paving is one of the varied items on the agenda for Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court meeting at 10 a.m. Monday.

The court is to set the percentage of property valuation for tax purposes in the county for next year; presently the valuation is set at 24 per cent.

Quotations are to be heard on the cost of a new air conditioning unit for the courthouse, and purchase of new courthouse drapes will be discussed. Lighting for the basement of the County Library will be another topic for discussion, as will a raise of room rates on

Important Arrival

Hereford Hustlers, right, greet Mrs. Bill Hobby, wife of the Lieutenant Governor, center, and Mrs. Kent Hance, wife of the state senator from Lubbock, after they arrived at the Hereford Municipal Airport Friday. Mrs. Hobby Designates County Museum Displays As Heritage '76 Exhibits

By BOBBY TEMPLETON

As gusts of wing whipped up the dust on the ground, a small twin engine plane swooped down from the sky Friday morning bringing to Hereford's Municipal Airport the state's most prominent citizen to visit here this year.

That citizen was Mrs. Bill Hobby, the president of the Bicentennial Association of Texas and the wife of the state Lieutenant Governor. She dazzled the local elite gathered to greet her at the airport and honored them and the rest of the town by designating three of the exhibits at the county museum as Heritage '76 displays.

The displays are the general store, the museum chapel and an American Indian artifacts exhibit.

After a warm welcome from the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Hustlers, Mrs. Hobby was driven to the county museum where she was taken on a tour of all the exhibits. The museum was open all day for an open house during which more than the usual number of citizens viewed the memorabilia collected from the early origins of county and town.

Responding impressively to the museum tour, the state Bicentennial president formally designated the exhibits along with Mrs. Max Sherman, wife of the Amarillo state senator, and Mrs. Kent Hance, wife of the Lubbock state senator.

The women and other notable out-of-town guests were hosted by Mrs. Ruby Kendrick Sears, chairman of the county museum board of directors, as well as other local dignitaries. Present at the museum were County Judge Sam Morgan, Criminal District Attorney Andy Shuval, Lois Gilliland, museum director, Bill Albright, executive vice-president of the C of C, and other members of the county bicentennial organization.

Others from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woodburn, members of the Texas Historical Commission and Foundation; Dr. James Hanson, executive director of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum; Mrs. Eileen Johnson, staff member of The Museum, Texas Tech; Vance Holliday and Roney Thompson, Texas Tech staff members working on the Lubbock Lake Project.

Co-chairmen of the local bicentennial organization are Mrs. Joe Reinauer Sr. and Mrs. Clint Formby.

They and about 100 representatives of Hereford clubs and organizations attended an invitation-only luncheon at the Civic Center at noon. There Mrs. Hobby delivered the key address in which she reviewed the bicentennial progress across the state and plans for the future.

One of the exhibits in particular drew Mrs. Hobby's attention. It was the chapel, which houses sacred symbols from 34 Hereford area churches. The first of these was the Cumberland Presbyterian Church at La Plata, which was organized in 1891.

THE INDIAN ARTIFACTS exhibit was explained to visitors by Dennis Lomas, who with his family were instrumental in gaining exhibits for the useum. He in particular helped with the Indian artifacts exhibit.

At the luncheon, Mrs. Hobby quoted statistics of the nation's growth over the past 100 years when the population was only 40 million persons. Among the problems which this nation has endured

Bank Call Indicates Stable Local Economy

The local economy is holding its own in the face of still an unhealthy national financial situation as indicated in the latest federal bank call.

Both Hereford banks are required to report deposits, loans, and total assets four times a year for each of the yearly quarters. The latest bank call was sent out as of April 16.

It shows that deposits of the banks are slightly below the last quarter of 1974 as well as lower than the first quarter of 1974.

Hereford State bank received $23,501,836.55 in deposits for the first quarter of 1975 comparing with $24,451,684.55 for the first quarter last year. The deposits in the last quarter period were reported at $24,076,191.86.

The First National Bank of Hereford reported deposits of $36,444,277.40 this quarter compared with $39,703,917.62 in the same period last year. The bank's last quarter deposits in 1974 were $42,331,164.20.

Loans for Hereford State were $9,817,219.07 as compared with the first quarter last year when they were $11,863,477.61. Total assets during the first quarter were $26,010,607.87, slightly below the $26,863,809.51 during the first quarter of 1974.

First National Bank reported loans of $25,685,708.86, about $3 million lower than the same period last year. The loans then were recorded at $28,868,943.19.

The bank's total assets this year are $42,321,372.27 during the first three months. Last year at the same time, the assets were $45,595,811.89.

The next bank call comes at the end of June.

Branding Time

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says enthusiasm with out knowledge is like running in the dark.

Everybody has 20/20 hindsight.

The industrial development committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce has been busy in recent weeks talking to prospects who might be thinking of new plant locations. We don't hear much of their work, as must be the case, but the news came this week that their efforts have paid off with the landing of a new company.

All signals are "go" for a new garment industry to be located here. Dickie Gerles, industrial committee chairman, is excited about the announcement and believes Hereford landed a solid firm with great potential. We'll be reporting more about the new plant when official announcement is made, probably next Friday.

The death of Dist. Judge Archie McDonald was mourned by many Hereford citizens. The judge was well liked in this community and made a host of friends.

His vacancy on the bench will be filled by appointment, and the governor is likely to seek the advice of lawyers in the district. With a bill in the Legislature proposing a new judicial district made up of Deaf Smith and Oldham counties, the local bar association is in a quandary about making a recommendation. If the bill seems likely to pass, the local bar

Corn Cleaning Plant Begins Operation Here

By JIM STEIERT
BRAND FARM WRITER

A 50-ton hour capacity corn cleaning plant has opened in Hereford.

Grain Handling Corp. of Hereford began cleaning corn at its new 27,000 sq. ft. facility located east of the city approximately three weeks ago, and is now shipping cleaned corn for food purposes from Hereford to points throughout the country.

According to Wister Clevenger, co-owner, the new plant has been constructed in a manner which will allow doubling of the equipment at the facility if the need should arise.

"THIS HEREFORD PLANT is about the largest cleaning facility I've heard of," Clevenger pointed out.

Grain Handling Corporation already operates a smaller cleaning plant in Hart, and Clevenger explained that the small plant was hard-pressed to stay up with the demand for cleaned corn, despite running 24 hours a day.

"We hope to eventually shift a lot of the cleaning load to our facility in Hereford so we can shut down our Hart plant and do some rebuilding there," said Clevenger.

According to Clevenger, the Hereford plant cleans about 40 per cent white and 60 per cent yellow corn.

CORN AT THE LOCAL plant is conveyed through a series of tanks and bins and into cleaners and graders where dirt, foreign matter and rocks are removed. After the corn is cleaned, it goes through a sizer which separates it for the use intended.

The yellow grain is then conveyed into "clean storage" bins, and loaded into railroad cars and trucks. Facilities are also available for sacking corn.

Movement of the corn is controlled from a console inside a 9800 sq. ft. building at the cleaning facility.

The cleaned corn is used for such foods as tortillas and hominy. Clevenger pointed out that a large portion of the cleaned corn is shipped to a major chip and snack producer.

Corn from the Hereford plant is sent to points throughout the country including the east and west coasts and cities in the southeast.

"Our Hereford corn really travels all over the country to feed people," Clevenger explained.

The local plant currently employs five, but may employ eight or nine workers at a later date.

Construction of the cleaning facilities, paving and other improvements at the site brought the total cost of the new cleaning plant to approximately $2 million, according to Clevenger.

Garland DePrang is associated with Clevenger as a co-owner of the plant.

In addition to its elevators and grain cleaning facilities in Hereford and Hart, Grain Handling Corp. also operates elevators at Olton and Hart Camp.

Checking The Product

Wister Clevenger, co-owner of Grain Handling Corp. checks out corn at a gravity grading table at the firm's new corn cleaning plant just east of the city. The facility began cleaning corn about two weeks ago and up to 50 tons of corn can be cleaned per hour. Clevenger pointed out that the Hereford facility is one of the largest he's heard of.

SUNFLOWERS ... Small seed, big potential

County Farmers Trying New Crop, - Sunflowers

By JIM STEIERT
BRAND FARM WRITER

EDITOR'S NOTE—Portions of the information used in the following article came from the booklet "Sunflower Production on the High and Rolling Plains of Texas," produced by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.)

Deaf Smith County farmers are trying a new crop this year, and that crop could prove ideal for dryland and short water areas under the right conditions. It's sunflowers.

Farmers in the county and surrounding areas have signed contracts to grow approximately 11,095 acres of sunflowers this year according to local sources, although the crop has never been raised commercially in the area.

SUNFLOWERS are an important source of vegetable oil and their by-products are used as feed supplements. The cultivated types are thought to be descendants of the common wild sunflower which is native to Texas. Trial plantings indicate that the yellow flowers have considerable potential as an oilseed crop in the Cotton Belt states and the High and Rolling Plains of Texas.

According to Bill Cornett, manager of Dawn Co-op, sunflower seeds are a tap root crop and do not require as much fertilizer or water as many other crops now grown in the area.

"Two irrigations would probably be sufficient for sunflowers after they're up, and they're fertilized like cotton. Dryland sunflowers could yield from 700-800 pounds of seed per acre and yields could reach 2,000 pounds of seed per acre under irrigation," Cornett said.

Joe Artho, manager of Hereford Grain Corp. estimated production costs for the yellow flowers approximately $65 per acre.

"THAT'S THE FIGURE that has been generally discussed in the meetings we have attended," said Artho.

Seed for local planting was brought in from Rumania according to Cornett.

"There are enough wild sunflowers here that they pose a problem in producing seed," he explained.

Sunflowers are planted on a seedbed prepared in the same manner as for corn, grain sorghum, soybeans or cotton.

Untreated seed is sold to local farmers in 25 pound sacks. Sunflower seed may be treated in the planter box with 1/2 ounce of Captan per 100 pounds. Isotox F, a combination of Captan and lindane has also been cleared for use on sunflowers.

Cornett pointed out that the sunflowers are planted much like corn with population of approximately 25,000 plants per acre. He estimated a time to maturity of 100-110 days.

"Flowers planted now will probably be harvested in July," said Cornett.

The sunflowers, which grow to about five feet in height, are harvested with a combine with a regular header or special attachments to cut down on shatter.

"There haven't been enough sunflowers raised in the area to establish a market yet, but they have been raised in South Dakota with prices ranging from 11-18 cents per pound," Cornett explained. Oil from the seeds could be milled at Plainview or Lubbock.

CARROT BEETLES and the sunflower moth are major pests of sunflowers in the High and Rolling Plains. The sunflower moth can be successfully controlled with insecticides according to researchers, but no effective control method has been found for the carrot beetle.

Adult carrot beetles are similar in appearance to the "June bug". They injure sunflowers by burrowing into the soil and feeding on the roots of the plants.

The larva of the sunflower moth is the most common pest of sunflowers throughout the country. It injures sunflowers by tunneling into the developing seeds and fleshy receptacle area of the sunflower head.

COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT Justin McBride pointed out that Dr. Bill Clymer, area entomologist, is of the opinion that "the carrot beetle may not be the problem here that it is farther south."

"If this is so, it could place us in a favorable position for growing sunflowers here," said McBride.

Commenting on the future of sunflower production in Deaf Smith County, Artho said, "This is the first time we've had any dealings with sunflowers and we're just getting our feet wet. We'll see what they can do."

"Sunflowers may find a place here on dryland areas and on irrigated farms that are short of water. This would give us some new crop alternatives and we're anxious to see how sunflowers perform here," Cornett concluded.

DWI's Tell County Court Story Again This Week

Sixteen cases were processed through the Deaf Smith County Court in the past week, most of them with pleas of guilty on charges of driving while intoxicated (DWI). Two theft cases were heard as well as an appeal from Justice of the Peace court on a speeding charge.

In Justice Court, sentences were handed out on six charges of issuance of bad checks.

- Howard Wilburn Wood, DWI, 15 days with one year probation and $150 plus court costs.
- Janet Bryant Clark, JP appeal, speeding, $50 plus court costs.

Fines in County Court this week totaled $1,750. The total of fines assessed in 1975 has reached $9,803.

On the bad check charges in Justice Court, the following sentences were assessed:

- Mrs. Joe Phillips, $25 and court costs, restitution made.
- Mrs. Robert Eaton, $25 and court costs, restitution made.
- Oralia Silva, $25 and court costs, restitution made.
- Julia Prather, $12.50 and court costs, restitution made.
- Marty Carpenter, $25 and court costs, restitution made.
- Larry Rakes, restitution made.

Total bad check fines this week amounted to $112.50, the total for 1975 to $442.50.

Our county carries the largest case load and pays more of the expenses of the district court, and it's been a long time since we've had a man in the position.

Dumas had Judge McDonald for eight years and prior to that, Dalhart had Judge Harry Schultz for 20 years. Because of the size and caseload of the big six-county district, the position hasn't been too appealing in recent years. According to a report from Dumas, Mike Metcalf, district attorney, will seek the appointment.

If it appears no new judicial district is in the offing, we hope local attorneys can agree on one of their own to support for the appointment.

about 66 persons gathered at the Civic Center Thursday evening to celebrate the first successful year of operation of the Big Brother-Big Sisters of Hereford Inc. with recognition for those who made it happen.

JoAnn Dwyer, executive director of the organization, recounted the activities of the year including the processing of 146 referrals from the county juvenile probation department and the county child welfare programs for big brother-big sister matches.

Of these she said 71 interviews were held, 29 assignments made and a total of 17 matches completed. This was as of the end of 1974 and presently, she has 19 matches going with a waiting list of four children for counterparts.

THE APPRECIATION banquet, certificates were presented to each big brother and sister as well as three individual presentations and five organization recognitions. Special entertainment was provided by Craig McCustian, 8, who sang while his father, Lewis, accompanied him on the guitar. He delighted the audience enthusiastically and the crowd responded with a standing ovation after the final song.

The special awards of appreciation were presented to Craig McCustian, Bobby Templeton, news editor of the Hereford Brand, KPAN radio, and recognition was made of area organizations and service clubs offering help to the BB-BS program.

Mrs. Dwyer will make presentations of certificates at the next regular meeting of the following groups: Whiteface Kiwanis Club, Noon Kiwanis Club, Lions Club, Rotary Club and the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce.

The big brothers and sisters presented certificates and their younger counterparts are: Chela Gonzalez, Tina Lopez, Tracie Jackson; Vicky Ruland (little sister yet unassigned); Yolanda Vargas, Rafaela Olivas; Gloria Garcia (little sister yet unassigned); Ray Chambliss, Joel Lopez; Cliff Johnson, Erick Jackson; Joe Perez, Danny and Adolpho Hernandez; David Ruland (little brother yet unassigned); Rodger Ruland, Jeffrey Streun; and Toby Torres, Jose and Marcos Olivas.

County History To Unfold On Bus Tour

Spots of historical interest unsuspected by most residents of Deaf Smith County will be pointed out on a bus tour through the east-half of the county next Saturday. It is open to all interested persons.

Arranged by the tour committee of the Women's Division, Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, with Mrs. M.C. Adams and Mrs. Stan Knox as co-chairmen, the tour will begin at 9:30 a.m. when the bus is due to leave Hereford State Bank parking lot.

There is no charge for the bus tour, but the price of lunch is $3 a person. Lunch will be served in Dawn Community Building by women of that community.

On the route are an Indian camp site, the route of the Santa Fe Expedition aimed at establishing Texas jurisdiction over that area in 1841, the McKenzie Trail where U.S. soldiers pursued the Comanches, pioneer ranch and school sites, a barn once used as a broom factory, and the prisoner of war camp used during World War II.

Major Schroeter, longtime county resident with a hobby of studying area history, will serve as tour guide.

Reservations are to be made at the Chamber of Commerce office by 5 p.m. Thursday.

A tour over this route was scheduled by the Women's Division last year but rain forced its cancellation at mid-point. A previous tour took visitors over the west part of the county.

The Saturday excursion will make its first stop at the Hereford Airport, then proceed to the location of the Astren school, where Mrs. Lester Galley and Mrs. Bess Werner both taught in pioneer days. On the Orval Galley farm nearby is a barn built in 1898, where a broom factory was once located.

Land in the Ford community, where 70 sections were traded for a thousand sewing machines in a land deal of the 1870's is on the route, then sites of the old Higgins School and the Dean Post Office.

Camping places of the Santa Fe Expedition on Tierra Blanca Creek will be pointed out, as well as the trail down the creek followed by Gen. McKenzie on his way to Palo Duro Canyon for the battle which drove the Comanches from the Panhandle.

Also to be visited are the old Central Cemetery, which is the oldest in the county, the church in the county, the Day Ranch and school, location of a spring on the Jowell Ranch where baptisms were held, and the marker commemorating a cowboy strike in the early 1880's.

MRS. DWYER NOTED that during the year, that the organization conducted special efforts to gain new participants including radio spots announcements, newspaper articles, and two cable television shows which the organization produced.

"We still need adults that will act as a big brother or sister," she said. "It really blows my mind when I see the active pursuit of our adult counterparts, especially when one of them will take off a whole day from work to help out their little brother or sister with a problem."

Rodger Ruland, BB-BS vice president, said events planned in the near future are a picnic, an overnight camping trip to Palo Duro Canyon, a feedyard tour and a free visit to the circus coming here.

Rodney Laubhan, president, recognized Mrs. Dwyer for her devoted service. Board members include Victor Cantu, Melvin Jayroe, Sherry Hoover, Wayne Lady, Ed Line, Rodger Ruland, Betty Roberts, Bartley Dowell, R.L. Blakely, Paul Abalos, Hank Kreig, Margaret London, David Pruitt and Andy Shuval.

Special guests were Bill Albright, executive vice president of the C of C; County Judge Sam Morgan and his wife Ora; Jesse Vazquez, county child welfare worker; and Larry Watson, county juvenile probation officer and his wife Judy.

Realtors Conduct Forum Thursday

The Hereford Board of Realtors held a public forum meeting Thursday night at the Hereford High School auditorium.

Ralph Brunson, of the HUD mortgage department, Dwight Turner, loan officer, Ken Shollenbarger, tax attorney and Brownie Brownlee, realtor and GRI formed a panel which presented varying aspects of the real estate business to the audience of about 50 in attendance.

The panel conducted discussions on the importance and value of realtors, different types of FHA loans, conventional loans and closing costs and tax aspects of owning real estate.

Emphasis was given to information concerning the tax credit for new homes included in recent economic legislation signed by president Gerald Ford.

The five per cent credit applies to the purchase price and a maximum credit of $2,000 is allowed.

Panel members pointed out that construction had to start before March 28 and the purchaser must enter into a contract to buy before January 1, 1976. The home must be acquired and occupied after March 12, and must be the principal residence.

Shollenbarger spoke on some of the tax advantages of owning a home and emphasized the importance of good record keeping on the part of home owners. Brownlee told those in attendance that "the best thing we can do as realtors is to encourage young people to invest in real estate. It is our responsibility as realtors to see that everyone has a chance to own land."

The forum was sponsored in conjunction with National Realtor Week and was presented under the overall theme of "Everything You Wanted to Know About Real Estate But Have Been Afraid to Ask."

Mrs. Betty Gilbert, president of the Hereford Board, expressed appreciation to those who attended the Thursday session and also expressed thanks to Don Tardy, publicity chairman for the project.

Presbyterian Pastor Participates In African Cultural Experience

Roger A Knapp, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, will not be in his pulpit as usual delivering a sermon prepared over the past week. Instead, he will be embarking on an experience which is sure to remain with him for some time. He will be on his way via London, England, to live, eat, pray and learn with residents from Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania and Ethiopia.

THE GEOGRAPHICAL LINK to these far off places is the continent of Africa and Knapp is headed there to complete work on his doctoral degree. It will include a three-week ecumenical seminar in "cross-cultural communication."

"I will be living in urban and rural situations of the local people in the places I visit," he explained. "It's not a tour, but a working trip during which I will be learning the religious, political and sociological characteristics of different cultures."

Knapp left Hereford Thursday to travel to the Amarillo airport for a flight to England, where he will participate with others in a two-day orientation. This will start the sequence of events that no doubt will leave the most impressions on Knapp—the visits to the African nations.

According to a seminar description given Knapp, the seminar's purpose is to sensitize participants to the diversity of cultural expression, to develop skills in the study of the culture and communication, to form a foundation for understanding and cooperating on an international perspective, to offer ecumenical encounters with the religious leadership of African Churches, to experience the lifestyles of congregations in African village settings and to examine their economic, social and political problems.

HIS FIRST STOP in Africa is Uganda, where he will study at the Makerere University, the Bishop Thucker Theological College, the Katigando Roman Catholic Seminary and the Gaba Pastoral Institute.

At these institutions, participants will learn of different religious philosophies of independent and traditional African religions and Islam.

Kenya is the next stop off. Here, Knapp will visit with representatives of the All Africa Conference of Churches in Nairobi and the Kenya Council of Churches. Also, local universities will be contacted. THE SEMINAR then progresses to Tanzania, where "special emphasis will be placed upon experiments in African socialism," the seminar statement reads. This will be conducted at Kiboko Seminary, Makumira Lutheran Theological College and the Baptist Seminary of East Africa. Before returning to the United States, Knapp is scheduled to travel to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. Hereford will probably be a comforting and restful sight after his fast-paced journey, but his experiences abroad ought to provide enlightening material for him to relay to his congregation for numerous Sundays to come.

427 Businesses In Operation Locally

NEW YORK—For its size, Deaf Smith County supports a large number of business establishments.

According to figures recently released by the government, there are more businesses in operation locally, in proportion to population, than in many communities across the country.

The findings are reported in a new study by the Department of Commerce, entitled "County Business Patterns." It is based upon data compiled by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from tax reports filed last year by employers.

In it is listed, for every county in the United States, comparable data on employment and payrolls for firms engaged in retail and wholesale trade, manufacturing, finance, services and the like. In operation in Deaf Smith County are some 427 separate businesses that employ one or more persons, the figures show.

In addition, there are an untabulated number that have no employees and are owner-operated. Of the 427 listed, there are 214 that have from one to three persons on their payrolls, 87 with four to seven and 81 with eight to 19.

Although firms of long standing make up the bulk of the local business community, each year witnesses some changes as new enterprises are started and some older ones are discontinued for one reason or another. As in most parts of the country, small and medium-size businesses predominate locally. They have proved to be quite lasting, despite the competition from chain stores and other large companies.

The report shows that 89 per cent of them have 20 employees or less. Nationally, 84 per cent are that size.

At last count, businesses in Deaf Smith County were providing gainful employment for some 3,985 men and women in non-farm, covered jobs. By "covered" is meant employment that falls within the scope of Social Security.

Not included are self-employed people, domestic workers, members of the armed forces and government workers. Because wages and salaries have been going up, year by year, the annual payroll for these covered workers has also been rising. It has reached a high of $24,528,000.

Two years before, when a comparable survey was made, the total was $18,320,000.

Kiwanians Hear C of C Speaker, View Film

Bill Albright, executive vice-president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, reported on Chamber activities to the Noon Kiwanis Club Thursday and showed a film entitled "The Day Business Stood Still."

Albright outlined various functions and projects Chamber committees are involved in. He pointed out that the Women's Division of the Chamber sponsored the Miss Hereford pageant and that Monica Herring, Miss Hereford and this year's Kiwanis Sweetheart would participate in the Miss Texas Pageant in Fort Worth in July.

A BIG PROJECT facing the Chamber and Hereford citizens at the moment, Albright said, is the All Girls Rodeo, to be held May 16—May 18. The rodeo is a stepping stone to a project of great magnitude, the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame. The city has donated 10 acres near the municipal airport for construction of the Hall of Fame. For the next two years the Hall of Fame will be housed in the basement of the Deaf Smith County Library.

The Goals For Progress five subcommittees are at work, and membership in the Chamber is expected to go over 700 in the coming months. Another upcoming event is the Successful Living Seminar to be held May 5 and 6.

The film, produced by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, depicted the predicament the nation would be in if all business were to stop. An American family woke one morning to find the electricity off, water off, television not working, and when the husband reported for work, his firm had shut down.

THE MAN'S BOSS explained to the family that unless business is making a profit, it will go nowhere. The consumer, he explained, could cause business to come to a halt, undermining the free enterprise system.

Business supplies almost everything we have, said the film, including most of our basic needs and our ability to earn purchasing power.

One false belief of the public is that "Big Business" makes over 28 per cent profit while in reality businesses, after taxes make only about 4 1/2 per cent profit. The film also pointed out that even though the consumer pays higher prices for items, business also faces the problems of inflation.

Posing the question if business could really stop, the film pointed to ghost towns in the old west that were abandoned after business had stopped, and presented the depression as an example.

Kiwanians continued plans for the 25th Anniversary celebration of the club and the banquet honoring that event to be held May 1. The public is

Texas Taxes

By BOB BULLOCK, State Comptroller

Austin--In the Comptroller's Department we believe that in helping the taxpayers we are helping the state and our office.

Taxpayer assistance is an important part of our work and contributes greatly to improvement of our tax collecting programs. We find that most people are honest and willing to pay their rightful share of taxes.

But by the same token, a taxpayer has a right to expect state government to make this duty as easy as possible.

I think all tax collectors should continually remind themselves that they are not at war with the taxpayers. We must not be adversaries. Actually the tax collector works for the taxpayer and all of us in state government should remember that.

Our department is set up with field offices across the state to help taxpayers. Citizens should take advantage of these offices to get information about taxes and help with the numerous--and sometimes complicated--forms we have to use.

It costs nothing to ask for information and in many cases having the proper information can solve problems before they even occur.

In Houston and Dallas each we have four field offices. Their addresses are listed in the telephone book under State of Texas. We also have two offices in Fort Worth and one in Arlington.

There are also offices in El Paso, Odessa, Lubbock, Amarillo, Wichita Falls, Abilene, San Angelo, Austin, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Donna, Galveston, Beaumont, Waco, Longview, Tyler, Bryan, Victoria, Sherman and Nacogdoches.

In the coming months we will be studying the caseloads of each of these offices to see that we have them located where they serve the greatest number of taxpayers.

Perhaps we need

 Would you call a plastic surgeon a cosmetic?

additional offices and I have requested money from the Legislature to set them up if that turns out to be the case.

These offices are staffed with auditors and tax compliance officers who work with all of our state taxes.

These people do a lot of traveling to work with taxpayers. We are always glad for a taxpayer who needs help to ask one of our people to come visit. This personal contact with the taxpayer keeps our people in touch with the everyday problems encountered by businesses and that in turn helps the department keep common sense in our way of doing our business.

Just a little more than half of the 1,300 employees of the Comptroller's Department work in these field offices. We consider these field offices to be extensions of the six major taxing divisions in the Austin headquarters.

These divisions cover sales tax, minerals taxes (which used to be separate divisions on motor fuels and oil and gas), inheritance tax, ad valorem tax, business taxes (formerly called franchise), and tobacco products taxes.

The Austin headquarters operations provides logistical and personnel support for the field offices, administration and policy guidance and handles all appeals which can't be settled in the field. All of our offices belong to the taxpayers. They should make use of them.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor : Summer will soon be here and as for so many years, the city pool will be filled with Red Cross Swimming students.

As in the past the Red Cross instructors are in great need of help from the people of Hereford. This year the Red Cross is looking for those people who hold Junior or Senior Life Saving Certificates, who are willing to stay with the Red Cross program the entire summer and take the responsibility of teaching an entire class rather than just help the instructors.

This will enable the instructor to spend more time with the students individually, so they may receive the best possible training we can give them.

To do this the instructors will hold complete 16-hour Water Safety Aide Course, beginning May 26 through May 30, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Hereford City Pool.

Anyone interested in helping with the summer swim program, and I hope a lot of you are, please contact Mrs. Richard Zinser. There has to be a minimum age limit of 14 years, but there is no maximum limit so almost anyone that has completed the swimmers course, holds a current Junior or Senior Life Saving Certificate is eligible to take the course.

Please contact us; we do need your help.

Thank you, Mrs. Richard Zinser.

What are the months of the most rainfall in most parts of the country?

Contrary to the popular belief, the winter months--which often bring three or four-day spells of bad weather--are not the greatest producers of moisture.

In most parts of the country nature has provided us with a water supply that arrives in close harmony with the needs of crops.

For example, the amount of precipitation usually begins to pick up in early spring, when things have been planted, and increases until about June, or even July, in some cases, and then tapers off. This fits in nicely with the needs of growing crops, most of which are harvested in the months following peak rainfall.

Baseballers Lose Nightcap 5-4

Hereford suffered a 7-0 loss to Coronado in the first game of a doubleheader here Friday, then rallied in the second game only to be edged 5-4 in a squeaker.

Bill Eady pitched a two hitter for Coronado in the first game. He had a no hitter going until the sixth inning.

Broach had four RBI's for the Mustangs in the first game and Coronado socked eight extra-base hits in the two games.

Mike Crim was tagged for the loss in the first game for the Herd. He got relief from Tarr in the late going. Crim's record is now 3-7 on the season.

Harvey Torres and Pete Hale had hits for the Herd in the first game. The Herd left five men on base.

The Mustangs allowed the Herd two runs in the bottom of the seventh in the nightcap but squeaked past for a 5-4 win to put their district mark at 4-2.

The Herd is now 0-6 in second half play and 7-18 for the season.

Eady returned to the mound for Coronado in relief of Junior Sams in the second game and the Herd came up with two runs on three singles, a walk and an error. The Herd lost another runner at the plate and the final out came on a pop up.

Hereford had runners at second and third and one out when Eady came out in the sixth but hard luck struck the Herd as John Broach took Archie Crim's line drive and stepped on the bag for an unassisted double play.

Hereford left eight runners stranded on base in the second game.

Roy Martinez, Pete Hale and Craig Nieman all had doubles for the Herd in the second game.

Martinez suffered the loss for the Herd in the nightcap. His record is now 2-9.

Sams was winning pitcher for Coronado. His record is 5-0.

Hereford will host Lubbock High in the final games of the season Friday. The first game is set to start at 2:30.

Monterey is in first place in the second half district baseball race while Lubbock High and Coronado are tied for second.

Comment On Sports

FOOTBALL

By Pete Fritchie

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Though many thought the World Football League would never make another season, the recent announcement financing had been found means that in late July the league will begin another year.

Chances are not good for financial success and yet every year the new pro league survives, its chances will be a little better. And the one big thing goes for the league this year is that several big-name stars, three of them from the Miami Dolphins, will be WFL players.

Interestingly enough, there were years when the American League—trying to compete with the National—had rough financial sailings. But then they come on and when the National finally agreed, somewhat condescendingly, to meet the Americans in combat, the American League teams did stunningly well.

And so it may be that 1975 is the crucial year for the WFL. If most of its teams can break even or thereabouts this year the new league could be here to stay.

Stretch At First

Herd first baseman Pete Hale makes a long stretch at first base to take a pitch and put out a Coronado runner late in the first game of a doubleheader played here Friday. The Herd went down 7-0 in the first game and was edged in a squeaker in the nightcap 5-4.

Tennis Clinic Is Scheduled

Enrollment is underway for the second annual West Texas Tennis Clinic for Adults, scheduled for May 10-11 on the campus of West Texas State University.

David Kent, WTSU tennis coach, and Amarillo stockholder Phil Nichol will again be directors for the clinic designed to strengthen each player's individual game.

"Our clinic is designed to take care of your tennis needs whether you are a beginner, an intermediate, or an advanced player," Kent said. "This is accomplished by a proven and concentrated system of individual instruction. Playing better is fun."

Kent and Nichol will be assisted by some of the leading collegiate players and coaches in the southwest, including members of Kent's defending Missouri Valley Conference champions at WTSU.

During free hours, players may also visit points of interest near the West Texas State campus, including Palo Duro Canyon and the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

"Our desire is for you to enjoy the clinic, and for it to be a real learning experience," Kent added.

Cost for the two-day clinic will be $30. Applications may be sent to Kent, Box 413, WT Station, Canyon, Texas 79016.

Jones Qualifies At Regional

Steve Jones was the only Herd cinderman to qualify for the finals in the Class AAAA Regional Track Meet Friday. He was scheduled to compete in the finals at the Texas Tech track in Lubbock at prestime Saturday.

The Herd Mile relay team, composed of Jones, Mike Munnerlyn, Dave Charest and Jay Williams failed to qualify Friday.

Charest failed to qualify in the long jump and Mike Munnerlyn failed to make the finals in the 330 intermediate hurdles.

Results on Jones' performance will be carried in the Thursday Brand.

FISHING OVERFLOW WATERS

Spring rains usually bring high water levels to lakes, and many anglers who are anxious to start fishing find this a frustrating experience. Actually, high water needn't spoil anyone's fishing. Although it requires a modification of techniques and a slight change in equipment, high water angling can be excellent.

One thing to remember during high water: Spring fishing is that most of the catchable fish will be close to shore. In fact, the Mercury outboard fishing department has found that if the water has flooded brush and trees around the lake's edge, the fish will be back in the timber.

Game fish prefer these areas simply because that's where the most food can be found.

Angling methods are similar to those that produce fish any other time of the year. A major difference is that much stronger monofilament line is used when fishing in brush. It helps to bring big fish out of the brush and to your boat. Also, if you hang up on an underwater snag, it's often possible to retrieve your lure by pointing the rod directly toward the snag and pulling gently—but firmly—until the lure comes free. Light-strength monofilament lines will usually break before the lure is out of the debris.

A different fishing technique, called dapping, is used by southern anglers during high water. To do this you need a cane pole with a stout line about half the length of the pole. Tie a small hook to the line, pinch on a lightweight sinker three inches above the hook, and add a small bobber six inches above that. Bait is either worms or minnows.

Poke the pole through the brush and fish the bait next to the bank or along logs and rocks that have been flooded. Be ready for action, since this is an effective method for both bass and catfish.

The man who squanders much of his money seldom stops to wonder why his wife tries to save spare pennies.

Journalism Competition Won By County Agents

Six county agents of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service were named best in the state in the annual Public Information Awards Program of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

State awards will be presented during the annual meeting of the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association August 4-6 in Lubbock, according to Justin T. McBride, Deaf Smith County agent who is the Public Information Committee chairman.

State winners receive a $25 cash award and certificate. The "Best of Show" gets $50 and a certificate, said McBride.

First prize on the regional level is $50, and $125 at the national level.

According to McBride, the Public Information Awards Program was developed to recognize county agents who excelled in the use of mass media. Effort, creative skill and quality of the message are judged.

M.H. Brown Jr., of Groesbeck, Limestone County, won two of the seven classes, placing first in the radio program and news photo story.

Others winning state honors were M.E. (Gene) Graves Jr. of Fort Worth, Tarrant County, winning the color slide series class; Stanley F. Oakley of Sherman, Grayson County, who designed the best direct mail piece; Jack T. Doby of Austin, Travis county, with the best news column; Rex A. Jones of

Summer Trip To Europe Planned

About 40 high school students and college freshmen from the Panhandle will have an opportunity to travel to Europe this summer for almost a month on a "comparative cultures program" to be coordinated by two Canyon High School teachers: Mary Jane Reeves and James Westberry.

Participants in the tour will spend five days in Madrid, four days in the Salzburg area, three days in Paris and five days in London.

Included in the activities will be field trips to Toledo, Spain; to Pompeii, Italy; to the Bavarian lake country in Austria; to Versailles, France, and to Stratford-on-Avon in England. Students will see an opera at the Baths of Caracalla in Rome, a Shakespeare play at Stratford, and a contemporary play in London.

Cost of the program is $1,415 which includes all transportation, lodging, meals, and scheduled activities.

The program is for 9th-12th grade students and College freshmen.

Area advisors for the program are Sherry McDowell of Happy, Sheila Foster of Borger, and John Reeves, professor of English at WTSU.

High school or college credit is possible for the tour, although this should be arranged through the coordinators.

Those interested in the trip this summer, which is scheduled July 9-August 5, may write to Mrs. Reeves or to Mrs. Westberry at Canyon High School, Drawer 899, Canyon, 79015.

Visitor Industry Big Asset in Texas

SAN ANTONIO—The state's first comprehensive look at its total visitor industry was announced in San Antonio today where delegates to the Texas Travel Counselors Conference learned that their profession generates more cash receipts than any of the state's three regularly taken the pulse of indicators—farm crops, livestock, or the annual value of all building permits issued.

Although Texas is among the nation's richest in all three categories, figures released by the Texas Highway Department showed that state tourism topped each of them with an immense value of $4.8 billion in 1974.

The Highway Department has regularly taken the pulse of auto visitors to Texas, but the 1974 summary marks the first time that modern methods of statistical analysis have been applied to the entire scope of recreational travel both to and within the state. It cites a wealth of details.

Texans themselves were substantially outnumbered by visitors from out-of-state—19.6 million of them. Eighty-one per cent came by car, while 19 per cent arrived by air, bus or train, airlines being the foremost contributor among the commuters.

Surprisingly in a year of uncertainty about gasoline availability, auto visitors arrived from throughout the United States in numbers only eight-tenths per cent fewer than the previous year. Further, there were more actual visitor parties (fewer per car), and the previous year. Further, more.

According to the detailed report, the typical auto party from out-of-state spent $368 during 6.9 days in Texas during 1974. Per family member, their expenditures averaged exactly $50 per day.

Airline visitors, acknowledged to be motivated primarily by business reasons, were calculated to spend over twice that much—$49.99 per day, but their length of stay was substantially shorter.

Texans' own travel habits revealed that home-grown tourists are much more canny about getting most of their recreational travel dollar. Vaerage daily expenditures by Texans traveling Texas amounted to only $5.99 per day, which included many recreational outings that did not require overnight lodging.

However the last number of such intrastate recreational trips amounted to expenditures exceeding $2.1 billion, or nearly half of the state's total visitor receipts for 1974.

Texans showed themselves to be outdoor types, 16 per cent of them citing Texas lakes as their recreational destinations. Another 29 per cent of all Texas pleasure travelers found assorted recreational opportunities in 10 of the state's major cities: Houston, Dallas, Austin, Fort Worth, Amarillo, Galveston, Lubbock, San Antonio, Arlington and Corpus Christi.

Visitors from Mexico showed a sharp increase of 19 per cent, topping one million for the first time in history. From out of State, bus lines brought in 600,000 passengers who spent $91 million during their Texas stay. AMTRAK tallied 72,000 visitors to Texas on their interstate routes. Airlines deposited more than three million business, convention and pleasure travelers in Texas.

The report is a benchmark that catalogues tourism, once considered a frivolous pastime, as one of Texas' largest industries. It results from a series of studies which the Highway Department conducted in cooperation with The University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

In addition to the department's own survey teams, information was compiled from the Texas Railroad Commission, Continental and Greyhound Bus lines, and an immense store of computer data made available by the Civil Aeronautics Board from data banks in the National Archives and Records Service in Washington, D.C.

Free copies of the complete Texas Visitor Industry Report for 1974, a 32-page brochure, are available from the Texas Highway Department, Travel & Information Division, Austin 78701.

Santa Fe Income Declines This Year

Net income of Santa Fe Industries, Inc. for the first quarter of 1975 fell to $8.2 million, or 31 cents per share, compared with $26.6 million, or $1.03 per share last year, John S. Reed, chairman, announced today.

Revenues for the first three months were $327 million compared with $337 million for the same period in 1974, a decrease of 3 per cent, reflecting a decline of $18 million in Santa Fe Railway's operating revenues, which was partially offset by an increase of $8 million from other operations. Railway revenues reflected a drop of 19 per cent in carloads handled due to depressed level of general business activity that prevailed during the first quarter.

The Transportation Group incurred a pre-tax loss of $13.7 million in the first quarter, compared with pre-tax income of $9.8 million last year, because of the reduced level of rail traffic, higher wage rates, increased material costs and the inability of the railroad industry of obtain Interstate Commerce Commission approval of freight rate increases. However, as the result of continued strict cost controls and the expected benefit of increased freight rates scheduled to become effective April 27, the outlook for rail earnings appears much more favorable for the balance of the year.

Although revenues of the Natural Resources Group were up, pre-tax income declined for $21.7 million to $20.1 million as result of a $1.8 million decrease in earnings of the forest products group reflecting the general slump in the housing and building construction industry.

The provision for federal income tax in the first quarter appropriately reflects the estimate effect of the Tax Reduction Act of 1975. On an annual basis, it is estimated that these provisions of this Act will reduce Santa Fe Industries' 1975 net earnings approximately $10 million, as detailed in the footnote to the Consolidated Statement of Income attached.

AGRI-SUL SULFUR

Could Be The Answer To:

Irrigation Age (April '75 Issue) Had This
To Say About Sulfur & Powdery Mildew

POWDERY MILDEW-
NEW THREAT TO
SUGAR BEET
PRODUCTION

"Powdery mildew has been a major problem for years in sugarbeet growing areas of Europe and the Mid-East, with reported crop losses as high as 22% of beet root yield and 24% of final sugar yield."

"Intensity of the attack in the U.S. last year varied from mild to severe, with losses in some areas estimated as high as 3 tons of beet root production, and up to 1 1/2% of sucrose content."

"Because the disease struck so suddenly and unexpectedly last year, most beet growers could do little more than sit back and watch."

"It appears that the earlier sulfur is applied, the better the results...This is a fast acting disease, and can sweep through a field before the grower is aware of it."

"The bright spot on the horizon is that sulfur as a control measure has been granted approval by the Environmental Protection Agency."

Agri-Sul sulfur is 100% water soluble for use in spray solution as well as dry application to the soil. Early pre-plant application of Agri-Sul, in my humble opinion could have helped fortify the sugar beets against the effects of this disease and/or other insects. See page 18 of the above mentioned issue of Irrigation Age—"Other Sugar beet Pests." Agri-Sul sulfur has been used to help control soil pests—has been cleared and used to control mites and other insects in sugar beets and other crops. FRIEND FARMER, I say use Agri-Sul sulfur in your soil and as foliar spray to control insects and fungus. "Ya Hear."

THE BIG THICKET.

For a number of years, there has been much publicity relative to the Big Thicket. Well something good has happened in this Bicentennial year. Scientists call the Big Thicket the biological crossroads of North America; eight ecological systems flourish in these 300,000 acres in southeast Texas.

An abundance of rain coupled with water-resistant soil provide the Thicket with a variety of flowers, trees, shrubs, mosses, fungi and ferns unequalled in any other area of similar size. Several rare species of birds and reptiles have also been discovered within the Thicket's boundaries. Because of its unique scientific importance and recreational potential, Congress and the president have set aside 84,550 acres as The Big Thicket National Biological Preserve.

This makes the hearts of Texas Garden Club members very happy, because this has been a project on which much work, thought and planning has been expended by TGC Inc. We are truly GLAD the Big Thicket has been aside for development so much of the natural life will be saved for generations to come.

TEXAS GARDEN CLUB annual convention was exciting, instructive, and interesting. I was thrilled at the honors the Hereford Garden Clubs won.

Hereford Garden Club's Award of Excellence in Horticulture, really made Glad...GLAD. Other awards were Horticulture Honor Toll Rating and Citation. (Mrs. G.W. Newson is horticulture chairman). Scrap book took second place in the Honor Roll class two. (Mrs. W.C. Hromas is chairman of Scrap book).

Mrs. R.W. Mitchell, chairman of world garden, received Outstanding Citation in world gardening, which shares in CARE, Honor Roll Year Book award, with Mrs. D.N. Garner, chairman.

Mrs. O.G. Hill Sr. took first place on President's Report and also Honor Roll Rating Award. All of these will spur us on the greater achievements for another and to aid in our town one of beauty and cleanliness for the approaching Bicentennial.

COLD WEATHER: Many are really disturbed about the damage which the last cold weather did to the shrubs and other vegetation. I admit that the evergreens, the leafy types especially are damaged, the needle evergreens seem to have weathered the storms much better.

The damage looks bad now, but with extra care, such as trimming away the damaged parts watering well, and feeding I believe that they will recover and in time will be attractive and restored.

VIEWS AND NEWS: To travel in Texas this time of year is a rare treat. I have never seen the wildflowers when they were more beautiful. More than 5,000 species of Texas wild flowers offer unlimited viewing pleasure to Texans and visitors.

It is a challenge to botanists who strive to name and classify them. We made it a game, naming and classifying various wildflowers which we passed on the highways.

One thing I learned was that the Indian paint brush species come in several colors, of yellow, red, orange (an old favorite) pink and lavender-rose. The tips of colored wildflowers are brightly colored with green below, as if the "brush" had been dipped in a brilliant paint.

Castilleja indivisa, perhaps the favorite (if there is one) is the orange colored one.

The Texas Highway Department is doing a wonderful job in planting the roadside with our state flower, the bluebonnet.

Large blanket areas of the state are the bluebonnets, but Lupinus subcarneus holds the official designation as the State Flower. The White Texas bluebonnet is very lovely and is usually seen in clumps, it shines in a beautiful way, when interspersed with bluebonnets.

A drive into the countryside near Hereford affords thrills. The golden blankets of yellow daisy-like flowers are especially lovely on mounds and hill-sides. Marlin Gilliland was telling me about the lovely scene in the Frio draw, and when he saw them, he turned around and came back home for his camera.

Scenes like these make one wish they could paint them on canvas and I am sure that Mrs. Hromas and Mrs. Ray Johnson will be using their brushes and paints to record some of the beauty seen on this trip to Austin.

IF YOU PLAN to clean your artificial (permanent) flowers before putting them away, the following is recommended. Put them into a paper bag with one-fourth cup of table salt and one-half cup of corn-meal. Close bag tightly, and shake well but gently. Remove from bag, shake excess salt and corn-meal off the flowers, and store for winter use, or create some new designs with them.

When re-potting or potting new plants, tuck a small piece of cotton over the drain to retain soil and aid in retaining moisture. California Gardeners have learned through experiment that chrysanthemums will grow faster with music. Plants were grown in a greenhouse with out music while others were grown with music. Those grown with music averaged six inches taller in growth and had more color.

There are many beauty spots in Hereford created with spring flowers. One is the planting of Aguga at The Hereford Garden Center. Tulips and narcissus have also been very pretty. The ground covers are showing up quite well. Visit the garden and study the various plants, shrubs, and trees growing. To see them (all are named) might be helpful in deciding what you would like to plant this year.

REMEMBER, WE ARE hoping that Hereford will join the nation in not only having 200 candles on the Bicentennial Birthday Cake, but will also share in planting 200 trees or shrubs in our area. You will be GLAD you did.

There is a very lovely blue and white planting at the Bert Boomer home, 138 Star. A bit of red would have created a striking planting in our national colors. Blue added to the tulip planting in the Pioneer Club park, N. Main and Park, would have aided in creating a very pretty harmony of red, white and blue.

Hanging baskets are very popular and one of the loveliest I have seen is on the porch at the Elmer Kimball home, 421 Star. It is planted in the two tone (green and white) air-plane plant.

Mrs. Ralph McCullough has some unusual tulips in flower. They are a striking yellow and red combination, a new variety which Anne is trying.

Some of the thrills I have had this past week is that of assisting young couples with landscaping problems and visiting with garden club friends.

On May 10th in the Amarillo Garden Center, the North Plains Iris Society will present their annual iris show. Theme this year is "Happiness is Growing and Showing." The hours will be 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is invited at no charge. Come and see what the new varieties are in this great plant society. Frank L. Stephens is president.

This would be a nice treat for your mother or another mother as it is on Mother's Day weekend. Would be a sweet and fragrant courtesy.

Junior High Music Units Are Rated

A top rating for concert singing was given to Stanton Junior High Mixed Choir, and ratings of II to other musical groups from this city's junior high schools at the Greater Southwest Music Festival in Amarillo Thursday.

Bands and orchestras from both La Plata and Stanton Junior High Schools earned the II mark, as did the La Plata Choir and the Stanton Boys' Choir.

Director of the Stanton musicians are Douglas Morris, choir; Royce Coatsney, orchestra, and Tom Wine, band. Jim Priest directs the band at La Plata, Bill Devers the choir and Ray Jenkins the orchestra.

THROWAWAY BOTTLES The Environmental Protection Agency is drafting rules that would ban the sale and use of throwaway cans and bottles at all Federal installations in the country.

Constant Yellow Stream

Garland DePrang, a co-owner of Grain Handling Corp. of Hereford takes a handful of corn from the constant stream of yellow grain going through a gravity grading table at the firm's new corn cleaning plant east of the city. Corn cleaned at the local plant is shipped to points throughout the country for use in many food items. The local plant began operation about two weeks ago and represents an investment of approximately $2 million.

Construction Site Loss in Millions

At that construction site down the street, something more than a building is going up. Unfortunately, it's the rate of crime.

"Millions of dollars are lost annually at construction sites, due to thefts of tools, material and equipment, as well as vandalism," according to J.O. (Jim) Smith Jr. of Dallas, chairman of the Texas Insurance Advisory Association (TIAA). "Something has to be done."

Something is being done especially in Dallas where a model program is attracting interest throughout the country.

The Dallas chapter of the Association of General Contractors and the Dallas Police Department are cooperating in a crime prevention program aimed at work sites. The Dallas Association of Insurance Agents has helped disseminate information.

"I hope the movement spreads in Texas," Smith says, "because cutting thefts could mean a cost reduction in several areas, such as in insurance, time lost and property replacement."

Smith says, "A job superintendent now has to be alert to guard against criminal activity in addition to his other duties. It's unfortunate but true—but at least with this prevention program, positive steps can be made toward reducing losses, losses which ultimately are born by the general public."

An integral part of the Dallas program is tool identification. A number is assigned by the police department or a driver's license number is used.

"In the past," according to one industry spokesman, "even when stolen tools were recovered, it was nearly impossible to discover the owner. We don't know the loss rate in the metropolitan area, but it's in the millions. Now at least we have the benefit of the

Another Tax Cut

The $23 billion tax cut of 1975 is the largest tax cut in U.S. history. I was passed with breakneck speed by the Congress in order to get the economy rolling again. Now economists are saying another tax cut will be necessary in 1976, because the 1975 tax cut doesn't pack enough wallop to help the recovery through 1976. They fear that effects of the 1975 tax cut will fizzle by the end of the year.

Of the $23-billion of tax cuts, only $100 million extends past December 31, 1975. The increases in the standard and minimum deductions, the $50 bonus for Social Security recipients, the $30 payment per personal exemption, the earned income credit for low-paid workers, and the tax rebate are all one year items. When the $19 billion in personal tax cuts phases out at the end of this year, withholding rates will be adjusted upward and the Treasury's take will actually increase in the first two quarters of 1976.

The reason a two-year tax cut wasn't proposed by President Ford was because of the effect of a two-year cut on the government deficit, already so huge that economists are worried about the inflationary effect it will have in the late 1970's.

One of the country's leading bankers, a former Federal Reserve official, believes there will not be a strong recovery despite the 1975 tax cut.

identification numbers to help reduce these enormous losses.

The National Crime Information Center assists through a computerized network.

Other cities in Texas, such as Houston and Austin, are getting into similar programs, but at the moment Dallas is leading the way.

Smith says the Texas insurance industry doesn't have a comparable project as such "but all aspects of our business salute this effort in Dallas and urge other cities to consider this approach to loss prevention."

In addition to serving as chairman of the TIAA, Smith is a resident vice president of Reliance Insurance Companies of Dallas.

The TIAA is an advisory organization with membership consisting of insurance companies writing approximately 90% of the property insurance in Texas.

NEXT WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

By Clay R. Pollan

Note planetary ruler of your birth symbol

FOR WEEK BEGINNING MONDAY, APRIL 28, 1975

Aries Mar. 21 - Apr. 19 Pluto
The first part of the week promises to be gay, amusing, flirtatious. There are bound to be developments of significance affecting your relationships with the opposite sex. The last part of the week is a good time to organize parties, twosomes, trips to the theatre, shows and concerts.

Taurus Apr. 20 - May 20 Venus
Now's the time to figure ways to save money for an important project you want to put on the road soon. Your wishes can be fulfilled when backed by the proper thought and action. Separate actual needs from mere fancies. Don't fall prey to false flattery. Friends and money do not mix well now.

Gemini May 21 - June 20 Mercury
Resist the temptation to intrude in others' lives. Someone to whom you give advice may take offense. Use wisdom when associates seem confused. No use fibbing because you'll be caught. Avoid being too aggressive. It's probably resented. Social activities show definite improvement.

Cancer June 21 - July 22 Moon
You may not be as free this week to act as you had expected. There may be delays and some obstacles. What you want to do and what you are free to do may be two different things. If there's added pressure, seek competent counsel. Savings or real estate matters promise gain. Be on time for appointments.

Leo July 23 - Aug. 22 Sun
Someone with your interests at heart may have something important to say. Listen carefully to catch any undertones in conversation. You must face some facts which are not exactly pleasant. Collections are good now. Stash away some money as it comes in. If possible, you should do your work alone now.

Virgo Aug. 23 - Sept. 22 Mercury
This week is marvelous for personal plans, social life, romance and just about any pleasure you wish. Those who depend on you may make unusual demands. Refuse to let them dictate your lifestyle. Impatience could result in a wild goose chase. Tackle only one thing at a time. Finish what you start.

Libra Sept. 23 - Oct. 22 Venus
Keep firm control of your thoughts now. Forget the mistakes and frustrations of the past. Seek cheery companions. Avoid one who is likely to involve you in legal "hi-jinks." Be ingratiating when handling special relationships. Stick to what you know and don't wander into unfamiliar fields.

Scorpio Oct. 23 - Nov. 21 Mars
A week to be cautious with loved ones. Avoid arguments. Don't do anything to cause disturbance. Don't be discouraged by a skeptical individual. A certain friend is jealous of your attainments. Know this and be somewhat secretive about your plans. Improve your appearance. Purchase new apparel.

Sagittarius Nov. 22 - Dec. 21 Jupiter
Friendliness and generosity abound in your picture now. You could make progress in relationships, and that could include a romantic one. An older individual should not be allowed to dominate you. It's not wise to be subservient. It's time for wisdom. Put your interests first. Face the music as it exists.

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 19 Saturn
This is a time to be more active, aggressive. Strive to encourage new contacts. Pay more attention to current trends and the happenings around you. If you act wisely, some of your fondest wishes can now be fulfilled. Do what you know is right. Ultimate gain is indicated. Rise above petty actions.

Aquarius Jan. 20 - Feb. 18 Uranus
It's a good week for big shopping, getting the stylish clothes you need and want. Get your wardrobe in shipshape condition, and you'll feel good about your appearance. A prudent change now would enhance your reputation. Pleasant surprise concerning money is likely. Be sociable. Entertain with charm and wit.

Pisces Feb. 19 - Mar. 20 Neptune
Good lunar aspects highlight activities associated with creative efforts. Get around and about more, and associate with people who attend concerts, lectures and literary clubs. Money and personal possessions are also accepted. Make new starts in new areas. Cooperate in charitable projects.

H³ / HUSTLE HUSTLE HUSTLE

By Bill Albright, Executive VP
Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce

Completely satisfied with the person you are? Then you really can't expect much from the Chamber's Seminar on "Successful Living". But, on the other hand, if you would become a better person—improve yourself in attitude, problem solving and in general—then you have an obligation to yourself, your family and your associates to attend the seminar. Folks from all walks of life—housewives, farmers, business people, students, ranchers, salesmen, professionals—everyone is amazed at the dramatic improvement available through such an experience.

Those who most appreciate our system are those who have seen other systems, in other countries, where government has taken over the businesses, the industries and the agriculture. In America, jobs are provided by small businesses, by large companies and by government.

Many employers recognize the tremendous value of this program and are sharing the cost of registration with their employees. It's a rare opportunity, so don't miss out—Monday and Tuesday, May 5 & 6 at the Bull Barn, 7 to 10 p.m.—call the Chamber for your reservations now.

Small businesses and large companies, whether it's a family farm or General Motors have one thing in common. In order to pay the employee—the firm has got to make a profit. In order to expand to meet the increased demand for food or automobiles—the firm has got to make a profit. Without—no expansion—no job—no farm—no General Motors.—It might help to remember that large companies are owned by stock holders, who for the most part are ordinary Americans like you and me. The Chamber has an excellent 20 minute film which explains what business means to our society and our way of life. It's available to groups and can be obtained by calling the office.

It's time to remind ourselves that the free competitive enterprise system of economy is still the best, most productive way to provide goods and services. If there is any doubt in anyone's mind—just compare our standard of living with any other system. Too often we take our benefits and blessings for granted and sometimes we even "knock" our own democratic process which makes possible the privilege of living in a free and productive country.

There's a group of people who have been really hustlin' round this town these last couple of months. You need to know about them so you can thank them, because they're doing a great job for you, the citizens of this community. I don't propose to list all those who are a part of this great project called Hustlin' Hereford's Hall of Fame Rodeo and The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame, but you should know the "Big Three," the leaders in this worthy endeavor.

Terry Caviness, Chamber Vice President is the overall coordinator and is responsible to the Chamber for both projects. Butch White is the General Chairman of the Rodeo and Roy Faubion is President of Hall of Fame. These "three spark plugs" have a lot of wonderful people working to make both these projects a real success. They and their many committee members exemplify the real spirit of Hereford and the Deaf Smith County—Hustle Hustle!

The limited number of women chosen for membership in TCU's Ampersand chapter were selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship and service.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texans are going to get to vote on a new constitution this year after all. Final legislative agreement on the article-by-article revision proposal will send it to the polls November 4 for a showdown decision by voters. A major campaign is shaping up for the document, and several efforts can be expected against individual sections. At least, the revision is shorter, simpler and better organized than the present patched-up constitution. It would give the governor needed fiscal controls, appointive power and agency reorganization authority. The proposed unified court system is not without some strong criticism, as well as backing. The finance article requires uniform standards and procedures for tax appraisals and countywide appraisals. Counties, through the new local government article, would be able to change their governmental structure and adopt ordinances. Environmental protection would be mandated along with access to comprehensive health care and equal education. Voters will decide earlier on two constitutional changes—on April 22. On the ballot then are recommended "emergency" improvements in state employees' and school teachers' retirement programs and a $900 a month pay scale and expense account increases for legislators.

MONEY RUNNING OUT State revenues, rapidly shrinking in spite of a once-fat $1 billion "surplus," will be far short of needs for real school finance reform, two government officials maintain.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Legislative Budget Board chairman, predicted about $450 million to $500 million will be available after the general state budget is approved. LBB Director Tom Keel estimated the main budget "leftover" at $472.8 million. That's nearly $300 million below the most modest pricetag of major education finance bills backed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Hobby said the teachers will get a pay raise—less than they are asking—but many other provisions of the Briscoe and Texas State Teachers Association bills cannot be financed.

PRIMARY DELAYED Presidential preference primary legislation went to conference committee with initial Senate instruction to retain a self-destruct feature which would make the legislation effective for 1976 only.

Sponsors are still trying to get rid of the mandate so they can make the primary a permanent election procedure, unless repealed, as is the case with most laws.

WATERWAYS BILL PASSED The Senate designated Texas Highway Department as state sponsor for a joint state-federal effort to maintain 426 miles of Gulf Intracoastal waterways. The Department will cooperate by providing spoil disposal areas along the 426 mile main channel from the Sabine River to Brownsville.

COURTS SPEAK The State Supreme Court will review a Laredo case which Atty. Gen. John Hill claims may have major consequences for enforcement of deceptive trade practices court orders.

The High Court will also hear arguments May 14 in Exxon's appeal from a damage verdict following suicide of an Abilene truck driver who was injured earlier in a refinery accident.

Two wives of a Chambers County man who died in a Java Sea shipwreck in 1970 are entitled to inherit from his $51,031 insurance-and-unpaid wages estate, the Supreme Court held.

A $10,500 jury award to a Marshall farmer for pollution damage from Atlas Chemical Industries effluent was upheld by the High Court, but a $25,000 exemplary damages award was rejected.

The Court of Criminal Appeals reversed a rape conviction of four San Antonio men because their trial was not postponed to accommodate a lawyer-legislator who had been called into special session.

SHORT SHORTS Comptroller Bob Bullock reported unemployment payments climbed 25 per cent last month, to a March total of $20.4 million. The Comptroller said tax revenues will decline when unemployment payments exceed $1 million. Texas wheat farmers are expected to harvest a record 1975 crop, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White predicted.

FARM NEWS

Federal energy experts have announced plans to reduce by two decades the process of achieving widespread use of solar heating and cooling systems in the United States.

Feedlot Runoff Quality Can Now Be Predicted

Research at eight locations in five states has shown that runoff quantity and quality can be fairly well predicted from beef cattle feedyards in the Great Plains. This knowledge will enable feedlot operators to design adequate holding ponds for feedlots and develop systems for disposing water that accumulates. This will eliminate the hazard of polluting nearby streams or lakes. This was the conclusion of a study presented at the Third International Symposium on

Livestock Wastes by Dr. R.N. Clark, USDA Agricultural Engineer from the USDA Research Center at Bushland, Texas. Co-authors on the paper were Drs. C.B. Gilbertson and H.R. Duke, USDA Engineers located at the University of Nebraska and Colorado State University. Engineers from Texas A&M University, Kansas State University, and South Dakota State University contributed information for the presentation. The symposium was attended by scientists, educators, public officials, industry representatives. The symposium was attended by scientists, educators, public officials, industry representatives, and engineers from around the world. The American Society of Agricultural Engineers sponsored the meeting and the University of Illinois was host.

Research to determine the amount of runoff started in 1967 on the first of 8 locations in the Great Plains. Results from Sioux Falls, South Dakota; Ft. Collins, Colorado; Gretna and Mead, Nebraska; Pratt, Kansas; and Bellville, McKinney, and Bushland, Texas, were compared. "There was a linear relationship at all locations between precipitation and runoff," Clark stated. "In all feedyards studied, 0.4 inch of precipitation was required to initiate runoff. The amount of rainfall ending up as runoff from runoff-producing varied from 30 per cent at Bushland, Texas, to 73 per cent at Bellville, Texas." They also found that runoff was proportional to an annual moisture deficit which was defined as the difference between annual rainfall and annual evaporation. With this information, Dr. Clark showed how it would be possible to calculate runoff from any new feedyard location in the Great Plains. For example, the moisture deficit at Wichita, Kansas, is 24 (56 inches of evaporation - 32 inches rain). Under these conditions, about 50 per cent of the rainfall from runoff-producing storm would run off from a feedlot in that area.

"The quality of feedyard runoff was extremely variable even at a single location," Clark stated. The amount of organic solids in the runoff was higher than municipal sewage and was proportional to the number of animals per acre rather than the slope of the feedyards. Spreading the water on land was considered a more practical method of disposal than a treatment similar to that given municipal sewage. Total salts were closely related to the annual rainfall and were highest in areas with the least rain. Runoff from all locations was too salty to be used continuously as irrigation water without dilution. Runoff from snow was more salty than water loss after rain. Dr. Clark proposed that mixing 4 parts well or lake water with 1 part feedyard runoff would make feedlot runoff suitable for irrigating crops.

Recap of Farm Programs

(EDITORS NOTE: The following news release was furnished by Deaf Smith County ASCS, headed by Don A. Tatum who is county executive director. The Brand prints the article for benefit of area farmers regarding 1975 farm programs.)

acreage planted (or regarded as having been planted) to upland cotton within the farm allotment in the years 1969 through 1973 with adjustments in these acreages as required by law.

1975 UPLAND COTTON PROGRAM
Participation in the upland cotton program is voluntary. Full participation—eligibility for loans and deficiency and disaster payments—is open to all farmers who have an upland cotton allotment regardless of race, sex, color, religion, or national origin, whether they are owner-operators, landlords, tenants or sharecroppers.

Substitution of other crops for allotment preservation purposes is allowed. Any annual nonconserving crop or conserving crop used for hay or for grazing may be substituted to protect allotment history.

Allotments can be transferred by sale or lease to farms in other counties within the State. An owner may transfer acreage to another farm which he owns or controls in the same state.

The upland cotton allotment is 11 million acres. However, there is no limit on planted cotton acreage. The 1975 allotment will be used only to determine the maximum acreage eligible for payment.

A producer can lose his allotment history if he fails to plant or protect (lease, release, etc.) his cotton allotment. If less than 90 per cent of the allotment is planted (or regarded as planted), the allotment for the following year will be reduced up to 20 per cent. If the acreage planted or regarded as planted is zero for 3 consecutive years, the entire farm allotment will be lost.

The 1975 national allotment will be apportioned to States and counties on the basis of the

Farmers Reminded To Protect Soils From Wind

By RANDY UNDERWOOD
SOIL CONSERVATIONIST

April is one of the windiest months in Deaf Smith County and the High Plains. Even though we have had some rain this month, this area is still subject to wind erosion.

To protect the soil from wind erosion as much as possible is very important to a farmer.

Protecting the soil from wind erosion prevents the separation and gradual removal of silt, clay, and organic matter from soil surfaces. If these particles are removed, remaining materials may be sandy and infertile.

Wind erosion is caused by a strong turbulent wind blowing across an unprotected soil surface that is smooth, bare, loose, dry, and finely granulated. Soil particles start to move when wind forces overcome gravity.

More Nutrient To The Acre
Research shows that more food nutrients can be produced from an acre of sweet potatoes than from any other crop that can be grown on an acre.

In this area, soils should not be left smooth for any length of time because this will permit wind erosion to occur. If a soil does not have a vegetative cover on it the soil should be in a rough or cloddy condition. Cloddiness breaks or resists the forces of the wind and causes a sort of shelter for erodible soil particles. The bigger the clods in a field the more resistance to wind.

Leaving old stubble standing is another means of controlling wind erosion. The more stubble or residue that is left in a field the greater the resistance to wind erosion.

Vegetation is by far the best means of controlling wind erosion. A good vegetative cover will insure a farmer that almost no wind erosion will occur in a field.

When fields that have no vegetation on them are not properly treated and protected they will erode and can cause great damage to growing crops.

Wheat and sugar beets may be greatly damaged by soil particles resulting in decreased yields. In order to prevent this type of damage practice good conservation farming such as crop rotation, controlled grazing and emergency tillage when necessary to prevent erosion or slow it to a minimum. Be a good conservationist and help yourself as well as others around you. If you have any questions on wind erosion come by and visit your Soil Conservation Service Office.

Severe Wind Erosion

This USDA Conservation Service photo shows wind erosion which occurred January 27, 1973 when a cold front with 50-70 mile per hour winds came through the area. The field, located 16 miles west of Hereford, was bare of all crop residue and the topsoil was loose.

Research Indicates Manure Equal To Ammonia

Ten tons of feedlot manure annually will supply nutrients for grain sorghum as well as anhydrous ammonia or other commercial fertilizer. This amount of manure does not have a detrimental effect on crop or soil quality. These results, from

5 years of research, were summarized by Dr. A.C. Mathers, USDA soil scientist, at the Third International Livestock Waste Symposium at Urbana, Illinois. Dr. B.A. Stewart and J.D. Thomas, two other USDA soil scientists assisted Mathers with the experiment conducted at the USDA Research Center at Bushland.

The experiment was started in 1969 when large piles of manure were collecting adjacent to feedlots, and managers were looking for an inexpensive method of disposal. The researchers viewed feedlot waste as a valuable by-product and set out to determine its usefulness. Manure used in the research contained 50 per cent water, and contained 30 pounds of nitrogen, 6 pounds of phosphorous, 20 pounds of potassium, and 8 pounds of sodium per ton.

From 1969 through 1973, manure was applied annually to Pullman clay loam soil at 10, 30, 60, and 120 tons per acre. Other treatments were 240 tons per acre for the first year, and 240 tons per acre for the first 3 years of the study. These treatments were compared to annual applications of 120 pounds of commercial nitrogen alone per acre or 120 pounds of nitrogen combined with 50 pounds each of potassium and phosphorus per acre.

The greatest five year yield average 7446 pounds per acre, was from 10 tons of manure annually.

Mathers explained the conversion of manure to usable plant nutrients. When manure was mixed into soil, organic forms of nitrogen were converted into ammonia. Under aerobic conditions in the soil, ammonia was converted into nitrate which could be utilized by plants. Excess nitrate could accumulate in soil, be leached with water or be converted into nitrogen gas and escape into the air.

Surveying Wheat Damage

Justin McBride, county extension agent displays wheat suffering from frost damage north of Hereford. McBride explained that the damage has been unusual in that fields that appeared severely damaged by frost three to four weeks ago have recovered well while some showing little damage at that time have since shown more severe damage. Fields showing damage are widely scattered, and, according to McBride, the weather-stressed wheat is now susceptible to mosaic, root rot and other diseases. McBride reported that substantial yield reductions will probably result from the scattered frost damage.

Co-op couldn't supply everyone, either, but we never stopped trying to help.

There was a time when your driveway was full of salesmen asking for your business.

And then the shortages hit. The salesmen disappeared. Fertilizer salesmen, for example. Their companies were shipping fertilizer overseas for a premium price.

But not double-circle Co-op. Every pound produced by Farmland Industries, the Co-op supply arm, was delivered to patron-owners.

However, even Co-op couldn't supply everyone. All we could do was try our level best...and treat everyone as fairly as possible.

It was no accident that Co-op had fertilizer. A program to become self-sufficient began back in the Fifties.

Farmland Industries built a phosphate plant in Florida, nitrogen plants in Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska, an ammonium phosphate plant in Missouri.

Today four giant ammonia plants are being built in Canada, along with a 1,200 mile pipeline to move the output to you. New fertilizer facilities are going up in Oklahoma, North Dakota, Minnesota, Texas, Nebraska and Kansas. A big new ammonia plant just went on stream at Enid, Okla.

That's been the plan from the very beginning...farmers and ranchers doing together what they couldn't get done alone. Developing and operating the resources that could assure more of their future. Fertilizer plants. Refineries. Factories. Pipelines. Feed mills. All guided by farmers who put together the double-circle Co-op where you live.

It's why the CO-OP Farmer has more of the future in his own hands.

Funny Farm Unique Business

By LAVON NIEMAN
Brand Staff Writer

Larry Crump, Bill Reinaur,
L.D. Neumayer and Calvix
Mitts.

If anyone jokingly tells you that you can go to the funny farm... you really can! The Funny Farm is one of Hereford's newest businesses and might even be considered a small industry. The unique business is located at 101 Ave. E and is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Partners in the Funny Farm are Mmes. Danny Martin,

THE DECISION to start a business where they could all get together and work on arts and crafts was decided over a bridge table. The group has played in the same bridge club for several years.

"We thought it would be fun to have a place away from home where we and other friends could all sit around and talk and work on crafts," they related.

One partner spoke up and said, "but it really hasn't worked out that way. We all have so many children and are so involved in other things that it's hard for all five of us to be there at the same time." Because of this they have devised work shifts and it seems to be working successfully.

STARTING ON A shoestring budget, the five ladies leased a building Jan. 10 and spent two months getting it ready for their opening. The energetic businesswomen did all the remodeling of the building.

"The carpet was the biggest problem," they said. After purchasing used carpet, they moved it, cut it and laid it. "It almost killed us," they said with smiles on their faces.

One wall is covered with yellow and brown plaid fabric and their display tables are wooden wire spools that they have refinished. Window treatments are made of brown and white checked gingham.

For anyone who believes in free enterprise, these five ladies have really proved what it is. They not only make and sell wares that they hand make, but also take work done by other area craftsmen and artists on consignment. Some of their stock is bought from manufacturers for resale and they also sell many supplies of various types.

THE GROUP HAS several plans for the future. They are now teaching classes in macrame and plan to teach toile painting soon. They also plan to schedule several outstanding artists for showing and classes in the future.

Information Department at the telephone office now realizes there really is a Funny Farm in Hereford (364-5812), but when one patron called the first day it opened to find out the number, the operator told him she didn't have time for "funny business." He assured her he was quite serious. So are these ladies on their first business venture.

Scribbles and Scratches

By Kerrie Wombis
Women's Editor

GETTING READY FOR a wedding, whether the ceremony is extravagant or simple, can rob you of the last vestige of sanity. The only way to preserve some dignity throughout the affair is to simply take nothing seriously.

So what if your dimpled little darling is marrying a creep? Take comfort, your future in-laws are having the same notion. And who cares if the ringbearer accidentally got crayola on that gown that has made you a charter of the installment payment club?

What's the difference if you spend $85 on a dress for the rehearsal dinner and discover it's being held at McDonald's? Don't be upset merely because the happy couple insists on having the reception at a pizza parlor. After all, there must be lots of creative things that can be done with a champagne fountain covered with cherubs.

Have faith, it will all be worthwhile when the bride floats down the aisle on a cloud of marital bliss and the pair repeats profound statements akin to graffiti found on an alley wall. The organist is doing a fine job considering the three broken fingers she sustained trying to catch the altar bouquet when it crashed to the floor.

Marriages made in Heaven should be conducted there.

ONE FATHER OF the bride took a very philosophical view when the description of the wedding gown got lost on its way to Hereford. The Rev. Doug Manning, who gave away his daughter Glenda last night had some unusual suggestions for the wedding story.

"Let's just say she streaked," he advised.

Are you sure?
"No, well... it was white... and had lace."

"Yep, sounds like a wedding gown alright. Could you pin it down a little more?"

"Well you know how wedding gowns are," he laughed. "Just tell your readers 'if you've seen one, you've seen 'em all!'"

Mothers of brides always make up for their husbands' bewildering calmness so, true to course, Mrs. Manning relayed the description from Oklahoma. "White with lace" sounds fine to men, but the feminine species demand details.

BARBARA ALLEN, chairman of the summer Youth Program is searching for more volunteers to help with the SYP. A few days in June still have vacancies and spots are open from July 1-24.

Also, a parttime worker will be paid for supervision of the Community Center. This position is still open.

An enjoyable outlet for youngsters and volunteers alike, the SYP is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Women Division. Any assistance will be greatly appreciated. Contact Mrs. Allen at 364-1786.

SOUVENIRS FROM THIS County are being collected in small red net bags which will be given away by Monica Herring when she competes in the Miss Texas Pageant. So far, giveaway items include a small bag of holy sugar, a bottle of water from "the town without a toothache," a one pound bag of granola, and a smile button promoting the beef industry.

In addition to advertising local products, the gifts will help Miss Hereford get acquainted with the other 70 entrants. If you have something appropriate to contribute (remember, 70 items will be required) call Lavon Nieman, 364-2030, or the Chamber office, 364-3333 immediately.

ALL PROGRAM CHAIRMEN want publicity articles "where everyone will read them." Now, it is hoped that people read the whole paper, but if you missed the letter to the editor today from Mrs. Richard Zinser, please make a point of reading it.

Volunteers are needed to help instruct Red Cross Water Safety courses this summer. This program is vitally important to local citizens and needs your support.

TREASURED HEIRLOOMS which belonged to the late Brady Crider Smith will be offered at an estate sale May 1-3 at 112 Star. Mrs. Smith collected many beautiful items during her lifetime and her survivors hope to find new homes for these precious pieces.

STEVE LOERWALD, SON OF Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Loerwald of 715 Blevins, was finalist recently in broadcast journalism competition. Representing Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos, the school team captured their second sweepstakes award in two weeks.

The contest win was at the third annual Southeastern United States College Broadcast Conference in Monroe, La. They also took top honors in the broadcasting category of the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association. Loerwald is a 1974 graduate of Hereford High School.

OTHER HEREFORD YOUTH are in the news this week for outstanding scholastic achievement at Rice University, Houston.

Listed on the President's Honor Roll for the first semester of the 1974-75 school year are Stephen Dzuk and Miss Sharon Readhimer. Both graduates of Hereford High, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Dzuk Jr., Route 4, and she is the daughter of Mrs. Viola Readhimer of 213 Aspen.

KNOWN AS THE Moses of her people, Harriet Tubman receives a tip of the Bicentennial hat this week. Leading slaves to freedom during the Civil War, she herself was a refugee from slavery. More than 300 Negroes were aided by her enroute from the South to the free North.

She made 19 journeys in ten years into slave territories as a conductor on the Underground Railroad. A price of $40,000 was placed on her head and capture would have meant certain death.

Bride's Father Conducts Manning-Wells Marriage

Miss Glenda Sue Manning of Hereford and Steven Paul Wells of Edmond, Okla. were married Saturday evening by her father, the Rev. Doug Manning, at Highland Park Baptist Church, Edmond. Rev. Manning, pastor of First Baptist Church, was assisted by John Burns, director of the Edmond Baptist Student Union.

The bride's parents reside 231 Ranger Dr. Wells is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Wells of Edmond.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Misses Kathy, Cindy and Sandra Manning. Their floor-length gowns of royal blue fabric were accented by white lace bibs and cuffs.

Phil Rehrig of Edmond was the best man. Groomsmen included the bridegroom's brother, Mike Wells, of Richardson, and Phil Tucker, Dean Roberts and Ben White, all of Edmond.

John Rameriz of Edmond sang "Sometimes" and "Follow Me" as wedding selections. He was accompanied by Mrs. Lola Manning of Edmond, organist, and Wes Eades, who played the guitar during the latter song.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown with a full skirt, achieving a redingote affect with Chantilly lace. Crystal pleating outlined the entire skirt which was enhanced with pearlized beads.

The figurine bodice was sheathed in matching imported lace which formed a sheer Victorian neckline and long tapered sleeves. Lace and crystal pleating also outlined the detachable chapel length train.

Her bouffant veil of imported English illusion cascaded from a Juliet cap encrusted with seed pearls. Scalloped Chantilly lace entirely outlined the chapel length veil.

As an heirloom piece, she wore a pearl necklace of her mothers.

Bridesmaids carried nosegays of white daisies and babybreath clasped with royal blue ribbons.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for wedding guests at the Baptist Student Union building. Mrs. Ben White of Edmond presided at the registry.

The tiered white and yellow bridal cake topped with daisies was served by Miss Donna Wilson of Oklahoma City. Coffee and punch were poured by Miss Charlene Berry of Tulsa and Miss Patti King of Sallisaw, Okla. The centerpiece on the refreshment table was an arrangement of white daisies.

The couple will reside at Edmond.

Mrs. Wells is currently a junior student at Central State University at Edmond, where she is majoring in special education. She is a 1972 graduate of Memorial High School at Tulsa and attended Baylor University for one year. She is a member of the Council for Exceptional Children and of the Baptist Student Union.

A 1972 graduate of Edmond

High School, Wells is a CSU junior, majoring in English. Employed by Edmond Public Schools, he is president of the Baptist Student Union and a member of Kappa Delta Pi Honor Society in education.

At a business session during the afternoon, Mrs. Lewis Morrison of Amarillo, president, called for reports from standing committees. Announcements were made concerning the convention recently held at Brownsville.

Current officers were reinstated for the next year with a few new chairmen being selected.

Mrs. Joe McDade of Dumas was co-hostess to 16 women present.

The next meeting is scheduled at 10 a.m. May 16 at Canyon.

May Fellowship Day Planned

Church Women United of Hereford will celebrate May Fellowship Day on May 2 at First Presbyterian Church at 12 noon during a covered dish luncheon. Nursery services will be provided.

Since the first May Fellowship Day in 1933 it has been traditional for church women across the country to use the first Friday in May to emphasize the creative and healing relations that are possible among people in every community.

This year's theme, "Open to Live Fully," is an invitation to experience wholeness as persons, living life to the full, through personal growth and sharing in the lives of others. For Christian women this also means becoming open to those who have been damaged by society or cast out because of past acts, and to those who have been deprived because of economic circumstances.

Church Women United is committed in the seventies to open opportunities for women in transition. In an agenda that includes a full life for all, they will endeavor to broaden the consciousness of women, affirming their full personhood; to strive to rectify the injustices which saddle many women with educational, economic, and physical handicaps; to assist women in transition situations—housing and jobs for families moving from poverty to control of adequate incomes; re-entry of those handicapped by prison records.

On May Fellowship Day Protestant, Orthodox and Roman Catholic in 2,000 local units of Church Women United will celebrate a litany of dedication to be "Open to Live Fully." In many communities the focus of the worship service will be on "Women and the Prison System" or "Women in Poverty."

Finally, A Constitution

A proposed new Constitution for Texas is going to be submitted to voters of the state for their approval... or disapproval... next November.

Members of the state legislature, who wrangled for six months last year as a Constitutional Convention without being able to agree on any draft for submission, have now performed a seeming miracle by agreeing, after only a few days of deliberation, to submit the same basic document which they were unable to agree on at all last summer.

Whether the voters of Texas will agree that their labors were worth the time remains to be seen, but at least the people of Texas are going to get a look at what their Senators and Representatives have put together.

The people aren't going to be asked to take it all or leave it they will be given an opportunity to accept or reject it section by section. Any of the new sections which win majority approval in November will become a part of the Constitution of the State, replacing the like-numbered articles in the old document. And if one or more of the proposed new articles are rejected, the proposed new articles are rejected, the corresponding sections of the old Constitution will remain in effect.

The new proposals will be submitted in eight separate sections, to be voted on separately. Section One on the ballot will revise the first three Articles of the present Constitution, dealing with Separation of Powers, the Executive and Legislative. . . and these three Articles have been combined for voting purposes because they must stand or fall together. The remaining seven proposals will each deal with revision of one Article of the present Constitution.

Thus members of the Legislature seem to be trying, earnestly, to redeem themselves for their abject and costly floundering last year as a Constitutional Convention. We earnestly hope that they have done so. Senator Max Sherman and Rep. Bob Close who represent our district both think so, and we respect their opinions.

All of us will have an opportunity to inspect the proposed new Articles well before voting time. Let's reserve judgment until then.

Bob Close says "the new Constitution is not a perfect document, but it certainly is a vast improvement over what we have."

In the light of our experiences of recent years, we citizens of Texas should certainly be willing to settle for a lot less than "perfection" from our Legislature. "Improvement" will be most welcome.

The Canadian Record

The Bankruptcy Racket

The number of bankruptcies within the past year has increased alarmingly. The implications are several and all bad.

The depressed economy is, of course, the cause of many recent bankruptcies but an even more sinister cause is an unfortunate trend among many to exploit bankruptcy selfishly.

Because so many states allow debtors to enter into bankruptcy rather easily to evade payment of legitimate debts, and because of greater social acceptability of bankruptcy in this economy, the temptation to evade economic responsibility is often considerable.

There are those lawyers and others who now specialize and often encourage the filing of bankruptcy petitions. And in many states one who has avoided payment of debts through bankruptcy can quickly reacquire material wealth with no obligation to pay creditors who were thwarted by successful bankruptcy action.

Federal and state-level remedial action is needed to check what has become the flowering of a bankruptcy racket.

Network News & Power

Students of the subject have long realized the danger in the near-monopoly of three television networks in certain news situations. Being commercial organizations, and their news operations centered in the same city and unofficially coordinated, execs of the news departments of these three corporations determine what news most Americans get in many major situations, and how it will be played, or slanted.

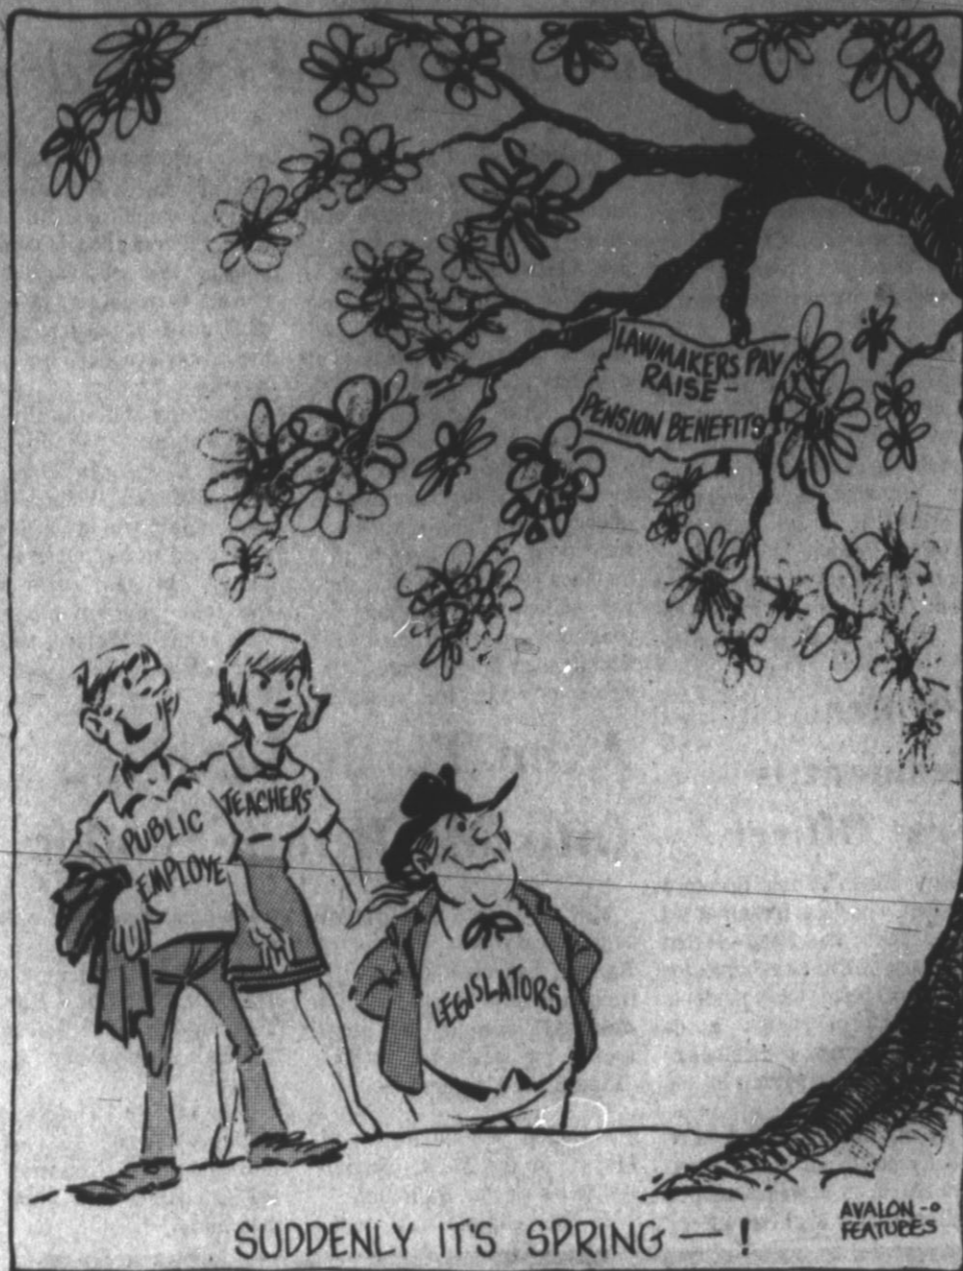

A good example is a presidential report to the nation. First, the execs decide whether it will be televised to the people. (After a few obvious outrages contrary to the public interest in recent years, the execs currently operate more carefully, and usually give the President television time—though they still have the power to deny even a Presidential television time to report to the voters.)

If the President is given time to report to the nation, news execs can even then schedule a panel of "experts" of their own choosing to demolish the President's arguments—if they choose, and negate his message. These commentators are much more clever at semantics than most Presidents. And if they, minutes after the President has spoken, say that he didn't really mean what he said about this, that he was obviously wrong about that, and, of course, has no chance to get what he asks for here, etc., their color public opinion as much as the President, perhaps more, for they have the last word—the classic rebuttal of debate.

What can be done about this danger? One proposal is that commentators wait at least an hour before rebutting a presidential speech. But this can be accomplished only by network policy, and there may be better approaches to the problem.

What is clear, and what is a danger in our society, is that a small group of network news execs exert more control over public opinion than any elected leader or outlet in the nation. Since the primary motivation of the networks is profit, not the public interest, and since the three near-monopoly networks are not responsible either to the elected government or to the people by an elective process, public opinion is, in effect, largely being controlled by commercial organizations (dominating their news organizations) and employees (commentators), whose political sentiments can easily be determined, and rewarded or penalized by the execs.

That would not be a danger if there were more competition in the field but there is little—public service television and educational stations. It is a danger because these corporation execs can mold public opinion (and often politicians) to their liking; their enormous power is greater than a President's—which recent Presidents have acknowledged. The traditional power of the press is no such danger because there are hundreds of major dailies and thousands of weeklies. But the instant nature of television and its domination by three commercial networks create this danger.

The Voice of Business

By ARCH BOOTH

WASHINGTON—I'll be retiring soon, after 32 years with the National Chamber. And this, therefore, will be my last column in this series.

It has been a rich fulfilling career. I wish I could share with you the highlights, but 500 words would hopelessly inadequate for that.

Nor do I want to end on a negative note, even though there are still plenty of balloons in need of puncturing.

Rather, I would first like to express my heartfelt thanks to the many editors, program directors, readers and listeners who pay more than lip service to the principle that all responsible viewpoints—including that of business—have a right to be heard.

And second, I would like to say a few words for this bruised, troubled, much maligned—but still great—country of ours.

There are so many things right with America that it's difficult to make choices. Even though we face some serious problems, we have the demonstrated strength and will and means to cope with them. Perhaps that in itself is enough to be said about "What's Right with America," but some other factors high on the list are these:

1. We have the greatest amount of freedom for the individual of any country in the world—freedom of choice of religion—of thought.
2. We have the greatest amount of incentive for individual productivity in the world.
3. We have the mightiest economic system on the face of the earth—in a slump now but with underlying strength of immense proportions.
4. We have the privilege of working in a market-regulated economy which maximizes individual effort means known of allocating human effort and resources efficiently.
5. We benefit from the spirit and practice of voluntarism in meeting our social economic challenges.
6. We have a growing concern for personal, governmental and commercial ethics and behavior.
7. We have a system of public education, higher learning and adult advanced study bringing a rich intellectual fulfillment to all who will accept its opportunities.
8. We have a religious heritage and spiritual encouragement second to none.
9. We have a health facilities and a medical delivery system of exceptional merit.
10. We emphasize home ownership, family environment and the neighborhood spirit to the immense advantage of all.
11. We cherish freedom of communications. We encourage the development and expression of informed opinion.
12. We have a highly productive and fertile soil, varied but favorable weather and a skilled, motivated, splendidly equipped agricultural community.
13. We have highly skilled, trained and motivated management and technological personnel.
14. We have some of the best skilled workers to be found.
15. We have a great wealth of investment capital—much of it awaiting encouragement to be used in the development of jobs and productivity.

I am neither a Pollyanna nor a Chicken-Little.

That list of fifteen can be expanded. And the critics can point flaws, exceptions, "yes, but's," in every one of them.

We are far from perfect. This is not a perfect world. But when all is taken into account, what is right with America is far worth to improve, to achieve, to share, to accept the responsibilities and burdens of leadership, to be neighborly and to become something more tomorrow than we are today.

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maguire

LONG WAY FOR LONGHORNS—Texas owes its best known breed of cattle to the Arabs.

The Texas Longhorns, an official breed of cattle only since February 20, 1965, is anything but a native of the Lone Star State.

Animal husbandry experts trace the origins of the Longhorn to North Africa where similar cattle with lyre-shaped horns have grazed for centuries. In 711, when Arab legions crossed the Strait of Gibraltar in their conquest of Spain, they brought their cattle with them.

There the Moroccan cattle mixed with Iberian breeds and produced several kinds of longhorns. The breed known today as the Texas Longhorn probably originated in the province of Andalusia, in southern Spain.

Some historians credit the Arabs with originating modern ranching once they had conquered Spain. In addition to cross breeding and improving their cattle, they built windmills and irrigation systems and introduced new crops. It was also their knowledge of navigation and mathematics that later enabled Spanish and Portuguese explorers to discover the New World.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?—Idalou, Lubbock County, was named for Ida Bassett and her sister, Lou. Their father was a rancher and the neighbors honored him by naming their new town after his daughters in 1911.

THE CHANGING TIMES—In early-day Dallas, butchers sold sirloin steaks for 20 cents a pound. Beef liver was free for the asking. Now one Dallas restaurant (Old Warsaw) is featuring a nine-course "English Dinner" at $90 per person. Plus tip, of course.

The meal, based on a menu said to be a favorite of King Henry VIII, takes five waiters and a wine steward four hours to serve. It includes oysters with caviar and champagne, bouillon of wild mushrooms, turbot poached Chablis with crayfish butter and a partridge pie with morels and truffles.

Strawberry ice follows these appetizers. Then comes the main course: baron of beef with artichokes, tomatoes and potatoes. There's also a salad, a selection of cheeses and the choice of plum pudding or half a dozen other desserts. A different wine accompanies each course.

For the diner on a budget, the restaurant offers a version with lamb instead of beef, no caviar and a selection of less expensive wines. The tab for this one is only $55.

IT'S A WOMAN'S WORLD—Elisabet Ney, the peppery Austin sculptress, was commissioned to do statues of Stephen F. Austin and Sam Houston for the Texas Pavilion at the 1892 Columbian Exposition in Chicago.

When the curator of the National Hall of Fame expressed concern over a height discrepancy between the statues of Austin and the six-foot-two Houston, Miss Ney was unruffled.

"If I am correctly informed," she retorted, "God made the two men. I merely reproduced their likeness. . . so you should take the matter up with God."

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner comes out in favor of rebates this week in his own way.

Dear Editor:

It used to be that people saved energy in order to keep their electric light bill down, not because it was patriotic or to prove something to a bunch of Arab oil barons.

I knew a man once who even turned the light off in his living room when he was listening to the radio, back in the days before television, on the reasonable grounds that you don't need light on the hear something. "What could be sillier," he asked, "than sitting in a brightly-lit room listening to the radio with your eyes shut?" If his bill ever went above the minimum $1.35 he'd call the power company to see if the meter was leaking.

What brought this to mind was an article I read saying the government is working on some energy-use standards to be enforced by law, and among these would be one requiring buildings to have windows that open. As I understand it, architects have gone wild in designing buildings with year-round "climate control" and thought they were saving energy by including windows that are sealed shut and are never intended to be opened.

On the moon, where the nights are 40 degrees below freezing and the days as hot as an oven, such a building might be necessary, but on earth it seems a little odd. It's like the stairway of the eccentric woman I read about recently. She had one built in her 40 room house that went nowhere. Just wound up against a blank wall.

It seems we're in peculiar shape when Congress has to pass a law prohibiting us from doing such things.

Nonetheless I'm in favor of this open-window regulation, but it doesn't go far enough. It's one thing to pass a law requiring a builder to install windows that open. What I want is a law requiring a window to stay up when it's raised. I'm getting tired of propping mine up with a stick.

Yours Faithfully, J.A.

 Letter to the Editor ***

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a letter sent to the city secretary and chamber of commerce offices here in appreciation for the help Hereford residents gave to the people of Lefors following the disastrous tornado which struck there)

Dear Friends,

We, the citizens of Lefors, greatly appreciate your concern during our time of need. May your generosity be repaid with multiple blessings.

With tremendous assistance from several government and nongovernment agencies, technicians, professionals, skilled and unskilled laborers, friends and relatives, and self-determination and spirit, we are quickly adjusting to our emergency situation.

Representative Phil Cates, who was raised in Lefors, and an entourage from Governor Briscoe's office, flew up from Austin to set in motion the procedure for President Ford's Declaration of Total Disaster. Because of their fast action, government housing has been moved in and very soon our displaced families will be temporarily relocated in mobile homes which are rent-free for one year. That length of time will enable these families to rebuild their own property as almost 100 per cent plan to do.

Our high school gymnasium has been literally inundated with all kinds of donations from far and near. The students are helping deliver boxes and everyone's immediate needs have been amply supplied. For this we are truly thankful.

Again, we are most grateful for your kind help and would appreciate your getting this information to your local media.

Very respectfully yours, J.J. Archer, Mayor City of Lefors

Marriage Vows Pledged At Candlelight Ceremony

Large bouquets of white gladiolas and chrysanthemums embellished the wedding altar Saturday for the candlelight marriage of Miss Beverly Mary Betzen and Daniel Joseph Wegman, both of Dallas.

Conducted in St. Anthony's Catholic Church, the ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Bernard McGorry, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Betzen of Dawn. Wegman is the son of Mrs. Philip S. Wegman of Wichita Falls and the late Mr. Wegman.

White satin draped the kneeling bench and bows of the material marked the pews. Miss Sylvia Betzen served her sister as maid of honor while the bridegroom's best man was his brother, Philip Wegman of Shawnee Mission, Kans.

Bridal attendants were Mrs. Joe Yakamovich, the groom's sister from Carrollton, Miss Dolores Sicking of Dallas and Mrs. Joe Rode of Hurst.

Assisting Wegman as groomsmen were Joe Yakamovich, Glen Georgia and Lawrence Pennartz, both of Dallas. Ushering guests to their seats were two brothers of the bride, Wayne and Tommy Betzen, and the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Jerry Coen of Dallas.

Lighting the candles at the side altars were Mark Betzen, brother of the bride, and John Warren Jr.

In addition to traditional wedding marches, Mrs. Joe Reinauer Sr. sang "More," "Whither Thou Goest," "Our Father," and "Wedding Prayer." Mrs. Jim Cramer accompanying the vocalist with organ music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white silk organza patterned in an A-line silhouette. Pearled peau d'ange lace defined the high-rise bodice featuring a sheer yoke, victorian collar and long fitted sleeves tapered to petal points with matching lace.

Pearl lace motifs were scattered across the gown's skirt sweeping into an attached train which fell from the back waist to chapel length. A wide border of satin encircled the hemline.

A Camelot crown suspended the silk English illusion veil trimmed in peau d'ange lace.

Carrying white roses and babybreath, she wore a diamond drop necklace, gift from the bridegroom.

Attendants were attired in apple green Quiana gowns trimmed in cluny lace which accented the high-rise bodice and butterfly sleeves. Matching lace also etched the V-neckline.

Each carried white daisy nosegays and wore coordinating flowers in her hair.

The wedding party greeted guests after the ceremony at a reception and dinner in the school auditorium. Mrs. Tommy Betzen was at the registry book.

Diane Kelley and Margaret McGraw, both of Dallas, served the three-tiered cake decorated with white roses and greenery. Green candles in crystal holders, wedding gifts from the bride's grandparents, formed the centerpiece on the refreshment table which was draped in white linen.

Dressed for a wedding trip to Guadalajara and Puerto Vallarta, Mrs. Wegman wore a white polyester knit dress with navy blue trim and accessories. They will be at home at Dallas after May 5.

A graduate of Hereford High School, Mrs. Wegman holds a bachelor's degree in home economics from the University of Dallas. She is currently employed as actuarial assistant by The Wyatt Company, Dallas.

Wegman, an accountant for Texas Oil and Gas Corporation, Dallas, has a bachelor of science degree from St. Benedict's College, Atchison, Kans.

Prior to the ceremony, the bridegroom's mother was hostess recently at a rehearsal dinner at Caison's Steak House. Numerous out-of-town wedding guests included:

The Jim Clements family, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Clements and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reinart, all of Dumus; Mr. and Mrs. O.A. Carroll of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Miller of Albuquerque.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ridder of Marienthal, Kans., Mrs. Marie Bogner and Anthony of Girard, Kans., Mrs. Kent Cooper of Kansas City, Kans., Mr. and Mrs. M.J. Betzen of Andale, Kans.

Bereaved Persons Require Friends

Whether a person emerges stronger or weaker from the ordeal of bereavement is often determined by the kind of help he gets during the period of trouble, Roberta Dix, family life education specialist, said this week.

"Grieving people need to talk to work it out. And understanding the phases of bereavement could make it easier to comfort a friend," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

"The emotional journey for the bereaved usually lasts one year and is broken up into three phases: impact, recoil and recovery."

She explained that the impact stage usually shows the person functioning in character. Everything is automatic, and life seems animated. Indifference to immediate needs and lowered concentration levels might occur, the specialist said.

"Friends are greatly needed during the recoil phase. The person is depressed, angry toward the world, and usually wants to discuss the deceased and details of the death. But since the time between death and this phase may be months, friends are usually less attentive by this time," she said.

Recovery phase shows the person looking to the future and letting go of the past. At this time, he is really to return to the mainstream of life but may need help in understanding how to make new social contacts as a single person, she pointed out.

Purchasing Hints Help

Before making an unplanned purchase, it's a good idea to analyze the spending motives. Consumers might ask themselves why they really want the item. It's best to avoid spending because of boredom or as an unnecessary indulgence, advises Mrs. Lillian Chenoweth, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Comings And Goings At King's Manor

By FAY GAUGEL

BOOK REVIEW

ON Friday evening, April 18, Manorites were fortunate in having a book review given by Oressa Hastings Delaney of Clarendon who is a niece of our own Ina Hastings.

Mrs. Delaney taught English for several years in Clarendon, then changed to the field of library science and is librarian in a Clarendon high school. She was a guest in the cottage of Mrs. L.N. Cox. Hence, Mrs. Cox introduced the speaker as well as other out of town guests.

Mrs. Delaney examined the book, entitled "The House of Many Rooms" by Rhodella Hunter. Written in the first person it was the story of the Woodrow family. There were many characters and offspring in the huge family and Mrs. Delaney did a superb task of keeping them all straight and properly related, as well as keeping in character as she impersonated each one. Her enunciation left nothing unclear.

This big family were Mormons although Mama and Papa apparently did not practice polygamy. They rounded out long years during a beautifully devoted relationship.

Prilla Lou Woodrow wrote the book as her memoirs.

Papa was a preacher and a marshal of the law. Once an anti-polygamy manifesto was proclaimed, and when Uncle Jim was arrested, so many of his irate progeny came to his aid, armed to the teeth, that some venerable sage declared that and man who could sire such an army should be freed. That ended the confrontation.

Papa built, for his bride, a one room log house to which he later added room by room on different levels as the family grew. Every one must needs watch his step, Papa insisted.

The day after his marriage, Kate, his bride, ran home to her parents. But next day Papa went for her and she came home willingly.

Mama started the family with girls, two of whom were twins named June and July. They were distinguished by one's having a bump on her toe. Papa was thrilled when boys began to bless the home. There was lots of work to do and boys could stamp down hay in the wagon better than girls.

Papa once said "Deliver me from women melling 'round at a 'Birthin' Party'." Once one of the Woodrow Girls would not leave the "Birthin' Party." She hid out in the bushes to learn. But she didn't have much fun because she got so hungry on the watch.

She was caught but Mama forgot to punish her. Candide was a paradox of charm and downright meanness. Once at Papa's church service she hid in the attic of the meeting room. The plastering gave way under one foot and one scrawny angular leg could be seen hanging through the ceiling.

Meanwhile, the children's bedrooms became bedlam from pillow-fights and other horse-play. Window panes broke out and stiff pasteboards were saved avidly to substitute for panes. At last two bedrooms were built on one level.

The war broke out, Prilla Lou's sweetheart, Colton Hanks, went to war as did many of the young blades. Mama had dreams which turned out to be true. Psychic or mystical she must have been. Rollo bought a car. The family gathered around the reed organ in the evenings and sang war songs.

The sadness entailed by wars were many and keen. Some Woodrows died naturally but from elsewhere in the family came orphans or other unfortunates to fill in the gaps.

Once papa was called on his two-year Mission Service stint. All the family had to pitch in and work. They had a paper route, they sewed, worked in a movie house, picked gooseberries (ick icky groaned Prilla Lou) and they made hay in the fields (Prilla Lou gets icky even now remembering it.) When Mama wrote to Papa each child was asked to add his own line.

Came the day Papa was to come home. Mama's clean up detail was exactly described! Every item in the house had to come down, out, off, or whatever for the operation.

Paragraphs could be written on the shenanigans and goings on in this house.

One of the boys put turpentine in the baby's bottle. Another served Mama tea, then told her he had spat in it. Another, after years of secretly desiring to do so, folded himself in Mama's folding bed. One of the girls had been putting beet juice on her lips to wear to school daily.

At length the time came for Mama and Papa to celebrate their wedding anniversary. Mama went to a hair stylist for a new coiffure. Arriving home, she typically tore it all down and wore it as always and as befits one who has the innate taste to appear as he saw her.

Papa said, "I always knew you as the prettiest girl in the world. Now I see you are the Prettiest Woman in the World!"

Their life in the "House of Many Rooms" was the perfect preparation for their transferral to "The House of Many Mansions."

We again laud our speaker and hope she will come again to entertain us.

Refreshing punch and cookies concluded the occasion.

Elected for the new year were Gene Guynes, Wally Shelton and Ed Sowell, vice president; Dale Kleuskens, secretary; Jim Lilley, treasurer; Jau Don McCathern, lion tamer; Bill Cornette, tail twister.

To fill vacancies on the board of directors, Danny Sides and Ray Stewart were named directors.

Stamps Unveiled

The design of a block of four 1975 commemorative stamps honoring the 200th anniversary year of the U.S. Military Services was recently unveiled in Washington at the Smithsonian Institution.

The unveiling followed a philatelic dedicatory lecture by Edward Vebell of Westport, Connecticut, the designer of the stamps. His subject was "Military Uniforms of the United States."

The Lecture was the second of four scheduled for 1975 under joint sponsorship of the U.S. Postal Service and the Smithsonian Institution. All relate to the issuance of U.S. postage stamps.

The stamp designs depict uniforms worn by the Continental Army, Navy, Marines and Militia during the Revolutionary War. The stamps will be issued July 4 in Washington.

Issuance of the stamps continues Postal Service recognition of the Bicentennial of the American Revolution.

Each of the stamps shows a member of the Continental armed forces attired in a uniform of his service. Across the top of each stamp, in one line of red type, appears the designation of the service preceded by "Continental." In the lower right corner, also in red, appears "US 10c."

The official symbol of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration appears on each stamp.

The stamps will be printed by the gravure method on the Adreotti press. The individual stamp size is 0.84 x 1.44 inches or 21.3 x 36.5 millimeters.

First day cancellation requests should be addressed to "Military Services Stamps, Postmaster, Washington, DC 20013." The cost is ten cents per stamp to be affixed, and remittance should be by check or money order instead of cash. Postage stamps will not be accepted as payment.

Self-addressed envelopes must be enclosed with the order. Each envelope should be marked lightly in pencil in the upper right corner showing which stamps are desired. The return address should be written low and well to the left, especially when the order is for the block of four. A filler of postal card thickness in each envelope helps to assure clear cancellations and to prevent damage to the envelope.

Orders must be postmarked no later than July 4.

Delegates To Meet At Abilene May 3-4

Jehovah's Witnesses of the local spanish congregation will cancel their meetings of May 1-4 to celebrate their semi-annual assembly to be held at the Display Building in the Fair Grounds in Abilene, May 3-4.

Delegates from Lubbock, Big Spring and other surrounding cities will attend.

Filomeno Lopez, presiding minister of the local congregation said that "In view of the moral breakdown that the world is experiencing today and the lack of faith in God, the purpose of the assembly is to help its delegates to continue preaching the good news of the kingdom vigorously and to give them knowledge of the snares and pitfalls that cause one to break faith in God, as is manifested by the theme of the assembly, Keep Your Senses, Be watchful, based on 1 Peter 5:8.

"The elders in the congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses," continued Lopez, "realize that shepherding involves protecting the flock and keeping it well fed spiritually not for material gain but out of love. The assembly program is designed for Bible instruction and will enable Witnesses and others present to apply Christian principles more fully to their every day lives."

About 800 delegates are expected to be present when the talk "Stand Still And See The Salvation Of Jehovah," will be given Sunday May 4, at 2 p.m. by W.E. Malenfant.

HOW'S The Electric Company DOING?

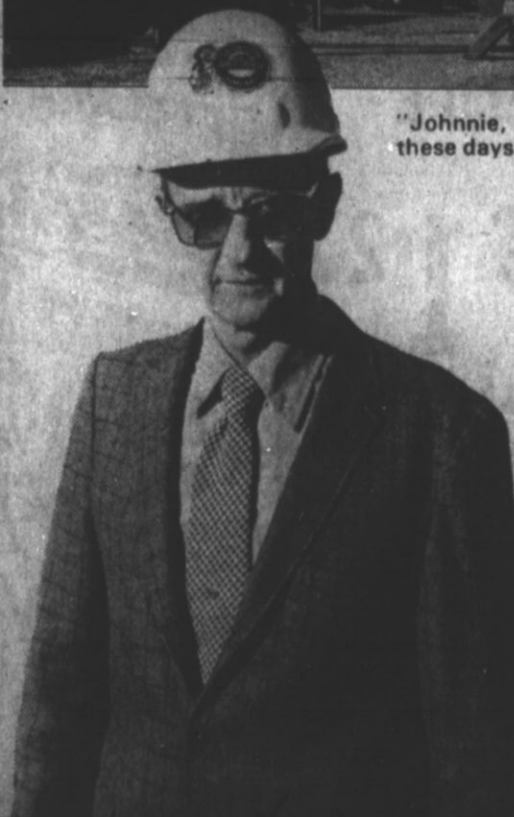

Let's ask Johnnie Cowan, division stores superintendent . . .

"Johnnie, what are poles costing these days?"

"This pole, like the one in back of your house, cost $35.70 in 1962, now it costs $81.35, a 128% increase.

That's part of the reason the cost of electricity is up somewhat . . . everything costs us more . . . and if we don't replace wornout things . . . well, your electric service will suffer. We don't want that, and we're sure you don't.

The Carson & Barnes five ring circus will hold two performances in Hereford Wednesday. Circus performances will be held at 4:30 and 8 p.m. east of the city on Highway 60 and the Maple Street show lot.

Performances in America's largest tent circus will include many trained animal acts along with aerialists, jugglers, wire walkers and trapeze and novelty acts. The show also carries the largest portable zoo and menagerie on the road today.

Included among the animals are over 25 elephants, monkeys, camels, llamas, Guanacos, lions, tigers, yak, zebra, alpaca, wallabies, hyena and many other animals. The menagerie and zoo will be open to everyone visiting the show grounds on circus morning. The animals will also be seen by ticket holders entering the big tent.

Elephants trained for the purpose will assist in setting up the circus. Setting-up operations will begin about 9 a.m. and will continue for about two hours. The public is invited to watch the operation.

According to Floyd E. Hill, press representative for the circus, the show moves on 44 transport trucks and trailers. Over 200 people are included in the company and over 60 individuals will appear in the performances.

Step Lightly
