ROBERTSON'S

The Autumn Season is Just Around the Corner

It is the season of gathering in the fruits of the year's labor. Has your labor proved to be remunerative and satisfactory? If not, why not? Perhaps you have spent a little more than you should have done, perhaps you were handicapped by the want of sufficient capital to run your business. Perhaps you did not count on the big drop in the prices of your products, and perhaps you cannot see how you can pay out and get by.

Perhaps you could not if you go on in the same old rut. Perhaps it might be a good plan to come in and have a talk with THE BIG FRIENDLY BANK and perhaps they can assist you to get your business in shape to pull through and make some money besides.

We are strong for the Farmer and Producer and will go the limit to help him. We want to talk over your business and to help you make a success, for your success means our success.

SOME OF US HAVE NOT YET GIVEN UP OUR OLD EXTRAVAGANT HABITS—HAVE NOT YET ADJUSTED OURSELVES TO PRESENT-DAY CONDITIONS. Mrs. S. H. Adams entertained the Civic and Culture Club at her home Saturday afternoon, this being the first meeting of the club year.

During the business session the club voted to permit the pupils of the public school to help sell tickets for the coming Lyceum course and to give to the public schools the net proceeds, to be used for the erection of a belfry for the new bell already purchased.

The next meeting will be on Sept. 24th with Mrs. R. A. Baldwin. We will study American Composers, with Mrs. L. B. Parker as leader.

The club will meet promptly at 2:30 so that a social hour may be had after the program, in which the members may become better acquainted with the new public school teachers who will be invited guests at this meeting of the club.

Honoring Miss Hoffman.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Walter Davis entertained in honor of Miss Frances Hoffman who will leave next for Dallas to resume her studies in Southern Methodist University. The Davis home was made more beautiful with decorations of cut flowers and ferns. LOUIE B. MAPP STABBED TO DEATH TUESDAY NIGHT

(From Foard County News.)

The tragedy Tuesday night in which Louie B. Mapp lost his life is a source of unspeakable sorrow to the Mapp family and relatives and one of sore regret to the entire community.

The tragedy occurred about 11 o'clock, two or three hours after the sham battle at the fair grounds had closed and the crowds had gone to their homes.

The details of the tragedy have not been made known, but it appears that Mr. Mapp and Earl Gentry had become engaged in a difficulty with each other at the Sanitary Cafe, where Gentry was employed, which developed into a serious stage when Gentry seized a large knife used for cutting bread and stabbed Mapp in the heart. Mapp walked a few steps to the door and fell on his face where he expired almost instantly. Gentry surrendered himself to Sheriff Campbell and was lodged in jail.

Mapp was only 25 years of age and had a wife and two children, all of whom were in New Mexico at the time of the tragedy, visiting Mrs. Mapp's mother. He was virtually reared in Foard county and has been engaged most of the time for the last few years in the barber trade.

Gentry is a young man about 19 years of age and came from Roysce City to Crowell at the beginning of the harvest season and worked for H. J. Crosnoe. After the season closed he secured employment at the Sanitary Cafe. His parents reside in Tennessee. Gentry wired his father immediately after the killing and it is expected that he will come to join him.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN. (Copyrighted)

Washington, Sept. 20.—Repeated warnings of dangerous storms and northern killing frosts during the first half of September have heretofore been published in these Bulletins. Many Texas newspapers published these, including the New Orleans Item, Galveston News, Fort Worth Record and Dallas News. The San Antonio papers are not authorized to publish my forecasts and many in San Antonio were not warned of the recent disastrous storms. Complete warnings were also given of the great storms that almost destroyed Pueblo, Colo., during the past summer.

During last days of September temperatures will be moderate in all the northern Rockies, northern Pacific slope and northern Plains sections, reaching highest degrees near Sept. 29. Conditions will favor about average rains in places where fair amount of moisture has occurred the past summer, and these conditions, moving eastward, will cross continent in four or five days. While very great storms are not expected a sharp increase in the storm forces may be looked for near October 3 to 6 and most rain near those dates.

A sharp cold wave—considering the early season for cold waves—will follow this storm period and killing frosts are expected in northern parts of America east of Rockies and in middle Provinces of Canada. A tropical storm will organize during the week centering on Oct. 1 near the equator and near west coast of Africa. I can not determine whether it will strike our southern coast or the West Indies Islands. The hurricane I expected to organize near the same place in first week of July took a southern route and did not develop much force. These dangerous tropical storms should be more completely calculated in order to protect our southern States and the West Indies from their ravages and our central States and Provinces from the disastrous cold waves that they pull down. If this October hurricane materializes the cold wave will begin operations not long after Oct. 7. There are some indications that October temperatures will average lower than usual.

I have not yet determined whether we are to have an unusually cold winter but I am working on it.

We have an unusual cropweather season before us. Some sections will not produce good corn and other late maturing crops but will produce good winter grain and other early maturing crops. Those sections that will produce good corn and other late crops should not put in small grain or other early maturing crops. In those sections where the early maturing crops will do best the crops should be brot to maturity as early as possible and in those sections where late maturing crops will do best they should be brot to maturity as late as possible, or as late as the fall frosts will permit. These are rather perplexing questions. The expected failure of crops in Oceanica, latter part of 1922, also complicates the crop questions of Canada and America. Even the kind of winter and spring small grain is divided into sections.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS
 is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surface of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions.

CAP AND BELLS

FIRST AID TO JOURNALS.

"That's a rather heavy paperweight you have on your desk," remarked the visitor.

"So it is," said the editor of the Treadwell Clarion. "That's what I call my 'mollifier.'"

"Yes?"
 "Sometimes an infuriated citizen comes into my sanctum seeing red and vowing to skin me alive. I toy with this paperweight a little and it isn't forty seconds before his temperature is normal again."

Quite Evident.

"Do animals go to heaven when they die?" a small boy asked his mother.

"Why, no, dear."
 "Well, where do elephants, hippos, snakes and lions go when they die?"

"They go to the museums, of course," piped his little brother, who had been listening to the conversation.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale
 BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BLACK SWALLOWTAILS.

"I want to tell you something of our family history," said Mrs. Black Swallowtail to the other Swallowtails.

"Of course, any one who knows anything about Swallowtails will know that we aren't swallows with tails, or birds with tails, but we are butterflies.

"I suppose everyone who knows anything about swallows knows that they have tails. But what I meant was that we aren't swallows at all, with or without tails.

"We are butterflies, nice, big, handsome butterflies. We are known pretty well, for we are seen about a great deal. We are very dark in color, so we are called the Black Swallowtails. We can be seen flying about in the summertime, and we love the flowers which are wild and the flowers which are tame.

"The flowers which are wild don't behave in a wild manner at all. They are very well behaved. But they grow in fields and along country roads and in woods. They are flowers which aren't looked after by people as the tame flowers are.

"The tame flowers aren't very tame. They are just regular flowers. But they're different from the wild flowers, for they grow in gardens and they are looked after by people.

"Now a Mother Swallowtail lays down her eggs with great care upon wild parsley or upon carrots, right on the nice leafy part of a plant.

"The eggs only stay like that for a few days, perhaps two weeks at the most, and then they become nice little black caterpillars wearing white belts.

"Then these tiny caterpillars eat up the leaves they've been using as their beds.

"People can't do such things. People have to get extra food and cannot eat their beds after they have arisen in the mornings.

"It may be true that they want to save their beds for another night's rest, or for sleeping in for a great many nights. But one would think they would be able to find other beds later on, if they wanted them, and would simply eat their beds right away to save worry and fussing.

"It's very convenient to get up and say: 'Ah, I'm ready for breakfast.' And then to find one's bed will do beautifully as a breakfast.

"Then the caterpillars begin to moult and they do this several times.

"Later they wear green suits with black lines about the suits, and upon these lines are smart yellow spots.

"These caterpillars are seen very often. I'm sure most creatures have seen them.

"They're not in the least shy and do not mind who sees them.

"When these caterpillars grow to their full size and have become grown-up caterpillars, they change once more into the chrysalis shape.

"They go to a fence or any other nice homey spot and they spin themselves beds of silk and also spin them so they can be attached or fastened to the place they've decided to call home for a time.

"And then they change into their chrysalis state until they are ready to be butterflies.

"You have, young Swallowtails, been in the chrysalis state all winter long, but now you are butterflies, and you will sip of the delicious drinks that are to be found in the flowers.

"And when creatures see you, they will know that you are the Black Swallowtails and that you have had all these interesting adventures, changing your suits and your shapes and your homes.

"That is the history lesson, and the only one you need to have! One history lesson will do for the Swallowtails."

And Mother Swallowtail flew off, after having finished giving the history lesson.

"Very Neat in Appearance."

Rose Terry's Scholarship

By E. DUNBAR.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

When the Browning society of Tatum gave the "Rose and the Book" to raise funds needed to send a student to Tatum Women's college, there were those among the citizens of Tatum who figured it out that the women had adopted a roundabout way of raising two hundred dollars. Old Si Bradley actually went to figuring about it, and the afternoon before the performance in the new theater he gave out as his opinion that it had cost the folk of Tatum some thousand dollars in cold cash to raise that two hundred.

Just in the Bradley family alone it had cost nearly twenty-five dollars on a conservative estimate. Jenny, Si's daughter, was taking a minor part. She had had to get her own costumes. Not counting the things that she had had to make, but could use later, these costumes had cost her eight dollars and seventy-three cents. Then she had had to give up two evening music lessons for evening rehearsals and Jenny got a dollar a lesson. That came to over ten dollars.

Then there were tickets for all the Bradley family and a taxi to take Jenny to the dress rehearsal the night before, as it had rained, and Jenny had been so busy over the rehearsals that she hadn't been able to help her mother, so they had had to get in a sewing woman three days to help with the spring sewing. And so it had come altogether by careful figuring to $22.75. This was barring the possible necessity of a taxi to take Jenny to the play that night, and it looked like rain, as well as the probability that Jenny would be all played out afterward and would need a doctor and medicine.

What Si Bradley was arguing was that it wasn't worth while. If the folks of Tatum wanted to give a scholarship, through the Browning society, they should be assessed just so much. Then there wouldn't have to be any play and he wouldn't have to go through the ordeal of sitting through it.

Roger Maplewood, Mr. Bradley's companion in arms, added his quota of argument against such performances. It would cost even more than Mr. Bradley had figured. For he knew it for a fact that the Wentworths were going to be quite a bit out of pocket. Jim Wentworth was going to take a and at the last minute he had called away on business. He a't throw the thing over the last night that way. So he had to tele- to some fellow he knew, taught sh in some college somewhere new Browning from A to Z, and in on to take his place. This had Jim Wentworth had had to pay professor's carfare, and that the worths would have to have com- dimmers. No, it wasn't worth while. According to Roger Maplewood there wasn't any reason why the citi- zens of Tatum should give scholar- ships anyway. If a girl hadn't enough money to get an education she could go to work in a factory or somebody's kitchen. College educations were for children of the well-to-do, not for poor folk.

This discussion took place aboard the local trolley car of Tatum and it was audible to the few passengers because Roger Maplewood and Si Bradley always sat on opposite sides of the car and threw their remarks back and forth.

Rose Terry, going from high school to the farmhouse where she worked, was one of the passengers. This was unfortunate. For Rose Terry was the one out of the seventeen or eighteen who had applied for the scholarship who had been selected by the Browning club as the beneficiary. She was twenty-six and settled. That was what finally decided the matter. In other words she wouldn't do what un- appreciative beneficiaries of the club's bounty had done before—just get through college and then marry some one and waste her education. The club wanted to be sure that if they helped a girl to go through college she was going to spend her life in teach- ing afterwards. If she was the kind that would get married, why waste the education?

Rose Terry was twenty-five the year before when she went to work with a farmer in return for her board and then started in at the high school. She had been able in one year to make up for the neglected education of her girl- hood and prepare herself for college. She had not applied for the scholar- ship. She had expected to go on work- ing with the farmer's family. But the committee had heard of her and had persuaded her to make her application. She had been selected and now the committee had asked her to sit in the front set along with the officers of the Browning club. No, they didn't want to make a spectacle of her, only if any one should want to point her out they could do so easily.

This overheard conversation be- tween Si Bradley and Roger Maple- wood had not lightened her spirits es- pecially. She was leaving school at three that afternoon. Then there would be a room or so to sweep. The cake to make, table to set, supper to serve, dishes to wash and then she must dress in her best cotton voile and catch the seven o'clock trolley back to Tatum.

She was tired and pale when she met Mrs. Gray, the president of the club that evening, and somehow Mrs. Gray took something of a satisfaction. The paleness and tiredness made her look all the more settled. Secretly Mrs. Gray would have enjoyed leading Rose up on the stage between the acts and presenting her to the audience as the one they had selected as their benefi- ciary.

All eyes were focused on the stage when the curtain rose. It was Prof. Moore who received immediate atten- tion. He was the substitute who had been imported at the last minute. Not only was he a stranger but the tones of his voice and the obvious sureness of his action were new to the inhabi- tants of Tatum. The general comment was that he seemed like a regular actor. The attention was so thorugh- ly focused on this imported performer that few of the audience noticed a little flurry in the front row when Rose Terry slid from her seat a supine heap on the floor, or later, when half con- scious and supported by Mrs. Gray's strong arm, she made her exit before the performance had more than begun.

"That's Rose Terry," people whis- pered. "She's worked awful hard."

"Well, I only hope she appreciates what the people of Tatum are doing for her. I guess she isn't the only one that feels like fainting."

These words were the first that Rose heard as she slowly regained full con- sciousness propped up against a chair in the cool of the vestibule. They did not help her to get a grip on herself. And as she made an effort to get back her strength by inhaling long breaths of fresh air she felt the tears well in her eyes. Quickly her thoughts went back to the experiences of the last five minutes. She tried to choke back the sobs but she could not resist the wave of weakness that seemed to sweep over her. She held her hands to her eyes and made no answer nor any effort to look up when Mrs. Gray shook her and told her to get control of her- self. She felt a strong desire to cease to exist and almost welcomed the faintness that she felt coming back to her.

She was conscious enough to do a little rapid thinking as they carried her out through a side hall into the dressing rooms. She tried to protest. They mustn't take her there. But her efforts were in vain. She knew they laid her on a wicker lounge in one of the dressing rooms. She knew some one was fanning her. Then a long time passed and then— It seemed she had suddenly been transported back two years. Yates Moore was bending over her. She felt his breath and recognized his voice. It was only when she opened her eyes and saw his fantastic costume that she remem- bered where she was and what had happened. Then some one hurried up to Yates Moore, looking very surprised. They had been looking for him, wait- ing to send up the curtain after the second act. Yates hesitated, then pressed Rose's hand and begged her to remain there until he came back.

The next morning an executive meeting of the officers of the Browning society was called by telephone and not one of the members failed to ap- pear promptly in Mrs. Gray's parlor.

No one needed to be told, for the information had spread like wildfire, that Rose and Prof. Moore had talked to each other after the performance. Rose had once been engaged to him, and there had been a quarrel. It was not known just then what the quarrel was all about. Mrs. Gray promised to have full details for the next meeting. The important thing was that Rose was going to marry Prof. Moore at once instead of going to college.

"And she looked so plain and set- tled," sighed a leading Browningite. "Well, she oughtn't to have applied for the scholarship if she had had any such plans in her head."

"She didn't apply," came back in an unparliamentary manner from Mrs. Gray in the chair. "What we want to do now is to look over the qualifications of the other applicants. Rose Terry is done for as far as the Browning society is concerned."

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 25

REVIEW.

GOLDEN TEXT—As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially them who are of the household of faith.—Gal. 6:10.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Gal. 6:1-10.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Stories of Paul.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Serving Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living for Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Sacrificing for Jesus.

Two methods may profitably be em- ployed in the review of the lessons of the Quarter. First, a biographical sketch of the Apostle Paul, such as his birth, home training, education, conversation, teaching and missionary work. Second, the leading teachings of the lessons, which may be made prominent by summarizing the facts of each lesson and stating the most vital teaching thereof. The first meth- od can be used in reviewing the les- sons in all departments and grades, and can be easily adapted by any teacher. The second method will be preferred by many in the senior and adult classes.

The following is given by way of suggestion:

Lesson 1. Paul was born at Tarsus, of Hebrew parentage. Being brought up in a pious home, he was thorugh- ly imbued with the spirit of devotion to the Scriptures. He was educated at Jerusalem under the tutorship of Gamaliel. The chief text book was the Bible. In addition to his religious training he was taught a trade which came in very useful later, enabling him to support himself while preach- ing the gospel.

Lesson 2. In Paul's training as a Pharisee, he was taught to love his own nation, to love God's law, and to be zealous toward God, that is, to have a passion for God and His work.

Lesson 3. Paul's burning hatred of Jesus incited him to endeavor to stamp out the Nazarene heresy. While on the way to Damascus, with author- ity to arrest and imprison the believ- ers, men and women, he was stricken with blindness and fell to the earth, and Jesus spoke to him from heaven, saying, "Why persecutest thou me?" In response to the heavenly instruction he went to Damascus where Ananias baptized him, and he received his sight and was filled with the Holy Spirit.

Lesson 4. Paul straightway preached Christ in the synagogue. Like every- one who is really converted he began to tell of the newly found Saviour. After a lengthy sojourn in Arabia he visited Jerusalem where he was be- friended by Barnabas when suspected by the disciples.

Lesson 5. When the religious awaken- ing at Antioch had come to the attention of the Jerusalem church, Bar- nabas was sent to inspect it, and see- ing help was needed he brought Paul from Tarsus to be his helper.

Lesson 6. After teaching a year at Antioch, the Spirit moved the church to send forth Barnabas and Paul to evangelize the heathen. The church sent her best men.

Lesson 7. As Paul and Barnabas were preaching at Iconium, an at- tempt was made to worship them as gods. Their efforts were frustrated by the tact of Paul. Soon after this Paul was stoned, showing that satanic worship can soon be turned into satanic hate.

Lesson 8. Paul's preaching the grace of God to the heathen brought on a controversy in the church at Antioch. The question in dispute was: "Shall Gentiles be required to keep the Mosaic law as a condition of salva- tion?" The decision was in favor of Paul, and so Paul and Barnabas were free to begin their second missionary journey.

Lesson 9. The Spirit forbade Paul to tarry longer in the provinces of Asia preaching the Gospel, and by a vision of a man from Macedonia plead- ing for help, he was called into Eu- rope.

Lesson 10. The casting out of a demon from a young woman resulted in landing Paul and Silas in jail. They were miraculously delivered and the jailer was converted.

Lesson 11. Being driven out from Thessalonica and Berea, Paul went to Athens where he preached the gospel on Mars' Hill. The result of his preach- ing here was that some mocked, some procrastinated, and some believed.

Lesson 12. Paul in this lesson sets forth the grand principles which should govern the believer's life, the sum and substance of which is: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God"

DODSON WARNS CALOMEL USERS

You Cannot Grip, Sicken, or Salivate Yourself if You Take "Dodson's Liver Tone" Instead

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a slug- gish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents, which is harmless vegetable substi- tute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and with- out making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; in- stead, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of nutri- tion, and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it. Advertisement.

Insects Big Pest.

Insect pests cause an annual loss to the world's field crops of $125,000,000, according to the report of the entomological branch of the Canadian department of agriculture, which is carrying on an "antiwaste" research campaign to discover effective counter- actives. The botany branch of the department claims to have saved $40, 000,000 a year by its crusade against smut and its control of late blight and rot of potatoes.

GREATNESS NOT ON SURFACE

Reporter Had Perceived Nothing to Indicate That His Companion Was a Man of Note.

Every one is entitled to one chuckle in days like these, just as every dog is entitled to one bite. Hence this story of Sinclair Lewis, which is being repeated with vicious enjoyment by a lot of the lowbrows.

It appears that Lewis was a guest at a dinner not long ago at which a number of newspaper men and other low forms of life were present. The guests were introduced to their hosts in this fashion:

"Gentlemen—this is Mr. Smith, Mr. Jones and Mr. Lewis."

Mr. Lewis sat next to a reporter. The reporter talked of politics, the next war, heat, Babe Ruth, the big fight and other bourgeois things and said no word of literature.

Mr. Lewis became first uneasy and then unhappy. When he could stand it no longer he turned to his neighbor with a gay laugh.

"Ha, ha!" said he. "You did not when we were introduced think that I was the fellow Sinclair Lewis, who wrote 'Main Street,' did you?"

"No," said the reporter.—Boston Globe.

Stung.

Waiter—Thank you very much, sir.

Diner—What do you mean? I haven't given you anything.

Waiter—No, sir, but I bet a half dollar that you wouldn't tip me.

Diner—Oh, you did, eh! Well here's a nickel. Now you're out 45 cents, and serves you right for your con- founded impertinence.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp- Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and blad- der troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp- Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Simply Scandalous.

Hubby—Say, I just saw Mac and his bride buzz by in their new roadster.

Wife—What did she look like?

Hubby—Looks pretty fast. Has a long, slim body, two blue streamers flying from her hood, her muffler was wide open, and she was smoking.

Wife—My heavens; His bride?

Hubby—No. The roadster.

Some men grieve $2 worth over every dollar they lose.

A Question of Identity.
The New Minister—"Do you know who I am, my little man?" Little Billie—"Certainly. Don't you know who you are?"

FROM A. E. HOWERTON AT LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

We left Grand Canyon Aug. 27, after taking several trips over and around it. They say it is still in the making and as we could not help it much left the balance of the making to the Colorado River. Spent the night at Peach Springs, then stop at Needles where we entered the desert proper.
 We camped at Klinefelter, which is an oasis 9 miles out from Needles. A beautiful spring comes out of the ground and there is about one acre of large Cottonwood trees and is a dandy place to camp just before starting the desert trip. Heard the first wolves here, and they howled all night. There were about forty other cars camped there and they began leaving at 2 a. m.
 in order to get over the desert before it got too hot. The roads were good.
 The first third were paved.

The second night we camped near Victorsville in a beautiful valley about 6 miles long and one-quarter mile wide. This was the nicest camp ground we had seen. It is owned and kept up a cement plant there. Concrete tables and stoves, water and lights and wood furnished. It was considerable up grade to San Bernardino, where we came to the pavement. All the rest of the entire country is paved.
 Here the grade was down for about 15 miles, most of which a car will coast, but you need good brakes. This valley was the best country we saw.
 We stopped at Pasadena over night and drove slow on to Los Angeles by way of Hollywood, and saw several studios. Paramount seemed to be the largest and busiest. Saw Doug and Mary's home but did not stop as we thought they might be busy and we had not wired them what day to expect us. Will see them later. Fatty lives in Los Angeles. We called on the Witts Friday Came to Long Beach and will stay a few days. Went to Catalina Islands on a large ocean steamer Monday. This is 30 miles in the Pacific and was pretty rough.
 The Missus got a little sick going over.
 During this trip we drove 1425 miles on 74 gallons of gasoline, bought one fan belt, had one puncture in the desert and still have Slaton air in four tires. Gas cost $21.30; some places paid 50c gallon. Gas is 23c here. We pulled one stretch of 52 miles in mud, most of the time running in low. We helped lots of cars out of mud holes, as many as 15 in one day. I was never helped out a time and passed all kinds of cars and arrived here ahead of every car seen on the road. Had a fine trip and have never regretted it. We saw many interesting places we could not have seen otherwise and could stop as long as we wanted to at any place.

This is a pretty country and a good town, but we sure miss the good old friends in Slaton and doubt if we will ever find as good and true friends and folks anywhere. We want to hear from you all often.

A. E. HOWERTON.

ARE YOU READY FOR BUSINESS?

There is no doubt but that the greatest opportunities for young people today are in the business world.
 Countless positions at every point throughout the United States, are waiting for the trained man and the trained woman. But remember, the demand is for trained workers; the untrained workers, those who can do "most anything" are crowding the employment bureaus seeking work.

There is a position waiting for you.
 Are you ready for it? Can you enter a business office knowing that you can handle a bookkeeper's desk, do the work of a stenographer or private secretary, or hold any one of the specialized places open in the modern business office? The big salaries are waiting for the man or woman who can DO ONE THING WELL. Training is required. Have you been drilled in the basic principles of business that will enable you to grasp higher-salaried and more responsible positions as the opportunities arise? Unless you know these things, the chances of your success are small.

Make up your mind to train yourself, to start your business education
 NOW. Every day that slips by is a loss to you—it puts a good position and a good salary further away from you.
 A few months in our institution, the largest business college in America, will give you the training you need.
 You can never find a better investment than a business education. We

HOGVILLE LOCALS.

The cat at the Rye Straw store has disappeared and until another one can be had the proprietor will work in her place by keeping his eye on the rat holes.

Slim Pickens had his feelings hurt.
 While at Tickville Saturday he put a penny in a slot and stepped on the scales to weigh. But the hands didn't move, so he decided that he didn't amount to anything.

Somebody asked one of the twins of the Calf Ribs neighborhood today what time it was, but this happened to be the other one's week to tote the watch.

A traveling man stopped at the Hogville hotel Monday of this week.
 He is the same one that was here last year.

Jefferson Potlocks seems to think that there are not near as many fleas now as there used to be. Yam Sims says there are just as many, but that there are several other members of the family for them to get on now.

The Tidings reports that Raz Barlow was a business visitor in Tickville Saturday afternoon. This is the second time his name has been in the paper in the past few months, and he is thinking about starting a scrap book.

Jefferson Potlocks, who has been accusing everybody in the neighborhood of having stolen his cow, found her today while cutting some tall weeds in the rear of his home.

Mrs. Jeff Potlocks is laid up with a sore throat so bad she cannot talk and to expedite matters Jeff has bought a phonograph record containing the words, "Children, you all behave, or I'll get my hickory!"

The Rye Straw storekeeper invoiced his stock today, and finds that he has not got as big stock as he had last year, which shows that he has sold several things.

Cricket Hicks received a letter at the postoffice yesterday and in the excitement he like to of turned over the ink bottle.

The Deputy Constable this week is looking for a fellow who came thru here the other day selling spectacles and tinware. He struck the man's trail in the dusty road on Musket Ridge and tracked him for some distance, when the trail was lost. The man drove two horses, one taller than the other, and if anybody runs across any such tracks they are requested to notify the Deputy Constable immediately.

The project on foot to shorten the road between here and Rye Straw by making it a lot straighter, has about fell through. If the road is made shorter it is true the public would get there quicker, but there is nothing for them to do after they get there.

Clab Hancock was at the Tickville depot this week and set his watch by the time table.

There was a considerable train wreck on the railroad the other side of the Calf Ribs neighborhood one day this week, but fortunately nobody was hurt. In the smash-up of the baggage car a trunk belonging to a drummer who sold ladies' ready-to-wear garments busted open and all the men had to leave.

Sile Kildew has a large new brass watch. Next thing anybody knows he will be trying to join the Hogville brass band, as he heard somebody say they were out of time.

Several of the nice ladies called at the Wild Onion school house Friday afternoon and the teacher cleared his throat and smoothed his hair down when he saw them coming.

You Will Be Interested to Know

That for a period of twelve months we will contract with you to furnish you your groceries at ten per cent over cost. We carry a full line of Groceries and make deliveries. WHAT HAS BEEN DONE IN AUSTIN on the COST plus 10 per cent for overhead, can be done here. In Austin they have some fifteen hundred subscribers, including the presidents of four banks in the city. The president of the University of Texas has endorsed the system, and he and more than sixty professors, the Mayor of the City, Doctors, Lawyers, Railroad Men, and people of all professions have taken advantage of the opportunity until around fifteen hundred families are now buying for Four Dollars what they paid Five for, the old way—a clear saving of 20 per cent.

After the store had been running for 60 days, 10 customers were approached as to how much they had saved; they all signed their names, giving their street addresses, and approximately the amount saved in each instance, as follows:

- J. N. Marshall, 2009 Main Ave. $25.00
- Mrs. E. E. Young, 1109 Travis $20.00
- Dan C. Crider, 913 E. 9th St. $25.00
- Mrs. J. E. Adams, 1507 Guadalupe Street $20.00
- C. W. Kinney, 310 Bowie St. $25.00
- O. M. Caldwell, 409 W. 12th $60.00
- W. H. Birkner, Buda, Rt. No. 2 $50.00
- E. S. Garner, 1017 Willow St. $20.00
- Mrs. V. L. Hightower, 1904 South Austin $70.00
- Mrs. A. A. Biebel, 300 East 9th Street on a $5.00 purchase saved $1.40 and more than 20 per cent on all purchases.

The President of one of the leading Banks of Austin, said: "There are but few people making or saving any money now, and it is necessary for everybody to save in every way possible during the hard times we are going through. Any other investment, other than to cut down your living expenses, would not be recommended by me."

DO YOU KNOW that a saving of ten cents a meal means a saving of $9 a month, or $109.50 a year.

DO YOU KNOW that the main causes for high prices on groceries are insufficient volume of business and the Crime of the Credit System?

DO YOU KNOW that the losses of those who DO NOT Pay are taken care of by those WHO DO PAY?

That the margin of BAD accounts are on the increase.

That YOU SHOULD PAY only for the Groceries that YOU BUY.

That to SAVE Ten Dollars is equal to MAKING TWENTY.

LET US HELP YOU to get on a CASH BASIS by CO-OPERATION. We have Mr. J. E. Blythe, of Austin, Texas, here to help us install the system. Mr. Blythe is the Treasurer of the Consumers' Co-operative Supply Company of Austin. Their June sales in that city amounted to $18,160.95. The July sales were $21,207.05.

Over June $3,046.10

Some—don't you think?—let us at Slaton do what Austin, Fort Worth, Temple, Watauga Falls and other good Texas towns have done. All we want is your TIME—will you help us by becoming a member.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford car can well be called the "peoples car," because there are more than 3,000,000 of them in daily operation. That is about four to one to the nearest follower in the motor car industry. This would not be so if the Ford car had not for sixteen years proven its superiority in service, in durability, and in the low cost for operation and maintenance; this would not be so if the Ford car was not so easy to understand, so simple in construction that anybody and everybody can safely drive it. It is everybody's necessity because it doubles the value of time, and is the quick, convenient, comfortable, and economical method of transportation. We solicit your order. We have the full line, Touring Car, Runabout, Coupe, Sedan, Truck. We assure you the best possible in repair work with the genuine Ford Parts.

LOOK OUT FOR THE SHARKS.

History is repeating itself. When other sections of the State are not so prosperous and have poor crops, this section is flooded with salesmen offering the public all kinds of schemes to get-rich-quick or get something for a trifling investment. The streets are daily crowded with solicitors far various kinds of charity.

We have repeatedly cautioned the citizenship of this section about making investments with strangers who promise great things without first making a thorough investigation of their proposition. If, after you have investigated it has merit, of course that is your privilege to buy if you believe it a good thing. And no solicitor or salesman will object to an investigation if what he has to offer you has real merit.

AGAIN, FIND OUT WHAT YOU ARE BUYING AND FIND OUT IF THE REPRESENTATIONS MADE BY SOLICITORS CAN BE VERIFIED. IF YOU HAVE MONEY TO THROW AT THE BIRDS IT IS BEST TO THROW IT TO HOME PEOPLE ANY WAY.

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The Slaton public schools have commenced the 1921-22 session under the most favorable auspices in their history. The enrollment this year is larger than the entire population of Slaton a few years ago. We have three school buildings and many improvements have been made on the school grounds. The play grounds have been greatly enlarged by a generous donation of land by the Santa Fe Railway Co.

The opening of schools this fall opened our eyes to two things: First, that we must at once prepare more buildings to take care of the heavy enrollment. Secondly, we must have more teachers than the school board thought necessary.

The growth of the Slaton public schools, like the growth of the city and surrounding country, has exceeded the expectations of everyone. The mistake has been made in the past of planning schools for a small town, and the Slaton Independent School District must in the near future vote another bond issue for additional school buildings.

Our high school is affiliated with the State University. Slaton has educational advantages second to no other community in Texas. This year, for the first time, Slaton is to have a first class kindergarten.

COME TO SLATON!

The Good Old Days Are Back.

The good old days referred to some time ago by J. T. Pinkston when he was in the newspaper game, are back. Those days when he had his office filled with melons, potatoes, fruits, etc. are only memories of the past with him. J. K. Bassenger, one of the most progressive farmers in this section, sent in a very large melon to the Slatonite office one day this week. It was of the famous Tom Watson variety, the kind that he learned to grow around Houston before coming to this section of the State. Mr. Bassenger and his sons have about five acres in melons this year, and although they began to mature very late have already realized an average of $100 per acre for melons sold. The vines are still producing and if frosts do not get them right away will produce many more melons. It can be readily seen that the farmers of this section are not dependent on cotton and feed crops but can grow anything they want—and without irrigation too.

Prosser-Vermillion.

Miss Ila Prosser and W. H. Vermillion, both of this city, were quietly married at the home of the bride's uncle, Earl Prosser, Wednesday evening, Sept. 15, at 8:50 o'clock, Rev. A. V. Hendricks, pastor of the First Methodist church officiating.

The home was appropriately decorated with an abundance of cut flowers, and the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony was performed in the presence of only a few relatives and intimate friends. Immediately following the ceremony the young couple left for a short honeymoon trip to Sweetwater, after which they returned to Slaton and are now at home to their friends.

The bride is a daughter of Floyd Prosser of Phoenix, Arizona, but has made her home in Slaton for over a year. The groom is a fireman on the Santa Fe, having lived here for more than two years.

The Slatonite joins in extending congratulations and best wishes.

Party at Klattenhoff Home.

Miss Clara Klattenhoff entertained about forty guests with a party last Friday evening at the beautiful country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Klattenhoff, three miles northwest of town.

The affair was given in honor of Misses Mattie and Pauline Lokey, Dorothy Levey and Aileen McDonald, who were soon to leave for various colleges and schools in other cities.

The spacious porch was lighted and tables arranged at which "42" and "bunco" and other games were played. At 10:30 refreshments of delicious ice cream and cake were served, after which a few lawn games were enjoyed. At a late hour the guests departed with many expressions of pleasure.

Out-of-town guests were Misses Elsie, Anna and Henrietta Reimers of Tahoka, who spent the week-end at the Klattenhoff home.

Pratt-Nolen Wedding.

Miss Gertrude Nolen and George H. Pratt, Jr. were married at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the First Baptist church by Dr. H. W. Virgin, the ring ceremony being used.

The couple were attended by Mr. Nolen Barnes and Miss Mittie Bradley, while others present were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Laley, Miss Thelma Barnes and Miss Moss Richardson, a former teacher of the groom.

The young bride was dressed in a midnight blue tulle with accessories to match, wearing a corsage bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas. Miss Nolen is a graduate of the Amarillo high school, and has many intimate friends here, having grown to young womanhood in this city.

Mr. Pratt came to Amarillo from Paris, Texas, and is at present an employe of the Gulf Production Co.

The young couple are now at home to their friends at 1609 Taylor St.—Amarillo Daily News.

The bride in this happy event is a sister of Mrs. W. B. Jones of this city, and is well known here, where she has often visited. The Slatonite joins a host of friends here in extending congratulations and best wishes.

Rebekahs Entertain.

On last Tuesday night the Rebekahs entertained all Rebekahs and Odd Fellows and their families at the lodge rooms with a nice program and luncheon. The affair was for the purpose of celebrating the seventieth anniversary of the founding of the Rebekah Lodge. The program was a most delightful one throughout.

Rev. Jno. P. Hardesty, pastor of the First Baptist church, made the principal address of the evening. Special music was rendered by Mrs. L. B. Hagerman, piano; Mr. Hagan, violin, and E. F. Eastridge, drums.

Refreshments of sandwiches, pie, doughnuts, coffee and watermelon were served.

Work-Rollo Nuptials.

Raymond E. Work and Miss Kathryn Rollo went to Amarillo on the 15th and were united in marriage.

Mr. Work is chief clerk to the trainmaster of the Slaton division, and Miss Rollo is chief clerk in the B. & B. department of the Santa Fe here.

The newlyweds have gone to the Pacific coast on their honeymoon trip and will return to Slaton to reside.

The Slatonite joins in extending congratulations and best wishes.

Outing at Two Draw Lake.

Mrs. Lulu Morris was hostess Friday evening, Sept. 16, to a crowd of Slaton young people at Two Draw lake. Boat riding was the main diversion, after which a delightful lunch was served to the following: Misses Brown, Bailey, Reed, Faye Hoffman, Jennie McDonald, and Abbott; Messrs. Anglin, McDonald, Brown, Jones, Clark, Russell, Meredith, and Taylor.

Baptist Y. W. A. Society.

Young Women's Auxiliary of the Baptist Women's Missionary Union was organized at the church Tuesday night, with Mrs. Hagen as leader.

Eleven girls were present. Officers were elected as follows: Norene Robertson, president; Cleffie Watson, vice president; Faye Tucker, secretary; Louzelle Leverett, treasurer; Lois Stallings, pianist; Cleffie Watson, choir leader; Evelyn Stallings, reporter; Mabel Winegar, personal service.

The following committees were appointed by the president: Ruth Wadley, membership; Georgia Farschon, program; Edith Marrs, finance; Marnye Haney, social.

Colors for the organization will be Nile green and white; flower, white carnation.

The auxiliary will meet every Tuesday evening at 7. We wish to urge every girl in Slaton who is 16 and over to be present next Tuesday.

REPORTER.

Missionary Society.

Under the efficient leadership of Mrs. C. C. Hoffman the devotional meeting was very interesting and helpful as we studied some of the conditions in China. The topic, a Social Gospel for Soochow, which is one of the oldest cities in China. The city wall of Soochow was built two thousand years ago by one of the early emperors of China. One of the interesting places in Soochow is the Laura Haygood school for girls, which is doing a great work for Chinese girls. Soochow is a beautiful city. In it are many pretty gardens; the two most noted are the Len Yoen, and Si Yoen, for they have the stone work and big ponds. We also had China's Emerging Womanhood, by Mrs. W. R. Wilson. Nothing is more striking than the change that has come during the past twenty years. Our mission schools for girls, led the way and since the Revolution young China has taken every opportunity to emphasize the position of women. As we study the conditions and the great need of workers we pray O Lord of the harvest, send forth laborers into the field, that the grain that is now ripe may not perish through our neglect.

Monday we study the Conference minutes. Every member is requested to be present.

We were glad to add the name of Mrs. G. B. Wilson to our roll.

AT THE WILSELMA.

Busy Husbands and Idle Wives Make the Lounge Lizard Possible.

Playing the game—playing it the way the rich and pleasure-seeking society devotees play it—was the diversification of those in "Modern Husbands," which will be shown at the Wiselma Theatre Friday, Sept. 29.

Steve Duane neglected his beautiful young wife, and left her fair game to the wiles of a "he-vampire," who accompanied her to all night revels at questionable roadhouses.

Julia Duane, the wife, played with fire, and paid the penalty. Brockwell, the "love-pirate," played the "house cat" while hubby was away, but he played his string too far, and was caught in his own trap.

Jonathan Cosgrove went to midnight stag-orgies, leaving his charming wife to seek diversion in the company of men who found other men's wives legitimate prey. Mrs. Cosgrove went a little too far with the "love-pirate," who forced his way into her bedroom and became too persistent.

And so it went in the merry roundelay of the fast social set. They played fast but too loose. They had not learned that "those who dance must pay the piper"—but they paid just the same in the end.

"For the sins that ye do by two and two ye shall pay for one by one."

Wiselma Theatre Thursday night, Sept. 29th.

SLATON SHRINE CEREMONIAL.

Dear Noble: Yes, of course we are going to hold a ceremonial at Slaton, and it will be at 7 p. m. until (?) Friday, Sept. 23rd. We, as usual, have some Novices from Slaton and they have been notified to present themselves for examination on that evening, for it would be useless to let them go to Amarillo if they are physically unfit (hence the examination). Refreshments will be served to the Nobles—the Novices to look on from a distance. We are expecting several Novices from Lamesa to be with us that evening and they will be treated with the same kind consideration as our Slaton Novices.

Business will be good right from the start. Come early so we can get the branding iron hot and apply it early. Meet at Masonic Hall at 7 p. m.

Yours in the faith,

But the terrible fangs were never to know her white flesh. Some one had come between. There was no chance to shoot: Whisperfoot and the girl were too near together for that. But one course remained; and there was not even time to count the cost. In this most terrible moment of Dan Felling's life, there was not even an instant's hesitation. He did not know that Whisperfoot was wounded. He saw the beast creeping forward in the weird dancing light of the fallen lantern, and he only knew that his flesh, not hers, must resist its rending talons. Nothing else mattered. No other consideration could come between.

It was the test; and Dan's instincts prompted coolly and well. He leaped with all his strength. The cougar bounded into his arms, not upon the prone body of the girl. And she opened her eyes to hear a curious thrashing in the pine needles, a strange grim battle that, as the lantern flashed out, was hidden in the darkness.

And that battle, in the far reaches of the Divide, passed into a legend. It was the tale of how Dan Felling, his gun knocked from his hands as he met the cougar's leap, with his own unaided arms kept the life-giving breath from the animal's lungs and killed him in the pine needles. Claw and fang and the frenzy of death could not matter at all.

Thus Felling established before all men his right to the name he bore. And thus he paid one of his debts—life for a life, as the code of the forest has always decreed—and in the fire of danger and pain his metal was tried and proven.

BOOK THREE

The Payment.

CHAPTER I.

Lennox home, in the wilderness of Umpqua Divide, looked rather an emergency hospital for the first days after Dan's fight with Whisperfoot. Its old sounds of laughter and injured men and a girl recovering from a nervous collapse do not tend toward cheer.

But the natural sturdiness of all three quickly came to their aid. Of course Lennox had been severely injured by the falling log, and many weeks would pass before he would be able to walk again. He could sit up for short periods, however; had the partial use of one arm; and could propel himself—after the first few weeks—at a snail's pace through the rooms in a rude wheel chair that Bill's ingenuity had contrived. The great livid scratches that Dan bore on his body quickly began to heal; and before a week was done he began to venture forth on the hills again. Snowbird had remained in bed for three days; then she had hopped out one bright afternoon, swearing never to go back into it again. Evidently the crisp, fall air of the mountains had been a nerve tonic for them all.

Of course there had been medical attention. A doctor and a nurse had motored up the day after the accident; the physician had set the bones and departed, and the nurse remained for a week, to see the grizzled mountaineer well on the way of convalescence. But it was an anxious wait, and Lennox's car was kept constantly in readiness to speed her away in case the snows should start. At last she had left him in Snowbird's hands, and Bill had driven her back to the settlements in his father's car. The die was now cast as to whether or not Dan and the remainder of the family should winter in the mountain. The snow clouds deepened every day, the frost was ever heavier in the dawns, and the road would surely remain open only a few days more.

Once more the three seemingly had the Divide all to themselves. Bert Cranston had evidently deserted his cabin and was working a trap-line on the Umpqua side. The rangers left the little station, all danger of fire past, and went down to their offices in the federal building of one of the little cities below. Because he was more than useless in the deep snows that were sure to come, one of the such hardships that had driven no with Bill rode away to the valleys the last of the live stock—the horse that Dan had ridden to Snowbird's defense.

Nothing had been heard of Landy Hildreth, who used to live on the trail to the marsh, and both Lennox and his daughter wondered why. There were also certain officials who had begun to be curious. As yet, Dan had told no one of the grim find he had made on his return from hunting. And he would have found it an extremely difficult fact to explain.

It all went back to those inner springs of motive that few men can see clearly enough within themselves to recognize. Even the first day, when he lay burning from his wounds, he worked out his own explanation in regard to the murder mystery. He hadn't the slightest doubt but that Cranston had killed Hildreth to prevent his testimony from reaching the courts below. Of course, any other member of the arson ring of hillmen might have been the murderer; yet Dan was inclined to believe that Cranston, the leader of the gang, usually preferred to do such dangerous work as this himself. If it were true, somewhere on that tree-clad ridge clues would be left. Moreover, it was wholly possible that the written testimony Hildreth must have gathered had never been found or destroyed. Dan didn't want the aid of the courts to find these clues. He wanted to work out the case himself. It resolved itself into a simple matter of vengeance: Dan had his debt to pay, and he wanted to bring Cranston to ruin by his own hand alone.

While it was true that he took rather more than the casual interest that most citizens feel in the destruction of the forest by wanton fire, and had an actual sense of duty to do all that he could to stop the activities of the arson ring, his motives, stripped and bare, were really not utilitarian. He had no particular interest in Hildreth's case. He remembered him simply as one of Cranston's disreputable gang, a poacher and a fire bug himself. When all is said and done, it remained really a personal issue between Dan and Cranston. And personal issues are frowned upon by law and society. Civilization has tolled up from the darkness in a great measure to get away from them. But human nature remains distressingly the same, and Dan's desire to pay his debt was a distinctly human emotion. Sometime a breed will live upon the earth that can get clear away from personal vengeance—from that age-old code of the hills that demands a blow for a blow and a life for a life—but the time is not yet. And after all, by all the standards of men as men, not as read in idealistic philosophies, Dan's debt was entirely real. By the light held high by his ancestors, he could not turn his other cheek.

Just as soon as he was able he went back to the scene of the murder. He didn't know when the snow would come to cover what evidence there was. It threatened every hour. Every wind promised it. The air was sharp and cold, and no drop of rain could fall through it without crystallizing into snow. The deer had all gone and the burrowing people had sought their holes. The bees worked no more in the winter flowers. Of all the greater forest creatures only the wolves and the bear remained—the former because their fear of men would not permit them to go down to the lower hills, and the latter because of his knowledge that when food became scarce he could always burrow in the snow. No bear goes into hibernation from choice. Wise old bachelor, he much prefers to keep just as late hours as he can—as long as the eating places in the berry thickets remain open. The cougars had all gone down with the deer, the migratory birds had departed, and even the squirrels were in hiding.

The scene didn't offer much in the way of clues. Of the body itself only a white heap of bones remained, for many and terrible had been the agents at work upon them. The clothes, however, particularly the coat, were practically intact. Gripping himself, Dan thrust his fingers into its pockets, then into the pockets of the shirt and trousers. All paper that would in any way serve to identify the murdered man, or tell what his purpose had been in journeying down the trail the night of the murder had been removed. Only one explanation presented itself. Cranston had come before him and searched the body himself.

Dan looked about for tracks, and he was considerably surprised to find the blurred, indistinct imprint of a shoe other than his own. He hadn't the least hope that the tracks themselves would offer a clue to a detective. They were too dim for that. The surprising fact was that since the murderer had been committed immediately before the fall rains, the water had not completely washed them out. The only possibility remaining was that Cranston had returned to the body after the week's rainfall. The track had been dimmed by the lighter rains that had fallen since.

But yet it was entirely to be expected that the examination of the body would be an afterthought on Cranston's part. Possibly at first his only thought was to kill and, following the prompting that has sent so many murderers to the gallows, he had afterward returned to the scene of the crime to destroy any clues he might have left; and to search the body for any evidence against the arson ring.

Dan's next thought was to follow along the trail and find Cranston's ambush. Of course it would be in the direction of the settlement from the body, as the bullet had entered from the front. He found it hard to believe that Hildreth had fallen in the exact spot where the body lay. Men journeying at night keep to the trail, and the white heap itself was fully forty feet back from the trail in the thickets. Perhaps Cranston had dragged it there to hide it from the sight of anyone who might pass along the lonely trail again; and it was a remote possibility that Whisperfoot, coming in the night, had tugged it into the thickets for dreadful purposes of his own. Likely the shot was fired when Hildreth was in an open place on the trail; and Dan searched for the ambush with this conclusion in mind. He walked back, looking for a thicket from which such a spot would be visible. Something over fifty yards down he found it; and he knew it by the empty brass rifle cartridge that lay half buried in the wet leaves.

The shell was of the same caliber as Cranston's rifle. Dan's hand shook as he put it in his pocket. Encouraged by this amazing find, he turned up the trail toward Hildreth's cabin. It might be possible, he thought, that Hildreth had left some of his testimony—perhaps such rudely scrawled letters as Cranston had written him—in some forgotten drawer in his hut. It was but a short walk for Dan's hardened legs, and he made it before midafternoon.

The search itself was wholly without result. But because he had time to think as he climbed the ridge, because as he strode along beneath that wintry sky he had a chance to consider every detail of the case, he was able to start out on a new tack when, just before sunset, he returned to the body. This new train of thought had as its basis that Cranston's shot had not been deadly at once; that, wounded, Hildreth had himself crawled into the thickets where Whisperfoot had found him. And that meant that he had to enlarge his search for such documents as Hildreth had carried to include all the territory between the trail and the location of the body.

It was possibly a distance of forty feet, and getting down on his hands and knees, Dan looked for any break in the shrubbery that would indicate the path that the wounded Hildreth had taken. And it was ten minutes well rewarded, as far as clearing up certain details of the crime. His senses had been trained and sharpened by his months in the wilderness, and he was able to back-track the wounded man from the skeleton clear to the clearing on the trail where he had first fallen. But as no clues presented themselves, he started to turn home.

He walked twelve feet, then turned back. Out of the corner of his eye it seemed to him that he had caught a flash of white, near the end of a great, dead log beside the path that the wounded Hildreth had taken. For a moment he searched in vain. Evidently a yellow leaf had deceived him. Once more he retraced his steps, trying to find the position from which his eye had caught the glimpse of white. Then he dived straight for the rotten end of the log.

Lacked Proper Outfit.

The man next door to four-year-old Allen has a new car and little Allen often goes with him to the garage to keep him company while he tinkers with it. He sometimes seems to get as much pleasure out of it as does its actual owner. The other day something happened which threatened for a time to dim his enjoyment. The owner of the car came home with a jumper suit in which he appeared the next time he went out to work on his car.

The next time he started out to the garage he whistled for Allen but no boy came. Then he went over to Allen's house and hunted up the little fellow. "Come on out to the garage with me, son," he said.

Allen looked at him sorrowfully, "I can't," he said sadly. "I haven't any garage underwear like yours."—Indianapolis News.

It Might Have Been True.

The bass singer in the choir of an Indiana town cordially attends the tenor singer in the same church. Nor does he make any attempt to keep his feeling hidden.

The other evening he was out driving with some friends when the driver of the car almost ran down a man. Just as he swerved his car to the side the people in it recognized the man they had missed as the tenor singer.

"Oh," breathed the driver, "that was a narrow escape. A few feet more and some woman would have been a widow."

"Yes, a happy one, too," added the bass soloist.

ANCIENT RACES PLAYED BALL

Tossing the Sphere is Supposed to Have Had Deep Symbolic Meaning Centuries Ago.

Although it is a proven fact that the game now designated baseball is of modern and purely American origin, the use of a ball in ceremonies and games goes back many centuries.

Four thousand years ago, in the twelfth Egyptian dynasty, a Coptic artist sculptured on the temple Beni Hassan, human figures throwing and catching balls. A leather-covered ball used in games played on the Nile over 40 centuries ago, has a place among the many archeological specimens in the British museum. It has a sewed cover and is in a remarkable state of preservation.

The game of ball was prized by the Greeks as giving grace and elasticity to the human figure, and they erected a statue to one Aristonius for his proficiency in it. Ancient medical practitioners were wont to prescribe a course of ball playing, where the modern doctor would order a diet of pills.

It is supposed that ball tossing had a deep symbolic meaning when played in the spring of the year; and that the tossing of the ball was intended first to typify the upspringing of the life of nature after the gloom of winter. And, whether this was the case among the people of antiquity or not, it is a remarkable fact that the ecclesiastics of the early church adopted this symbol and gave it a very special significance by meeting on Easter day and throwing a ball from hand to hand, to typify the Resurrection.

Valuable to Science.

The telescope gives enlarged views of distant objects, the microscope shows only what is almost in contact with its lens, and by giving a means of making intermediate observations the modifications of the Davon microscope have proven a boon to the naturalist. With great depth of focus and a large field of view, the short focus type, for example, has a working distance of 10 to 18 inches, and magnifies 15 to 38 diameters. An adjustable rubber-tipped rod serves as a rest to support the instrument at the desired height for studying such objects as insects, plants and rocks.

Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are very fond of children and for a considerable time after we married I feared I would not have any owing to my weak condition. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I have a nice strong healthy baby girl. I can honestly say that I did not suffer much more when my baby was born than I used to suffer with my periods before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound years ago. I give all the credit to your medicine and shall always recommend it very highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Millston, Wisconsin.

How can women who are weak and sickly expect or hope to become mothers of healthy children? Their first duty is to themselves. They should overcome the derangement or debility that is dragging them down, and strengthen the entire system, as did Mrs. Janssen, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and then they will be in a position to give their children the blessing of a good constitution.

IN CREPE DRESSES

Simple Designs Idea for Girlish Frocks for Fall Wear.

Circular Skirt Comes Bobbing Its Way Into the Realm of Favored Fashion.

Dresses of Jacquard crepe made in very simple designs are quite an idea for girlish frocks for fall. The silk has about it more body than the ordinary quality of silk, and by reason of its patterns and the two tones of its coloring it is especially adapted to dresses for daytime wear. One of these youthful frocks was made of a Jacquard fabric that combined two tones of blue, and a hint of gold was hidden away in its weaving. The collars and cuffs were of the "Bramley blouse" variety and they were made of cream needlework with a narrow cream lace edging. The dress itself was of the one-piece fashion with a narrow belt to hold it in place and long sleeves to make it more appropriate for fall and winter wear.

The circular skirt comes bobbing its way into the realm of fashion with a peculiar persistency. It will not be downed no matter whether the American women keep on repeating that it is not consistent with their social plans and duties. Then this season it promises to have a certain well-defined vogue. Many of the newer models are showing not only the circular cut, but trimmings that accentuate the round and round tendency of the skirt lines. One of the newer models is of blue serge, that old and stand-by fabric. Its trimming is row after row of fine satin ribbon applied so that there is the smallest appreciable space between each separate row. Then the sleeves, which are bell shape, have the same design of ribbon applied to them. The waistlines are of the basque type, long and slightly fitted.

STYLES OF SPAIN ARE SEEN

Shawls of Brilliant Colorings Among the Winsome Articles of Apparel That Are on Display.

More than any other European nation, Spain is the heir of the Orient. Her architecture, her philosophy and her literature as well as her ornaments are all strongly tinged with the fine colors and dramatic designs which originated in the Near East.

Spain was the one great nation in Europe proper, conquered and held for centuries by an oriental people, and under the Moors she was the center of culture, learning, tolerance and art. When the Moor was finally driven from Spain in the reign of Ferdinand and Isabella, he left behind him great wealth, funds of learning and an almost universal love of beauty.

At least a form of this loveliness has been preserved in the Spanish peasant art. Fashions come, modes veer and customs change, but at regular periodical intervals, the world of fashion again discovers the charm of things Spanish.

LACY STREAMERS NOVEL IDEA

When the lace is arranged as streamers so that it can be swung around and used as a veil it gives a novel effect. It is said this will be one of the prevailing fall modes.

FADED AND GRIMY CLOTHES

Garments That Have Changed Color May Be Given New Lease of Life.

There comes a time in the life of many a garment of colored wash material when the color it once possessed is streaked and faded. The blue has turned a dirty oyster color, yellow is a streaked tan, green is more yellow than green, lavender is either very pale or actually turned to light blue through the action of washing powders on the lavender dye.

But don't forget that faded and grimy clothes may be dyed so as to give the garments a new lease on life. The color selected should be darker than the color of the old material, but this does not mean that it need be dull. It sometimes happens that a child's frock or suit has both become faded and is too small. Now, although there may be none of the original material with which to let it down, it is quite possible to dye a little plain material with the faded garment with which to mend it.

It is quite easy for the amateur to get interesting effects from the process known as tying and dyeing. To do this you tie a knot in the material before you put it in the dye vat so that the dye takes on an interesting design, leaving the part of the material within the knot free from dye. Silk dyed in this way makes interesting cushion tops or lamp shade covers, especially for the cottage or bungalow where you wish to gain interesting effects at small cost.

Looped Panels and Sashes.

Straight line dresses all have drapery of some sort, looped panels and sashes chiefly. The bateau neckline is retained, but the short sleeve has been superseded by the long wide open sleeves, sometimes of sheer fabric than the dress itself. There is, for instance, such a dress of black satin with sleeves and side draperies of black net embroidered in large design of silvery gray silk thread.

Millinery Fashions.

The Napoleonic influence is seen in the millinery collection of tricorne, marquis and continental effects. The Napoleonic reds are widely used, as are the multi-colored ribbons employed a century ago as insignia. The close-fitting turban a la Josephine is very picturesque and some poke shapes are shown with little plaitings and unusual flowers used as trimmings.

The popularity of the great modern Spanish authorship, the romance we unconsciously associate with the name of Spain, are all to be carefully considered by the designer of today.

All types of peasant art are receiving great attention, and in each of them is an interesting similarity to the others, and in all material of profound interest and importance.

Just now the shops are showing the Spanish shawls in the most gorgeous of colorings. Brilliant reds shot with sunset yellow, that might be the prized possession of any dark-eyed Castilian, and the adornment does not end with shawls. The combs, mantillas and mantillas are equally popular, if not so gaudily hued. Fashion has accepted these accessories as necessities to the present wardrobe.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

The newest note in blouses is the wide armhole.

Negligees on Oriental lines with long wing or panel sleeves and developed in brilliant-colored silks, are among the new things brought out.

BOY SCOUTS

Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

SCOUT LAWS IN CAMP.

Every boy scout attending the White Plains Council camp this summer, is given a little folder on the application of the scout law in camp.

Here are a few of the paragraphs discussing the different laws:

A Scout is Trustworthy.—A scout's honor is trusted in camp as well as elsewhere. The things you brought to camp belong to you and what the other campers brought belong to them. Do not take anything that does not belong to you without asking permission of the owner. If he loans you anything, you are trusted with it and are expected to return it in as good a condition as when taken to the place or person from whom borrowed. You are responsible for any camp tools or equipment you may use which are the property of the camp. Be careful with them and return them to their proper place. When on a hike with other scouts or alone, you are on your honor and expected to behave as a scout.

A Scout is Cheerful.—Smile, smile, smile. No long face in camp. It will cheer you up and also the other fellow. Do your work cheerfully and don't grumble at hardships nor shirk your duty. There are duties to be done in camp; go at them with a smile and you will work better and quicker. Time is saved by doing your task the best it can be done. Don't consider it done until it is done in the very best way.

A Scout is Thrifty.—The camp equipment has cost a great deal of money. It belongs to the scouts. How long it lasts, depends a great deal on how you use it. A scout does not destroy any property whether it belongs to himself or to another. Respect the rights of others by using their things in the right way. Make good use of your time in camp by learning something that will be of use to you. It isn't necessary to spend all your money because it has been given you or you have earned it. To save it from being lost or recklessly spent the camp bank is operated. Deposit it there.

BOY SCOUT WORK IN ALBANIA.

The first troop of boy scouts to be organized in Albania has recently been started in Tirana by an American Red Cross woman. The boys are deeply interested, and are quite as eager to do their daily good turn as their American brothers. Most of the boys are Musselmans and must wear a brimless hat, so that their faces may never be concealed from Allah.

ONE THING SHE HADN'T LOST HEARD AND HEDED APPEAL

Pupil's Statement of Fact Probably Gave Music Teacher Occasion for Deep Thought.

A well-known music teacher in Atlanta was giving a lesson to a talented but careless pupil and was rapidly losing all patience with her. Finally, at a most complicated part of a difficult piece, the pupil lifted her hands from the piano and made a wild dash for her handkerchief to stop a threatened sneeze. It was the last straw.

"Was there ever such a girl!" exclaimed the teacher, thrusting her own handkerchief at the offender. "You lose your position, you lose your fingering, you lose your handkerchief—you lose everything!"

"Not quite everything," said the pupil with a smile. "I haven't lost my temper."

Sexton Rather Spoiled Effect of Preacher's Discourse by His Prompt and Literal Obedience.

A country negro preacher was speaking at length to his congregation of the many things round us that are shrouded in mystery, and of which we know little. As he warmed to his theme, he became most eloquent, and frequently repeated the oft-quoted saying: "More light! Oh, for more light!"

His surprise may be imagined when, after one of these utterances, the old sexton, who had been dozing since the beginning of the sermon, woke with a start, then got up, tiptoed softly into the vestry, seized two additional candles and, ascending the pulpit stairs, placed them beside two already there, and in a whisper, heard all over the church claimed:

"Yo' shore got to do with it there ain't no mo'."
