Chamber Banquet Sold Out

Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce directors decided last year that the only way they might have a successful, and therefore profitable. chamber banquet was to spend money.

They spent, going after a famous speaker, and watched this week as the banquet paid for itself--and them some.

Last year's banquet, though not a failure, was far from a sellout and disappointed directors. Tonight's banquet, on the other hand, has no more available seats, a waiting list of 30 and the prospect of the chamber making a few bucks.

Jerry Clower, who holds the distinction of being the country's best-known country comedian, will display his folksy talents to a full house of approximately 800 persons tonight in the Bull Barn.

Clower, named four times as country comic of the year and co-host of "Nashville on the Road," a national television show, is one of the most sought-after banquet speakers in the country.

Another highlight of the banquet will be the announcement of the "Citizen of the Year."

Directors and officers will be introduced tonight. Ken Rogers, president of Lone Star Agency, will be presented as chamber president. succeeding Speedy Nieman, who will serve as master of ceremonies.

New officers and directors who were formally installed last week at a dinner include Jake Webb, vice president; (See BANQUET, Page 2)

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - School districts that give reductions in property taxes should be repaid from state sales tax collections, Gov. Dolph Briscoe told the new Legislature.

Briscoe presented the legislators Wednesday with his recommended state budget for 1980-81 that calls for total spending of $19.7 billion, an increase of $1.7 billion over the previous two-year budget.

It would leave enough out of expected state income the next two years for a $1 billion tax reduction. Briscoe said.

Earlier the Legislative Budget Board, made up of House and Senate financial leaders, recommended a budget of $20.8 billion for the next two years, which would leave about $100 million to be spent on new programs or tax relief.

"If it were possible to cut $1 billion and still maintain the current level of Budget Board would have done it," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, chairman of the LBB. said after Briscoe's speech.

Gov.-elect Bill Clements, who will be inaugurated Jan. 16 as Texas' first Republican governor in 105 years, is expected to recommend about Feb 1 a budget that also will leave about $1 billion for tax reduction.

Briscoe told the legislators he was proud that "you and I could pass to him (Clements) an unprecedented surplus and anticipated income in excess of the current rate of expenditures of over $2.8

Caucus Can't Stop Clayton Rule Changes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - One dissident House member laughed bitterly Wednesday and told Speaker Bill Clayton, "I think I see the writing on the wall." And he was right. Clayton easily overcame the new legislative session's first test of his power.

The House voted 120-5 for procedural rules sought by Clayton and clobbered repeated efforts by members of the Sam Houston Caucus to change them.

Lawmakers meet in joint session today for the largely ceremonial task of officially counting election returns for governor and lieutenant governor.

Totals issued by Secretary of State Steve Oaks show Republican Bill Clements defeated Democrat John Hill, 1,183,839 to 1,166,979, but Clements' election was unofficial until certified by the Legislature. There was a chance the House might work late and make its decision in the election contest filed by Kae Thomas Patrick, a Republican who lost by 738 votes to Rep. Don Cartwright, D-San Antonio.

A select committee that heard testimony in Patrick's challenge completed its report Wednesday night and recommended that Cartwright be seated as the legally elected winner.

Conceding that procedural and mechanical irregularities in the District 57-H election wouldn't have affected the outcome, Patrick's lawyer challenged the 1973 state law that changed the district boundaries.

Tom Joseph of San Antonio told the select committee Wednesday that the Legislature had no right to revise district lines drawn in a federal court order.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The surgeon general says he has "overwhelming" evidence that smoking causes death and disease. What he doesn't have is a way to help people stop.

Those were among the conclusions in a 1,200-page report issued today by Surgeon General Julius Richmond in a "review and reappraisal" of research accumulated over the past 15 years. "This document reveals, with dramatic clarity, that smoking is even more dangerous - indeed, far more dangerous than was supposed in 1964," said HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. "It is hoped that in another 15 years we will not have to say, 'We still don't know what works!" in helping people stop smoking, said Richmond.

"That was feeding the fire, and it was

Commenting before the report was released, the Tobacco Institute predicted it would be "more rehash than research" and issued its own 168-page report saying the "preoccupation with smoking may be both unfounded and dangerous...because evidence on many critical points is conflicting...and it diverts attention from other suspected hazards."

The new surgeon general's report is based on no specific new research and contained no startling new conclusions. Its thrust is that the volume of research carried out since the initial surgeon general's report 15 years ago makes all the more certain the conclusion that smoking contributes to cancer, heart disease, bronchitis, emphysema and other ills.

That first report created a furor and led to the now-famous warning printed on each pack of cigarettes sold in the United States: "Warning: The Surgeon General has Determined That Cigarette smoking

Is Dangerous to Your Health." Unlike the initial report, the main findings in the new study generally have been reported separately as the research which led to them was completed. Much of the material incorporated in the new report was contained in 10 earlier reports to Congress, the most recent one last fall on the sharp increase in lung cancer among women. Among the findings re-emphasized in the latest report:

-That smokers, male and female, die from a variety of ailments at a rate two-thirds higher than nonsmokers.

·The risk goes up as the amount smoked goes up. For example, two-pack-a-day smokers have a death rate twice as high as nonsmokers. And a 30 to 35-year-old smoker can expect to die eight or nine years earlier than a accident scene.

-Women are dying from lung cancer at a rate three times as high as in 1964. The disease may overtake breast cancer as the leading cause of cancer deaths in women "if present trends are not reversed during the next decade."

-Cononary heart disease from smoking causes more premature deaths than lung cancer and other lung diseases.

-Pipe and cigar smokers "experience overall mortality rates that are slightly higher than those of nonsmokers, but at rates substantially lower than those of cigarette smokers."

-Smokers of low tar and nicotine cigarettes run lower risks of lung cancer and coronary heart disease, but "may in fact increase their hazard if they begin smoking more cigarettes or inhaling more

-Youngsters who smoke may suffer immediate harm in the form of lung damage and respiratory problems.

.90 percent of the people who smoke have either tried to quit smoking or would probably quit, if only they could find an effective way to do so.'

Citing soaring lung cancer rates among women and risks posed to fetuses and newborn babies by smoking mothers, Richmond said the "report's findings have grave public health implications for women of all ages."

The report suggested it may be harder for women to quit smoking, perhaps because they worry more than men about gaining weight.

HEW estimates that although 54 million Americans still smoke, 30 million have quit since 1964, and the percentage of adult smokers has dropped from 42 percent then to an estimated 33 percent in 1978 - "its lowest recorded point in 30 years."

The smoking rate among men plummeted from 53 percent in 1964 to 39 percent in 1978, but among women it has remained "virtually unchanged at about 30 percent," said Richmond. It has shot up among teenage girls, 15 percent of whom now smoke, about the same percentage as teenage boys.

The huge report contains 13 chapters on biomedical research, five on behavioral research and four on smoking education. It lists 50 authors and nearly 100 scientists and experts in and out of government who wrote or reviewed the $250,000 report.

Richmond expressed conern about statistics showing that minorities smoke more than whites and suffer high lung cancer death rates. Blue-collar workers also smoke more and "are especially susceptible to the combined effects of cigarette smoking and exposure to toxic industrial agents." he warned.

Bentsen Seeks Gas Pact with Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says failure to sign a natural gas supply contract with Mexico would be a "grave mistake" contrary to the interests of both the United States and Mexico.

The Texas Democrat took exception Wednesday to comments made by Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger before a group of petroleum analysts in New York.

Schlesinger said the United States should place a higher priority on developing domestic gas supplies. His remarks came as President Carter prepares to travel to Mexico City to meet with President Lopez Portillo regarding energy matters.

Last year, Schlesinger said Mexico's national oil company - Pemex - was asking too high a price and blocked a gas deal between Pemex and six American companies.

"You cancelled an agreement for the purchase of Mexican natural gas on the grounds that it was too expensive; now you appear to be arguing that because it is too cheap it will suppress the development of domestic gas supplies." Bentsen said Wednesday.

"I strongly disagree... I do not believe we are in an either-or situation - either we develop our domestic reserves or we import more foreign supplies.

'It is an unfortunate fact of life that for the forseeable future the United States is locked into a position of reliance on foreign energy sources for a significant portion of our energy needs."

Bentsen added that is "fortunate that such promising petroleum reserves have been found in Mexico, a country that is not only a neighbor, but a friend and a major purchaser of U.S. products.

were some signs of improvement. The cost of intermediate goods rose 0.6 percent and the cost of crude goods, the earliest stage of production, slowed markedly to 0.4 percent because of a decline in crude food prices. However, food at the intermediate level was still a high 1.2 percent. The administration is trying to cut its budget and promote its wage and price standards as a way to fight inflation.

Alfred E. Kahn, who heads the anti-inflation program, told the National Urban Coalition Wednesday that "the prescribed medicine for inflation is restraint" by government and the public.

As part of the anti-inflation effort, he said, more money cannot be spent to fight unemployment, to rebuild the cities or to pay for universal medical care.

His audience was not pleased "What kind of restraint would you suggest for an elderly woman living alone who cannot afford medical care and enough food to eat?" asked Donald McCullum, an Oakland, Calif., judge.

Kahn responded, "I would, if I could, impose a minimum level below which a sacrifice would not be imposed."

Joseph Rhodes, a state representative from Pennsylvania, told Kahn he could "kiss goodbye" to the anti-inflation program if the military budget is increased while other countries are making what he called inadequate contributions to NATO.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said he hasn't detected much support on Capitol Hill for President Carter's proposal to offer "inflation insurance" to workers who limit pay increases to less than 7 percent. "The reaction has been rather bland...not enthusiastic," Byrd said. Workers who comply with the 7 percent limit on wage increases would be eligible for a tax credit of up to 1 percent of their first $20,000 in wages for each percentage point the cost of living rises above 7 percent.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability, which Kahn heads, said Wednesday private wage-insurance plans similar to Carter's federal proposal will not be allowed under the administration's voluntary guidelines.

Cost-of-living increases granted employees by companies were to be included under the 7 percent pay-hike limit, but the council had approved a Minnesota company's wage-insurance plan which would have circumvented that requirement, the council said. That approval will stand, but the council's new rules forbid other companies from following suit.

Also Wednesday, the Bank of America, the world's largest commercial bank, issued a report predicting a 7.5 percent to 8 percent inflation rate this year.

Hogs, A&M Tie Tech For Lead

By CHARLES RICHARDS Associated Press Writer

Texas A&M and Arkansas have moved into a first-place tie with Texas Tech in the early Southwest Conference basketball race, and Guy Lewis is trying to get over what he terms "the most embarrassing moment of my life."

Tenth-ranked Arkansas nailed down its 10th win without a loss Wednesday night, riding Sidney Moncrief's 23 points to a 79-66 victory over Rice.

And 11th-ranked Texas A&M exploited a frigid 7 percent shooting performance by Houston in the second half for a 69-43 conquest, the third in five days by SWC opponents over the Cougars on their home court.

Tech, A&M and Arkansas lead the league with 2-0 marks. Texas is 2-1. Baylor 1-1. Rice 1-2. SMU 0-1, TCU 0-2 and Houston 0-3. Baylor plays Tech at Lubbock in tonight's only game involving SWC schools.

Houston's full-court press harassed Texas A&M into 14 first-half turnovers Wednesday night, and the Aggies led only 39-38 at the half.

But Houston then collapsed. The Cougars scored only five points the second half, going the last 11:54 of the game without scoring as the Aggies ripped off the final 19 points, turning a 50-43 lead into a runaway.

"This is the most embarrassing moment of my life. I'm embarrassed for myself, the fans and my team." a downcast Lewis said, hanging his head as he talked with writers after Houston's loss to the Aggies.

"The first half wasn't bad. We played well. But in the second half, I think some of our so-called good shooters were worried about their shooting and were trying to guide the will advance to competition to ball."

Rice finally scored again, but Arkansas exploded again for a 23-6 lead after eight minutes and Rice never got closer than 12 points the rest of the night. Delbert Darden led the Owls with 29, which upped his career points to 889 in SWC games, a Rice record. Kendall Rhine scored 875 in 1962-64. Scott Hastings, a 6-foot-91/2 freshman, started his first game for Arkansas and responded with six points and five rebounds in 17 minutes of play. U.S. Reed scored 13 for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, held to 12 points for three periods, came alive in the final quarter. He scored eight points in the last period, pulled the Lakers into an 89-89 tie with 3:11 remaining and then took command on defense. Don Fort put the Lakers in front to stay by scoring from inside and Lou Hudson drove in for a basket to make it 93-89. Boston managed just four points in the last 41/2 minutes in suffering its fifth consecutive loss.

76ers 123, Jazz 112

Julius Erving scored 28 points, 17 in the third quarter, as Philadelphia snapped a two-game losing streak. New Orleans' Leonard "Truck" Robinson lead all scorers with 29 points as the Jazz lost their fifth straight game and 16th of their 17 road games this season. Newly acquired Spencer Haywood scored 27 for the Jazz. Erving's 17 points in the third quarter helped boost the 76ers to a 92-75 lead after three

Bulls 120, Nets 116

Artis Gilmore scored 29 points and John Mengelt and rookie Reggie Theus combined for 50 more to lead Chicago. The Bulls took a 95-87 lead into the fourth quarter but Eddie Jordan and Bernard King keyed a Nets comeback that gave them a 110-108 lead with less than two minutes to play. Theus hit two free throws to bring the Bulls even before Mengelt connected on a 15-foot jump shot with 37 seconds left to give the Bulls the lead for good at 116-114. Mengelt finished with 24 points and Theus 26.

Davis declined to disclose the location for the meeting. stating, "there are factions that might try to disrupt any negotiations if they knew where the meeting is to occur."

The farmer delegation will meet with an undisclosed official of the corn purchasing division of Frito-Lay, from Dallas.

"Frito originally wanted to meet with only two representatives of the bargaining association, but we managed to persuade them to meet with four instead," Davis explained.

Corn producers meeting in Dimmitt yesterday were seeking to build on the organizational initiative of the new bargaining group after its formation during a meeting in Dimmitt last Friday.

The group received a charter from Austin on Monday.

Members of the bargaining association's board of directors include Jerry Don Glover of Parmer County; Pat Robbins. Parmer County; Ray Joe Riley. Hart-Sunnyside; A.W. Anthony, Friona; Kenneth Christie, Summerfield; Harold Bob Bennett, Hart; Dave Thompson. Parmer County; Floyd Light. Olton; and Jim Dowdy and Wayne Clarke, Moore County.

During yesterday's meeting, corn producers approved annual dues of $10 in the bargaining association, with a checkoff on corn produced by members to be set at the discretion of the board of directors.

Issuing A Warning

Jay Boston of Hereford emphasizes the need for caution in the production of white corn for food purposes during a meeting of the High Plains Farm Marketing Association, Inc. in Dimmitt yesterday. Boston warned that yields of white corn are lower than yellow corn, and a few cents more for white corn over yellow won't necessarily mean profits to the farmer. Boston, along with numerous other farmers who met in Dimmitt yesterday, advocated a contract price for corn which will meet the cost of production and allow a profit. "The 1977 act has a provision allowing the secretary of agriculture to raise crop loan rates to 90 percent of parity at his discretion. We will be asking Congress to mandate to the secretary of agriculture that this provision be fully implemented." explained Key Crawford of the Hereford AAM office, which serves as state headquarters.

"Tractors from all over the area are converging on Bushland, west of Amarillo at this time. We have tractors from New Mexico, the Friona area, as well as Hereford and the Bushland vicinity gathering there," Edwards reported.

"The route will take the farm protest through major cities, and the activity will be highly visible because of the tractors. The tractorcade is a tool to create awareness in the urban areas of the country, where there still isn't full awareness of the agriculture problem." Crawford explained.

Mounting the tractorcade is proving an expensive undertakreport that driving a tractor to Washington and hauling it home again will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000, including transportation expenses.

The local AAM office has been accepting donations to help sponsor tractors in the rolling protest for months, and numerous farmers who are not taking tractors to Washington are expected to make their own way to that city to meet the tractorcade when it arrives.

The tentative arrival date in Washington is Feb. 2.

Planning Should Begin Now for Top Sorghum

sorghum is a time-proven crop under the rugged growing conditions of the Texas Panhandle. With declining water tables, sorghum is re-emerging in importance as a viable crop locally. But, agronomists warn, proper planning is essential to production success. In this two-part series, TAES agronomists look at planning proce-

"County agents have information available about hybrid performance in county demonstrations and in replicated yield tests by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station," Petr said. Consider such additional factors as standability, tolerance to important area diseases and insects as well as maturity requirements.

tions, later maturing hybrids produce the highest yields. Over a year's full season, hybrids have yielded nearly 1,000 pounds per acre more midseason hybrids, but usually required an extra irrigation to achieve the added production. Early hybrids work well to escape drought, avoid midge infestations and for late planting. Their maximum yield potential, however, averages about 1,000 pounds per acre less than the midseason types.

Proper seedbed preparation is essential under conventional tillage systems, Petr stressed. Incorporating crop residues well in advance of planting time is helpful to attain a firm and uniform zone for seed place-

"It is essential to avoid tilling the soil when it is too wet. When bedding the land for furrow irrigation, it is important to avoid penetrating into the very wet or saturated soil at the bottom of the furrow."

When this soil is thrown on top of the beds, it is quickly dried by the sun and wind to form hard clods. This makes it difficult to get good contact of the seed with the soil and usually results in thin, spotty stands. To avoid the cloddy problem, it is usually best to or delay the operation until the problems encountered in limited excess moisture moves further tillage planting.

Removing some of the excess In limited tillage systems, the loose residue for hay and leaving the stubble anchored soil tilth in the seed zone is usually makes it possible to do a usually comparatively good good job of planting, even with unless it has been compacted by prolonged grazing or by conventional equipment. Policies to guide the threemillion-member AFBF will be formulated at its Miami Beach conclave. Several recommendations from the Texas Farm Bureau were forwarded from the TFB's convention in late November in Dallas.

Main speakers at the AFBF meeting will be former. California Governor Ronald Reagan; Ambassador Robert S. Strauss. President Carter's special representative for trade negotiations; and AFBF President Allan Grant of Visalia, Texans will play a prominent part in the national convention. Chaloupka will be chairman of a conference on group purchasing. Ed Uvacek Jr., Texas Agricultural Extension livestock marketing specialist, will address the livestock conference on the subject of "Livestock and the Meat Situation.'

In addition, the TFB's 1978 Outstanding Young Farmer, Thomas Paben and his wife, Dianne, of Waller in Harris County, will represent Texas in the competition to select the nation's Outstanding Young Farmer/Rancher of the year. Paben's operation consists of peanuts, soybeans, and beef

Other official representatives from Texas will be winners of the state competition for Queen, Talent Find, and Discussion Meet.

The TFB convention delegates in late November approved a long list of recommendations for national policy. Included were resolutions dealing with farm programs, inflation, export markets, imports, government regulations, energy, and water. The farm program recommendation called for balancing supply with demand. Producers would be encouraged to set aside additional acres in return for higher target prices, with each producer having options to select the best combination of set aside and target price which best suits his operation.

"A trend for what?" asked Pat.

"For kids writing about their mothers."
"C'mon," I said. "We're all wonderful mothers. I mean, what could our kids possibly say about us that we wouldn't want anyone to know?'

"That's right," said June. "Everything we've done, we've done out of pure love for our children, right?'

During the next ten minutes, the silence was deafening. Pat was the first to break the sound barrier. "I'll bet everyone here has at one time or another put her child out to play and locked the door afterward." Jeanne's head shot up. "Not during the '78 blizzard we

Dog Abuse

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our neighbors bought an adorable puppy for the children. Before you say, "How nice!" let me go on. The children are four-yearold twin girls. They treat the puppy as if it was a stuffed animal. They "play ball" with him - actually throwing him from one to the other. I saw the poor pup land on his head last week and thought his neck might have been broken. I immediately rang the doorbell and told the mother the kids were abusing their pet and she should not permit it. The woman gave them a meek scolding and made them promise to be nicer to Bozo.

Yesterday the twins dressed the puppy in doll's clothes. The skirt was so tight the pup was yelping in pain. They put a hat on his head and the elastic chin strap was choking him. I went to business.

Retired School Teacher Enjoys Club Activities, Outside Work

By DENISE SMITH Brand Staff Writer

Della Stagner, a woman, whose entire-career has been in teaching children, reveals she once harbored a secret dream of becoming a medical technician.

"I used teaching as a stepping stone. I thought. For a number of years I decided to save up enough money to go into medicine. This is what I thought I really wanted to be. I had dreams and aspirations to be a medical technician," she confessed.

"When I became financially capable of doing this. I found I had too much invested in teaching. It had been too rewarding to me, too good to me, and it provided me a lot of interest. For these reasons I never pursued the other. I still have an interest in the medical field and the people that are involved in it. And I enjoy reading about it. But that's not to say I was ever sorry I taught. I thirk teaching is second to none." she said.

I had the feeling all along that if we knewchildren well enough, if we' understood their problems, and if we were sympathetic toward them that these problems would disappear. Stagner. Miss Stagner cited the lack of understanding between the teacher and the child as reason for classroom difficulties. "The unwillingness of teachers to further probe into what goes on in a child's mind and the uncooperation of the home pretains a lot to it. Most of the time I taught you could depend on what ever you wanted to do at school or try to do with this particular child that the home is going to reinforce it. Now this isn't true in a lot of instances. In fact. I saw this disappearing rapidly my last years of teaching" stated the firm-willed

If one has the attitude that children are not different than they've ever been, and if you take the time and the pains and the know-how that most teachers have to probe in to these children, to love them and give them moral support, the rewards will be far better than the frustrations," stated the retired teacher.

Miss Stagner was born in Hill County being the third daughter. She moved to the Easter community in Castro County in 1905, attending rural schools in Frio, Easter and Jumbo communities. She finished her high school education and furthered her schooling at West Texas Normal College. She received her Bachelor of Science and Master of Arts degrees in 1948.

IN WASHINGTON

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

Get serious, FEC!

WASHINGTON (NEA) - When pursuing harmless eccentrics, inmates at federal prisons and others with little power, the government officials who enforce the law affecting the financing of campaigns for federal office are snarling tigers.

But those officials — the members and staff of the Federal Election Commission (FEC) — are reduced to harmless pussycats whenever they're pressed to investigate the president, members of Congress or other influential politicians.

As a result, both the commission and the law face growing criticism from those who once viewed the statute as one of the most significant governmental reforms of the 1970s but now are disenchanted with the double standard of enforcement.

as one of the most significant governmental reforms of the 1970s but now are disenchanted with the double standard of enforcement.

The FEC is a model of prosecutorial zeal in dealing with those who fail to meet the legal deadline for filing detailed reports listing campaign receipts and expenses.

Among the recent targets in that category were two inmates at the federal penitentiary in Marion, Ill. who declared themselves candidates for president in 1976, an act that requires only completion of a simple FEC registration form.

But when the prisoners ignored the FEC's subsequent demands for quarterly financial reports, the commission dispatched a series of letters and telegrams threatening court action and other dire consequences.

A similar FEC campaign was mounted against Lar Daly, the Chicago man whose red, white and blue Uncle Sam costume was the hallmark of his perennial but ineffectual campaign for the presidency.

While on his deathbed in a hospital, Daly was still receiving — and ignoring — FEC demands that he account for every penny spent in his last campaign. To the dismay of the commission, he died without filling out the forms.

Finally, there's the case of John Adams, a 61-year-old Navy veteran of World War II who stumbled into the 1976 campaign as a candidate for a House seat from New Hampshire.

Adams' only response to FEC demands for full disclosure was a telephone call to Washington announcing that he had solicited no money, received none and spent none.

But the commission wasn't satisfied with that disclaimer. It filed suit against Adams in federal court, then dispatched a lawyer to Concord, N.H., to demand both conviction and fine for failure to complete the official forms.

Adams failed to appear at the court hearing and the Adams failed to appear at the court hearing and the government won its case. Relentless federal officials then tracked Jown Adams, finding him in a retired soldiers' home in Massachusetts and forcing him to fill out the

But the FEC displayed no such enthusiasm when a national magazine alleged that a fund-raising aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., requested a campaign contribution from a representative of an unidentified "Mediterranean country."

The federal law specifically prohibits solicitation of political donations from citizens of other countries. But the commission didn't even investigate the charge, claiming that the magazine article didn't provide enough informaallegedly allowed a member of a "prominent family" to use her name to disguise the source of contributions to both major-party presidential candidates in 1976.

The federal law is equally explicit in prohibiting contributions made in the name of another person. But the FEC again declined to make even a cursory check, arguing that too little information was available.

Another case involved a Washington-based news service's report that then-Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., maintained a secret fund that disbursed unreported campaign contributions to colleagues in the Senate.

Again, the commission decided that the original account didn't provide enough information — and it certainly wasn't going to open an investigation that might actually produce damaging information about a powerful politician.
