CONGRATULATIONS

Clifford B. Jones may be right. We have usually found him so in any discussion we have had with him. But this time we are going to differ with him. He said he thought there were many others more capable of serving in the presidency of Texas Technological College than himself. We don't believe a more capable man could have been found.

We have known Clifford B. Jones for many years and he is a man. An educated, cultured man of such extensive interests and business success that all who know him respect him; all who deal with him instinctively defer to his judgment; and all who meet him are captured by his charming and impressive personality.

We congratulate Texas Technological College and the thousands of young people she must serve that her new President is one of so great talents and achievements and worth. And we congratulate Clifford B. Jones on the unmeasured opportunities for service he will have as third President of Texas Technological College.

WE'LL REMEMBER

Fort Worth is whooping it up—and so is all Texas about TCU's mighty undefeated, untied football team. There are a few West Texans who seem to realize that Texas Technological College has a team in the Red Raiders that has met football teams from all over the United States and is still undefeated and untied.

That Marquette game was worth the money. The score can't tell how good a game it was and how good a fight Marquette put up, nor what a gridiron spectacle the teams presented.

It was worth the money we thought to see Barnett fling those passes. Davey O'Brien may be better, but Barnett is certainly one of the nation's best passers. And Tech is recognized as one of the best teams in the nation this year. Maybe not so much here at home, but some day we'll remember the great team of 1938.

IS THERE NO PITY?

"Is there no pity sitting in the clouds?" cried Shakespeare's Juliet when she found the tyranny of her parents destroying her hope for happiness. And so might ask the Jews in Germany when they are robbed, driven from their homes, denied a place even to live, and all by decree of the state. And this by the state in which they were born, to which they had been loyal citizens and to which they had contributed greatly in development of wealth and industry—the state for which many had risked their lives in a war that took many of the Jews as they fought for Germany against Jews from other lands.

Not since the dark ages has the civilized world seen a nation led to such extremes of racial cruelty as Adolf Hitler is leading the Germans in this persecution of the Jews.

First Baptist In Mission School

The First Baptist Church will have a week-long Mission School beginning Sunday, December 4, announced Pastor W. F. Ferguson.

Except for the Sunday evening services the meetings will convene promptly at seven o'clock. Sunday the regular meetings at 6:30 and 7:30 will prevail.

At the Sunday evening meeting Dr. John A. Held, Texas missionary to the foreign speaking population of the state will speak. Monday evening Rev. M. O. Cheek will speak to the school; he is at present pastor at Kerns, Texas and was a former missionary to China. Other distinguished speakers will appear on the program during the week, and members of the Church are urged to attend and share in the great experiences in store.

Miller Calls Basket Ball Prospects Wed.

Five Letter Men Report Will Enter Idalou Meet

Coach Miller issued a call for basket ball prospects Wednesday and got a fair turnout. There are plenty of men showing up, but Miller says he can't tell what he has until he sees them in action a few times. And then sssss sssssssssssssssssss he can't be sure until the season is over.

He promises plenty of action for the boys who can toss the big apple around on the caged floor and to show his spirit has dated the team to go to the Idalou Tournament next weekend. With that kind of arrangement the boys will have ample time to learn what the fundamental object of the game is before entering real competition. Coach says the idea is to put the ball through the ring from the top.

Letter men from last year's squad are Billy B. Clack, Jack Brown, J. B. Ward, George Gentry and Ray De Busk. They are probably long enough to show some warm competition, the average being about six feet for the five. There are others on the squad who show promise of developing into first class tossers.

Mrs. Mary Hestand Buried Here Friday

Mrs. Mary M. Hestand, known affectionately to hundreds of Slatonites as Aunt Mary passed away last Thursday. Her death came as a result of shock attending the fracture of her hip sustained in a fall at the home of her son W. B. Hestand on Tuesday.

Mrs. Hestand was born in Kentucky June 16, 1850, married John B. Hestand in December 1873. Widowed in 1913, she came to Texas and made her home with her only child, W. B. Hestand, and came to Slaton with him in 1926.

Besides her son, she is survived by one brother, Benton McMillan of Zavala, and one sister, Mrs. Della Edwards of Dustin, Texas.

Funeral services were held at the Church of Christ at 3:00 P. M. Friday, D. Lee Hukel officiating, assisted by Albert Smith of Lubbock and Rev. J. O. Quattlebaum, Jr., of Slaton.

Pall bearers were John D. Smith, Chas. Williamson, C. H. Robbins of Lubbock and Arthur Haddock, H. G. Sanders, and R. L. DeBusk of Slaton. Interment was in Englewood cemetery.

Funeral Conducted For J. B. Gallimore

Funeral services were conducted Sunday by Rev. J. Paul Stevens, Presbyterian minister, for J. B. Gallimore, who died Saturday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. J. M. Hannah, in Slaton. Rev. J. W. Rayburn, formerly of the Presbyterian church here but now retired, assisted with the services. Burial was in Englewood cemetery.

Gallimore was 82 years old, born Feb. 14, 1856. Death was attributed to old age and complications. With him at the time of his death were his daughter, Mrs. Hannah, and her family; J. C. Gallimore, a son, and family; W. T. Lovin and Miss Mary Lou Parker, grandchildren of Wharton, Texas, and some of his Slaton friends. The aged man had lived in Slaton about 18 months, having lived since the death of his wife in 1913 in Farmersville and Howe, Texas.

Active pallbearers were R. L. De Busk, Arthur Dennis, F. A. Drewry, H. H. Edmondson, L. B. Hagerman and Bill Layne. Flower girls were Jimmie Jean Guinn, Mary Frances Landreth, Mary Ann Smith, Donna Sanner, Betty Lou Turner and Connie Henry.

Besides the children and grandchildren named above other survivors of Gallimore are sons, G. R. and J. E. Victoria and Alice, Texas, respectively; another daughter, Mrs. J. T. Parker of Lane City, Texas; 19 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren; and two nephews, E. L. Gallimore, Holdenville, Okla., and Eustas Gallimore, Mansfield, Arkansas.

Walter Donald of Hobbs, N. M. was in Slaton Sunday visiting friends.

SECOND ANNUAL COMMUNITY POULTRY SHOW DEC. 16-17

Enlarged Show Will Feature Livestock

Slaton's second annual Community Poultry show, originally scheduled at a meeting of the directors of the poultry association in October to be held December 1, 2 and 3, has been postponed until December 15, 16 and 17, according to announcement made by Raymond Lee Johns, secretary-treasurer of the association and manager of the show, in view of complaints by poultry fanciers that they need more time to prepare their birds for exhibition.

Enlargement of the show this year has been brought about through popular demand and the event has been renamed Slaton Poultry Show and Community Fair. Added to the show this year will be exhibits of registered livestock by 4-H club and vocational agriculture boys on Saturday, December 17, the last day of the show. In the livestock division will be shown calves, hogs and baby beef cattle. First premium will be $1.50, second $1.50 and third $1.

Premium listings on standard varieties of poultry include classes of cocks, hens, cockerels and pullets, with prizes of 75 cents first and 50 cents second. Ribbons will be awarded third, fourth and fifth places. The premiums on pens, in both classes of old and young production, are $1.50 for first, $1.00 second, and ribbons for third, fourth and fifth places. In the sweepstakes, bantams barred, $1 will be given the best cock, cockerel, hen and pullet of any variety, while $1.50 will be given for each the best old pen production and the best young pen production of any variety. Prizes will be awarded for geese and ducks this year, 75 cents for first, 50 cents for second and ribbon for third, but if there is only one entry second money and honors only will be given.

In the turkey division old toms, yearling toms, young toms, hens, yearling hens and pullets will be judged in separate classes, with first, second and third prizes being $1, 75 cents and a ribbon respectively.

Three dollars will be given for the best farm display. Women's exhibits include such divisions as canned fruits and vegetables, pickles, preserves and jellies, canned meats, painting on china, adult painting, children's paintings, household linens, fancy work, old ladies' work, and a miscellaneous division for woven materials, quilts and bed spreads. Classes under these divisions will be included in the catalogue premium list, which will be distributed early next week, and amounts of prizes will be included.

J. D. Strickland, vocational agriculture teacher of Lorenzo, will be official judge for the show. All entries applications must be in the hands of the show manager by six o'clock the evening of Thursday, December 15, and entries must be in place by 9 a.

John Allen Buried Thursday

John J. Allen, longtime resident of Slaton died at Mercy Hospital, Tuesday, November 29, after an illness of several weeks.

Funeral services were conducted from the First Methodist church Tuesday, December 1, 1938, at 3:00 P. M., Rev. J. O. Quattlebaum officiating, assisted by Rev. W. F. Ferguson. Interment was in Englewood cemetery, with Williams Funeral Home in charge.

Deceased was 42 years old, was born January 23, 1896 at Bonham, Texas. He came to Slaton in 1926. He had been ill 8 weeks before his death.

Survivors are his wife, and two daughters, Mary Lou, and Billie, mother, Mrs. J. D. Allen, brothers, Lloyd of Durant, Oklahoma, Melvin, Henry, Jess, and two sisters, Corinne and Alice Mae.

Relatives attending the funeral were one brother, two cousins Charles Mitchell and Marion Runion, an uncle, Jack Allen of Bonham, Mrs. Allen's brother, Bill Baker, and one cousin, Mrs. Georgia Owens of Bonham.

Pall bearers were J. C. Smith, S. T. Phillips, Johnnie Collins, R. L. Curry, J. T. Pinkston, and C. N. Gray of Idalou.

M. E. STEWARDS ORGANIZE

The show likely will be held in the 100 and 200 blocks on Texas Avenue. Exact building locations will be announced later.

Women of B.L.E.&F. Go To Amarillo

Four-State Meeting For Slaton In 1939

Though the Slaton Lodge of the Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers consists of but thirty members, it was large enough to send a splendid representation to Amarillo to the Annual District Meeting of the Auxiliary for the four-states district comprising West Texas, New Mexico, Colorado and Arizona. It was large enough to stage a presentation of the floor work of the Lodge that elicited the warm commendation of the high ranking officers of the national organization present. It was large enough to draw to Slaton the District meeting for next year, the body choosing the South Plains city for the 1939 annual meeting without a dissenting vote.

Representatives from the Slaton Lodge were Mesdames, John Ecker, Past President; R. H. Bailey, President; T. N. Bickers, Inner Guard; Vern Johnson, Treasurer; Geo. Talbot, Secretary; and Hassell Swaggerty and Guy Brown.

The District meeting was an all-day affair with a banquet at noon at the Odd Fellows Hall, honoring the high ranking national officers present, Worthy Grand President, Sister Agnes Strawn of Boone Iowa, and Grand Instructor, Sister Carmen Dyche of Albuquerque. After the meal, gifts of costume jewelry and handkerchiefs were presented to the Grand Officers.

The Lodge is happy and in high anticipation of the District Meeting that is to come to Slaton next October, and already they are planning how they may make our distinguished visitors enjoy their visit to Slaton and thus to profit to the greatest degree possible from the occasion.

Dr. J. A. Hightower Is Buried Sunday

Dr. J. A. Hightower, 62, a dentist here for more than a decade died at 3:30 Saturday afternoon at the hospital where he had been taken for treatment an hour before.

He had not been in the best of health for the past year, and his death was attributed to a heart attack.

Funeral services were conducted at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist Church, Rev. J. O. Quattlebaum, pastor, officiating, assisted by C. E. Fike of Lubbock, a former pastor of the local church. Burial was at Englewood cemetery under the direction of Williams Funeral Home.

Dr. Hightower has been practicing dentistry here with his step-son, Dr. G. W. Shanks the past eleven years.

He was born in Union Springs, Alabama and loved to revisit the place, having made a visit there just the past summer.

He is survived by his wife, and step-son, one grandson, three sisters and a brother in Alabama, and one in Fort Worth.

Pall bearers were George Catching, Judge C. Smith, N. R. Carter, Ben Mansker, Joe H. Teague, Jr., and R. C. Ayres.

Theatre Fire Does Slight Damage

A Thursday afternoon fire at the Palace Theatre, originating in the floor of the projection room was extinguished by the Fire Department before it had done much damage. Herschel Crawford, manager of the Palace, reported that the only injury done was to the building. The advertised program will not be interrupted.

R.M.A. DISAPPROVES SALES TAX LEVY

At the regular meeting of the Retail Merchants Association Monday afternoon little business was brought up. A letter of protest against any form of sales tax was presented and after brief discussion the body voted to join the movement in Texas to oppose any form of sales tax that might be proposed, and the Secretary was instructed to make official report accordingly.

Mrs. G. R. Evans, formerly of Slaton, but now of Justiceburg, was visiting friends here last week. Mrs. Evans lives at the Santa Fe Lake at Justiceburg.

Doctor A. B. Cox Sees Farm Changes

Noted Economist Sketches Plight Of Southern Farmers

Austin, Nov. 30—In an analysis which he has made of statistical data on the cotton industry of Texas, Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the Bureau of Business Research of The University of Texas and internationally known as a cotton economist, has arrived at some conclusions as to how conditions may be improved.

"Statistical facts show," he said, "that the major interest of Texas in the cotton industry is in the production of raw cotton for market; that cotton, and cottonseed yielded over half of the total farm income prior to the depression, and while that is no longer true, they still are the major source of farm income in Texas except when all livestock and livestock products are taken together; that income from cotton and cottonseed in Texas is less than half what it was prior to 1930; that the decreased income has been caused by both reduced production and lower prices; that reduction of production of cotton in Texas has been due entirely to reduction of acreage; that harvested acreage in cotton in 1938 is 7,176,000 less in Texas than in 1928, or over 42 per cent; that only a small percentage of the acreage released from cotton has been planted to other crops for harvest; that the average staple length of Texas cotton is much below the average for the country as a whole and that the average yield of cotton per acre in Texas is far below the national average.

"Major facts in the cotton situation suggest very definitely the major items in a cotton policy for Texas and a general agricultural and industrial policy to go with it. Texas farmers can do much to raise the price of their cotton by improving the quality of it. Texas farmers can increase their margin of profit by increasing the yield per acre of their cotton through better farm management practice.

"Texas farmers as well as the Nation as a whole must come to a realization that the United States has lost annually between three and four million bales of its foreign markets for cotton, that these were mainly Texas markets, and that very important changes must be made in Texas agricultural production and marketing. New sources of farm cash income of major proportions must be discovered and developed if farm income in Texas is to be restored to pre-depression levels. Much of the waste and misery resulting from the necessary adjustments may be avoided if leaders in Texas come to a clear understanding of the advantages and disadvantages of different regions within the State for different farm enterprises and of the nature, extent, and trends of the market."

Curse of Progress

Much Smoke, Little Fire

The community dinner was over at last and the patient guests who had listened to the long address of the principal speaker breathed a deep sigh of relief. "The speaker was all right," the toastmaster's wife whispered, "but it seems to me that he didn't put enough fire into his speech." "I feel the opposite way," answered the toastmaster. Shirley Temple's New Film, "Just Around The Corner" Just
What Country Needs

Three times voted the nation's favorite screen star, Shirley Temple may be said to have several usual Hollywood futures already behind her. Yet competent observers are as one in agreeing that Shirley's greatest triumphs are still to come—that as she goes on she will be even more amazing than ever, and that her career will set a mark never attained on screen or stage before.

J. P. McEvoy—newspaperman, humorist and scenarist—crystallized the opinion of most moviegoers when he predicted new marvels of achievement for the Number One star in a widely discussed article in The Saturday Evening Post.

McEvoy points to Shirley's latest 20th Century-Fox picture, "Just Around The Corner," to illustrate his conviction, set forth in the Post article, that Shirley is a consummate actress with a definite love for the art of acting and a talent that amazingly increases as she gets older.

McEvoy speaks on good authority.
Always close to the theatre and the screen. He collaborated with Ethel Hill and Darrell Ware in writing the screen play for "Just Around The Corner."

Opening Sunday and Monday at the Palace and announced as having the most original scenario thus far conceived for a Shirley Temple picture, the film concerns the hilarious but happy consequences which arise when Sourley confuses a wealthy old banker whose name is "Uncle Sam" Henshaw) with the lean and hawkeyed gentleman who is the symbol of our national character.

Shallowater Lad
Is 4-H Winner

Joe Doyle of Shallowater is awarded a gold medal for making the best report of any 4-H club member in Lubbock county in a National 4-H Electrification Contest conducted by extension agents. The medal is 7-8 inches high with a clover leaf and high line towers embossed on the rectangular face and is fitted with a clasp lock.

Records of county winners compete for the state award which is an all-expense trip to the 17th National 4-H Club Congress, to be held in Chicago, Nov. 25-Dec. 3. The four highest scoring state winners in the country receive cash college scholarships of $400, $300, $200, and $100 provided with all other prizes in the contest by Westinghouse Electric & Mfg.
Company.

The contestant is scored on a report stating how electricity can be used to advantage on a farm, listing appliances and giving cost of operation compared with man power. Promotional work, such as exhibits and demonstrations, also count.

Mesdames T. K. Martin, A. Dennis and Sed Meadors were hostesses to the Slaton Art Club Tuesday, November 29th at the club house, from 10 until 1 o'clock.

The business meeting and program, featuring Mrs. Claud Anderson and Misses Edith Marrs and Claudia Anderson, was climaxed by a luncheon at noon.

The long, linen-covered table was centered with a cluster of mistletoe and corsages of mistletoe marked each plate. A three-course luncheon was served to: Mesdames, Anderson,
D. L. Kent, J. W. Turnbow, Grant,
Halmer Dawson, J. R. McAtee, R.
L. Wicker, Meadors, Dennis, Martin and W. B. Cardwell of Abilene, and Misses Claudia Anderson, Edith Marrs and Cordelia Grantham.

At the conclusion of the meeting, all went to the Taos Art Exhibit at Texas Tech Museum.

The December meeting will be at the Turnbow home.

4-H Boys Get Send-Off

Delegation of 47 members is representing Texas at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, now in session.

Selection for outstanding achievements in their club work or as members of judging teams who will represent Texas at the Congress, the boys will take part in national 4-H club activities and will tour the industries of Chicago.

The delegation is lead by L. L. Johnson, state boys' club agent, and J. W.
Potts, his assistant, both of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service.

At Dallas the boys received the white ten-gallon hats traditionally worn by Texas 4-H club boys at the national gathering.

Douthit Grinstead and Norman Smith are representatives from Posey and Cooper, respectively.

"WEAR-EVER" NEW METHOD
A healthful condition of the blood is like the pavement on a road, it will give you speed and efficiency.
Most people know that it is what they eat that nourishes their body, but few people realize that it is what they eat that makes them sick.
The NEW METHOD OF COOKING, as proved by countless tests and scientific analyses, actually retains in the cooked food most of the valuable mineral elements and vitamins.
THE OLD METHOD OF COOKING, peeling, coring, boiling, frying and cooking on high temperatures destroys a large portion of the food value.
Through the use of the New Method of Cooking we save those valuable mineral elements, and vitamins so essential and necessary to rich red blood, sound teeth, strong bones, clear skin and a better resistance to disease.

Nazis Falter In Fining of Jews

Last week Germany shocked the world by imposing a fine of a billion marks on the Jews because a Jewish lad in Paris murdered a German secretary. President Roosevelt expressed something of the concern of America in a published note, and he had our Ambassador Wilson recalled from Germany to confer here concerning the conditions prevailing in Germany. Germany has called home her ambassador to Washington, dispatches state, to have him tell Hitler face to face how the people of the United States could possibly be sympathetic with the Jews. At the same time, Nazi newspapers are loud and vicious in their criticism of America and the President for daring to sympathize with anyone the Nazis condemn. But latest news indicate that the oppression is being lightened from what was at first intended and announced, perhaps as a sop to American sentiment and perhaps in recognition of the financial problems that would be raised by infliction of the fine. Miss Kathryn Whitehead, C.I.A., was home for the holidays.

Forecasts More Travel On Santa Fe Lines

T. B. Gallaher, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fe System Lines, and one of the best known transportation officials in the Southwest, predicted increased passenger business for the forthcoming year. Gallaher, with other officials of the Railway, has just completed a survey over the company's lines, including the Southwest and his former home and headquarters in Amarillo. He based his predictions on a passenger uprising upon enthusiastic interest in the Expositions in San Francisco and New York, troubled foreign conditions, and speedier and more comfortable train conveniences and service.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts
The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach often pours out too much acid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over. Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Heilans for indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in no time and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and new. The package proves it. Ask for Heilans for Indigestion.

It's that time of the year again—and as a word to the wise and sentimental, "Give something electrical!" To make your Christmas shopping easier, we suggest that you use our "Lay-away" plan. Choose early from a greater selection and let us deliver your gift on Christmas eve. And here is good news for the thrifty. Any appliance purchased from this company may be purchased on our convenient "Budget plan." Any employee will be glad to help you solve your shopping problems—that easy electrical way.

Weekly News Review
New Czech Crisis Is Threatened
By Pole-Hungarian Aggression
By Joseph W. La Bine

DOES EUROPE'S FATE LIE IN RUTHENIA? (SEE FOREIGN)
Poland is helping Hungary capture Ruthenia, in return for which Hungary is reportedly helping Poland capture the balance of Slovakia (Czech area above shaded section, which represents land just ceded to Hungary). This deal may bring a serious breach with Germany, blocking the Reich's southeastward expansion.

Foreign

After Czechoslovakia made peace with Germany by ceding Sudeten border areas to the Reich, Poland and Hungary jumped in with similar claims. Poland was pacified when war-lost Teschen was returned. To Hungary went the southern portion of Slovakia and a small corner of Ruthenia (see striped portion of map), a settlement arranged jointly by Germany and Italy. But the bulk of little Ruthenia was retained by Czechoslovakia on Germany's insistence, much to the sorrow of Poland and Hungary who wanted a common border.

Smart Adolf Hitler has two reasons for demanding Ruthenia's autonomy. First, his economic policy has made Czechoslovakia a vassal state and at some future date Germany intends to march through that country into the Russian Ukraine and other parts of southeastern Europe. Should Hungary get Ruthenia and turn hostile to Germany, the march to the east would be blocked.

Second, Ruthenia has immense value as a nucleus for Nazi propagandizing in the Ukraine and neighboring Rumania.

Meanwhile Czechoslovakia is in no position to defend herself from the band of wolves barking around her entire frontier. Not only is she under Germany's thumb, but Slovakia and Ruthenia have now been granted autonomy, which makes them largely independent of the central Prague government.

The result has been two unpublished wars in which covetous Poland and Hungary have been interesting themselves under the explanation of "police action." The first centers in Ruthenia's Carpathian mountains, where Hungary has won a substantial portion of the natives to her cause. In the ensuing civil war between pro-Czech and pro-Hungarian Ruthenians, Polish and Hungarian border troops have intervened.

The other war is centered along Slovakia's Polish frontier, where Czech and Polish border troops have been fighting. Though none of the three concerned governments has spoken officially, it is quite obvious that Poland has agreed to help Hungary capture Ruthenia if Hungary will help Poland grab the rest of Slovakia. This would leave Czechoslovakia with nothing but western Bohemia and Moravia, located entirely within Germany's "mouth." It is doubtful that Germany would tolerate this threat to her proposed eastward expansion, but her opposition might aid the cause of anti-Nazi forces by arousing the ire of both Hungary and Poland.

Domestic

Under Secretary of State Cordell Hull, the U. S. has consummated 20 reciprocal trade agreements (including two with Canada) as authorized by the trade agreements act of 1934. Carried on aggressively, Mr. Hull's program now covers three-fifths of all American exports and imports. Behind the treaties is the "most-favored-nation" principle, under which contracting nations agree to nondiscriminatory treatment in the fixing of quotas. In each treaty, both signatory nations pledge not to impose internal taxes on imported articles higher than those imposed on similar articles of domestic or other origin.

Keystone and climax to this program is the reciprocal trade treaty just signed with Great Britain, including the dovetailing second treaty with Canada. Since a unilateral principle applies to Mr. Hull's treaties, the benefits of this U. S.-British agreement are now open to all other nations with which the U. S. has commercial treaties. Principal non-participants are Europe's dictator nations. The eventual aim of idealistic Mr. Hull is abandonment of international trade barriers and the idea of artificial self-sufficiency, and a more stabilized world currency.

Chief arguments against the Anglo-American pact come from business interests who claim their domestic sales are injured by British competition. Arguments in favor of the treaty will maintain that while British competition is increased on some domestically-manufactured items, a great many more items can now be exported to the United Kingdom, since most duty payments have been slashed. The state department expects U. S. agriculture will derive important benefits from the United Kingdom treaty, which grants concessions on many farm products. All duties on American wheat are removed, while on other items the duty is substantially reduced. But the new treaty with Canada fails to remedy many objections which featured the previous agreement with that dominion, since important concessions are still granted on livestock, cheese, eggs and many grains.

International

By persecuting Jews and subsidizing Christianity in favor of Nazi ideology, Germany tells the world that a triumphant political philosophy is worth more to her than the world's good will. What Germany apparently fails to realize is that the resultant international resentment will ruin the Reich's export trade, thereby creating internal economic chaos. This pressure is already felt in Sudetenland and Austria, the recently annexed territories whose manufactured items must now bear the mark, "Made in Germany." Both areas find world anti-Nazi sentiment a serious threat to their once flourishing export business.

Meanwhile international plans to help German Jews are meeting inevitable opposition. Since most countries already have unemployment problems, few are willing to increase this burden by accepting new immigrants. They also realize that Jews are predominantly tradesmen and therefore fear their established business men would suffer from this new competition.

In the U. S., President Roosevelt has granted a six-month extension to German visitors rather than return them to the hostile Reich. He plans to ask congress for liberalized immigration laws which would permit the entry of more persecuted Jews, though congressional leaders like Sen. William E. Borah promise to oppose the plan.

MYRON C. TAYLOR
Plenty of money, but little land.

The U. S. and Great Britain are meanwhile taking a lead in consummation of the Jewish solution first proposed by Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. ambassador to London. While Great Britain is surveying her colonies to find new homes for Jews, the state department has commissioned Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the intergovernmental refugees committee, to represent the U. S. in this work. American Jews are voluntarily digging up 100 million dollars to finance the project if England can provide land for resettlement purposes. The most likely spot is British Guiana, in South America, where Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain hopes to set aside 10,000 square miles.

But Germany is not co-operative. Although George Rublee, director of the international committee, has offered to discuss the Jew question with Berlin, he has received no definite reply. Preferring to ignore the U. S. and Great Britain, Germany is reported negotiating with several South American countries to find a Jewish haven. Regardless of who manages the exodus of these 700,000 unwanted Hebrews, they will find no refuge in Mexico's Lower California or Palestine.

Bruckart's Washington Digest

Danger of 'Jewish Problem' for United States in German 'Purge'

Resentment of American People Aroused by Hitler's Harshness; Opening of Gates to Refugees Might Introduce Disturbing Influence.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — Press service wires and cables and radio from abroad have been clogged for several weeks with hundreds of thousands of words about the plight of the Jews in Germany; about the abuses visited upon the Jewish race by the European madman, Hitler, and his camp followers; about the humanitarian pleas of our own President, Mr. Roosevelt, for appeasement of the conditions. There has been what I believe to be one of the greatest waves of emotion, waves of resentful national sentiment, that this country ever has known. I recall none like it, none as overwhelming, none as deep-seated as that through which we have been passing, and in my opinion our nation should have resented such outrages.

While no one with a heart can fail to grieve to a greater or less extent about the indescribable harshness, the unforgivable meanness of Hitler, it occurs to me that we should begin to temper these waves of emotion somewhat. There are other factors to be considered, factors and consequences of the thing that is now called "the Jewish problem," that require calm reasoning. In other words, let us say that America is and must remain for Americans, and charity, while it is sweet, cannot be exploited, or carried to extremes simply because we feel a sadness for a group upon whom an injustice has been sent. Like millions of other Americans, I am hopeful that some way will be found to aid the Jews who are being driven out of Germany, but I am unwilling that we, as a nation, shall create additional and unwarranted difficulties for ourselves by extending a helping hand. Therefore, the United States must not be the goat.

It is one thing to render aid. It is quite another thing to inject into our own bloodstream of national life additional elements without knowing what those elements are. After all, the damage is something that we did not cause; the injured are a people who have no knowledge of our way of doing things and may never co-operate with us, and we must prevent being dragged into the other fellow's fist fight.

'Purge' of German Jews an Exposition of Mad Power

I suppose there are very few persons in the United States who do not believe that Hitler's "purge" of German Jews constitutes a blot upon modern civilization. I know that leading Germans in the United States wish there were ways and means to stop the action. There can be no defense of the outright seizure of $400,000,000 of money from the Jews of Germany under the guise of a "fine" although there is a lesson of warning in it. Likewise, none can convince me that Hitler has kept his underlings free of graft and corruption in this or other dictatorial actions. Those in power in Germany are garnering the gold for themselves—or else we are witnessing the activities of angels whose purposes we, as human beings, are unable yet to understand. I do not believe they are angels. The "purge" of German Jews, therefore, must be accepted as the exposition of mad power.

Some weeks ago, I had occasion in these columns to talk about the so-called "peace of Munich." I said then that Hitler was not through; that there would be further exhibitions as he and his henchmen maneuvered this way and that in order to maintain the iron grip of a dictator. The drive on the Jews is a part of that general scheme, a movement to maintain a support for the dictatorship, for, it is known, should Hitler's grasp be broken at any place or at any time, there would be a bloody revolt in Germany again.

Those causes, however, do not help us in the solution of the Jewish problem. The unwanted race is simply the victim and a knowledge of how its members have had the sufferings brought upon them adds little or nothing to the search for a method to protect their lives. Where are they to go? That is the real question. Hitler doesn't care where they go or what happens to them. Some one else has to lead the way. Our nation has joined in that leadership, and rightly so. But we have policies and principles and traditions which must be respected. If, in our eagerness to help the German Jews, we should transgress those established principles, then we, as well as the Jews, will have to pay a penalty.

'Jewish Problem' for United States Might Be Result

The whole situation is one which may contain "a Jewish problem" for the United States. It is one out of which a political issue may grow. It is to be remembered that religion became an issue in a presidential election not so many years ago. That shows that such things can sprout even in the United States. If it happened in the case of the Catholic religion, it can happen in the case of a racial question, especially with regard to the Jewish race.

We ought not kid ourselves. There are many persons swearing allegiance to the United States who do not like Jews. Those persons may be otherwise good citizens, but they distrust a Jew because he is a Jew, making no distinction between individuals. It is stating nothing new to say that there has been almost a steady undercurrent of criticism of Mr. Roosevelt from certain quarters because Jews have been given prominent places in the New Deal. I think it is not stretching the imagination at all, therefore, to point to the Jewish problem as one that may become involved in politics at some future time, although I hope it never does.

Mr. Roosevelt has proposed removal of some of the immigration restrictions as a means of bringing into this country more German Jews than our immigration laws now permit. In so doing, he verged on politics himself. Any one familiar with the debates on immigration policies in the early 1920s must recall the severity of that battle. The issue was whether we, as a nation, were going to be haven for all comers and just hope that they would do things the American way, or whether we should restrict the number coming here to live to a number which could be absorbed into our national life. Labor unions and most employers favored the restrictions, and when we think of the number of unemployed in the last five or six years—people fed and clothed by the federal government—it appears that we allowed too many to come in. It seems we could have excluded all of them to advantage.

Only Congress Can Let Down Immigration Bars

Behind the scenes of the immigration restriction also was a determination on the part of Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, then a senate power, to prevent introduction into the United States of all kinds of "isms." The senator foresaw the spread of radicalism by means of entry of the European backwash and rubbish. There was not much discussion of this phase because our government did not want to offend any foreign nation. It was a basic reason, however, and it is too bad that it was not given more public consideration.

Fortunately, there can be no change in the number of foreigners admitted from any nation without action by congress. The United States can take only so many—something like 30,000 a year—of those purged Jews, unless congress amends the law. And when I say it is fortunate that there must be action by congress before there can be a change in policy, I mean no inferences.

I believe Mr. Roosevelt is eminently correct when he says that there must be a "homeland" established for the Jews. The British tried to make Palestine that sort of a base, it will be remembered, but they failed because Arabs don't like Jews. This experience then would seem to point to the necessity for the Jews being colonized quite alone. If the United States can extend help in doing that job, there ought to be no criticism of the course, even if it involves financial assistance. It would be a charity worthwhile, and a charity that would not involve us later on. I repeat that I believe there is real danger in letting down the floodgates for immigration whereas the other method would seem to be a humanitarian action again demonstrating our national sympathy for a downtrodden people.

Refugees Likely to Create A Disturbing Influence

In consideration of whether we ought to let a deluge of refugees enter, I cannot help thinking of a possible spread of trouble. For example, if our definite national position of protest against Hitler's policies should bring retaliation, every Jewish refugee allowed in this country would be clamoring for the United States to take revenge on Germany and Hitler. Their influence would be great because they could tell what happened to them and give an idea of what is happening. You and I and millions of others would believe first hand information. There is no doubt about it. The germ of trouble could be incubated ten times more rapidly; instead of staying out of European troubles, we would be pushed in deeper and deeper.

As far as relations between Germany and the United States are concerned at the moment, all that can be said is that the United States has let the world know of its disapproval. When Ambassador Wilson was recalled, it was just the same as saying to the world of nations that Uncle Sam hasn't any respect for Hitler.

Ideas for Making Christmas Presents

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
Unusually attractive toys may be made quickly and at little cost from cheap cotton stockings. This demure yellowish tan kitten with bright red or blue ribbon is made from a stocking leg. The secret of giving toys of this type character is in making the stuffing firm and tight. Cotton or small pieces of clean, soft rags may be used. Push the stuffing firmly in place with a blunt stick.

Complete directions for cutting and making the body are given here. For the tail, cut a piece 6 inches long and 2 inches wide. Stitch the lengthwise edges together, tapering toward the end, then turn right side out, stuff and sew firmly in place. It is easy to draw the face. Notice in the sketch how the eyelids curve, the shape of the mouth and how the whiskers slant.

Either wool yarn or mercerized cotton embroidery thread may be used—black or brown for the eyes and whiskers and red for the mouth.

NOTE: Are you ready for Christmas? Birthdays? And the next church bazaar? Do you turn time into money with things to sell? Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2 has helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, quilt leaflet with 36 different stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

Wait, Mother—Ask Your Doctor First

Never give your children unknown "Bargain" remedies to take unless you ask your doctor.

A mother may save a few pennies giving her children unknown preparations. But a child's life is precious beyond pennies. So—Ask your doctor before you give any remedy you don't know all about.

And when giving the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, always ask for "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

Because for three generations Phillips' has been favored by many physicians as a standard, reliable and proved preparation—marvelously gentle for youngsters.

Many children like Phillips' in the newer form—tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips' 25¢ for a big box.

A bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs but 25¢. So—anyone can afford the genuine. Careful mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

What with a new house being constructed on eleventh street and another on Garza by some of our local citizens, we can't help but want to display our strong belief in the future growth and development of Slaton. Not long ago this column had something to say concerning stimulation of building in the city. Before that time and evensince, much in the way of improvement is evident. In our office we still have a quantity of literature relative to construction of a new home or improvement of the old. Perhaps the editor will think me editorial when I urge LET'S GET BEHIND SLATON IN A BUILDING WAY, for growth is a sure sign of a prosperous state of living.

When we reach the point where we can offer our patron anything in Slaton that he could find anywhere else, we will have solved our problem.

What do we have to offer ourselves in the way of Christmas spirit? Are we going to decorate as beautifully and artistically as we did last season? Maybe it would be a good thing to place our radios in places where they might be heard by pedestrians passing in the street. Would this not create through mere stimulation a more forceful and noticeable Christmas spirit?

Farmers, businessmen, please do not forget our scheduled trip to Plainview Thursday, December 8, to attend the Southwestern Dressed Turkey Show. Upon that occasion prize birds will be exhibited from many localities of the Southwest. If you would like to go and have not yet been contacted, you may drop by the chamber of commerce office and signify your intention of going.

In this connection may we say that the chamber of commerce has taken a deep interest in looking to secure a local market for our farm produce that will be as great a drawing card for our farmers as is offered anywhere near.

With cotton-picking almost closed we find four Slaton gins reporting that some 6,609 bales of cotton have been ginned to mid-week.

Western Auto Associate Store Management Appreciative of Ready Acceptance by Public -- Extend Thanksgiving Greetings

"The ready acceptance of our service by the people of the South Plains is more than justified our confidence in the section and we truly have a basis for this genuine message of Thanksgiving Greetings to Slaton residents. We pledge our continued efforts, not alone to increasing our scope of service, but to every civic project in which we might cooperate to the general development and progress of the section which it is our privilege to serve. The Personnel and Directorate of the Lubbock Western Auto Associate store join in wishing each of you a full measure of the joys and happiness you so richly deserve."

R. W. INCE

This cheerful message of Thanksgiving greetings was extended The Slatonite reporter during an interview with Mr. Richard W. Ince, manager of the recently opened Lubbock Western Auto Associate store.

Further commenting upon the splendid success enjoyed by their initial month's operation, Mr. Ince said: "The Western Auto Associate Stores do not claim the glory, nor do they claim to be doing phenomenal. Any good merchant who is awake to the times and appreciative of his patrons' needs, who will conscientiously study his clientele's income, can by this formula, duplicate our performance. "We make an extreme effort to stock each store with the type of merchandise that will appeal to the people of that section, and in the same effort, not make too strenuous demands on their ability to purchase. We strictly refuse to sacrifice quality for lesser cost and longer profit—conscientiously selecting that type of merchandise which we know we may depend upon as the very best the market affords in durability and quality."

Western Auto Associate Stores' long years of merchandising makes possible such a combination of skill and ingenuity in buying for the people they serve and in whose needs we take a most sincere personal interest—living up to the traditions which characterize this nationally known institution—because we thoroughly realize that no other singular policy has paid our firm greater dividends, or tributes of fidelity from our patronage," Mr. Ince explained.

The Lubbock store is associated with the Western Auto Supply company of Kansas City, Mo. This national institution operates more than 200 of its own stores throughout the United States, a true reflection of the popularity of their service during 29 years of activity.

The headquarters store at Kansas City cooperates with more than 1,000 outlets similar to the Lubbock store, enabling them to offer the public a complete line of auto parts under their well known guarantee, and bearing out their claim to a most experienced and intelligent buying policy.

Too varied and numerous to mention are the lines of accessories obtainable through these stores, but chief among those articles are automobile parts and accessories of every size and type; home and office as well as automobile radios, electrical appliances, bicycles, tools for the farmers, gardener or householder, and countless other everyday necessities, all sold on their positive guarantee, and perhaps of most interest to the people of this section is the fact that the Lubbock store is strictly HOME OWNED.

Naming some of the favored articles offered by this store, and articles which have received nation-wide approval are: Truetone radios; Davis DeLuxe tires, Wizard batteries, rubber coat top dressing and many other lines seldom stocked in stores of cities under 100,000 population.

You may purchase an article through the Lubbock store as a gift to a friend in a distant city. Through their interesting plan of merchandising, that friend is protected by the same guarantee of complete satisfaction as if they were a resident of Lubbock. Because wherever there is a Western Auto Store, there is that genuine backing of their "satisfaction Guaranteed" slogan which is accountable in a large degree, for their tremendous and ever growing clientele. This feature of their service is particularly interesting to tire purchasers. Regardless of where you buy a tire through their stores, you are privileged to adjustment at the nearest store when trouble develops. This has proven a convenience to motorists who might have otherwise suffered a loss on a justifiable claim simply because of the inconvenience of demanding adjustments prove costlier than the amount involved. There's no red tape to Western Auto Store adjustments, and you are handled in the same courteous manner in any of their more than 1,000 stores throughout the nation.

Mr. Ince invites you to visit their Lubbock store and allow them to assist you with those vexatious Christmas selection problems. There are thousands of appropriate answers to be found there, priced within the reach of all.

Auto Travel Bureau Offers Unique Suggestion To Christmas Travelers

"With the approach of the Yuletide season, our business is experiencing a sharp upward trend, indicative of an unusually prosperous holiday season this year. Automobile registrations and applications for seat space are far in advance of that enjoyed during the same period last year, and we are anticipating the heaviest demand for our service we have ever experienced." Interviewing Clarence Hood, owner-manager of the Auto Travel Bureau in Lubbock, The Slatonite reporter secured the above message of confidence in the financial security of the South Plains when Mr. Hood assured him of the rapid growth of his agency in our neighbor city.

"To those of you who are unfamiliar with this popular method of travel," Mr. Hood suggests, "we would be glad to explain how you may register your car, together with information relative to the number of guests you care to accommodate on your trip; checking your references and those of guests who are listed with us desiring to make a trip to the same destination who are willing to assume a pro-rata of the expense of such trip and effect introduction so that you may, not alone have company for your trip, but enjoy the holidays with many extra dollars to be used in making others happy with the arrival of those gift-giving days."

The Auto Travel Bureau, located 903 Broadway in Lubbock, has a long list of car owners who have already listed with them and are awaiting guests to accompany them to various points throughout the United States at the mere cost of a part of the actual expense the car owner experiences on the trip. This service has proven intensely interesting and has shown rapid growth during the past several years, providing as it does, an economical travel means, plus company on the trip. Many car owners hesitate to make a trip until one or two such guests are provided them, assuring your reporter that "company" is one of the primary reasons for availing themselves of this service.

Perhaps your first thought would be that you should not care to risk the security of your family to such a plan of travel, but Mr. Hood assures us that, while some bureaus do not exercise extreme care in the handling of women and children, his service positively eliminates every possible hazard in such cases by refusing to register unescorted ladies and children in a car without other ladies, or by sending such parties only in cars owned and driven by lady car owners.

When one considers the additional sight-seeing advantages, plus the companionship on such trips—to say nothing of the vast savings to be realized, it is easy to visualize the reason this service has come into such ready popularity throughout the Nation.

"It doesn't follow, then," Rex persisted, "that the children of such a patient would be in danger of inheriting insanity?"

"It certainly doesn't. That brain disturbance is a temporary condition," replied Dr. Crosby. "Nothing retroactive. The children of such a patient should be in no more danger of inheriting their mother's insanity than you are or I am. Such cases of insanity," he developed, warming a bit to the theme, "are matters of internal infection—of poisoned gland conditions. You wouldn't understand them. We don't understand them any too well ourselves. But we do know that particular type of insanity isn't hereditary. And the patient often makes a full recovery from it."

"Helen, may I use your telephone?"

Hale grinned apologetically. He had made himself something of a nuisance.

"Thanks most awfully." He got up also. "Now for the gaieties of life," he sighed.

Rex made his farewells, and started back to the Camp through the woods. It was almost six o'clock. Approaching a deep clump of trees through which the narrowing path ran he stopped short for a moment at the sound of voices. His feet had made no noise on the sandy soil. Through an opening he saw an impressive little picture twenty feet away. It was composed of an empty basket, a tiny new grave, a red-eyed Jane and a small, alert man, thin-faced and furtive-eyed. The man was smoothing fresh earth above the grave, whistling under his breath as he did so. His cheerful notes were in sharp contrast to the bereaved expression of Jane's face and the nature of the digger's occupation.

"Beat it now," Jane said ungraciously. "I don't want you hangin' around here."

"What's the idee?" the man asked reproachfully. "Ain't I come along jest in time to dig this here grave? Ain't I been mother's little helper? All right. Gimme a break. I got-a finish the business this funeral delayed."

Jane straightened from her tragic droop. Her manner was that of one ready and willing to go into action.

"Jim Haines," she broke out, "you ain't goin' to do no business here. How many times have I told you that?"

The man stamped the fresh earth into place about the grave, and straightened slowly. He handed Jane the shovel he had been wielding and showed her a row of discolored teeth.

"Is that so?" he asked cheerfully. "Now I'll talk. I don't leave these woods till I see one of them old dames. Get me?"

Hale had recognized the fellow. It was the unpleasant stranger he had seen in the moonlight the night of his arrival. He had been having some sort of rendezvous then with Miss Hosanna. What association could he have with the "old dames"? Hale pricked up his ears and listened shamelessly.

The man went on. "Get this, too, Baby. The dame I'm out for is the one from N' York. I do' want see the fat old dame you work for. She's a tight-wad, she is. All she give me las' time was three dollars. Three dollars! Said it was all she had!" He spat disgustedly. "The other dame's got the right idee. She coughs up a five spot."

"Jim Haines," Jane said firmly. "You know what I'm goin' to do to you? I'm goin' to put you in the hands of the police."

"Says you," Haines was still good-humored.

"I tell you I am. I ain't goin' to have you sellin' that filthy stuff here. If Mrs. Spencer Forbes wants it, let her go in town and get it like she used to. I ain't goin' to have Miss Hosanna gettin' into no trouble for her, even if Mrs. Spencer Forbes is a sick woman, like she says she is."

He yawned. "Hop it, Baby. I bet that Forbes dame is thinkin' 'bout this minute. You're keepin' her waitin'."

"I'll hop it," Jane added, incisively. "I don't care if you are my husband. I'm tellin' the police."

"Yeah? An' what's goin' to happen to our angel child when you do that, my girl? She'll like visitin' Daddy at Sing Sing, she will. She'll like leavin' that boardin' school she's in. Say—" suddenly the man, good-humored up till now, became venomous. "If I hear any more talk about the police I'll shut that trap of yours for good," he snarled. "Now be on your way."

"Wait a minute, Haines," Hale stepped from behind the trees and faced the startled couple. "Better run home, Jane," he advised. "I've a few private words for your husband's ear."

Haines was squirming, looking around him like a cornered rat.

"Shut up, Haines. I'm doing the talking. One minute, Jane. I've a question to ask you. How much dope has this man been supplying to Halcyon Camp?"

"Only a little, sir. Just a little bit for Mrs. Spencer Forbes. It wasn't nothin', really. Only I hate to have him sellin' it to anyone—"

"Listen, Big Boy, I ain't got 'nuff outa that dame to buy me a pack of cig'ettes," Haines volunteered shrilly. "I wouldn't waste no time on her—only I got other customers right near here."

"Shut up. You say Mrs. Spencer Forbes doesn't take much, Jane. How much does she take? How often does she get it? I want the truth."

"Only 'bout twice a month, Mr. Hale. Honest. And only a couple powdera then. I heard her tell Miss Hosanna she'd never be a addict. She says she knows too well what it means. She takes it as a spree—once in a while. You know, sir. The way men gets drunk."

"She's all right," Haines contributed eagerly. "She's a baby at it!"

"That's why we're not going to let her go on. Now, Haines, here's sailed him, he was not alarmed nor suspicious. Several glasses of iced tea and one long glass of ice-water, drunk in quick succession on an extremely hot day, might upset the most accommodating stomach. Nevertheless the paroxysms were horribly severe and growing more so. The world turned black. He had just time to reach for a flask of brandy on the shelf above his wash-bowl before he felt himself falling. He went down with a crash and heard that, too. . . . Then, in some black and distant world he was fumbling with a flask, trying to get the cap off it, trying to raise it to his mouth. He got a little of the brandy. It didn't help much. He lost it almost immediately, in another rending paroxysm of nausea.

His mining experiences in remote places had taught him something of first aid. By the time the dinner gong sounded he was able to summon Banks and tell him almost naturally that he was a bit under the weather and would not appear the usual house group increased by Mrs. Nash. She looked a trifle flamboyant but very charming in a flame-hued evening gown. She greeted him with a handclasp and an anxious glance.

"A touch of sun," he quoted lightly, and she nodded. "You see, I've come from cool resorts like Spain. I will like a flower under New York's tropical climate."

"The next time you will," Mrs. Nash invited in an undertone, "come over to my Camp and do it. I'll feel easier about you, if you will promise that."

He did not promise and she didn't press the point. Instead she abetted him in a program that began with old-fashioned games and ended in dancing. He directed but did not take part in these diversions. The old-fashioned games made a hit, as they had done before.

Dancing followed, but proved less popular. No one seemed to care to dance with anyone else. Admitting this, there was no reason why the dancing should continue. It did,

"You ain't goin' to do no business here."

my last word to you. If I ever see you around this camp again, or talking to any of the people in it, I'll give your name to the police and they'll give Jane the third degree and get your address. We won't have any more dope peddling in this part of Long Island. Have I made myself clear?"

"What right—" Haines broke into a whine. "Say, I'll keep off your place all right. But I tell ye I got other customers near here."

"If you like we'll walk over to the police station now, I'll show you there what right I have," Hale said cheerfully. "Want to come?"

Haines gave him a black look.

"Another thing," Hale went on. "Don't send anyone else in your place. I'll be on the watch. The next man that shows up with dope will go straight to the station house. The day after that we'll have you there, too. I needn't remind you, Haines, that the police don't like dope peddlers. They don't like them at all. Now clear out."

Haines looked at him a moment, his flat head lowered. Then he turned and disappeared among the trees. A little later Hale heard the rattle of his car starting on its return journey through the woods.

CHAPTER VI

Hale deliberately avoided the members of the house-party when he got back to the Camp. He heard their voices in the living-room as he entered the hall. They were having tea and cocktails; but he went up to his room. As he opened the door he cast an apprehensive glance around him. There were no notes or dead animals in sight.

Relieved, he crossed the room to the closet, changed his coat for a thin blazer and his shoes for slippers, and started back toward the davenport between the windows. His idea was to stretch out there, relax, and make some plans for the evening. On the way he stopped and poured out a glass of ice-water from the thermos bottle that always stood on the table at the head of his bed. It was a day that called for cold drinks and Mrs. Nash's iced tea, excellent though it had been, had not wholly quenched his thirst. He drank the water almost at a gulp, went on to the davenport and stretched himself out on it at full length. The moment of comfort he experienced as he did so was the last he enjoyed for several hours.

Almost immediately he was in the bathroom, actively and most violently ill. At first, even during the paroxysms of acute nausea that as-at the table. He sent his apologies to Miss Hosanna, and added that later in the evening he would come down.

He locked the door to discourage callers. An hour later he found an empty bottle in the bathroom, sterilized it, and took it to the carafe for filling. It was possible, of course, that in New York he had eaten something injurious; but if so it was not probable that it would have waited this long to inconvenience him. He inverted the carafe over the bottle and stared. Only a few drops came forth. The carafe, which heretofore had always held several glasses of water, today had exactly one—just enough to fill the glass that stood beside it. He had filled that glass and drunk its contents. The few drops remaining in the bottom were hardly enough, of course, for a satisfactory analysis. Nevertheless, he added them to the drops from the carafe, corked the bottle securely, and hid it in his traveling case. His mental processes were clearing. No one had meant to poison him; but someone had desired to make him desperately sick and had certainly succeeded in doing so.

A little after nine o'clock he went down to the living-room. He found however, on the tacit understanding that a change might mean something worse. When, at Mrs. Nash's suggestion, the affair became an old-fashioned "barn dance," Hale led forth Miss Hosanna and took her triumphantly through a quadrille. He was feeling more like himself, but what he really wanted was his bed.

It was Miss Hosanna who gave him his accolade that night. She had been delighted by the interest Mrs. Spencer Forbes had shown during the evening. Again and again he had observed her sitting quietly in her pet chair, watching her friend with the rapt expression she usually wore when that friend talked. It was increasingly clear that anything which pleased Mrs. Spencer Forbes enchanted Miss Hosanna. When the group parted on the upper landing Miss Hosanna looked at Hale with real emotion in her pale eyes.

"Are you sure you feel quite well again?" she asked anxiously.

"Perfectly sure, Miss Hosanna. I'm all right now."

"You have brightened us up so much," she said. She added unexpectedly, "I begin to wonder how we got along without you."

Bluegill Hooked on Artificial Fly Found as Sporty as the Black Bass

When the average fisherman thinks of game fish he usually associates the term with stream trout or black bass. The so-called pan fishes of our inland waters, bluegills, sunfishes, perch, crappies and rock bass, are essentially food fishes to him, possessing very little fighting spirit or gameness, writes Albert Stoll Jr., in the Detroit News.

Still, many have watched families fishing from docks and out of flat-bottomed rowboats and noticed that all thoroughly enjoyed hauling in wriggling perch and side-sailing bluegills. They appeared to find them sporty, especially the children, and best of all a toothsome, sweet fish for dinner.

Many of us can find sporty qualities in most any species of fish, while others must either play a large brook trout on a dry fly or hook into a record tuna or sailfish to get a thrill. But once for once a one-pound bluegill hooked on an artificial fly and light fly rod is just as sporty as a six-pound small-mouthed black bass on the end of the line. No trout fly fisherman ever experienced more excitement when he hooked into an oversized rainbow or brown than the pan fish angler when he fights a big bluegill on light tackle.

This type of fishing is becoming popular. There was a time when the bluegill fisherman used nothing but crickets, grasshoppers and worms as bait, fishing in deep water, but today he flicks a fly in the shallows as he would for bass and generally returns to shore with a fine string.

The Pony Express Stations

At first the Pony Express stations were 25 miles apart. Each rider covered three stations, or 75 miles daily. Later intermediate points were established. The route of the rider was sometimes doubled, or even tripled, owing to unforeseen circumstances. In changing horses, saddles were not changed. The stationkeeper was required to have a pony ready, bridled and saddled, one-half hour before the express was due. Only two minutes was allowed for the change. But the ponies of the western express were finally defeated by the machine age.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Some of the Functions of Vitamin B₁—Reports Recent Discoveries of Its Relation to the Gastro-Intestinal Tract

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

PERHAPS no more dramatic chapter has ever been written in the history of nutritional science than the discovery of the chemical structure of the vitamin now known as B₁ and its artificial synthesis.

Inasmuch as a deficiency of this vitamin may have extremely far-reaching effects upon human health and happiness, it is important that every homemaker should learn something of its functions, its characteristics and its sources.

The Anti-Neuritic Substance

Vitamin B₁ is known to prevent and to cure a nerve disease called beriberi.

The disease was known in Ancient times in the Orient. It occurred in other countries during the Nineteenth century. And even in the Twentieth century, some of the British troops stationed in Mesopotamia and the Dardanelles during the World war came down with the disease.

Even before this vitamin was identified, a European investigator was seeking to determine why a small portion of milk added to a diet containing protein, fats, carbohydrates and minerals successfully nourished individuals who did not enjoy good health when the milk was omitted.

Chemical Identification

Many investigators sought for years to fathom the secret of this mysterious substance.

After long research by many distinguished investigators, two Americans reached a milestone in the history of nutritional science when they discovered the chemical structure of vitamin B₁ and learned how to synthesize it.

A Regulator of Body Processes

In the course of their work with vitamin B₁, nutritional scientists have discovered many other important functions of this vitamin.

It has been determined that this substance is essential to growth and that it is also necessary to promote normal appetite. Laboratory experiments with animals revealed that when fed upon a diet lacking vitamin B₁, the animals lost their desire for food and refused to eat until the vitamin was restored to their diet.

There is also some evidence that vitamin B₁ is necessary for the maintenance of normal muscular tone of the large intestine.

Aids Gastro-Intestinal Tract

Chemical studies on 75 patients led one investigator to conclude that a continual slight shortage of vitamin B₁ leads to definite changes in the motor and secretory mechanism of the gastro-intestinal tract.

There is also evidence that the vitamin B₁ requirement increases with the rate of growth and with increased energy expenditure.

For this reason, active working men and women should be amply supplied with this vitamin, and growing children should also have generous quantities.

Further investigations are now in progress and it is quite possible that many significant new facts will be unearthed in the near future.

In the meantime, there is enough evidence to warrant the belief that the absence of vitamin B₁ results in cellular alteration in the nervous system, intestine, pancreas, stomach, salivary glands, liver and other tissues.

The whole power of the body to resist infection appears to be decreased. This is especially true in the gastro-intestinal tract, probably owing to the action of the bacteria on its passage through the impaired alimentary tract.

Some Peculiarities of This Vitamin

Vitamin B₁ is soluble in water. For this reason, a large percentage of it may be lost if the water in which a food is soaked or cooked is discarded. Other ways in which this precious vitamin is lost are through refining cereals too highly, or when the natural acidity of a food is lowered by the addition of an alkali.

Preventing Vitamin B₁ Deficiency

It has been suggested that the health department of every village, town and city should not be content with protecting the local community against infectious diseases, but should be equally militant in endeavoring to safeguard its people against the dietary deficiency diseases which have been discovered through the recent advances in nutritional knowledge.

That is because many people who can easily afford the foods that furnish vitamin B₁, are consuming a diet deficient in this respect. This unfortunate situation may arise because they believe that their customary diet is adequate. Or, they conclude that appetite is a reliable guide to the meals that should be consumed.

Sources of Vitamin B₁

Investigation has established that foods yielding a good amount of vitamin B₁ include bran, milk, eggs, bananas, orange juice, carrots, spinach and cabbage.

One of America's outstanding nutritional scientists has stated that foods can be made to provide the necessary daily requirement of vitamin B₁, if half of the needed calories are taken in the form of fruits, vegetables, milk and eggs, and if at least half of the breads and cereals consumed are taken in the whole grain form. This suggests the advisability of adding some bran to muffins, waffles, and other quick breads when they are intended for the dietary of normal individuals. The same procedure can likewise be followed in serving hot or cold cereals.

Another distinguished authority holds that adequate amounts of vitamin B₁ can be furnished at a low cost if the homemaker will utilize larger quantities of the whole grain cereals and legumes. If the calories supplied by these foods are not desired—as when one is endeavoring to avoid gaining weight—vitamin B₁ may be obtained from suitable quantities of bran and the germ of the grain.

Foods That Help Promote Regularity

In addition to providing vitamin B₁, which helps to serve as a sort of intestinal tonic, bran and many fruits and vegetables help to add cellulose or bulk to the diet. Their fibrous framework is a great aid in promoting regular health habits.

Some foods are richer than others in cellulose or bulk. Good sources of this substance being notably bran, whole grain cereals, most raw fruits; dried fruits, such as prunes, figs and raisins; raw vegetables; such cooked vegetables as onions and leafy greens; and legumes, that is, dried beans and peas.

These foods, therefore, have a definite place in the diet of normal individuals. The homemaker should see to it that they are included regularly in her daily menus.

If that task is performed faithfully, it should help to develop a healthier and more vigorous race.

DAUGHTERS OF PIONEER CLUB HAVE GUEST PROGRAM

Monday evening at the Club House the Daughters of the Pioneer Study Club entertained their mothers, and members of the Senior and Junior Civic and Culture Clubs with a seated tea. About 70 guests were greeted by the president, Mrs. V. Johnson, Jr., and directed to the Autumn decorated table where they were served with delicious spiced tea, sandwiches, cakes and mints. Miss Joan Drewry and Mrs. Herschel Crawford poured. All club members assisted in serving.

Miss Myrtle Teague gave piano selections after which a clever play "Our Dear, Dear Children," a comedy was presented by Docia Nichols, representing Mrs. Jim Elliott; Juanita Self representing Juanita Elliott; Mary Watkins representing Mrs. H. G. Sanders, Sr.; Margaret Hannah representing Mrs. C. L. Suits; Lucile Marriott representing Mrs. R. M. Champion; Myrtle Teague representing Mrs. Joe Webb; Nadiene Smith representing an Italian lady.

The play was received with enthusiasm and understanding by all mothers present.

This club has done outstanding work the past year besides the regular Study Course they have had benefit flower shows, food sales, etc. which has enabled them to buy scales for West Ward School for weighing the children "to encourage health standards." The major project was fitting out the club house reception hall with lovely drapes on artistic poles at the cost of about $45.00. However for this they received donations from the following clubs: The Senior and Junior Civic and Culture Study Club, Blue Bonnet, City Line, Art and Wednesday Study Clubs and West Ward P. T. A. Sherrod Bros. & Carter furnished a man to help hang the curtains for which they were indeed grateful.

The good work of this up and coming new club has only begun. They have plans for other things and very soon will have a bridge benefit to finance them.
