Reese AFB Fifth Annual Christmas Classic Basketball Teams Announced

Sixteen teams will participate in the fifth annual Reese Air Force Base Christmas Classic high school basketball tournament which is scheduled to be played in the Reese AFB gymnasium on Thursday, Friday and Saturday Dec. 13, 14 and 15.

Eight games will be played each day beginning with the first game at 10 a.m. Thereafter a new game will tip-off each ninety minutes until the day's final game starts at 8:30 p.m.

At 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 13, Olympic style opening ceremonies will officially start the Classic. These ceremonies will feature the Whiteface High School Marching Band in addition to the participating teams.

The teams will be divided into two eight team divisions each with the large schools competing for the President's Trophy and the small teams competing for the Commander's Trophy.

Both division champions return to defend their titles from last year. In the President's Trophy Division that's El Paso Andress and in the Commander's Trophy it's El Paso Cathedral.

Andress won the very first Christmas Classic in 1975. The finished second the next two years before squeaking out a 45-42 win over Dimmitt last year. This year is they can win the title for the third time they will take home the coveted, giant traveling trophy permanently.

If Andress does not win its third championship, Abilene Cooper is a likely bet to do so. They were the Christmas Classic co-champions along with Morton in 1976, and won the title outright in 1977. They too, can retire the giant traveling trophy if they win this year.

Challenging Andress and Cooper in the President's Trophy Division are Clovis, N.M., the New Mexico defending state AAAA champion; Andrews, Tex. and Roswell, N.M. The area schools near Reese will be represented by Lubbock Coronado, Lubbock Dunbar and Lubbock Christian High School.

The Commander's Trophy Division offers the most representative AA field to ever compete in a West Texas high school basketball tournament. El Paso Cathedral will be joined by representatives from University Interscholastic League districts 1-2-3-4 and 5AA. Even the UIL regional tournaments only bring together representatives from four districts.

In addition to Cathedral, Boys Ranch and Spearman will represent district 1-AA; Olney, district 2-AA; Morton district 3-AA; Idalou district 4-AA and Denver City and Lubbock Roosevelt district 5-AA.

Lubbock Christian High School won the first championship of the Commander's Trophy Division in 1975. Since then, Cathedral has swept to three consecutive championships by running up a 9-0 record, the best of any team to participate in the Classic.

According to Major Jack Cusano, the project officer for this year's Christmas Classic, Reese will be hosting "the best high school basketball tournament to be played in West Texas this year. Our fans will be seeing some exciting, balanced competition among the best teams in the West Texas - New Mexico area. Last year's records of this years Classic teams show that they won better than 70 percent of their games."

Cusano continues, "In the large school division, only Roswell had a final record that was under .500, while Clovis' 27-1 state championship team was the best. We expect every team, with the possible exception of Clovis, that is playing in this year's Classic, to be stronger than they were last year. Of course, we are not going to be without individual stars either. More than a dozen all-district players will be competing in each division of the Classic. They are topped by two High School All-America selections, 6-8 Woody Martin from Abilene Cooper and 5-10 Brooks Jennings from Clovis. We have always had quite a few college coaches checking out the talent playing in our Classic. We think that they will be looking at the best group of student-athletes talent-wise to ever play in the Reese Classic. We already have more than 40 of our Classic 'graduates' who are playing college basketball or football. I think that that figure alone attests to the high caliber of competition that the Classic offers.

WEEKLY SPECIAL

WASHINGTON—The American people were shocked but sympathetic earlier this year when they saw photos of Jimmy Carter staggering, wobbling and ashen as a collapsing participant in a marathon run outside the confines of his presidential retreat of Camp David. Now, an aroused and angry electorate is weighing their president in the balance as he staggers and wobbles in dealing with the national humiliation in Iran.

President Carter adopted a cautious approach to the riotous seizure of the U.S. embassy in Tehran and the American hostages taken by the Ayatollah's mob. He had little choice. The lives of at least 65 U.S. citizens were at stake once the revolutionary student anarchists took control.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell and other Carter administration officials importuned the press to soft-pedal stores about the plight of the hostages, lest they endanger the lives of the captives. The United States stood before the world not as an eagle but a twittering sparrow.

Yet, according to inside experts, Carter might have prevented the raging crisis that now confronts us. Our sources tell us that the president was warned that to allow the Shah of Iran to find haven in the United States would trigger all the volatile hostilities of the Iranian people against us.

Secret cables forecast that the admission of the shah to this country would provide the pretext for the Ayatollah Khomeini and the radical forces at his command to take to the streets in anti-American demonstrations. Last month, the shah was flown to New York by private jet to undergo treatment for cancer. The witches' brew boiled over in Iran.

The State Department clearly warned Carter what might result if the shah was admitted to this country. The president not only ignored the advice, he failed even to inform the department that the shah was coming from Mexico into the United States.

Once the hostages were bound and blindfolded for parading before the television cameras of the world, Carter stiffened his spine and took some action. But there is evidence that the president had re-election, more than national pride, in mind when he allowed the shah to check into a New York City hospital.

He was told that the Republicans planned to make a campaign issue of his withdrawal of support before the downfall of the shah and the shoddy image of his humanitarian feelings if he refused the shah's admission for treatment for cancer. The ailing monarch had powerful friends in Henry Kissinger and David Rockefeller.

So without telling the State Department Carter approved the flight of the shah to New York in the dead of night in the hope of escaping political embarrassment.

Higher Prices: The Iranian oil embargo got some immediate response from the U.S. oil tycoons. Like well-plumed parrots, they predicted higher prices lie ahead for the American consumers.

Confidential sources tell me, however, that a cut-off of Iranian petroleum will reduce our imports by only about two percent of our consumption. Meanwhile, U.S. crude oil stocks, stashed away by the big oil companies, are nearly 12 million barrels more than a year ago. Heating oil inventories are 16 percent higher than last year.

Home owners are using less heating oil than they did 12 months ago. Gasoline consumption is down about four percent. While the American people are determined to conserve and go cold or gasless to declare their personal independence of Arab blackmail, the U.S. petroleum industry is getting ready to rake in higher profits.

Wampum: The white settlers heading westward in our pioneering days took advantage of the Indian tribes. But the plundered red men subsequently wound up with lands rich in oil, oil shale, natural gas and uranium. In these days of energy shortages, the Indians find themselves in possession of natural resource reservoirs on their reservations that are needed desperately by the U.S. economy.

The tribes are now fearful that the United States government which gave them the lands may turn out to be an Indian-giver. An aggressive coalition of Indian groups seeking to develop their resources have now sought the help of a faraway ally — the OPEC nations of the Middle East and South America.

The Indian coalition, Energy Tribes, has invited the managing director of OPEC's special fund for developing nations to attend their next executive board session. The same group, earlier this year, invited Libyan strongman Muammar Qaddafi to provide technical assistance.

Qaddafi has not replied but new Energy Secretary Charles Duncan will speak at the tribal council.

Footsore: About 90,000 recruits enter Navy boot camp every year and must buy their gear, including a pair of tennis shoes. Navy doctors are finding that the shoes issued are so shoddy they can cause damage to the recruits' feet during training. Some inductees have had to buy other, more expensive tennis shoes to escape bunions and other ailments.

Nonetheless, the Pentagon continues its "anchorsawigh" policy of buying the low-quality foot gear while taking the money out of their sore-footed recruits.

Youth Sunday Held at Rising Star Baptist

Sunday at Rising Star was "Youth Sunday." The services were conducted by our youth who did a great job. Bro. Calvin should be given great recognition for the work he has done with our youth.

We would like to invite everyone to come out on our third Sunday and see our youth at work.

Our speaker this Sunday was T.J. Patterson, someone well known by each and everyone of us. He did a wonderful talk that was most enlightening for our youth and adults alike.

We had several visitors who we enjoyed having with us and hope to have with us again. We ask that you pray for our sick and shut-ins.

Lunch Bunch Meets

Lunch Bunch for Tuesday welcomes H.K. Henniger, who will reveal "How to Prevent Holiday Crime."

Henniger heads the Law Enforcement division of the South Plains Association of Governments, and is actively involved in the training of local police officers.

A graduate of the Crime Prevention Institute in San Marcos, Henniger was a member of the Department of Public Safety for 10 years. The program will explain the importance of stopping crime before it occurs, as well as basic considerations and specific suggestions to ward off attacks to the individual or the home.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — In the midst of anti-Iranian demonstration in some Texas cities, Texans are also concerned that a shutdown of crude oil from Iran will cause more long gasoline lines at service stations.

Last week Gov. Bill Clements said reinstatement of odd-even gasoline sales in Texas is possible, but it depends on whether "drivers panic and start topping off" their tanks.

Clements instituted the odd-even rationing plan this summer based on license plate numbers.

"I'm confident we have enough supply of gas, but if we get into a panic situation, we'll go back to it," Clements said.

In a gesture of true statesmanship, Clements also urged citizens and officials alike to back President Jimmy Carter in his efforts to receive some 62 Americans held hostage in Iran. Clements is a steadfast political foe of Carter's, but he urged politicians not to make political hay from the troubled situation.

Anti-Iranian demonstrations have occurred in Austin, Houston, Beaumont, Dallas and other cities.

Holding Back Curbs

State energy officials are closely monitoring the cut-off of oil from Iran, but do not anticipate needs for immediate conservation or rationing.

"Texas is in pretty good shape," said Bill Lauderback, executive assistant to the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Commission. "Fuel is tight but I don't think we're in as bad shape as New Jersey or Washington, D.C."

Lauderback said TENRAC has been scrutinizing the Iranian situation closely since the hostages were taken on Nov. 4. He does not believe the cutoff will have consequences in Texas as serious as those encountered during the summer.

Congressional Action

Two U.S. Senators from Texas, Democrat Lloyd Bentsen and Republican John Tower, have urged the nation to stop training Iranian military pilots and navigators until the hostages are returned.

The government now trains 123 of the pilots at three air Force bases in Texas: Del Rio, Wichita Falls and Lubbock.

"There is no reason for the United States to continue to train fighter pilots for a renegade government that is holding American diplomats hostage in Tehran," Bentsen said.

Congressman Abraham "Chick" Kazan said he is cosponsoring legislation to authorize immediate deportation of non-immigrant students who abuse U.S. laws.

"The minute Iranian students evacuate the classroom" and take to the streets in political demonstrations against the U.S. and in support of Ayatollah Khomeini, they should be deported, he said.

Legislative Elections

One's running for something, one's quitting and one's looking for a fight in the Texas House of Representatives.

Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, has everyone guessing after a fundraiser last week in Austin which grossed some $40,000. Von Dohlen proffered vaguely that the money will go "for whatever political purposes we have in the future."

Among the races he is considered likely for is the 1980 run for Speaker of the House, or a try this spring for state Sen. Bill Patman's seat.

And not ruled out is a 1980 bid for the U.S. Congress in some new district that may be created in the coming redistricting drama. Since Von Dohlen is likely to again chair the redistricting committee, he may well be able to carve himself a political home somewhere and use the money to move in.

Another legislator who was rumored to be running for Speaker of the House is quitting politics instead. Rep. Bill Sullivan, D-Gainesville, said he plans to devote full time to his law practice after his current term, which expires in December 1980. Sullivan said his effectiveness has been reduced as a result of his challenge to unseat Speaker Bill Clayton.

Rep. Clay Smothers, R-Dallas, said he wants to fight former Dallas Cowboy defensive end-now turned boxer Ed "Too Tall" Jones in the ring. "If I win, he goes back to play with the Dallas Cowboys," Smothers said. "If he wins, I'll quit politics." Smothers, recently anointed as a Republican, plans to challenge Congressman Martin Frost.

Ag Opinion

Attorney General Mark White ruled last week that the Governor's Committee on Aging cannot be legally transferred to the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Clements had already effected the merger, and was unavailable for comment. Two of his spokesmen said the ruling by White was correct, but that it did not mean the transfer would have to be undone.

Omar Harvey, TDCA executive director, said the merger was actually carried out under an interagency agreement between the Committee on Aging and the TDCA.

The larger the doors and windows of a home, the greater the chance of heat loss in winter, or heat gain in summer.

Kelly's Heroes

by Joe Kelly

You can have nothing except admiration for Rex Dockery. The young Texas Tech coach took disciplinary action against four players on the eve of a tough game against SMU. That takes a lot of intestinal fortitude.

In taking such action, he not only sounded a warning to other players to stay in line, he also served notice on future Raiders that if they got out of line, they could expect the same punishment-or worse. And in taking the action he did, he reaffirmed his belief that discipline is fundamental and necessary.

So hurrah for Rex. No hurrah for the football squad, which supposedly was playing the Mustangs with "pride" at stake. That's a two-bit word that, this late in the season, means the game is on the schedule and we have to play it.

It was a meaningless game, made more so by the loss of four players, although I don't buy the claim that their loss cost Tech the victory. Far from it. After all, Tech's pass defense had been porous all season and the Raiders ranked no better than seventh in the league in that department.

The Raiders could have taken charge early and put the pressure on SMU, which has been having problems with morale, especially when behind. A touchdown when Tech settles for a field goal, would have put the Mustangs in deep trouble.

Instead, the Raiders, as usual, couldn't find the end zone on three tries inside the 10 and had to settle for a meaningless field goal. When the season is over, they ought to erect a plaque to Blade Adams. He's saved the Raiders from numerous shutouts. He's been just about the only scoring offense Tech has had this season.

Actually, Tech's season has been over ever since the Texas Aggie game (which Tech won). Tech has been 1-3-1 since that game and the victory over Rice is no great shucks. Everybody has beaten Rice. The "gift" touchdown by SMU is the only offensive punch in our games, excluding the Owls.

People who are recognized as knowing football say that Dockery is a fine offensive coach. He has, I've said before, proved it in the past. But the final test will be: Is he smart? If he is, he'll make some staff changes, particularly on offense, before spring training. If he doesn't, Tech is in a heap of trouble, boy.

Aw, what the heck. Saturday was a pretty day and so I turned off the radio—the other games were routs, too—and raked the leaves. Never mind that the wind blew more down off the trees Sunday, I needed the exercise.

We've been having a beautiful fall and no rain or snow interfered with Tech's home football games. The weather has been ideal and, even though we don't have a domed stadium, who needs it? The leaves on the trees have been beautiful and we've been having interesting migrating birds feed in our yard. Who needs a winning football team!

Speaking of winning football teams, Arkansas took what may well be the last step towards another Cotton Bowl berth. The Razorbacks have only SMU Saturday in their way and they should win that on handily. Arkansas is not Tech.

The Aggies tuned up for Texas by visiting TCU Saturday and the only ones thinking the Horned Frogs have a chance are the Horned Frogs. This game could well assure the Aggies of finishing no worse than a tie for fifth, and they have too good a team not to take advantage of it.

Somebody at ABC goofed and so the Texas Tech-Houston debacle will be viewed Friday afternoon by millions of fans, coast to coast—probably not for long. It's doubtful that the game will have much appeal. Coach Bill Yoeman should get a chance to play a lot of reserves.

That brings us to the biggie, Baylor at Texas. The Bears flexed their muscles in whipping Rice, probably without too much exertion, while the Longhorns didn't extend themselves too much in handling the Frogs. That sets up the last really classic encounter of the season, although UT and A&M have yet to meet.

Baylor is sure of a bowl, having signed to play Clemson, The Bears, with two losses, still have a mathematical, although hopeless, chance to win the title. They have a strong line and their defense is tough. They have scoring threats and they'd rather beat Texas than almost anybody on the scheduled.

Texas, however, is a money team. The smell of Cotton may not be as strong as it was, but Sugar is appealing. Except for the slim possibilities, it would only be a game between two bowl-bound clubs. Now it looms as much bigger.

To recap quickly: Arkansas over SMU; A&M over TCU; Houston over Tech and Texas over Baylor.

It was a bad week in many respects. The Raider basketballers took a late lead against Poland and couldn't hold it, losing their first start, albeit an exhibition game. Coach Gerald Myers obviously needs more work, or rather, his squad does. I wasn't there, but folks have told me there's good potential, but lack of execution hurt. That can be corrected.

Then Sunday, comfortably ensconced in my favorite chair, I waited for the Cowboys to explode. As everyone knows by now, they didn't. They were beaten by, of all teams, Washington. How they're tied for the lead, time is running out and people are asking why do the Cowboys have to copy Tech? We'll never know.

But enough of football. We're heading for Houston, will be there by the time this appears. The son-in-law, Lynn Baker, has a deer lease and we'll be heading there on Friday for a combination deer hunt and fishing.

Our youngest son and his wife will be with us, along with Lynn's folks from San Antonio, with the Bakers serving as headquarters. We wish that our oldest, Joe, could be with us, but he's staying here to work. After all, it takes money to go to college. I'll brag, or mourn, after the weekend as to the success, or lack of it, both hunting and fishing.

This seems like a pretty good time to end this with best wishes for a happy, safe thanksgiving.

Few people realize that the U.S. Supreme Court in 1978 banned all future acquisition of radio or television stations by newspapers in the same community.

YWCA Jobs Open Doors for Minority Women

"Minority women suffer from a double earnings gap - those of both race and sex," according to Sara-Alyce P. Wright, executive director of the YWCA of the U.S.A. Mrs. Wright spoke at a one-day conference at the Department of Labor Wednesday at which a new YWCA Jobs Network was presented. The program, funded by a $125,000 grant from the Department of Labor, is designed to increase opportunities in the skilled trades for women, especially minorities.

The YWCA Jobs Network will help industry to meet Labor Department guidelines, which require that 3.1 percent of the crews of federally funded construction projects by women. Currently only from one to three percent of the higher paying skilled trades jobs are held by women.

Speakers at the conference, which was attended by representatives from 35 local YWCAs and 25 Comprehensive Employment Training Administration (CETA) prime sponsors from across the country, including Alexis Herman, director of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor and Earnest G. Green, assistant secretary, Employment and Training Administration, Department of Labor.

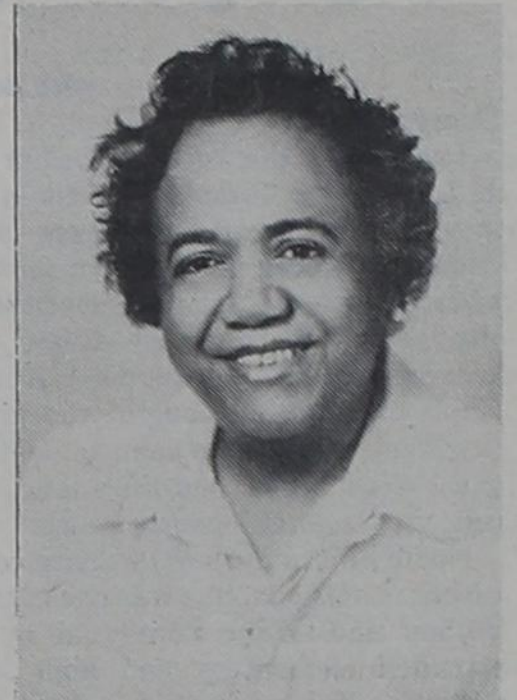

Designed by the National Board of the YWCA and supported by the Associated General Contractors of America, the YWCA Jobs Network is a prototype plan of action for local YWCAs. The plan calls for the community YWCA to act as a liaison between the local CETA government sponsor, employers, other community agencies, and women interested in construction and other skilled trades. Depending on the needs in that particular community, the local YWCA will select among a wide range of services presented in the model plan and will coordinate their operation. Possible services include some that can be offered by the YWCAs themselves, such as job counseling and referral. Others, like legal counseling and on-site exposure to skilled trades jobs, will be offered by other community organizations or employers. A total of 38 communities throughout the country will participate during the first year.

The Young Women's Christian Association of the U.S.A. with a membership of two-and-a half million girls and women of all ages, ethnic and socioeconomic backgrounds, addresses the needs of women and their communities. More than 5,000 locations are used for continuing service and program efforts in 49 states.

"This program builds on our past experience in helping women upgrade their jobs," Mrs. Wright said. "We will be recruiting and offering support to women and minorities who want skilled jobs, and at the same time, we will work with employers to open up new opportunities."

Executive Director of the National Board since 1974, Mrs. Wright has been associated with the YWCA for more than 20 years. She currently is president of the National Assembly of National Voluntary Health and Social Welfare Organizations, Inc. and is a member of the Organizing Committee of Coalition of National Voluntary Organizations

Sara-Alyce P. Wright

National Council of Philanthropy. She also has just completed her term as a board member of the National Conference on Social Welfare and the National Center for Voluntary Action and is a member of the House of Delegates, Council on Social Work Education. She holds Master's degrees from the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Pittsburgh and was named "Distinguished Pennsylvanian" in 1975.

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

LITTLE SEALS CUT BIG FUEL BILLS

When insulating your home don't forget to weatherstrip the doors and windows. Weatherstripping is the number one item on the "Big Ten Checklist To Save More Energy In Your Home" prepared by the National Institute of Building Science.

Few homeowners have had access to professional weatherstripping. But Schlegel Corporation, which makes most such weatherstripping, now has low-cost kits for homeowners.

Make Storm Windows

Storm windows for unprotected openings can be made with the Storm Window Kit. White plastic molding holds cut-to-size plastic or glass.

A drafty door can be sealed with the Door Sealing Kit. Polyflex brand plastic strips mount in seconds around the perimeter of the door, held in place with self-adhering backs. The bottom is sealed with an easy-attaching door sweep. The corners are sealed with two self-adhering corner plugs.

The Hinged Window Kit has 18 feet of self-adhering plastic strip that will seal one average window.

Your storm window's pile seals may have shrunk by now and become useless. Replace them with the Storm Window Kit.

Easy To Do Yourself

The weatherstripping kits have one thing in common: they go up easily. They cut with scissors and self-adhere.

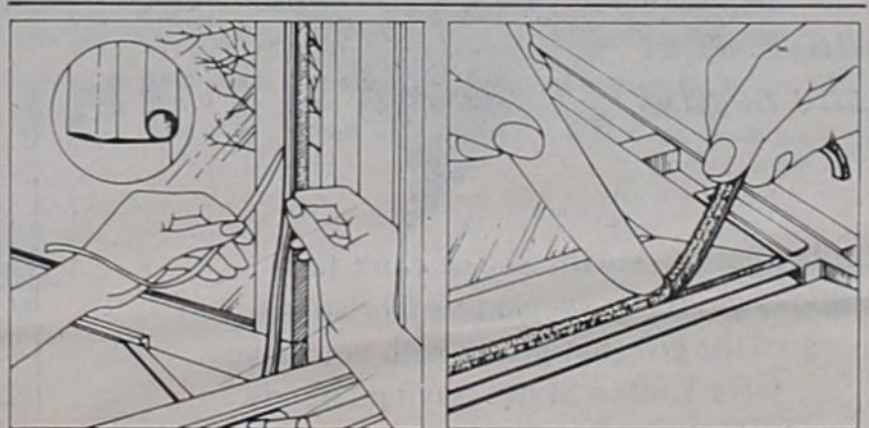

For homeowners getting started in weatherstripping and insulation for their homes, helpful literature is available free by writing to Weatherstripping, Schlegel Corporation, 400 East Ave., Rochester, NY 14692.

Your home could be more comfortable all year long if you see your way clear to installing storm windows. Kits can help you make them yourself.

You can keep heating and cooling dollars from going out the door if you seal yours with special plastic strips. Corner plugs and a sweep for the sill help too.

Hinged windows can also be sealed. Old storm windows' worn pile can be replaced.

Ringling the Bell . . .

with Bob Tieuel

Dearest Mom,

I remember the words echoed at the last rites given you the other day in Lane-Amos Temple Church in Boley, Oklahoma where for some seventy odd years, you were a member and a dedicated officer in many capacities. Your name is inscribed on the cornerstone of the beautiful edifice you helped to construct a few years ago. They are: Servant of God, well done; Rest from they loved employ; The battle fought, the victory won, Enter thy Master's joy. The pains of death are past, Labor and sorrow cease, and life's long warfare closed at last, your soul is found in peace."

Nodie Elnora Bursey was born on April 21, 1891 in Lisbon, Louisiana. She was one of the four children of William and Corine Bursey, all of whom preceeded her in death. She attended elementary and high school in Lisbon and later Homer College in Homer, Louisiana. It was at Homer, she met and married the Rev. Robert C.D. Tieuel, Sr. Her husband was later transferred to the Oklahoma Conference and was stationed in Boley, Oklahoma as pastor of Lane Chapel C.M.E. Church around the year 1910.

A son, Robert C.D. Tieuel, Jr., was born in 1914 and later a daughter, Theresa. The son is pastor of the Friendship C.M.E. church in Pecos, Texas, also a church public relations consultant in Hobbs, N.M. and is married to Mary Porter and niece of the late Bishop H.P. Porter of the C.M.E. Church. Theresa is married to Prof. S.W. Spann and is a school administrator in the public school of Boley.

Around 1916 Ms. Tieuel opened a General Merchandise store, specializing in millinery wear and was known as one of the leading ladies hat makers in Okla. The late Bishop J. Arthur Hamlett once praised her as the daughter, wife and mother of methodist preachers. The Washington D.C. Daily Post newspaper in the early 70s, in a feature article on Boley, described her as "the oldest living businesswomen in Boley, Oklahoma—the largest all-black town in the U.S.A."

Ms. Tieuel was recognized throughout Oklahoma as an outstanding worker and leader in the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church and in 1973, she received a plaque from Lane-Amos Temple for "67 years of faithful and dedicated service" to the church.

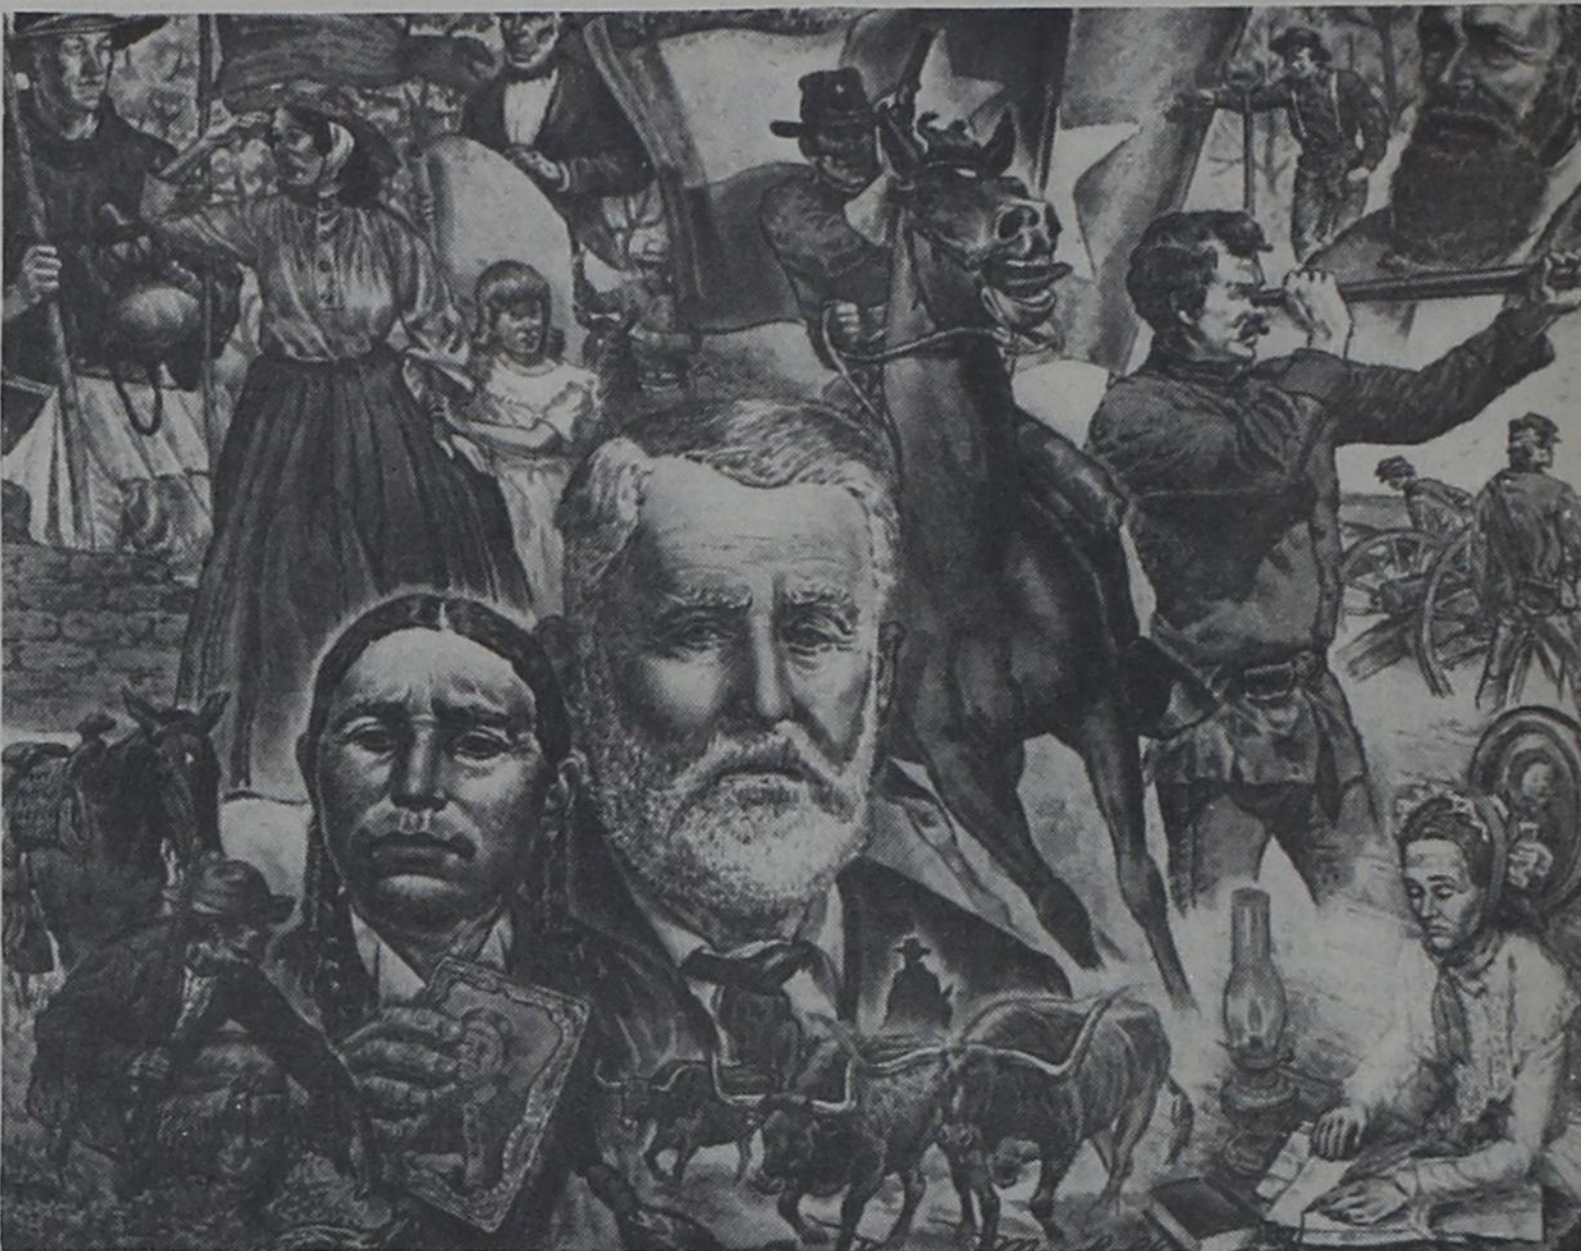

Emerson once wrote, "Men are what their mothers make them." I remember you helping me with my first speech as a small boy and it was entitled "Climb the Mountain Black Boy-Climb the Mountain." Still climbing and the inspiration, the hope, the encouragement you gave me Mom can never be forgotten.

An old adage says that God could not be everywhere, so he made mothers. Your influence as a godly mother was profound and beyond human understanding. So to you Mom we dedicate these lines:

The Greatest battle that ever was fought,
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not;
It was fought by the mothers of men.

Your son and daughter,
Bob and Theresa

P.S. Tell Papa hello for us. We'll see you all in the morning.

Land Purchased by Michelin

The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development, along with the Michelin Corporation, announced Nov. 16 that Michelin has purchased a 510 acre tract of land from the Lubbock Industrial Foundation, Inc. in the Industrial Park in northeast Lubbock.

Marion Sanford, president of the Lubbock Industrial Foundation, has indicated that the site will be used for a manufacturing facility of significance.

A Michelin spokesman stated that the company has not completed its utilization plans for the property at this time, but will announce the completion of these plans at a later date.

Negotiations with Michelin Corporation have been in progress over a period of approximately 18 months according to B.C. "Peck" McMinn, president of the Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development.

"I feel that this important announcement will give Lubbock another major manufacturing facility which will significantly affect the economy of this entire area," said McMinn.

George Miller, chairman of the Industrial Development Committee of the Chamber, stated that the jobs created by this development should have a great impact on this area for years to come. "We are delighted with this turn of events for our community and this company."

Perfect Landing

No matter in what direction a tax is hurled, it always hits the ultimate consumer.

-World-Herald, Omaha.

Bob McNamara, district manager for Southwestern Bell, said the new directory reflects the growth of Lubbock with 288 white pages, 15 more than the 1978 directory contains. The directory contains new telephone numbers (Beginning with 794) for some 2,750 southwest Lubbock customers served by a new central office. New County Courthouse numbers are also included.

"The cover bears a striking painting of key figures from Texas history, selected with the help of the Texas Historical Commission," the district manager said. An explanation of the painting appears on Page 1 of the Call-Guide pages.

The letter also gives the phone number of the local Better Business Bureau and a toll-free number for customers to dial if they find a Yellow Pages ad to be deceptive or misleading.

McNamara said one copy of the directory will be delivered to each residential phone customer. Deliveries should be completed within three weeks. Additional copies may be obtained from any Southwestern Bell business office (or PhoneCenter store) after mid-December.

McNamara said a total of 223,825 books are being printed. Of that number, 132,104 new phone books will be delivered to area resident by mid-December.

"The extra books are for new customers moving to Lubbock throughout the year. Also businesses and customers sometimes wear out their books and need replacements," McNamara added.

Candlelight at The Museum Set For Dec

"Candlelight at The Museum," begun last year with an after-dark visit to the Ranching Heritage Center, will become an annual event. Dates for the 1979 observance are Dec. 5 and 6, from 6-8:30 p.m. each night.

The Ranching Heritage Center, a 12-acre outdoor exhibit depicting the history of ranching in America, will be lighted by a full moon, lunaries, lanterns and candles for a nighttime glimpse of 19th century holiday activities.

Visitors can peek in the windows of selected buildings to see holiday scenes, family Christmas preparations and activities. Holiday music will be furnished by fiddler Cecil Caldwell and the County and Blue Grass Department of South Plains College, Levelland. Visitors can join in a "barn dance" south of the Reynolds-Gentry Barn.

Lighted buildings will include El Capote, Hedwigs Hill, the Jowell House, the Matador Half Dugout, the C.C. Slaughter two-story Dugout, the Harrell House, the JY Bunkhouse, Las Escarbadas and the Picket and Sotol House.

Programs in the various buildings on display will be appropriate to the period and lifestyle each represents. The authentic buildings restored at the site represent almost a century of ranching development, from log-cabin living to the era of the affluent rancer at the turn of the century.

Judith T. Hunter, program coordinator for The Museum, said that the 1978 Candlelight Christmas at the Ranching Heritage Center was so successful that it was decided to make such an event an annual affair. Plans call for the 1980 event to be held withing The Museum building, she said.

Admission to the program is $2 per family. Assisting with "Candlelight at The Museum" will be the volunteer and professional staff of The Museum.

The index to the 1880 Federal Census of Eastland County, Texas (heads of Household, Only) has been compiled by the Erath County Genealogical Society. Staples, 16 pp., $3. Order from the Society, P.O. Box 924, Stephenville, Texas, 76401. Proceeds will be used for purchasing books and microfilm for the genealogical department of the Stephenville Public Library.

In addition to the name of each head of household, the index provides the following information: household and family number, page number on which the family is found on the original census, date census was taken, and number of the precinct and enumerator's district. Names of the individuals are arranged in the order in which they appear on the census.

Members of the Society have also transcribed and published the cemetery inscriptions for Erath and Eastland Counties. No information was given as to whether these books included black cemeteries.

Do you have a PRICE line in you ancestry? THE PRICE FAMILY OF AMERICA QUARTERLY EXCHANGE is a new publication available from Mrs. Alice Macmillan De Rossitt, 1527 N. Division St., Forrest City, Ark., 72335 for only $5 per year. Printed in August, 1979, the first issue contains data on PRICES found in the marriage records from various counties in Virginia, North and South Carolina; headrights and bounty grants of Georgia; Revolutionary War Records from North Carolina; court records from Delaware, Virginia, and Mississippi; index to will books from Pennsylvania; cemetery inscriptions from Tennessee; and the 1790 census. Subscribers may submit, free of charge, pedigree charts and queries on their PRICE connections.

Mr. Leroy Wright, Trenton Junior College, Trenton, Mo. 64683 is working on the ancestry of Arthur WRIGHT, b. in 1941 in Mississippi, and wife Beulah BANKS, b. in 1946 in St. Louis, MO. Arthur is the son of John WRIGHT and Susan JACKSON. Beulah is the daughter of Jet B. BANKS and Anita WILSON. Jet B. BANKS was b. in Haytie, Miss.

This week we will continue with information submitted by Colleen Morse Elliott of Fort Worth. Concluding the data on THE DEER families found on the 1880 census of Madison County, Miss. is the following:

#26-31 Achan DEER, black, male, age 57, farmer, b. in Mississippi, both parents b. in South Carolina; Mariah DEER, black, female, 47, wife, housekeeper, birthplace of self and parents unknown; Caroline, black, female, 19, daughter, farm laborer; Grandson, black, male 17, son, farm laborer; William, black, male, 15, son, farm laborer; Mitchell, black, male, 11, son, at school; Forrest, black, male, 8, son, at school. All children were b. in Mississippi.

Mrs. Morse says that the Grandson DEER, age 54 on the 1880 census (see column dated November 7), is evidently the one who was sold as a slave to the heirs of Martha (DEAR) FORD. Achan DEER, age 57, was sold as a slave to the heirs of Sarah (DEAR) FLEMING. Probate records concerning the estate of John DEAR, Sr. of Madison County, Miss. show these transactions. This material will be abstracted in future columns.

Don't wait any longer! Take advantage of the holiday season and start researching you family tree. Happy Thanksgiving!

Postal Service / County Saves Taxpayers Money

Through the combined efforts of several Lubbock County officials and the United States Postal Service, voter registration certificates being mailed today have been presorted by zip code to save taxpayers money ordinarily spent for postage. Elmer J. Reed, Jr., Postmaster, stated that large volume mailers who are willing to presort their first class mail are given a postage discount. Frank Stuart, County Tax Assessor, stated that Bill McCullough, manager of the new County Computer Center, has used the computer to place all county voter registration certificates into zip code order.

According to Reed, the County taxpayer will be saving almost $800 because of the presort. Reed also mentioned that the Computer Center is presorting weekly jury summons for savings to the taxpayer of approximately $650 annually. Postmaster Reed mentioned that because of the cooperation of McCullough and other County officials, this is the first time in history that Lubbock County could take advantage of the discount offered by the Postal Service and pass the savings onto the taxpayer. Stuart stated that through the efforts of McCullough, County tax statements will be presorted in 1980 for a savings of approximately $1,600.

County Judge Rod Shaw also mentioned that the County is planning a new Central Mail Room, where County mail may be delivered to all County officials early each working day. The new Central Mail Room, according to Judge Shaw, will be able to combine all "outgoing" County mail and take advantage of the presort offered by the Postal Service and pass the savings on to the taxpayer in the form of postal budget reductions.

Reed stated that a unique zip code, a zip code number assigned to only Lubbock County, is being considered by postal officials to further speed up mail addressed to Lubbock County. "The City of Lubbock has its unique zip code - 79459. With sufficient mail volume, there is no reason why Lubbock County, with its new Central Mail Room, could not have its own zip code and enjoy faster delivery service," said Reed.

Postmaster Reed expressed his appreciation to those County officials who were willing to consider and use the Postal Service's first class presort program and pass the savings on to the taxpayer. "After all, I'm a taxpayer, too, you know," Reed said.

this series was a 61-14 verdict recorded in 1954.
 The Red Raiders have won only one of the five games played in Houston. Tech took a 41-21 win in 1953 and has lost the three games played there since.
 Friday's game against Houston will be Rex Dockery's 22nd as a major college head coach, and it will be the 12th time in those 22 games that he has had to start a freshman quarterback. Jim Hart, a freshman from Irving, will start against Houston.
 "Hopefully, that string of freshmen quarterbacks is going to end this season. Ron Reeves will be a junior next year and we also have three excellent quarterbacks who will be sophomores (Jim Hart, Mark James and Randy page)."

Tech to Meet Houston Cougars

Texas Tech will travel to Houston to meet the University of Houston in a Southwest conference game. Kickoff is set for 2:07 p.m. Friday in the Astrodome. The game will be nationally televised by ABC.
 Texas Tech and Houston have met 11 times previously with UH winning seven and Tech four. The first game was played in 1951 with the Cougars taking a 6-0 win in Houston.
 Houston's biggest win in the series came the last time the two teams played in the Astrodome. That was in 1977 and the Cougars won 45-7. Tech's biggest win in

Despite a 3-5-2 record this season, it has not been unusual for the Raiders to lead games early this season. The Tech defense has allowed just 10 total points in the first quarter this year and the Raiders have scored first in eight of 10 games this season. USC and Arizona are the only teams which have gotten the scoring jump on the Raiders this fall.
 "It goes without saying that Houston is a tremendous football team. Bill Yeoman does an exceptional job every year. Probably the thing which will concern us the most is their great overall team speed. We are going to be giving up quickness at some positions and that will be tough. As I've said every week we will have to play an outstanding game in order to win," said the coach.
 The game will be carried by the Mutual Radio Network with Jack Dale and Bob Nash handling the play-by-play and color.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

You know, there have been a spate of movies lately in which men and women of mature age can identify. These movies are those who attempt to create that feeling of this-is-how-it-was and quite often one comes along that really touches the mark.

 For example, the younger generation, the today group, I suppose you'd call them, are touching base with such films as "Coming Home", "The Deer Hunter," and the current walloping epic, "Apocalypse Now." These films all have the late, odorous Viet Nam conflict as their motivating force in plot and characterization.

"MacArthur" recently touched on the Korean war and soon to come is the big, all star film "Inchon" (filmed, oddly enough, by the Rev. Moon's outfit.)

Reaching back still further we have had two films this year that take us to the England of the Blitz and the skirmish known as World War II, 1939-1945. They are "Hanover Street," a soggy, less-than-successful soap opera set in London and environs, the romance of an American and a lady whose proper husband is engaged away from home in the hostilities. This one was a boring clinker and didn't quite come through.

But now there is one, "Yanks" that does capture the time and place and people of those pre-invasion days with accuracy and feeling. It deals with the overwhelming "invasion" of a small village in Southern England by the Normandy-preparing troops, their trucks and jeeps and money and food and the consternation, the resentments and the enthusiasms mirrored in the lives and attitudes of the natives. This one touched me deeply as it will any other World War II veteran who was there. The rationing, the stiff upper-lipped resolution of those people caught in the holocaust of emotion and physical proximity to each other are all portrayed vividly if in a low-keyed sense.

John Schlesinger, a man noted for his canny and astute direction, has tackled his subject with affection and with careful and meticulous obligation. He has used his camera with finesse and knowledge and his film emerges as a slow-moving, thoughtful panorama of the times. It is not an exciting film, there are no mind-boggling scenes of warfare as in "Apocalypse Now"; there are just the casual scenes and involvements in that peculiar time of limbo, prelude to the inevitable that lies just beyond the horizon.

What Schlesinger is telling is the relationships between three principle American military men and their women. The British men are off to Burma, the sea, to far-flung areas of the war. Their women are caught in the frustrations of remaining faithful to the absent ones against the overpowering presence of those Yanks who were "overpaid, over sexed and over here."

We have John, a captain, missing his wife and knowing his marriage is doomed in the States, and the mature, troubled woman he meets, Helen, a woman vital and desirable young son craving her. She and the American have a platonic friendship that sends its roots unavoidably into a brief love before farewell.

There is the more complex relationship between Matt, the American T/Sgt., a cook specializing in fancy cakes, and the girl, Jean, a fiancee off in Burma and the virile American close by. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moreton, know the signs and they are troubled. They resent the American and strive to keep Jean fast in her bond of betrothal to the absent man.

Danny, a short bantam-weight boxing nut, is all flesh and muscle and his roving eye and groping hands soon find a willing female accomplice in Mollie and they waste no time in cementing their physical relationship.

Thus Schlesinger spins his tale. Against the backdrop of shops, post office, the huge dance hall with its glittering, revolving ball, the tunes of the times and the jitterbug, the black marketing ploys of school kids and photographed lovingly and impressively against the green, the rolling hills and fields, the canals and the picturesque village, the director makes his point.

There will come that inevitable moment when the bivouac is collapsed, the trucks loaded and the war machine begins to roll toward the unknown. And by the time that this is so, the relationships are realized, for better or for worse, and those unanchored years of the 1940s plow relentlessly onward.

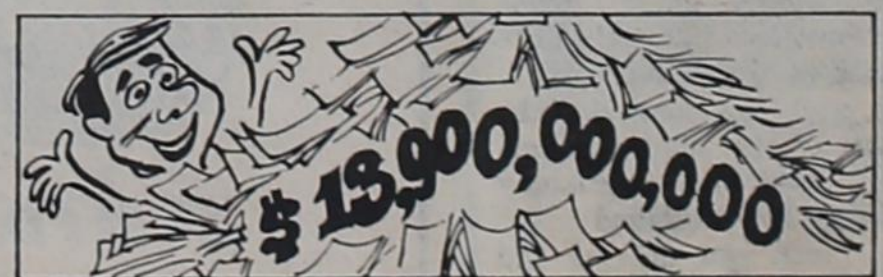

Schlesinger is the key to this film; it is quality to the finest point. He has meshed his entire operation into a touching, leisurely reminiscence. He has a cast to work with that must have been a joy to his heart for they are meticulously merged into their roles without flaw. For his mature couple, Captain John and the bereft Helen could not have done better than having William Devane and Venessa Redgrave. She and he are simply superb all the way.

The younger couple, the concerned Jean, and the effervescent yet subdued Matt are handled beautifully by Richard Gere and Lisa Eichorn, she particularly effective. And the bouncing pair, Molly and Danny, are just right played by Chick Vennera and pert Wendy Morgan.

As the worried parents of Jean, one could hardly ask for more finished and professional work than that given by Rachel Roberts as the dying Mrs. Moreton and her defeated, complaiscent husband done in low-key by Tony Melody.

The highlight of the film, the only time there is true action in this somewhat languid piece, comes at the New Year's Eve dance when a vicious and shocking racial fight erupts between the white GIs and the black GIs. It is this telling sequence that underscores that which is present all through the film, the difference between the cultures of the British and the Americans and illustrates the thorny road that had to be traveled in each other's company.

"Yanks" is a creditable entry in the current film sweepstakes. It is showing at the Cinema West out on West 19th St. and it is recommended for mature audiences, particularly those whose roots dig down as deeply as to count those World War II European Theatre days in their memoirs.

U.S. daily newspaper advertising volume is about $13.9 billion in 1979, up from a 1978 all-time high of about $12.7 billion.

Slow Boat to New Orleans.

The day my company transferred me out here to the Midwest, my boss said, "It's only for a short while, Doug." That was six years ago. Long enough to meet Jan and get married.

Oh, I like it out here, all right. The people are nice and the land is beautiful. But I sure do miss the ocean.

You see, until I came out here, I had lived and worked all my life by the sea. Sailing was my passion. Summer, winter, good weather and bad, I loved the ever-changing moods of the ocean. Now, here I am landlocked in a small Indiana town. Married and raising a family.

When I met Jan she was working in our payroll department. And after we were married she insisted we both join the Payroll Savings Plan and start saving for something special with U.S. Savings Bonds. Our own little dream.

I told her about my dream, "How about a 35-footer so we can sail Lake Michigan on weekends?"

"But honey, I get seasick on sailboats." Her voice trailed off as she watched the shock register on my face.

"Seasick?" I screamed. "My one and only wife?"

No one in my family has ever been seasick! I'm surrounded by landlubbers."

"Will you settle for the river?" she brightened. "I've got a great idea. A houseboat. It's comfortable, steady and we can take long trips down the river."

It didn't take very long to pile up enough U.S. Savings Bonds to make a down payment on a big, shiny, new houseboat that rode as smooth as any bus.

Last summer, we took a trip that led into the Mississippi River, then down to New Orleans. Jan didn't get sick once. Maybe this is a good way to wean her to some real boating.

Meanwhile, it's fun. 'Course it isn't like handling a racing sloop in the Atlantic; but the currents are very tricky, and it's a challenge just staying off the sandbars. And I'm seeing a lot of the country I'd never get to see any other way.

United States Savings Bonds will help your ship come in. Join the Payroll Savings Plan at work or the Bond-a-Month Plan where you save. It's smooth sailing.
