EIGHT MEN ARE ARRESTED AND CHARGED WITH THEFT

Amarillo.—Sunday night the Ford Hospital on Tenth and Jackson Sts., was burglarized; eleven casings and thirteen inner tubes taken, together with $3 in silver from the cash register. The police department was called to make an investigation, which led to the arrest of John Reafan and Ed Tucker, employees at the L. & M. Transfer barn; the men being in the act of removing the goods from the hiding place. It seems they had hid the casings and inner tubes among the hay in the attic and had a buyer on the ground to take the goods when they were caught.

Six men were arrested Tuesday for being implicated in stealing about $1,400 worth of hides from the L. & M. Transfer barn, where Bob Bonner had them stored. These men are in the county jail awaiting trial. As yet no bond has been made by any of them.

M. E. MISSIONARY SOCIETY MET WITH MRS. W. DONALD

The society met Monday afternoon with Mrs. W. Donald. The regular monthly program from the Voice was carried out in full.

"The Spirit of Democracy in Industry" was very ably given by Mrs. Donald.

The crowning feature of the meeting was the discussion of "Christianizing Community Life," led by Mrs. Shankle. Some very helpful thoughts were brought out showing what may be accomplished when our women, through united study and prayer, accept the responsibility in the Great Commission and give themselves in service. A sisterhood is formed which enriches the world, the promise is fulfilled and the knowledge of God shall cover the earth as the water covers the sea.

At the close of the meeting we were favored with several numbers on the Victrola.

The society will meet next Monday with Mrs. Shankle, and the following program will be rendered:

Mission Lesson, I Cor. 12:4-11.

In Education, Mrs. Shankle.
In Literature, Mrs. Donald.

Notorious

This is how a high school girl recently parsed the sentence "He Kissed Me."

"He," she began, with a fond lingering over the word that brought the crimson to her cheeks, "is a pronoun, third person, singular number, masculine gender, a gentleman, and pretty well off, universally considered a good catch. 'Kissed' is a verb, transitive, indicative mood, indicating affection, first and third persons, plural number, and governed by circumstances. 'Me'—oh, well, everybody knows me!" And she sat down.

Everybody most cordially invited to be present and do their part to make this "No-Accident-Week" a great success.

By the afternoon of June 21 approximately three hundred and five thousand railroad men in the Central Western Region will have signed a pledge to go seven days, if possible, without sustaining a personal injury.

The week beginning June 22 has been designated by the Regional Director of Railroads as "No-Accident-Week," and according to a statement issued by Mr. H. A. Adams, Regional Supervisor of Safety on the Central Western Region, the lines under his jurisdiction approximately fifty-two thousand miles, with three hundred and five thousand men and women on the payrolls.

Back of this army of industrial workers who have decided to eliminate personal injuries are four hundred safety committees, composed of both officers and employes, working under regulations prescribed by the United States Railroad Administration.

According to the employes themselves, who are taking a keen interest in it, says Mr. Adams, "No-Accident-Week" is bound to give a big impetus to their safety work. The test is something concrete, something which they may attain definitely as a result of their efforts. This is causing considerable rivalry among the roads and the men say that the psychological effect upon the rank and file of employes of being thus placed upon their mettle, together with the knowledge that even for a week they may prevent actual suffering or grief to any number of employes or their families, makes "No-Accident-Week" well worth while.

COULDN'T SLEEP

Was Miserable and Losing Weight Suffering From Kidney Complaint. Doan's Removed the Trouble.

"I was about down and out from kidney trouble," says Harry Griffith, of 228 N. Darlington St., Westchester, Pa. "The kidney secretions burned like scalding water. Sometimes there would be a complete stoppage and, oh! what pain I suffered! My feet became swollen and I had a time of it getting on my shoes."

"My back hurt right over my kidneys. Nights I did nothing but toss about. It was just as though a knife were thrust into my back. I couldn't bend over without terrible pain and I would fall to my knees and crawl along to get hold of something to help myself up. Blinding dizzy spells came on and terrible headaches added to my misery."

"I was rapidly losing weight and knew something would have to be done. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and was more than surprised. The troubles were soon leaving me and six boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me entirely. To this day I have been free from kidney complaint."

Chilton, Texas.—Mrs. Mary Reese, of this place, states: "Some time ago I was quite sick and suffered a great deal. I had been suffering quite awhile . . . ASSOCIATION PRODUCES EARLY CHICKS FOR ITS MEMBERS FROM BIG INCUBATOR

Motortrucks Get Eggs to Market in Time.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A community egg circle is really a modern revision of the old-fashioned knitting bee or spelling school, with the exception that it aims toward financial profit rather than social benefit for its members. The annual egg crop of Uncle Sam amounts to approximately $700,000,000 in value. Largely because of improper handling and inferior methods of marketing there is an annual loss of approximately 8 per cent of the eggs marketed.

Many farmers look upon eggs as a by-product, and the returns as so much clear gain. Their hens forage for a living, eggs are gathered when convenient and stored almost anywhere. With such carelessness and a combination of mongrel stock, dirty nests, stolen nests of broody hens, unconfined males, late maturing pullets, and other undesirable conditions, is it any wonder that the ultimate product includes a high percentage of small, cracked, dirty, stale, heated, and even rotten eggs?

Occasionally the accumulations of country eggs are taken to the crossroads merchant and exchanged for merchandise. The merchant usually buys these eggs "case count," paying the same price for all kinds and sizes, provided they have unbroken shells. Small production results in small or infrequent shipments.

How to Prevent Losses.

How can these losses be prevented? By selecting pure breeds that lay more or larger eggs, such as the White Leghorn, the Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, or Orpingtons; by giving better care, food, and shelter to the flock and providing dry, clean, vermin-proof nests; by confining males except during the breeding season; by collecting eggs frequently, especially during hot or muggy weather; by storing eggs in a dry, clean, cool place; by using the small and otherwise unmarketable eggs on the home table; by marketing frequently, with protection at all times from heat; by selling for cash on a basis of size and quality, "loss off" instead of "case count;" by using an attractive package, and by combining shipments as a measure of economy. By uniting several egg producers in an association or egg circle more can be accomplished in these essentials.

One successful egg association has a large incubator house of 12,000 eggs capacity, where early chicks are produced for the members at low cost. This is done in order to obtain early maturing pullets, thus securing eggs during the fall, when the supply is usually scant. The association also has a receiving room for eggs where they are candled, sorted to weight (about 24 ounces to the dozen), packed in cartons and shipped on contract orders. All eggs are guaranteed to be according to grade. The association advertises the fancy grades on their cartons and cases and market prices are paid to the members. Two year dividends are paid each year in proportion to the amount of eggs marketed through the association and the time of year the eggs were brought in, a larger dividend being paid a dozen for eggs marketed in the fall and winter than for those delivered in the spring and summer. A regular trade is established with discriminating customers, with city clubs, with the best class of hotels and restaurants and with fancy grocers for a supply each day or week. The reputation thus established enabled this association to obtain a price several cents a dozen above the regular market quotations, as fancy trade is willing to pay a premium for a guaranteed article. Most egg circles also cooperate in buying their chicken feed and other poultry supplies.

Fancy Package Attracts Public.

All food products should be delivered in clean, attractive packages. Some of the most successful egg shippers have discarded the dirty wooden case and are using a heavy fiber-board case, which will hold from 15 to 30 pasteboard cartons. Each carton has compartments for 12 eggs. Upon both the cartons and the case can be printed such advertising as may be wished. This style of package is especially desirable for the fancy retail grocer who can have his firm name included in the advertising. The fiber-board case is not expensive, forms a good protection for the eggs in shipping, and is worthy of trial. With a firm container, parcel post can be used for small shipments to private homes within the first and second postal zones; that is, 150 miles. Each egg should be wrapped in paper to hold it snugly on end and in its own individual compartment of the container; and after the container is closed it should be securely wrapped in strong wrapping paper and tied with coarse, strong cord. When there is a successful creamery established in the country neighborhood, eggs can be delivered to it with the cream or milk. Creamery officials can often work up a fancy trade among their butter customers. Farmers desiring to organize a community egg circle should correspond with the United States bureau of markets, which will supply them with detailed information regarding its organization, operation, and management.

CHICKENS MAY EAT SHAVINGS

Not Advisable to Use Excelsior or Sawdust as Litter in Brood House—Hay Is Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The use of such litter as shavings, cut excelsior and sawdust in the brooder house is not advised, if cut hay or straw is available, because the young chicks often eat some of their bedding. Eating litter of this nature develops crop trouble which often kills the young chicks. The best cure is to prevent by using short cut hay or straw for bedding. It is soft and easy for the chicks to scratch in and is a good absorbent, while the hay, especially if clover or alfalfa hay is used, is a good, bulky food for chicks. In addition to being readily digestible. Sand may also be used in the brooder scratch pens where cut hay is not available, although the latter material is preferable.

TEAM WORK ESSENTIAL

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Marketing farm products through the commission house is a partnership affair, and no partnership can be a complete success unless each partner does his best and is willing to make it possible for the other to work to the best advantage. Teamwork always counts, and never more than in the relation of producer and agent, as it exists between the farmer and his commission man.

UNIFORMITY IS DESIRABLE

Means Increased Profits if Fowls Are Properly Marketed—Purebreds Make Best Profit.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Purebred poultry means uniformity of products. Uniformity of products means increased profits if they are properly marketed. Given the same care and feed, purebred fowls will make a better profit than mongrels.

POULTRY NOTES

The first patent on an incubator was taken out in 1847.

Milk or water should be kept before the chicks at all times from the first.

It is important to have a market for the broilers as soon as they are finished.

Pure-bred fowls are the kind every farmer should have; any breed that you like best.

Keep the early chick dry, warm and growing vigorously. That's the whole story of success.

The orchard is a good place for poultry to range. They help keep down injurious insects.

The use of mature hens for breeding purposes helps to insure the vigorous chicks which can fight disease.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Economy Corner

To Mend an Ugly Tear.

Sometimes you are unfortunate enough to make an ugly tear in a handsome new gown. It may be mended very successfully, and if in an inconspicuous place it will not show at all. Lay the tear edge to edge, and haste across it, being careful that while the edges meet, they do not overlap. Cut a piece of rubber tissue, which may be obtained at any tailoring shop, to amply cover the tear. Lay the garment on the ironing board right side down, place the rubber over the rent, and over the rubber lay a piece of goods of the same material as that of the garment to be mended. Keep both rubber and goods perfectly smooth, and press out with a hot iron for several minutes. Now cut out the basting threads on the right side, and shave off any rough edges remaining. When there is no material of the dress on hand, a piece of lightweight woolen goods of the same color will answer. That the bottoms of men's trousers are held together in this way is a good sign that the method is practical and successful.

To Pad Embroidery.

In padding embroidery use the chain stitch. This is an especially good hint for making scalloped edges. In making patch work, if you cut your pattern in table oil cloth instead of paper, you will find the work much more satisfactory. The oil-cloth pattern will not slip when cutting and there is no danger of snipping off a portion with the scissors.

A Dress Protector.

When the yoke of a nightdress becomes worn, cut off the nightdress skirt, take out the sleeves and sew it together across the top, leaving a small opening through which the hook of a suit hanger may be slipped, and use it to protect a nice dress hanging in the closet. Washed but seldom it will last a long time, and will be found more convenient than a bag, as it is so much easier to insert the dress without crushing.

Use for Old Leather.

One should always save the tops of old shoes, or the gauntlets of heavy riding gloves or other pieces of leather. They are excellent as an interlining for iron holders.

Do not make the holder too large, as it is clumsy to handle. Those which are oval in shape are preferable. Cut the covering and the interlining the same size and shape, stitch all the thicknesses on the machine, close to the edge of the material, then bind with a tape or piece of seam binding.

Pongee Again.

As sure as the coming of summer pongee in some form appears. This year there are lovely pongee parasols. Some are mounted on brown frames and sticks, with no other trimming than brown cords on the handles and brown tassels on the ends. Another shows lovely blue butterflies embroidered over the inside of the parasol, with blue cord and blue ends to the sticks.

A Footwear Fad.

The few who wish to follow fashion's whim in footwear can wear, this summer, white oxfords with black shoe laces and black stockings. This combination is sanctioned by New York's latest decree. Of course the generality of women will use the conservative all white.

Summer and Sport Suits

No one is prepared for midsummer unless she has ready for warm weather a sport suit, or a sport coat that may be worn with skirts of the same character, supplemented by a sweater of sweater-wool. The sport suit has made a place for itself that nothing else can fill. It is not an extravagance even for the woman who believes in reducing her expenditure on clothes to necessities, for the sport suit replaces dressier and less generally wearable clothes. It is smart enough to take the place of afternoon frocks and it remains informal, whatever it is made of. "Suit" is a term that covers the combination of a sport skirt and a sport coat that do not match, as well as skirt and coat of the same material.

A handsome example of the first combination appears in the suit on the left of the two models shown in the picture. In this the skirt is of white satin and is made of one of those new weaves that appear to be better suited to sport skirts than to anything else. It is strong and brilliant. On the overlapped seam at the left side, five large, flat pearl buttons are set near the bottom. Nothing could be done more to emphasize the character of the skirt. The coat is in the same class as the skirt, and is made of bright green silk tulle, with sailor collar and band of self-colored embroidery about the bottom. A satin vest worn with it has small pearl buttons, set close together, down the front. Bright green tulle coats with machine stitching of white silk, and coats crocheted of the green silk in lace designs are noteworthy among the novelties to be worn with white satin or silk sport skirts. All the coats have belts or sashes.

The suit at the right is made of a heavy ribbed silk—skirt and coat of the same material. There are several patterns in these sport silks, some of them in two colors, others in figured designs of one color. Angora cloth is a favorite for embellishing them, placed in bands about the skirt and coat and as cuffs and collars. But many of these suits are untrimmings, as the fanciful fabric makes variety enough. Even in sport suits the vest has made a place for itself, and it appears in this model with cuff at the bottom having six little buttons set along the center. But there are many sport coats that ignore the vogue of vests.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

FATHER ROOSTER'S COMPLAINT.

"It most certainly annoys me, cock-a-doodle-do, it most certainly annoys me," said Father Rooster.

"What annoys you, Father Rooster?" asked one of the little chickens. "It annoys me, my child, when I hear the people grumbling over the great ruts in the road."

"What are ruts, Father Rooster?" asked the children.

So Father Rooster took the chicken for a walk and showed him the great hollows in the road, or the ruts as he called them. The chicken was not very old and didn't know very much about the world.

"And do these ruts annoy you, Father Rooster?" asked the chicken.

"They do, my child, but not because they are ruts."

"I am very much puzzled, Father Rooster," said the chicken. "I do wish you would explain."

Father Rooster cleared his throat, then he crowed, then he strutted about.

"I was getting myself ready to make a speech," he said. "Now I am all ready. Anyone else who may care to listen to my speech will be allowed to listen."

"It is free, and I invite everyone to hear it. Cock-a-doodle-do, it is to be a lecture."

"It's not to be a lesson is it?" asked another chicken, who had had all he wanted to have of schooling for some time to come.

"No, it is not to be a lesson," said Father Rooster.

"Then I will come," said the chicken.

"So will I," said another.

"And I will too," said a third.

"I will join you all," said a fourth.

"Will there be refreshments afterwards?" asked a fifth.

"It will probably be time for supper when he gets through," said a sixth. "Still we haven't much else to do. Chickens and hens and roosters don't have many engagements."

"That's so," replied a seventh.

"Well, I'll attend."

Father Rooster didn't mind in the least if they had all sorts of funny reasons for coming, as long as they came. That flattered him enough.

"Well, hens and roosters, chickens, Mr. Chairman and Ladies and Gentlemen," he began.

"There is no Mr. Chairman and there are no ladies and gentlemen here," said one of the chickens.

"Hush," said the others. "No matter what a lecturer says let him say it!"

So Father Rooster continued.

"It gives me great pleasure to be asked to speak at this splendid meeting."

"We never asked him at all, he invited himself," said another.

"Hush," they all said again.

"I wish to tell you that I hope you will all join me in complaining against the ruts in the road. There was a heavy rainstorm. Then the great motor trucks and automobiles came along, and it is true some trucks pulled by horses, but mostly by those atrocious automobiles."

"They made the ruts, and while the people grumble about the awful country roads and the ruts they do not grumble about that horrible invention, the automobile."

"Some of the ruts were made by horse trucks," one of the others suggested.

"Those ruts I do not complain about, but I complain about the automobiles which don't get the blame they should get for making such dreadful ruts in the country roads."

"Let's complain against the automobiles," he ended.

"All right, we will," said the rest.

But one little chick, brighter than the others, said,

"But oh Gracious, Mercy me, it's foolish to complain when it doesn't do any good!"

The more distant your goal, the more necessary it is that you should early set your face in its direction. Time spent in waiting is wasted time. GRAIN MIXTURES FOR CALVES

Wheat Bran is Relished by Young Animals and Corn Has Excellent Physiological Effect.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When the calf is in its second week it should begin to receive grain, and when one month old it should eat about half a pound a day. After this time the quantity of grain may be gradually increased, feeding all that the calf will eat until three pounds a day is reached, probably during the third month. Grain fed to supplement separated milk should never be mixed with the milk. It is questionable whether the preparation of grain in any way, such as soaking or boiling, is advisable under most circumstances.

Wheat bran is eaten readily by young calves. Corn has an excellent physiological effect and to a great extent may take the place of fat removed from skim or separated milk. Experiments tend to show that corn fed to calves should be cracked rather than finely ground. Ground oats are good in grain mixtures when available, but in many cases cost much more per unit of feed than corn and bran.

The following grain mixtures are recommended by dairy specialists of the United States department of agriculture:

1. Three parts cracked corn and one part wheat bran.
2. Three parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran and one part ground oats.
3. Three parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran, one part ground oats, and one part linseed meal.
4. Five parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran, one part ground oats, and one part blood meal.
5. Oats, ground.

Clover hay, alfalfa hay, or the most palatable roughage available should be given the calf after the second week. Alfalfa is likely to cause scours, and should be fed sparingly at first and increased only after the calf gets accustomed to it. At first hay should be furnished only a handful at a time, and be placed so that it cannot be soiled. For the first six months, at least, the calf should receive all the roughage of good quality that it will eat up clean.

When the calf has access to good pasture during the first six months it need not receive other roughage. It is not advisable, however, to have the calf under two months of age on pasture in the early spring.

General Pershing's War Map. In installing General Pershing's war map in the old National Museum building in Washington, the commander's room at the front just as it looked when the map was in actual use, is being reproduced as a setting. Here will be the chairs used by the general and his aids while they studied the map, which changed hourly, night and day, as reports came in and were recorded. The table at which the officers looked over documents will stand as it used to at one side, and the walls will be covered with the identical lineoleum that was a background for the map. The map was brought over in pieces now joined together, and the conventional design of the lineoleum is said to give an odd kitchenlike domesticity to the room in which General Pershing watched history writing itself in a very literal sense on the wall.

A Fair Proposition. "Mr. Grabcoinc, I've saved up $3,000 and I want to marry your daughter."

"Do you realize that $3,000 won't last long nowadays?"

"Oh, yes, sir. But it ought to take care of us for at least six months and at the end of that time if I haven't convinced you that I'm an ideal son-in-law you needn't do a thing for us."

As we have to live with ourselves we should see to it that we always have good company.

There's a class of men who are more dangerous to the dairy industry than the men who use the substitute, and they are the men who cause to be manufactured a poor grade of butter. There is no substitute for first-class butter, but for butter made from old, stale cream there is not only danger of substitutes, but there is danger of many people not using butter at all.

Save Family Expenses. The dairy cows under reasonable conditions will save nearly or quite half of the expenses of a small family.

GOOD BLOOD ASSISTED DAIRY

Good Dairy Bull, Purchased as Calf for $100, Put at Head of Herd Is Good Investment.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A good dairy bull, purchased by a Montana county farm bureau member, cost $100 as a calf; it was put at the head of a herd of ten cows, the average annual production of which was 4,800 pounds of milk and 260 pounds of butterfat. The daughters of the bull have now replaced the old cows in the herd and exceed the production of their dams by an average of 102 pounds butterfat and 1,828 pounds of milk per year. This improvement nets $300 profit each year without taking into account the difference in value of the calves. A cow should "carry on" for at least six years, which would mean $1,800 additional profit from the ten cows, because of the $100 invested in the bull calf. "It was a bully good investment," says the farmer.

ENEMIES OF DAIRY INDUSTRY

There is a class of men who are more dangerous to the dairy industry than the men who use the substitute, and they are the men who cause to be manufactured a poor grade of butter. THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

Some are already using hard words over the tax on soft drinks.

LIFT CORNS OFF IT DOESN'T HURT

With fingers! Corns lift out and costs only few cents

Pain? No, not one bit! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift that bothersome corn right off. Yes, magic! Costs only a few cents.

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the mysterious ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius.

General Pershing's War Map.

In installing General Pershing's war map in the old National Museum building in Washington, the commander's room at the front just as it looked when the map was in actual use, is being reproduced as a setting. Here will be the chairs used by the general and his aids while they studied the map, which changed hourly, night and day, as reports came in and were recorded. The table at which the officers looked over documents will stand as it used to at one side, and the walls will be covered with the identical lineoleum that was a background for the map. The map was brought over in pieces now joined together, and the conventional design of the lineoleum is said to give an odd kitchenlike domesticity to the room in which General Pershing watched history writing itself in a very literal sense on the wall.

A Fair Proposition.

"Mr. Grabcoinc, I've saved up $3,000 and I want to marry your daughter."

"Do you realize that $3,000 won't last long nowadays?"

"Oh, yes, sir. But it ought to take care of us for at least six months and at the end of that time if I haven't convinced you that I'm an ideal son-in-law you needn't do a thing for us."

As we have to live with ourselves we should see to it that we always have good company.

There's a class of men who are more dangerous to the dairy industry than the men who use the substitute, and they are the men who cause to be manufactured a poor grade of butter. There is no substitute for first-class butter, but for butter made from old, stale cream there is not only danger of substitutes, but there is danger of many people not using butter at all.

Save Family Expenses. The dairy cows under reasonable conditions will save nearly or quite half of the expenses of a small family.

FARMERS ARE WORKING HARDER

And using their feet more than ever before. For all these workers the frequent use of Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic, healing powder to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath, increases their efficiency and insures needed physical comfort. It takes the Friction from the Shoe, freshens the feet, and prevents tired, aching and blistered feet. Women everywhere are constant users of Allen's Foot-Ease. Don't get foot sore, get Allen's Foot-Ease. Sold by dealers everywhere.—Adv.

The Ruling Passion.

Mrs. Tinkerton—Oh, dear! I wish there was some way to break little Gladys of sucking her thumb.

Her Husband—Don't worry; when she gets a little older she'll notice that it interferes with her talking. They she'll quit it herself.

Buy a Farm Now.

Because land is cheaper than it ever was again. The U. S. Railroad Administration is prepared to furnish free information to homesteaders regarding farming opportunities. We have nothing to sell; no money to lend; only information to give. Write me fully with reference to your needs. Name the state you want to learn about. J. L. Edwards, Manager, Agricultural Section, U. S. Railroad Administration, Room 79, Washington, D. C.—adv.

"The way of the transgressor is hard," when he is trying to transgress the laws of nature.

The Cuticura Toilet Trio

Having cleared your skin keep it clear by making Cuticura your every-day toilet preparations. The soap to cleanse and purify, the Ointment to soothe and heal, the Talcum to powder and perfume. No toilet table is complete without them. 25c everywhere.—Adv.

Calling names in an argument may make the chap called sore, but do they answer his arguments?

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

A daughter is an embarrassing and ticklish possession.—Menander.

STRENGTHENS KIDNEYS—PURIFIES BLOOD

You can't expect weak kidneys to filter the acids and poisons out of your system unless they are given a little help. Don't allow them to become diseased when a little attention now will prevent it. Don't try to cheat nature.

As soon as you commence to have backaches, feel nervous and tired, GET BUSY. These are usually warnings that your kidneys are not working properly.

Do not delay a minute. Go after the cause of your ailments or you may find yourself in the grip of an incurable disease. GOLD MEDAL Haarem Oil Capsules will give almost immediate relief from kidney troubles. GOLD MEDAL Haarem Oil Capsules will do the work. They are the pure original Haarem Oil Capsules imported direct from the laboratories in Haarem, Holland. Ask your druggist for GOLD MEDAL, and accept no substitutes. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on every box. Three sizes, sealed packages. Money refunded if they do not quickly help you.—Adv.

Authors' Handwriting.

If readers and admirers of the polished sentences of popular authors could see the original manuscripts from which their works are printed they would be given interesting insights into the character and personality of the writers. The handwriting of G. K. Chesterton has been described by an English editor as "shocking." W. W. Jacobs, comedy writer of the sea, has all his literary work typed and makes but few corrections on the finished manuscript. Other English writers whose copy is reputed to be neat and quite acceptable to a printer are H. G. Wells, Rudyard Kipling, Arnold Bennett and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Editors say they never know what to expect from that imaginative genius, H. de Vere Stapoole. Sometimes his work is neatly typed on good paper, but often it is scribbled to sheets torn from a copybook.

Heard on the Train.

"Is this Mr. Riley?"

"Eh—what?" said the deaf old chap.

"Is this Mr. Riley?"

"Riley! Oh, yes!"

"I knew your father."

"No bother."

"I say I knew your father."

"What?"

"I—knew—your—father."

"Oh, did ye? So did I."—Boston Transcript.

the regular part of at least one meal each day. It's because of the delightful flavor, and wonderful values of Grape-Nuts as a health builder.

WILL EXACT DAMAGES FOR LIBEL.

Editor Ben F. Smith of the Lockney Beacon is possibly one of the laziest and meanest men on the Plains. The report comes that he is working his wife to death cultivating the family garden, chopping weeds and mowing the lawn, under plea that should he do any of this kind of work it would cause him to have the "hay-fever." She would be justified in giving him a dose of fish ohoks or "horsenic."

After our woman folks read the above we were instructed to say in our reply that Jess Adams is the biggest prevaricator, not only in the Plains country, but the entire State of Texas. Whoever carried that report to Plainview was evidently peeved over the subscription account to the Beacon which we have been endeavoring to collect. If the Plainview editor doesn't straighten this up we will step in and take a half-hundred thousand of that oil money of his as a balm for wounded pride.—Lockney Beacon.

Trouble is brewing among the members of the "Loaf-a-Lot" club that offices on the corner of the square. So many "scientific" retired farmers have moved in from the country and joined the club that they may have the balance of power and capture all the club offices at the next election, says the Plainview News.

WESTERN TELEPHONE CO.
NEW RATES EFFECTIVE

The Western Telephone Company has a quarter page ad in this issue of The Slatonite announcing new rates in effect. From the best information obtainable there is to be no advance in rates to telephone subscribers, but they have eliminated the installation charge altogether. This will be an inducement for many people to install phones and the company has the equipment necessary to take care of the entire city. If you are interested in putting in a telephone at your residence call the local manager for further information.

Sightseeing at War Prices.

Recently the Board of Public Works at Holyoke, Mass., had occasion to employ a man to inspect some boilers in a city building. Soon after it received this strange bill: "To 5 looks, $12." The bill will be paid.

If you have a visitor or know of any news item please telephone The Slatonite, and it will be appreciated.

Shipment of the newest things in Ties and Caps received by express every two weeks. See them at my place. De LONG.

FLUVANNA MAN KILLED BY JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

Snyder, Texas, June 14.—On parole from Fort Leavenworth prison, where he had been interned a year for pro-German utterances, Joe Stahl, a blacksmith of Fluvanna, was shot to death yesterday by J. F. Dowdy, a justice of the peace.

Stahl reached Fluvanna yesterday morning from Leavenworth. It is declared he "started trouble" that led to the shooting. Dowdy used an automatic pistol, five shots taking effect.

CHARITY SWINDLERS CANVASS THE STATE

Fake Salvationists Collecting Money.

The popularity of the Salvation Army throughout the country as a result of the efficient service rendered by this organization in France during the war, and now in this country among soldiers and sailors, is being put to monetary advantage by an organized force of swindlers who are operating in every section of the country.

Reports have come in to Lieut. Col. George Wood, in charge of the Southwestern Division of the Salvation Army that several persons claiming to be representatives of the Salvation Army are collecting funds in this territory. Up to the present, several arrests have been made.

Some of these people wear Salvation Army caps or similar to the regulation cap, with a lettered ribbon bearing such wording as "The American Salvation Army" or "The Union Gospel Salvation Army."

Col. Wood has issued a warning to all sheriffs in this division, all mayors and chiefs of police, all newspapers and business men's organizations in the same territory, that the tamborine collecting methods of the Salvation Army have been discarded. The funds needed to carry on the work of the organization will be raised instead in a State-wide Home Service Drive to be put on soon.

Col. Wood asks that all persons claiming to be representatives of the Salvation Army be asked to show their credentials. Such credentials in this territory should bear the signature of Lieut. Col. Geo. Wood, Dallas Texas, Chief Divisional officer of the Southwestern Chief Division of the Salvation Army. If proper credentials cannot be produced, the persons should be detained until communication is obtained with Col. Wood. If the solicitors prove to be impostors, the Salvation Army will assist in prosecuting them.

This warning is not intended to apply to Salvationists in their own corps cities who are personally known as Local Corps Officers. These men and women will continue their collections until their local corps is placed upon a sound financial basis as a result of securing funds in the city and county for their annual budget.

A BELOVED SALVATION ARMY CHAPLAIN.

The 111th Field Signal Battalion has written a letter to the Salvation Army Headquarters in the United States in appreciation of the work of Adjutant Harry Cline, a Salvation Army Chaplain.

"Prior to the signing of the armistice," the letter reads, "we were never located in a town which offered us the comforts, the amusements or the facilities of any of our home organizations sent over here to aid the soldiers. Because we were part of a combatant organization we were kept in strict training far from the main thread of army life. There was no recreation hall where one could spend the few hours left to himself, nor music of any description to lighten the toils of the day.

Upon the signing of the armistice our division moved back to a quiet area far from the scene of the conflict. At this juncture—a time when a soldier's mind balanced between his hopes of an early return home, on the one hand, and his thoughts of future sordid drudgery, occasioned by necessary rules of army discipline on the other—our chaplain came. His entry caused but a momentary stir, for we had grown to believe that chaplains were mere figureheads and of no material benefit to us.

"But in this we were totally mistaken. Through his untiring efforts he procured from The Salvation Army musical instruments of various kinds—enough to equip a modest orchestra. It was through him that we enjoyed, for the first time in six months, music rendered by home talent. No one but a soldier can appreciate what that one act of kindness did to brighten the flagging spirits of the boys who had left so much behind.

"With that same spirit of unselfishness he established a canteen for our own use, stocking it with every luxury so near and dear to the heart of a soldier. In this he consulted us personally that the wishes of all might be granted, and in many instances our cherished desires were anticipated before they were expressed. In connection with this canteen he established a large recreation hall for every soldier who cared to spend a pleasant evening reading, writing or enjoying the music. Here a home-like atmosphere prevailed, and no stone was left unturned to make this hall a real home for us all."

The letter is signed by the following members of the 111th Field Signal Battalion.

- James C. Netherton, Sergt-Major, Bn. Hdq.
- Willard C. Veach, Supply Sergeant.
- Albert J. Scott, Sergeant, 111th Med. Dept.
- Jas. Goethis, Top Sergeant, Co. "A."
- C. K. Ryan, Top Sergeant, Co. "B."
- James L. Burt, Top Sergeant, Co. "C."

Remembered in Mid-Ocean.

A big new discovery in cigarette blending

The big thing about Chesterfields is their unique blend. The Chesterfield blend is an entirely new combination of tobaccos. It is a most important development in cigarette making.

As a result, Chesterfields deliver a new kind of cigarette enjoyment — just like a "bite" before bedtime when you're hungry — they SATISFY!

It took the finest selections of TURKISH and DOMESTIC tobaccos and no end of skill and patient experiment to get this blend right.

Was it worth it? Say — just smoke a Chesterfield fresh from the moisture-proof package. You'll say it was worth it, all right!

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASSES ENJOYED OUTING

The girls' class of Mrs. C. V. Young and the boys' class of Mrs. J. J. Daniel of the Baptist Sunday School, enjoyed a very pleasant outing at the home of Mrs. Young last Saturday evening. The girls prepared a nice lunch for the occasion. The boys were supposed to provide the transportation but it seems that all the horses had escaped from the pasture, and that the wagons were out of commission, so the party had to walk the entire distance. However, the occasion proved a most enjoyable one.

Proving His Valor
By OTILLIA FRANCES PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

When Ernest Druse came back from the war, bearing the scars of several wounds, a record for exceptional bravery and two honor decorations, the girls of Rockton went fairly wild over him. He was hero, idol, and petted and feted favorite, while stay-at-homes became back numbers, for the time at least.

"He makes me tired!" observed Val Newcomb to a coterie of friends.

"He's a monopolizer so far as the company and attentions of the ladies are concerned; that is sure," remarked one of the group.

"Valor, courage and all that sort of stuff! You'd think he had won the war all by himself!" jeered Val. "His last captivity is Esther Wilde. Seems to think all he has to do is to look at a girl and she is his own special property."

"Um! Sour grapes, eh?" was suggested, which Val took with manifest ill-nature and walked away muttering to himself.

"I've got to devise some kind of a move to make myself solid with the girls," he soliloquized, sourly. "It was fair sailing with Esther until that khaki wonder put in an appearance. I don't mind the general lot, but Esther is the pick of them all, has money, beauty and social position, and I'm not going to give up my hopes and dreams so easily. I'm going to set my thinking machinery at work and see if I can't devise some scheme to get the upper hand of this audacious military marvel."

It was two days later when Val visited a drinking place in the slum portion of the town, and was engaged in an earnest, low-toned conversation with a rough appearing denizen of the place for some time.

"Think you can carry out the program?" was his final interrogation of him of low brows and furtive, evil eyes.

"Trust me for staging the act according to rule," was the confident reply.

"All right. Don't disappoint me, Tuesday night from eleven to twelve."

Now Val had invited Esther to a local entertainment for Tuesday evening and had prevailed upon her to accompany him.

At the close of the entertainment they sauntered homeward slowly. It was an exquisitely perfect June night and Val kept his eye out closely, scanning tree and bush for the lurker he expected to help him "stage a real act of valor."

He was simply courteous to Esther and did not seek to press his attentions, for which Esther was truly grateful, but all the time he was congratulating himself over the inevitable homage and admiration that would be due him when the act was consummated.

There was a precious heirloom in the Wilde family, with which all Rockton was familiar. It was a diamond sunburst, which Esther always wore on important occasions. Val made sure that it was in place upon this particular evening. Its value was very considerable and he knew that its loss would be deeply mourned by the fair girl he hoped to make his bride.

"Oh, dear!" suddenly exclaimed Esther, shrinking back in terror. A man, wearing a half-mask over his face, had sprung from behind a tree. In a twinkling he had despoiled Esther of the jeweled ornament.

"Stop, you ruffian!" shouted Val, disengaging Esther's arm, leaping upon the audacious robber and flinging him to the ground.

"Go easy, mister!" snarled the latter, and, leveling a revolver, he struggled to his feet.

"Be careful!" quavered Esther. "He is going to shoot."

The footpad did shoot. Two sharp reports rang out. The highwayman turned and fled.

"I will restore your property if I have to follow that miscreant to the ends of the earth!" vaunted Val.

"Don't risk your life—" began Esther, but with an injunction to hurry home to safety Val dashed in hot pursuit of the thief, and both were lost to sight.

Esther did not enter the house when she reached it, but stood at the garden gate, peering anxiously down the street. She was quite solicitous as to the welfare of her courageous champion, although not one whit perturbed at the loss of the ornament. Then she expressed a sigh of relief. At the end of half an hour Val came into view. His attire was all awry, his collar torn out of place.

"A deadly struggle and a desperate villain!" announced Val. "He escaped me, but not until I had wrested from him your precious property," and Val extended the sunburst.

"Precious!" repeated Esther, with a slight smile. "Oh, Mr. Newcomb! Why did you so foolishly risk injury for a mere trifle? This is only a substitute paste imitation which I have been wearing while the real ornament is being reset."

Val Newcomb wilted. All the same he felt he must have demonstrated a bravery Esther could not fail to admire. She gave him full meed of praise until his bribed emissary, while under the influence of liquor, let out the details of the secret compact.

Then Val Newcomb quietly left town, for the engagement of Esther and Ernest had been announced that same day.

Speaking From Experience.

The class was bored. It was a reading class, and the book was full of big words.

"Archimedes," read Jimmie Jones, "lept from his bath shouting 'Eureka! Eureka!'"

The teacher stopped him.

"What does 'Eureka' mean?" she asked.

No one knew, so no hand was raised.

"It means," she said, "I have found it! Now, what had Archimedes found?"

After a long moment Jimmie ventured hopefully:

"Please, miss, the soap." —Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

GREEN FANCY
BY GEORGE BARR
Mc CUTCHEON

HOLLOW OF HER HAND," "THE PRINCE OF GRAUSTARK," ETC.

there, he made swift calculation, he quarry, no longer of use to her, was reasonably sure to be in all probability some cutter's shed would be. It would provide shelter from that was falling and night air. He remembered, in discussing the Green Fancy the night before that the stone came two miles away, where a granite had been found, according to Barnes' quick would bring the pit close to the boundary of the Curtis property, and almost directly on a line with the point where he and Sprouse entered the meadow at the beginning of their advance upon Green Fancy. That being the case, they were now quite close to the stake and rider fence separating the Curtis land from that of the farmer on the north.

"Good," he said, more to himself than to her. "I begin to see light. Are you afraid to remain here while I go down there for a look around? I shouldn't be gone more than a couple of minutes."

"The way I feel at present," she said, jerkily, "I shall never, never from this instant till the hour in which I die, let go of your coat-tails, Mr. Barnes." Sutting the action to the word, her fingers resolutely fastened, not upon the tail of his coat but upon his sturdy arm. "I wouldn't stay here alone for anything in the world."

"Heaven bless you," he exclaimed, suddenly exalted. "And since you put it that way, I shall always contrive to be within arm's length."

And so, together, they ventured along the edge of the pit until they reached the wagon road at the bottom. As he had expected, there was a ramshackle shed hard by. It was not much of a place, but it was deserted and a safe shelter for the moment.

A workman's bench lay on its side in the earthen floor. He drew it over to the boarding. She laid her head against his shoulder and sighed deeply. He kept his eyes glued on the door and listened for the first ominous sound outside. A long time afterward she stirred.

"Are you cold? You are wet—"
"Barnes," she said, drawing away from him. "Isn't it near-break?"
He looked at his watch. "Three," he said.

There ensued another period of silence. She remained slightly aloof. "You'd better lean against me," he said at last. "I am softer than the best boards, you know, and quite as harmless."

"Thank you," she said, and promptly settled herself against his shoulder. "It is better," she sighed.

"Would you mind telling me something about yourself, Miss Cameron? I should like to know whether I am to address you as princess, duchess, or—just plain Miss."
"I am more accustomed to plain Miss, Mr. Barnes, than to either of the titles you would give me."

"Don't you feel that I am deserving a little enlightenment?" he asked. "I'm working literally as well as figuratively in the dark. Who are you? Why were you a prisoner at Green Fancy? Where and what is your native land?"

"Mr. Barnes, I cannot answer any one of your questions without jeopardizing a cause that is dearer to me than anything else in all the world. I am sorry. I pray God a day may soon come when I can reveal everything to you—and to the world. I am of a picken country; I am trying to serve an unhappy house that has ruled it for centuries and is now in the direst peril. The man you know as Loeb is a prince of that house. I may say this to you, and it will serve to explain my position at Green Fancy: he is not the prince I was led to believe awaited me there. He is the cousin of the man I expected to meet, and he is the enemy of the branch of the house that I would serve. Do not ask me to say more."

owners, Mr. Barnes—a loyal prince of the blood."
"But why here?" he insisted.
"He was to take them into Canada, and thence, in good time, to the palace of his ancestors."

"I am to understand, then, that not only you but the committee you speak of, fell into a carefully prepared trap. The treachery, therefore, and its inception in the loyal nest. You were betrayed by a friend."

"I am sure of it," she said bitterly. "If this man Sprouse does not succeed in restoring the—oh, I believe I shall kill myself, Mr. Barnes."

The wall of anguish in her voice went straight to his heart.
"He has succeeded, take my word for it. They will be in your hands before many hours have passed."

"Is he to come to the Tavern with them? Or am I to meet him—"
"Good Lord!" he gulped. Here was a contingency he had not considered. Where and when would Sprouse appear with his booty? "I—I fancy we'll find him waiting for us at the Tavern."

"But had you no understanding?"
"Er—tentatively." The perspiration started on his brow. He was thinking of something else; his amazing stupidity in not foreseeing the very situation that now presented itself. Why had he neglected to settle upon a meeting place with Sprouse in the event that circumstances forced them to part company in flight? Fearing that she would pursue the subject, he made haste to branch off onto another line.

"What is the real object of the conspiracy up there, Miss Cameron?"
"You must bear with me a little longer, Mr. Barnes," she said, appealingly. "I cannot say anything now."

"You said that tomorrow night would be too late. What did you mean by that?"
She waited a few seconds and then removed her head from his shoulder. He heard the sharp intake of her breath and felt the convulsive movement of the arm that rested against his. There was no mistaking her sudden agitation.

"I will tell you," she said, and he was surprised by the harshness that came into her voice. "Tomorrow morning was the time set for my marriage to that wretch up there. I could have avoided it only by destroying myself. If you had come tomorrow night instead of tonight you would have found me dead, that is all. Now you understand."

"Good God! You—were to be forced into a marriage with—why, it is the most damnable—"
"O'Dowd—God bless him!—was my only champion. He knew my father. He—"

"Listen!" he hissed, starting to his feet.
"Don't move!" came from the darkness outside. "I have me gun leveled. I heard me name taken in vain. Thanks for the blessing. I was wondering whether you would say something."

"I am ready to return with you, Mr. O'Dowd," she said distinctly. "There must be no struggle, no bloodshed. Anything but that."

O'Dowd spoke out of the darkness: "You forget that I have your own word for it that you'll be a dead woman before the day is over. Wouldn't it be better for me to begin shooting at once and spare your soul the everlasting torture that would begin immediately after your self-produced decease?"

A little cry of relief greeted this quaint sally. "You have my word that I will return with you quietly if—"
"Thunderation!" exclaimed Barnes wrathfully. "What do you think I am? A worm that—"

"Easy, easy, me dear man," cautioned O'Dowd. "Keep your seat. Don't be deceived by my infernal Irish humor. It is my way to be always polite, agreeable and—prompt. I'll shoot in a second if ye move one step outside that cabin."

"O'Dowd, you haven't the heart to drag her back to that beast of a—"
"Hold hard! We'll come to the point without further palavering. Where are ye dragging her yourself, ye rascal?"

"To a place where she will be safe from insult, injury, degradation—"
"Well, I have no fault to find with ye for that," said O'Dowd. "Bedad, I didn't believe you had the nerve to tackle the job. You may be interested to know that up to the moment I left the house your absence had not been noticed, my dear Miss Cameron. And as for you, my dear Barnes, your visit is not even suspected. How the devil did ye do it, Barnes?"

"Are you disposed to be friendly, O'Dowd?" demanded Barnes. "If you are not, we may just as well fight it out now as later-on."

"You are not to fight!" she cried in great agitation. "What are you doing? Put it away! Don't shoot!"

"Is it a gun he is pulling?" inquired O'Dowd calmly. "And what the deuce are you going to aim at, me hearty? I have a bull's-eye lantern with me. From the luxurious seat behind this rock I could spot ye in a second. Having said as much I now propose arbitration. Would ye mind handing over that tin box in exchange for my polite thanks and a courteous goodby to both of ye?"

"We have no box of any description, Mr. O'Dowd," cried she triumphantly. "Thank heaven, he got safely away!"
"Do you mean to tell me you came away without the—your belongings, Miss Cameron?" exclaimed O'Dowd.

"They are not with me," she replied. Her grasp on Barnes' arm tightened. "Oh, isn't it splendid? They did not catch him. He—"

"Will you both swear on your sacred honor that ye haven't the jewels in your possession?"
"Unhesitatingly," said Barnes. "I swear, Mr. O'Dowd."

"Then," said he, "I have no time to waste here. I am looking for a tin box. I beg your pardon for disturbing you."

"Oh, Mr. O'Dowd, I shall never forget all that you have—"
"Whist, now! There is one thing I must insist on your forgetting completely: all that has happened in the last five minutes. What I am doing, Mr. Barnes, would be my death sentence if it ever became known."

"It shall never be known through me, O'Dowd. I'd like to shake your hand, old man."
"God bless you, Mr. O'Dowd," said the girl in a low, small voice, singularly suggestive of tears. "Some day I may be in a position to—"

"Don't say it! You'll spoil everything if you let me think you are in my debt. Bedad, don't be so sure I sha'n't see you again, and soon."

"Tell me how to find Hart's Tavern, old man. I'll—"
"No, I'm dashed if I do. You ought to be grateful to me for not stopping you entirely, without asking me to give you a helping hand. Good-by, and God bless you. I'm praying that ye get away safely, Miss Cameron. So long, Barnes. If you were a crow and wanted to roost on that big tree in front of Hart's Tavern, I dare say you'd take the shortest way there by flying as straight as a bullet from the mouth of this pit, following your extremely good-looking—"

They did not wait for the break of day. Taking O'Dowd's hint, Barnes directed his steps straight out from the mouth of the quarry and pressed confidently onward. In answer to a question she informed him that there were no fewer than twenty-five men in Green Fancy, all of them shrewd, resolute and formidable.

"I cannot, for the life of me, see why they took chances on inviting me to the house, Miss Cameron."
She was silent for a moment, and when she spoke it was with great intensity. "Mr. Barnes, I had your life in my hands all the time you were at Green Fancy. I shudder now when I think of what might have happened. Before you were asked to the house, I was coolly informed that you would not leave it alive if I so much as breathed a word to you concerning my unhappy plight. The first word of an appeal to you would have been the signal for—your death. That is what they held over me. When I spoke to you on the couch that night, I—oh, don't you see? Don't you see that I wantonly, cruelly, selfishly risked your life—not my own—when I—"

"There, there, now!" he cried, consolingly, as she put her hands to her face and gave way to sobs.
"Forgive me," she murmured. "I didn't mean to be so silly."
"It helps, to cry sometimes," he said lamely.

The first faint signs of day were struggling out of the night when they stole across the road above Hart's Tavern and made their way through the stable yard to the rear of the house. His one thought was to get her safely inside the Tavern.

The door was locked. He delivered a series of resounding kicks upon its stout face. Revolver in hand, he faced about and waited for the assault of the men who, he was sure, would come plunging around the corner of the building in response to the racket. But there was no attack.

At last there were sounds from within. A key grated in the lock and a bolt was shot. The door flew open. Mr. Clarence Dillingford appeared in the opening, partially dressed, his hair sadly tumbled, his eyes blinking in the light of the lantern he held aloft.

"Well, what the—" Then his gaze alighted on the lady. "For the love of—" began the embarrassed Dillingford. "What the dev— I say, can't you see that I'm not dressed? What the—"

"Give me that lantern," said Barnes, and snatched the article out of the unresisting hand. "Show me the way to Miss Thackeray's room, Dillingford. No time for explanations."
"Well, for the love of—"
"I will take you to Miss Thackeray's room," said Barnes, leading her swiftly through the narrow passage. "She

"How is She? Is She Resting? Does She Seem—"

will make you comfortable for the—that is until I am able to secure a room for you. Come on, Dillingford."

Miss Thackeray was awake. Through the closed door she asked what on earth was the matter.

"I have a friend here—a lady. Will you dress as quickly as possible and take her in with you for a little while?"

There was no immediate response from the inside. Then Miss Thackeray observed, quite coldly: "I think I'd like to hear the lady's voice, if you don't mind. I recognize yours perfectly, Mr. Barnes, but I am not in the habit of opening my—"

"I guess I don't need to dress," said Miss Thackeray, and opened her door. "Come in, please. I don't know who you are or what you've been up to, but there are times when women ought to stand together. And what's more, I sha'n't ask any questions."

She closed the door behind the unexpected guest, and Barnes gave a great sigh of relief.
"Say, Mr. Barnes," said Miss Thackeray, several hours later, coming upon him in the hall, "I guess I'll have to ask you to explain a little. She's a nice, pretty girl, and all that, but she won't open her lips about anything. She says you will do the talking. I'm a good sport, you know, and not especially flinchy, but I'd hate to—"

"How is she? Is she resting? Does she seem—"
"Well, she's stretched out on my bed with my best nightgown, and she seems to be doing as well as could be expected," said Miss Thackeray dryly.

"Has she had coffee and—"
"I am going after it now. It seems that she is in the habit of having it in bed. I wish I had her imagination. It would be great to imagine that all you have to do is to say, 'I think I'll have coffee and rolls and one egg' sent up, and then go on believing your wish would come true. Still, I don't mind. She seems so nice and pathetic, and in trouble, and I—"

"Thank you, Miss Thackeray. If you will see that she has her coffee I'll—I'll wait for you here in the hall and try to explain. I can't tell you everything at present—not without her consent—but what I do tell will be sufficient to make you think you are listening to a chapter of a dime novel."

He had already taken Putnam Jones into his confidence. He saw no other way out of the new and somewhat extraordinary situation.

Be Kind and Patient.

There is more special grace requisite and manifest in watchful perseverance in little kindnesses and habitual patience at home, in abstinence from conversational disparagement of others, and in resistance to habits of sloth and undue self-indulgence in private life than in the performance of great public duties under the observation of multitudes.

Everything Lovely,
"Howdy, Gap!" saluted an acquaintance, upon meeting the well known Rumpus Ridge citizen on a shopping expedition in Tumlinville. "How's everything going with you?"
"Finer'n frog hair, Jurd!" triumphantly replied Gap Johnson. "Of course, my wife has been sorter puny, yur of late, and several of the children have got the measles and mumps and one thing and another, and the lightning struck the corner of the house tuther night and like to have tore the whole place to pieces, and one of the kids fell out of a tree and broke his arm, and a feller took a shot at me day before yesterday and ventilated my ear, and such as that, but I swapped for a running horse last week, and a couple of my hounds have got six pups apiece. KNEW THAT WOULD STOP HIM

Lawyer Evidently Was Well Acquainted With the Weakness of His Long-Winded Friend.

C. H. Murphy relates the story of a Philadelphia lawyer, retired, who, in the days of his active practice, was notorious for his long-windedness.

On one occasion he had been spouting forth his concluding argument for six hours, and the end was nowhere in sight, when the opposing attorney beckoned his associate and whispered: "Can't you stop him, Jack?"
"I'll stop him in two minutes," Jack replied confidently. And he wrote and passed to the orator the following note:

"My Dear Colonel—As soon as you finish your magnificent argument I would like you to join me at the hotel in a bumper of rare old Bourbon."

The lawyer halted in the midst of an impassioned period, put on his glasses, and read the note that had been handed him, then he removed his glasses again and, taking up his hat and bag, he said:

"And now, may it please the court and gentlemen of the jury, I leave the case with you."
A minute later he was proceeding in stately fashion in the direction of the hotel bar.

Large Bodies Move Slowly—But Mr. Sprouse Was Smaller Than the Average.

traveling bag, Miss Cameron?"
"I suppose so. It turned out, however, that it was the safest, surest way. I had them in my possession for three days before coming to Green Fancy. No one suspected. I was to deliver them to one of their rightful owners, Mr. Barnes—a loyal prince of the blood."

"But why here?" he insisted.
"He was to take them into Canada, and thence, in good time, to the palace of his ancestors."
"I am to understand, then, that not only you but the committee you speak of, fell into a carefully prepared trap. The treachery, therefore, and its inception in the loyal nest. You were betrayed by a friend."
"I am sure of it," she said bitterly. "If this man Sprouse does not succeed in restoring the—oh, I believe I shall kill myself, Mr. Barnes."
The wall of anguish in her voice went straight to his heart.
"He has succeeded, take my word for it. They will be in your hands before many hours have passed."
"Is he to come to the Tavern with them? Or am I to meet him—"
"Good Lord!" he gulped. Here was a contingency he had not considered. Where and when would Sprouse appear with his booty? "I—I fancy we'll find him waiting for us at the Tavern."
"But had you no understanding?"
"Er—tentatively." The perspiration started on his brow. He was thinking of something else; his amazing stupidity in not foreseeing the very situation that now presented itself. Why had he neglected to settle upon a meeting place with Sprouse in the event that circumstances forced them to part company in flight? Fearing that she would pursue the subject, he made haste to branch off onto another line.
"What is the real object of the conspiracy up there, Miss Cameron?"
"You must bear with me a little longer, Mr. Barnes," she said, appealingly. "I cannot say anything now."
"You said that tomorrow night would be too late. What did you mean by that?"
She waited a few seconds and then removed her head from his shoulder. He heard the sharp intake of her breath and felt the convulsive movement of the arm that rested against his. There was no mistaking her sudden agitation.
"I will tell you," she said, and he was surprised by the harshness that came into her voice. "Tomorrow morning was the time set for my marriage to that wretch up there. I could have avoided it only by destroying myself. If you had come tomorrow night instead of tonight you would have found me dead, that is all. Now you understand."

AMERICAN TROOPS CROSS THE BORDER

ONE AMERICAN OF 82D ARTILLERY KILLED AND ANOTHER SERIOUSLY WOUNDED.

VILLA COMMANDS REBELS

Fighting Seems to Be Confined Wholly to That Section Surrounding the Famous Race Track.

El Paso, Texas.—Shrapnel shells were bursting over and around the race track grand stand at the rate of three a minute at Juarez Sunday morning and Sunday night. After Colonel Merrill's eighty-second artillery battalion obtained the range with the first shot fired, every shot was a hit and the race track, infield and paddock, where the Villa troops were known to be, were showered with shrapnel.

The purpose of the enveloping movement was stated at headquarters to be to prevent the Villa forces from escaping southeast to the mountains or in crossing to the American side of the border, where they might harm individual Americans.

Following the killing of one artilleryman of the eighty-second artillery and the serious wounding of another by Mexican snipers General Erwin ordered 25 expert riflemen to that point to return the sniper's fire. The shot which killed the artilleryman were fired before the American artillery began the bombardment of the race track.

Juarez, Mex.—A general attack on Juarez has begun.

The exodus of the people of Juarez has resumed. A cordon of troops has been thrown about the southern part of El Paso to corral the refugees. One hundred Chinese were first to cross and were detained by the immigration authorities.

The fighting started in the extreme southeastern part of the town near the Juarez race track. This was evidently done to prevent bullets falling in El Paso. Light artillery fire interspersed the small arms firing.

Colonel Del Arco was in command of the federal forces, which were resisting the Villa attack from the east side of the town. No report of the casualties could be obtained shortly after the fighting started. Artillery fire from Fort Hidalgo continued at intervals.

BRITISHERS ACCOMPLISH NON-STOP ATLANTIC FLIGHT

VICKERS-VIMY PLANE DAMAGED IN LANDING IN IRELAND, BUT FLYERS UNINJURED.

London.—The final goal of all the ambitions which flying men have ventured to dream since the Wright brothers first rose from the earth in a heavier than air machine was realized when the young British officers, Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant Arthur Brown, landed on the Irish coast after the first nonstop flight across the Atlantic ocean.

Their voyage was without accident, and without unforeseen incident so far as can be learned. It was a straightforward, clean-cut flight, achieved in sixteen hours and twelve minutes—from Newfoundland to Clifden, Ireland, a distance of more than 1,900 miles.

Before coming to earth near the Clifden wireless station, Alcock circled the wireless airdrome seeking the best spot to reach the earth. But no suitable ground was found to be chanced it in a bog.

The wireless staff rushed to the aid of the aviators. They found Brown dazed and Alcock temporarily deafened by the force of the impact. As soon as they were able to be escorted to the wireless station they telegraphed the news to their friends and then had breakfast.

DALLAS ENTERTAINS SOLDIERS OF 36TH

PARADE FROM COURTHOUSE TO CITY HALL THENCE TO FAIR PARK.

Dallas.—More than 2,000 bronzed "doughboys" from the battlefields of France are in Dallas. Troop trains bearing the men of the 111th engineer regiment and the 131st machine gun battalion entered the city early Saturday morning. The parade in the morning was from the courthouse on Main street to the city hall. From the city hall the men were taken in special cars to Fair park, where they were tendered an old fashioned picnic, with home cooking prepared by the mothers of the city.

By proclamation of the mayor a holiday was declared for the occasion. Every energy was bent in making the "doughboys" feel the pride that all Texas has in their exploits overseas. Not a stone had been left unturned by the thirty-sixth division reception committee in paving the way for a most royal welcome.

The path of the soldiers were showered with flowers, thrown from the hands of people of the city witnessing the impressive spectacle. Deeming this as an appropriate expression on the part of the people of the city, the committee requested all who attended to bring large bouquets of flowers from their homes for use in this way. Giving the soldiers a welcome commensurate with the spirit of the time, by cheering, blowing of horns and other loud demonstrations was also engaged in during the parade.

A picnic was held in machinery hall at Fair park, at 11 o'clock. Both the hall and the grounds were fittingly decorated for the occasion. On one side was placed a large banner, on which was inscribed "We Have Tried to Keep the Home Fires Burning." Bunting and flags were placed throughout the hall, and tables and a band stand arranged for the picnic. Home cooking, prepared with sedulous care by the mothers, wives and sweethearts of the soldiers, constituted the menu. "Making the boys feel that they are being welcomed back home" was the motto of the refreshment committee, and every effort was devoted to making the picnic as homelike as possible. The serving of the refreshments was under the supervision of the wives, mothers and sweethearts of boys who have served in France, so that a personal interest pervaded the entire celebration.

The soldiers were admitted first into the picnic hall, after which provision was made for the families and friends of the men.

These returning Texans and their neighbors and comrades from Oklahoma represent spick and span outfits. Their very demeanor was a tribute to their soldierly qualities. The 131st machine gun battalion, commanded by Major Ellis Stevenson of Oklahoma City, had a record of its own. It was the second unit of the American army to throw consternation into the ranks of its Hun opponents from out of the mouths of Browning machine guns, and the Thirty-Sixth division was the only organization fully equipped with the pet death dealers of the United States army. The 131st was a fully motorized outfit, as was true of all divisional machine gun battalions. It was in the line eighteen days and performed wonderfully valiant service where a weakness appeared between the 141st and 142d infantry, flanks of the Thirty-Sixth division, and a French division. At a critical juncture Major General William R. Smith sent the 131st machine gun battalion in to relieve the French and the Texas and Oklahoma gunners wrote fear in the hearts of the Germans from their Browning guns. The machine gunners marched in the parade without arms.

Knox Proposal Seems Defeated

Washington.—Senator Hitchcock has announced that an administration poll of the senate on the Knox resolution showed all democrats except Senator Reed opposed to the measure and eight republicans also opposed to it. This report, which will be made to President Wilson, may lead to a "show down vote," according to the belief of some democratic leaders.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE SETTLEMENT REACHED

ALL BUILDING TRADES RETURN TO WORK MONDAY MORNING IN DALLAS.

Dallas.—With the exception of the linemen's union every building trades craft in Dallas has returned to work, after two weeks of sympathetic striking which came to an end at a conference between the Builders' association of Dallas and international representatives of the building trades organizations involved.

Terms of the settlement were not announced in the official statement issued immediately following the meeting, which virtually terminated the walkout that threw approximately 3,000 men in Dallas out of work two weeks ago in an effort to force officials of the Dallas Power and Light company to arbitrate the demands of linemen who were seeking increased wages, reduced hours and union recognition.

"Duly authorized representatives of the Builders' association and the International Building Trades organizations have this day met in continuous session and have amicably settled the differences which involved the builders of Dallas in the sympathetic strike against the Texas Power and Light company.

"It is agreed that all building trades will return to work immediately." The statement was signed by Aron Munn, president of the Builders' association of Dallas, for the contractors, and the signatures of Clarence E. Swick, fifth vice president of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators; Frank Swor, representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, were affixed to the agreement in behalf of the union men.

Dallas.—As a result of a riot in this city Wednesday, which is declared to have been incidental to the strike of union electricians, A. L. Fisher, a guard in the employ of the Dallas Power and Light company, was killed and four other persons were injured. The injured are Allen Lecroy, F. L. Bohanon, W. F. Butcher and Robert Roy.

Immediately upon being informed of the situation, Mayor Wozencraft issued a proclamation calling for volunteers to swell the police force by 200 men and directing that at least four policemen, "or as many more as may be deemed necessary," be placed with each crew of employees of the Dallas Power and Light company to guard them during their work and in going to and from their work.

One paragraph of his proclamation directed that the officers be "particularly vigilant in preventing any of the employees of the Dallas Power and Light company, while engaged in the performance of their labor and work, from any character of intimidation by strikers or other persons, and that all such persons violating this order shall be immediately apprehended."

Permanently Disabled Men Cared for.

SAN ANTONIO TAKEN BY TEXAS EDITORS

ATTENDANCE AT ANNUAL CONVENTION IS MUCH LARGER THAN USUAL.

San Antonio, Texas.—The fortieth annual convention of the Texas Press association has opened under the gavel of President Harry Koch of Quannah. The press pessimists who first disclosed that the abolition of railroad passes would kill the press association lived to see their predictions come to nothing and their doleful successors who affirmed that state-wide prohibition would do what cash fare compulsion failed to do are also proved to have been dismal failures in the prediction business. The attendance at the present meeting is large, representative and cheerful. The press from every quarter of the state is represented and there is not a long face in the whole crowd. All report brilliant crop prospects and a gratifying share of prosperity for all classes, including publishers.

It is probable that the association will undertake to establish and maintain a home for superannuated newspaper men. Following a lengthy discussion as to the need for such an institution and practicability of the scheme, a committee composed of influential publishers was named to devise a working plan and, if found feasible, to seek funds among members of the association for the purpose of constructing the proposed home.

The committee appointed by President Harry Koch to handle the proposition consists of the following: Colonel Frank P. Holland, Dallas; W. A. Bowen, Arlington; Charles B. Gillespie, Houston; Frank G. Huntress Jr., San Antonio; Louis J. Wortham, Fort Worth; D. R. Harris, Henderson; Sam P. Harben, Richardson; Sam Fore Jr., Floresville and Railroad Commissioner Clarence E. Gilmore.

"Almost one-third of all the American teachers were drawn out of the schools for service in the army, navy and other branches of the government, and in various commercial activities."

Penny Pinching Not Always True Economy

I have learned that the intelligent housewife—the woman schooled in really scientific domestic economy—no longer throws away a nickel to save a penny.

A good way to illustrate this point would be through comparison of baking powders.

Experience has taught me—and millions of other women that it doesn't pay to buy cheap baking powders. They cost a few cents less, but in the long run they are decidedly the most expensive. Because of the low grade materials employed in their manufacture they cause many bake day failures—and great loss of expensive ingredients. The housewife throws out, in wasted materials many times the amount saved on the cost of the baking powder. This is not economy, but extravagance.

True economy in baking powder demands the highest quality at the lowest price. Only baking powders that meet these demands should be used. Only baking powder that is made of the highest class ingredients so perfectly proportioned that it not only produces maximum leavening power but also preserves it.

Besides, the baking powder that meets the modern demand for economy should be economical in use—full strength—economical in cost—secured at a moderate price. The housewife should be able to effect a saving when buying—and another saving when using—and she should save materials it is used with.

That is economy in its highest form. Complete economy. The only kind of economy the housewife should attempt.

I have proved positively by exhaustive experiments and comparative tests that Calumet Baking Powder is best suited to these savings. It possesses the surety, the purity and goodness that make constant employment of utmost baking economy possible.
