More than 1,000 Expected to Meet in D. C.

OIC Leaders to Discuss Minority Economic Plan in Washington Convocation This Month

Washington, D.C.—A "bread and butter" economic plan for Blacks and other minorities in the 1970s will be a major item on the agenda for the annual Convocation of the Opportunities Industrialization Centers, according to OIC Founder-Chairman, Dr. Leon H. Sullivan.

Approximately 1,000 representatives of OIC programs in 105 cities and 40 states are expected to assemble in Washington for the three-day meeting, February 13-16.

In addition, more than 100 industrial leaders who serve on OIC Industrial Advisory Councils throughout the country will participate in the Convocation's "Industry Day" program.

Convocation keynote speakers include: Roy Wilkins, Executive Secretary NAACP; Vernon Jordan, Executive Director, National Urban League; Reverend Ralph D. Abernathy, President, Southern Christian Leadership Council; Richard Gerstenberg, Chairman of the Board, General Motors Corporation; Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson; Paul Austin, President, Coca Cola, and William L. Henry, Executive Vice President, Gulf Oil Corp.

Dr. Sullivan said the main theme and thrust of the Convocation will be a "new pragmatism of progress" based on the involvement of industry, government, and the people, through OIC, to open new economic opportunities for forgotten Americans—the Blacks, the Browns, and poor whites.

"There will be full participation of all segments of America in our Convocation, in a concerted and determined effort to develop support for a massive movement of self-help and self-determination in the 1970s that will be the beginning of the reduction of rising unemployment, the eradication of blight and ghettoism and poverty in the nations," Dr. Sullivan said.

"We're not going to Washington just to talk about the economic problems of Blacks, Mexican-Americans, Indians, Puerto Ricans and poor whites," Dr. Sullivan stated. "We are going to Washington to develop support for a plan—the OIC plan—

Miss Phillis George of Denton, Miss America of 1971, has been named Chairman of the 1972 Easter Seal Campaign in Texas. Miss George is pictured with six-year-old Jennifer Johnson of Fort Worth, who has learned to walk at an Easter Seal rehabilitation center, and is one of the 21,562 crippled children helped by the Easter Seal Society.

As State Easter Seal Chairman, Phyllis joins with 234 local Easter Seal Chairmen and Representatives throughout Texas who are participating in the annual funds appeal of the Texas Easter Seal Society. Last year, 21,562 crippled children and adults in Texas received rehabilitation and other services rendered by the Texas Society through a statewide network of affiliated Easter Seal Society which includes 19 treatment centers.

Campaign Underway Here for Legalized Liquor-by-the-Drink

There will be a lot of things happening in 1972, and to prove that, backers of legalized mixed drinks within the city limits of Lubbock filed an application for petition forms with Frank Guess, Lubbock County Clerk, Tuesday morning of this week.

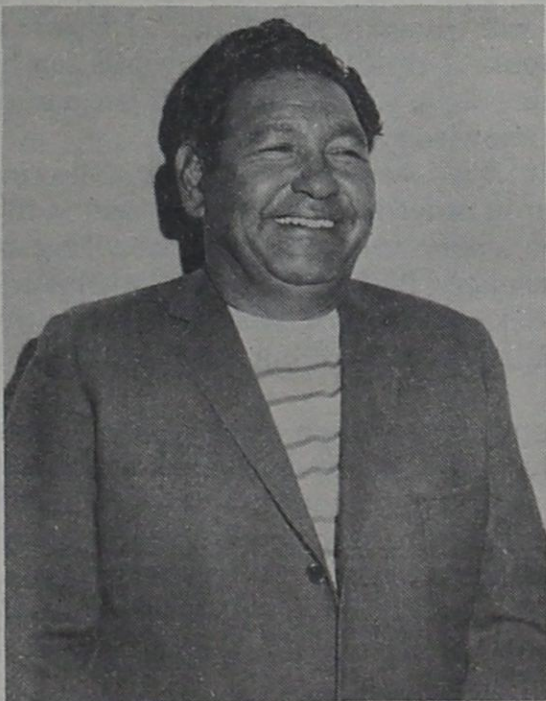

The group was led by attorney Gerald L. Anderson, who is serving as the coordinator of the well organized effort to legalize the sale of mix drinks. At the presentation, he was assisted by Roger Loter, local restaurant owner, in Guess' office on the second floor of the Lubbock County Court House.

The County Clerk made it known that the petitions would be dated Feb. 3, Thursday, and today would be the first day on which backers could obtain signatures and that the petition would have to be back in the Clerk's office March 4, (30 days hence) containing 25 per cent of the qualified voters in the 1968 general election.

Approximately 10,500 signers of the petition will be needed in order to require county commissioners to call an election. Tuesday morning there were at least 35 names of local physicians, lawyers, restaurant owners, clergymen, social workers, businessmen and other people who had signed the original petition. The special effort is being supported by a group of people calling themselves Citizens for Enforceable Liquor Laws. A spokesman for the group said an extensive campaign will be conducted to secure enough names.

Joe G. Trujillo Files for School Board Post Here

Joe G. Trujillo, a plaster and stucco contractor, has filed for the Lubbock school trustee election. Mr. Trujillo will run for Place 2 for a six-year term.

The new candidate has lived in Lubbock for nine years. He is active in various organizations. He is on the executive committee of the Community Action Board and holds membership in the Amett-Benson Neighborhood Council, VFW, American GI Forum, and Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church.

Trujillo and his wife have nine children, seven of which are still at home. They have children enrolled in school ranging from the pre-school program through college. They reside at 2807 Dartmouth.

Brown, special assistant to President Nixon; Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Inc.; Samuel Jackson, general assistant secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development; and Mayor Edward Bevins of Inkster, Mich. The party, which was hosted by Black & White Scotch, preceded a "tribute to Robert Brown" for the benefit of sickle cell anemia research.

Which Way Will the City of Lubbock Go?

It will be only four Saturdays and five days before our second anniversary of the drastic May 11, 1970 tornado is remembered when a new mayor and two city councilmen will be elected to administer city business April 8th of this year.

Looking ahead at what and which way our city fathers will travel, two years after that dark evening in May of 1970 when 26 lives were lost and millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed will be very interesting. It's true, progress has been made in building back some of the ruins which engulfed our city. There are numerous building projects underway, including businesses and homes. Our traffic department has been doing its part to make our city a better place in which to drive to and from our destinations. Bond money has been allocated for many projects. All of this, and many other items, has played an important role in bringing us back to par and even bettering our city image on the South Plains. This is good!!

At this time, however, we should ask ourselves which way will we travel as a people—as citizens of the Hub City and the South Plains. We have built buildings and thoroughfares, but we've not made much progress in developing our many citizens who, too, were shocked by the May 11 event.

There's no doubt about it, city fathers elected on April 8th will have a tremendous task in bringing all citizens into the mainstream of life. This is a hard task and many obstacles will be thrown in the path of progress.

Several months ago some attention was given to the Human Resource Commission. It even made the City Council agenda and was well received. At our last contact, the city manager was given orders to start looking for an executive director for such a commission. This, apparently, has lost its bite. We must remember, too, that several score of names was submitted by citizens of East Lubbock when Dr. F.L. Lovings was asked by Mayor James Granberry to submit names to the council for consideration as members of the board of directors.

Now there are such items as the garbage tax petition by the League of Women Voters, as well as a new petition on liquor by the drink issued this week. And with the new threat of young voters (18 to 20 years old), including our five high schools, Texas Tech University and Lubbock Christian College students; Lubbock will take on a new demision as an urban community.

The Lubbock community is no longer a seventy-five square mile area of non-involvement. Rather, it has become a community in which many of its citizens will be watching City Hall. There is a tremendous challenge for those elected come this April.

Which way will the City of Lubbock travel this year is a sixty-four dollar question. Problem solving this year will have to be done in a different manner. Regardless of whether it is picking up trash in Green-Fair Manor or mopping up water in Southwest Lubbock after a six inch rain storm. Whether it be chasing rats in an apartment complex in the poor areas or warning citizens of a possible tornado, or answering the problems of unemployed and reacting to the demand that our economy and community must add more industry, all these problems will have to be dealt with. Those elected officials—as well as those who remain in office—will have a challenge in deciding which

by T. J. Patterson

Ronnie Littleton, a blue-chipper in schoolboy football in the State of Texas, is an intelligent young man and has a lot on the ball on the grid-iron. This writer, as was the case with Lawrence Williams, another outstanding player from the Wichita Falls Coyote squad, had the opportunity to talk with Ronnie last Saturday about coming to Texas Tech. This was our second visit, as he was a participant in the Caprock Holiday Basketball Tournament here earlier.

Being a former resident of Wichita Falls—a place where I grew up and finished high school—it is always a pleasure to talk with young people the caliber of Ronnie and Lawrence.

In our conversation last Saturday, and being rather truthful with the young man who is outstanding on defense as well as offense, we talked about what Texas Tech could do for him and what he could do for it. He said one thing that impressed me a great deal. It was; "I want to keep the 'family' going." This, of course, meaning that he enjoys being associated with Lawrence. You know, they'd make a great team for the fighting Red Raiders. Aside from the grid-iron aspect, he (Ronnie) is quite impressed with the College of Business Administration as was Lawrence.

Thought of the Week: "Give to the world the best that you have, and the best will come back to you. Give love, and love to your heart will flow, a strength in your utmost need. Have faith, and a score of hearts will show their faith in your work and deed."

This column would like to remind all of you who haven't yet registered to vote that you have an opportunity to register the year round. Under the new registration law, which was passed in 1971, voters may register anytime during the way Lubbock will go in finding a possible solution.

To think about it, however, is a challenge in itself. The above mentioned problem areas and many more will have to be dealt with. We must remember that a lot of politics will be played and a possible ex-city administrator may even be running for the mayor's post. All of this and more will decide which way the City of Lubbock will go in the rest of the "Soaring '70's."

year. But to vote in any election, you must be registered at least 30 days before you cast your ballot.

As I see it, if you are not registered at this time, you have this month to register if you are going to vote in the upcoming School Board election on April 1st and the city election on April 8th—along with the previously mentioned "liquor by the drink" election which will come up in the same time period.

Let's all get registered! As I told a group at Texas Tech last week, It's a must that we all get out and register in order to vote!

Nikki Giovanni, a Black, well-educated poet said in Ebony magazine this month, "The fight in the world today is the fight to be an individual, the fight to live out your own damn ego in your own damn way." She continued by saying in the article, "I believe in a nation built on individualism. If I allow you to be yourself and you allow me to be myself, then we can come together and build a strong union."

This, to me, makes a lot of sense. Before reading this article, I told a group of Texas Tech students that there is a need for strong individualism. No brother can help another unless he is economically ready to deal with the present system.

On the other hand, I am often times reminded of Harry Stokley, Jr.'s concern about exposing our young Blacks in early childhood about the idea of images and symbols in various child care programs.

This writer, and perhaps many other Black men and women in West Texas, has been concerned about Black unity and has worked untiringly to create such a thing. Now, however, it is time for every Black (man and woman) to upgrade himself economically—to help the Black image—by starting with himself. Yes, Sister Giovanni, we need more individualism. This way we can get ready to deal with the system.

Fight

Men starts fighting, under the most adverse conditions, suffering the greatest trauma he will ever experience, for survival as soon as he leaves the protection of his mother's womb. He leaves a sheltered environment, which has the correct atmospheric pressure, dispenses his food properly, and keeps him comfortable because of the proper temperature. He is suddenly thrust from this Utopia into living hell and he must fight to survive. It is essential for him to adjust immediately to this new environment or die. There is no time to think how it was a few moments ago. His body must adapt to this strange temperature and barometric pressure and his small lungs must bear the pain from the life-giving air that results from the painful slap on his rear end. The next painful event is to learn to ingest and digest food for himself. In those fleeting moments, God and nature have given man the fortitude and knowledge to fight for survival under all conditions—adverse and pleasant.

Some people never learn to fight. They will either take small pittances, betraying their neighbors, or follow blindly like a caterpillar. Sometimes when you run across a row of caterpillars turn the leader so his head will face the tail of the last caterpillar, making a circle. Regardless of how much food is within that circle, or immediately outside, the caterpillars will continue to go round and round until they starve to death because they haven't been made to fight for survival. So many people are like the circling caterpillars.

We must be able to fight in order to live in this complicated world. I don't mean the races fighting violently, but I mean we must search our souls and fight to rid ourselves of any traits that will cause strife and destroy unity. United is the only way to survive. Some Blacks, as they want to be called, will take issue with the following but regardless to their prejudices and insecurities, it is true. We must share knowledge about each other because the unknown is what causes fear and knowledge will eliminate that fear. . . I believe it is in the Book of Hosea where the words can be found, "Our people will be destroyed because of the lack of knowledge."

We must arm ourselves with the following ammunition in order to wage a good fight in this jet age: the ability to read and a knowledge of Physics, Chemistry, Biology, English, Mathematics, History of all kinds—not just Afro or Black History, the Social Sciences, and last but not least, Etiquette.

We get up tight so often when our students—Black, Brown, and White—are failed because of attitude. I have no sympathy for those students because I have experiences rank rudeness and impoliteness while listening to and being around some of them. That type of attitude will not only make them fail in life but will, in some instances, get them murdered.

Fight by using that big muscle between your ears, but first it must be developed. Nothing is more annoying than to read about or hear a person giving advice about something he has no knowledge of, and if he is challenged he will rave like a babbling lunatic.

Unity should be the aim or game that we all are fighting for. There is nothing more beautiful or harmonious than the teamwork aboard a combat ship composed of a crew of several Ethnic groups. There is no time to wonder if Sam has a tail, or if Mike smells like a dog, or if Manuel has pepper seeds in his stool. This group has been organized as a unit and functions as one. That is what we must do in life.

O. L. Slaton Junior High Principal, Jack Shackles, Appreciates Parents Cooperation

Jack Shackles, O.L. Slaton Jr. High School's principal, was elevated to his administrative post July 15, 1970. He had served the previous year as counselor in the school.

For the remainder of the summer in 1970, Shackles worked to perfect the individual student schedules. Then, just a few days before the school term was to commence, a federal court order changed some of the district boundaries. Some of Slaton's seventh and eighth grade students were transferred to Struggs Jr. High, and nearly half of his ninth grade class came from Dunbar. Out went the old class schedules, and the new principal and his teachers rescheduled the individual students almost overnight.

Shackles started his teaching career in Lubbock in 1958 when he took a teaching assignment at Smylie Wilson Jr. High School. He continued his association with Wilson Jr. High until 1969, when he transferred to the Slaton counseling position. While at Wilson, he served as industrial arts and social studies teacher and later as counselor.

The Slaton principal came to Lubbock from Texarkana, Texas, where he was owner-manager of a glass company. He holds a bachelor's degree from East Texas State University and a master's degree from Texas Tech. He had done post-graduate work at Texas Tech. He is a veteran of World War II.

There are 728 students enrolled at Slaton, with 37 teachers plus a supportive staff. The assistant principal is Merron Teague, former activities director at Estacado and teacher at Dunbar. Shackles makes a strong point that he and his staff are concerned with the education of youngsters—he states that he pays little attention to percentage figures of ethnic groups enrolled, but he is vitally interested with the success of the school program for all of the students. He stresses his appreciation of the cooperation that parents have given the school.

The principal found time recently to take a refresher course in flying, and has been able to get his pilot's license renewed. His wife, Elizabeth, is a fifth grade teacher at Parsons School. The couple have two grown children and one grandchild.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

This week, and next, is the period of decision for Texas Tech's embattled basketball team. In the space of 12 too-short days the Red Raiders play four conference games—and three of them are on the road. Arkansas, A&M and Baylor. It is almost mandatory that Tech win two of the three games, no easy task.

Had the Raiders beaten SMU last Saturday, they would have been in a commanding position. As it is, they are fighting for their lives. The momentum they had going for them has been spent.

The one thing in their favor is the schedule. When this two-week period is over, Tech will have played five of its seven road games, only three at home. Thus, from a schedule standpoint, the Raiders will be going downhill, while the other contenders face the demanding chore of winning on the road.

The loss to SMU may have come as a surprise to many fans, but not to Polk Robison. Polk has seen too many Pony teams over the years. "Doggone," he snorted Saturday night, "SMU always seems to come up with a great shooting outfit. They move the ball well and they're quick."

George Davidson, new Tech assistant, is another who wasn't too surprised. "You could see it coming this week," he declared after the loss.

Gerald Myers, for whom the loss was a crushing blow, said that the team hadn't had a good workout after the Texas (victory) game. "We just couldn't get them up. They weren't aggressive. We just didn't have anybody who could get anything going. Maybe if we'd have had David Johnson he'd have got it going."

Time is running short for the boxers who are entering the Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by the Lubbock Police Department. The annual event, that was resumed a couple of years ago after a hiatus of several years, gets underway week from today (Thursday).

Lt. John Arnold of the PD has done a good job of building interest and a host of promising young hopefuls has been prepping for the matches. If you like good, free-swinging action, you'll love the Golden Gloves.

Just what Lubbock will have in the way of a team going to the state tournament in Fort Worth isn't known right now, but that's what this tournament is all about. If it's anything like those in the past, you can bet that the Hub City will have a representative squad.

Attrition has set in at bowling lanes in the city and now there are only three left. The biggest demise, of course, was Fiesta Fowl, which only some four or five years ago became a stop on the PBS tour, a prestigious event.

But Ben Brown of Lubbock Bowling Club believes that the loss of bowling alleys has really strengthened the remaining ones.

"It didn't matter to me, because we had our clientel, but really, the remaining bowling alleys are working more closely together to promote the sport," Ben stated. "There's an increase in bowling activity and a lot of new faces. We are really just getting started."

As new bowling faces turn up, the older, more familiar ones, don't go away. Instead, the three alleys left are building new interest on top of the long-time bowling public, much like new snow on a ski slope.

"High average competitive bowling isn't as high now as it used to be," Ben declared. "A lot of the bowlers who used to carry high averages are not bowling as much, nor scoring as high, as they used to. I guess age has something to do with it, that and families and jobs."

One of the brightest new stars on the local bowling scene is Bruce Jobe, a Tech graduate who carries a 211 average. Another is Bob McGregor, who joined the PBA tour.

The local women are looking forward right now to the Reddy Kilowatt tournament, which will run for two weeks in May. This is a big event in Lubbock, with bowlers coming here from Oklahoma and New Mexico.

"They leave a lot of money here," Ben observed.

Recruiting is the name of the game and next week marks the start of when high school players can begin signing letters of intent. The competition for a bumper crop of promising players apparently will be more intense this year than ever.

Tech is reported to be in the running for a number of blue chippers, headed by Ronnie Littleton of Wichita Falls. But word reaching these ears is that SMU and TCU have really entered the jousting and could make the biggest dent in the stars that Tech hopes to land.

Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma, because of their records and reputation, always can be expected to get their share, while the closer Houston gets to a conference schedule, the tougher the Cougars will get. The outcome of the wars will be interesting—and Tech's future could be made, or broken, on this year's crop.

The Roundup—Quick, now, who was the fourth starter in that great World War II Army backfield of Glen Davis, Dock Blanchard and Arnold Tucker? . . . Chris Blocker, former Tech golf captain and pro tour bowler, has moved his residence to Austin. He is part owner of a club in Florida. . . Did you remember that, in 1961-62, when Tech last won a conference title in basketball, the Raiders won six of seven games on the road? And, at the same time, they lost two games at home—to SMU and TCU? . . . Tech's longest winning streak in basketball was in the 1954-55 season. The Raiders won 10 straight. . . Meadowbrook Golf Pro Jay McClure is thrilled with the play on his course, despite cold weather. "As cold as it was the other day, we had 150-160 golfers playing!" he exclaimed joyfully. . . Somebody forgot to tell the Weatherman that baseball practice was supposed to start Tuesday. . . Former Athlete at Dunbar Files Writ of Habeas Corpus

A former basketball star at Dunbar High School, Marc Wilson, filed an application for a writ of habeas corpus last week in the 140th District Court seeking a reduction in bonds, totaling $17,500.

Wilson has been in the Lubbock County jail since December 27 on a charge of burglary of the Sears Appliance Store, 2610 50th Street, and for two charges of receiving and concealing stolen property from a men's store in Brownwood and Mullins TV Lab in Lubbock.

In his application, he stated that he had been held without benefit of an attorney and that the bonds were too high and unreasonable.

He had been a student on a scholarship at West Texas State University at Canyon, Texas.

Afro-American History Notes for Busy Newspaper Readers: Sojourner Truth, 1797-1885—"A Pilgrim of Freedom." As historian D.P. Ross puts it, "She began life as Isabella, but lived it as Sojourner Truth. It became her role to be the first black woman orator to speak out against Slavery."

Unable to read or write, Sojourner traveled through Connecticut, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kansas, speaking to thousands of people from every race, creed and walk of life. Miss Truth believed herself to be a "Pilgrim of God" whose one mission was to free her people from slavery.

Owing to her strong character and acid intelligence, she became one of the most compelling anti-slavery speakers of her day, meeting at one time or other such outstanding white abolitionists as Gerit Smith, Parker Pillsbury, Lyman and Harriet Beecher Stowe. Only Frederick Douglass outshone her in eloquence, scholars report. At one time she was received in the White House by President Lincoln.

Sojourner's deep, bass voice, her fierce intelligency, sense of drama and the utter sincerity of her speeches quickly spread her fame through out the North and astounded an unbelieving South. "I felt so tall within—I felt as if the power of the nation was with me," she cried out at one time.

Many times efforts were made to silence her. Though beaten and stoned, she kept crying out for woman's suffrage and freedom. Some authorities say she was the founder of the women's Liberation movement. She wore across her chest a satin banner bearing the words, "Proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." Deeply compelled to wander from state to state, often without proper food or rest, Sojourner Truth lived up to her new name, staying in one place only long enough to proclaim the truth of freedom and move on.

Negro Life and Achievement Week will be observed in the Midland area this year, culminating on Saturday, February 12, at Carver High School with a program that bids to be the "best yet." Secretary of the Interior Rogers C.B. Morton has announced that the Frederick Douglass home in the nation's capitol will be formally dedicated February 14, "honoring the internationally known 19-Century statesman, equal rights leader, orator and educator," as well as officially opening the home as a unit of the National Park System.

Human Rights Day was observed by the city of Hobbs, Sunday, Jan. 16. It was held at the Christian Methodist Church, under the direction of Mrs. Eloise Hatchett of the public school system. Eleven trophies were presented to high school students in tribute to their contribution to human relations and in memory of the late Dr. Martin Luther King. Guest speakers were Mrs. Thelma Jackson of San Antonio and Judge Lewis R. Sutin of Santa Fe, justice of the New Mexico Court of Appeals.

Give everyone you meet a smile and a smile will come back to you.
