

A WEEK AT A TIME

By M. M. FANKIN

BUSMAN'S HOLIDAY

It is popularly supposed that a busman goes for a ride on his holiday. Naturally then an editor would go on his vacation with a lot of other editors. That is really the way it happened that we have been out of the city from last Thursday until Tuesday night.

We had an invitation to attend the West Texas Press Association at Pecos. We went. It was printed in the program that we'd hardly need our pocketbooks while there. We didn't. It was advertised that there would be a short business meeting and a long vacation. It was so. A barbecue was announced at Barney Hubbs' (Pecos Enthusiast Editor) Country Club home, featuring Pecos cantaloupes. It was all that.

PECOS CANTALOUPE

Those Pecos Cantaloupes are a feature for any meal. And a funny thing about them is that the growers really don't want any rain on the juicy melons. They can prove that rationing out water to the cantaloupes in the exact dosage makes the fruit sweet and of a rare flavor that can not be obtained when the water supply is not controlled. And we learned about cantaloupes in general and Pecos cantaloupes in particular. Since they were all free, no charge is made for this space.

After the business meeting and business eating, referred to above, we caught a few winks of sleep and then took off for Carlsbad where the New Mexico Press Association was in meeting. We had a joint meeting with that group of live and enthusiastic printers, then adjourned to Carlsbad Caverns.

CARLSBAD CAVERNS

We had visited the Caverns 12 years ago, when there were seven hundred and some odd steps, just a few lights, no elevator, and a hundred per cent no chance to get any food down in there. We were prepared for changes in the artificial arrangements, and pleased to find they had been made without impairing in any way the natural beauty of that wonder of the world. And so we descended the inclines that have been made gentler, and the stairs that have been reduced to one third their former number with much anticipation to see sights that were in places familiar, but with a newness that must be everlasting in this, one of Nature's masterpieces.

Through caverns of incredible beauty, brilliant under the lighting system, the party wandered. Stalagmites and stalactites in all stages of completion and development adorned the various chambers. Slanting growths from ceilings hundreds of feet in height made crosshatched shadows of weird designs. Figures stood in sizes from the tiniest crystal made yesterday to the giant domes that have been built only through hundreds of millions of years of incessant dripping of water.

Colors through all the shades of green and blue in water and stone delighted the eye. Red showed in places where iron had been dissolved by the water and carried thru to make added beauty for the rocks.

ALL OF FAIRYLAND

All the shapes of fairyland and story are to be found in these fantastic shapings of nature. Elves and fairies, lambs and seals and elephants can be seen in the shaped stone formations that had no designer but the varieties of dropping water through the dark centuries of countless years.

A geologist could make an organized description of these wonders. An artist might catch the vision and make a picture of a single view or of a dozen or a hundred views, but no adequate reproduction can be brought out of the (continued to page 4)

Texas Hospitals Present Plan To Help Employees

Dallas—More than 300 Texas hospitals have joined with the Texas Hospital Association in launching Group Hospital Service, Inc., a non-profit organization, formed to give hospitalization to the masses upon a new low-cost basis. Bryce L. Twitty, for ten years superintendent of Baylor Hospital, Dallas, has been loaned to the new organization during its formative period as administrator. Twitty, with Dr. J. H. Groseclose, Methodist Hospital, Dallas, as president; Dr. L. N. Markham, Longview, vice president; and Mrs. Josie Roberts, Houston, secretary-treasurer, compose the official staff.

The new service comes in answer to legislation passed by the last Texas Legislature. Offices will be opened in most towns and cities of the state.

Oil Shutdown Is Of Interest

Monopolies Object Of 15-Day Shutdown

The oil shutdown in Texas is getting a great deal of attention as any movement involving so many workers and so many million dollars worth of property naturally would. Passing through the Odesa field Tuesday, only one pump was seen operating. The explanation was that special permits were probably allowed to wells that were in danger of filling with salt water.

The reactions toward the drastic ruling of the Texas Railroad Commission have been extremely varied. The people in the oil fields are divided as to be expected. A filling station owner is distressed, stating that people who must make a living from day to day can hardly expect to make that living when work is denied for most of his customers. The owners of the wells, especially the independent owners feel in general that the shutdown is no great hardship, since the cut in crude prices had put the income derived from production below the cost of production.

On the South Plains, where few people know anything about the oil business except the retail price of gasoline, there is much confusion. The general idea is that gasoline prices will soon be higher, but the ultimate benefits to local people is hard to see.

State authorities and others who take a broad view of the situation feel that this natural resource of Texas should be protected. Other states are considering joining the movement to force the huge oil corporations to pay a fair price for the crude production.

In Texas official circles, there is talk that sounds like the "Trust Busting" talk of Theodore Roosevelt, and talk of driving Standard Oil from Texas gains favor, as small producers and consumers both see suffering from the alleged tyranny of the great corporation. As the movement progresses, the interest of the public will be more active, especially as the interests of the public are more definitely affected. Some talk is heard of even a thirty-day shutdown, but there is a question of who can

Health Dept. Warns; No Epidemic Here

The bugbear of infantile paralysis is again in the country and upon our community. As a consequence many people are seized with panic and are impelled to fly to mother or to some other section of the country with their children hoping thereby to escape this disease. Our best advice is, "Don't run". There may be a case next door to mother's house or a little cousin there may be coming down with it and give it to your child. The infection in that other town may be harder-boiled than the one here.

Children should be kept out of crowded places and from contact with other children and even unnecessary contact with adults. Careful supervision should be given their daily hygiene and health habits. They should not play or work too hard since fatigue seems to be a predisposing factor. They should not over eat, nor should they be over-exposed to the sun or other elements. Swimming should be discouraged on account of fatigue and chilling and the contact with other people. Any tendency to nasal congestion or stopping should be treated immediately and the nasal passages kept open. The onset is insidious in many cases so that any indisposition of a child should receive the attention of a physician. Bed rest is important in any illness however slight.

When you have taken these precautions you have done all that can be done in the way of protection. You may have read that there is a spray for the nasal passages that will protect. This procedure has been found to have destroyed the sense of smell permanently in many cases; also there is a great deal of doubt as to its efficacy in the prevention of infantile paralysis, therefore it has been discarded in practically all medical circles—even by the man who originally advocated its use.

Remember that at least WE DO NOT HAVE AN EPIDEMIC. There have been only three cases, which had no contact between families. There are occasional cases every year during this season and these local cases come under that head as yet. Your precautions should extend through the remainder of August and September since these months usually see the largest number of cases of this disease. The Health Department has asked that band practice be temporarily discontinued. This is merely a measure to protect those children against a possible case among their members.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT CITY OF SLATON

Band Rehearsals Are Suspended

Acting upon advices from the City Health Department, Director Jim Nevins announces that band rehearsals will be suspended until further notice. Several cases of infantile paralysis in the community have made this action seem advisable to medical authorities. Notice will be given when the rehearsals will be resumed.

Burton Wins Ice Melting Contest

Jess Burton, Slaton Bakery employee admitted he was off on his guessing this summer and laid the aberration to the extreme heat. He misguessed the time required for the melting out of O. Z. Ball's Wolverine Shoe in the three hundred pound block of ice by a full six minutes and forty-nine seconds. However, his guess being the closest to the twenty hours, fifteen minutes and fifteen seconds it took the block to melt, he was awarded the brand new pair of Wolverines that were the prize.

J. B. Ward left Friday for Hilton, where he will visit his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Slaughter. Stand the pressure better, the companies the order was made to punish, or the general public.

MORE RAIN BRINGS AUGUST TOTAL ABOVE TWO INCHES

General Fall To Benefit All Crops Little Cultivation Will Be Required

Rain that slighted only rare spots over the South Plains last week brought cheer to farmers and business men. One and one-fourth inches in Slaton and vicinity last Saturday added to almost an inch a week ago brings the August total to the respectable total of more than two inches.

Most crops are still growing though scattered cotton fields were suffering severely. Feed crops had been revived by last week's rains and now have sufficient moisture to carry them to maturity. Some few feed crops had matured and will get no value from this rain. Cotton will take on renewed growth, and where even the poorest had showed weak prospects, there is time for a late crop to put on and mature. Though an early crop is always to be desired, the peculiar nature of the Lubbock county land nearly always makes most of the cotton late. A late cotton crop is no novelty here and not always a hardship.

Cultivation of crops will hardly be required in most instances. Feed is making such growth that weeds will have little chance, and many good farmers will be pleased to be assured of a fair coverage of growth in the cotton land to prevent wind erosion this winter.

The South Plains has assurance again of being a fair green land in September when other parts of Texas have begun to take on an autumn brownness and a midharvest air.

Pierce Brooks Is Council President

Austin—The Texas Safety Council, a state wide non-profit organization, engaged in promoting safety in Texas, today elected Pierce Brooks of Dallas, former Director, as President. The organization was formed in 1933 by leading Texans, and since that time has been a powerful factor in the education of Texas people on safety matters.

Pierce Brooks

and in the reduction of the annual accident death rate. Geo. A. Davison, Jr., of Eastland was elected Vice-President; M. E. Gregory of Dallas, Secretary. Headquarters of the organization are in Austin.

"The last reporting month in Texas showed an increase in traffic deaths for the first time in 18 months," Brooks said. He again urged the people to observe these rules:

If you are drunk, don't drive. Read, Believe and Observe road signs.

Don't pass cars on inclines or curves.

Remember the human element is the most important in driving an auto.

Keep your car under control at all times.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Stone of Elida, New Mexico, spent the weekend visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stone, and Mr. and Mrs. Will.

Mrs. DAYTON ECKERT

Mrs. Dayton Eckert Resigns As Home Economics Teacher

Mrs. Dayton Eckert, who for the past several years, has been the H. E. teacher in Slaton High school, handed in her resignation which will become effective for this 1939-40 school year. Mrs. Eckert, a graduate of Texas Tech, has spent the last five years teaching, one year in Throckmorton and four years in Slaton.

She spent two years in Mary Hardin Baylor at Belton, and two years in Tech, graduating in 1934. She belonged to the Double Key H. E. Honorary Society Club, which is now a national society.

In June, 1937 she married Dayton Eckert, and the first F.H.A. home was built in Slaton, the first new home in ten years, located at 615 West Garza.

She has been working in this community with the H. E. girls and has many friends all through Lubbock County. This summer, the State Department selected Lubbock County, and the only county in Texas, to try out the 12 month H. E. project, a project which has been very successful.

Last Tuesday afternoon, the last day of the 12 months plan, completed the year, and friends from Slaton and surrounding communities attended the program which was held from four until five in the afternoon.

She has worked with the Tech H. E. Department and Slaton is very sorry to hear of this resignation, but we are very happy to have had Mrs. Eckert as a teacher, and happy that her continued residence here will make her available for worthy community service in the future.

Hokus Pokus Gro. Has Remodeled

The Hokus Pokus Grocery at the corner of Garza and Ninth St. appeared recently with a new face due to a paint job that freshened to main street elevation.

Within, the improvement has been carried even further than a mere painting. The fixtures have been re-arranged as well as painted. The stock has been shifted for better display and more convenience for shoppers. The vegetable rack, though moved, still has the heap of fresh vegetables kept fresh and cool. The air-conditioning plant makes a feeling of freshness and coolness to invite the customers to shop at leisure in market and store.

Robert Scott, manager of the store, believing the patrons of Slaton should have opportunity to do some arm chair shopping for groceries, now carries a list of grocery specials in the advertising columns of the Slatonite. You are invited to read them and visit the store.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Gunter and daughter, Martha Ann, accompanied by Miss Mina Louise Garland left Wednesday for Gunter where they will visit friends and relatives.

School Opening Is Organized Registration Plans Are Announced

All Slaton High school students will register during two days, Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, according to Joe E. Webb, superintendent, in a statement this week. Freshmen and sophomores will register the first day, juniors and seniors the second, while all elementary students will register September 4, on which day classes will begin for all students.

Superintendent Webb and Roy Boyd, high school principal, will be in their offices the week of August 27-31, and they urge that all students who have problems relative to the coming year of work come in to counsel with them sometime during the week. Webb said students who can not register either of the two days designated will be able to do so after 4:15 p. m. September 4.

A general faculty meeting will be held Saturday, September 2, at 10 a. m. at the high school building. With more than 1,200 scholastics, according to the last census taken, better than 1,000 students are expected to register in the system. With a large number of these being expected in the high school, the 300 lockers are being repaired and locks put on them.

Superintendent Webb explained that to date he knew of only two changes to be made in the faculty. Mrs. Dayton Eckert, homemaking department head, is resigning, as did Mrs. Georgia Taylor, Mrs. Taylor's place in the language arts department of the junior high school will be filled by Miss Lilac Yates of Slaton, a graduate of Texas Tech.

Fire Rates Cut At Long Last Ins. Commission Acts For People

A cut of more than $2,500,000 a year in fire insurance premiums was announced Monday by Texas Fire Insurance Commissioner Marvin Hall.

The reduction, an overall slash of more than 10 per cent, applies to premiums on residences, on certain stores and stocks of merchandise, and on many types of industrial buildings and plants.

It brought to more than $6,000,000 a year, reductions in fire insurance premiums put into effect within the last three years. This was the fourth successive reduction and supplemented an increase in the good fire record savings afforded cities and towns of low fire loss records.

Altogether, fire insurance costs have been cut approximately 40 per cent below those of 1936, Mr. Hall reported.

"This is the fourth successive reduction in less than four years," Commissioner Hall said, in announcing the order based on hearings held four months ago. "When these reductions are considered with the increased good fire record credits which the commission has promulgated during my incumbency, it means they will bring a saving of approximately 40 per cent over 1936 to Texas insurance policyholders."

The successive reductions, and increase of the good fire credit from 15 to 25 per cent, have been in part made possible by the fire prevention campaign which the fire insurance department began when he took office, Mr. Hall pointed out. This program has been that of cooperation with fire marshals and fire chiefs, the introduction and extension of fire-prevention study in the schools, vigorous investigation of suspicious fires, the prosecution and conviction of "fire-bugs." A wave of high fire losses starting in the depression was checked and the tendency swung back to a marked decline in Texas fire loss records, Commissioner Hall showed.

Doris Culver visited the O'Donnell Rodeo and reported a very nice time.

ELMER B. JOHNSON Succeeds Burton

M. C. Burton Made Gen'l Freight Agent

The promotion of M. C. Burton, general freight and passenger agent of the Panhandle and Santa Fe Railway, to general freight agent of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway, with headquarters in Galveston, was announced today by Paul P. Hastings, vice president in charge of traffic of the Santa Fe System Lines. Elmer B. Johnson, assistant general freight agent for the Coast Lines in Northern California, was appointed to succeed Burton. Both changes are effective September 1.

Burton has been actively identified with railway traffic and development in the Southwest for more than thirty years. In 1936 he was appointed general freight and passenger agent of the Panhandle and Santa Fe, succeeding Tom B. Gallaher, now passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fe System Lines at Chicago.

He served three years as secretary-treasurer of the American Railway Development Association and one year as president.

He has devoted considerable time and effort in the development of civic affairs in the Southwest.

He came to the P&SF territory from Topeka, Kansas, in 1936 where he had served as general industrial agent since 1922. He was born in Cloud County, Kansas, and entered Santa Fe service in 1901, subsequently serving as traveling freight agent, general agent and division freight agent.

At Galveston Burton succeeds J. S. Hershey, retiring voluntarily after approximately a half century of service.

His successor at Amarillo, Johnson, was born in Oakland, Calif., and entered service of the Santa Fe at San Francisco in 1910. His service with the Company has been principally in Northern California where he held various clerical positions in the freight traffic department. In 1927 he was appointed general agent at Sacramento and in 1929 he was promoted to the position of industrial agent with headquarters at San Francisco. He was advanced to the position of assistant general freight agent in 1936, with headquarters in San Francisco, and continued in that position until the present promotion.

Mrs. W. P. Florence Elected Secretary-Treasurer Of Reunion

The annual Lubbock County Old Settlers reunion was held in McKenzie Park at Lubbock Tuesday, August 15, with one hundred and fifty persons present, ranging from Judge W. D. Crump, 95 years old, to babies sleeping in the grass.

Mrs. W. P. Florence, prominent club and civic worker of Slaton was elected secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Florence is one of the most widely known pioneer women of the plains. She came here some 40 years ago, and served many years as teacher in the public schools in this area.

She has reared a large family of children, all seven of whom are graduates of Slaton High school. Her interests in the pioneers of this section, and her faithful attendance at their gatherings were worthily recognized by her election to the position of honor as secretary of the organization.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Florence reported a very enjoyable day.

BEVERAGE ALCOHOL AND THE COMMUNITY

LESSON TEXT—Joel 1:5-7; Daniel 5:1-5, 17, 23-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink.—Habakkuk 2:15.

"None of us liveth to himself" (Rom. 14:7).
What concerns the individual concerns the community, for the community is made up of individuals. The man who uses alcohol has no right to claim that it is a personal matter, for alcohol is a poisonous drug which not only injures the individual, but makes him a danger and a liability to his community. Before going into our lesson let us look at only a few of the many facts available.

In the five years since repeal, it is estimated that $30,000,000,000 has been spent for intoxicants with a profit to the industry of $13,250,000,000. But what has it cost the people?

"In 1937, an entire city the size of Detroit was maimed and injured, and an entire city the size of Omaha was permanently injured, by the automobile. Sixty per cent of auto fatalities are due to alcohol" (Chief Justice of Municipal Court, Evans-ton, Ill.).

"Rape has increased 13 per cent and the more atrocious forms 40 per cent in the last eight months" (Police Commissioner, Boston, Mass.).

"Criminals are for the return of liquor, wet propaganda to the contrary notwithstanding, and with the coming of repeal will come the greatest era of wholesale crime this country has ever known. The criminal world is tensely expectant and is prepared to launch immediately into its millennium of crime. The return of the saloon inevitably will bring open prostitution and gambling" (Statement by a criminal in prison before repeal became effective).

"America is on the worst gambling spree in its history. A gross population, not including all rural districts, of 80,000,000 persons is dallying with $6,000,000,000 in winnings and losses, of which all but about $1,000,000,000 passes through the hands of the underworld, where much of it remains" (Courtney R. Cooper).

The American Business Men's foundation, Chicago, reports that liquor was responsible for the rejection of more than 93,000 applications for insurance last year, and that as a result widows and orphans will ultimately be deprived of over $200,000,000 of insurance, making some of them public charges.

Three words which are altogether appropriate for the liquor problem will serve to summarize our lesson.
I. Devastation (Joel 1:5-7).
Drunkards are called on to awake from their stupor and weep and the drinkers of wine (not that!) to wall over the loss of their drink because of the devastation wrought by the locusts. This plague had come because of the sins of the people, and may well serve to exemplify the devastation which will follow the use of alcohol as a beverage. The nations of our day need not think that they will escape if they continue on their present road of reckless indulgence.

II. Debauchery (Dan. 5:1-4).
The familiar story of Belshazzar's feast should be made to live again as we point out that we here "have vividly manifested three of the great characteristics of the day in which we live—a coming together of great multitudes for a riotous night of drinking, which must of course end for many in disgusting drunkenness; provision for acts of darkest sensuality in the fact that all the wives and concubines were invited to this feast . . . and a contemptuous, deliberate insulting of the name of God" (Dr. Wilbur M. Smith).

III. Death (vv. 5, 17, 25-28).
Dramatically swift was God's judgment upon Belshazzar's presumptuous sin. Magnificently bold and direct was the condemnation by Daniel, the prophet of God. Relentless was the immediate judgment of physical death (see v. 30), and equally sure is the ultimate judgment when the drunken king stands before his Maker to answer for the deeds done in the flesh.
The fact that God does not write in our day in flaming letters on the saloon wall before the bleary eyes of the drinker does not mean that His judgment is any less certain, nor does it make it less dreadful.

Cost of Happiness
God has ordained that happiness, like every other good thing, should cost us something; He has willed that it should be a moral achievement, and not an accident.—Dr. Gasparin.

Walk in the Light
Walk in the light and thou shalt see thy path, though thorny, bright; for God, by grace, shall dwell in thee, and God himself is light.—Barton.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to cure it afterward—you can avoid having it!

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All- Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek Sold by every grocer.

Men and Causes

Men are not always as good as the causes they lead.—Glenn Frank.

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, who test the value of Doan's, get up aches, swellings, painness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and drastic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty, frequent urination may be warning of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

ONE-PIECE MEALS WITH MACARONI (See Recipe Below)

One-Piece Meals

Lucky is the homemaker who has in her recipe file a series of suggestions for "one-piece meals."

After a long, lazy afternoon at the beach, or perhaps a busy day with sugar 'nd spice, and the preserving kettle, the meal that can be prepared and served all in one course is a life-saver.

And what food can you find that lends itself as aptly to this type of meal as macaroni and its closest of kin? These foods, including spaghetti and noodles, as well as macaroni, are high in food energy and contain some building foods as well. Yet they're light and appetizing—the kind of food that's needed to meet the requirements of summer. Served with a green salad or a fruit dessert, any of these "one-piece" macaroni dishes make highly satisfactory meals.

Macaroni Creole Leaf. (Serves 4-5) 2 cups cooked macaroni 1 cup soft bread crumbs 2 eggs 1/2 teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons green pepper (chopped) 3/4 cup cheese (grated) 1 1/4 cups tomatoes 1/4 cup melted butter 1 1/2 tablespoons prepared mustard Dash celery salt, onion salt, and white pepper

Mix all ingredients in order listed. Pour into a greased baking casserole. Bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees). Unmold carefully and serve. Spaghetti Ring With Asparagus and Eggs. (Serves 6) 1 8-ounce package spaghetti 1 cup cooked ham (ground) 1/2 clove garlic (chopped) 2 tablespoons pimiento (chopped) 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon pepper 2 eggs (beaten) 3/4 cup coffee cream

Filling. 2 tablespoons butter 2 tablespoons flour 1 1/2 cups milk 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon pepper 1 cup cooked asparagus (cut) 2 hard cooked eggs (sliced) Break spaghetti and cook until tender in 2 quarts boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain and add to it the ground ham, garlic, pimiento, salt, pepper, eggs and cream. Pour into buttered ring mold, place in shallow pan of hot water, and bake at moderate temperature (350 degrees) for about one hour.

To make the filling, melt the butter in a saucepan and add flour. Blend thoroughly and then add milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Add seasonings and lightly stir in the asparagus. Fill center of spaghetti mold with the creamed asparagus and garnish with slices of hard cooked eggs. Baked Macaroni—Creole Style. (Serves 4-5) 1/2 package elbow macaroni 2 tablespoons onion (minced) 2 tablespoons butter 1 green pepper (minced) 1 No. 2 can tomatoes 1 tablespoon sugar 1 teaspoon salt 1/2 pound country style sausage 1/4 cup soft bread crumbs (buttered)

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain. Brown the onion in the butter; add green pepper and tomatoes. Add sugar and salt, and cook until the green pepper is tender. Make the sausage into small flat cakes. In a buttered casserole, place a layer of macaroni, then a layer of sausage, and another layer of macaroni. Pour the tomato mixture over this. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 45 minutes. Macaroni Supreme. Cook 1/4 pound macaroni (broken in 3-inch lengths) in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Cut 2 thin slices smoked ham in two crosswise. Arrange strips of macaroni on ham. Put 1/4 teaspoon horseradish on each portion and sprinkle with 1/2 cup grated cheese. Roll and tie in position. Place close together in shallow baking dish. Cover with 1/2 cup milk and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 25 minutes. Uncover and continue baking until ham is lightly browned. Serves 4.

Scow. (Serves 6) 1/2 pound bacon (sliced) 2 onions (medium size) 1 pound round steak (ground) 1 No. 2 can tomatoes 1 8-ounce package spaghetti 1 No. 2 can whole kernel corn 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon pepper Cut bacon into small pieces and cook until crisp in a large skillet. Remove bacon bits, brown the sliced onion in the hot fat, and finally take out the onion slices and use the remaining fat for browning the ground meat, breaking it into small bits as it cooks. Then pour in the tomatoes, and allow the mixture to simmer until it is fairly thick. Next add the spaghetti, which has been broken into 2-inch lengths and cooked until tender in boiling salted water. Then add the can of corn, the browned onions, and crisp bacon bits, and the seasoning. Allow this mixture to simmer slowly for another half hour, covered.

Hasty Noodlefest. Cook half a pound of noodles in salted water and drain. While they are cooking, heat a can of cream of mushroom soup, adding a cup of milk to it if it is the condensed kind. Add also a tablespoon of chopped onion, 1/2 teaspoon salt and two hard-cooked eggs, sliced. Add the drained noodles, mix well and put into a buttered casserole. Cover the top with buttered crumbs and bake 35 minutes in a moderate-ly hot oven (375 degrees).

Smart Wool With Gold Accent Is Early Fall Style Formula

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF THERE is one theme more than another about which fashion interest centers this fall, that theme is the outstanding importance of fine, choice fabric. In assembling the autumn wardrobe the thought to keep uppermost in mind is that for the most part the style structure for the coming months is being built around the idea of handsome material made up with a studied simplicity that achieves classic lines which lead to well-balanced silhouettes bespeaking a new dignity in the mode.

The new wool weaves are adding a particularly exciting chapter to the current story of fabric elegance. In laying the foundation for the early fall wardrobe the idea of handily some wool styled to a nicely with emphasis on dramatic simplicity, is making widespread appeal.

What to offset the amazing simplicity of the dress or suit of swank wool? The answer is gold jewelry accents. Which is one of the startling items of news in the new season's trends. There is a "gold rush" on in fashion's realm. Black with gold is especially a message that is being flashed throughout the style centers of the world.

Black wool jersey, a particularly smart indication for early fall, is used for the fashion-right semi-tailored dress centered to right above in the illustration. Note, with the bracelet-length sleeves the unusually wide gold bracelet. This matter of the wider bracelet is in accordance with fashion's latest decree.

To further dramatize this modish daytime frock of black wool jersey there are gold clips that highlight the lapel. Flattering too, are the circle earrings. To the lower right in the picture, a princess model of billiard green flannel, beautifully fitted at the waist, breaks into pleats below the hips. The high round neck practically demands a necklace and a suitable one as here shown is of gold links with gold knobs. The wide link gold bracelet looks well with the necklace and a cunning gold clip climaxes this jewelry ensemble. The plaid hat crowns the entire with glory.

Gold jewelry as a smart accent to colorful tweeds has also become a hobby with fashion. To the left in the picture see a deep bright green tweed suit with a new collar treatment and stitched detail down the front of the jacket. The skirt is widely gored. Take particular notice of the gold and green tourmaline daisy pin with a diamond center worn on the jacket. The bracelets are of the new large gold link type. Gold stitched suede describes the hat.

A few notes in general in regard to the new wool weaves follow. The trend to smoother versions of the velvety duvety order is apparent. There are also many ribbed wooleens. While black wooleens are having a widespread initial call, there is also a big movement going on among richly colorful tweeds and other wool weaves gorgeously toned in new shades of blue green and flower reds with rust tones greatly in favor for sports and travel wear. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Gored Skirt

It's going to be a banner season for sweaters. From the practical angle the skirt-and-sweater idea has no peer. Essential to the joy of a junior or teen-age is the skirt that is muchly gored as is the one worn by the little girl in the picture. There is something very fashion-wise about this model. Seem seam detail alternates with pressed crease to create added interest in the styling of this skirt which is fashioned of naphthalated wool gabardine. The soft angora sweater assembled with it may be in contrasting shade or matching shade of the skirt. Either way you will be right in style.

Season of Luxury In Fabrics Seen

All signs point to a season of luxury especially in matter of fabric elegance. The tendency is toward dignified trends rather than the much-exploited "little girl" fashions that have been centering the stage during past months. Suits of stiff faille, rich brocades for evening wear, imposing jewelry accents emphasizing wide bracelets, necklaces that have a broad collarlike spread and massive gold effects in belts, and in clips all indicate return to elegance.

The play being made on fur borderings that is being lavished on coat, suit and frock, the revival of old-fashioned passementerie, the elaborate hand-embroidery and countless such trends are reminiscent of the Victorian age of pomp and glory. The fact of sleek fitted dresses with in many instances the long sleeve, the quaint back-fullness treatments that modernize bustle effects, fitted basques, laced-in corsets all portend the trend to greater dignity in fashions.

Hats Show Wealth Of Ostrich Trims

A definite revival of ostrich is announced for this fall and winter. Many of the new hats show a wealth of ostrich trims. Evening wraps are trimmed with ostrich, little boleros are all of ostrich, and there are bags, and fans, and fanciful muffs to match.

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

AN IMPORTANT speaker was scheduled, and the club rooms were looking rather shabby. The decorating committee reported that formal draperies would lend an air of distinction. The funds could only pay for the material. Sewing machines hummed and here is a sketch of the miracle that was wrought. Here also are the dimensions that were used for making patterns for the graceful valance sections which were fastened over rods with snaps. For the looped section, cut paper 18 inches deep and half as wide as the window measured over the frame. From the upper right corner to point A is half of the window width less two inches. Point B is 6 inches below the upper left corner. Draw a diagonal line from A to B, and a curve from B to the lower right corner. Place the edge marked C on a fold of the goods. The diagonal ends are pleated and stitched into a band as at D.

For the end pieces, cut paper 15 inches wide and 24 inches deep. E is 3 inches below the upper left corner. F is 9 inches in from the upper right corner. G is 6 inches down from the upper right corner. Finish the top as at H. The offer of the two 25-cent sewing books containing 96 HOW TO SEW articles that have not appeared in the paper will be withdrawn soon. At present you can get both books for the price of one; but don't delay; send 25 cents with name and address to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill., and both books will be sent by return mail, postpaid.

QUICK QUOTES

SENSE OF HUMOR "THERE is no danger of a dictatorship in this country so long as Americans retain their sense of humor. "Humor is a symbol of liberty and freedom in a country where we can see the ridiculous side of politics. When there is a repression of laughter and witicism about political personages such as now exists in Europe, the loss of other liberties is on the way"—Dr. George E. Vincent, former president, Rockefeller Foundation.

earth, and no one can ever see all the varied glory and majesty of the Caverns in however many visits he might make.

ROCK OF AGES

The most impressive part of the tour made is the ceremony at the foot of the "Rock of Ages." Here the party was halted by Colonel Boles and caused to be seated in the amphitheatre that has been arranged there. In a brief talk, the Colonel compared the age of the giant redwoods of California with that of the giant dome that stood in silent grandeur almost in its present size when the redwoods were seedlings. Then he ordered all lights out, and the party sat in silence in the impenetrable darkness of that place shut from the day by seven hundred feet of solid rock. Then from the darkness softly came rich voices in song.

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
"Let me hide myself in Thee."
Far in the remote recess of the darkness bloomed a tiny island of light. Its source was not seen, and straining eyes could not tell where it ended. The song swelled, and lights marched toward the party and the Rock until all the length of the vast room four thousand feet long was revealed to a party involuntarily subdued by the majesty of the occasion. Subdued, yet excited the party filed out to the elevator to be lifted out that seven hundred feet in a single mighty leap to the sunshine of the afternoon.

TO COLONEL BOLES

To the Department of the Interior and to Colonel Boles whose guests we were, grateful acknowledgment is made for the entertainment. Also to Mr. Lecky, dining room manager, our thanks are due for a lunch served all our party with the compliments of the manager.

Colonel Boles also asks for announcement that school children will be admitted free when accompanied by a teacher who pays one guide fee. This free service to America's school children is one that thousands of schools profit from each season and the popularity of the Caverns grows from week to week.

RAYMOND LEE JOHNS, MANAGER

This will be the final edition of this column until September. The author is taking off a couple of weeks for a much needed vacation, but will be back in the office around September 4.

Just this word about your chamber of commerce pretty-yard contest, which closes with judging September 20. We heartily thank you folks who have registered your entries. There have been quite a number responded, but not so many yet as we would like to have in the competition. You will have plenty of time from now until the date of the judging to write or phone in your entry. Please do so as early as possible. Those of you who wish to enter before September 4, please phone C. C. Hoffman, chairman of the chamber of commerce beautifications committee, whose number is 59.

And now until your columnist returns after a couple of week's rest and a change of scenery, cheerio!

Revival Meeting Opened Thursday

The first services of a revival meeting began Thursday night, August 17 and will continue through a period of two weeks at the City Hall beginning at 8 p. m. with Rev. Tony of Dallas preaching. The theme of the sermon Thursday night was "Nehemiah Rebuilding the Walls of Jerusalem." Special features of the meeting will be music and songs. The choir will be directed by Mrs. Tony, the evangelist's wife and special singing and music will be by Miss Amy Jene, daughter of the preacher, and Miss Norma Jean Chruston of Lamesa.

The public is cordially invited to attend these revival meetings. The pastor has just concluded a revival meeting at Lubbock which was very successful.

Miss Iris Cloninger Is Wed To L. Melcher

The wedding of Miss Iris Cloninger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cloninger and Louie Melcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Melcher, took place Thursday morning in St. Joseph's Church with Rev. T. D. O'Brien officiating. The vows were exchanged before an archway of baby asters and greenery. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. John Cosgrove played the bridal march. The bride wore a gown of silk net with basque waist, short sleeves and a full skirt over white satin. Her white net veil was made with a train and she carried a bouquet of gladioli.

Mrs. James Cloninger was matron of honor, and little Miss Mary Elizabeth Reitman, flower girl, wore a miniature reproduction of the bridesmaid's gown. After the ceremony, an informal reception and supper was given in honor of the couple, who will make their home in Posey.

It Rained At Happy But Not That Much

"Watch out for high water at Happy. Seven and a half inches of rain," warned the dispatcher at Amarillo Tuesday evening to south-bound Santa Fe trains. The trainman watched out, but saw only evidences of a shower as they passed through. It developed the Happy agent had said "a half inch," and was misunderstood further up the line. But it had rained.

Baptist Revival To Begin August 20

The forces of the First Baptist Church are to be engaged in a revival meeting beginning Sunday, August 20th. It is earnestly desired by the church and pastor that all the Christians of the community who are interested in the spiritual uplift of the people, shall join us prayerfully in this effort.

When we are conscious that time does not wait, and each day finds us nearer our eternal destination, how busy we ought to be in the interest of rescuing the lost from death and destruction. We need to be tremendously alarmed about the unsaved before it is too late. As Christians, we must not sit with our hands folded and with a complacent attitude. We must be able to go into the highways and the hedges, and compel them with the love of our savior to come unto Him.

It is time for us to stir ourselves, for unless there is a mighty moving of the Holy Spirit in our midst, some of our neighbors and friends will slip away into eternity unprepared. We are to give by word of testimony and example our unflinching faith in the Lord Jesus, and his power to save. The reason that this revival effort is being put on is to create a longing for a deeper spiritual life in the church, and to arouse the sinner to his or her lost condition in the sight of God. It is the earnest prayer of the church and pastor that a great spiritual awakening may come that will result in the salvation of many precious souls.

The pastor will do the preaching, and Mr. Paul B. Leath of Waco, will lead the singing. Bro. Leath is one of the very finest young men of our acquaintance. He will render us a great service as leader of our song service during this campaign. He is a senior in Baylor University, and when he has finished his school, he plans on spending his life as a missionary in China. We bespeak for him the most faithful cooperation as he leads us in this revival campaign, because he cannot render a great service unless he has a good choir to back him up, so those who sing will find their place in the choir.

We would say in the language of one of old, "Come thou with us, and we will do thee good for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel." As it was in that day, so it is now and those who are willing to go with and for the Lord will render a distinct service to humanity, and honor God with their life. "For the son of man is come to seek and to save that which is lost." Every individual who does not know the Lord, whether he be rich or poor, learned or unlearned, is included in that blessed invitation. "Look unto me all ye ends of the earth and be saved, for I am God and there is none else." Our invitation is to one and all. Come, and worship with us. We earnestly solicit your prayerful cooperation.

Prayerfully,
W. F. Ferguson, Pastor

Couple Is Wed At Hale Center

The marriage of Miss Virginia Ann Poer of Hale Center, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Poer, to Wayne Kirkpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Kirkpatrick of 950 W. Lynn Street was solemnized Saturday, August 12 in the home of the bride's parents in Hale Center, with her brother-in-law, a Baptist preacher from Abilene officiating. The couple stopped by Slaton and spent two days with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, and then on to Borger, where they will make their home and where Mr. Kirkpatrick will continue his work for the Phillips Oil Co.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, graduate of Slaton High school, also attended one year at A.C.C. in Abilene, and one year at Coffeyville, Kansas.

Couple Is Wed At Levelland

The marriage of Miss Ruth Housour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Housour, Slaton, and Bob Usery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Usery was solemnized at 5 p.m. Friday, August 4 in Levelland, with the Justice of the Peace reading a single ring ceremony.

The bride wore a navy sheer dress with black accessories, and carried red and white sweet heart rose buds and baby's breath. For something old, she wore her great grandmother's gold bar pin, which has been in the family over a hundred years.

The couple stayed in Slaton and visited in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Housour, and then on to Calwa, California, where they will make their home.

"Gunga Din" A Mighty Show!

Here's the news movie fans of this city are waiting for: "Gunga Din" comes to the Palace Theatre at Saturday's prevue and will show Sunday and Monday. "Gunga Din" is the kind of show that Hollywood produces once in a blue moon—a breathtaking, colorful spectacle, brimful of impetuous action, lavish, eye-filling scenes, heart-warming romance and magnificent settings.

A two-million-dollar production "Gunga Din" brings to the screen for the first time a tale of pulse-pounding proportions, the thrill-packed drama of the murder practice of Thurgree and its extinction by Brittan's bold Indian troops. Its protagonists are the swashbuckling

Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., engaged in deeds of daring, love and heroism woven into some of the most exhilarating entertainment seen in a long while! As a counter plot, Doug Fairbanks' romance with the belle of the military post—Joan Fontaine—is a thing of beauty and tenderness.

Your screen diet will remain incomplete if you don't see "Gunga Din"—rich, full-blooded, majestic movie such as you've never seen before, and won't again for many moons to come! Remember—"Gunga Din"—coming to the Palace Theatre this Sunday and Monday. Don't miss it!

Miss Emma Cloninger returned to Dallas Friday, August 18, after a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Taylor.

Appeal To Clean Up Neglected Memorial Park

We received from a reader this week an appeal for a better and cleaner Memorial Park, and we are printing her appeal so that the readers of the Slatonite can read for themselves what she has said, and what she thinks should be done.

Editor Slatonite:

Some several months ago I made an appeal, through the columns of the Slatonite, for a clean up campaign for our sadly neglected Memorial Park.

I received so many favorable comments, and congratulations that I thought something would have been done about it before this time.

And too there was some criticism by a few.

I have just returned the past week from Ft. Worth where we laid my father to rest, it was so hard to leave him, resting in the gentle breeze and shade of a massive tree, amid beautiful, well tended and kept surroundings.

I could not help but shudder at thought of some day you and I must lay away some of our loved here, in our pitifully neglected Memorial Park.

It seems to me, now the merchants and others are giving prizes for "pretty yards," at a little effort could be expected to improve our city of the dead.

It is beautifully located and would make a favorable impression on the visitors within our gates.

Will some of the civic clubs The Culture Club, Daughters of Pioneers, The Rotarians, Board of City Development or Chamber of Commerce get behind this and get something done.

Picturesque West Will Live Again Famous Characters To Be At Tahoka

Tahoka—The Old West will live again here next Thursday and Friday, August 24 and 25, when the third annual Tahoka Round-Up is staged under direction of Lynn county citizens.

Cowboys, and milkmaids, soda jerkers and stenographers, business men and housekeepers are dressing up in cowboy and cowgirl regalia, and plans are complete for a big show.

Each day's program opens with speaking on the public square mornings by State Supt. L. A. Woods, Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler, Sen. G. H. Nelson, Representative Alvin Allison, and other notables.

At noon, each day will be a mile-long parade, led by Chief Baldwin Parker of Cache, Okla., son of the famous Chief Quanah Parker and grandson of Cynthia Ann Parker, white girl kidnapped when a child and raised among the Indians. Parker will bring seven other Indians with him. Others in parade will be Tahoka high school band, 100 or more cowboys and cowgirls and their mounts, merchants' and clubs' floats.

Other attractions include a carnival, square and modern dances, and band concerts.

Visitors are invited to bring their lunches, spread them on the shady lawn of City Park, and spend the day or both days.

Third Annual Scurry County Rodeo To Be Held Aug. 18 and 19

The third annual Scurry County Rodeo, which will be held at Wolf Park in Snyder, August 18 and 19 made its appearance by a group of boosters Monday morning about 9:50 to the large crowd assembled.

Twenty-five cars, carrying cowboys and cow girls all heavily armed with cap pistols, entered Slaton, drove around the square and stopped on the West side near the band stand for a 20 minute program of music and singing.

R. C. Miller, jr., chairman of the booster trip committee of the association, explained that the rodeo will be held in Snyder and everyone is invited to be there.

6 MILLION MILES a year IN TEXAS without a serious accident

EACH MORNING this Texas telephone man climbs into his blue-gray truck and goes about his job of making telephones talk. Safety rides with him as he drives through city streets and over country highways.

Last year he, and other telephone men in Texas, drove 600 telephone cars and trucks more than six million miles—the equivalent of 241 trips around the world—without a serious accident. There were a few scratched fenders to be sure... but last year's average for minor accidents was only one in 177,000 miles of telephone driving in Texas.

Safe, courteous, considerate driving is an important part of a telephone man's training. Safety, the duty of every good citizen to his community, is one of this company's goals as it goes about its job of furnishing good telephone service at low cost to you.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

President's Political Activity Since Congress' Adjournment Shows Heavy Interest in 1940

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

POLITICS: Rebuttal

Home in Hyde Park, Franklin Roosevelt probably reviewed editorial opinion on his recent seven-month debate with congress. The public thought congress had won, for it killed his lend-lease and housing bills, defeated his neutrality program and passed the Hatch "clean politics" bill. Not so evident were his victorious defense and relief programs and his retention of the $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund. On three successive days, therefore, he went before the people, first to boast, next to scold, last to warn.

Signing the Ashurst bill (creating an administrative officer to supervise federal court budgets) he announced that all goals of his 1937

UTAH'S SEN. KING
"I don't see how..."

court reorganization proposal had been realized, six of them by law and the seventh (change in attitude) through opinions of the Supreme Court itself.

Next day observers thought he let a cat from the bag. Discussing his neutrality and lend-lease defeats, he borrowed an analogy suggested by his wife—a precipice—to which he said congress is leading business, and over which it may plunge "next spring."

Placing it on a gambling basis, the President said a G. O. P.-Democratic coalition had made "two bets with the nation": (1) On continued peace, and (2) business' ability to absorb wage earners who lose WPA and PWA jobs "next spring."

Some thought it possible the President was gambling too, staking his 1940 candidacy on next spring's prospects. If there is a war and/or heavy unemployment, congress will be wrong and Mr. Roosevelt right, thus justifying a third term attempt.

Certain it was that no politician without interest in 1940 would have delivered the message President Roosevelt sent next day to young Democrats convening in Pittsburgh. Smoothly laying the groundwork for some action, perhaps a retirement from politics, possibly a coup to keep the Democratic party "liberal," or possibly for a new third party, he sent this warning: "If we nominate conservative candidates, or lip-service candidates, on a straddlebug platform, I personally for my own self-respect and because of my long service to, and belief in liberal democracy, will find it impossible to have an active part in such an unfortunate suicide of the old Democratic party."

Meanwhile, members of congress took exception to the precipice analogy and wondered if Mr. Roosevelt had the right man leading the right horse to doom. Said Michigan's Rep. Earl Michener: "The coalition... has stopped the American people just before they went over the financial precipice." Said Utah's Sen. William H. King: "I don't see how anyone can contend consistently that when we appropriated nearly $13,000,000,000 for next year, congress was not doing everything within its power, provided spending is the answer."

CONGRESS: How Much?

How much a so-called "$13,000,000,000 congress" actually appropriated and spent became the compu-

NEWS BITS

TAXES—In Washington, the National Association of Manufacturers brought out figures alleging that U. S. taxes have climbed 640 per cent since 1913, much more than Britain (430 per cent), whose exorbitant levies are often used as a basis of comparison with U. S. taxes.

DICTATOR—In Spain, Gen. Francisco Franco made himself supreme dictator, set prisoners to work digging trenches 20 feet from the frontiers of Britain's Gibraltar.

WED, at Chicago in his iron lung, the self-styled "bolter kid" of infantile paralysis fame, Fred Snite, and Miss Teresa Larkin, 25, tation job of Budget Director Harold D. Smith. His decision: Congress appropriated more than $13,000,000,000 but included some funds spent before July 1 and some to be spent in future fiscal years. For the 1939-40 year he figured the total was $10,472,354,914, or $260,937,376 more than President Roosevelt's budget estimate. Previous year's record: $9,268,338,030, which exceeded treasury receipts by $3,600,514,404.

Meanwhile the matter of appropriations became a political football. Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley said it was less than $10,000,000,000 because several re-appropriations were included. New York's Rep. John Taber placed it at $14,061,596,619, with about $1,000,000,000 each being spent before and after the current fiscal year. Publicly denouncing a public debt he said had reached $53,895,100,000 (including $13,000,000,000 government corporation debts) and pointing to an alleged 60 per cent payroll increase since 1933, Mr. Taber probably helped speed President Roosevelt's appeal next day that departments and agencies slash their next year's budget requests.

Also in Washington:
Social security stopped receiving claims for lump-sum old age insurance benefits, and prepared to inaugurate new monthly benefit payments to workers over 65 who have paid taxes on their incomes the past 18 months.

California's Rep. Frank Buck, after conferring with the President, predicted serious consideration of a plan to broaden the personal income tax base and increase the basic rate.
House Minority Leader Joseph Martin announced Republicans will have definite programs on at least three major topics—housing, agriculture and reciprocal trade agreements—to present at the next congress as alternatives to administration measures.

EUROPE: Tension Up

"Hostilities began at 8 p. m. The declaration of war between Eastland and Westland was quickly followed by a series of bombing raids by Eastland along the east coast of Westland from Wash to points north of the Thames estuary. Eleven sudden raids were made on this territory during the first forty minutes... Two raids have been made on South London and anti-aircraft batteries have been heavily engaged..."

In London early-to-bedders were irked because Sir John Anderson, chief of air-raid precautions, made them stay up late to test effectiveness of their new dark shades. It was "blackout" night, the most comprehensive trial yet made of facilities with which England hopes to foil an invader from the continent. When morning came, Londoners read the above account of proceedings, also reading that nine army air pilots had been killed. What made the "war" news seem the more realistic was word from the continent that Albert Forster, the Nazi "fuhrer" of Danzig, had flown to Berchtesgaden for conferences with Adolf Hitler.

ALBERT FORSTER

German-Polish tension had previously been heightened when (1) a German airliner was fired upon while passing over Gdynia; (2) a Warsaw paper had warned Poland would bombard Danzig if political union with the Reich were proclaimed; and (3) Danzig's semi-official newspaper Vorposten, asserted the city was "prepared for defense against Poland's war threats."

All Europe watched Fuhrer Forster's return from Berchtesgaden. Interest heightened when he proclaimed a Danzig mass meeting.

That night, while his mob cried "Puh!" at every mention of Poland, shrewd Fuhrer Forster resorted to time-tested dictator tactics. On Poland's shoulders he heaped a charge of plotting to seize not only Danzig but East Prussia as well. No sooner had this untruth raised German-Danziger resentment to a fever pitch than Herr Forster made the simple announcement that his brown shirted followers have made full preparations to reunite the ancient free city with Germany.

Wisdom of Constitution Is Seen In Revolt of House on Spending

Not Politics Alone Involved in Congress' Opposition to President's Spending Policy; Response to Will of People at Last Reflected in Members' Action.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—The Constitution of the United States—that document that has served us so well notwithstanding the razzing given it by enlightened thinkers of recent years—says in Article I that "all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives." It further says with an emphasis that, "no moneys shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law."

There is, of course, nothing at all new in the above paragraph. It is important, however, to remember those provisions of the basic law of our nation for in them again we see wisdom and a rather clear understanding of what happened just before congress adjourned its first session. It is as though the authors of the Constitution were laying a prophecy when one considers the recent revolt of the house of representatives against President Roosevelt's spending-lending program. (And, by the way, during the debates on this program it became known as the "splending" program among those terrible people who opposed it.)

I assume that throughout the land there was much talk about the revolt against the President's policies for current spending as being purely politics. I have heard from many sections of the country, and the story was the same; politics. That is only partly true. Obviously, the house members had their weather eye on the political aftermath of what they were doing when they refused even to give consideration to Mr. Roosevelt's spending-lending plan that originally involved more than $3,000,000,000. They considered politics, too, when they refused to debate the merits of the $800,000,000 housing bill, although I believe they should have debated that thing in order that the country could know that it would have cost several billion dollars of taxpayers' money before it is finally wound up 60 years hence.

Not Politics Alone Moved House to Oppose President

The refusal of the house members to do the bidding of the Chief Executive must be examined in something more than just a political light, however, because of the two provisions of the Constitution that I quoted. It must be recalled that the authors of the Constitution contrived to build a national legislative body with a dual purpose: 1. to represent the Union of states which is accomplished through the senate, and, 2. to represent the individual citizens which is accomplished through the house of representatives. The house, therefore, is held to be the body more responsive to individual thinking among the people and to react more quickly to changes in public sentiment. That matter of having taxation originate in the house, therefore, is seen to be an attempt to reflect in the legislative acts the willingness or unwillingness of the people to stand for taxes, since the house members must stand for election each two years.

Again, when the Constitution said that appropriations had to be enacted as law before money is paid out of the treasury, there was a patent curb on wild and profligate spending. The house, being closer to the people, first felt the call of the people for government spending and responded. Since the senators, too, are elected by direct vote of the people, they also heard the siren call and voted out money with the greatest of ease. But the house led the way.

Lately, however, there has been a change in that individual thinking. The majority of the people have begun to wonder where all of this spending was going to end; they began to wonder how the national debt—now well above $45,000,000,000—would ever be paid. They smelled fresh taxes. The senate heard, but failed to heed, this new call. Senators chiseled and nibbled at curtailment, but they did not put their mind to the business of cutting expenditures. It was the house that led the way, again. And, as I said earlier, they acted definitely by refusing even to debate the two cornerstone bills—the spending-lending bill and the housing bill.

Action of House Reflects Will of People on Spending

It is made to appear, therefore, that the concept of the Constitution's authors was correct. They felt that the house would hear from home, as we say these days. And the house has heard. Politics, alone, was not responsible except insofar as politics represents the shifts in position that statesmen must take to meet the changes in public sentiment.

The bulk of the people, it seems, have suddenly awakened to the fact that something must be done about the continued spree upon which the federal government has been engaged in the last five or six years.

The refusal of the house to act cannot be catalogued otherwise than as reflecting the will of the people, for the politician who knows his own's seldom is seen going in the wrong direction if the votes of his constituents are concerned.

Whether the economy wave that swept through the house in the last few weeks of a session that is destined to be historically important will be maintained in the next session of the Seventy-sixth congress, of course, is a matter of conjecture. It is to be noted that primaries for nominations come along early next spring and summer. Following those primaries in natural sequence are the November elections. If the members of the house and senate who have balked at running the federal government further into debt take the same position in the session starting next January, then I am inclined to the opinion that our nation will be on the way out of its troubles. I always hedge statements about congress, however, because politicians will sometimes place party above principle. They might deem it necessary to buy a few votes with taxpayers' money in advance of the primaries next year. Whether the representatives and senators have such ideas in mind, or not, I wish the voters would put every one of them on the spot by demanding to know whether they are going to let this nation go any further into debt. The debt now is so large that each of us is going to pay and pay and pay in taxes, and after we have passed on, our children and theirs will pay.

Congress Failed to See That Money Was Properly Spent

I always have opposed congressional action that delegates power settled on the congress by the Constitution. In these columns, there has never been any deviation from that conviction. Since 1933, there has been a constant trend in the wrong direction. New powers have been given the President time after time. Particularly, has this been true in the matter of handling money. Congress obeyed the dictates of the Constitution by appropriating the money, but it did not do that which there certainly is a duty to do, namely, see that the money is spent properly.

In an examination of the latest spending-lending scheme put forward by the President and rudely shattered by the house, therefore, it strikes me that another device to get more power away from congress was being proposed. In the first place, there was little, if any, hope that recovery could come out of the program. We have seen only slightly different schemes flop annually for several years. Further, these plans that are temporarily out of the window appeared to me to be a trick to evade the law in that the financing was to be done without consideration of the national budget and finances. None of these new debts would show in the budget. The program resembled a road that is cut around the edge of a town to avoid the business section, a by-pass.

Respecting the merit of the spending-lending bill, itself, there is little in my opinion to warrant its adoption. In plain language, the proposal would have socialized credit in the United States—and I can not believe that the United States is ready to take up state socialism after the manner of Mussolini or Hitler.

President's Hints Sound Like Admission of Failure

The smashing of the administration's scheme, of course, did have its political repercussions and Mr. Roosevelt, feeling the toe of a stiff boot as he obviously did feel such a political blow, will be carrying his case to "the people" soon. He said in a press conference one day that "the people were entitled to know who was responsible," meaning the congress. He also suggested that the people ought to know in advance why there would be more unemployment and why there would be new taxes to pay for relief. All of which sounds rather like an admission of failure. That is to say, these schemes of spending, of pump priming, of creating new and greater debt, all have failed in returning the country to anything like a normal condition. We have nothing to show for something like $25,000,000,000 so expended excepting the bonds of the United States government that are outstanding.

New Dealers, however, are still battling. I noted one of them said the other day that an extra session of congress in November of this year was surely a necessity. That proposal will bear watching. I have talked with many, many leaders in congress—men of long experience and understanding—and none of them believes an extra session to be necessary. (Releated by Western Newspaper Union.)

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Adventure in a Pickle Factory"

HELLO, EVERYBODY: Well sir, here's a yarn that's going to sound a sour note in our adventure saga. When I read it I thought of that old song, "Down by the Winegar Woiks," and I'd be willing to bet that place was right next door to the one where John Mains, of Long Island, had his life's big adventure. You see, the concern John works for is one of those outfits that catch juvenile cucumbers before they get a chance to grow up, soak them in vinegar and send them out into the world to decorate ham and cheese sandwiches. John has a job in a pickle factory.

The factory is in East Northport—John's home town—and I'm willing to admit they've turned out some pretty good pickles there. But if they keep on making pickles until pickles stop having warts, they'll never turn out a tougher one than the pickle John got in, just from trying to keep the machinery going and the pickles moving out in a steady, uninterrupted acidulous stream.

John is a machinist at that East Northport pickle foundry, and it was on January 18, 1935, that he ran into Old Lady Adventure. The machinery in the factory is run by a big 50-foot shaft suspended just below the ceiling. Belts running from this shaft furnish the power to the various machines, and on this day one of the belts had broken.

John was ordered to replace that broken belt, and he went to work at it. The machinery, of course, was stopped while he was doing the job. When he had finished he turned the power on again to see how it worked. Well, it wasn't working so well, at that. The new belt was slipping. Now one way to stop a belt from slipping is to wax it. So John got a can of wax and started up the ladder toward the shaft. But this time he neglected to shut off the power.

Ladder Slides Out From Under Him When He Reaches Top.

The machinery was still running, but John thought he could keep out of the way of those spinning wheels and pulleys. Besides, waxing a belt is a lot easier when the motor is turning it for you. John reached the top of the ladder and went to work. But he had hardly started when he lost his balance. And the ladder went sliding out from under him!

He was dazed—bewildered—gasping—when suddenly his clothes started to rip.

Instinctively, John threw his body to one side—and he landed right up against the whirling shaft. The ladder went tumbling to the floor, but John didn't follow. In the few seconds while he was jammed up against that shaft it had caught his clothing—began twisting it around and around!

In two turns the shaft had taken up all the slack in those duds of John's. Then it began putting on the pressure. John felt his body being squeezed until he thought his ribs would break. His chest was flattened until he couldn't breathe. He was hammered and pounded against the ceiling until he was bruised and covered with blood. And still that shaft twisted, and still it tightened the clothing around his body. There was no one in the room at the time, and John couldn't get enough breath in his lungs to call for help. For a minute he thought he was going to die there, alone, 15 feet from the floor and dangling in mid air. He was dazed—bewildered—gasping—when suddenly his clothes started to rip.

Again the shaft began turning, taking up the slack. It tore every stitch of clothing from his back and arm, and didn't stop until it reached his wrist. There the machinery began twisting the end of his sleeve—twisting it so tightly that John thought sure it was going to take his hand off.

His chest was free now of that terrible tension. He could breathe—he could even have called for help. But by that time John was too far gone to cry out. He hung dangling from the shaft, the blood streaming down his body—conscious enough to know what was happening to him, but not conscious enough to do anything about it.

It was a thought that finally saved the day. All of a sudden John thought of his wife and child. What would they say when they learned what had happened to him. How would they get along when John couldn't bring home the weekly pay envelope any more? "That thought roused me," John says. "And then I must have let out a scream. I don't remember crying out, but my brother, who also worked at the factory, and who was in the next room, heard a yell and came running in to see what was the matter."

After Last Scream, John Loses Consciousness.

John's brother didn't come a minute too soon, either. For after that last thought and that last scream he had lost consciousness. His brother ran and shut off the power and then ran back and picked up the fallen ladder. He climbed to the top, cut John loose with a pocket knife, and carried him down that ladder on his back.

John's brother rounded up a couple of other fellows in the factory and they took John to a doctor. John was there quite a while before he came to again. When the doctor heard what had happened he just simply couldn't see how John had managed to live through his experience.

And that's a thing John doesn't quite understand either. "I thought that I'd at least lose my arm," he says, "but the doctor fixed it up and now it's in good shape again. When it was all over I thought I was the luckiest man on earth. And I STILL think so." They're still making pickles out in that factory at East Northport. But it will be many a long day before they produce another one like that one John got into. At least, I hope it will. (Releated by Western Newspaper Union.)

British Guiana Mines Yield Gold and Diamonds

British Guiana has a total area larger than England, Scotland and Wales together. Yet the population is little more than 300,000, or about two people to a square mile, except in the cities. Georgetown, the capital, accounts for one-fifth of the entire colony's inhabitants. Sugar, raised in a narrow coastal strip diked against the sea by Seventeenth century Dutch settlers, is the chief product of British Guiana. But the inland reach, penetrating 500 miles into the South American continent, has mineral and forest wealth practically untapped because of the difficulty of transportation.

More than 2,000,000 ounces of gold and 2,000,000 carats of diamonds have been brought out of British Guiana's jungle hinterland. Exports of bauxite ore for aluminum now rival the value of sugar exports. But almost nothing has been done with reported deposits of manganese ore, oil and mica, because the rivers—the only lines of communication into the mountains of the interior—are interrupted by a sudden wall-like edge of the interior plateau, over which plunge some of the highest and most spectacular waterfalls in the world, which man has as yet had occasion to see. There are only 79 miles of railroads in a region larger than Kansas. The whole colony's complex river system offers a mere 450 miles of navigable waterway.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Young, pretty Jane Barnes, who lived with her brother, Baldwin, in Sherwood Park, near Washington, was not particularly impressed when she read that rich, attractive Edith Towne had been left at the altar by Delafield Simms, wealthy New Yorker. However, she still mused over it when she met Evans Follette, a young neighbor, whom the war had left completely discouraged and penniless. Evans had always loved Jane. That morning Baldwin Barnes, on his way to Washington, offered assistance to a tall, lovely girl in distress. A bag she had left in the car, containing a diamond ring on a ribbon and a note which read "Del to Edith—Forever." He knew then that his passenger was Edith Towne. Already he was half in love with her. That night he called on Jane, and they called her uncle, worldly, sophisticated and rich. He visited them at their home, delighted with Jane's simplicity. He told them Edith's story. Because her uncle desired it, Edith Towne accepted Delafield Simms, whom she liked but did not love. She disappeared immediately after the wedding was to have taken place. The next day Jane received a basket of fruit from Towne, and a note asking if he might call again. Mrs. Follette, widowed mother of Evans, was a woman of indomitable courage. Impoverished, she nevertheless managed to keep Evans and herself in comparative comfort by running a dairy farm. Evans, mentally depressed and disillusioned, had little self reliance and looked to his mother and Jane for guidance. Edith Towne phones Baldy in answer to an ad. She asked him to bring her pocketbook. Jane calls on Frederick Towne in his elaborate office. He gives Lucy, his stenographer, a letter to Delafield Simms, in which he severely criticizes him. Unknown to him, Lucy and Simms are in love with each other. Towne takes Jane home in his limousine. She introduces him to Evans, who is jealous of Towne. Baldy goes to meet Edith Towne at her hiding place. He convinces her that she should return home and face her friends. She is interested in Baldy. Later they eat in a restaurant, where Edith sees several friends. She knows they will see to it that the news is spread.

On this same afternoon little Lucy Logan was writing to Delafield Simms.

"It seems like a dream, lover, that you are to come for me in February, and that then we'll be married. And that all the rest of my life I am to belong to you."

"Del, it isn't because you are rich. Of course I shall adore the things you can do for me. I am not going to pretend that I shan't. But if you were poor, I'd work for you—live for you. Oh, Del, I do hope that you will believe it."

"The other day, Mr. Towne said in one of his letters that you had always been fickle, that there had been lots of girls, Eloise Harper before Edith. And I wanted to scream right out and say, 'It isn't true. He hasn't ever really cared before this.' But of course I couldn't. But I broke a pencil point, and as for Mr. Towne, who is he to say such things about you? I haven't taken his letters for the last three years for nothing. There's always somebody—the last one was Mrs. Laramore, and now he has his eye on a little Jane Barnes, whose brother found Miss Towne's bag and the ring. She's rather a darling, but I hope she won't think he is in earnest."

"And now, my dear and my darling, good-night. I wonder how I dare call you that. But I am always saying it to myself, and at night I ask God to keep you—safe."

CHAPTER VII

Jane, in Baldy's absence, dined on Sunday with the Follettes, in the middle of the day. In the afternoon she and Evans went for a walk, and came home to tea in the library.

Stretched in a long leather chair, Evans read to Jane and his mother "The Eve of St. Agnes."

At the moment, Mrs. Follette was weighing seriously the fact of Jane as a wife for Evans. She was pretty as well as cheerful. Had good manners. Of course, in the old days, Evans would, inevitably, have looked higher. There had been plenty of rich girls eager to attract him. He had had unlimited invitations. Women had, in fact, quite run after him. Florence Preston had rather made a fool of herself. And Florence's father had millions.

But now? Mrs. Follette knew how little Evans had at the moment to offer. She hated to admit it, but the truth was evident. Watching the two young people, she decided that should Evans care for Jane, she would erect no barriers. As for Jane, marriage with Evans would be, in a way, a rise in the world. She would live at Castle Manor instead of at Sherwood Park.

It was after five when Baldy telephoned triumphantly: "Jane, Edith Towne has agreed to go home to-night. And I'm to take her. I called up Mr. Towne and told him and he wants you to be there when we come. He'll send Briggs for you and we are all to have dinner together."

"But, Baldy, I don't know Edith Towne. Why doesn't he ask some of her own friends?"

"She doesn't want 'em. Hates them all, and anyhow he has asked you. Why worry?"

"I'll have to go home and dress."

"Well, you're to let him know at once where Briggs can get you. I told him you were at the Follettes."

Jane went back and repeated the conversation to Evans and his mother. Mrs. Follette was much interested. The Townes were most important people. "How nice for you, Jane!"

But Evans disagreed with her. "What makes you say that, Mother? It isn't nice. It will simply be upsetting."

"I don't see why you say that, Evans," Jane argued. "I am not easily upset."

"But with all that money. You can't keep up with them."

"Don't put ideas into Jane's head," his mother remonstrated; "a lady is always a lady."

But Jane sided now with Evans. "I see what he means, Mrs. Follette. I haven't the clothes. I haven't a thing to wear tonight."

"Oh, I wasn't thinking of your looks," Evans got up and stood on the hearth-rug. "But people like that! Jane, I wish you wouldn't go."

She looked up at him with her chin tilted. "I don't see how I can refuse."

"Of course she can't, Evans, don't be so unreasonable," Mrs. Follette interposed; "it will be a wonderful thing for Jane to know Edith."

"Will it be such a wonderful thing for her to know Frederick Towne?" He flung it at them.

Jane demanded, "Don't you want me to have any good times?"

He stared at her for a moment, and when he spoke it was in a different tone. "Yes, of course. I beg your pardon, Janey."

Mrs. Follette, having effaced herself for the moment from the conversation, decided that things between her son and little Jane Barnes might reach a climax at any moment. "I believe he's half in love with her," she told herself in some bewilderment.

As for Frederick Towne, she didn't consider him for a moment. Jane was a pretty child. But Frederick Towne could have his pick of women. There would be nothing serious in this friendship with Jane.

Jane called up Towne. "It was good of you to ask me," she said. "I am at the Follettes, but I'll go home and dress and Briggs can come for me there."

"Come as you are."

"You wouldn't say that if you could see me. I took a walk with Evans this afternoon and I show the effects of it."

"Evans? Oh, Casablanca?"

"What makes you call him that?"

"I thought of it when I saw him waiting for you at the top of the terrace. The boy stood on the burning deck—" he laughed.

"I don't think that's funny at all," said Jane, frankly.

"Don't you? Well, I beg your pardon. I'll beg it again when I get you here. Briggs will reach Sherwood at about seven. I would drive out myself, but I've an awful cold, and the doctor tells me I must stay in. And Cousin Annabel is sick in bed with a cold, so you must take pity on me and keep me company."

Jane hung up the receiver. It would, she decided, be an exciting adventure. But she was not sure that she liked Frederick Towne.

Evans walked home with her. The air was warmer than it had been for days, and faint mists had risen. The mist thickened finally to a fog which rolled over them as if blown from the high seas. Yet the sea was miles away, and the fog was born in the rivers and streams, and in the melting snows.

They found it somewhat difficult to keep to the road. They were almost smothered in the thick gray masses. Their voices had a muffled sound. Evans' hand was on Jane's arm so that they might keep together.

And he was just a ghost in a fog.

"Jane," he said, "I made a fool of myself about Towne. But honestly—I was afraid—"

"Of what?"

"That he might fall in love with you—"

"He's not thinking of me, Evans, and besides he's too old—"

"Do you really feel that way about it, Jane?"

"Of course—silly."

He could not see her face—but the words in her laughing lovely voice gave him a sense of reassurance.

"Janey," he said, "if I could only have you like this always. Shut away from the world."

"But I don't want to be shut away. I should feel—caged—"

"Not if you cared."

There was in his tone the huskiness of intense feeling. She was moved by it. "Oh, I know what you mean. But love won't come to me like that—shut in. I shall want freedom and sunshine. I'll be a gull over the sea—a ship in full sail—a gypsy on the road—but I'll never be a ghost in a fog."

His hand dropped from her arm. "Perhaps you'll be a princess in a castle. Towne can make you that."

"Why do you keep harping on Mr. Towne? I don't like it."

"Because—oh, I think everybody wants you—"

And now it was she who caught at his arm in the mist, and leaned on it. "I'm not the least in love with Frederick Towne. And I shall never marry a man I don't love, Evans."

When they came to the little house they found old Sophy nodding in the kitchen. She always stayed with Jane when Baldy was away. So Evans said "Good-night" and started back.

He found the path between the pines, walked a few steps and stumbled. He sat down on the log that had tripped him. He had no wish to go on. His depression was intense. Night was before him and darkness. Loneliness. And Jane would be with Frederick Towne.

He had for Jane a feeling of hopeless adoration. She would never be his. For how could he try to keep her? "I'll be a gull over the sea—a ship in full sail—a gypsy on the road—never a ghost in a fog."

And he was just a ghost in a fog! Oh, what was the use of ever "climbing up the climbing wave"? One must have something of hope to live on. A dream or two—ah, how long he sat there he did not know. And all at once he was aware of a pale blur against the prevailing gloom. And then he heard Jane's voice calling, "Evans? Evans?"

He answered and she came up to him. "Your mother telephoned—that you had not come home—and she was worried."

She was holding the lantern up to the length of her arm. In her orange cloak she shone through the veil of mist, luminous.

"My dear," she said, gently, "why are you sitting here?"

"Because there isn't any use in going on."

"She lowered the lantern so that it shone on his face. What she saw there frightened her. "Are you feeling this way because of me?" she asked in a shaking voice.

"Because of everything."

"Evans, I won't go to the Townes if you want me to stay."

He looked up at her as she bent above him with the lantern. She seemed to shine within and without, like some celestial visitor.

"Would you stay, Jane, if I wanted it?"

"Yes."

He stood up. "I don't want it. Not really. I'm not quite such a selfish pig," his smile was ghastly.

She was silent for a moment, then she said, "I'm going home with you, Evans. Wait until I tell Sophy to send Briggs after me."

He tried to protest, but she was firm. "I'll be back in a minute."

She returned presently, the lantern in one hand and her slipper bag in the other. "I put on heavier shoes. I should ruin my slippers."

As they trod the path together, the light of the lantern shone in round spots of gold, now in front of them, now behind them. The fog pressed close, but the path was clear.

"Evans," said Jane, "I want you to promise me something."

"Anything, except—not to love you."

"It has nothing to do with love of me, but it has something to do with love of God."

He knew how hard it was for her to say that. Jane did not speak easily of such things.

She went on with some hesitation. Her voice, muffled by the fog, had a muted note of music.

"Evans, you mustn't let what I do make you or break you. Whether I love you or not, you must go on. You—couldn't hold me if you weren't strong enough, even if I was your wife. And there is strength in you, if you'll only believe it. Oh, you must believe it, Evans. And you mustn't make me feel responsible. I can't stand it. To feel all the time that I am hurting—you."

She was sobbing. A little incoherent.

"And you are captain of your soul, Evans. You. Not anyone else. I can't be. I can be a help, and oh, I will help all I can. You know that. But—I love you like a big brother—not in any other way. If anything should happen to you, it would be dreadful for me, just as it would be dreadful if anything happened to Baldy."

"Janey, my dear, don't," for she was clinging to his arm, crying as if her heart would break.

"But I do care for you so much, Evans. I was frantic when your mother telephoned. I wasn't quite dressed and I made Sophy get the lantern, and then I ran down the path, and looked for you."

He stopped and laid his hand on her shoulder. Her weakness, her broken words had roused in him a sudden protective tenderness.

"My little girl," he said, "don't. God helping me, I'm going to get back. And you are going to light my way. Jane, do you know when I saw you coming towards me with that dim lantern it seemed symbolic. Hope held out to me—seen through a fog, faintly. But a light, nevertheless."

"Oh, Evans, if I could love you, I would, you know that."

"I know. You'd tie up the broken wings of every bird. You'd give crutches to the lame, and food to the hungry. And that's the way you feel about me."

He had let her go now, and they stood apart, shrouded in ghostly white.

"God helping me," he said again, "I'll get back. That's a promise, Janey, and here's my hand upon it."

She gave him her hand. "God helping us both," she said.

He lifted her hand and kissed it. Then, in silence, they walked on, until they reached the house.

Plates Are Most Sought of the Steel Products

Plates of iron or steel are, historically, the oldest of the industry's rolled products; commercially, one of the leading tonnage products, and functionally among the most widely used and more indispensable.

In an ordinary year, three million or more tons of steel plates are produced, says Steel Facts. Major uses include the construction of ships, railroad locomotives and cars, oil tanks, gas holdovers, water tanks and a variety of other articles essential to modern industry such as floors for bridges and buildings, standpipes, etc.

Plates, sheets and strip steel are all flat rolled products, of different thicknesses and widths, and it is difficult to define exactly where one product stops and the other begins.

The two principal classes of plates are sheared and universal, the names deriving from the type of mill on which the plate was rolled.

Mills which have only horizontal rolls and produce a plate with uneven edges and ends are called sheared plate mills. Products of these mills must be sheared on all four edges to produce a rectangle.

Universal mills have in addition to horizontal rolls, at least one pair of vertical rolls so placed as to roll

QUESTION-OF-HOUR How Much Does College Cost?

WHAT will it cost to send your son or daughter to college? Last year 600 University of Minnesota students were asked to keep budget books by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company. Their findings may help if you add or deduct for climate, size of college and size of city. Outside tuition (which ran $11.07 per month for women, and $12.33 for men) average monthly costs were $39.70 for women and $56.54 for men. Out-of-town coeds spent $80.60 per month; out of town men, $84.90. Students living at home spent about half that much. Conclusion: Out-of-town students spend $18 to $21 a month more than students living at home.

Here is Sigma Chi horseplay at University of California. At Minnesota, out-of-town fraternity and sorority members spend $100.03 and $37.10 per month, respectively, exclusive of tuition. Out-of-town students who don't belong to fraternities and sororities, respectively, spend an average of $78.67 and $67.53, exclusive of tuition. A substantial saving.

At University of North Dakota, this student built his own home near the campus. At Minnesota, out-of-town men spend $11 per month for room; women, $15.47. Meals cost out-of-town men $25.90 a month; women, $25.90. Average beauty and barber shop costs per month: $2.34 for women; 88 cents for men whether fraternity or non-fraternity.

Cecil and Carrol Lowe, father and son, share books at Illinois' McKendree college. Minnesota coeds spend $5.06 per month for books; men, $5.38. Men spend $6.85 for amusements and women, $1.14, proving the man still pays despite all this talk about Dutch treats. Dental and medical: $1.97 per month for women; $2.16 for men; low, thanks to student health service.

Only One Note Used in Song A curious and famous song, seldom heard in recent years, is "The Monotone," composed by Peter Cornelius (1824-1874). Throughout the entire song of 42 bars, says Collier's Weekly, only one note—G—is used.

Pretty for Afternoon Or to Wear at Home

THE dress with shirring on the shoulders and sleeve tops is a charming, soft fashion for afternoons. No. 1795 gives you an unusually nice figure-line—rounded above and very slim at the waistline and hips, because the paneled skirt is cut high and beautifully fitted. This is very easy to make. Choose georgette, chiffon or silk crepe.

For the Young Girl. No. 1793 is a perfect dream of a dress for slim young girls, who look especially sweet in high necklines, roundly puffed sleeves, a softly bloused bodice and very flaring skirt. Little bows and a sash add to its fluttery charm. Dimity, organdy, taffeta and dotted swiss are especially pretty for this. Later on it will be lovely in thin wool.

The Patterns. No. 1795 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires, with short sleeves, 5 yards of 39-inch material; 5 1/2 yards with long sleeves. No. 1793 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 10 requires 3 1/2 yards of 35-inch material; 2 1/2 yards of ribbon for sash and 2 1/2 yards for little bows. Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-relief, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how Pepsin-izing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your drugist today!

Snake Dance To Be Held In August

Announcement has just been received from the Hopi reservation in Northeastern Arizona by T. B. Giffner, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fe Railway, that the great snake dance of the Hopi Indians, held annually during the latter part of August, will this summer occur at Mishongovi Pueblo August 23rd and at Walpi Pueblo August 26th.

These snake dances, prayers for rain in which live reptiles are used by the performers, date from prehistoric times and are one of the weirdest and most gripping of all American aboriginal ceremonies.

The Hopi pueblos, or villages, are located about 90 miles north of the Santa Fe main-line station at Winslow, Ariz., from which point a special three day motor cruise will leave August 22nd, to attend the dance at Mishongovi on the 23rd.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hannah were Lubbock visitors this week.

Chevrolet Sales Show Large Gain

Detroit—Chevrolet dealers retail sales of new cars and trucks in the final 10 days of July showed a gain of 2,816 units over the previous 10-day period, totalling 24,612, and enabling the company to chalk up 64,917 cars and trucks for the month. The announcement was made here today by W. E. Haller, general sales manager.

The month's new unit sales were 13,907 greater than in July 1938, for a gain of 27.2 per cent, comparison of records indicates. Continuance of substantial volume so late into the summer was characterized as a distinct reversal of the usual trend.

Sales of used cars in the final 10-day period of July totaled 69,891, a gain of 19,118 over the preceding period, for a total of 160,780 in July. This is an increase of 25,091 units, as compared with July 1938, and gave Chevrolet dealers a combined new and used car total of 226,677 for the month.

SANTA FE CARLOADINGS

The Santa Fe System carloadings for the week ending August 12, 1939 were 17,871 as compared with 18,989 for the same week in 1938. Received from connections were 4,755 as compared with 4,696 for the same week in 1938. Total cars moved were 22,626 as compared with 23,685 for the same week in 1938. The Santa Fe handled a total of 23,371 cars during the preceding week this year.

Must Increase Farm Income, Says Ford

WITH Edsel Ford in the driver's seat to turn the first furrow, the new and vastly-discussed Ford-Ferguson tractor made its world's first public appearance at the New York World's Fair in late July. Shown above are Henry Ford and Harry Ferguson, Irish inventor who developed the principles embodied in the new tractor and its unit implements, with a small model of the tractor between them.

Said Henry Ford: "I look for this tractor to accomplish two things—turn the farm deficit into a profit and reduce the expense of going on the land!" Enthusiastically seconding his father, Edsel Ford added: "The farm is one of the most vital problems now before the country. No political solution yet offered has been able to solve it. To increase farm income by increasing the cost of food in the cities is a policy no one, not even the farmer, approves. And yet every one agrees the farmer's income must be increased."

"My father and I believe that if the farmer can do what industry has done—make his profit out of economy of production and distribution—he will increase his real income without curtailing his market. We built this tractor primarily to cut the farmer's first cost and his operating cost."

"This tractor is the only one we ever made that completely takes the place of horses and mules, thus eliminating draught animals which constitute one of the farmer's heaviest costs. Four cows or six young cattle, which mean income, can be raised on the same land required to feed two farm horses that only mean expense."

Harry Ferguson said that among outstanding new features of the Ford tractor are light weight, simplicity of operation, maneuverability, fuel and oil economy, absolute safety on hillsides or difficult ground, and ability to strike any sort of obstruction without damage to implements. The new machine will do the work of eight horses and four men, he said.

The Ford-Ferguson tractor is now in production, and will be available to the public through Ford and other dealers about September 1. It is being demonstrated daily at the Ford Exposition, New York World's Fair.
