Private Schools Brace for Busing 'Scare'

by Cliff Avery

Three Lubbock private schools, after inquiries from parents fearful about reopening of the city's desegregation case, have adopted a policy discouraging transfers trying to avoid possible busing of school children.

Mrs. Mary Jo Moore, principal of St. Elizabeth's Catholic School, said she and representatives of All Saints Episcopal School and Christ the King Catholic School decided earlier in the week to abide by a common policy.

"We do not encourage or condone transfers as a means of escaping any type of situation," Mrs. Moore said, "That is not our purpose."

Mrs. Moore said she had received a few inquiries after the Justice Department's action last week which asked U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert Woodward to block construction of new schools in predominantly white Southwest Lubbock and to order a more comprehensive desegregation plan.

The St. Elizabeth's principal said that Christ the King and All Saints' received more inquiries because they are closer to the area affected.

Christ the King was "called constantly," she said, when news of the Justice Department action broke last week.

Mrs. Moore said she and the principals of the other schools expected inquiries after a slight busing "scare" two years ago prompted parents to contact the schools.

She emphasized that the religious schools exist to teach children within a religious

The phone rings and the voice on the other end echoes with desperation. "I have this terrible fear that when I drive a car I'll run head-on into another car and kill myself." The woman needs help—help she thinks a hypnotist can provide. Unfortunately, hypnotizing the woman could have disastrous effects.

Hypnosis is a science, not a cure-all, explained Dr. Carl Page, who uses hypnosis in his medical practice.

The science is not something to play around with, and hypnotizing someone without knowing their medical history can cause severe mental problems.

For example, a person with underlying psychotic tendencies may be unable to cope with a hypnotic suggestion. Once hypnotized a psychotic condition can be triggered and deep mental problems come to the surface—problems that an untrained eye would not know how to treat.

For that reason, Page recommends anyone seeking hypnotic help should consult a doctor, psychologist or dentist, professionally trained to use hypnosis. A trained specialist will spend as much as three visits with a patient before hypnosis is performed. He knows if something might go wrong, and he knows what to do if it does.

by
Janice Jarvis

Since a person can have psychotic tendencies without knowing it himself, using hypnosis indiscriminately can be tricky business.

When properly used, hypnosis can help solve problems that were once difficult to cure. Hypnosis has been known to cure anxiety, tension, sexual problems, insomnia, asthma, phobias and addictions. In cases where headaches were untreatable, a hypnotist can train patients to control pain.

Used in hospitals, hypnotists can put a patient in a trance before an operation, suggesting that they will experience only minimum pain. When the operation is over, not only is there minimum pain but they recover quicker, explained Page.

Children are also excellent subjects for hypnotists. A child

Mr. Mahon Comes to Lubbock: At the Council of Elders

One wall of the Board Room in the Chamber of Commerce offices is lined and stacked with sepia-toned photographs of the faces of men who have risen and, in their way, served and stepped aside for the men who sit, arms crossed, in the folding chairs along the walls.

The photographs are stern visages full of serious thoughts for these men from the '30s and '40s and later were serious about their role as elders in the community. Just as the men who have succeeded them are now grim, listening with respect for the man who knows them and who, for 45 years, knew their predecessors.

For this is a council of elders and would-be elders, as much as any enclave around a Comanche fire on the same spot a hundred years earlier. And they have come to listen to their envoy to the capital.

For 45 years, the man has overseen wars and depressions and done the things that congressmen do. He has named sons and daughters to the service academies and laded public works from the porkbarrel to the communities who needed them and he has, when the constituents visited Washington, made arrangements for them and introduced them to the fabled bean soup in the House of Representatives dining room. Courtesies that made them feel important and, in the process, allowed him to maintain his position of rank in the capital.

And when George Mahon returns, as he returned this week, he dutifully reports to his people and to the elders of the Chamber's Governmental Affairs Committee who sit around the great wood table, overseen by the brown-tinted photographs.

Keeping Our Heads

Kids and homes are, more than any other tangible, the things that people worry about most, and when any action seems to threaten both, you can be sure that there will be a reaction.

Many people have reacted to the Justice Department's decision to question the Lubbock Independent School District's $11.9 million bond issue which voters approved in February. The district plans to build three new elementary schools and a junior high school in predominantly-white southwest Lubbock—"Beyond the Loop," as it were.

The federal government's attorneys are worried that the new schools will encourage "white flight" away from areas with integrated schools to predominantly-white Southwest. And they're asking U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert Woodward to review the construction plan and the Lubbock school's integration program as a whole.

Admittedly, this is a grave step that inevitably conjures images of the dreaded busing. But the reaction that all Lubbock gives to the events in the federal courthouse is critical.

We don't need to start pointing fingers at blacks or at the federal government or at the school board which tried to respond to the integration question during the bond election, but which was never asked the right question. The school officials assured numerous questioners that Judge Woodward would approve the building of the new school. Nobody asked if they'd talked to the Justice Department.

Common sense should have reminded us that anyone can file suit, even if they don't have the law or the evidence to win. The Justice Department action may delay the construction of the new schools, even if the neighborhood concept emerges unscathed.

Even so, now is the time for a controlled, positive reaction. If the neighborhood concept is doomed, we had better learn to start living together now. If it isn't doomed, learning to live together isn't such a bad idea, anyway.

Jailhouse Rock

Seems like everybody who's anybody is in Federal court and Lubbock County is no exception. Testimony began this week in an inmate class action against county officials alleging prisoner abuse in the dilapidated county jail.

As testimony continued, it became clear that the plaintiff's charges, if proved to Judge Woodward's satisfaction, are gross understatements of the maladministration in the jail.

For instance, one plaintiff testified that he was ordered by a deputy to wash his eating utensils in a commode. Almost as distressing—intellectually, if not physically—were reports of unsupervised inmates and racial segregation in the tanks.

All this came at a time when county commissioners are studying a new jail to meet state standards and human standards. The city council was expected to give its nod of approval Thursday for the closing of Avenue G adjacent to the jail for a new one-story detention facility.

That's when revenue sharing money comes into the picture. The funds returned from the federal government are vital for the building of a new jail.

That's why the April 25 meeting of the county commissioners is important, and why you—if you're concerned about humane, responsible law enforcement—need to be there. At 1:30 p.m. the commissioners will host a public hearing to get public input on how the revenue sharing monies should be spent.

Whether you're there or not, the commissioners are pretty much locked in to spending the money on the new jail. But a few voices to support that position will make it that much easier, and no less necessary.

Stand Firm

In the face of a political attack that has all the subtlety of an airplane crash, State Rep. Joe Robbins of Lubbock has shown admirable aplomb.

While the now-infamous Women Who Want to Be Women (One wonders how transexual Dr. Renee Richards would fit into a group with that name?) wheedled and cajoled and pouted and stamped their feet, declaring that the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution would be a political hysterectomy, Robbins stood firm in his belief that the ERA shouldn't be a legislative issue in Texas.

And stand firm he should. The ERA was right to begin with (Evidence: Lubbock County passed the state constitutional provision almost 5-to-1 in 1972), and there's no need to go back to the legislature another time to prove it right again.

While the WWWW wants to tie up the session in Austin with its siren songs about homosexuality in the schools which has little, if anything, to do with the ERA, legislation that Lubbock needs desperately and needs, as soon as possible—the teaching hospital appropriation, for one—would just have to twiddle its thumbs.

Robbins should be commended for his statesmanlike approach to the problem, in the face of less-than-statesmanlike hysteria thrust upon him by a small, but vocal, minority of his constituents.

A Red-Tape Ribbin' It's No Joke, Folks

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — President Carter's briefing book on government regulations, which White House sources have slipped to us, describes how the American people have become hopelessly entangled in red tape.

The federal government issued 60,000 pages of new regulations each year. It would take an Albert Einstein to understand most of them let alone comply with them.

Here is how the process works. The law of the bureaucracy is to expand. As fast as the bureaucrats solve one problem, they generate two more that require their attention. And they leave behind a tangle of new regulations.

Most of these rules are unintelligible. They are written usually by government lawyers. Now, these attorneys are highly educated and highly paid. Yet they can't seem to write simply, ordinary English.

Congress has added to the chaos by passing more than 500 laws regulating the procedures. It is almost impossible for a regulation to conform to all these laws and still make any sense.

An obscure regulation, of course, requires more regulations to clarify it. But in the end, this merely adds to the obfuscation. Instead of one bad egg, you've got scrambled eggs.

The bureaucrats also use the old regulations as models for preparing new regulations. Thus the unintelligible language of the past becomes the guide for the future. The result is incomprehensible.

The briefing book also advises President Carter that the lawyers have taken over the government processes. The lawyers, state the book, have made "both the process and the product more legalistic than need be."

Sometimes it takes years to change a few words in a regulation. The president is a former peanut farmer. So as an example, the book points out that it took the Food and Drug Administration eight years to determine the proper peanut content in peanut butter.

Of course, every new regulation is justified in the name of the people. But the people are oppressed by all the government's unnecessary, nonsensical and inane rules. Yet the foolish and outdated regulations are almost never repealed. They just stay on the books.

The briefing book offers a remedy. Believe it or not, it calls for a comprehensive new regulation on the effects of other regulations.

Intelligence Digest: A secret intelligence analysis predicts that the United States will double its oil imports from Saudi Arabia by 1980. This will have a profound impact, the study warns, on the U.S. attitude toward the Middle East.

The United States now imports 1,200,000 barrels of oil from Saudi Arabia every day. This is expected to hit 2,500,000 barrels a day by 1980. Thereafter, the flow of Saudi oil into this country should continue to rise.

The secret study suggests that U.S. support for Israel will wane as the dependence upon Saudi Arabia increases. In another three years, the Saudis literally will have the United States over a barrel.

— The Central Intelligence Agency apparently has left its legacy in Laos. A few years ago, the CIA trained an equipped Meo tribesmen to fight against Pathet Lao Communists. Now the Communists control the government. But the fierce Meos won't quit fighting.

They have created an insurgency in the Laotian panhandle. This has the Communists deeply worried. One intelligence report claims the Communists, in their desperation, have sprayed poison gas on Meo villages. According to the report, the Communists used agricultural planes supplied by the Soviets to spread the lethal gas.

We have carefully checked out this report with top U.S. officials. They have been unable to verify it. But meanwhile, the Pathet Lao have requested aid from their old ally, North Vietnam. The Vietnamese, according to the intelligence reports, have dispatched a number of battalions to help put down the insurgents.

— In Moscow, the Kremlin reportedly has launched an intense, new campaign against Soviet Jews. The purpose according to intelligence reports, is to arouse the latent anti-Semitism that seems to pervade the Russian masses.

In January, for example, the Kremlin sponsored a prime-time documentary on Zionism. The average Jew was pictured as a fat, ugly man who passes out money to Soviet dissidents. The telecast was replete with pictures of mangled Arabs who were allegedly victims of Israeli bombing raids.

Several anti-Semitic articles have also appeared in major Soviet publications. They depict the Jews, believe it or not, as collaborators of Adolf Hitler. The telecasts and the articles, according to the intelligence reports, are the subject of much discussion on Moscow's buses and subways.

Prudish Secretary: The New Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland is the exact opposite of his predecessor. The former secretary, Earl Butz, had a foul mouth. He was finally canned for telling one ethnic joke too many.

— But Bergland is so straight that he once dropped his napkin at a party when a lady uttered a four-letter word.

Austin ERA Squabble Puts Capitol in Circus Mood

Something akin to a three-ring circus unfolded in Austin this past week as more than 1,000 supporters and opponents to the Equal Rights Amendment laid siege to the State Capitol.

While state representatives concentrated on such mundane matters as the school finance bill, the ERA forces—both pro and con—rallied on the Capitol lawn, staled the stately corridors and lay in wait for unsuspecting legislators in elevators. As members of the House debated the school funding legislation, groups of women stood outside the chambers chanting "Recall ERA."

Feature attraction for the balloon-toting, poster-waving mass of humanity was the House Constitutional Amendments Committee's public hearing on Rep. Clay Smothers' proposal to recall Texas' ratification of the controversial 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

In a four-hour session Wednesday night, the nine-member

by

committee heard testimony from speakers ranging from Liz Carpenter, former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson, to housewives who are fearful what the ERA might do.

Arguments in favor of the recall measure touched on the possible loss of states' rights and religious rhetoric that the ERA goes against God's divine plan.

Ms. Carpenter, an active leader in the ERA movement, contended that the amendment is not simply a feminist issue but is an extension of civil rights to the largest group left out when the Constitution was written in 1787.

When all was said and done, the committee voted 5-3, with one member not casting a vote, to send Smothers' resolution back to a subcommittee for further work—a move some say effectively killed the measure.

However, other Capitol observers are not so sure the recall effort is a dead issue. "There's no way to anticipate what will happen," noted a spokesman in the office of Rep. Tim Van Dolan, chairman of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee and a proponent of recall.

Van Dolan—who some say has eyes on a future Congressional race using the ERA as a campaign issue—can still man the subcommittee with supporters of the recall proposal. If this happens, the issue can still land back in the committee's lap and will still have a chance to make the House floor.

A large number of House members are reportedly against the resolution ever reaching the floor for debate. Terming it a "no-win" issue, opponents to recall argue that measure would lead to long and divisive debate, which could be all for naught since there is still some question on the validity of a state recalling or rescinding an amendment the legislature has already ratified.

Adding some strength to this argument was a recent statement from Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill, who said the Smothers' resolution would turn back the clock on progress the state has made since 1972. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong issued similar statements opposing the recall effort.

The Texas Legislature's original ratification of the ERA came during a special session in March of 1972. Opponents to the amendment point out that the measure passed after only seven minutes of debate on the House floor. However, they fail to note that the proposed ratification went through the entire legislative process, including lengthy study by a House committee which gave it a favorable recommendation.

Some months after the national ERA was ratified—in November of the same year—Texas voters went to the polls and gave their approval to the state ERA. At that time, Lubbock County voters okayed the measure almost five to one—45,240 for and 9,735 against.

Despite this overwhelming show of support in 1972, fears and doubts about possible federal court interpretations of the ERA have cropped up across the state in recent months. State legislators have received literally thousands of letters from constituents demanding a recall.

No matter what happens to the recall proposal in this legislative session, legislators appear convinced that the issue will crop back up in 1979—deadline year for states to ratify the amendment. And it's likely the State Capitol will be treated to another ERA circus when the legislature reconvenes two years from now.

Two Women: Leader Feels Amendment Will Hurt ...

by Janice Jarvis

Terry Simpson sits at the kitchen table and, in between sentences, drinks cola from a plastic tumbler. She is a grandmother who hardly fits the stereotype. A traditionalist turned a kind of rebel in these times, she is the local president of WWWW (Women Who Want to be Women).

Her interest in the anti-feminist movement was sparked several years ago when she saw a television show that exchanged the biblical version of the creation to a more feminist interpretation. She found the show so distasteful that she wrote an editorial explaining her opinion.

She attended a NOW (National Organization of Women) meeting and was met with opposition from NOW members, she said. She began researching the ERA on her own, and later decided to establish the local branch of the Four W's, a national organization.

As president of the Lubbock WWWW, Mrs. Simpson is working to stop the ratification of the ERA.

"Under the Texas ERA, we can alter any statues that don't work but under the national ERA, things could not be easily changed and anything we didn't like would not only affect us but our grandchildren as well," she explained.

So she opposes the ERA, because it has very little to do with women. Making the ERA a federal law will just complicate an already too complicated federal government. "We don't need any more laws. We just need the ones we have to be enforced," said Mrs. Simpson. Those laws, she feels, already mean equal pay for equal work. The ERA would throw the whole federal structure into turmoil. There would be so many cases, that it would take forever to get anything trialed, she added.

If the ERA is ratified, women will get a lot more than equal pay, but what they'll get is something Mrs. Simpson doesn't want.

For one thing, she dreads the possibility of women being drafted for combat duty, she says. As the mother of three daughters

Mrs. Simpson sees a lot of reasons to avoid women being drafted, some of them obviously personal; others practical. After all women are not really physically suited to be crammed into foxholes.

That isn't the core of the argument against drafting women, according to Mrs. Simpson. "If it came to the point where our country was threatened and women had to fight, I'm sure they would willingly," she said. "My objection is that if we're going to have a law that will draft women, let's vote on a law for that reason alone, instead of tagging it on the coattails of the ERA."

The ERA would also affect the labor market, according to Mrs. Simpson. "It won't give men the same privileges as women, it will take privileges away from women," she said.

That means women won't have as many coffee breaks, there won't be any limit to how much a woman can carry—there just won't be any allowances for differences, he maintains.

The ERA won't automatically

...While Feminist Urges Responsibility

by Janice Jarvis

Dinah Coble sits at the kitchen table sipping coffee from an antique mug. Her dachshund curls cup in her lap, and Mrs. Coble strokes her pet's back as she speaks. As a homemaker she enjoys her home and family. As a feminist and president of the local branch of NOW (National Organization for Women), working to get the ERA ratified.

Mrs. Coble grew up in a home where she was encouraged to pursue a career. She had an opportunity to go to college, and later to work in a traditionally female-dominated field—teaching. Although she had never given much thought to women's rights, she started noticing how role oriented students were.

"It bothers me that high school women see no choice in their lives," she explained. "For too many women, their only goal is that wedding day."

That's when she got involved in NOW, not so much for herself but for women who didn't have the breaks she had.

Mrs. Coble is often asked why she is so involved in ERA when the state already has an equal rights provision in the Texas constitution, but, for her, the reasons are simple. "The Texas ERA can be reversed at any time, but a constitutional amendment can't be easily reversed," she explained.

Because of confusion concerning what the ERA will do for men and women, the subject has become a controversial one, and Mrs. Coble is often faced with opposition.

"It's not going to change lifestyles drastically," she explained. "It will give people a constitutional method to express grievances."

Since her election as president of NOW, Mrs. Coble knows a lot of women have grievances, judging from the number of phone calls she gets each month.

Phone calls from women who train men for jobs, then discover those men earn a higher income, are not uncommon.

"Although we have a Texas ERA, it really isn't being enforced because people still think they can get away with discrimination," she noted.

While the ERA would give women a legal place to take their grievances, it will also put more responsibility on women.

The question concerning whether women will go to combat is often asked, but according to Mrs. Coble the chances of women being drafted for combat are low.

"In the Viet Nam War, only one per cent of people drafted went to combat. If they didn't send men who had small children to support, to combat they're certainly not going to send women."

Mrs. Coble pauses for a moment. "Did you know that the fact that women in the army can't fight in combat keeps them from being promoted to higher positions?"

Then in a soft-spoken voice, she asks, "What makes people think a woman's life is more important than a man's anyway?"

Although the ERA may not send women to war, there's still the question of what will happen to the family structure.

Many women are afraid that with the ratification of the ERA, women will lose their right to have a man support them, she said. "That's not a right—that's tradition." What goes on between two individuals in a marriage isn't going to change, because it has nothing to do with the courts, unless it ends in divorce.

Although the changes in the home will be minimum, the place where changes will really be felt is in the labor force. When a Hypnosis . . .

having a tonsillectomy can be hypnotized and upon recovering from the operation experiences no pain whatsoever, noted Dr. Page.

Despite the benefits, hypnosis can give, it's still puzzling to many people, in fact it's looked on as a kind of magic.

Hypnosis works on a simple theory, and is considered an altered state of consciousness. When people are conscious, they are more inclined to question a suggestion, to use a logical approach. But when unconscious people are more open to suggestions, they'll accept the suggestion without analyzing it, according to Page.

Although the theory is a simple one, hypnosis can be puzzling and it can be expensive, depending on where you seek help.

A Lubbock business specializes in hypnotizing people for weight control and cigarette addiction. The fee is $60 for the first visit. The treatment is not guaranteed, but if the first try is unsuccessful the patient can come back for a second try at no cost.

According to hypnotist and manager of the Lubbock office Ron Vasco, heavy smokers who are successfully hypnotized leave the office feeling no withdrawal pains or need to smoke.

"The results last 20 years, as long as a person doesn't sample a cigarette out of curiosity," noted Vasco.

The weight control program works in much the same way. The patient is given a hypnotic suggestion that will make him want to eat less at meals. If done properly the person will eat less and enjoy more, explained Vasco.

But it doesn't work for everybody. One out of every ten people hypnotized returns to smoking, and three out of four people successfully lose weight, Vasco claims.

According to psychologist Dr. Theodore Andreychuk, these statistics are somewhat out of line. "If a person gets 25 to 50 per cent successful results with hypnotism he's doing well."

It's also unlikely that a hypnotic suggestion will last 20 years, noted Dr. Andreychuk. "You can't be specific about how long a suggestion will last—sometimes they stick and other times they fade."

When a hypnotic suggestion doesn't last or when it just doesn't stick to begin with, the blame isn't on the hypnotist. If it doesn't work it's because the person doesn't want to be hypnotized, said Vasco.

If a person comes to the office thinking that hypnotism is going to magically melt the pounds away they'll be in for a surprise, said Page.

The motivation along with the hypnotic suggestion to lose weight, must work together. If the desire to lose weight is strong enough, a hypnotic suggestion will make the losing easier, but it won't do all the work.

There are cases when the desire to be hypnotized isn't going to make any hypnotism work. There are certain people that just can't be hypnotized. For example, people who are schizophrenics or mentally retarded can't be hypnotized. Neither can a person that's drunk at the time of hypnotism, said Vasco.

Dr. Andreychuk explained his theory on the inability for schizophrenics to be hypnotized. "The schizophrenic is already in a self-induced trance and trying to break that trance with another trance is difficult." It's not impossible, but it should be done with the utmost care," he added.

In cases where a person suffers no mental problems, and is willing to be hypnotized, the side effects are minimum.

"A person is not going to do something when he's hypnotized that he wouldn't do when he's awake," said Dr. Andreychuk.

There have been incidents when a person did not come out of a hypnotic trance on command, noted Page. But, it's because the person enjoys the relaxed state a trance causes. In such cases you just put the person to bed and they'll wake up when they're ready, Page explained.

While hypnotism may make you feel good for awhile, the effects of hypnotism aren't long lasting. A person can use hypnotism to his advantage or he can at any time revert back to his old habits.

That's probably one of the most important things to understand about hypnotism, noted Dr. Andreychuk. "It can help, but the person has to do his part too."

framework and that they are not to serve as an escape for children whose parents do not want the students bused away from the neighborhood.

"We want our schools filled," Mrs. Moore said, "but not that way."

Mrs. Betty Snider, principal at All Saints', said she had received "an extraordinary amount of inquiries."

"We've been quite busy."

"We are a school of limited enrollment and we plan to remain limited," Mrs. Snyder noted. She said that in a previous busing "scare" she had turned down about three people who were apparently trying to avoid integration through busing.

"We don't have to play those games," she said.

Meanwhile, two realtors in the area of Southwest Lubbock where the proposed schools are to be built under a recently-passed $11.9 million bond program predicted more private schools could crop up, if some form of busing hits the area.

Bill Stinson, emphasizing that it was his personal opinion, said that he would expect two or three private schools to open if the federal courts require busing in the area.

Ric Hill with Western Realty Co. agreed, saying, "It's the old American dream. You work hard so you can send your kids to a good school, and when you finally get there, they start sending your kids back where you started from."

"I think most people will work that much harder and pay that much more to send their kids to a private school."

WEST TEXAS HAPPENINGS

BPW Selects Officers

Gladys Martin was selected president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Lubbock, Inc. at the group's meeting Tuesday night.

Other officers are Charlene Jones, first vice president; Neta Tillman, second vice president; Anita Blackford, recording secretary; Gracie Wosson, corresponding secretary; Sheila Hefner, treasurer and Pam Inman, assistant treasurer.

The membership heard District 9 director Bernice Sutherland and First Vice President of the State Federation Hazel Crawley and discussed the District 9 Conference scheduled here in September.

Audience Development Seminar

The Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council will hold its fourth Annual Seminar Saturday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. The topic for the seminar this year is "Audience Development."

A panel of distinguished arts consultants has been assembled for the day-long seminar. The primary speaker and consultant will be Bradley Morison, author of the book, "In Search of an Audience." Mr. Morison was in charge of public relations and audience development for the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre during its beginning years.

Participants who come to register early will meet members of the seminar panel at a reception at the Civic Center and attend a performance of the Atlanta Ballet at Texas Tech University Center Theater Friday evening.

Further information can be obtained from the Cultural Affairs Office at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Women in Communication Set Tea

Lubbock Professional Chapter of Women in Communication, Inc. will hold a Membership Tea from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the Lubbock Women's Club. The tea is open to anyone in the field of communications who might be interested in joining the Lubbock chapter.

First Aid Classes Offered

Red Cross will have free First Aid classes from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday and Saturday at the Chapter House, 1313 Avenue L. Call 765-8534 for registration.

Surplus Water Eyed for Plains

Water, Inc. President J.W. Buchanan has labeled as a major step toward bringing supplemental water to the High Plains the results of a jointly-sponsored Texas and Arkansas study showing the Ozark State to have 43 million acre feet of surplus water annually.

Both states would benefit from the project, said Buchanan. For Texas, High Plains irrigation could be maintained at present levels, and the conveyance system would be designed to meet all types of water needs along the route in both states.

Buchanan envisions this study as the first steps toward a regional water management system for Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

"Living Proof" Revival Set

A revival beginning Sunday and ending next April 24, at First Baptist Church of Lubbock, will climax Good News Texas, the "Living Proof" campaign. Adrian P. Rogers, noted evangelist and pastor of Bellvue Baptist Church of Memphis, Tenn., will be preaching, and Jack Price of Garland will lead the music.

Services during the revival will be at 12:10 noon and 7:30 p.m. on weekdays and at 8:15 a.m., 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sundays. Nurseries will be open for all services.

Jewish Homemaker Comes to Lunch

"The Jewish Home" will be the topic of Mrs. Eleanor Kline's Lunch Bunch talk Tuesday. She will use holidays and holy days from the Jewish calendar to illustrate the importance of the home in the celebration and keeping of the Jewish faith.

Lunch Bunch meets each Tuesday from 12:15 p.m.-12:45 p.m. in the Mahon Community Room of the Lubbock City-County Library. The public is invited to bring a sack lunch and enjoy a free program and coffee provided by the Library.

4-H'ers Come to Lubbock

Some 250 to 300 4-H'ers from 20 counties across the South Plains will meet in Lubbock this Saturday for the annual District 4-H Contests.

The contests, which are to be held on the Texas Tech campus, will include team competition in livestock, dairy and horse judging and rifle skills.

District winners will compete against top finishers from the other 13 districts of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in June at State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University.

British Prof Speaks at Museum

Hadrian's Wall in Britain will be the topic of a lecture by Dr. James Russell of The University of British Columbia at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Texas Tech Museum.

Russell will discuss the reasons and sequence of the construction of the second century-A.D. wall, its strategic intentions, and the impact which it had on the native inhabitants. The life of the auxiliary garrisons that manned it will be illustrated from typical forts, shrines, and artifacts recently discovered.

The lecture, sponsored by the Lubbock Society of the Archaeological Institute of America, is free and open to the public.

KELLY'S HEROES

by Joe Kelly

Vince Dooley highlighted the annual Red Raider Club all sports banquet, which is over for another year. It is fitting, win or lose, for Texas Tech fans to pay tribute to the athletes. It just so happened that there was more tribute this year than usual.

I hope it's that way every year. I don't mean that it ought to celebrate a conference football title each year, just a fair share of the number for which the teams compete.

Indeed, too many championships can be damaging. Students, fans and supporters get jaded. They lose their sense of proportions. Losses can hardly be tolerated, credit is never given to the opposing team or teams, excuses pop up too easily.

No, a little losing now and then is good for everyone. A little humility helps purge the soul. And, when a championship does come along, it's cherished that much more.

Tuesday night they showered the attention on a football team, or squad, rather, that richly deserved the homage. A year ago it was a basketball squad that drew deserving recognition.

One of these days it may well be Corky Oglesby's track squad, or Kal Segrist's baseballers. It might be Danny Mason's golfers or Jim McNally's swimmers, George Philbrick's tennis people. After all, even though too much winning can be bad, first place beats the heck out of being second.

Athletes aren't really worth their salt unless they have the winning attitude. It was, perhaps, best displayed by a non-athlete, Putt Powell, Amarillo sports writer.

I know the story is old, but Putt years ago once came here with the Gold Sox, Amarillo's WT-NM League baseball team. The Hubbers beat the Sox and Putt's column in Monday's paper read something like this:

"LUBBOCK—I'm here with the Gold Sox. Yesterday they lost to the Hubbers. I'm not used to seeing Lubbock beat Amarillo in anything—baseball, football, basketball or tiddlywinks. I don't feel like writing a column today."

The dinner also was a fitting tribute to some fine individual athletes, young men who have brought glory to themselves and to the university they represent.

It's too bad that Bill Bothwell, winner of the Dell Morgan Memorial Courage award, couldn't have known the late coach. He would appreciate the honor bestowed on him even more. I knew Dell and any recipient is in an unusual class.

As I've said of Dell before, he was a man's man. He was physically, mentally and morally tough. If he ever knew fear, he never showed it. He was afraid of no man, no situation.

And yet, with all his gruffness, harshness and, at times, meanness, he was as gentle as a lamb. He couldn't tolerate lack of effort, but he could cry like a baby over an act of kindness, or an injury to a boy who couldn't make the team, but who kept trying.

Tech is building some great awards. The oldest are the Pete Cawthon, Morgan and Donny Anderson bestowals. But the list is growing and gaining in stature. There are now awards in basketball and swimming, along with the Arch Lamb Spirit award.

Hopefully, there soon will be awards in baseball, track, tennis and golf. There are deserving athletes in those sports. And, even in this short span of years, there are plenty of individuals for whom such awards could be named.

Yes, it was a gala occasion and the athletes merited the recognition given them. The program flowed smoothly and Vince Dooley gave a calm, inspirational type of speech.

Congratulations on the re-elected Red Raider Club officers and to Leete Jackson, who once again moved the program so that it was over by 8:30 p.m. That in itself is an accomplishment.

Now, Raiders, let's make plans to have some more championship awards a year from now.

This is a reminder that it's not too late to get tickets for this year's Greater Lubbock Press Club's Gridiron show. It unreels in the Civic Center tomorrow night with an all star cast.

The skits are clever, have some real zingers in them and should be a fast-paced production. The Steve Sloan Roast will be worth the $20 a ticket tab alone, while the proceeds go to reward deserving high school students with scholarships in the media field.

Grant Dukes, the fine senior basketball forward, was honored at the Tuesday banquet, but few may have noticed the mustached man sitting next to Grant among the Raider basketball players.

I was sitting opposite Coach Billy Brown and his wife and Billy mentioned that he was surprised how few people knew that C.W. Dukes, Grant's father, was a former Raider. Indeed he was. He played for Polk Robison back in 1948 and 1948. He also has another distinction. He has sons who played for Texas and Texas Tech.

Indeed, C.W. played on a Tech team that played West Texas State when another graduating senior, Keith Kitchens, had a father on the Buff team. And they were sitting together, Keith and C.W., that is.

Program Offers Beacon To Those Without Sight

by Janice Jarvis

There is a spattering of card tables around the room, people squared off, dominoes paired in winning order. There is the chatter of people at ease, mixed with the silence of apprehension. It is a club, of sorts, with one prerequisite—all the members are blind.

Currently, the group of about 50 meets at the Hodges Community Center to play games, sing songs, strum guitars and just get acquainted, explained Margaret Fulkerson, who helped organize the group.

The program is part of a statewide plan established by the Governor's Coordinating Office for the Visually Handicapped to establish social-recreational centers for the handicapped.

Lubbock is getting help from the Austin office in the form of training and organizational assistance, but eventually local residents will run the group and establish their own objectives, explained Bud Davidson, deputy director for the visually handicapped program.

Although Lubbock is only the second Texas city to provide the service, plans are to eventually have similar centers throughout Texas, Davidson noted.

Lubbock was selected to have a center because it has the volunteers to support it, said Davidson. Members of the Highland Baptist Church provide transportation to and from the center as well as providing refreshments during the meetings. "Without their help there wouldn't be any meetings," said Mrs. Fulkerson. "The volunteers were trained to act as guides as well as learning just how to be comfortable around blind people," Davidson said.

The organization has only met twice but plans are being made for future meetings. Small interest groups for macrame, crochet, lifesaving and survival classes are planned, and the group hopes to have picnics and buffet dinners regularly.

There are also plans for bowling and swimming lessons as well as the establishment of a baseball team.

"It's more practical to assume that a blind person will participate in sports if all the teammates are blind," said Davidson.

Modern technology makes it possible for a blind person to really have a lot of fun participating in sports, Davidson explained. Baseball has been slightly modified and instead of three bases there are only two. A standard size softball is used with an alarm that makes a constant buzzing sound enclosed in the ball. The bases also have a similar alarm.

When a player hits the ball he runs to the bases, and if the outfielder gets there first with the ball, the player is out. Of course the pitcher and catcher must be sighted and only five blind people play on each team.

In addition to providing members with a good time, the meetings will provide a kind of group therapy, explained Mrs. Fulkerson. The recently blinded person can gain confidence in learning others have overcome their handicap while at the same time it gives younger members insight to the problems they may someday face.

For older members, the younger people can perhaps inspire greater optimism, more tolerance. The age gap spans as much as 60 years, but for John Prince, who was in charge of the crew that first laid the bricks on Broadway Street, to Sue Tullos who is working on her Ph.D. in English, there is a bond.

It is the common bonds of interests and frustrations, like learning to play dominoes by touch, or reading the Bible in braille, or discovering that someone else would like to be a computer programmer and learning where a blind person gets the training?

"Just being with other blind people encourages you to do things you didn't know you could do," said Mrs. Fulkerson. "I showed one lady how to thread a needle and now she shows everyone she knows how to do it," she added.

There are so many things that blind people can do now through the help of talking calculators and beeping baseballs. The hard part is just knowing such things even exist.

It's a matter of learning you can continue to function and be happy that's important, said Mrs. Fulkerson, blind since age 14.

She grinned, raising her head attentively to the group nearby, "It sounds like they're happy, doesn't it?"

Tie-down Protection

Mobile-home owners need tie down protection from wind year-round, but March 1 through June 30 is the time that more than 70 per cent of all tornadoes strike—with peak occurrence in May, warns Mrs. Jane Berry, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

BEER BUST—It may look like the leftovers from last night's party but it's really Paul Kupke's beer can collection. After seven years collecting cans, Kupke now owns over 150 cans, representing almost all U.S. states as well as many European countries. But don't get your hopes up for a beer tasting party—all the cans are empty.

Collector Brews Up 'Can - Do' Attitude

by Janice Jarvis

How far would you travel for an ice cold beer on a hot day? Maybe as far as the refrigerator, or maybe even as far as "The Strip." Paul Kupke can top that. He's gone as far as Europe, not so much for the brew—but for the can it comes in.

It all started about seven years ago when a friend asked Kupke to collect beer cans during his travels abroad. Soon his friend's hobby became Kupke's as well. Today, Kupke has over 150 different brands of cans from the U.S. as well as Europe.

That's a relatively small collection since there are over 400 different brands in the U.S. alone, he explained.

Texas has a good selection of cans, Kupke noted. Some of the lesser known brands such as Big Tex cost very little to buy but pay-off when Kupke wants to trade with other collectors.

Of course some cans are more valuable than others. One of the most valuable cans is a 007 can, valued at $100. The can comes from Phoenix and was designed when the James Bond movies first came out.

Obviously, the older the design the more valuable the can, said Kupke. Private collection cans, those designed in a limited amount for a specific individual, are also valuable. Bicentennial, decorative and antique cans also bring high prices at beer can collectors conventions.

Although currently produced cans have no value, Kupke includes them in his collection because he anticipates they may someday have value. "Besides, I'm not really collecting them for the value but rather just for the thrill of searching for them," he explained.

So far the hobby has been an inexpensive one. Although some cans are valued at $100, Kupke has never paid more than 75 cents for a can. Of course the growing demand for beer cans could boost the price.

In addition to being inexpensive, Kupke has fun collecting the cans. "Part of the collecting is that I have to drink the beer before I can add the can to the collection," he said.

That has some disadvantages though. "Some beer tastes just awful," he added.

Finding cans to add to his collection isn't much of a problem. Since getting involved in his hobby, friends have started sending him beer cans as gifts.

"One time I came home and found the front yard covered with beer cans," he explained. "At first I thought someone had a party in my yard but as I started to pick them up I discovered they were from all different parts of Europe." A friend had just dumped them all there.

Kupke also is on the lookout for cans whenever he travels. "The first thing I do when I come to a new city is head for the liquor store to see if they have anything to add to my collection," he noted.

The side of the road is also a good place to find cans that people thought had no value.

But what started out as a small collection has almost grown out of proportion. "My wife bought me a cabinet to keep all my cans in, but already it's too crowded to keep any more cans in." He had originally planned to stack them on his bar, but as the collection grew, Kupke ran out of space.

Kupke will make sure there's always enough room to display all his cans. "After all it's a conversation piece," he said. And maybe not a bad reason to travel to Europe either.

Men In Service

Marine Private Billy C. Colvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy G. Colvin of 6804 Nashville in Lubbock has reported for duty with the 3rd Marine Division, Okinawa, Japan. A 1976 graduate of Monterey High School, he joined the Marine Corps in June 1976.

Navy Seaman Chris P. Kieff, son of Mrs. Mary R. Kieff of 3513 "A" 35th St. in Lubbock, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Orlando, Fla. He joined the Navy in December 1975.

Navy Lt. William E. Turrentine, son of Mrs. R.E. Turrentine of 3178 69th in Lubbock, is participating in the allied naval exercise "Roller Coaster" in Hawaii.

The questions are bread-and-butter. Farming Energy. But one elder with a foreign—read northern—accent presses for an assessment of the nation.

Mahon, his face pinched like an ancient mandarin yet able to outpace men half his age, responds with a reminiscence of a representative from Tupelo, Miss. who in ornate verse warned of the evils of affluence.

Mahon acknowledges, that while there may be wealth, the strength of the nation lies in the home, the church, the school. "That's where we need to be shoring up," Mahon says in his genteel accent. "There are a lot of things the government can't do, yet the government is undertaking to do everything."

All great nations of the world had their Waterloo. We are beginning to realize we can have one, too."

If there is a positive note in our many problems, the congressman adds, it is that we are "less arrogant about our capabilities."

The philosophy satisfied, the talk turns to emission control with Mahon peeling off the number of cars on the road in 1934 (25 million) to the number of vehicles belching pollution today (133 million). "I hope we'll follow a policy of common sense," he skirts.

There is the perennial question of the repeal of right-to-work and a touch on election reform. Then Mahon shows why he has stayed in a position to report to elders and to the elders in the photographs.

One merchant asks about a Federal Trade Commission order requiring removal of sleepwear with a flame-retarding—but reportedly carcinogenic—chemical. Mahon, while no expert, is conversant on the subject. There is little that he misses.

With proper thanks for his appearance, the committee considers state legislation which would give county government zoning authority over buildings around air bases such as Reese Air Base, a cornerstone of the city's economy. Mahon asserts his role as protector, interjecting, "Reese is alive and well." The grim faces smile.

SHERIDAN'S RIDE

by Jack Sheridan

It's stacked deck time again in Lubbock as the performing arts get off and running again this weekend, a run that will climax the season for some events.

Public performances by the Atlanta Ballet of Georgia are set for 8:15 p.m. today and Saturday, a different bill of fare offered by this highly-esteemed national group each night. Today's menu includes "Pas de Quatre," for four ballerinas; "L'Histoire Du Soldat" "Tzigane" and "Luxenesque." For Saturday the group will offer "Peasant Dances," "Scherzo," "The Still Point" and "Great Scott," set to the music by Scott Joplin.

A phone call to 742-3610 will hold reservations. The group is brought to Lubbock on the heels of the sensational visit by the San Francisco Ballet in March. It is sponsored by the Texas Tech Cultural Affairs Committee.

The performance is in Texas Tech's Center Theatre. Just a stone's throw away, at the University Theatre the Tech speech and Drama Department will open the run of the last production of the current year, Sophocles' renowned Greek tragedy, "Oedipus Rex," directed by the highly-regarded Tech theater authority, Ronald Schulz. Jocasta is played by Riantha Roberts, while Warren Bacon is the Teiresias. The hapless, guilt-ridden King is played by Lynn Mathis.

The play will be seen daily at 8:15 p.m. through April 20. On tap for the coming week is a brace of goodies. At 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium is the traditional and highly entertaining Lubbock Symphony Orchestra's foray into the music of Rodgers and Hammerstein. The celebrated duo (Hammerstein is dead, now) are not alone in the musical salute this year, for the orchestra has also included such selections as "The Impossible Dream" from "Man of La Mancha," a Pops Hoedown (danced by Lubbock Civic Ballet), "If Ever I Would Leave You" from "Camelot," and selections from the litting ballet music from "Gaité Parisienne" by Offenbach, as arranged by Manuel Rosenthal.

But, the rest of the evening goes R & H, recalling such standard favorites now as the shows "Oklahoma," "State Fair," and "South Pacific."

Serving up these musical highlights will be the big orchestra, conducted by William A. Harrod, with a bevy of guest soloists, including Terry Cook, John Gillas, William Hartwell, Jana King, Sarah Watkins, Civic Ballet and the Monterey High School Cantores, directed by Marjore (cq) Newton.

The program is broken down into the music of Richard Rodgers, his work with the late Oscar Hammerstein II (lyrics), the late Lorenz Hart (lyrics), Carousel, America Dances, South Pacific and Oklahoma.

If this were not enough, along comes that dynamic singer, with his orchestra, Tom Jones, the powerful Welshman, who gives a Concerts West concert at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the Civic Center Theatre and bingo! the very next two nights, next Friday and Saturday and Sunday afternoon, April 22-24, will see the highly-anticipated show by the Texas Tech Music theatre in the new Recital Hall. This one, directed by John Gillas, follows a tradition in the last few years of total success and features for 1977 three one-act comic operas: Mozart's "Impresario;" Puccini's "Gianni Schicci" and Bucci's "Sweet Betsy from Pike." There'll be credits and more information on this trio in next week's edition. The dates are April 22-23-24, 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday.

Moviewise, the spotlight is on the coming, rather than the present. We'll have "Bound for Glory," the Woodie Guthrie film with David Carradine at Cinema West; the highly-praised French comedy, "Cousin, Cousine," an Academy Award nominee for Best Foreign film, along with a like nomination for Best Actress at Fox 4; and the current animation cartoon winner, "Raggedy Ann and Andy" at the South Plains Cinema I-II. These are anticipated shows.

Two that are around will have to appeal to the way you react. The first one, a science fiction dazzler is "Demon Seed," carried, as the ads say, by Oscar-winner Julie Christie, the award for her role in "Darling" some years back, remembered, too, for "Doctor Zhivago," "Shampoo" and the like. This one is how a lady gets in the family way through the electronic machinations of a mean computer named Proteus IV (he wants to be personified in human form). Julie gets stuck with this humanoid after an electronic seduction and impregnation series of symbolic figurations and colorations (to say nothing of geometric designs) and the only thing I can say is nothing much for progress or the future! If such films as "Westways" or "Logan's Run" are your dish, then you'll probably go for "Demon Seed." Me, I'm heading for "Raggedy Ann and Andy" quick-like a Proteus IV hot-flash!

That 707 is still under the Atlantic Ocean at Fox 4 and if you were nuts about "Airport '75," "76" then '77 will probably carry you that further along. It's a long way from Errol Flynn and "Gone With the Wind" but Olivia DeHavilland is present underwater, along with a raft of names which proves she's durable, if nothing else.

Next Saturday, April 23, is the glittering Symphony Ball, engineered by the Women's Guild for the benefit of the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra, of course. The black-tie, bejewelled formal affair is set this time for the first time in the new Memorial Civic Center and should be a highlight of the 1976-77 social season. A passel of dedicated ladies work like Trojans for this event and their results are always spectacular and sumptuously beautiful. It's big-time for Lubbock, believe me.

Missionaries in Jester's Garb 'Godspell' Cast Happy, Unusual

by Cliff Avery

Tuesday night, the performers of "Godspell," the hip musical adapted from the Gospel according to Matthew, were having troubles with crying babies in the Monterey High auditorium audience—the kind of kids you uncharitably wish the mothers would leave at home until, say, the 18th birthday.

But, with the surrealistic crucifixion scene, there was not a sound. The young actors had witnessed well.

The play is a happy, if somewhat unusual method of spreading the Word. But then the actors themselves are happy, if somewhat unusual, young people.

For example, you could have run into their troupe at lunch the other day. They had appeared on a local talk show Monday morning, and had decided to catch lunch at Gardski's Loft, a restaurant for which the phrase "laid back" was invented.

Walking to the restaurant from the parking lot, you might have noticed all this commotion in the foyer where hungry patrons waited in line. And, do your eyes deceive you?, aren't those people wearing costumes of some sort?

Inside, you would have found some of the young actors—dressed in the colorful, madcap costumes they wear in the First Baptist Church-Tech Baptist Student Union production. And you would have watched as they acted out the biblical parables from the play.

They drew rave reviews from the crowd. Even sold a couple of tickets to the musical.

When one of the men waiting in line facetiously held up his hand for four tickets, then explained he was only kidding, Linda Huckabee screwed her young face into a mock pout as she told her fellow actors, "He didn't really want any." Missionary work is tough in a restaurant foyer.

All that was forgotten by curtain time Tuesday night. And the cast, directed by Chuck Lutke, gave an energetic performance that shouted their joy to the heavens.

Wayne Graham, who plays disciples John and Judas, explained it in a brief dressing room session after the production: "It's easy when you know who we're doing it for. For God. That took all the nervousness out of it."

The rest of the cast smiled their agreement. "It's a comfortable feeling to work with people who believe like that," Lutke said.

The group has performed at Texas Tech and will go on a mini-tour to Dallas this weekend, later to Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene and sometime in May, to Midland.

The musical demands both physical prowess (at one point the cast members form a pyramid, then fall to the stage when a flashbulb goes off) and professional expertise from the young actors.

"The timing has to be real tight," Ms. Huckabee said, "It's important to work together, and it becomes a team thing."

"Every single person is dedicated to the play," Laura Hickman, a freshman at Texas Tech, nodded, "Nobody's interested in showing off his own talents. We've all become close friends working together."

The cast showed a bit of that friendship and dedication when, as the interview ended, it was time to take some pictures. But Debbie Stewart, who sings a dynamite solo of "Turn Back O Man", had already left for home. She had a spinal tap Saturday, but you wouldn't have known it by her performance.

Instead of posing for pictures, the cast asked that publicity still be used so Ms. Stewart would be pictured with the rest of the cast.

All the cast members are members of the First Baptist Church, and Lutke pointed out that the church has one of the largest youth ministry programs in the nation.

After watching the "Godspell" cast handling crying babies, restaurant patrons and inquiring photographers, you might wonder if it's not one of the most special, too.

woman isn't treated fairly she'll have a law to point to that says "That's wrong," she noted. "Right now, even with the Texas ERA, I don't think people think in terms of equal rights when it comes to money," she added.

With the right to take discrimination to court also comes responsibility. It's true that the factory worker won't have as many coffee breaks, or that she'll be forced to carry the same weight load as men. But if a woman wants to climb the employment ladder she'll have to accept those responsibilities, Mrs. Coble feels. She can't be rushing home to take care of her kids if she wants to be successful.

Another argument against ERA, often brought up deals with homosexuality. "People are confusing sexual discrimination with sexual preference," explained Mrs. Coble. Homosexuality really isn't an issue in the ratification of ERA, but some people are trying to make it one, she charged.

The ERA can help the woman who has been a homemaker for 20 years as well. By making social security laws fair, a homemaker's status will be improved. "Currently, the government doesn't recognize the job of homemaker, but with a reform in social security laws, she will get paid for her contribution rather than just her husband's."

Despite the many things ERA can do to help people, there's a lot of antagonism concerning the ratification. Mrs. Coble said that the opposition comes from women who want to be taken care of—rather than take responsibility for themselves. "But the day will probably come when they'll have to take care of themselves." Women generally live seven years longer than men, so the time will come when a woman will find herself unmarried, with a lot of responsibilities.

While some women are opposed to the ERA, there are others who want their cake and eat it too, so to speak. "Women take advantage of what feminists have done but they won't commit themselves to being feminists," she explained.

Perhaps it is because women still have images of libbers burning their bras in the streets. "I hate to be called a woman's libber," she explained, "it sounds like a disease."

As a feminist, Dinah Coble looks at the movement in personal terms. "The ERA for me means setting goals for myself, instead of serving other people—and it means being a homemaker because that's what I chose to be."

"For a long time I couldn't understand what people were complaining about," she said. "I had all the breaks that a lot of women never get."

Feminism and the ERA may be dirty words to a lot of people. To Dinah Coble they are fighting words—words that she feels could give all women a choice.

provide women with salary boosts either, noted Mrs. Simpson. "We already have equal pay for equal work and I know from experience that jobs well done will bring promotions. Women depending on the ERA to get promotions will have a long wait," she says.

Not only will the ERA hurt the women who work, it will also hurt the employer as well. "An employer will be forced to recognize a woman, perhaps unqualified instead of recognizing seniority and achievement."

And while women will lose privileges on the job, they'll also lose them at home.

An amendment isn't going to change people and their marriages, but it will change the law.

Cosmetic Surgery: Nip and Tuck But Plastic Surgeons Warn 'Don't Expect Miracles'

by Janice Jarvis
Second in a Series

If you've ever dreamed of thumbing through a magazine, picking out the perfect turned up nose or the biggest bosom, and taking your dreams to a plastic surgeon, you're not alone. But you are dreaming an impossible dream.

Although it's true that cosmetic surgery can make wrinkled skin look smooth again or a large nose look small, there are limitations. Even the best plastic surgeon cannot change features so dramatically that you are transformed into a different person.

What you can expect of plastic surgery is an improvement in certain features. For example, with a face lift, droopy skin can tighten to give a more youthful appearance. "A face lift isn't going to make a 60-year-old woman look 20—it will make her look a youthful 60," explained Dr. Leonard Koch. While a face lift isn't permanent, the woman who has the operation done when she's 40 will probably look better at 60 than she would if she hadn't had the surgery, noted Koch.

The operation involves making small incisions in the skin, then pulling the skin and the muscles tight, and hiding the scars in the hairline. It takes several weeks before the bruising and swelling goes away, and it's advised that you don't plan any public appearances for at least three weeks.

While face lifts are usually done on people over 40, requests to have tiny lines or crows feet removed are not uncommon among younger people. The process is different than a face lift however. Instead of actually cutting the skin, a chemical peel is performed. Chemicals are sprayed on the skin, causing a second degree burn. After two weeks the dead skin peels, leaving a fresh new skin underneath. The crows feet are gone, and after 12 weeks the woman can go out in the sun without any side effects.

Face lifts and chemical peels are routine matters and can be done in the doctor's office under a local anesthesia. Side effects are minimal and the cost can range from $300 to several thousand dollars.

Since the cost is lower than it once was for most cosmetic surgery, it's no longer just the rich who elect to have it done. "People from all income groups, especially middle class come in for surgery," said Koch.

An increasing popular form of cosmetic surgery is breast augmentation, explained Koch. The operation is usually more complicated than a face lift and requires a hospital visit.

Small incisions are made either under the breast or arm, a silicone implant is placed under the skin, and the incisions are then sewn. "A person can choose almost any size they want their breasts to be, but I try to make sure my patients select an implant size that is in proportion to their bodies," explained Koch. "I don't want my patients coming out looking like freaks," he added.

Most people that seek cosmetic surgery usually want only one feature changed—for instance, a breast enlargement—but people occasionally want the impossible.

"If someone comes in and finds fault with every feature they have, we usually recommend they see a psychiatrist," noted Koch. That's not saying that if you want your nose fixed as well as your chin, then you're crazy. Often abnormal features come in pairs, a prominent nose goes with an underdeveloped chin.

In such cases, both features can be fixed during one operation, usually done in the office.

Noses can be raised, lowered or narrowed and nostril size can be changed as well. Breathing problems can be corrected, but a person must be at least 16 years old before nose deformities can be worked on. Before that age the nose is still growing.

But, warns Dr. Koch, a nose job doesn't change anyone's life. Friends may notice you look better but chances are they won't realize that the nose has been changed.

The same is true for ear operations. A person with large ears may notice the change himself, but chances are no one else will. But unlike nose operations, ears can be reshaped on children as young as five years. "Usually the ear reaches 80 percent of it's growth by age five," noted Dr. Koch.

Another form of cosmetic surgery not requested as often as face lifts and nose jobs, is removal of birthmarks. Such operations are not only done for cosmetic reasons but health reasons as well. "Birth marks that cover the entire body and black moles can often be cancerous," said Dr. Koch. In such cases, surgeons perform skin grafts and there is, of course, some scarring.

Since cosmetic surgery is an elective operation, there is usually minimum risk involved. For most patients the results are as expected—in rare cases an infection may complicate matters—but it's unlikely to produce disastrous effects.

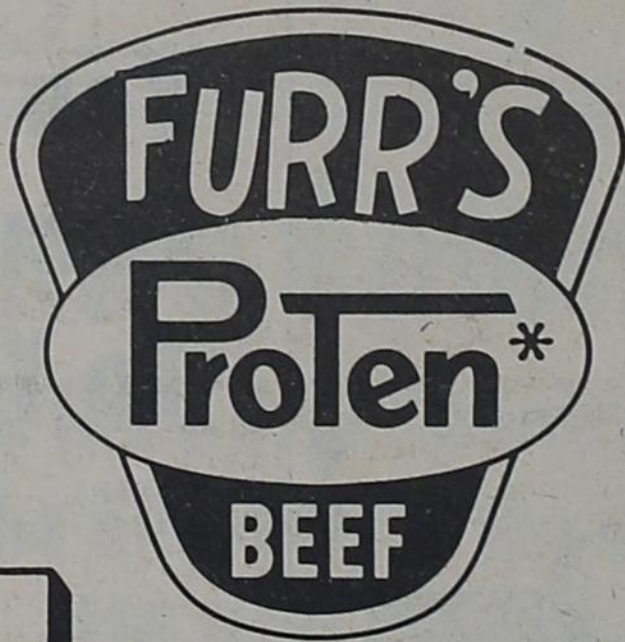

Occasionally a blood clot occurs, and must be removed leaving an unexpected scar, or there is a ringing in the ears that can be corrected.

There are some cases where people really just don't know what they expect from cosmetic surgery. "We can show them how we will reconstruct their nose but a lot is left up to their imagination," explained Dr. Koch.

Occasionally, people have unusual requests, and unless it will cause more harm than good, Koch doesn't argue with what kind of surgery is needed. One woman came to Koch with a prominent nose, underdeveloped chin and bad teeth. But she wasn't interested in getting those features corrected, she wanted her ears pinned down, despite the fact that her hair covered them. "That's what I gave her," he added with a smile.

After all, cosmetic surgery is an elective surgery, and beauty is in the eye of the beholder.
