HERITAGE HOUSE INN-GOING UP--As work continues on the Heritage House Inn west of Muleshoe on Highway 84, local residents are full of comments about "the very beautiful buildings" under construction. It is victorian style, and the inside will feature a number of heritage or pioneer decorations. Ken Smith, developer of the Heritage House Inn, from Lubbock, plans to have the Heritage House Inn ready to open by mid-September.

Heritage House Will Feature Pioneer Pix

Ken Smith, of Lubbock, who is the developer for the Heritage House Inn at the west edge of Muleshoe, is planning to add something unique to the main building at the Inn.

One feature of the main building will be a "Heritage Collage" featuring all types of pioneer pictures on the wall.

He has authorized Toni Eagle, manager of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, to be the receiving point for pioneer pictures. She will accept the pictures, have them copied, and return the original picture to anyone who would like to have some of their pioneer pictures permanently displayed on the walls of the new Heritage House Inn.

Mrs. Eagle emphasized that your pictures will not be harmed in any way, and will be returned to the owners as soon as they can be copied. Mrs. Eagle or her secretary, Lori Hanks, will accept the pictures from anyone who wishes to contribute a copy to the Heritage House Inn.

Scheduled for opening in mid-September, work has continued to progress on the Victorian type construction on West Highway 84. When open, the 51-unit Inn will be a definite asset to the entire community. It is expected to be ready for occupancy before the major hunting season in this area gets underway.

Muleshoe Grads Plan To Attend Lubbock Christian

Three recent graduates of Muleshoe High School are among more than 300 freshmen who have been accepted to attend Lubbock Christian College for the Fall 1984 semester, according to Randy Harman, director of admissions.

That group includes Jimmie Lee, Brenda Flowers, and Melissa Wagnon.

Lee, the son of Judy Gordon, is undecided on his major. Brenda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Flowers, will be a business major and Melissa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Wagnon, will be an elementary education major.

Lubbock Christian College is a four-year Liberal Arts institution of higher learning.

The college offers 22 bachelor's degree programs with an average enrollment of more than 1,000 students.

"Counties adjacent to the New Mexico line customarily get some 2,4-D or other herbicide spray damage every year," said Bailey County Agent Spencer Tanksley. "But, it usually isn't as much as we are finding this year."

Tanksley explained that it is legal to use the 2,4-D spray in New Mexico, and if it is not used very carefully, or at the right time, it will drift into Texas, destroying growth along its path.

Tanksley has been closely keeping up with the current damage situation in Parmer County, where up to 30,000 acres of cotton have been damaged or destroyed, many acres showing they are beyond any hopes of growing out of the damage sustained in recent weeks.

Texas Department of Agriculture officials have been in Parmer County for more than two weeks, checking fields, and trying to pinpoint the origination of the spray which has virtually wiped out a number of fields of cotton.

According to the TDA officials, who set up a field office in Friona, some 100 farmers in Parmer County, and part of New Mexico, have been affected by the herbicide drift.

Eleven of the 17 herbicide-pesticide specialists based in Texas with the Texas Department of Agriculture moved into Parmer County and set up a base station while they have been testing the fields in Parmer and surrounding counties.

Angela Lamb, head of the Agriculture Department's division office in Amarillo, says the state inspectors will be checking records of pesticide purchases and applications in the area in an attempt to determine who may have sprayed the chemical.

The suspected chemical, 2,4-D is a widely used herbicide that is marketed under a number of trade names. Investigators said they believe the weed killer was used in what is known as a butylester compound, a cheaper form of the herbicide that is applied in a mist rather than in droplets.

But, explained officials, because it is in a mist, the herbicide is more prone to getting caught by the winds and drifting, possibly for miles. Because of this danger, a number of states, including Texas, have outlawed the use of butylester compounds,

In a meeting on July 23, after the drift, the Parmer County commissioners passed a resolution prohibiting the use of butylester formulations of 2,4-D.

Some farmers expect to lose in excess of $45,000 in Parmer County this year.

On Thursday, a committee of five men was formed in Parmer County look into the legal aspects of the herbicide case. Bert Williams, a Farwell farmer, was named to chair the committee. He said they committee will be considering hiring a Houston law firm.

Turtle Race Has Interest Of Most People

Have you found your turtle yet? Are you feeding it a special potion, or food, getting ready for the Turtle Races Saturday morning, August 11?

Mike Hill, co-chairman of the Turtle Races for the Annual Mule Day Festival, says he expects many entries in the races which are rapidly becoming popular in this area.

His turtle, George, is training on fresh corn, right of the cob, and Jim Crawford is feeding one of the turtles fresh apples.

With all the recent showers, Hill says turtles can be found at the small ponds all throughout the area, and can be rapidly trained for the races. He suggests finding your turtle right away, and start the training so you can be ready for the races next Saturday.

It is anticipated that more than 100 turtles will be in the races, but, don't despair, the races will have different divisions, from the smallest of children to the adult division. So, you can get your turtle in the race, and perhaps win one of the trophies or ribbons to be presented.

Just in case you can't find your own turtle, reliable sources said an enterprising young man, Andy Crawford, will be having turtles for rent the morning of the races. So, plan to see Andy at Andy's Rent-A-Turtle, which is expected to be set up near the site of the races.

Horse Owner Appeals Order To Sell Animals

Although 29 horses were taken into protective custody on July 27 by the Lubbock Humane Society and the Bailey County Sheriff's office following charges of "Cruelty to Animals" filed against their owner, L.F. "Les" Bruns, 10 of the horses have now been moved to the Muleshoe Animal Clinic.

Dr. Dan Watkins told the Journal Friday evening that the five mares and five colts had been moved to the Animal Clinic for closer monitoring due to multiple problems. "The rest of the horses will be all right to leave north of town where they are," commented Dr. Watkins, "but, the 10 I moved to the animal clinic needed closer attention than I could give them trying to run back and forth all day."

Following a hearing conducted by Justice of the Peace Jack Bates on Thursday in the Bailey County courthouse, he ordered the animals sold, but, Gary Ward, attorney for Bruns, from Lubbock, filed an immediate appeal in an attempt to block the sale of the horses.

Justice of the Peace Bates announced his decision following testimony by Gail Gallagher of the Lubbock Humane Society, Muleshoe Animal Clinic veterinarian Dr. Dan Watkins and Bailey County Deputy Sheriff Hal Bynum.

Deputy Bynum signed the civil complaint last Friday before County Attorney Linda Elder, who presented the case to JP Bates.

Deputy Bynum testified that he had received several calls about the animals in about three weeks time and called the Lubbock Humane Society office to come to Muleshoe just the day before two dead horses were discovered in a ditch adjacent to the pens on Friday morning.

Dr. Watkins, who did an autopsy on the dead mare and colt, testified that neither animal had any food inside their stomach, or in their intestines, and had no fat, especially around their heart. He also told the court that the horses had hooves eight inches longer than is considered to be safe for the horses.

If convicted in county court, Bruns faces a punishment for the Class A misdemeanor of a fine not to exceed $2,000; confinement in jail for a term of not more than one year; or both fine and imprisonment.

A hearing has been set for Wednesday, August 8, on a charge of venue request by Ward, Bruns' attorney. He said the case will need to be moved out of Bailey County because of the publicity the case has received. Ward told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, "The case was tried on the front page of the Muleshoe Journal." (Ed. note: In fact, there has been no story concerning the horses in

Mrs. Payne will discuss the different categories or types of cheeses and will prepare two interesting cheese dishes.

Another topic on the show will be a demonstration on candlewicking, an old needlework technique that is becoming popular again. Thelma Craig, a homemaker from Albuquerque, has been candlewicking, as well as many other forms of needlework for many years, and she will show some of her items and talk about candlewicking and show the stitches involved.

Topics to be presented on August 9 and 12 include news from the fashion capitol, trapunto and part one of a pants fitting segments.

Fashion consultant Deborah Durham will discuss the many benefits of home sewing in the segment called "News from the Fashion Capitol".

Jewell Limacher, Extension Home Economist from Roswell will demonstrate how to do trapunto—a form of quilting where certain areas of design are stuffed or padded. The design areas are outlined and machine stitching, then stuffed. Trapunto can be used to decorate clothing as well as household items, such as pillows and wall hangings.

Susan Pletsch, a home economist and publisher with Palmer/Pletsch of Portland, Oregon will present a two-part segment on pants fitting based on her book "Pants For Any Body". The segment will conclude next week.

MRS. ANDREW SHELTON
(nee Chana Eubanks)

Chana Eubanks, Shelton Wed

Wedding vows exchanged by candlelight united in marriage Miss Chana Donice Eubanks and Andrew B. Shelton, Saturday, July 14 at 7 in the evening at Tennon Memorial Methodist Church. Rev. Gerald Pepper of Cushing, officiated at the traditional double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Eubanks of Mount Pleasant and Mrs. C.B. Shelton and the late C.B. Shelton of Honey Grove. The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Eubanks, Muleshoe.

Mrs. Joe Ed Brown, organist, presented nuptial selections as the guests were seated Robby Holcomb of Dallas, accompanied by Chris Reese at the piano, sang, "God, Woman and A Man" and "Through The Eyes of Love."

Vows were repeated before an altar of brass candelabra, with fresh greenery and gypso-philis. The center focal point was a half-crescent candelabra with matching spirals on each side. Roman columns held two massive arrangements of gladiolas. The couple stood before brass kneeling bench with a trinity candelabra to one side. Two nine-light candle trees completed the setting.

Escorted by her father, and given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a formal candlelight gown of imported organza with an overlay of chiffon. It featured a Queen Anne neckline and sheer bishop sleeves. The bodice and neckline were of re-embroidered alencon lace, accented with seed pearls. The lace circled the waist and dropped to a deep point in the back. The sheer bishop sleeves were open to the cuff to reveal an inner sleeve embellished with re-embroidered alencon lace. The cuffs were also of re-embroidered alencon lace. The sheer A-line skirt was gathered in the back to create a full cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of candlelight illusion was edged in Venise lace and attached to a Mantilla headpiece. The headpiece was covered with Venise lace and accented with seed pearls. Her shoes were candlelight lace covered with satin. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids, ivory roses, button poms and English ivy atop a white Bible, a gift from her parents.

Following tradition, for something old, the bride wore the gold wedding band with which her paternal great-grandmother was married. Something new was her wedding attire. She borrowed a pearl necklace and earrings from her maid of honor, Diane Maberry. She wore the blue garter also worn by her mother on her wedding day and carried a lucky six-pence in her shoe.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Diane Maberry of Plano. She wore a formal Victorian gown of wine taffeta, with an overlay of chiffon. It featured a high neckline with renaissance sleeves. The yoke was of English net and edged with a wide lace ruffle. The bodice was accented with a sweep train which was adorned with layers of lace ruffles and a satin bow. She carried a single wine rose.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Mike Shelton of Paris, Tx. Guests were seated by Steven Eubanks, brother of the bride, and Joe Zihlman of Commerce. The ushers also served as candle-lighters.

Each mother entered the sanctuary carrying a candle with which she lighted a family taper next to the unity candle. The bride and groom lighted the unity candle from these tapers. After lighting the unity candle, the couple knelt as Robby Holcomb sang, "The Lord's Prayer."

Guests were registered by Mrs. Paula Kerso of Cushing. The registration table was covered with an ecru cloth with lace overlay. It was accented with a gold "basket of light" with wine votive candles and silk flowers of varying shades of raspberry and wine. A brass compote held scrolls.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor. The bride's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth with an ecru underlay. It was centered with an arrangement of raspberry and wine carnations in a silver compote backed by a silver candelabra with ivory tapers. The three-tiered candlelight wedding cake was accented with roses and featured a small cupid between the columned separations. The top of the cake was adorned with a porcelain "Precibus Moments" bell surrounded by roses. Wedding cake was served by Mrs. Joyce Dugger of Commerce. Raspberry punch was served from a silver punchbowl by Mrs. Kim Williams of Cisco. Nuts and mints were served from crystal and silver appointments.

The groom's table was laid with an ecru lace cloth with raspberry underlay. The table was centered with an arrangement of candlelight gladiolas in a straw basket. A chocolate cake accented with roses and inscribed "Chana and Andy" was served by Mrs. Jackie Shelton, sister-in-law of the groom. Coffee was served from a silver coffee service by Charlotte Little. Nuts and mints were served from crystal and silver appointments.

Members of the house party were Mrs. Sharon Eubanks of Roxton, Tx. and Mrs. Betty Lemon of Carrollton, Tx., aunts of the bride. K.C. and Ella Eubanks of Roxton, cousins of the bride, and Brenda Pierson of Bovina.

Special guests included Mrs. Floyd Gray of Olton; Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Eubanks of Muleshoe, grandparents of the bride and Mrs. Minnie Blair, grandmother of the groom.

For a wedding trip to Dallas, the bride selected a grey two-piece dress with a tucked bodice and full long sleeves. She added matching accessories and an orchid corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

On the evening before the wedding, Mrs. C.B. Shelton, mother of the groom, honored the couple with a rehearsal dinner at Juan T's Restaurant.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Mt. Pleasant High School. She attended Baylor University for two years and is presently attending East Texas State University in Commerce. She is employed by Oak Manor Nursing Home in Commerce.

The groom graduated from Honey Grove High School and is now attending East Texas State University in Commerce where he is also employed.

Mrs. Elder said the horses are under the supervision of a veterinarian and are being fed adequately. According to Miss Gallagher, the horses are receiving eight bales of hay, plus a supplement in two daily feedings.

Dr. Watkins said to date, all the horses have survived, although some of the 10 currently being monitored at the Animal Clinic are in questionable condition.

He did stress, however, that no final decision had been made, but area farmers are expressing an interest in retaining the Houston attorneys.

It was estimated that some 75 Parmer County farmers met on Thursday at the Friona High School to discuss their options.

It was estimated that of the 30,000 acres of cotton damaged, at least 5,000 acres would be a total loss.

Tanksley has not completed his assessment of damage which is beginning to show up in Bailey County, but said that although some damage from herbicides shows up each year, the amount this year is considerably more than in years past.

Coventant Church Will Present

New Film Series

The film series featuring Dr. James C. Dobson, considered to be one of the nation's leading psychologists and also said to be an expert in family counseling, will be shown at New Covenant Church on Wednesday, August 15, following each Wednesday, consecutively, for six weeks. The film will begin at 7 p.m., according to Jimmy Low, pastor.

He said the film is entitled "Focus on the Family" and has been viewed by over four million individuals since it's release two years ago, and over 15,000 churches have presented the seven-part series.

Dobson's presentations were filed live during his family life seminars. The films include "The Strong Willed Child," "Shaping the Will Without Breaking the Spirit," "Christian Fathering," "Preparing for Adolescence," and "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women."

"This series offers churches and schools one of the nation's most popular authorities on family life in a format that combines information, entertainment and inspiration," says Francis W. Heatherly, senior vice president of Word, Inc.'s book and educational products division.

Best-selling author of seven books including his latest "Straight Talk To Men and Their Wives," Dobson is associate clinical professor of Pediatrics at the University of Southern California School of Medicine and a member of the attending staff of Children's Hospital of Los Angeles in the division of medical genetics. His radio program, also entitled "Focus on the Family," is heard in almost every part of the United States through syndication to 200 stations.

YOGURT REPLACES MILK FOR LACTASE-DEFICIENT-- People who suffer from milk intolerance can reap the nutritional benefits of milk -- without side effects -- by eating yogurt, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Dr. Dymple Cooksey. Lactase-deficiency is a fairly common problem, especially among non-caucasians, which usually surfaces between the ages of ten and 20. Yogurt can provide a solution to this problem since it is well tolerated by the lactase-deficient and contains about the same amount of protein, calcium and riboflavin as milk, she says.

Unrefrigerated Milk

A new type of milk product geared to today's lifestyles is being introduced in some Texas markets, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

"Ultra high temperature (UHT) milk is real, fresh, fluid Grade A milk that is heated to 280 degrees F, quickly cooled to room temperature and then packaged in a five-layer, aseptic package," explains Dr. Dymple Cooksey.

UHT milk can now be found in the juice section of some grocery stores. "The combination of ultra high temperature processing and aseptic packaging gives the milk an unrefrigerated shelf life of months," she adds.

The UHT process does not involve adding preservatives, and neither the flavor nor the nutritional value of the milk is changed, says the nutritionist.

What has changed is the convenience. For example, the lowfat white milk could be ideal for one or two-person households or for consumers who use small quantities of milk. Once opened, it will stay fresh twice as long as refrigerated milk, Cooksey notes.

People with busy lifestyles and those who have little time to shop may also find UHT milk a convenience, since it can be stored on a shelf or kept unopened in the refrigerator for months.

UHT milk is also handy to have on hand in case you run out of milk, or for cooking and baking needs, but it's not designed to replace refrigerated milk entirely, she says.

Chocolate, strawberry or orange creme flavored lowfat UHT milks are available in half pint containers. These flavored milks could be good alternatives to other beverages for children, since they offer essential vitamins, minerals and calcium, advises the nutritionist.

Cooksey believes the availability of UHT milk may mean that more people will use milk for sack lunches, picnics, traveling and other situations where refrigeration is a problem.

It can be carried along just like other non-refrigerated beverages and quick-chilled or served over ice. Or it can be frozen the night before packing it into a lunch box. By noon it will have thawed, and the cold milk will be ready for drinking.

SANDHILLS PHILOSOPHER

Editor's note: The Sandhill Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek comes up with a deficit-reducing plan he offers to both parties.

Dear editor:
As everybody knows but doesn't pay much attention to, the Federal government everyday spends far more than it takes in, and as everybody ought to know, it's the best way to go broke.

The deficit right now is 175 billion dollars or 200 billion or some such figure. Nobody's sure. You're in worse shape than your ealize when you don't even know how much you're in the hole.

And the deficit is just how much we're over-drawn this year. The total national debt is over a trillion or some such un-graspable figure and goes higher every time the government writes another check on borrowed money.

The Democrats say the only way to reduce the deficit is to raise taxes. The Republicans say no it's not but after the election they'll consider the matter.

Others say yeah, raise taxes and Washington will find some place to spend it on some other programs and the deficit will continue to rise.

I have a proposal, arrived at after long and hard thought while neglecting my farming duties, a sacrifice it's no trouble at all to make.

Congress should pass a special tax, say a 1-cent sales tax or a sur tax on income or both or something else, and all such revenue should be earmarked absolutely for payment on the deficit. Can't be used for anything else. Not for social programs, not for the military, not for highways, not for dams, not for Central America, not even for the new office building for Congress. Has to be paid on the deficit the minute it comes in.

The only way to balance a budget is to start doing it. I have a notion that American people would approve such a special tax if they knew it was to be applied on the deficit and no place else.

I offer the idea free of charge to Mr. Mondale and Mr. Reagan. Of course if they want to pay me something for it, but not out of government funds, I can be reached in care of Muleshoe Journal.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Assembly Of Arts Council Will Sponsor Regional Meet

The Texas Assembly of Arts Councils will sponsor a regional meeting for the South Plains Region in the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce Conference Room, 14th and Avenue K, on August 22, 1984. The meeting will be hosted by the Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council and will begin at 9:30 a.m. Substantial support for this year's series of meetings has been provided by a grant from the Meadows Foundation of Dallas.

The regional meeting will provide information on grant writing, proposed revisions to the State Arts Plan, audience development, and visual and performing arts programs available for touring through the Texas Arts Exchange. In addition, those attending will have the opportunity to share information on arts activities in their communities.

A representative from the Texas Commission on the Arts in Austin will discuss the proposed revisions to the State Arts Plan and the Commission's grants process. Beginning at 10:15 a.m., representatives from any arts organization within the region may schedule an appointment to meet with the TCA rep to discuss specific grant requests, or other items of interest. Participants should bring a draft of their grant request to the meeting.

Various aspects of audience development will be discussed by Peter Fox, Jr., President, Texas Assembly of Arts Councils. His topics include "Your Organization's Image, Knowing Your Audience, Developing a Working Relationship with the News Media, and Pitfalls and Limitations."

Allan Longacre, Director Texas Arts Exchange, will discuss visual and performing arts programs available to arts organizations through the arts exchange. Mr. Longacre will be available to meet with individuals prior to and following his 11:30 presentation.

Cathy Crist Talcott, Executive Director of the Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council, is Chairman of the South Plains Region. The 20-county region includes the following communities: Brownfield, Floydada, Lamesa, Leveland, Littlefield, Lockney, Lorenzo, Lubbock, Muleshoe, Plainview, Post, Slaton, Tahoka, and other communities in the area.

The meeting is free and open to anyone interested in the arts. For further information, or to schedule an appointment, please contact the Assembly office in Austin, 512/474-8495.

EATING OUT

By Rose Hughes
MORE than a million Americans will be going abroad in the next few months, most of them to Europe, and eating out there can be an expensive business.

FIRST, the price of food in most European countries is about twice that in the U.S. That means restaurants pay about twice what U.S. restaurants pay for the food they buy. There are exceptions in some countries, with local specialties.

SECOND, the first-class restaurant in Europe attempts to do things on a truly first-class level. Therefore, Americans who feel they are on a once-in-a-lifetime trip and want the best will pay plenty in deluxe restaurants.

THEY will also be "taken" if they obviously are on the trip of a lifetime and leave things to the waiter or waitress--especially in the Latin countries.

THE service charge, usually fifteen percent but more in some places, will be automatically added to the bill. No big tip is necessary after paying this.

SALADS come at a premium in most European restaurants; generally speaking, Europeans don't go in for salads as heavily as do Americans. Thus when ordering a la carte salads, ask the price in advance. It may be about as high as the entree!

UNLESS you are in northern Europe, drink bottled water. Hygiene standards are higher in northern Europe. Drink table wine or the local beer to save money.

FINALLY, if you enter a restaurant and no one speaks English and the menu is a puzzle, smile, and leave.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

By Edward Thorlund
The pessimistic spring stock market fooled ninety percent of the broker-forecasters. A few months ago they were almost unanimous in declaring the bull market wasn't finished.

The bull market may, even now, not be finished, but the rise in interest rates and the obvious refusal of the Federal Reserve Board to follow President Reagan's advice, have frightened away investors.

Investors who can make a better return in the bond market are turning to bonds, even though profits and earnings continue to be very good, and even though few expect a recession soon.

Others are afraid of even higher interest rates, which they fear, in turn, will depress business and are staying on the sidelines, even while quarterly reports remain very good.

It's an odd and mixed picture, and it may be that the much-talked summer rally will not appear, and that the market is really awaiting November's election results.

But the market dropped so low in late May, it would be very rare if a corrective rally did not take place, and odds are good that a summer rally will be triggered by congressional action to reduce the deficit.

Amid good car-sales figures, good home-sales figures, and good earnings reports, the market has failed to respond strongly. The huge deficit and higher interest rates are obviously preventing what otherwise would most certainly be a good bull market.

It's an odd and mixed picture, and it may be that the much-talked summer rally will not appear, and that the market is really awaiting November's election results.

But the market dropped so low in late May, it would be very rare if a corrective rally did not take place, and odds are good that a summer rally will be triggered by congressional action to reduce the deficit.

Amid good car-sales figures, good home-sales figures, and good earnings reports, the market has failed to respond strongly. The huge deficit and higher interest rates are obviously preventing what otherwise would most certainly be a good bull market.

When potatoes were first introduced to Europe, people were skeptical and ate only the leaves.

Letter To The Editor

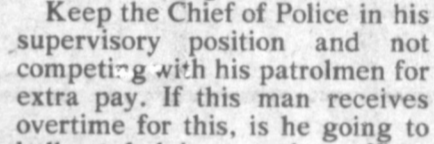

Dear Editor:
Seeing our Chief of Police again working a carnival shocks me. Our Chief is salaried and paid amply for his services. Our City is going in the hole paying for his "Overtime".

The City of Muleshoe receives payment from the carnivals for the services of an off duty officer and the Chief's present salary, the City must come up with the extra. Likewise, a patrolman who receives an hourly wage who has overtime (which the carnivals pay), the City comes out ahead.

If the Chief has so much energy, lets see him working nights and weekends to help his officers working alone.

Keep the Chief of Police in his supervisory position and not competing with his patrolmen for extra pay. If this man receives overtime for this, is he going to balk at helping another officer because there isn't extra pay involved? The Chief should not receive overtime thus eliminating such a possibility. If he can't survive on the salary Muleshoe pays him, then he should move on to a more lucrative position. Keep the Chief where he belongs and not begrudge his officers their little extra pay.

Researchers Help Farmer To Combat Boll Weevil

Weevils and other woes associated with cotton production have been a major concern to the scientists at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock. While the station celebrates its 75th birthday on the High Plains this year, Lubbock researchers note the progress made in boll weevil suppression.

"For a long time, there was not a boll weevil threat to the High Plains area," said Dr. D. R. Rummel, entomologist at the Lubbock station.

The first boll weevil was found above the Caprock in 1959 and it was not until the 1963 growing season that severe weevil damage occurred in fields along the eastern margins of the High Plains.

A cooperative boll weevil suppression program was initiated in 1964 by the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the USDA, the Texas Department of Agriculture and Texas Tech University. Rummel said the basis for the program was to prevent the western spread of the boll weevil into the High Plains.

The program has had total cooperation from federal agencies and farmers throughout the area, Rummel said. "It is the largest cooperative insect control program in relation to a row crop and has continued longer than any other program."

Now titled the Diapause Boll Weevil Suppression Program, it is designed to destroy potential overwintering weevils before they enter overwintering habitat in the fall. The diapause control technique is based on the theory that insecticide application just before and during the harvest period will reduce the overwintering boll weevil population.

Now in its 21st year, the program is continuing, Rummel said. "From an economic standpoint as well as an environmental standpoint, the program has been a success." Money has been saved through the reduction of insecticides use. Insecticides are used in a manner to have least impact on beneficial insects, and their populations rebound each season, he said. "We haven't seen any detrimental effects to wildlife as a result of this program."

Rummel said the boll weevil suppression program is unique in the cooperation of those directly and indirectly involved. The effort is financed by producers paying a small price per bale of cotton they produce and the USDA matching that amount.

"Farmers are paying into the program although many of them have never seen a boll weevil. They pay to prevent the insect," Rummel said. "Many support the program as a form of inexpensive insurance to keep the boll weevil off their farms."

Research conducted at the TAES at Lubbock has allowed for improvement of the program through the years, Rummel said. "We are now treating a much smaller acreage."

Changes made in the program are based on a better understanding of the insect, he said. Scientists have found that the insecticide applications once applied in August and September may be postponed until late September or early October. "There is no need to start treating too early. Under average fall temperatures, few weevils leave the cotton for overwintering sites prior to late September," Rummel said.

As the boll weevil suppression program and research continue, more recent work is concerned with the bollworm, Rummel said. "Three to four years ago we knew little about the behavior of the bollworm in the High Plains. We're working now to get a better understanding of the ecology of this pest."
