If there is a public institution which Rising Star needs badly it is a public auditorium. There are several places where public meetings and dinners may be held, and the community is certainly grateful to the organizations which have made them available. But all of them have been designed for the specific uses of the organizations that own them and their use for public functions of a general nature is necessarily limited.

The High School gym was built primarily for athletic events. Its use as an auditorium and as a theater for literary and dramatic events is a secondary purpose and each time it is so used a great deal of work in providing seating and other accommodations is required. Needless to say the seating arrangement and the acoustics are not well adapted to such secondary uses.

The use of the playing floor for audience seating doesn't do the finish any good, either.

The American Legion has been generous indeed in permitting use of its fine facilities for public gatherings. Had it not been for the Legion hall and dining room the community would have been in a bad way for many of the public programs that have been held here. The local churches have also been generous in opening their fellowship halls and dining for functions requiring such facilities.

But what is needed is an auditorium specifically and attractively designed and built for dances, musical programs and other public gatherings and forums of a general nature, an auditorium which would be available at all times with a minimum of preparation and arrangement.

Such an auditorium might combine office space and meeting rooms for community political, school and civic organizations. It would be a center which would make cooperative community action on matters of common interest much easier and more effective.

It is a project to which we would do wisely to give some serious attention particularly where the problem of keeping our community soundly organized and working together is concerned. People who meet together, stay together.

Mens Brotherhood Supper Thursday Night

The First Baptist Mens Brotherhood supper will be held in the Fellowship Hall of the church at 7 p. m. Thursday, Jan. 17th. The Rev. Don Turner, pastor of the Cross Plains Baptist Church, will bring the inspirational message. A covered dish supper will be served. Wives of the men are invited and a nursery for small children will be open.

Rising Star Basket Ball Ace Well on Way to Second Record Season at Abilene College

Rising Star ace Pat Agnew (left) is well into a second successful season as the postman for the Abilene Christian College Wildcats. With 269 Points in 12 games (21.9 per game) Agnew is the team's high scorer. Honorable Mention All-American Jim Reynolds (right), however, has the team game scoring average in his possession. Reynolds has only 254 points to his credit, but because he has played one less game, has the highest scoring average of 23.1. Agnew is also leading in rebounds for the Cats with 131. Posing with the two Wildcat aces is Jimmy Nutt, three-year-old son of ACC head coach Dee Nutt. Agnew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Agnew of Rising Star.

Lions Club Sees Film On Crippled Children Program

The Rising Star Lions Club saw a color motion picture film of activities at the Lions Club Crippled Childrens Camp at Kerrville at its regular meeting Monday night at the school cafeteria. The picture was shown by James McCracken, Cisco banker and chairman of Crippled Childrens work for the district. Mr. McCracken was accompanied by Sutton Crofts, Cisco cattleman and member of the Cisco club.

During a brief business meeting, the club agreed to accept a challenge of the Cross Plains Lions to sponsor teams of basketball exes in the two communities for benefit games on a home and home basis. Lee Hughes was named chairman of the Rising Star organization.

A proposal that the club underwrite expenses of a "walking blood bank" was referred to the Board of Directors. The project would be designed to type the blood of as many local citizens as possible, the records to be kept on file for use in making specific types of blood quickly available in the event of need. Roy Holly presented the proposal to the club.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Monday, January 28.

Ms. Elizabeth Williams has returned to her home here, after a two-week visit with relatives in Lubbock.

Low of 5 Degrees Here Registered In Cold Front

The Arctic front which moved into Texas last week-end struck temperatures to their lowest point here in many years—registering a low of five degrees Saturday morning on the city thermometer.

Tuesday morning the reading was 18 degrees above zero.

Although the cold was even more severe than last winter's cold wave, the effects of it were much less seriously felt because the city's gas supply was adequate for most needs. New supplies which the city obtained last year kept community heaters going full blast during the spell. There were some instances in which frozen regulators interrupted for reduced the supply, but in most cases there was sufficient fuel to meet the needs.

Frozen water pipes as usual caused some inconvenience and later flooding as burst pipes thawed out. Some damage was reported at the Rising Star Housing Authority's low rent units on North Main.

Rising Star Loses Both District 1sts

Both Rising Star High School boys and girls teams suffered defeats at the hands of the Blanket teams in the opening game of the round robin district basketball schedule Tuesday night. The games were played at Blanket.

The girls fell to the Blanket femmes by a score of 47 to 22, while the boys were defeated 49 to 33.

The Rising Star teams will have a "by" Friday night of this week. Tuesday night of next week they will entertain the ephyr teams on the local court with the girls playing at 7 p. m. to start the program.

Admission prices of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students, as set by the district committee, will apply.

January 25 the teams go to Brooksmith and the following Tuesday, January 29, they will complete the first round of round robin by entertaining May teams here.

The second round of play begins with games with the Blanket teams here February 1. February the Rising Star teams go to ephyr; Brooksmith comes here February 12 and district play will be completed in games with May there February 15.

The starting lineup for the boys team, coached by Weldon Hill, is Kenneth Nunnally, center; Terry Geye and Charles Wade, forwards and Tommy Alford and Larry McKinnerney, guards, with Johnny Gerhardt as alternate starter. Both Wade and Alford have been out of the lineup in recent games, Wade with an illness and Alford with a sprained ankle, but both were rounding into playing shape again.

The girls team, coached by Eddy Joe Henry, has the following starters:

Judy Lewis, Anna Ezzell and either Linda Duggan or Sandra Teague at forwards; Cherry Maples, Virginia Bishop and either Brenda Harris or Lovey Bishop at guards.

OWNER'S POLICY vs. MORTGAGE POLICY

Three of four families who buy houses in the $11,000 to $15,000 price range jeopardize their investment because they do not protect their cash and ownership with commensurate title insurance.

These financial risks result from insufficient knowledge of the difference between an 'owner's policy,' and lack of information about title insurance.

The main point is that the usual title insurance taken out by the purchaser of a home in the up-to-$15,000 bracket serves only to protect the bank or lending institution. It is often compulsory for the buyer to purchase this insurance, known as the 'mortgage policy,' since some mortgagees insist upon this particular safeguard as one of the loan conditions. The 'mortgage policy,' however never protects the home owner's equity. This is so even after the mortgage is fully paid.

A course remains open for the purchaser who wants to cover himself for the entire price of the home. He should, at the time of application for the required mortgage policy, check with his attorney about simultaneously obtaining an 'owner's policy.' The 'owner's policy,' in contrast to the 'mortgage policy,' protects the home buyer as long as he owns the property. In many instances, it also protects an owner even after he sells, if he has a warranted title.

Owners of higher-priced homes usually take out both title policies. Thus, they purchase peace of mind on their substantial equity instead of trying to 'save' a few dollars, a false economy which may later invite trouble.

Title insurance took on greater significance after World War II. It is a requisite today by many banks and lending institutions for those applying for mortgage loans, and is for the lender's protection. A defective title, it was shown, may cost the 'owner' not only the price of the home but considerably greater sums of the new owner 'inherits' previously undiscovered liens, back taxes, or defects of the title that do not appear on the records.

The purchaser of the $11,000-$15,000 home often withholds taking the 'owner's policy' which protects his equity continually, 'in order to save a few dollars.' An element of risk enters, however, if flaws are subsequently found. The owner without title insurance would not be reimbursed to the extent of the defect. To compound his difficulties, the owner would be burdened with the cost of correcting the title defect and legal costs.

To illustrate the difference in an 'owner's policy' and the 'mortgage policy,' the following cases were cited: Mr. Smith buys a home for $15,000. He places $2,000 down and takes a $13,000 mortgage loan. Pursuing the course of many home buyers, his only title insurance purchase is a 'mortgage policy' for $13,000, which the mortgagor demands and which protects only the lending institution. Each year Mr. Smith's equity increases as his mortgage decreases. Nevertheless, knowingly, or not, Mr. Smith is not carrying any title insurance which protect Mr. Smith.

If a faulty or fraudulent title should be discovered, or if previously unknown liens against the property were to be established during the life of the mortgage, or after it was paid, Mr. Smith would have no protection.

HIGGINBOTHAM'S

About Your Health

One of the chief contributors to American society is the institution known as baby sitting. One noted authority estimated 35 percent of the buying power attributed to teenagers probably comes from baby sitting salaries.

It wasn't long ago, that unless mother and father had a handy grandma' around, they stayed home or took the children with them. Just as freedom has come to other oppressed groups—grandparents no longer get stuck endlessly, because more often than not, they are also out enjoying themselves.

As a result baby sitting has grown into what amounts to a major industry — practiced, all too often, by inexperienced and sometimes unqualified young people.

Whether the youngsters are six months old or 10 years old, parents leaving them want to know the sitter is someone they can trust.

It must be someone the parents know is responsible and sufficiently mature, one who will like the child and get along with him. This calls for a study of the sitter's references if he or she is not already well known to the family.

To be in charge of one or more children and the home they live in is a serious business. Careful arrangements need to be made between the parents and the baby sitter.

Both the parents and the baby sitter have obligations in preparing and carrying out the agreement.

Parents should make the request well in advance. A thorough briefing should be made to the sitter — Preferably written — explaining where the parents will be including phone numbers, and the expected time of return.

The sitter should meet the child while he is awake, especially on the first visit. The layout of the home should be explained and emergency numbers listed.

The sitter should be alerted for expected visitors or deliveries otherwise the doors and windows should remain locked. Finally the parents should have the correct change available to avoid confusion and provide safe transportation home.

The sitter's responsibilities are similar. She should keep wide awake — even if parents allow napping, follow parents' views on TV, phone, snacks and visitors, and make periodic checks on sleeping children.

Full information on food, habits, rituals and nicknames should be obtained. Sitters should understand basic first aid and learn to suspect illness in a child. Safety should be a sitter's first consideration.

such practices as ponds or brush to 80% for revegetation costs.

The program is an addition and supplement to present going conservation programs such as ACP, Conservation Reserve, Soil and Water and Water Facilities Loans, and Soil Conservation Districts. Its primary purpose as a public program is the stabilization measure of agriculture by speeding up the application of conservation measure and mitigation of climatic hazards through the combination of management systems with practice application, it was pointed out.

It was expected that the Eastland County program's biggest benefits would be in conversion of marginal cropland to grassland along with brush control and revegetation of rangeland. It has been estimated that in the entire Great Plains area only about 75% of the land now in cultivation was suitable for continuous cropping. In general, the remaining 25% needs to be con-

New Land Improvement Plan Begins Operating In County

The Great Plains Conservation Program became operative in Eastland County this month as final approval for the program as developed by the county program committee was received. Soil conservation offices in Eastland and Rising Star already had received a dozen applications for participation in the new program.

The county committee was expected to assign priorities to the first applicants within a few days and their contracts will be developed in the near future, SCS personnel said. Many more land owners were expressing interest in Great Plains contracts than had been anticipated, it was noted.

The Great Plains Conservation Program as provided for in Public Law 1021 is a new tool for conservation and land development in this area. In short, the program consists of complete farm and ranch conservation plans supported by long-term cost sharing under contract.

When the program was first activated in 1957, Eastland County was designated as a fringe county. On request of local agricultural representatives of Eastland County last July, the county was activated and the local county program was developed.

Practices selected to be cost shared in the Eastland County program include:

1. Pasture and range seeding for land now in cropland.
2. Pasture and range seeding on rangeland where better grasses are needed.
3. Brush control for mesquite, oak and other species.
4. Waterways, terracing and diversion ditches.
5. Farm ponds and pipe lines for livestock water.
6. Fencing.

Such management practices as conservation cropping systems, cover crops, crop residue use, deferred grazing and proper grassland use are not cost shared under the great plains program, SCS personnel said. Management practices, however, are made a part of the contracts as called for in the conservation plan based on the needs of the land.

Cost share rates for Eastland County are from 50% of either actual or average costs for

Working Persons Over 62 May Be Due Some Social Security Checks In 1963

January 1963 is the month for all persons past age 62 to take a quick look at their 1962 earnings and then apply for some social security benefits if they have not already done so, providing the following table applies to them, advises R. R. Tuley, Jr., district manager for the Social Security Administration in Abilene.	$1800	$ 73	$2326
	$2400	$ 83	$2446
	$4200	$115	$2830

Regardless of the annual total for 1962, insured persons past age 62 may collect a social security check for any calendar month in 1962 that they neither rendered substantial services in self-employment nor earned over $100 in wages," he added.

For those who worked all months in 1962, Tuley suggests they take a look at the following table to determine whether or not some checks might be due them.

Av. Annual Earnings Since 1950	Est. SS Benefit	Some Checks Due if '62 Earnings Less Than:
$ 900	$ 40	$1930
$1200	$ 60	$2170

SCS personnel estimated that in Eastland County the percentage of land needing to be converted to grass would probably be much greater. Anyone interested was invited to contact the SCS offices in Eastland and Rising Star.

The homemaker's dream of tomorrow—of perishable foods that can be stored on the kitchen shelf with little deterioration or loss of quality—is a reality today, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture marketing researchers.

Freeze-drying, the newest food processing method, allows foods like shrimp, chicken, mushrooms, even hamburger to be stored without refrigeration for as long as two years—with little change in shape, color, or taste.

Freeze-drying takes the moisture out of fresh foods by first freezing them, then drying them under vacuum. The resulting product has only 2 percent of its original water. For example, 100 pounds of raw deboned chicken meat is reduced to 29 pounds of freeze-dried chicken.

And 100 pounds of fresh mushrooms when freeze-dried, weigh only 11 pounds.

Freeze-dried foods retain their original shape, but look much like a dried out sponge. To rehydrate them, the homemaker simply soaks them in water. Or, there are many other possibilities. They may be cooked in soups and rehydrated in this way. Strawberries can be rehydrated with syrup, meats with water to which tenderizer has been added, and fish with water and lemon juice.

At present, seven companies have freeze-dried foods on the market. Some of these foods are campers' fare. But two soup companies use freeze-dried chicken and beef, onions, and soups. And two other firms are working on freeze-dried foods for restaurant and institutional use—one with shrimp, chicken, and crab; the other with fruit and vegetable products.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture recently finished taste tests of these products. Although the evaluations are not yet complete, the tests of these products indicate that freeze-drying works better on some products than on others. Also, the know-how in processing has much to do with the quality of the product.

USDA market researchers, who have taste tested all of the products now on the market, say the chicken, turkey, ham, and hamburger were rated acceptable in their preliminary testing. Shrimp and crab, which had previously been market tested, are assured successes.

Among the vegetables, asparagus and a few members of the cabbage family, for example, broccoli, have potential. Mush-

News From May

O. A. Burnett of May and H. L. Cravens, Sr., of Frownwood were in Austin Tuesday to attend the inauguration ceremonies.

M. D. (Doc) Medcalf of May remains in serious condition in Medical Arts Hospital, Frownwood, where he was taken last Wednesday.

The May Lions Club at its regular meeting Monday night, voted to give the entire proceeds from the chili supper to the May schools to help pay for the band uniforms. The amount was $56.92.

rooms are now being freeze-dried in large quantities.

Among the fruits, blueberries, strawberries, raspberries, pineapple, apples, apricots, and others appear economically feasible. Products like fish cakes, sausages, stews, soups, puddings, and even whole prepared meals may have a place in the food marketing system. Specialty foods—seasonings, spices, coffee, and fruit powders—also appear promising.

Yet, despite these taste results, estimates of costs show that freeze-drying is still much more expensive than other food processing methods. This, economists believe, will limit the size of the present market. It also indicates slow development.

Marble may be stone, but it still stains and soils. However, marble tabletops, counters, and floors are easy to care for.

Wipe off anything spilled on marble immediately—just as you would from a wood furnishing.

Occasionally, wash marble surfaces with lukewarm water and a clean cloth. Dry with a chamois or soft dry cloth to prevent spots or streaks. If you should happen to spill coffee or tea on your marble table and it leaves a stain, despair not. Coffee and tea stains can be removed by first washing the surface with warm water, then applying hydrogen peroxide and a few drops of household ammonia to the stained area. Wipe the entire surface with a damp cloth after the stain disappears. Then wipe dry.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

By Omar Bursleson, M. C. 17th Texas District.

RISING STAR AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE
WASHINGTON, D. C. — What has been referred to as the greatest show on earth opened in Washington last week. The curtain rose on the first Act, which was a change in the Rules Committee. Unlike this main feature of two years ago, the main attractions were the side shows instead of that performed under the main tent.

Since this first act was an important one of many which will be coming along during the Session, political writers are diagnosing its meaning. They are seemingly more clear on the significance of last fall's elections than they have been since November, taking their cues from this first Act.

On its own bottom." When it is time to cast his vote, he is going to react to their basic philosophies and those of the people whom they represent. To be effective, however, requires a great deal more than a simple vote or a single speech on a piece of legislation. It requires organized and concerted effort on the part of those of like opinion, and it must be done before final action is called for if success is to be the result.

This being the first weekly newsletter for the 1963 Session of Congress, let it be admitted that no effort is made to be professional in its writing. The effort is simply to convey, as best possible, the happenings in Washington "as it looks from here." At times, an attempt will be made to editorialize, while other weekly reports will be a simple description of issues and events as they are observed at first-hand. It is hoped, of course, that these reports will be found of interest and, in addition to what you read in your daily newspaper or hear on your radio and television.

The first noticeable result was the defection of a great number of Republican to the Administration and the Democratic Leadership. Prior to the vote on the Rules change, a sizeable group of younger Republicans had also defeated from their leaders to a position more nearly to that of the Democratic Leadership.

In addition to this situation on the Republican side, only 43 Democrats voted against increasing the size of the Rules Committee, in comparison to 64 in 1961. This added up to a majority of 39 for the Rules change, as compared to it having carried by only 5 votes two years ago.

Various significances on this action are being pointed out by the political writers. The opinion of a majority of observers seems to be that there is a decline among the Southern Democrats for the support of the so-called conservative coalition. The action of the Republicans against their present leadership seems to imply, in the opinion on many, a rejection of the Southern leaning Republican strategy of winning elections in the deep South. In other words, the result of the action on the Rules fight indicates to some that the coalition between the Southern Conservative Democrats and the Conservative Republicans is greatly weakened, if not at an end. This supposedly bears out what Georgia's Senator Herman Talmadge has long predicted. He has had the feeling that important Republican advances in the South would drive the average Southern Democratic office-seeker to abandon his conservative posture and to make a stronger show of Party loyalty and of supporting the Administration. Some of the political analysts see this prediction fulfilled in last week's opening show.

There are, however, many other acts to follow, and with many Members of Congress, they subscribe to the proposition that "each tub should sit
