MR RATHBUN. The following letter to the New York Commercial Advertiser gives all the particulars relative to the failure and forgeries of Mr Rathbun, that had transpired at the time when it was written, and more than are furnished by the Buffalo papers.

BUFFALO, Aug. 4, 1836.

Before this reaches you, common fame will have announced the failure of Benjamin Rathbun, of our city, whom your papers have pronounced the "Girard of the West."

The prominent situation of Mr R. the magnitude of the failure, the painful circumstances connected with it, taken in connexion with the effect which it may have on the public mind abroad in relation to the interests of this city, induce me to detail to you such facts as have come to my knowledge.

For the last few days reports of an alarming nature had been in circulation relative to the amount of Rathbun's paper, endorsed by our principal citizens, which had been or was in market in New York. The arrival, last Saturday evening, of an agent from New York, to secure certain demands against Mr R. led to the disclosure of the alarming fact, that nearly all the endorsements on his notes were forgeries. The disclosure of this fact to a few of our discreet and wealthy citizens, satisfied them that his failure was inevitable; and immediate measures were taken to induce him to make an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors, which was completed on Monday evening.

On Tuesday commenced the great land sale at Niagara Falls, in which Mr R. was deeply interested. The assignees being desirous that the benefits of that sale might accrue to the creditors, permitted him to attend it on Tuesday, Wednesday, and about noon on Wednesday, some of the assignees becoming alarmed at the fearful extent of the responsibility which they had assumed, took possession of the keys of the vaults. About the same time, also, reports of the forgeries began to circulate. This alarmed Lyman Rathbun, the brother of Benjamin and his chief financier, who despatched a messenger to apprise his brother of the crisis, and immediately left the city himself.

Prompt measures were then taken to secure the goods and property in the various stores, work-shops, ware houses, barns, &c. all of which was effectually done and cheerfully acquiesced in by some two thousand individuals in his employ, although thrown out of business for the present.

Measures were immediately taken by the police to arrest both of the Rathbuns; and they returning to the city during the night, were secured, and are now in jail. Every thing that sound judgment and perseverance could accomplish has been done by the assignees to secure the property, and they have already commenced the Herculean task of executing their trust.

The part which duty compelled me to act in this affair was most painful. To commit my friend, whom I have known and esteemed for the last sixteen years, as a kind and benevolent neighbor, a public spirited citizen, and a uniform friend to good order, to commit such a man as a felon, would make you act the woman. But justice required it—the facts which transpired on the examination, and have come to my knowledge since, have utterly astonished me.—First, as to the amount of the forgeries, which no doubt far exceed a million of dollars. Probably about seven-tenths of the amount have been disposed of east, and the balance west of the city. Indeed I believe he can comparatively have but little genuine paper afloat or in bank.—It is ascertained that the name of Daniel E. Evans has been forged to paper exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and the names of several of our respectable citizens to a very large amount each. About seventy thousand dollars of Mr R's paper is in one bank in Ohio, every dollar of which is probably forged. And what appears marvellous in this transaction, several thousand dollars of forged endorsements are held by brokers in our own city, the counterfeit so perfect, and the payment so punctual, that it has not been discovered, although such paper has been in market weekly, if not daily, for the last eighteen months.

This failure, though of such an immense magnitude, will not, to any serious extent, affect the prosperity of this city.—The loss, if any, will not be great, and will principally fall on the rich. I learn that the assignment, first, provides for his workmen of all classes; next, those who furnished materials for buildings, &c.—thus the laboring classes are provided for. Further details in relation to the assignment have not come to my knowledge, but I am informed by the assignees, whose integrity will not be questioned, that the provision for all classes of creditors is not only equitable, but unexceptionable. The cash value of the real and personal estate I cannot pretend to estimate, but am confident it will exceed two millions of dollars; and should the times be favorable for closing the concern, all the creditors may be paid, even including the holders of forged paper. A large portion of the real estate is located near the centre of the city, and will always command high prices and a ready sale.

A PARALLEL. In the course of a recent discussion in the British House of Commons on the Irish Church Bill, Mr Shiel replied to Lord Stanley (the former Secretary of Ireland,) and in the course of his remarks drew the following parallel between Ireland and Poland. The passage is remarkable throughout for eloquence and strength.

But alas! when from the contemplation of the splendid spectacle which Scotland exhibits, I turn to my own unfortunate country, my heart sinks, I confess within me, in the melancholy consciousness in which every Irishman, no matter what may be his creed, ought to participate. If Ireland does teem with abundance there prevails wretchedness in this fatal contrast. If millions of paupers are without employment, and often without food or raiment—where is the fault? Is it in the sky that showers verdure? is it in the soil, that is surpassingly fertile? or in the fatal course which you, the arbiters of her destiny, have adopted? She has for centuries belonged to England; England has used her for centuries as she pleased, how has she used her, and what has been the result? A code of laws was established, to which in the annals of legislative atrocity there is not a parallel; and of that code, those institutes of unnatural ascendancy, the Irish Church is a remnant. But although that detestable policy was without example, it has since been chosen as a model. Well did Nicholas exclaim, when he perused the debates, (as I have heard) in this House, on his frightful tyranny to Poland,—well did he exclaim, 'Poland is Russia's Ireland.' He confiscates as your fathers did; he banishes as they did; he debases as they did; he violates the instincts of human nature, and from the parent tears the child, as they did; and he inflicts upon a Catholic people a church alien to their national habits, feelings and belief, as you do. And think you not that there are men found in the Senate of St. Petersburg, who exclaim that the Greek Church must be maintained in ascendancy in Poland,—that it is the bond of connexion between Poland and Russia—that a Greek priest, dispensing hospitality, and holding out a salutary example by the excellence of his moral conduct, must in every Polish village be the source of improvement? and can you doubt that some Tartar Secretary for Poland—(Loud cheers)—is sufficiently prompt to furnish the materials for a Warsaw speech and to exclaim that a lesson must be given to Poland, and that she must be taught to fear before she can learn how to love?" (Loud and continued cheering.)

THE HERALD.

NEWBURYPORT, AUG. 11, 1836.

FRANCE. It seems highly probable that Louis Phillip will yet fall beneath the hand of the assassin. What effect his death might have on the condition of France and the political relations of Europe, it is impossible to predict. Every thing would depend upon the vigor and ability of those who seized immediately upon the reins of government. If they pursued an unwise, a timid or vacillating policy, a volcanic eruption, shaking if not overwhelming the whole of Europe, would ensue. Louis Phillip is evidently a man of no common abilities. His conduct and government is not less despotic than that of Louis, or than that which drove Charles X. into exile, yet his popularity is so great that his enemies have clearly found that they can dethrone him in no way but by the hand of the assassin. His personal character is marked by firmness, decision and consummate address. The citizen king oppresses his subjects with caution, and administers his despotism with an eye to the capacity of his victim. If he falls, none of the statesmen who surround him appear to possess sufficient force of character to guide the course of the heir to the throne, in the perilous adventures he will be called to pass.

It is within the compass of possibility, that in case of the demise of the king, events might occur which would delay or prevent the completion of the treaty of indemnification with the United States.

MARIA MONK. A friend has put into our hands the Montreal Courier, which contains the following article:

"A late number of the Journal of Commerce of MARIA MONK, challenging investigation into the charges of her book, and insisting upon an actual comparison being made between her description and the interior arrangements of the Nunnery, as a test which she is willing to stand by, of the truth of her 'Disclosures.' This test has been applied in the presence of five or six gentlemen of this city, of whom several are clergymen; and leaving the details to the forthcoming 'Refutation,' it may be stated generally, that the results prove that she never could have been an inmate of the Nunnery. It is a curious circumstance in connexion with this affair, and shews that MARIA's matchless effrontery, is, after all, superior to her inventive powers and to the cunning that is necessary to her as an imposter, that her nuns, even to their names, are no other than some of the frail inmates who were in Mrs. MACDONELL'S Magdalen Asylum, at one of those times when necessity compelled her to become a penitent also. The 'Refutation,' whose publication it is to be regretted, has been so long delayed, will we believe, unfold a tale, which will teach the American public to lay some more restraint in future upon their credulity."

When the "Awful Disclosures" were first published, the opinion of the community was almost unanimous that they were utter falsehoods, & that the publication was a mere catch-penny concern—a base imposition. The book however was generally read, as such books will always continue to be so long as a morbid curiosity is prevalent in the public. The conduct of the Catholics under these charges has since induced many people to change their minds and to believe that, awful and monstrous as were the crimes alleged against the Priests, in this work, they were but too true. And the recent examination will by no means clear them of the suspicion of having been engaged in horrible and disgusting crimes. Why has the examination been delayed to this late day, when there has been ample time to make thorough alterations in the interior of the building? Why was the committee of investigation made up of individuals who have always been prejudiced against Maria's story? Why was not she allowed to visit the nunnery with them, or with some unprejudiced and responsible person from New-York? These are questions which call for some more satisfactory answers than any we have yet seen given to them.

Further, a letter from a respectable merchant in Montreal states that individuals residing in the rear of the building, have publicly declared that there have been most active operations there during the whole winter and spring, carting in stone and other materials for building walls, &c. This certainly calls for explanation. The New-York Sun also states that a respectable and unprejudiced gentleman who spent the month of July in Montreal, says that thousands of the citizens of that city, among whom are a large number of respectable Catholics, confidently believe every word of the "Awful Disclosures."

The conduct of the Bishop and Priests of the Hotel Dieu Nunnery in the business, we repeat, has given strong grounds for the belief that the statements made in the "Awful Disclosures" are solemn facts. When the book was first published it was stated by their friends that it was a translation, verbatim, from an old Spanish work. This work they could not produce, and afterwards a circular was published, and distributed throughout the Union, denying, of course, the truth of her horrible narrative, and ironically descanting upon its Protestant origin, and Protestantism in general.

Part of this circular originally appeared in the Catholic Herald, and the whole of it was endorsed by the Priests of the Hotel Dieu. The reader may judge from the following extract, how far their assertions at that time agree with their present declarations:

"Instead of an eloped Nun, recounting the horrors of the Convent, the heroine of the tale (Maria Monk) is a protestant young girl, who has been for four years past under protection of a Mr Hoyt, once styled a Reverend Methodist Preacher, and connected with a Canadian Sunday School."

It would appear from this statement, that Maria was not unknown to them. For four years she had been under the protection of Mr Hoyt, a Methodist, who was connected with Canadian Sunday Schools.

Now let us see what the forth-coming Refutation purports to disclose:

"During the very period she states she was an inmate in the nunnery, she resided in a sort of Magdalen Asylum in Montreal for penitent prostitutes, and the names of the pretended nuns introduced by her in the work were actually those of certain of the frail sisterhood who were in the asylum at the very period she inhabited it."

Which of these statements are the public to credit? Would the friends of the nunnery have us believe both?

The ship Majestic, a missing vessel, from Havre to New Orleans, (2d June) has on board $600,000 in specie, besides a valuable cargo of dry goods. More apprehension is entertained of pirates than of any danger by the weather, as she is a first rate ship and a good sea boat. We should not be surprised if pirates should be fitted out for some of the rich ships arriving every week from Europe. From the first, we have thought that the statements published in the papers, that certain ships named, would sail from Havre or London, at particular dates, for New York, was bad policy, and held out too great a temptation, especially at a time when pirates might fit out under the Texian or Mexican flag, and sail without suspicion.

The Bangor Advertiser states that a new bank, not a hundred miles from that city, recently went into operation, and on the first day it commenced business, as soon as the clock struck nine, the doors were opened and in rushed a posse of money borrowers, with high expectations of getting discounts, but all their hopes were blasted at once when the President of the bank, "calm as a summer morning," coolly informed them that all the available had been transferred to the Directors, and no paper could be discounted while the money pressure lasted.

EMIGRATION. A late English paper says—For the last six months, 8 large vessels have, on the average, sailed from London every week, with emigrants, to North America; among them, farming laborers from Kent, mechanics from London, &c. Most of them however, paupers, as usual, sent out upon us by the English parishes to which they belonged.

TEXAS. Letters have been received at Natchez, from Gen Felix Houston, dated near Washington, (Texas) 23d Jun., which states that the writer had been ordered to join the main army with despatch; that the Texians were flocking to the field with great ardor, and that the ladies had determined not to leave their homes again for the Mexicans, who are spoken of, as soldiers, with the utmost contempt by the writer. The Natchez Courier expresses the opinion that the appointment of Gen Lamar to the command of the army could not have been intended as suspending Gen Houston. As one reason for this opinion, it refers to the difference in the titles adopted by those officers. In their addresses to the army, Gen Houston styles himself "commander-in-chief," while that adopted by Lamar is "major general commanding."

The New Haven Herald uses up the Hon. Perry Smith, of that county, most shockingly. The editor says that some years ago the Honorable gentleman was sued on a note given by him—and he pleaded that he was an infant, under twenty-one years of age when said note was given, and thus evaded the payment of an honest debt.

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE. A Grand Gulf (Mississippi) paper tells the story of Mr Frank Williams, of New York. In 1815 he was nineteen, and a sailor, at the house of a wealthy and beneficent friend in Chatham street, when the habitation took fire. By some mischance the child of his friend, then three years of age, was forgotten in an upper story, and the stairs were in flames. Mr Williams flew to her rescue, caught the child, let himself down by a lightning rod, and alighted amidst the shouts of the now congregated thousands. The child's father took the young sailor into his counting house; he soon became the head clerk; in a few years the partner in business of the father; and next, the partner for life of the father's daughter, whom he had saved.

Accounts from Belgium state that the manufacture of Beet-root Sugar is becoming rapidly developed there, and a competition with France may be expected. Six new manufactories have just been authorised, as well as eight distilleries from grain and fruit, and an establishment for refining salt.

ASSAULT. We learn that a dispute arose yesterday afternoon, between a Mr Nourse and Mr Isaac Pray, of South Salem, which came to a tragical result. We are informed that Nourse, after knocking down Pray, inflicted several dangerous wounds upon various parts of his body with a pitchfork. Report says Mr Pray's case is considered desperate. We hope otherwise (Salem Adv.)

The weather during the month of May is said to have been very bad throughout the whole of Turkey, and at Smyrna on the 13th of May, there was a considerable fall of Snow.

The number of buildings now going up in various parts of New Orleans is unparalleled. As no statistical accounts are ever officially made of these matters, it is impossible to state accurately how many have been erected during the past year; but we may safely set down the number between 3 and 4000—nearly twice as many as had been erected in New York during the same period. [New Orleans Bee.]

TASSO'S WISH. Tasso being told that he had a fair opportunity of taking advantage of a very bitter enemy—"I wish not to plunder him," said he, "but there are things I wish to take away from him; not his honor, his wealth, or his life; but his ill will."

ANDOVER RAILROAD. This branch opens into the Lowell Railroad at Wilmington, 10 miles from this place, and fifteen from Boston. It is seven miles and three quarters long, is made through a level country, and with much less labor and expense in proportion to the distance than the Lowell Railroad.

The Andover Branch was opened for trains of passenger cars yesterday. The locomotive leaves Andover with a train in season to unite with the Lowell 7 o'clock and 5 1-2 o'clock trains at Jaques's, the engine remains there till the Boston train arrives, and then takes the Andover cars and carries them to their destination. The Andover cars go morning and evening only according to the present arrangement. The fare from Andover to Boston one dollar—the same as from this city to Boston. [Lowell Courier.]

THE RATHBUN FORGERIES. Since Saturday morning Wall street has presented one scene of confusion and excitement, in consequence of the discovery of one of the most extensive and audacious forgeries on the record of crime. The author of the mischief, Benjamin Rathbun, has long enjoyed the unbounded confidence of the Brokers and money institutions in this city, and it was even difficult to convince those whose names appeared as forgers before them, of the reality of the case. More than one of his personal friends when fully convinced of this reality, even paid the demand at the Bank, hoping to save the reputation of one so universally respected.

We cite as an instance, the payment of a single note of $15,000 on Saturday at one of our Banks.

The famous Buffalo Exchange, about which so much of late has been 'said and sung,' and to which our friends the Buffalo's were looking forward with hope as the future pride and ornament of their city, was it seems commenced last Monday. How far the workmen have yet progressed we know not, but presume its foundation will long remain a monument of the reckless daring and villany of one of the greatest speculators of the age. [New York Express.]

CALAMITOUS OCCURRENCE. About 6 o'clock on Monday evening, clouds were seen rising in the north, north west, and west, and in a short time the whole heavens wore a grand and most terrific appearance. The cloud which arose in the north had the most portentous aspect, and passed on to the east without producing any effect in this city, save a severe blow; but we are informed by gentlemen from Cumberland, that in passing over that town it was accompanied by a heavy gale and shower of hail, which proved very destructive to fences, glass, orchards, grain, &c, within a range of about two miles. The stones that fell are represented to have been as large as walnuts—and an aged citizen of that town informs us that with one exception it was the most tremendous storm within his recollection. Another cloud which arose farther westward passed over this city, and during the whole evening the rain poured down in torrents, accompanied by heavy thunder and vivid lightning. In Windham an elderly lady, the wife of Mr Samuel Arney, was killed by the lightning—a young man was in the chamber with her at the time and was knocked down by the shock, but received no serious injury. When he recovered, he found Mrs V. lying dead on the floor and her cap strings on fire. [Portland Adv.]

SECOND EDITION.

A meeting of about 1200 laborers employed by Mr Rathbun at Buffalo, has been holden.—They were addressed by the assignees and assured that they would be paid, and with the explanations and assurances given they were fully satisfied and adjourned without further action.

A letter from Buffalo says several Banks had failed, but it is probably mere rumor.

The Journal of Commerce says Mr Rathbun some 25 years ago, did a very large business at Cherry Valley, and had something like a Bank, in connexion with his father, but ultimately failed. It was understood there that he had committed several forgeries, but somehow that part of the matter was hushed. From Cherry Valley, he removed to Sandusky, in Ohio, where, partly in consequence of sickness of himself and family, he became extremely poor, so that the whole wardrobe of the household was on their backs. In this condition about 20 years ago he entered Buffalo, and hired a small tavern with the furniture. Letters from Buffalo say that a great excitement prevailed there, so that the streets were filled with laborers, and great numbers were constantly arriving from the country anxious to know the fate of their demands.

An attempt has been made to fire the City Hall at New York.

There never was an article introduced into the "healing art" surpassing this, for burns, bite cuts, bruises, chilblains, old sores and ulcers, inflamed and swelled breasts, and inflammation, generally. The poultice is made in the ordinary way as you would any other poultice, with milk and water, cold or hot, as the case may require. There is another kind, which is called superfine, for internal use. All may be had in any quantity of Charles Holman, Penhallow st, Portsmouth N. H.

HOLMAN'S BONE OINTMENT.

This ointment stands at the head of all remedies for the following diseases, which human nature is heir to, viz: Rheumatism, both chronic and inflammatory, gout, sprains, bruises and contracted tendons, of long standing. It dissolves all tumors, renders stiff joints limber, by producing a healthy muscular action. It assuages pains in Boils and Abscesses. Nothing equals it in swelled and inflamed breasts in female; if applied in its early stage, prevents suppuration or matter forming, and gives in all cases immediate ease from pain. Certificates of this fact could be given if necessary. This remedy is offered to the public with the assurance that it exceeds the Opodeldoes and Liniments of the present day, for the above diseases. A trial is only wanted, to give it the decided preference to every thing else. Many physicians of eminence have used this ointment and extol its merits.

A certificate of Mr Robert Gurney, carriage maker, of Portsmouth, of the cure of his daughter of a contracted knee, accompanies and envelopes each vial.
