Importance Of Making Will Is Told Lions Club

The importance of making a will was discussed at the Lions Club meeting Monday evening at the School cafeteria by Gordon Griffin, Brownwood attorney, who was presented by A. D. Jenkins.

Whatever the property owned or the equity involved, the lack of a will can often create costly and sometimes unsurmountable difficulties for the surviving spouse, he said. Under the laws of Texas one-half of a community estate immediately descends to the children of a couple in the event of the death of one parent without a will having been made. Particularly in the case of minor children such a situation can have serious consequences, he explained, requiring the naming of an administrator, the making of a bond and the management of the estate under the direction of the probate court. This means, he said, that nothing involving the disposition or management of the estate can be done without the approval of the court. Even when the children are of legal age, it is sometimes difficult to manage an estate when there is no will.

By making a will in which each spouse leaves his or her half of the estate to the surviving spouse, such legal difficulties are avoided and the estate may be managed by the surviving partner under the terms of the will and without the cumbersome and expensive machinery of legal supervision.

Prior to Mr. Griffin's address, Paul Maxwell, consul commander of the WOW Camp of Rising Star presented Dr. Ben Bradley, president, a check for $100, which the WOW made to the fund for equipping the ambulance purchased by the Club from Higginbotham's to be presented to the City Fire Department as a rescue unit.

Soaking rains which fell generally over the Rising Star area Tuesday and Wednesday morning, put the section in an ideal condition moisture-wise and gave a wonderful early season boost to the peanut chop prospects this fall.

The rains, totaling almost 2.5 inches here—the city gauge showed an official 2.18 inches—practically guaranteed a fine feed crop, particularly of grain sorghums of which there have been increased plantings here the past several years.

The rains brought the season precipitation to near normal, and growers were saying that, given another good rain during the summer, the outlook for another good yield of peanuts was more than excellent.

The rain fell in a wonderful manner, with practically no washing of soil, the water soaking into the ground and doing the greatest possible amount of good.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

By OMAR BURLESON
Cong. 17th Texas District

Washington, D. C. — The House of Representatives has passed a Foreign Aid Bill of about $3 billion. It contains many programs and activities in foreign nations which we reject in this country as a part of our system of government.

The section in the bill known as the Development Loan Fund which carries $700 million, encourages the nationalization of industry, federal aid to education, socialized medicine and many other schemes repugnant to our own way of life.

The measure provides for hundreds of millions of dollars of public construction projects in other countries, which we deny ourselves here.

We must engage in cooperation with other free nations of the world. The world is too small for us to live in it alone, but it is too big for the U. S. to support. The advocates of this legislation who want bigger and more foreign aid deny those of us who would vote for a modest, sensible and practical approach, from supporting any kind of program at all. Seemingly, they believe it is the responsibility of this country to support all others willing to receive our assistance. Seemingly, they believe we can buy friendship on which we can depend to thwart the ambitions and intents of the Soviet Union. The Comptroller General of the U. S. testified before the Foreign Affairs Committee that more failures have occurred in our Foreign Aid Program because of too much money to spend, rather than not enough.

It seems justified to point out that the nations which we are trying to cure in foreign nations exist right here at home.

Aside from the need of highways, flood control, conservation of our natural resources and many other improvements to be met when the financial condition of our country permits, there is the neglect of human resources for which we should be ashamed. The need of modern mental institutions is one among many. About 300,000 American Indians, most of whom are living in dejection and poverty on Government reservations, are another example. American Indians are about as poorly fed, housed and clothed as any people living in civilization. An Indian born today has a life expectancy of only 37 years, as compared to the national average of 62 for the rest of us. The average schooling is five years, and only a very few receive any training which permits them to live in today's society.

Certainly we need the greatest possible cooperation with other free people of the world, that they and we not be engulfed by international Communism. We are competing with a hard, realistic foe who only thinks and understands in terms of force. To weaken our own Nation economically and morally is no way to help others in a weaker position to combat this menace. The disease is not going to be prevented by running all over the world with billions of dollars worth of antihistamine every time Khrushchev sneezes. We are not going to help other people by inflating their economy with more money than they can sensibly spend, while at the same time depleting our own resources. This is the results in many places of our Foreign Aid Program. In addition to all this, the International Cooperation Administration has approximately $9 billion unspent from past appropriations. It could operate for two years within its present activities without additional money. The $3 billion authorized in the bill just passed would take care of more than one-third of the deficit in the Federal Treasury which will show up at the end of this month.

It's The Law In Texas

REASONABLE TIME

Before a contract arises some one must make an offer and another must accept it.

Without an offer, no acceptance; with no acceptance, no agreement.

But there is often a time within which you can accept the offer. And if not, the offer ends anyhow within a 'reasonable time' which is determined by circumstances and the parties' intentions.

Smith had a set of books which Brown wanted. Brown wrote and offered him $200 for the set.

Smith didn't answer for six months, and meantime Brown bought a similar set. One day Brown got a letter from Smith saying, "I accept your offer of $200 for the set of books."

Brown told Smith he'd bought the books elsewhere, but Smith still claimed that his belated acceptance had nevertheless sealed the contract with Brown.

Was there a contract? No, the offer had lapsed because it had not been accepted in the circumstances within a reasonable time.

There are many ways to end an offer. You may withdraw it, you may say that the offer expires at a given time, or you may die, or the other party may turn it down directly or by making a counter offer.

Here Smith had failed to accept Brown's offer within a reasonable time, which ended it just as though it had been withdrawn.

What is a reasonable time? It varies. The offer could expire in a few minutes in the stock market or last for quite a while, depending upon what a court would think is a reasonable time.

But in Smith's case, six months was unreasonable.

Homemakers News and Views

A quick and easy way to prepare the main dish for a picnic or outdoor meal is to cook on skewers — "Shish-Kabobs" are delicious and different.

There are many possibilities. You may have all vegetables or all meat on the skewer, or alternate the meat cubes with a combination of vegetables such as tomato wedges, chunks of carrot, mushrooms, pieces of green pepper, onion, etc.

A basic "shish-kabob" is made with boneless meat, cut in one and one half or two inch cubes. Beef, lamb, ham or pork may be used.

With lamb or veal, use the shoulder or leg; with beef, use the round, chuck or rump. Allow one half to three fourths pounds per person.

Prepare the meat by simply brushing with lemon juice and olive oil, or marinate from 2 hours to 2 days in the following mixture: 1 part of lemon juice to 3 parts olive oil seasoned with crushed garlic, salt and pepper, and if you wish, add some thyme, oregano, bay leaf or sumin.

Now string the cubes on your skewers—if you like the meat rare, push the cubes closely together. For all-around crispness, separate the chunks on the skewer. Broil over coals. It will take from 10 to 16 minutes depending on how well done you want the food. Serve immediately.

A cool, inviting drink hits the spot on a warm day. That drink might as well be milk. Why not arrange a corner of the kitchen as a milk bar for the crowd that gathers in the afternoon or the evening.

Keep plenty of supplies on hand in the mixing corner. Have fresh milk in the refrigerator and dry or evaporated milk on the shelf. An assortment of flavors for making attractive milk drinks will be popular with the young folks. For that foamy, rather thick consistency especially liked in "shakes" and floats", there are new milk-shake mixes in different flavors to add to the milk. Non-fat dry milk can be added to fluid to make "double milk" with flavors added to taste. If you have ice cream stored in the home freezer, they will love whipping it into the milk for a hearty shake.

Have shakers handy for the youngsters or let the electric mixer whip up delicious milk coolers. Recipes for delicious milk drinks are given in the extension bulletin "Good Milk for Good Meals" available from your County Home Demonstration Agent.

Less Than 25 Per Cent Cattle In Texas Branded

College Station, Though Texas has a law requiring that cattle, hogs, sheep and goats must be branded or marked and the brand or mark recorded, brand inspectors estimate that 25 per cent of the other animals are branded.

However branding is still a common practice in some areas and the branding laws are still in force. Some of these laws are obsolete and the enforcement machinery is inadequate.

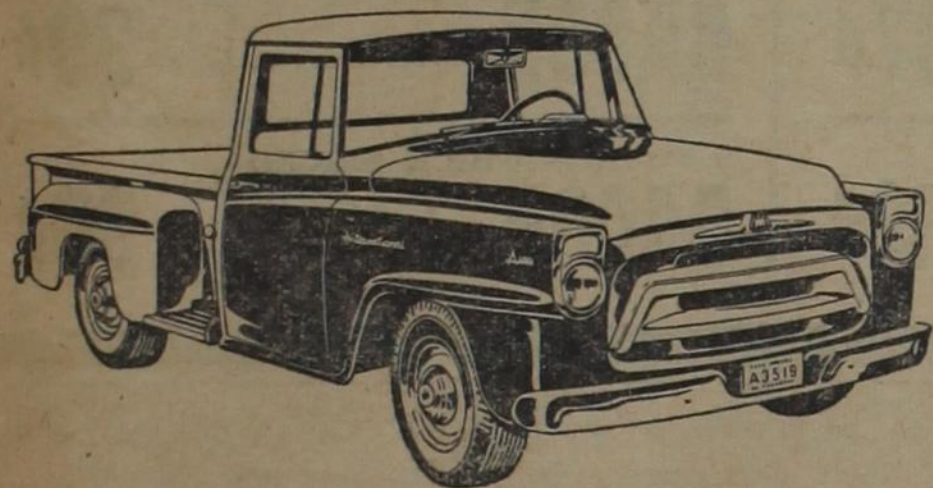

This information comes from a new publication released by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station titled, "Analysis of Texas Laws and Regulations Controlling the Movement and Sale of Livestock".

The publication brings together many of the more common laws and regulations so that producers, selling agents, buyers and consumers may know the legal requirements to be observed and the protection provided.

The responsibility for prevention and control of livestock diseases in Texas rests with the Livestock Sanitary Commission. The steps being taken by the Commission and the U. S. Department of Agriculture to control and eradicate livestock diseases are discussed.

To obtain a copy of the bulletin, write the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas. Ask for MP-322.

Develop Young Ewes Before Breeding

College Station—Size or weight of yearling ewes when they enter the breeding flock has a major influence on their subsequent breeding performance, according to a study made on Rambouillet ewes at the Sonora Experiment Station. Ewes, weighing 100 to 115 pounds performed better than those weighing above or below this range. For each pound increase in yearling breeding weight up to 100 pounds, there was an increase of approximately 5 pounds in total lamb production and 0.6 pound increase in total wool production throughout a lifetime of use. This shows that young ewes should be permitted to make most of their development before they enter the breeding flock.

For a copy of the report write the Agriculture Information Office, College Station, Texas. Ask for PR-2081.

Mrs. John Starkey spent last week visiting relatives in Dallas and Grapevine.

Another Great Value . . .
... in the field of many values is the abstract. Years ago when the records were few there was not so much need for an abstract. But today, with multiplied thousands of important title items already of record and new ones being added every day, the preparation of your abstract is not only an undertaking of great responsibility, but one that requires an institution possessing all the records and a long history of achievements behind it.
