WILL BE MEN

We don't know exactly how it happened, but we see by the papers that all the girls graduating in piano in the Slaton School this year are boys. Wayne Catching, Milton Kessel, and Gilbert Wilhite are the three. We just wonder if these boys have not had a few bad half hours on account of practice interfering with their other pursuits, and if occasionally the old piano hasn't nearly got the best of them in these practice sessions. But we are sure they are now the envy of many boys and girls who were not willing to pay the price for the proficiency they now enjoy in music. And how many will envy them, too, who never had the opportunity to learn in an art that offers so great opportunities for entertainment for others and self expression for the performer. Boys will be boys. Sure, and they will be men, too.

WE STILL BELIEVE

The recent approval of Hitler's Austrian coup by plebiscites in Germany and Austria doesn't mean much to us. If the election was fixed in advance—as it well appears to have been—or if Austria really needs the protecting hand of Germany and the people were glad to give up their self-government, it still doesn't mean much to us. German rule may be just what it takes to make Austria blossom like a rose. It may be further that Germanic people are not capable of self-government—though we think they are. We still think a democracy is the safest form of government, and we still would like to think the great peoples of Central Europe could well exercise their right to a voice in the governments.

ADVICE TO THE MAYOR

So many of us go through life without ever realizing our fondest ambitions. If we had a guess, we'd say that surely Mayor La Guardia of New York City is realizing one in his trip to the Southwest this week. We would say that to no boy—and maybe no girl—under ninety but has cherished a wish to see himself in cowboy garb in general and in boots and spurs in particular. By the time Mayor La Guardia had landed in Guthrie, Oklahoma, his first stop, he was fitted out with the needful equipment. If we had a chance to talk to him, we'd tell him Texas and Oklahoma would be positively insulted if he didn't wear the togs on every possible occasion. Then he wouldn't have to feel foolish when he wears the particular garments he might feel he doesn't need. But we'll bet the Mayor is smart enough to know his way around.

LET HIM REST

Texas and Missouri are about to go to war about the remains of Moses Austin. While we think it would be a worthy gesture of respect to the memory of the man to bring his mortal remains and inter them in the Texas State Cemetery, we still wouldn't fight. Folsom, Missouri, nor any part of it for the privilege of honoring the man who started the colonization of Texas. The right of disposal of the remains of any man should lie with his heirs, or if there are none with the state. Then if Moses Austin belonged more to Texas than to Missouri, he should be buried in Texas; otherwise let him rest where he is.

ONE-ACT CONGRESS

One-act plays have grown in popularity in the last few years so the one-act play contest is now a regular part of the Texas Interscholastic League program. You could have seen some good ones if you'd taken the time within the past few weeks. Now we are waiting for one-act congress.

ALL AGAINST HIM

The self-styled Persian Messiah who skipped around in New York this week celebrating his seventy-second birthday by running three miles backwards in the city streets and explaining his strength by saying he eats tree bark, fruits and vegetables. Of course a man can eat what he wants—if he can get it, but when he starts running backwards, we wonder if he

Mrs. Cato Buried Here Friday 22nd Relative Of Local Family Die Apr. 20

Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church Friday, April 22 at 3 o'clock for Mrs. P. A. Cato, who for fourteen years has resided near here in the Morgan community. Rev. Strickland of Lubbock officiated, being assisted by Rev. McCasland of Wilson. Burial followed in Englewood Cemetery with Foster Funeral Home in charge.

The deceased is the daughter of the late Mr. H. M. Binion, of Slaton and besides her husband, is survived by five children, Mollie, Homer, William, J. B. and Elizabeth Cato, all of Morgan; and her two sisters, Mesdames W. F. Cato of Post and L. C. Reed of San Antonio; and her step-mother, Mrs. H. M. Binion and two half sisters, Mrs. Alpha Morrow and Miss Ina Binion of Slaton.

Mrs. Cato died Wednesday evening, April 20th after an illness of two years.

"Jezebel" or "Gone With The Wind"

"Jezebel," Warner Bros. smash story of New Orleans in Civil War days, comes to the Palace Theatre Sunday and Monday with Bette Davis in the title role.

Magazines, newspapers and critics throughout the country have acclaimed "Jezebel" as the motion picture with which Warner Brothers jumped the gun on "Gone With The Wind," and Bette Davis makes Scarlett O'Hara a pale pink by comparison. "Half siren-half angel-half woman" is the way she was described by others of her day. Men loved her and died for her but the only man she ever loved called her "the wickedest woman who ever lived" and turned to the north to choose his wife.

Henry Fonda, who woos and wins the willful young Southern belle, only to turn aside from her as she defies all ties of tradition, plays the role of a conservative banker. George Brent is a riding, hard-fighting handsome young rake who woos and loses.

Miss Davis, an Academy Award winner for her part in "Dangerous" in 1935, soars to higher triumphs as the spoiled, tempestuous young Dixie gal who achieves the name of the wicked Jezebel of Biblical renown because she snaps tradition between her fingers with careless abandon. She smokes—prefers juleps to sherry and in short is a modern miss in an old-fashioned setting.

Dramatic interest in "Jezebel's" story comes when her chief suitor, Henry Fonda, who has since left New Orleans and married a northern girl, returns to take charge of a banking house. The disastrous epidemic of yellow fever strikes at that time and Fonda is stricken. His wife, realizing that his true love is for the fascinating Jezebel, unselfishly steps aside to let Miss Davis accompany him to Quarantine Island.

Manager Crawford personally recommends "Jezebel" to Palace theatre patrons and invites everyone to see it for himself and judge if it is the story of "Gone With The Wind."

Boyce Wicker For Public Weigher

Mr. Boyce Wicker is announcing his candidacy for Public Weigher, a position he now holds and desiring to be re-elected.

Mr. Wicker is a long time resident of Slaton, attending the public schools here and being a graduate of Slaton High School. He states that he has endeavored to justify his past election to the office he is again seeking, by being a conscientious weigher and solicits the support of all his friends and the citizens of Slaton in the coming election.

Chevrolet Improves Used Car Lots

Following the example of several other Slaton firms, the Crow-Harral Chevrolet Co. is remodeling their used car lot on Lynn street. This change will make a decided improvement in the appearance of the space now used for the parking and display of all their used cars.

Slaton Improvement Contest Closes

About fifty boys of the Slaton Chapter of the Future Farmers of America have been busily engaged in an improvement contest which began Oct. 1, 1937 and closed March 31, 1938. Valuable prizes offered by business men of Slaton have been the object of their labors. Points were allowed for jobs related to their ag work which improved their skill. The contest consisted of two divisions, one for the first year ag. boys and the other for the second year ag students.

In the first year class Perry Reed, with 1014 points was the winner of a registered Jersey calf. George Crosby, with a total of 967 points, won the second prize, a bred gull. Pat Apple, who had 956 points, won the third award, a registered pig at weaning age. Billy Clack, with 893 points, was the winner of the fourth premium, 100 baby chicks.

In the second year class Arvel Kitten, with 1400 points won the first prize, a registered Jersey calf. Floyd Reynolds, who had 1082 points, was the winner of the second award, a bred gilt. Charles Dickson, with 1008 points, won the third prize, a registered pig at weaning age. Homer Jones, with 945 points, was the winner of the fourth premium, 100 baby chicks.

Art Exhibit Of Old Masters

Jr. Hi And Art Club Display Pictures

Junior - Senior Banquet Novel Affair April 22

Students Take To Sea At Colorful Dinner

Students of the Slaton High School Junior and Senior Classes were all at sea at the annual banquet Friday evening, April 22nd at the clubhouse, when the Junior class tendered their traditional courtesy to their departing shipmates, the Seniors.

The walls of the hall were covered with navy blue and showered with silver stars, while overhead were streamers of blue and white. At regular intervals along the sides were white life preservers with the name of the ship, "S. S. Tiger" painted in blue.

The trio of long banquet tables were covered with white cloths, with centerpiece of tiny silver ships. Place cards were miniature anchors and a ship's log, serving as plate favors, contained the program and menu, both of which were written in nautical terms.

The program follows: "Ahoi, Shim-mates," Junior Captain Mary Frances Ferguson; "Aye, Aye, Sir," Senior Captain Wayne Liles; "Song of the Marines" from the motion picture "The Singing Marine," vocal solo, Midshipman J. C. Tucker; "Smooth Sailing," Navigator Lenon; "Weather Forecast," First Mate Miriam Meading; "Bon Voyage," Junior Captain Mary Frances Ferguson.

Slaton Singers Excel At Music Festival April 22

Mrs. Lillian Butler Conducts Winners

Public School music division examinations concluded the South Plains Music Teachers Association's Annual Spring Music Festival last weekend in Lubbock. The adjudicator, George Oscar Bowen and Mrs. Bowen, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, were entertained with a tea and an informal luncheon between auditions.

The Slaton Junior High Choral Club, led by Mrs. Lillian Butler, won the coveted rating of "Superior" against entries from eleven towns in this district. They were the only group to make such a rating.

Members of this choral club are: Misses Donna Maud Sanner, Johnette Foster, Wilda Ruth Hannah, Betty Lou Turner, Fern Wheatley, Jimmy Jean Guinn, Viola Martin, Adele Crews, Dorothy Nell Childress, Billy Fay Wicker, Mary Frances Landreth, Nancy McCormick, and Pauline Kenney.

The High School Trio also rated "Superior" and the personnel is Misses Laura Bell Tucker and Jimmy Faye Ward and Mr. J. C. Ward.

In a previous Festival meeting fifty per cent of the entrants in voice and seventy-five per cent of the entrants in piano were prize winners. They were; Jean Evans, 1st, 14 years; Jimmy Jean Guinn, first, 12 years; and Viola Martin, second, 12 years. Mary Frances Landreth won the highest rating of any entrant but was ineligible for the prize as she was the prize winner last year. But in the Dallas Meet, Mary Frances Landreth again won first in the State and was graded 100 in theory, a most unusual honor.

Beauty Shop In New Location

Miss Lorae Hill Is Next Kessel's Dept.

Miss Lorae Hill, well known beauty parlor operator and proprietor, announces to her public the opening of her shop in its new location this week. It is situated at 124 Texas Avenue, next door to Kessel's Department Store.

Treaty for Friendship in Which France May Join . . . Roosevelt's Spending Plan Starts Big Battle

Emergency rationing of troops by airplane and parachute was successfully accomplished in Texas by the army air corps during maneuvers. This picture shows metal food container for personnel rations, bale of hay and a 130-pound sack of oats, with parachutes attached, ready to be loaded on the bomb racks of the Martin bomber seen in background.

Move Toward Peace

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN'S dream of security for peace in Europe through amicable arrangements of the democratic governments with the dictators may yet be realized. Anyhow, consummation of the ideal was brought nearer when Lord Perth, British ambassador to Rome, and Italian Foreign Minister Ciano signed the treaty of friendship which had been under negotiation for weeks. The pact is designed to end the long feud between the two nations, and it is probable France will join in after negotiations with Mussolini already suggested by Foreign Minister Bonnet. The British prime minister, of course, hopes that later Hitler can be brought into the group and that there will be formed a London-Paris-Rome-Berlin quadrangle in place of the Berlin-Rome axis.

Temporarily, the treaty provides for friendly relations between Britain and Italy in the Mediterranean and the Near East, but it does not go into full effect until "such date as the two governments together shall determine." In other words, Italy must first have withdrawn its troops from Spain and Britain must have recognized Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. The former may be delayed until France has won final victory. The latter depends upon permission from the League of Nations council, which has been asked by Chamberlain.

In essence, the treaty is a promise by each side not to attempt to change the status quo in the Mediterranean or Red sea areas nor to injure each other's interests there in any way.

Italy is to reduce her forces in Libya to peace time strength, and will adhere to the London naval treaty limiting the size of warships. The Suez canal is to be open to all nations equally in war or peace. Italy will abide by the international nonintervention committee's ruling on volunteers in the Spanish war and in case to withdraw from Spain entirely when the war is ended. Italy declares it has no territorial or political aims and seeks no privileged economic position in Spain, the Balearic islands, Spanish Morocco or Spanish possessions overseas.

Political leaders in Berlin did not minimize the importance of the Anglo-Italian pact, but insisted that the Berlin-Rome axis was not weakened. They were awaiting somewhat anxiously the visit of Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet to London, scheduled for late in April. There were no indications in London or Paris that Britain and France were ready yet to deal with Hitler. But it was rumored that Poland might join them and Italy in a four-power pact.

Ready for Battle

BIG spenders and little spenders lined up rapidly for the congressional fight over President Roosevelt's program for pump-priming and relief, for which he asked congress to provide nearly seven billion dollars. Of the total sum, 4 1/2 billions would be used for spending and lending to speed recovery from the present business depression. The house appropriations committee began hearings on the President's proposals, and administration leaders in both branches of congress laid plans to expedite the passage of the necessary legislation, still hoping for adjournment by May 14. Sam Rayburn said all were agreed on handling the legislation as an omnibus bill. He was confident it would go through the house quickly, and also confident of the defeat of attempts to earmark the recovery funds to assure congressional control over them.

Opponents of the pump-priming led off with vigorous radio addresses by Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican national committee and Senator Vandenberg of Michigan. Hamilton came to the conclusion that "the President and the New Deal are far more interested in priming the pumps than in priming the pumps of industry." Vandenberg said the plan, whatever its temporary benefit, would work a "long run disaster."

The priming plan, Vandenberg said, means trying to spend the country into better times on borrowed money, trying to buy prosperity.

In his message to congress and in a radio talk to the nation, the President proposed three groups of measures. The first involves mainly additional appropriations for the coming fiscal year, as follows:

One billion two hundred and fifty million dollars for the Works Progress administration; $175,000,000 for the Farm Security administration; $75,000,000 for the National Youth administration; $50,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation corps, and the $1,500,000,000 already made available to the Reconstruction Corporation for lending to business enterprises.

In a second group of measures Mr. Roosevelt asked:

Three hundred million dollars for immediate expansion of the housing and slum-clearance work of the United States Housing authority; $1,450,000,000 for public works loans and grants; an additional $100,000,000 for public roads; an additional $37,000,000 for flood control and reclamation projects already authorized and an additional $25,000,000 for federal buildings.

A third group listed by the Chief Executive referred to private credit. It involved sterilization of $1,400,000,000 of gold and a reduction by the Federal Reserve board of member bank reserve requirements which would add another $750,000,000 to the credit resources of the nation's banks. With these actions Mr. Roosevelt coupled a simplification of Security commission regulations.

Barcelona in Peril

SPANISH insurgents, having reached the Mediterranean at the port of Vinaroz, spread north and south along the coast and effectively cut off Catalonia from the rest of loyalist Spain.

Veteran Spanish and Italian troops, led by Gen. Garcia Valino and Gen. Miguel Aranda, blasted their way into Vinaroz in a single day of severe combat, and Valino then started a northward drive on Tortosa, where important coastal highways converge.

Franco's next great objective was Barcelona. His forces were beginning a new movement against that city from the west, and his naval and air fleets left their bases to cooperate. After Barcelona falls, as it seems likely to do, Valencia will be attacked; and then Franco plans a final effort to take Madrid.

Dr. Townsend Pardoned

DR. FRANCES E. TOWNSEND, carrying a pair of socks and a typewriter, arrived at the jail in Washington, ready to serve his thirty day term for contempt of congress and become a martyr. But the old age pension planner was informed that President Roosevelt had pardoned him. The pardon was issued upon the urgent request of Representative C. Jasper Bell, chairman of the investigating committee before which Dr. Townsend refused to testify.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for May 1

FOLLOWING VISION WITH SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:14-29. GOLDEN TEXT—All things are possible to him that believeth.—Mark 9:23. PRIMARY TOPIC—When Only Jesus Could Help.

JUNIOR TOPIC—At the Foot of the Mountain. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Up to Our Knowledge of Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Following Vision with Service.

One of the lessons that seems hard to learn and to keep constantly effective in the life of a Christian is that mountain-top experiences of spiritual uplift are not an end in themselves but a preparation for service. All too often we come to regard such times of peculiar blessing, whether in the privacy of our own room, or in the great conference of Christian workers, as something which should glow warmly in our own hearts, making us glad in the Lord, and not as a background and preparation for ministry to others. One might just as well hope to feed the physical body constantly without any work or exercise and keep in good health, as to feed the soul on good things, do nothing for God or fellow-man, and still avoid what someone has called "spiritual dyspepsia."

The writer has just attended a most unusual and blessed Bible conference, the leaders of which rightly apprehended this truth. Evangelism was the matter chiefly in mind, but instead of announcing the theme of the week's meetings as "Evangelism," the program presented it as "Preparation for Evangelism." That is sound spiritual sense. We came not to discuss evangelism itself so much as to prepare ourselves to go out and evangelize. God help us to do it!

Jesus rightly characterized the time in which he lived as

I. A Faithless Generation (vv. 14-19).

"Jesus found in the valley disputing scribes, a distracted father, a demon-possessed boy, and defeated disciples." The unbelief which called forth the rebuke of Jesus "is revealed in different phases. There were the scribes, willful and persistent unbelief; there was the father, unwilling unbelief; there was the boy, irresponsible unbelief; and there were the disciples, unconscious unbelief. The whole atmosphere was an unbelieving atmosphere" (Morgan).

As we look at that depressing picture of long ago, let us consider ourselves lest we also be tempted to "limit God" by our faithlessness. The most casual reader of Scripture cannot help but see that God seeks out and honors faith, and as we begin to study God's Word with care we realize that the fundamental of all fundamentals is really to believe God. Some Christian men and women are living out a tremendous testimony for God by fully believing Him and His Word, but many of those who profess to follow Him actually make Him appear ridiculous before the world because their unbelief makes Him out to be a "small" God instead of the infinite, eternal, omnipotent God.

II. The All-Powerful Saviour (vv. 23-27).

The keynote of our first division might well have been the sad words "they could not" in verse 18. But now the Son of God has come and the new keynote is the inspiring words of verse 23, "all things are possible to him that believeth." There is no problem too difficult for our Lord; there is no sorrow too deep for His comfort; there is no challenging opportunity too great for His enabling power.

III. Prayer the Connecting Link (vv. 28, 29).

The disciples in chagrin at their inability to deal with the difficulty of the demon-possessed boy, having witnessed the power of Christ in delivering him, begin now to realize that evidently even though unconscious of it, they had come into the powerless position of unbelief.

What a solemn warning there is for us in the experience of these followers of the Lord. Like the termites who destroy the very life and strength of wood—and yet leave it apparently whole, only to crumble in dust when it is put under the pressure of daily use—there are spiritually destructive influences which all but unconsciously destroy the virile strength of the Christian. Prayerlessness is the most effective weapon of Satan at this point. Without prayer there is no power. Real problems are not successfully met nor are opportunities grasped "but by prayer."

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses LAXATIVE FOODS ★

Nationally Known Authority on Food Shows How Right Diet Can Help You to Avoid Health Hazards of Faulty Elimination

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York.

THOUSANDS of men, women and children are alive today because we have learned how to prevent many types of infections and how to cure diseases which once caused untimely deaths.

We have reason to be proud of the achievements of science in fighting disease and lengthening the span of life. But we should be ashamed of the fact that hundreds of thousands of individuals are not getting the most out of life—indeed they are not realizing half their potentialities—because improper eating and faulty habits of hygiene cause them to suffer from that great evil of civilization—constipation.

EVILS OF CONSTIPATION

Someone has called constipation the most deadly disease, and while this may seem like an extreme statement, it becomes justifiable when one realizes the untold misery and wretchedness that may result when food residues remain to stagnate and putrefy in the body.

Constipation muddies the complex of the brain. It causes a general feeling of discomfort and fullness in the abdomen, lack of appetite, bad breath, coated tongue, a feeling of lassitude and a tendency to become easily fatigued.

By weakening resistance, it opens the way to numberless diseases. Serious complications, such as irritation of the appendix, may occur as a result of the friction of hard masses of waste against the delicate walls of the intestine. Piles have frequently been laid at the door of faulty elimination.

Do you wonder that I consider prompt, regular elimination the keystone of good health.

Its importance is readily understood when you consider the processes by which food is digested and absorbed.

FATE OF FOOD IN THE BODY

From the mouth, food passes down the esophagus into the stomach, where it is penetrated by the gastric juice. It then passes into the small intestine where it is mixed with the secretions of the liver and the pancreas. Here the nutritive elements are absorbed by minute, hair-like tubes which line the intestinal walls. These tubes converge into the blood vessels and lymphatics which transport nourishment to all parts of the body.

Undigested residues pass into the large intestine or colon, where they are normally moved along by a series of muscular contractions known as peristalsis, and finally evacuated.

The amount of the evacuation varies in bulk with the amount of indigestible roughage contained in the food. When there is insufficient bulk to promote normal peristalsis, waste accumulates and we have the condition known as constipation with all its resulting evils. Bacteria prey upon the stagnating material, producing poisons which may be absorbed by the body.

There is not the slightest excuse for allowing this condition to develop. For the misery and wretchedness of constipation may easily be avoided by including in the daily diet sufficient laxative foods, that is, those rich in fiber or cellulose.

BULK OR FIBER ESSENTIAL

Because of their fibrous framework, plant foods are our chief source of cellulose or bulk, and therefore, our greatest aid in promoting normal elimination. Vegetables and fruits are sworn foes of constipation, and unrefined cereals are also extremely valuable.

SOME LAXATIVE FOODS

Foods with an exceptionally high residue include raw fruits, especially those with skins and seeds; dried fruits, such as apricots, prunes, figs and raisins; raw vegetables; such cooked vegetables as onions and leafy greens; the legumes, that is, dried peas and beans; whole grain cereals and bran.

Among the vegetables, don't overlook cabbage, lettuce, celery, spinach, brussels sprouts, string beans and green peas.

Foods which tend to form a little gas in the intestines, including spinach, onions and cauliflower, are also useful stimulants to intestinal movement.

In addition to providing cellulose, the acid fruits, such as oranges, lemons and grapefruit, act as a mild stimulus to increased peristaltic motions.

NEED FOR VITAMIN B

Another important factor in promoting normal elimination is vitamin B, which has been shown to be essential for good muscular tone and activity of the digestive tract. Investigations with experimental animals have demonstrated that it requires twice as long to empty the large intestine when the diet is deficient in vitamin B. Yeast, egg yolk, milk, whole grain cereals, liver and green leafy vegetables are good sources of this vitamin.

LIQUIDS ESSENTIAL

A sufficient quantity of liquids is likewise necessary to prevent the contents of the lower intestine from becoming too hard for easy evacuation. In addition to water, the diet should therefore contain an abundance of milk, fruit juices and other beverages. Acidophilus milk and buttermilk are especially beneficial.

Fats and oils, used in moderation, act as gentle lubricants.

REGULAR HABITS

It is most important to eat at regular hours and to establish regular times for evacuation, as this is a great aid to body rhythm.

Guard carefully against overeating, for this practice is a frequent cause of constipation. When

AROUND THE HOUSE

Rinse Silks Well.—Silk underthings should be washed in water that is barely warm, and should be rinsed in at least three fresh rinsing waters.

Preparing Baked Potatoes.

Baked potatoes look much nicer if scooped from the shell, mashed with butter, pepper and salt, a well-beaten yolk of an egg, then placed back in the half shell and browned in the oven. They not only look nicer, but taste better.

When Painting Molding.

A piece of heavy cardboard is handy for the amateur painter to hold under the molding to protect the wall paper.

To Retain Juices in Meats.

To keep flavor and juices in meat when baking or frying, expose it to extreme heat first, then reduce the temperature and cook more slowly.

When Someone Is Ill.

Always wrap a rubber hotwater bottle in soft cloth before placing in a patient's bed. Place the bottle near but not against the patient's flesh. If placed too close the patient may be burned before realizing it.

the digestive system is overworked, none of its functions can be efficiently performed.

The homemaker is largely responsible for safeguarding her family against the dangers of faulty elimination. For she has it in her power to plan meals that will help normal individuals to avoid the curse of constipation.

Questions Answered

Mrs. B. T. M.—Do not worry if your child prefers the egg yolk to the white. The white is chiefly protein, and he can easily obtain protein from other foods, especially milk. But the yolk contains an abundance of minerals and vitamins in addition to protein and fat. Nutritionists have determined that the inclusion of one egg yolk daily in an otherwise adequate diet is an effective method of balancing the intake and output of iron in a child's diet.

Miss S. B.—No, the generous use of cream cannot be considered as a substitute for taking milk as a beverage or in cooked dishes. Cream is much higher in fat and contains less protein, minerals and vitamins, with the exception of vitamin A. Cream deserves to be included in the diet for its vitamin A content, but it should not replace milk.

Mrs. A. McK.—Strawberries contain vitamins A, B and C. Recent experiments indicate that they rank with citrus fruits and tomatoes as a source of vitamin C.

Hidden Benefits

Few housewives realize the underlying advantage of the use of a good light-oil furniture polish. Most polish is used only for the luster it bestows on the chairs, tables, piano, woodwork in the home. Rubbing the polish on cleans the furniture—works up a glow—and the outward effect is fresh and sparkling! But that is only part of the housewife's reward. For out of this domestic routine comes definite benefit to the furniture! A reputable polish, with a light oil base, does what is known as "feeding" the finish. The "massage" causes the oil to penetrate, seep into the pores of the wood—just enough to lubricate—and keep it healthy! Here, it is important to note that cheap polishes are made with a heavy oil base—and are "greasy" and unpleasant to use. The best polish—made with a fine light-oil base—is never greasy. Applied on a damp cloth (according to directions), it is neat to use and proves a boon to the furniture! Lack of polishing—or the use of a poor polish—will cause the finest wood to dry out, crack, split—for wood is a product of Nature and needs a certain amount of oily moisture. So polish the furniture regularly! Use a quality oil polish—it pays! For not only does the furniture look better—it is better! Its life is preserved!

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Chiswick of L C ranch, obsessed by fear of danger to her outspoken father, Lee, from a band of lawless rustlers headed by Sherm Howard, decides to save him by eloping with young Lou Howard, Sherm's son, and comes to the town of Tail Holt to meet him. While in Yell Sanger's store, a crooked stranger enters, sizes up the situation, and when a drunken cowboy, Jim Pender, rides in and starts shooting, protects Ruth, while Lou Howard hides. Disgusted with Lou's cowardice, Ruth calls off the element, and sends the stranger for her father at the gambling house across the street. There the stranger, calling himself Jeff Gray, meets Morgan Norris, a killer, Curly Connor, Kansas, MHe High, Sid Hunt, and other rustlers, and Sherm Howard. Lee Chiswick enters, with his foreman, Dan Brand, and tells Sherm Howard of his orders to shoot rustlers at sight. Jeff Gray returns to Ruth and coldly reassures her of her father's safety. At supper, Ruth introduces Jeff to her father and Brand, and in Sanger's store later she speaks cordially to Curly Connor. Coming out of the store, they are greeted by sudden gunfire. Lee is wounded, and Jeff Gray appears with a smoking revolver. Two days later, Ruth tells her father of her projected elopement and her disillusionment. Later, Ruth meets Jeff Gray, whom she thinks tried to kill her father. When he tries to hold her, she accidentally presses the trigger of her gun, and wounds Jeff. She takes him to Pat Sorley's camp. Talking over the shooting with Sorley, Ruth is incredulous of Jeff's story of shooting at the assassin rather than at her father, and later pleads with Lee to listen to him. When Lee arrives at Pat Sorley's camp, he finds only a note to Pat from Jeff. Meanwhile, Jeff rides into Tail Holt and sends word to Sherm Howard he wants to see him.

He pulled on his boots and swiftly examined his revolver. That the weapon rested lightly in its holster so that there would be no hindrance to a quick draw he made sure. This invasion in force might or might not mean trouble. Curly had probably come with a chip on his shoulder. Norris was a killer of the worst kind. On the other hand, Sherman Howard had the reputation of doing his fighting by proxy. He might have brought Morg merely as a defensive precaution. Jeff hoped, if they did not open up with a blast of guns, to talk them out of any thought of vengeance. It would not be easy now, not with Curly all hot to rub him out.

In his throat there beat the pulse of excitement that always accompanied deadly danger. His fingers trembled.

A knock on the door sounded. Gray's nervousness vanished instantly. He said, "Come in," his drawing voice cool as ice-water.

CHAPTER V

Their host maneuvered Norris to a rocking-chair, Howard to a straight-backed one. Curley sat at the foot of the bed. Gray stood in a shadowy corner farthest from the window. He was giving himself the best chance possible. Of the three visitors, Norris was probably the most dangerous gunman, and a rocking-chair is not the most advantageous spot for swift and accurate shooting.

"A little crowded in here, gents," Gray said lightly. "Hope you don't mind sitting on the bed, Mr. Connor. I'm short of chairs."

"Suits me," Curly answered. Gray nodded, turned his attention to the big man. "I hated to trouble you to come here, Mr. Howard," he said apologetically, "but I have a busted leg that interferes with walking."

"I didn't mind coming. I wasn't busy," Howard's leaden opaque eyes never lifted from the stranger.

"Just reached town and I thought I'd better see you," Gray mentioned.

Slumped in the chair, the gross weight of the man overflowing, Howard reminded Gray of a prize hog.

Howard said nothing. He waited for the situation to develop. The man had a capacity for effective silence.

"Figuring I might want to stay around Tail Holt awhile," Gray went on easily.

"It's a free country," Howard's voice was suave.

"For some folks," Norris added with an insolent laugh.

Gray smiled. "My idea, too, Mr. Norris. I want to find out if I'm one of those folks."

"Last time I saw you that roan was foggin' it outa town fast," Norris taunted. "You looked like you had hurry-up business anywhere but here, Mr. Gray, if that's what you call yoreself."

"I changed my mind," Gray said. "Why?" Howard asked bluntly.

"Got a busted leg. Shot up the other day."

"In front of the Golden Nugget?" Norris inquired, "suspicion in his cold gray eyes."

"No. Out on the L C range."

"While you were gunning for Lee," Curly charged.

"No."

"That so?" Norris snarled. "Who did it? How come you out there?"

"Talk fast, fellow," Curly ordered harshly.

"Miss Ruth Chiswick did it," Gray did not look at Curly. His stone-wall gaze was on the killer Norris. "I was there on personal business of my own."

Curly ripped out an angry oath. "If you hurt Miss Ruth—"

Smoothly Howard interrupted. "Let us hear the story, Curly. Mr. Gray sent for us to tell it, don't you reckon?"

"Go ahead, Sorreltop," Norris laughed derisively. "We'll believe every word you say."

Gray told the story of his adventures in the L C territory, with careful editorial elisions. They heard it to a finish.

"That Chiswick girl is a tough proposition," Howard said, shaking his head gravely. "She'll come to a bad end, like enough."

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Curly hotly. "She's a mighty nice little lady."

"Some hot-tempered, but with the making of a fine woman in her," Gray concurred.

"She's sure a wampus cat," Norris cut in, his slurred voice a sneer. "Leave the girl out of this," Curly snapped.

"Mr. Norris only meant she is a little lively," Gray explained.

"I can tell him what I meant, fellow, without any help from you," Norris blustered. "And I didn't bring her name into it. She was in the fairy tale this bird has been giving us."

Ignoring Norris, the crook-nosed man spoke to Howard. "I don't claim to be so low-abiding myself. Maybe I left some place in a hurry. Maybe I didn't. Thought it wasn't good manners to ask a stranger about his past."

"You can't catch a mule without an ear of corn, Mr. Gray," the big man said. "If I get you right, you are asking our help. Before we give it we have a right to know all about you."

"No objections to you staying here, Mr. Gray."

"Fine, for you," the cornered man replied. "But how about me? How do I know some fox won't write a letter and have me dragged back to some place I don't want to go?"

Howard looked affronted. "If a man throws in with us, we don't betray him."

"Is that a promise?" Gray asked, looking to the others for confirmation.

"Y'betcha, if we're satisfied with yore story," Curly said.

"If, Mr. Norris accented, with an ugly laugh.

Reluctantly Gray drew from his pocket the poster. Still slumped in his chair, the big-shouldered fat man read it carefully.

"So you're Clint Duke," he said. Gray did not admit this in words.

"Draw yore own conclusions," he told Howard.

"Lemme have a look at it," Curly said impatiently. He read aloud: "Height five foot ten, age twenty-nine, weight about 158 pounds, crook nose, light red hair, gray eyes, scar on back of left hand. Will probably fight desperately before being taken."

Curly lifted his eyes and grinned at Gray. "Certainly reads like it might be you, unless you've got a twin brother the spittin' image of you, even to the scar on yore hand."

Norris reached for the poster. "The picture is sure ugly as galvanized sin," he sneered. "But it looks a heap like this guy, I'll say that. I knew all the time he was from Texas."

"Says you and these three other fellows are wanted for robbing the Texas and Southern Flyer," Curly mentioned. "Where are the other guys?"

"On the dodge, down in the Texas brush country."

"How come you not to stay there?"

"The Rangers were after me special," Gray explained. "I figured I had better light out."

Norris looked at the poster, his lip curled. "Mr. Duke is real important in Texas. Arizona sure ought to give him the glad hand."

"The name is Gray in Arizona," corrected the crook-nosed man.

"Worth two thousand on the hoof—or as meat, I reckon—down Santone way," Norris continued. "The other guys who helped rob the train only rate at five hundred apiece. But Mr. Duke—he's an honest-to-God Jesse James."

Gray ignored the jeer. "Like to correct you on one point, Mr. Norris. Two thousand on the hoof. Not a cent if shipped down in a coffin." He thought it just as well to stress this, to avoid being shot in the back.

"That's right," Norris assented. "I didn't read it careful. Well, Mr. Duke—Gray, I mean—it's a pleasure to meet up with a famous man like you."

"This is private information," the fugitive said. "I don't expect the word passed around among yore friends. I'm lying low for a while, you understand."

"It still isn't clear to me what you were doing in the Sweet Spring valley," Curly insisted. "Or why you wanted to kill Lee Chiswick."

Gray smiled. "I was in the Sweet Spring valley because I had to get out of Tail Holt in a hurry on account of Curly Connor making a target out of me," he told the black-haired man cheerfully. "Me, I was going somewhere in a hurry, and I happened to land in the L C country. About yore other question—I never have wanted to kill Chiswick."

"You just shot at him for practice," Curly suggested.

"I didn't shoot at him," Gray let his cold eyes rest on Norris. "I reckon that's not information to yore friends."

"Meaning me?" asked Norris, his eyes slitted.

"Meaning only that this has been talked over among you. Someone took a crack at Chiswick. Whoever it was, I could just see his figure in the alley, and I ripped loose at him."

"Why?" asked Howard. "Had you any chips in the game?"

"I've asked myself why often enough since," Gray replied, shaking his head. "Damfino why. Nary chip, Mr. Howard. But I had just been eating supper with him as his guest, and I reckon my notion must have been to see he got a fair break."

"But that isn't yore notion any longer, Mr. Gray?" Howard queried lightly.

"I'm not drawing a pay-check to be his bodyguard," Gray drawled.

"Is it straight goods what he says, Sherm?" Curly demanded.

"I reckon so, Curly. One of the boys got impatient and cut loose at Chiswick."

"Who?"

"I don't know who. I'm telling you only what I've heard."

"All right," Norris said. "This busted leg of his. Do we have to take it on faith?"

"It needs some attention," the wounded man replied. "Is there a doc in town?"

"No, doc, but Sherm here is almost as good."

"Fine. Would you mind looking at it, Mr. Howard?" Gray asked.

Howard examined, washed, and dressed the wound. There could be no doubt it was authentic. After he had finished taking care of it, the fat man gave a decision.

"No objection to your staying here, Mr. Gray. This community doesn't aim to be hard on a man in trouble. Of course, if Lee Chiswick finds out you are here, as he is liable to do, it will be up to you to look out for yourself."

Gray said he would try to do that.

Tony Flores, one of the vaqueros, rode in to the big house with word

Early Roman Writers Classified Their Dogs as Watch, Sheep, Hunting Breeds

Without doubt one of the earliest uses of a dog was to help herd the stock of his master. Early references to dogs confirm this. When you examine the works of Roman writers, observes an authority in the Chicago Tribune, you find that they divided dogs into three classifications, watchdogs, sheep dogs, and hunting dogs. It is quite likely that the conquering Romans brought these dogs into England. The Bible also gives us a sidelight on the early use of dogs for herding, as in the book of Job we read Job's reference to "those whose fathers I would have disdained to have set with dogs of my flocks."

Since dogs have helped for many centuries to tend the flocks of their masters—a practice that prevailed in many countries—it isn't surprising that today we still have a rather large number of working breeds with herding instincts and a real working background. The Belgian sheep dog, Bouvier des Flandres, collie, Old English sheep dog, and others are in this group.

The border collie found herding sheep on the moors of Scotland and elsewhere in the British isles varies considerably in type. For example, there are long-haired, short-haired, and bearded border collies. The long-haired is the most popular.

Here in America the biggest advancement in making the breed better has been during the last ten or twelve years. The source of most of the promotion of the breed has come from New England, where there are quite a few of the dogs being used on sheep farms. It was in New England that the first American sheep dog trails for the breed were held.

Transferring Allegiance With the exception of the United States and Great Britain, says Collier's Weekly, nearly every country in the world refuses to recognize the right of a citizen or subject to transfer his allegiance to another nation. They maintain that every man is subject to recall to his native land for military service, even when he has been a naturalized citizen of another country for years.

that there had been another raid on L C stock.

"How do you know?" Lee Chiswick demanded.

"Ran across the tracks of a bunch being driven up Box canyon," the Mexican said.

"New tracks?"

"I'd say not more than a day old, senior."

"Sure they were driven—that they weren't strays?" asked Dan Brand.

Tony explained that five or six shod horses had followed the cattle.

"Too late to catch the thieves or pick up the stolen stock," Brand mourned.

"Maybe not," Lee gave curt orders. "Arm yourselves, boys. We'll take off after them. Ruth, help Frank rustle grub for us—enough for two-three days. Bob, get Pat Sorley and Buck Conrad. Cut across and meet us at the mouth of Box canyon. Tell them to bring rifles as well as six-guns. Be there inside of an hour."

Ruth gathered all the food she had cooked, had Nelly grind two packages of coffee, chose a side of bacon, added flour and corn meal, as well as salt, pepper, and sugar. The food she put in gunnysacks.

Her brother roped a pack-horse and put on a crossbow. With a lash rope he threw a diamond hitch expertly over the supplies.

"Bring your slickers," the boss snapped. "No war-sacks. We're traveling light. You won't be sitting on your spurs any this trip. Got to hot-foot it over a cold trail."

At the entrance to Box canyon Lee found Sorley, Conrad, and his son Bob waiting for them. Sorley was sniffing over the ground like a dog looking for a scent. The old man was an expert trailer. He had been a scout in the army during the Geronimo campaigns.

The cattleman turned his horse over to Frank and strode forward to join Pat.

"What d'you find?" he asked.

"About half a dozen of 'em with a bunch of young stuff traveling lickety-split," Sorley said. "They're in one hell of a hurry. Here's a big long-stepping horse with outside shoes. This one has a broken hoof. You'll be pleased to know, Lee, that the lying scut who calls himself Jeff Gray is with them. Must have ridden right over from the line-camp."

"Sure?"

"Unless he has loaned his roan to someone else. I made it my business to take particular notice of that animal while he was at the line-camp. The blacksmith who shod that roan was either short of time or nails. There's a nail shy in the shoe on the left front hoof. Take a look at this track."

Lee Chiswick studied the foot-mark.

"Here it is again. Begorry, I'd swear to that on a stack of Bibles. Gray's roan made it."

"Hmp! We've got him at last so he can't lie out of it. He's one of the Tail Holt rustling gang," Chiswick's salient jaw set.

"I knew he was a bad hombre first minute I clapped eyes on him," Brand said.

Lee drew Frank to one side. "Son, we're following a cold trail. Look at those clouds. It's going to rain tonight, and all tracks will be blotted out. Might as well hunt a needle in a haystack as these scoundrels. I want you to go to Tail Holt and keep your eyes open. There will be a lot of whispered talk among the rustlers there, but you won't hear any of that. What I'd like to know is who is in town and who isn't. Find out who has been away. Notice who drops in. If two or three come together, check up on that. I'm pretty sure Sherm Howard is back of these raids on our stock, though of course he doesn't do any night-riding himself."

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Italian Hemstitching for a Chair Set

THE chair set shown here is made of an even meshed cream linen, marked off in squares of Italian hemstitching. Tiny scrolls in outline stitch with two diamonds in satin stitch are embroidered in all the outside corners. The scroll motif is shown at lower left. The tassels are made by raveling strips of the material and then rolling them.

Italian hemstitching is really just two rows worked together as shown at C and D. To prepare the rows, draw two threads, skip four and then draw two more.

Readers who have received their copy of Mrs. Spears' book on Sewing, for the Home Decorator, will be pleased to know that Book No. 2 is now ready. Ninety embroidery stitches; fabric repairing; also table settings; gifts; and many things to make for yourself and the children. If you like hand work you will be pleased with this unique book of complete directions for every article illustrated. Postpaid upon receipt of 25 cents (coin preferred). Just ask for Book No. 2 and address Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

The chair back piece measures 15 by 10 inches finished, and the chair arm pieces 7 1/2 by 7 1/2 inches. Allow 3/4-inch at all edges for the rolled hems. The hemstitched squares measure 2 1/2 inches. Mark them in pencil. The method of hemstitching the rolled edges is shown here at A and B. Remember that a moist thumb always helps in rolling an edge evenly.

Recovery in Prospect, But Not Immediate

Nearly all his life, when he was ill, Mark Twain was inundated with letters from well-wishers, one offering this, and another offering that marvelous remedy for his malady, whatever it might be, says his daughter, Clara Clemens (in "My Father: Mark Twain"). He tried to acknowledge all such messages and sometimes did so in a whimsical way. Here is one of his replies: "Dear Sir (or Madam): I try every remedy that is sent to me. I am now on No. 67. Yours is No. 2,653. I am looking forward to its beneficial results."

A SATURDAY IN SLATON

The Editor Encouraged to Work
It seemed that everybody in Slaton wanted us to do a day's work last Saturday, judging from the way they didn't drop in on us. We sort of parked in the office all morning without any callers, business, social or otherwise. Allan Payne, the universal secretary, passed the door but didn't look in; Fagan Genn also passed and didn't look in so we went over to see him. P. H. Appling was in with a young man he hauls around a lot—mostly he says in to Slaton to school. At noon we circled around to Henry's for a chicken dinner he had prepared for us and on the way back managed to buy a Sunday hat from O. Z. Ball. Back at the office there came manager Bowen of the Harvey House with a dusky little beauty he nominated as his main responsibility. Despairing of having any more callers, we picker up our feet and tromped down town.

Walking the Streets

Ducked in to meet our next door neighbor A. L. Tudor in the same building with the Slatonite. In spite of a good feed crop in this part of the country last year, he finds a great deal of commercial feeds in demand. Next into the I. H. C. house and found A. L. Brannon selling some planter plates to Mr. Ayles of Wilson. Mr. Ayles not complaining, but remarking that he lost his barn and contents in a fire a few weeks ago and that he has not enough moisture to bring up crops yet.

Old Friends

Met J. W. Phillips who lives "two or three blocks down that way," and faras somewhere across the Canyon. Mrs. S. M. Barnes, a former Crosby County resident honked at us, and introduced her neighbor, Mrs. Livingston. Both of them live down the highway toward Post. They came to Slaton shopping. Further was Mr. Barnes, his daughter, Mrs. Pipkin, and her three little daughters. Curved round to the hatchery to meet the Dicksons and there encountered our other hatchery man, Eaves, also an old Crosby County friend. They all complaining that this has not been so good a year for the baby chick business, partly owing, it seems, to the slight unpleasantness of the first week in April we have nicknamed the "freeze."

And People

We got into a political argument with our friend J. W. Neabitt and met his youngest, Glenn, who represented our town in the "Home Town" speaking contest at Wichita Falls this week. Then around to Bill Deal's machine shop to gaze at the huge lathes he has in there and the monstrous engine parts he brings here in the rough and machines to fit Diesel engines so when there is a breakdown hereabouts, machine operators can get few-hour service instead of few-day service as they might when a motor breaks down a thousand miles from the factory. You get Bill to talking about machinery and he is a fair conversationalist. And the ydo tell me he can do machine work here that nobody within a hundred and fifty mile circle can do.

Meeting Santa Fe

Back to the office and there came J. N. Landreth, Santa Fe Dispatcher, to get acquainted, he saying a good word for the Santa Fe, which we found not unreasonable since we realize the absolute necessity of the railroads to our modern economic, social and political organization. Also but for the Santa Fe, this South Plains country would still be largely a wilderness with a reputation as almost a desert.

Preferred Visitors

Pretty, capable Marion Ferguson, president of the Junior Class came in on some business of the Class, and later Miriam Meading. So the day couldn't have been a failure as we took off across the Canyon in a shower of dust we hoped would turn into a shower of rain—but didn't.

A WEEK AT A TIME

thinks backwards. In this case we'd say the evidence is against the messiah.

TO TAX STATE AND FEDERAL BONDS

President Roosevelt in his message to Congress this week is proposing the application of taxes to state and federal bonds that have heretofore been exempt. The recommendation was received without noticeable objection, which is fair evidence of the general sentiment that has been growing these past few years. The low rates of interest paid on such obligations make it necessary for those who invest in them to own a hundred thousand dollars worth before they can get any income of importance; hence it has been only the large investors generally who have put millions into these securities because they were tax-free. Perhaps the taxation of the income from them will make other credits more readily available, and at least it will require the investors of millions to pay a proper share of the costs of government.

NO RELIEF IN SIGHT

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is an institution that has rendered some highly valuable services to West Texas. But too often the Chamber makes the most noise about the things they do the least about. Now this tax equalization business. And this week the proposal to eliminate advalorem taxes! Hurrah! we cry, but no use; it won't be done. Neither will taxes be reduced. All candidates for governor always talk about reduction but they can never do anything. There are too many people who would lose their jobs if economy were effected in our state government. We just as well make up our minds that unless we have a reorganization of our state government, we are going to be paying a sales tax in the next few years.

MESDAMES T. K. MARTIN AND GRANT ART CLUB HOSTESSES

Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mesdames T. K. Martin and M. A. Grant entertained the members of the Slaton Art Club with a novel party. A group of pictures, previously assembled at the meeting place, by the club members, and not bearing any marks of identification, were displayed and the artist who painted each was guessed. A prize to the two recognizing the work of the most artists was awarded by Mrs. C. F. Anderson. Mesdames W. L. Jones won first place and Mrs. Cardwell claimed the second prize from Mrs. McAttee, with whom she tied, by drawing a lucky number. Giant tubes of paint were the two prizes given.

After a lengthy business meeting, a program was given about current art exhibits by Mrs. W. L. Jones and Miss Cordelia Grantham, who told of displays at Tech Art Museum and The Fair, Ft. Worth, respectively. Interesting reports of art in the news was the roll call.

A lovely refreshment plate was served to approximately fifteen members and two guests, Mrs. Jones, sister of Mrs. Kent and Miss Claudia Anderson.

IN OLD CHICAGO

WITHIN sight of his goal, Old Chicago of the 1850's, Patrick O'Leary (J. Anthony Hughes) lay dying on the prairie — yanked from his covered wagon by his runaway team. Around him gathered his wife, Molly (Alice Brady) and their three sons. Although the head of the clan was never to see the city of his dreams, Molly and the boys were destined to play a large part in the drama of its history which culminated in the catastrophic fire.

DOWN one of the city's busy, muddy streets Molly drove her wagon next day. The boys half forgot their grief in the excitement of arriving, and Molly submerged hers to concentrate on the problems of finding a place to house her brood, and work to support them. In the end, they settled in the "Patch," south side slum, where Molly developed a brisk business with her laundry, and kept the wolf from scratching too insistently at the O'Leary door. There, the sons grew up.

DION O'LEARY (Tyrone Power), eldest of the sons developed into a small-time political hanger-on. Shadowed by his pal, Pickle Bixby (Andy Devine), he was a familiar figure, winning with ready smile and cheap cigars the friendship of policemen and "ward heelers." In time, he became a minor henchman of Gil Warren, the city's political "big shot." But Dion harbored ambitions for more important things.

IN the laundry from Gil Warren's home one day, came a table cloth, covered with pencilled sketches. To Molly and Gretchen (June Storey), her hired girl, it meant work. But to Dion, studying it with his brother, Jack (Don Ameche) it was opportunity — for it was the plan for a new center. Excitedly, Dion noted that a "B. Fawcett" owned a key property in the favored area. (To be continued)

IN OLD CHICAGO

Alice Brady · Andy Devine · Brian Donlevy

AT the ornate cafe owned by Gil Warren, Dion O'Leary (Tyrone Power) learned that the mysterious "B. Fawcett" who owned the valuable corner in the area secretly planned as Chicago's new business center was beautiful Belle Fawcett (Alice Faye), featured entertainer in the cafe, and Warren's "girl." Boldly Dion interrupted the stage show as part of a plan to attract Belle's attention, for he was determined to win her favor — and thus acquire an interest in her property. Warren (Brian Donlevy) was annoyed.

DION'S efforts to endear himself to Belle were not immediately successful. Belle realized that Warren's favor was an invaluable asset, while Dion was a comparatively unknown and minor figure in the political picture. So she had him unceremoniously thrown out of her cabaret dressing room.

BUT, in the end Belle succumbed to Dion's blandishments. He was a good-looking lad, with the ready wit of the Irish — a far more romantic figure than the cold, cynical Warren. Soon, she had agreed to become his partner, and jointly they approached Senator Colby (Berton Churchill) for political and financial support. Long a tool in the hands of Warren, Colby was loath to experiment. But Belle and Dion won him over.

DION and Belle worked rapidly and thoroughly. Before Warren knew what was afoot, they had secured the backing for a lavish cafe to rival Warren's. The cream of Chicago society, and the leading men of politics and finance were present when their place, "The Senate," was opened. A startled political machine saw a new leader in the offing, and minor henchmen of the Warren crowd hastened to climb aboard Dion's bandwagon. (To be continued)

Got Something You Want to Sell?

Most people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, or something else which they have discarded and which they no longer want.

These things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about, getting of less and less value each year.

WHY NOT SELL THEM?
Somebody wants those very things which have become of no use to you. Why not try to find that somebody?
BY PUTTING A WANT AD IN THIS NEWSPAPER?

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington.—A breakdown of the state delegations in congress on the vote on the government reorganization bill is of unusual interest if considered in connection with the much-talked-about "purge"—the proposal to defeat in Democratic primaries such members of the house and senate as have opposed the President on important issues.

Almost of paramount importance politically is New York. No "purge" has been proposed there, but one of the most loyal of the 77 Democratic senators, Robert F. Wagner, bucked the President on this issue, to everyone's surprise. Of course Sen. Royal S. Copeland also voted against the President on this bill, but it is Wagner, who is up for re-election this year, not Copeland, whom the President would very much like to see retired to private life.

In the house, Rep. John J. O'Connor, chairman of the powerful rules committee, has been troublesome to the New Deal for some time. As chairman of that committee he has had much to do with blocking the wages and hours regulation bill. He issued a blast against the reorganization bill as soon as it had passed the senate, and then voted against it.

But—so did nine other New York Democrats, of whom all but one, Alfred F. Beiter, come from the Greater City. And an additional New York city Democrat, Martin J. Kennedy, was paired against the bill! So it is rather difficult to figure the organization leaders helping to organize a move to eliminate the insurgents when primary day comes. Especially when it is remembered that several important functionaries in this group of leaders, particularly Ed Flynn of the Bronx, bucked the President's wishes rather forcefully when he attempted to get approval for Robert H. Jackson's gubernatorial ambitions.

Irritating Thorns

In Maryland, where the President would love to see Sen. Millard E. Tydings replaced by a New Dealer, Tydings having sided against the President on every controversial issue of any importance, four of the six Democrats voted against the President.

In Ohio, where there are all sorts of anti-New Deal rumblings, and whose senator, Vic Donahey, was the first named of the TVA investigating senators, 12 of the 21 Democrats voted against the President.

In Texas, where Sen. Tom Connally was among the first to insurge on the Supreme court enlargement proposal, eight Democrats refused to follow their own Sam Rayburn, majority leader.

Virginia, whose senators, Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd, have been the most irritating thorns on Capitol Hill so far as the White House is concerned, was even worse. Seven of her nine Democratic representatives voted against the President.

Even in South Carolina, whose senator, James F. Byrnes, led the fight for the reorganization bill in the senate, did not do so well. Three of her six Democrats voted wrong from the White House standpoint. Which may not be so displeasing to Sen. Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, whom the White House would like to see beaten this fall.

The one senator who comes up this year that the President is most anxious to save is "Dear Alben" Barkley of Kentucky, who defeated Pat Harrison for senate leader by one vote due entirely to White House pressure. He is now seriously threatened in the primary. But four of the eight Kentucky Democratic representatives voted against the President on the reorganization bill. And so it goes through most of the delegations.

A Chuckle Here

Just a few days before the house so surprisingly scuttled the President's pet government reorganization bill, Mr. Roosevelt was talking with a group of visitors. As they told the story afterward they had the impression that the President was not greatly concerned about what congress might do about anything, but he grew rather forceful when decrying any real danger of dictatorship in this country.

Toward the conclusion of the interview, the visitors reported, the President asked them dramatically if they could name any power he possessed that the two preceding Presidents, Coolidge and Hoover, had not had.

The visitors were not politically minded. As a matter of fact, they were chuckling as they came out of the White House about the retort one of their number had made. This gentleman had said to the President, when asked what powers he had that his two predecessors had lacked: "The power of expression."

get no spending for his state, was rather tremendous. Nor that the power of patronage, which of course both Coolidge and Hoover had, had been enormously increased through the tremendous multiplication of the number of good jobs on the federal pay roll.

All of which is very significant now because of the new insurrection on Capitol Hill—that against voting the President huge sums for relief, which he can then allocate as he pleases.

May Turn on Heat

It must be admitted that there seems very little prospect of this latest revolt succeeding. But then it seemed rather unlikely, after the White House turned on the heat for the reorganization bill and was able to get it through the senate, that it would be upset in the house.

At least three times every one watching the situation has been sure, within the last 18 months, that the wages and hours regulation bill would be enacted, only to see it sidetracked. So that predictions at the moment seem rather daring. This new revolt just might get somewhere, unlikely as it seems now.

The great importance of it is that if it should, it would clip the President's power so effectively that it is scarcely likely he would be able to force any measure through congress for the remainder of his present term. It would mean that from now on congress would come mightily close to determining its decisions on its own political and economic judgment. It would mean the end of White House domination of Capitol Hill.

Just one reservation has to be made to this. The President still has that "power of expression." It is not impossible that his strength with the people in certain states and districts would be such that he could bring about the defeat in the Democratic primaries this year of a dozen or more outstanding figures among the insurgents. That, should it occur, would be apt to bring congress back to heel very decidedly.

Probe to Be Unique

The TVA investigation will be unique among the outstanding congressional inquiries of the last quarter of a century in one particular—it will not have a prosecutor!

Some senator or member of the house among the ten who compose the committee may decide, after the thing gets started, to take a real interest and try to get somewhere with it. There is no such promise to those who know the men from looking over their names, but surprises do happen.

But in the past it has been the custom, when a committee was appointed to delve into something, to pick out the particular man who had been doing most of the crusading on that subject, and put him as chairman, then at least as a member.

For example, after Sen. Burton K. Wheeler had been attacking Harry M. Daugherty, then attorney general under President Harding, bitterly for weeks, and virtually forced the appointment of an investigating committee, he was appointed on it. He was not made chairman, for the simple reason that he was a Democratic senator, and the Republicans were in control of the senate, so that all chairmanships were given to Republicans.

But—everybody knew when Wheeler was appointed that he would really run the committee, and he did.

Walsh Made History

When Sen. Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, father of the present senator of the same name, finally got his resolution for investigation of the lease of Teapot Dome passed, Sen. Thomas J. Walsh, who agreed with La Follette about it and was known as a relentless prosecutor, was named chairman.

Walsh made history, digging in for the carefully hidden trails long after nearly everyone but Walsh and La Follette was persuaded that actually the whole thing was all right.

This has always been the rule in both houses, though frequently committee chairmen, especially in the house of representatives, have stolen the thunder of the special prosecutors simply because they out-prosecuted them. House members have a little harder time getting publicity than senators, and hence are less loath to do battle when they get a chance for the front pages.

If the normal course of procedure had been followed in the TVA investigation, Sen. H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire would have been named as one of the Republican members. He would not have been put at the head of the senate list, because he is a Republican, but certainly he would have been put on the committee, because he is the one senator who has been exhaustively investigating the situation and studying the subject for more than a year—knows more about it than anyone else in either house in all probability.

New and Pretty Fashions

AND you can make them for yourself with the greatest of ease! Send for the patterns right off—even if you haven't done much sewing, they're quick and easy to follow. Each is accompanied by a complete and detailed sew chart that answers your every question.

Gay and Perky Apron.

It's exactly right to call this pretty apron a "fashion," because it fits as well as a dress and has an animated charm of its own. It positively will not slip off the shoulders when you have both hands in the dishpan—or any other time—and it completely protects your dresses from spatters and spots. Make it of linen, gingham or percale and trim it with bright braid.

Dress With Bolero.

This charming dress has details that belong in the very forefront of fashion—you see them in the most expensive models. The shir-ing at the waistline, the flare of the skirt, the wide shoulders, with puff sleeves, the whole effect of swing and gayety, make it smartest of the smart! In silk print, flat crepe, taffeta or (for summer wear) linen or sheer silk, this dress will be lovely. Be sure to wear a flower at the neckline, too.

The Patterns.

1479 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material, with 5 yards of bias banding or braid to trim.

1478 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for the dress and 1 3/4 yards of 39-inch material for the jacket.

Spring-Summer Pattern Book.

Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Spring and Summer Pattern Book which is now ready. It contains 109 attractive, practical and becoming designs. The Barbara Bell patterns are well planned, accurately cut and easy to follow. Each pattern includes a sew-chart which enables even a beginner to cut and make her own clothes.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

A Mother's Fidelity

Mute eloquence of a mother's fidelity is her carved effigy, dressed in her own clothes, which stands in an open window of a house in Bruges, Belgium. When her son went to war in 1914, she promised to watch for his return at this window. Refusing to believe reports that he had been killed, she continued her vigil until bedridden, when she had the effigy put in her place.

For many years, she and her son have been dead, but the silent figure still watches the road leading to Liege.—Collier's Weekly.
