Fire Destroys House Wednesday On Wuerflein Farm

Fire completely destroyed a four room modern frame stucco house, located six miles west and four miles north of Earth, around 3 p. m. Wednesday. The house was occupied by the Joe Hood family, and owned by Mrs. Lillie Wuerflein.

The fire occurred while the Hoods and five of their ten children were away from home hoeing cotton. The other five children were at home at the time of the blaze.

The Earth Fire Department was called to the scene by an 8 year old Negro girl, a member of the Hood family. The girl ran to the home of Mrs. Wuerflein, who was not at home at the time. She quickly entered and used the phone to call the fire department, but by the time the fire department arrived at the scene, it was too late to save the house or furniture. Fire department from Earth and two units from Mulleshoe attempted to put out the blaze.

Roy Gover, neighboring farmer, and his son-in-law, Lonnie King, were passing and discovered the fire. They tried to save some of the household belongings, after they noticed all the children were safe, but were unable to, due to the extent of the heat.

A car, parked near the house, was also pulled away by Gover and King.

Perk Lee, Earth fireman, cut the electric wires that ran to the house, to prevent injury to the firemen. The fire had completely engulfed the structure by the time firemen arrived. After the fire was put out, only the stucco frame remained.

The Hoods rented the house from Mrs. Wuerflein about 3 or 4 weeks ago, moving there from the Jack Hadaway farm, west of town. The family hoed cotton for Mrs. Wuerflein and were hoeing for another farmer at the time of the blaze and their whereabouts were not known.

It was assumed that the fire started in the attic from faulty wiring. The house was insured by Mrs. Wuerflein, but it was not known at press time whether the Hood family had insurance on their belongings.

Miraculously, none of the five children that were at home were injured.

Break-In At City Drug

A break-in at the City Drug sometime Tuesday night was discovered at 7 a. m. Wednesday, by A. B. Odom, owner, when he arrived at the firm to open for the day.

Mr. Odom reported the intruder must have been scared away, as, so far, nothing had been discovered missing in the drug store, or from the prescription shop in the back.

The intruders gained entrance through the back door in the rear, by mangling the lock to the door, and in order to enter the main part of the store, a glass was broken from a hallway door, so as to reach the hook, and unlatch the door to the drug store.

Deputy Sheriff, V. L. Smith, Jr. investigated the break-in.

Baptist Church Will Show "Shadow of the Boomerang"

"Shadow of the Boomerang" Evangelist Billy Graham's newest feature length dramatic film, will be shown at the Earth First Baptist Church, Saturday, July 27, at 8 p. m.

The public is invited to see this dramatic film starring vivacious Georgia Lee and television's Buffalo Bill, Jr., Dick Jones. "Shadow of the Boomerang" is an outdoor action picture with all of the excitement and breath-taking scope of the land, "Down Under". Setting for the screen drama is Australia's "Outback" the continent's vast interior region where some of the world's largest cattle stations are located.

The two young Americans head an all-Australian supporting cast, playing brother and sister roles in a turbulent story of homestead life. Their arrival in Australia to manage newly acquired family holdings, plunges the couple into strange surroundings and situations with which they find it difficult to cope. The brother is immature and impetuous, slow to accept Australian ways. His sister is much more democratic, readily accepted by her new friends with whom she joins in an attempt to instill understanding and tolerance in her brother.

Filed against the backdrop of the Billy Graham Australian Crusades. "Shadow of the Boomerang" seeks to underline the Godly reaction to human crises and conflicts. Spokesman for the Christian position is Billy Graham, seen in dramatic Crusade footage photographed at the site of the Evangelist's record-breaking crowds in Melbourne and Sydney. An authentic land line relay meeting which shared the big city Crusades with the stockmen of the "Outback" is used as an effective dramatic device in the story climax.

"Shadow of the Boomerang" was produced and directed by Dick Ross, President of World Wide Pictures, the organization which has created such previous Billy Graham film successes as "The Heart is a Rebel", "Souls in Conflict", and "Oiltown, U. S. A.". The new picture will be shown free of charge under the auspices of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Film Ministry.

Billy Graham is seen in actual pictures filmed at the site of the record-breaking crowds in Melbourne and Sydney, during the great Australian Crusade. There were 101 decisions made for Christ when the film was shown in Waco.

SOYBEAN FARM CENTERED-RESEARCH. Ten strains and varieties of soybeans are being tested at the following sites: Near Falls on the Wright Carlisle farm; north of Kress on the Elvin Glenn farm on highway 87; at Easter on farm highway 1305 on the Charles Frye farm. A sandy land test is seven miles east and three miles north of Texline on the Bell farm with Don Fleming in charge; east of Farnsworth on the Leland Wilson farm, and at Muleshoe on Highway 70 on the Harold and Oscar Allison farm. The Lee, Hill and our new HINN variety along with seven leading experimental strains bred at the Foundation are located at each planting site. Barry Love and Paul M. Belcher of the High Plains Research Foundation staff are supervising the soybean research in cooperation with the farmers.

COTTON WITH 50% LESS WATER. There is a great deal of interest in growing cotton with less water. In the greenhouse, Dr. Arthur Gohlke reports cotton is setting fruit with 43% less water with the hormone treatment than the non-treated plant. There is a 10 day delay on the treated plant fruiting in the greenhouse. In the field trial there has been no delay. The hormone was applied to the seed and soil simultaneously in the field trials. The next hormone research in the field will be leaf application which will be initiated this week.

RECHARGE RESULTS. Recharge of ground water from plays lakes into underground sand has proved highly successful. Jim Valliant reports that James Stair northeast of Plainview save crops and increased irrigation reserve during heavy rains in June.

Don Graham, south of Halfway, saved 12 acres of land and put 46 acre-feet of water underground through recharge. We must do everything we can to prolong irrigation and to make maximum use of everything we can to prolong irrigation and to make maximum use of every drop of water.

VALLIANT HONORED. James Valliant presented the results of his research on recharging lake water into the underground Ogallala sand at the Biennial Conference on ground water recharge and ground water basin management at Berkeley, California. Four hundred scientists were present from all over the United States. From all reports, his presentation was well received.

James visited research projects in water conservation at Safford, Arizona, to observe their grass research for solids control. He visited the Institute of Water Utilization at the University of Arizona and the Maricopa Water District at Beardsley, Arizona.

MIDGE MENACE. Midge comes early this year. Be sure to read the story on midge control by Delbert Langford and Dr. Arthur Gohlke accompanying this edition. It is important.

FIELD DAY. Field Day, is September 10, Tuesday afternoon. From all reports, a record crowd is expected.

FLAME CULTIVATION. Flame Cultivation field days in the Lower Rio Grande Valley were very successful. Requests were made for the Foundation to enlarge the valley research program to include fertilizer and variety tests—quite an endorsement for the value of Private Enterprise Research.

WHEAT VARIETY TESTS. Despite hail, rain and wind the wheat yields ranged from 34.4 bushels to 67.6 bushels. The average yield for the entire wheat production was 50 bushels. See Delbert Langford's wheat report. Chemical analysis of wheat research will be reported as soon as laboratory tests are completed by Mr. Nick Vilim of Producers Grain Corporation Laboratories in Amarillo, Texas.

GOOD NEIGHBOR TRIP TO MEXICO. A group of 70 made a good neighbor tour to Mexico the first two weeks of July. The group included representatives from 4-H, Future Farmers, Future Homemakers, college undergraduates, graduate students in agriculture and college professors, Vocational Agricultural instructors, Dentists, Doctors of Veterinary Medicine, and representatives of Rotary, Lions, Kiwanis Clubs and Chambers of Commerce, women's clubs and others.

The purpose of the trip was to establish friendly relationships with all classes in Mexico. The whole group was enthusiastically received everywhere they went.

A very good opportunity to combat the work of our enemies in their attempt to increase the bad feelings of the past where it counts the most. C. H. Janeway represented the Foundation, and the Rotary Club of Plainview. In two places considerable interest was shown in the possibility of establishing private enterprise agricultural research similar to the High Plains Research Foundation. These places were Mexico City and Chihuahua.

Baptist Group Enjoy Sandhill Party Friday

Several Young People of the Earth First Baptist Church enjoyed a weiner roast and outing at White Elephant sandhills south of Plant X, Friday night.

The group met at the church at 5:30 p.m., where Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Baldwin served them watermelon, in the back yard of the parsonage, before they departed for the sandhills.

The young people enjoyed playing volleyball, relay games, and playing in the sand. Following refreshments of roasted weiners and marshmallows, chips and soft drinks, the group sat around the camp fire. A devotional was given by Duane Harris, followed by group singing. Duane Harris led the group in prayer before they departed for home.

Those going were Karen Green, Pruda Sanders, Becky Rylant, Vicki Clayton, Joan Sanderson, Cheryl Foster, Jill McCord, Kathy Clayton, Alice Jaques Carolyn Kelley, Duane Harris, Bobby Borum, John Patterson, David Davis, Freddy Kelley, Lonnie Adrian, Jimmie Stockstill, Davy Haberer, Randy Kelley, David Jaques, Randy Clayton, Jerry Anderson and one guest, Lyn Rylant, Chicago, Illinois, a cousin of Bobby Borum. The sponsors, Mrs. Rex Clayton and Mrs. Leon Foster, also attended.

Chester Elmore's Surprised With Housewarming

Several friends of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Elmore pleasantly surprised them with a housewarming in their new home on South Amherst Road, last Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The Elmore's were lured away from their home by their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lane of Muleshoe. The group left to go tour the lovely new home of the Norman Sulser's. While they were gone, those attending gathered at Adrian's Wash Rack, near the Elmore home and parked their cars, before assembling at their home.

The Elmore's were quite surprised when they arrived back home, to find their house full of friends, waiting for their return.

Refreshments of punch and cookies were served from a table laid with a lovely lace cloth over pink, centered with a beautiful floral arrangement.

The Elmore's received many lovely, useful gifts.

Skippy Breakfast Bad For Health

If you suffer from "midmorning hunger," better revise your breakfast habits. State Health Department nutritionists advise.

More and more people are falling into the habit of skippy breakfasting. Surveys have shown that two out of every nine children leave for school without breakfast, and four out of ten workers leave for work with nothing to eat.

"Midmorning hunger" is the expression nutritionists use to describe the feeling which comes after an inadequate breakfast. Victims usually feel weak and giddy by midmorning. They may be hungry yet have no taste for lunch. Or if they are able to eat a big lunch they may feel sleepy by early afternoon.

Midmorning hunger therapy, nutritionists say, calls for the "patient" to eat a solid breakfast. The extent of breakfast consumption varies from person to person. Individuals with special problems or modified diets can be guided by their physician.

Many Texas teachers and school nurses place special emphasis on breakfast. One school nurse had a breakfast contest in the elementary grades. Near the end of the school year, a mother telephoned to report on the improved breakfast habits and general well being of the whole family. Before the contest, the mother said, none of the family ate breakfast. Her child, involved in the school contest, insisted on having a good breakfast. Eventually it caught on and the whole family began eating breakfast and feeling better.

It is a false idea that skipping breakfast is a good way to reduce. If anything, this highly injurious practice adds pounds. It works like this:

Skip breakfast and by noon you have lost your appetite or else are afraid to eat for fear of being groggy all afternoon. Then for supper, you eat the food your body has been demanding all day. Now you go to bed and your supper is converted to fat rather than energy as would have been the case had you eaten properly during hours of greatest activity.

An adequate breakfast pattern can be adapted to any age, budget or cultural pattern. Fruit or fruit juice, protein-rich food—such as eggs, cheese, meat or beans—bread or cereal and milk.

If time is a prohibitive factor, some preparations can be made the night before: setting the table, fixing the coffee pot, etc.

Breakfast eating is a part of a pattern of daily life that will pay dividends in a higher level of health and well being.

Party Line

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Williams accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Williams, Muleshoe, enjoyed supper at the Silver Grill in Clovis, N.M. Saturday night.

Brenda Williams, daughter of the Clinton Williams' spent last week in Muleshoe with the Billy Williams family.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Campbell and David, McCamey, spent the weekend with her sister.

German Youth Leaves USA To Establish Church In Homeland

Members of the Earth Church of Christ voted a few weeks ago to contribute twenty-five dollars ($25.00) monthly to aid Herbert Luft of Frankfurt, Germany in his efforts to establish a church in Darmstadt, Germany, upon his return to his homeland, following two years of study in the U.S.A. Churches in the area are contributing financially to help him in his efforts.

Luft was due to arrive back in Germany on July 17, according to a letter to his friends, the John Garretts, of Earth.

Luft, a 20 year old German youth, spoke at the local church, while in Earth as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Garrett and family. He had met Mrs. Garrett last January while she was in Rochester, Miss. visiting her brother, Dr. Otis Gatewood, who is President of the Michigan Christian College where Luft was enrolled.

Upon graduation in late May of '63, Luft came to Lubbock in his tireless efforts to obtain support for the church he hoped to establish in Darmstadt, and noting that his friend, Mrs. Garrett was so near by, he came to Earth and spent several days as guest of the Garretts, while awaiting the decision of the Lubbock church to sponsor him.

Luft came to the United States in July, 1961 where he enrolled in Michigan Christian College. He majored in Bible and speech and proved to be one of the top scholars at the college.

He served as minister of the Church of Christ in West Toledo, Ohio, from September 1962 until his graduation in late May.

In speaking of why he came to the U.S.A. to study, Luft said, "That is a long story and deals greatly with the influence Dr. Gatewood has had on my life." He began his story, Gatewood was one of the first missionaries to Germany following the war, and served 11 years, from '46 to '57. He said he met Gatewood for the first time in 1949, just 3 1/2 years following the war. He said he could clearly recall the meeting with Gatewood, even though he was only six years old at the time. The meeting came about quite by chance, as there was no place to play except on the streets, or in some of the old ruins. He spoke of one place in particular, an old house half torn down, ruins resulting from shell fire and bombs from the war, but it was the favorite playground for the small German youths, who had no decent place to play.

Then one day, to their dismay, big bulldozers came and tore down the old half-standing buildings, smashed the ground off and erected a tent. He, as others of his friends, watched in sadness. However as they stood viewing the procedure, a friendly man came out and shook their hands. He talked to them, and invited them to come to the tent, and hear the message he was there to deliver in the footsteps of Hitler...

The lad of six was impressed by the friendly man, he told his mother of the meeting. He explained this meeting as something similar to a vacation Bible School in America. His mother, however, was baptized into the church during that meeting... Luft went on to say he kept in contact with the church and with Gatewood, but did not obey the gospel and become baptized until seven years later, when he was 13... That was in the year of 1956.

Luft said Gatewood left Germany in 1957, but had influenced his life greatly, and had been instrumental in his decision to become a minister.

In 1959, Gatewood became president of Michigan Christian College, in Rochester, and remembering how interested his young friend, Luft, was in receiving an education, he found a way to bring him to America to study.

Luft entered the Michigan college in July, '61, and graduated in May, 1963.

HERBERT LUFT

Upon graduation from the college, he set forth to obtain funds to establish a church in Darmstadt, Germany. He had been haunted by a small group of American G.I. families, stationed there, who gathered together for services, but had no Church of Christ to worship in. They had begged him to return upon graduation to this big industrial city of approximately 160,000 population without a Church of Christ to worship in. He stopped to add this information, that Germany was 40% Catholic, 55% Lutheran and that all other churches, together amounted to about 5%. He went on attempting to briefly review the Christian situation in Germany by saying, "There are approximately 55 million people in West Germany including West Berlin, and in all these millions there are only 48 Church of Christ congregations with approximately 2500 members in all West Germany. He went on to say there were probably no churches of any denomination in East Germany because it is not allowed. From Christianity, he moved on to speak of the difference in the educational system in America, as compared to that of his homeland. He said he believed more American youth finish high school, than in Germany. Only 10% of the German youth complete high school. However, he said, approximately 40% start, but drop out along the way... He explained high school in Germany consists of eight grades, beginning at the fifth grade, through the 12th.

He stated that fifth grades were taught Latin and many other subjects equally as difficult. He went on to say, he thought the German faculty expected more of their students, for instance, he said any German completing high school, (all 12 grades) would be accepted as a junior in most American universities.

He had only finished the 8th grade before coming to America, where he entered the Junior college at Rochester, Michigan and graduated in 2 years, the same as others in his class who finished high school before entering college.

In further speaking of the educational foundation of the German youth compared to that of American youth, he said, an American youth who might wish to enter the Heidelberg University, would have to be rated as a Junior in an American college in order to be accepted in the German college, and then only as a freshman.

In speaking of the economy, Luft said, "I am still a little bit appalled by the super economy here, the way Americans have built this great country in only 200 years, in comparison to what Germany had done in 2,000 years."

He thought upon arrival in America, that the government should control railroads, radio and TV stations, utility companies, air lines, newspapers, etc., as they do in Germany, and here he found it quite different. He thought they should not be allowed to make money. But he said, "I have changed my mind in the last two years to the fact that greater progress is achieved through private enterprise, with the government keeping hands off."

Luft's awakening to the differences in the two countries private enterprise vs. government controlled business, came about last summer, when he was selling encyclopedias in Michigan, to help with his school expenses. He saw he was free to sell when, where, and to whom he pleased. His potential was unlimited. He could go as far as his energy salesmanship and presentation would take him. He found that good, clean competition kept him on his toes. With no government control and no strings attached, he found he was an individual in a land where his ability counted. He said he now realized too well that Germany's system of governmental ownership of business was hampering her progress. And that America's advancement must certainly be due to their belief in private enterprise and fair competition.

Luft said as far as he could determine, this government (American) was anti-business and pro-labor. He said it seemed they were over-taxing business to the breaking point and paying the laborer well. While in his country, industry was getting richer and the working people getting poorer.

Comparing the American worker to the German, on an average 8 hour day, he said, the German receives less money, for his days work, and secondly, the German worker can buy less with his money than the American. He pointed out that groceries, clothing and practically all necessary items are higher in Germany, than here. He said the skilled labor in Germany would work approximately 2 hours for a pound of butter, which is priced at $1.50 per pound, while seemingly the American worker was being well paid, for the job he was doing.

In speaking of government controls, he said, in Germany people in certain income brackets are forced to carry a health and insurance policy, with a government owned insurance company. Luft, being reared in Germany, thought this was superior to the American way. However, again he changed his mind, after visiting a dentist's office in America. He found the dentist polite, courteous and almost painless. Plus, a deep desire to treat his patients fairly. Luft again saw what free enterprise and fair competition meant.

He laughingly compared a visit to a dentist's office in Germany. There, he said you wait hours and hours to get in. Then, the dentist most likely will pull the tooth without a shot, because he isn't too concerned about whether it hurts or not, as he is paid through your government insurance policy, by the government. He has no competition, so he does not have to be considerate of his patients, because people carrying these forced-to-carry policies are told what dentist to go to. The same thing applies to a medical or surgical doctor. The doctor is named by your policy and you have no choice, and they have no competition, so, they have you on the hook, anyway.

Luft said it took about a year in this country for him to realize how wrong it was to have practically everything under government control. Without competition and free enterprise, a country cannot go forward. He kept repeating that nothing amazed him more than to see what the people of this country had built up, an economy and culture in a country only two hundred years old. And in such a short time, have made it superior to any other country in the world.

Concerning the communication systems in Germany, he pointed out that for the 35 million people in Germany, there are only 10 TV stations. Those ten have a choice of only two programs. He said this was like CBS and NBC in America.

In answer to the segregation problem arising in America he said, "I think they have a right to freedom, when they are ready, but they may not be ready in the south." He went on to say "the way they're pressing it in the south is hurting the U.S. throughout the world. Especially, in the underdeveloped countries." He brought out his point by saying that in these countries the people do not know the whole story. They only know that white Americans won't let black Americans go to high schools and colleges. He added "I had several friends in the Michigan Christian College who were Negroes. They, however were worthy of all the rights and freedoms. They may be among the few that are ready for integration. He said that there was no reason to hold them back if they are ready, and prove themselves worthy, and honestly desire an education, rather than just trying to prove they can get into these schools, just for the sake of saying, "I got into them."

He said he thought this is the worst time to have the segregation flare-ups, with the cold war as it stands today. His only suggestion to help the integration problem was to start the students in the first grade and with this gradual process, integration could probably take place without incident.

Ending the interview with the News-Sun reporter, Luft said, "America is my second home, I leave with a crying eye, and a laughing eye. My laughing eye indicates I am proud to return to my homeland, and my crying eye indicates I am leaving my second home, and my many lovely friends I have met in this land."

We here at the News-Sun office can only say, farewell to a fine lad, it was so nice meeting and visiting with you. We sincerely hope your life's work in Germany for Christ will be a rewarding one, and that the Lord will someday say, "Well done."

NLRB Power Curb Is Demanded In Congress Drive

WASHINGTON—A campaign is now under way in Congress to curb the National Labor Relations Board's power to take actions which critics contend seriously threaten the free enterprise system and the institution of collective bargaining.

Spearheading the effort are Reps. Landrum (D-Ga.) and Griffin (R-Mich.), authors of the celebrated Landrum-Griffin Labor Reform Act passed by Congress in 1959 after a fierce battle.

Rep. Landrum announced that he would introduce a bill "to take away from the Board the right to try unfair labor practice cases and place the jurisdiction for the trial of such cases in the U. S. District Courts."

Representation cases would continue to be handled by the Board.

NO IMPROVEMENT

Recalling that they had complained a year ago about the NLRB's record, the Representatives told the House that there had been no improvement since.

"The Board's subsequent decisions," Rep. Landrum said, "have carved even wider loopholes in the statutory ban against secondary boycotts and blackmail picketing. The right of free speech has been further curtailed. And the Board has ignored the intent of Congress in other important areas of the law."

There has been a series of decisions in the past year, he added, which "encroach heavily on the right of management to manage."

"In substance," he continued, "they hold that a business enterprise must bargain with the union—not just on wages, hours, and working conditions—but on a variety of other major business decisions as well."

Midge Infestation Throughout Area

From time to time the High Plains Research Foundation will be sending you, as a supporter, a hot line report on some phase of agriculture. It is our hope that this information can help you in your operation.

This report is on Midge--Delbert Langford, Associate Agronomist of the High Plains Research Foundation, located on the High Plains of Texas, announced that Midge is now infesting grain sorghum throughout the area. Langford has alerted farmers to take measures to protect their crops. This insect can completely eliminate a grain sorghum crop.

Midge infestations have invaded the High Plains Research Foundation, July 9 is the first this insect has put in an appearance here this year. The adult Midge itself will not damage, but will lay eggs in the bloom of the grain sorghum head. As the larva grows, it eats the grain; thus leaving only an empty hull.

The adult sorghum Midge is an orange-colored fly about 1/12 inch long with prominent black eyes. The adult lives one day during which it lays 200 to 300 eggs with a life cycle of 14 to 16 days.

Since only the adult can be controlled at present by insecticides, timeliness of control is most important.

Control of Midge can best be brought about by spraying with insecticides prior to and during the blooming stage. The first application should be made about two days after the head emerges from the boot. Some of the chemicals recommended for spraying are Endrin, Sevin, Toxaphene. Farmers should contact local dealers for application rates and methods.

In years past with plantings of May 15 and earlier, there has been no damage to grain sorghum by Midge due to an early blooming date, and having the crop into a hard grain stage by the time Midge arrived. Some farmers have planted early this year in the attempt to get the grain sorghum past the Midge. This present infestation is about one month earlier than in 1962.

Langford says that the infestation will keep building up and gaining momentum until the last grain has bloomed.

This report is on: Irrigation of cotton--From Jim Valfiant this word of caution to all irrigation cotton farmers in the High Plains.

Irrigation of cotton at an early stage on late cotton may promote rank growth of cotton; thus plant energy will go to growth of the plant rather than to making of blooms.

Jim suggests that you hold off until first bloom for irrigation of the late planted cotton. Irrigation at first square tends to cause the plant to throw off the square and thus reduce yields. Even though the cotton may seem to need water at this time, it may be best to hold off for awhile, keeping an eye on moisture of the plant.

Patent Is Spur To Invention

Necessity may be the mother of invention, but its Big Daddy is the patent.

July 31 is the anniversary of the day when the first patent was issued in the United States. That was in 1790--little more than a year after the new government began operating. It was only a process for "making pot and pearl ashes", otherwise known as potash, reports World Book Encyclopedia, but so important was the event that President Washington himself signed the patent awarded to Samuel Hopkins, of Vermont, Endorsing the document was the then Secretary of State Jefferson, no mean gadgeteer himself, whose inventions include the swivel chair and the dumb-waiter.

Why all the fuss about the patent?

Statesmen before and after Washington have praised it as a spur to invention and hence, technological advance. And some observers have even credited it with the Western world's high standard of living.

A patent is simply a limited monopoly which secures to an inventor the fruits of his labor. For 17 years he has the exclusive right to make, sell, or use his invention. Of course, it may be a profitless 17 years, if some part of his invention has been patented by an earlier inventor who refuses to let him use it. But at the end of that period, the invention becomes accessible to the public at large and scientific knowledge is increased.

Women began making their contributions to scientific ic knowledge as early as 1809, when Mary Kies was granted a patent for a method of weaving straw with silk or thread.

THE ECLIPSE, AS SEEN BY THE NEWS-SUN REPORTER... and taken through a welder's helmet, with the able assistance of Norman Hinchliffe.

A few thousand patents later, a former Congressman from Illinois named Abraham Lincoln received one for "A Device for Buoying Vessels Over Shoals." The device must have been a success, because Lincoln later declared appreciatively, "The patent system added the fuel of interest to the fire of genius."

About this time, unfortunately, the fire of genius was just what the examiners were demanding proof of, before they would grant a patent. Inventors who labored long and hard over their creations but were unable to show that spark of "diving Madness" were turned away, while less-than-brilliant tinkers who might have stumbled onto an idea or a device by accident were rewarded. In 1962 Congress decided there weren't enough geniuses to go around and changed the patent laws.

The requirement, however, proved no obstacle to Mark Twain, who received three patents. In 1873 he was awarded one for "Mark Twain's Self-Pasting Scrapbook," a book of blank pages coated with gum or veneer. He sold 25,000 copies during the first royalty period, leading one writer to comment that this "was well enough for a book that did not contain a single word that critics could praise or condemn."

Railway Freight Increase Viewed

The Interstate Commerce Commission has arbitrarily increased the cost of living for everybody in the South with its decision requiring Southern Railway to increase its 'Big John' multiple-car freight rates on grain by approximately 16 percent. Southern Railway's president, D.W. Bronson, said on July 15, Bronson added, "The Interstate Commerce Commission, in a split decision, has decided that we must charge people more money than we need to charge them. It says we must soon charge $1.16 for a job we are now doing profitably for a dollar. This may serve the interests of the truck lines and barges, but it is definitely a decision against the people of our country who must pay these unnecessarily high charges and who are least able to pay."

"Congress can and must cure this kind of ridiculous and costly-to-the-public situation by passage of the minimum rates bills, H.R. 1061 and H.R. 4700. "Regulation today is being used to deny people the benefit of savings Southern Railway, and other railroads, can generate in moving bulk and agricultural commodities on which barges and trucks now have freedom from regulation. This is costing the public billions of dollars each year because rail freight rates are kept too high by regulation."

Savings from Southern's reduced grain rates, which the Commission has now ordered raised, had been estimated to save grain users in the Southeast between $35 and $40 million annually. "This decision," Southern's president said, "will cut this down by about six to seven million dollars. That's money I'm sure people could be putting to good use rather than paying out in unnecessarily high transportation costs."

Bronson called attention to the fact that the three members of the Commission who are members of Division 2 which had originally approved Southern's low grain rates, disagreed with the majority of the Commission and filed minority opinions supporting Southern in its effort to offer justified low rates. Division 2 is the section of the Commission which has primary responsibility for determining rates. "Nevertheless," said Bronson, "The commission now says we'll have to start collecting money from shippers that we don't want to collect and don't need to collect in order to make a profit. Meanwhile, we'll carry our case to the Federal Courts while we fight for our right to save people money."

Next season's quail crop is determined, to a great extent, by the amount of work done early in the spring to provide adequate plant cover and feeds.

So says Edward L. Koziky, director of conservation for the Nilo Farms, owned by Olin Mathieson.

Nilo Farms are in Illinois. But the thing that makes his statement news in Texas, is that Koziky was talking in Texas.

Koziky recently was on the program of the American Game Breeders Association in Dallas. This association is composed of the producers of birds, such as quail and pheasant, mostly for shooting resorts. It is a nation-wide organization.

Naturally a shooting resort must have good cover for the birds that are to be released in advance of the hunters.

Good cover also is important to the landowner who has a few flocks of birds on his place. This is true regardless of whether he lives in East Texas or West Texas.

Quite a number of youth groups have been building cover areas during the past year. Most of them are working with Joe Davidson, who directs the current program for the Texas Game and Fish Commission.

"Proper cover can spell the difference between financial success or failure of a preserve and can add immeasurably to the overall quality of field shooting," Koziky told the Dallas meeting.

"The local conserve agent would be sought for technical advice on soil classification and conservation practices. A soil classification and land quality map is a must. The local county extension specialist can be of immense assistance in advising you of plants best adapted for a particular area or purpose. Also, the farm crop specialist at the state agricultural college or university may provide the answer to many difficult problems," said Koziky.

What he told the professional game breeders also might be applied to landowners in every part of the state, and to local sportsmen's units.

Many times the landowner himself is not especially interested in shooting on his own place. In fact shooters have been a source of trouble to him.

In these changing times, however, when sportsmen are learning they must pay for privileges of hunting on land belonging to others, the landowner's attitude is changing. He sees a profit, so he is willing to do something about it.

During the past season there probably were more gates opened with $5 bills for a key than at any other time in Texas history. The number will increase this year.

Generally this is the fee for day hunting of quail in Texas. In some areas it is slightly more; some, less. A few shooting resorts are building up season fees. Such fees cover not only a bag of birds from the resort, but also native birds in nearby pastures and fields.

In a number of places small groups have gotten together to supply the landowner with proper cover plants and to pay for hatchery-raised quail for planting.

These groups can get information from the Game and Fish Commission in Austin, or from local game wardens and biologists. Trained personnel will be a great help in developing many areas for future bird hunting.

Many landowners, particularly in the North Plains where millions of acres of land have been turned under, are planting cover plots with protective fences around them.

Birds are released around these plots where cover, food and water are available. As a result when weather conditions are not too unfavorable there is a bird crop in the fall.

Generally, the entire area is excellent habitat, but additional work has been done. There are numerous plots on the ranch where fences keep livestock out. Behind these fences cover and food are protected. As a result the area is very productive of birds, again subject to weather conditions.

If you want to hunt birds this fall, you might consider some of these practices. If they are good enough for resort owners who are members of the North American Game Breeders & Shooting Preserve Association, they might be good enough for others, too.

Denny Parish and Ronnie Williamson, Olton spent last Wednesday in Lubbock.

There's a Gun At Your Head!

Any farmer would move carefully, slowly and as directed . . . if he knew a gun was pointed at his head. Yet there is a gun at every farmer's head . . .
unseen . . . whenever he is operating farm machinery. The hand on the trigger is yours. A moment of carelessness and you've lost your arm or your life.
The National Safety Council says it is human failure that is the basic cause of farm safety. Never push your luck too far . . . the stakes are too high for gambling. You can commit suicide with a farm implement!
