2,870,000 Farms In U.S. A Decline 39,000 From 1972

Small Farms Decline
There were 39,000 fewer farms in the United States last year as larger farms continued to swallow up the smaller ones, the Agriculture Department reported in Washington.

A year ago there were 2,870,000 farms. Preliminary figures at the beginning of 1973 show that there are 2,831,000 farms. The size of the average farm has increased to 385 acres from 381 acres a year ago and 288 acres in 1959.

Senator George S. McGovern (D.-S. Dak.) believes the American presidency is winning new power at the expense of congress, the major political parties, and the press. He voiced this opinion during a lecture at Oxford University in Oxford, England. The senator called on congress to reassert its power and "cure the paralysis and procrastination that have earned it . . . disrespect."

Field-Stored Cotton Looks Good

Despite abnormally extended periods of moisture-laden weather on the Plains this Fall and Winter, as yet there is no reason to believe field-stored cotton in the area has suffered any serious deterioration, according to Donald A. Johnson, executive vice president of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

"Rumors to the contrary notwithstanding," says Johnson, "to our knowledge there are no confirmed reports of rotting or seed sprouting in cotton placed in ricks by rick-compactors in accordance with recommendations."

The relatively new (in modern times, at least) practice of storing cotton on field turnrows until after the rush season at gins spread rapidly in 1972 following research by Cotton Incorporated which led to the development of mechanical rick compactors in 1970. CI research has shown that cotton placed in ricks by these machines retains basic quality characteristics far better than cotton left to weather on the stalk.

Several "someone said" reports of severe deterioration in ricked cotton prompted the PCG staff to survey ginners, producers, cotton technologists and others involved in monitoring field-stored cotton.

"The results, so far, are encouraging," says Johnson.

No great amount of ricked cotton has been ginned to date, but ginners report that what has been ginned came back from the classing office with grades, staples and micronaire readings comparable to early season ginnings from the same fields.

Dr. Milton Smith, associate professor of industrial engineering at Texas Tech, who did much of the rick compactor development work under a grant from Cotton Incorporated, has placed thermometers in various ricks around the Plains to check on possible heating. Temperatures have ranged from as low as 20 degrees to around 60 degrees inside the ricks, depending on ferent days.

Recording thermometers placed three feet inside the ricked cotton, he reports, are fairly constant with very little variation between night and daytime readings. This would indicate that the outside layers of cotton are serving as excellent insulation and would tend to prevent seed sprouting even in the unlikely event of exceptionally warm weather for a few days.

A check of weather records reveals that only about 22 out of 76 days between November 10 and January 26 this season were "fit" for harvesting because of excessive rain and snow.

"Such weather naturally has concerned us all," Johnson stated, "but as of now it appears our field-stored cotton is coming through just fine."

"And if it turns out there is no loss of quality in cotton ricked on the turnrow under these adverse conditions," he concluded, "the system will have pretty well proved itself."

Save Our Children

The death list of children, accidentally killed in the United States, exceeds forty a day and many of the fatalities should have been foreseen, could have been prevented by due care.

Hundreds of children are injured every year by knives, scissors or other dangerous instruments. Parents, of course, know little children grab for anything they can reach and, consequently, should understand the importance of putting these things out of their reach.

In addition, extreme care should be exercised in connection with anything of an electrical nature. Despite safety devices, damp floors and wet hands make a dangerous combination. Obviously, little children don't know of this peril and, as a result, a number of them are electrocuted every year.

While it would be cruel to accuse the parents of the victims of criminal negligence, the facts often sustain the allegation.

Females And Makeup

The cosmetics industry is one of the biggest commercial influences in the nation, and spends billions each year persuading America's young girls they should use various forms of toiletries.

As has happened so often in America, the goo industry, like the cigarette industry, has just about saturated the nation with its advertising campaign and hooked most of the younger generation. One needs not look far these days to see silly little thirteen and fourteen-year-olds mucked up with green or blue eye shadow, false eye lashes, and heavy makeup.

No one can set a rule for all the population. And cosmetics do improve personal appearance in many cases. What millions of young girls are unaware of, however, is that a naturally lovely girl usually looks better without excessive makeup of any kind.

It's difficult for today's young girl to stand against the tide, to be secure enough and individualist enough, to chart her own course and allow her natural beauty to do the job. But the rewards are unlimited for those who do. Naturalness, natural beauty and the non-artificial look beats the goo job every time as far as males are concerned.

D.C. & LBJ-
The Senate-
The White House-
Social Reforms-

WASHINGTON, D.C.--The death of former President Lyndon Johnson probably hit harder on Capitol Hill than in any other place in the nation. It was here that the Texan wielded unprecedented power as the leader of the Senate for many years.

Arriving in the Senate after a controversial election victory in 1948 (Coke Stevenson's supporters thought Johnson benefited from voting irregularities), Johnson four years later became Majority Leader.

From then until inaugurated Vice President four years later, Johnson probably achieved greater control over the Senate than any other man in history. He was a tireless worker, could get on with the powerful Dixie bloc, though liberal, was a master persuader and a rare parliamentary strategist.

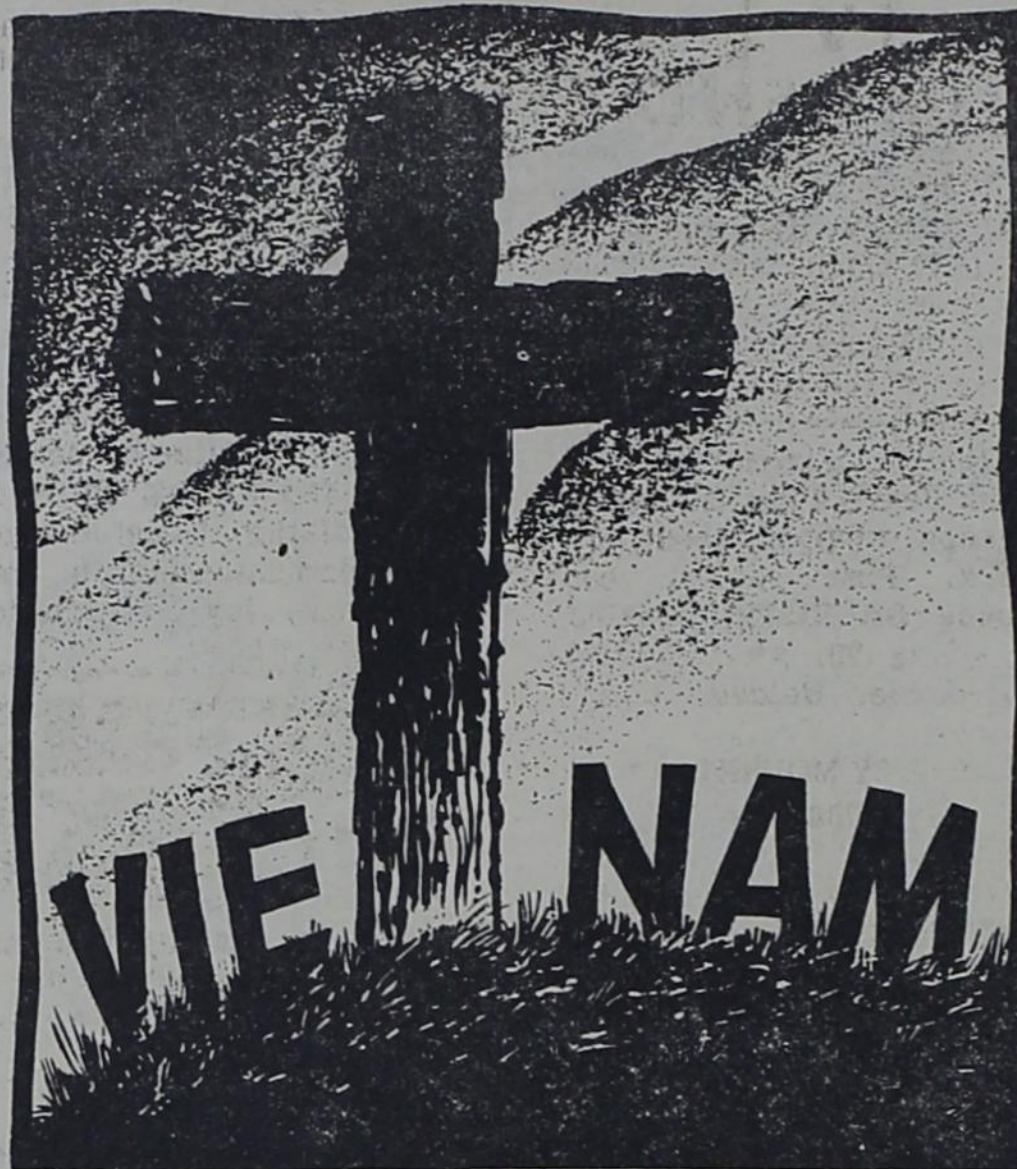

He could predict many votes with uncanny accuracy, knew which way every vote would be cast on many occasions. He was a brilliant compromiser and his art was to trade with legislative opponents to get most of what he wanted--if he couldn't include everything he desired in a law to be enacted.

He was beaten for the Democratic Party nomination in 1960 by the handsome, popular John F. Kennedy, who personally admired Johnson. Ironically Kennedy failed to get much of his program through Congress before assassinated in 1963 and it was LBJ who pushed so much domestic legislation through Congress, before and immediately after his landslide victory in 1964 over Barry Goldwater. Among Hill veterans, Johnson ranked with the late Franklin Roosevelt in achieving broad social and domestic legislative reforms.

His most controversial decision was the massive commitment of U.S. troops to the Vietnam fighting. (Kennedy had made the first limited fighting commitment in 1961; the late Dwight Eisenhower repeatedly refused to order U.S. soldiers into the fighting.) By 1966 this escalation had made Johnson unpopular and in 1968 he declined to offer for reelection, largely as a result.

While the Asian tragedy divided the nation and made LBJ unpopular, President Nixon has managed to extract American troops and history might show that LBJ's action saved South Vietnam from communism.

MARKING THE SPOT --*State Capital NEWS

By: Bill Boykin

BOYKIN

This city lost a part of its "personality" last week. Most Austin Citizens acted sophisticated about the fact that President Lyndon Baines Johnson was seen frequently at public events.... but his personality gave the entire area a certain glamor that will be lost with his passing.

He had made frequent appearances recently -- the Cotton Bowl, Civil Rights forum, Governor Briscoe's inauguration, and an economic seminar at San Marcos.

Yes, Austin and Texas will miss LBJ.

He did not try to dominate the show when he appeared publicly, did not make "news" by voicing opinions on everything, but his influence was felt in many important ways.

During last year's political campaigns in Texas, he was on the phone raising money, offering advice -- supporting those who had been loyal to him during his political career.

The Texas Democratic party will miss LBJ.

Although it will not be listed in his biography, Lyndon Baines Johnson was a journalist.

He wrote a book. He helped write and produce several television news specials. Most of all, he "made" news during his entire lifetime.

His daughter, Mrs. Luci Nugent, likes to point out that her father was "surrounded by journalists."

"My father had to live with journalists all of his life," she said recently. "My mother was a journalism graduate of the University of Texas. My sister wrote for major magazines, and I've enjoyed doing some writing."

Men who influenced him on many major decisions were journalists.... Bill Moyers, G. George Christian, Tom Johnson and many more. He confided in many Texas newspaper editors, Art Kowert, Bob Johnson, Bill Hobby and others.

Texas journalists will miss LBJ.

He refused to let his illness slow him down.

His last public appearance was a tree planting ceremony near his home with Lady Bird. He had spent an active Christmas holiday with his wife, daughters, their husbands and children.

He attended the funeral of the 14 young people who had been killed in the bus-truck accident and the funeral of President Harry S. Truman less than a month ago.

His family will miss LBJ. President Johnson's political career will continue to be an inspiration to young people interested in government and politics.

He came from a family of public servants, but hundreds of college students in this state look at his career and contemplate the "path to the presidency."

He was first a young school teacher, then youth administrator, aide to a Congressman, Congressman, Senator, Vice-President then President of the most powerful nation in the world.

Yes, Lyndon Baines Johnson made history interesting for Texas.

Texas will miss LBJ.

ABORTION LAW STRUCK DOWN

The U. S. Supreme Court voted 7-2 to strike down the state's abortion statute. Holding that medical abortion in the first six months of pregnancy should be a private matter between a woman and her physician, the high court ended a controversy begun in 1970 when "Jane Roe" a pregnant, unmarried woman from Dallas took the abortion argument to the federal courts.

Ironically Miss Roe, as she was named to protect her identity, won her case, but had the baby.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill for an evaluation of the ruling and for alternatives open to Texas in light of the high court decision.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, however, said that "the best solution is one in which the state is neutral on the subject... I believe the medical profession of Texas will respond to the decision and will treat abortion as a medical matter in a responsible way."

ENGINEERS OFFER LEGISLATORS PROFESSIONAL ADVICE--Legislators last week were offered the expertise of a group of engineers on "broadly defined areas of environmental protection" and other areas of public concern.

The Texas Society of Professional Engineers told Texas House and Senate members that 700 members of that association were available for "factual presentations" before committee hearings on air pollution, water pollution, liquid and solid wastes, insecticides and pesticides, health, safety and many other categories.

TOO MANY SCHOOLS?--Texas may be expanding educational facilities to the extent that the quality of education may be diluted, while the taxpayer keeps digging deeper in his pocket-book to pay the bills.

Opinion was expressed here by Wales Madden, an Amarillo attorney, who is a member of the Coordination Board, Texas College and University System. Madden told CB members "educators know that increased funding is dependent upon growing enrollments. With institutions planning independently and on ad hoc basis for enrolling the same students, and with there being fewer students to spread among the colleges, we may endanger the critical mass of students, faculty, facilities, equipment and libraries established at such high cost and hard effort in our existing institutions."

Madden placed part of the blame on local pressure on state legislators, who feel duty bound to try to create by statute a junior or senior college or technical training facility in their communities. Madden urged CB members to moderate the present expansion trend "until we determine fully what the needs are and where we are going."

APPOINTMENTS--The Texas Senate approved appointment of Mark W. White, a Houston lawyer, as Governor Briscoe's nominee to serve as Secretary of State. White's term of office runs concurrently with that of the Governor.

Briscoe also named Judge Max Rogers of Huntsville to be presiding judge of the 2nd Administrative Judicial District of Texas and Curtiss Brown of Houston to be Associate Justice of the 14th Court of Civil Appeals. Brown will fill the unexpired term of Judge John M. Barron of Houston, who resigned.

The new governor also appointed Mack Wallace of Athens as his administrative assistant to handle legal matters in the chief executive's office. Wallace had been serving as district attorney for Anderson, Henderson, and Houston counties.

NEW CLASS OF CHILD CARE WORKERS--Texas, under federal funding, will be the first state to start a training program for a new category of professional child care workers -- the Child Development Associate (CDA).

The CDA program, a brainchild of the Office of Child Development in the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will be administered at the state level by the Office of Early Childhood Development, Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Four contracts have been awarded to Texas colleges and universities to organize the training programs based on proven competency in working with children rather than academic course work.

Schools holding the first four contracts are: 1. Tarrant County Junior College of Fort Worth; 2. Stephen F. Austin State University of Nacogdoches, Texas; 3. Christian University of Fort Worth and Texas Women's University of Denton; 4. Texas Southern University of Houston and 4. Texas A&I University of Kingsville and Pan American College of Edinburg.

UTILITY REGULATION HELP OFFERED CITIES--The Texas Municipal League has set up a special advisory council to assist cities across the state with increasingly complex responsibilities of utility regulation.

TML President Jamie Clements announced establishment of the Texas Utility Advisory Council to help prepare municipalities for responses to utility rate increases and related utility matters which affect local consumers.

Clements, Mayor of Temple, appointed Dan Matkin, Mayor of Irving, to serve as council chairman. The council will function under auspices of the Texas Municipal League and rely on the support of the TML's 734 member cities. Public utility rate experts from major Texas cities will lend technical support.

SHORT SNORTS

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth C. Brown, journalism teacher in Houston's Stephen F. Austin High School is one of five national finalists in the selection for 1973 Teacher of the Year.

About 20,000 Texans are enrolled in 700 Defensive Driving Courses being offered this month in all sections of the state, the Texas Safety Association reports. Graduates are entitled to a 10 per cent reduction on automobile liability, collision and medical payments insurance.

Legislation has been introduced in the 63rd Legislature to make President Lyndon Johnson's birthday, August 27, a state holiday.

TV COMMENTARY

YOUNG DR. KILDARE is back on TV. He was born in a 1937 movie starring Joel McCrea. Lew Ayres took over the role for nine films. In the 1960s Richard Chamberlain stepped into the skin of the young physician. Now Mark Jenkins has the stethoscope wrapped about his neck. Time passes, but young Dr. Kildare remains a young 26, skilled and handsome. Welcome home, Doctor.

MICKEY MOUSE has been around a long time, too. Recently he starred in a kaleidoscope of Disney memories, packed into a 50th-anniversary salute. Disney and his idea-ineers have helped many an American find their laughing place.

IF YOU HAVEN'T sampled ABC's "Kung Fu," do. It's a Thursday night adventure series that's sure to be a winner if it keeps up with its present quality.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY,

JR. and Germaine Greer will stand toe to toe in a provocative debate on women's liberation on a PBS special February 12.

CABLE TV is a wonderful thing as far as reception is concerned. Recently, however, an ice storm in a Southern city put the system out of whack for almost a week, causing a TV-less five days. With gripping ice shooing families to hearthside, and with no TV to do the talking, homefolks got to communicating. In this instance, icy conversation had real warmth.

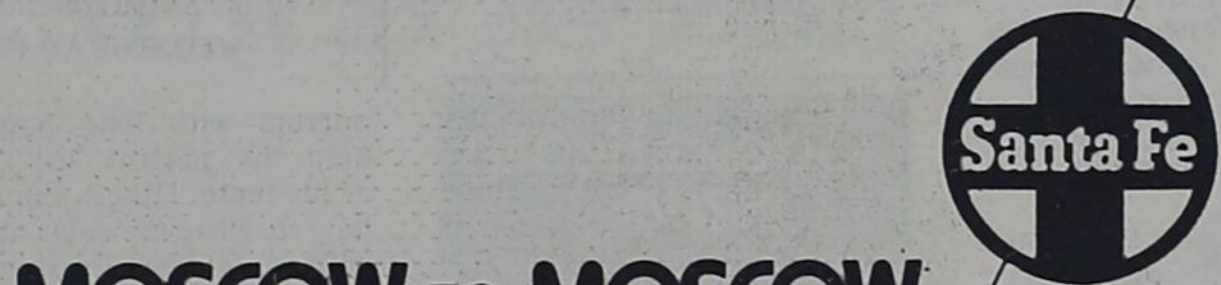

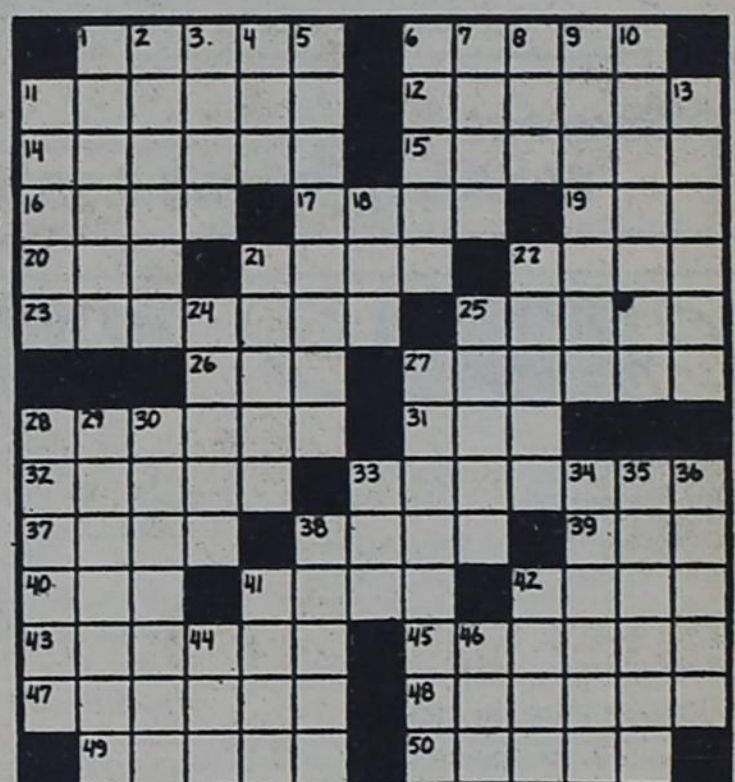

Thinking of buying a general-purpose saw? Pick a crosscut saw about 24 or 26 inches long, with eight teeth per inch. While this saw won't make as fine a cut as an 11-point saw or rip as easily as a six-point saw, it will leave a fine enough edge for most purposes and can be used to rip in an emergency.

MOSCOW TO MOSCOW

America's wheat is making a historic turnaround

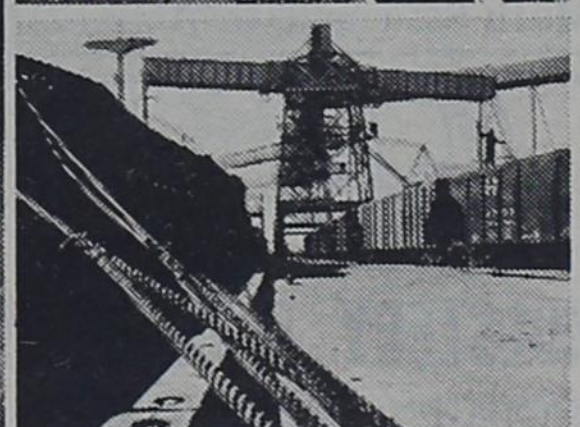

1,000 additional, 100-ton covered hoppers are now being completed to give Santa Fe 11,000 of these giant cars to help move export wheat to Russia

Inspectors checking new hoppers at car builder's plant. Santa Fe pioneered the use of these giant 100-ton covered hoppers for moving wheat and other bulk commodities and has the largest fleet in the rail industry.

Trough hatches extending the length of car roof permit loading in about 12 minutes. Cars can be unloaded in less than three minutes.

Cars at dock facilities for transloading wheat to elevator and ship.

The history of wheat on the Santa Fe started back in the 1870's. At that time, the railway sent representatives to Europe with a view in mind of winning settlers to Kansas. Through their efforts, the Mennonites emigrated from Russia in 1874 and brought with them a few sacks of wheat—red wheat—that thrived and transformed the Midwest and parts of the Southwest into the breadbasket of the world. Today, one of the cities not far from the center of the wheat belt on the Santa Fe, carries the name of Moscow, Kansas. Now, the same type of wheat brought to America by the Mennonites from Russia is going back. It is part of the 400 million bushels of wheat being sold to the Soviet Union. Santa Fe's giant hopper cars are moving it. The company that helped bring wheat to this country is now moving it out, 100 years later. From Moscow and all across Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas to Moscow and the vast areas of Russia. Quite a historic turnaround.

Moving huge volumes of wheat requires coordination and cooperation. "Export movements require the greatest teamwork between railroads, port authorities and exporters in the scheduling of railroad shipments to coordinate with the movement of sea-going vessels. The current wheat export program puts this teamwork to the test, and the Santa Fe is prepared to work closely with its customers to handle this transportation challenge successfully."

Today's Health News

Look, Ma! No cavities . . . Impossible? Not according to a band of dental enthusiasts who are preaching the new gospel of preventive dentistry. They claim: "You can keep all your teeth all your life. You don't have to suffer from cavities or bleeding gums." The secret is a technique known as "plaque control." And recent research has proved it can stop gum diseases—and save teeth. Plaque is a transparent, sticky coating formed by the mixture of saliva with the accumulated microscopic germs on the teeth and gums present even in healthy mouths. These germs infect the gums and make acids which attack the teeth. Often they are the cause of bad breath.

Plaque takes about 24 hours to build up on clean teeth, so the solution seems obvious: Remove the plaque once a day. Easier said than done, however. Plaque is transparent, hard to see. It's possible to brush and brush and still leave traces of plaque on the sides and backs of the teeth.

Many of the plaque control dentists are teaching their patients how to remove plaque. Some advocate use of a red food-coloring dye which, when chewed, leaves a red stain on plaque and food particles, but not on clean teeth. Others show patients how to clean the surfaces of their teeth with wiggly motions of a special soft-bristle brush. Some use small mirrors with long handles that help the patient see the backs of his teeth. Others show patients how to clean the sides of the teeth with dental floss. Techniques vary.

But many dentists are skeptical about the entire approach. In fact, only some 15 percent of dentists in the U.S. advocate this form of preventive dentistry as the end-all. Viron Diefenbach, the assistant executive director of the American Dental Association, for one, worries that plaque control will overshadow other practices considered part of preventive dentistry—including fluoridation and proper diet. And John Green, D.M.D., who directs the dental division of the U.S. Public Health Service, says, "There is a limit to how much you can manage plaque—it's not going to completely solve the decay problem."

Still, a recent survey of dentists showed that while the great majority are not giving their patients instructions in plaque control, many are interested in starting such programs. The problem, then: convincing the American public—twenty million of whom have lost all their natural teeth—that spending five minutes a day for clean teeth is worth the trouble.

LOUISA'S LETTER

To O.L.P. in New York;
The answer to the letter about children and dogs abusing the yards and gardens of people who live on corner lots, had several lines omitted in your local paper. It should have read that I, personally, had allowed my own children as they were growing up, to use my garden as a playground as I thought it was more important for them to have a play area at home than for me to have beautiful grass—but, that since they have grown-up I felt that I should be allowed to let my grass grow while other people's children used their own yards or public playgrounds for their games.

In my former letter I did not go into as much detail about the matter but I did write that my own children were allowed to play their games at home, regardless of grass and flowers.

Louisa.

Dear Louisa,

My problem is concerned with abortions. Would you please explain the risks and estimate the cost of an abortion?

S.--W.Va.

Answer:

The risks are no greater, so I understand, than that of having a baby if—and this is crux of the matter—you have a competent physician.

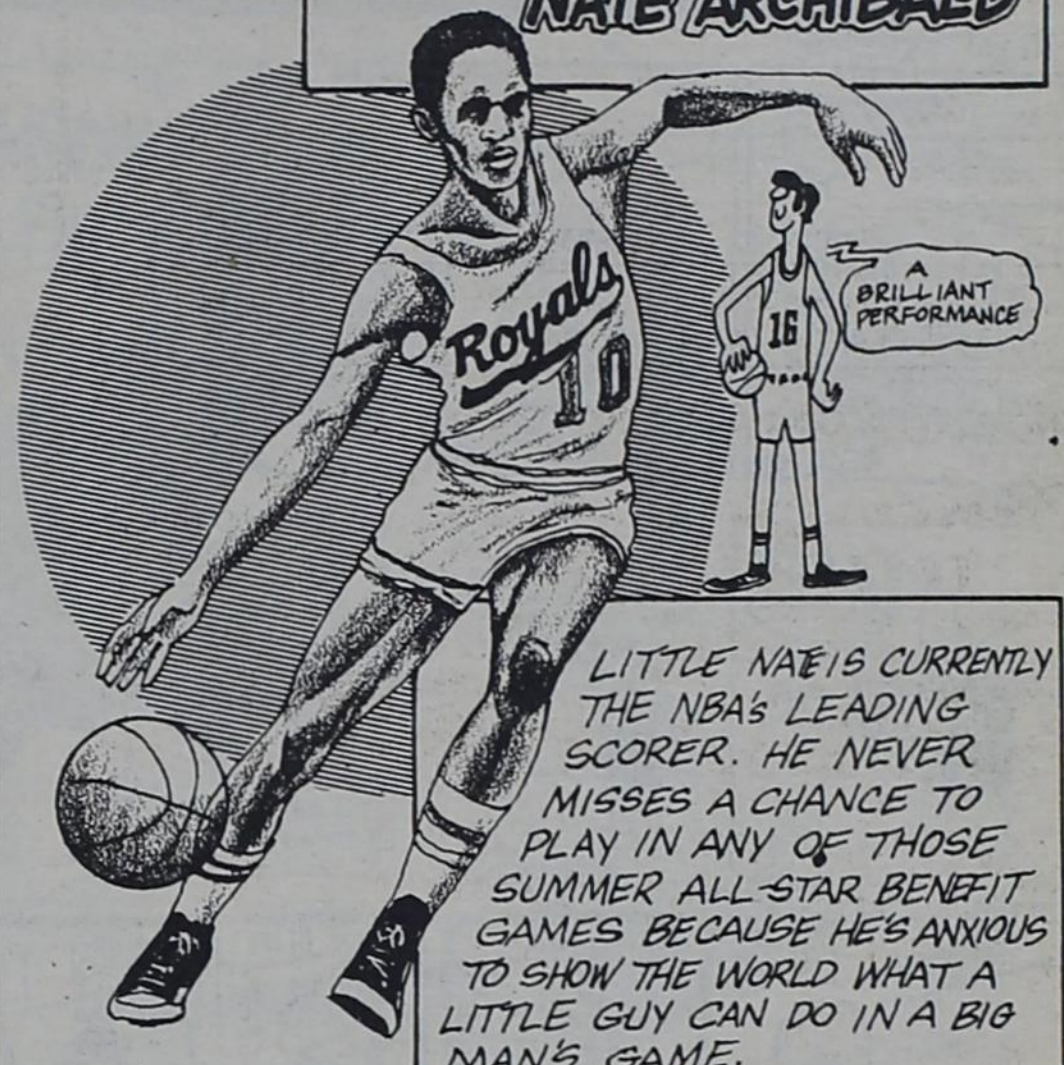

Some states, such as New York, consider abortions legal, if requested by the woman, other states have conditions attached. Prices vary but don't risk your life by going to a quack.

Louisa.
