WITH POLLY

Sure seems nice when the folks just drive up in the driveway when you don't even know they are coming. That's what happened to us last Friday night. Bob's mother and father come walking in just as we were sitting down to eat, and talk about eat that first day she baked an apple pie and a cherry pie, now you've heard that old statement about something being "just as American as apple pie". They're good, and I just love Americans to bake apple pies.

And too that old statement we hear outgrow the need of our parents works in many ways. Besides the things they so willingly do for us. "They're just pretty wonderful to have around." Wish we could make Texans out of them.

NO ROBBERY SIGNS ONLY BROKEN WINDOW

A rear window leading into the Brighten The Corner Furniture Sunday.

Whether or not it was meant to be robbery and the prowlers were frightened away or was broken out by youngsters at play remains a mystery.

It was discovered by an employee of the firm, F. C. Pichardo about 5:20 p.m. Sunday night as he came into the store to turn lights on for the night.

Pichardo at once summoned deputy sheriff Shorty Randolph, night watchman A. L. Kelley and Jaquess, who searched for footprints around the window and for evidence of robbery inside. But a search throughout the store and the upstairs indicated nothing had been disturbed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Lemmons, who own and manage the store, were in Clovis, New Mexico, visiting with relatives.

ATTEND UNCLE'S FUNERAL AT PONCA CITY, OKLAHOMA

Mr. and Mrs. George Runyon, Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Free, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Gooch, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Kelley, Iste, Clyde, Cecil and Gus Parish attended funeral services Wednesday for their uncle, Mr. Tom Goodwin of Ponca City, Oklahoma, who died suddenly, Tuesday. Mr. Goodwin is Mrs. Proel's brother-in-law.

I guess we can all recall the story of the little old taller who killed seven flies at one blow and saved on his belt, "Seven at a blow" and was mistaken to have killed seven giants at one blow. WOULDNT HE BE APPRECIATED HERE if he could get seven flies or mosquitoes with only one bite.

I guess that Saturday night De. Woodring and crew, was really getting up quite a struggle to dig out the steady flowing river that backed up at the rear of the hole. Nine fellow workers fitted with mops and brooms standing ankle deep in water steadily making the swirling stream back and forth. Imagine all the crew in the STAR CAFE were praying for STARS to come out as a signal of the rain letting up.

The nature of my column may change altogether, if I don't manage to find more decent hours to sit down my feeble efforts, and with more honorable looking associates than I have tonight. My main time for my "Brain Storm" column is from 1:00 a.m. to 4:00 a.m. But tonight to add to these evil hours, I keep finding I have company. The most "Poisonous looking company" I've ever seen. What I am referring to at this time is those DEADLY LOOING SALAMANDER OR WATERBOOGS. I had never seen this species of animal life until a few weeks ago but tonight we've had some come crawling through the office.

I don't know why they had the urge to pay the news office a visit tonight, guess this must be their night for calling. It's raining and I imagined they liked the rain, by their name, but apparently a watering gets enough water and begins hunting a dry place.

All I can say is I'm about ready to let them take over in here, if anymore of their friends drop in. They be the "Water Hound" and stand outside and let them take over and see if they can get this paper out, cause they're slowing my speed with their visits. Does anyone actually know that they are non-poisonous? I can't believe anything could look that poisonous and still be harmless. If they are—then I've found that old saying can certainly be applied to this creature, only in reverse, cause he's certainly a SHEEP IN WOLVES CLOTHING.

I knew that now on the market we find small doctor and nurse kits for children to play with, but maybe this Christmas we may have some more realistic doctors equipment to play with. That is if Dr. Faust and his Technician would explain to some toy company the fun they had Sunday trying out the new oxygen tent in the ambulance on ADRY RUN to Dimmitt.

Let Us Reason Together

By W. E. IRVINE

SO YOU ARE SATISFIED?

Many times in talking with people concerning Christianity I will say, let me alone, for I'm satisfied with my religion. People with this attitude they refuse to investigate and study. It isn't enough for us to be satisfied with our religion, we must be certain God is. He will judge us in the last day.

So you are satisfied. Well what of it? The rich man was satisfied, but God called him a fool and took away his soul. Luke 12:20.

The whole church in Laodicia was satisfied, but Jesus said they did not know that they were actually wretched, miserable, poor, blind and naked. That's how wrong a "satisfied" person can be. Rev. 3:17,18.

The Pharisee that went into the temple to pray was satisfied with himself, and even glad he was not as the publican. Jesus said that the sin-conscience publican was justified over than the self righteous Pharisee. Luke 18:9-24.

The sunuch thought he was worshipping God acceptably, for he went all the way to Jerusalem to worship. But he found he was not acceptable to God, even though he worshipped. Philip, the evangelist preached unto him Jesus. Acts 8:35. Upon hearing the preaching of Jesus, he demanded water baptism. Verse 36, after receiving it he went on his way rejoicing, verse 39. Why? For he had obeyed the gospel of Jesus.

Saul was satisfied with his religion until Jesus told him to go to Damascus. He did so and a gospel preacher, Ananias, called him "arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." Acts 22:16. Saul wasn't aware he was sinning until he heard Jesus.

Don't mistake a complacent satisfaction as evidence that you are pleased with your religion. He is never pleased with a religion which you cannot read about in the Bible, with a name which does not authorize, nor with a worship the Gospel does not give.

Jesus said, this people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, but in vain they do worship, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." Matthew 15:8,9.

Neighbor compare your religion with that of the Bible. You may be worshipping Christ in vain.

Brown Produce Is Remodeled, Broiler Plant Also Added

The Brown's Produce has been remodeled on the interior. A new line of livestock salt has been added to the old lines of feed.

The back of the store has been converted into a broiler plant. The first 200 chicks were delivered on September 6 and should be ready for market around the last week in October. Another shipment of chicks are to be delivered this week. The broilers will be raised and dressed at the produce store. Mr. Brown has bought an automatic picking machine which he hopes to have installed before the first broilers are ready for market.

The ice house and produce store will be closed on Sunday until further notice. The hours for both the ice house and feed store during the week are 7 to 12 and 1 to 7 p.m.

The Brown's invite everyone to come to see the changes made in the store.

AROUND THE COUNTY

By MICKEY STEPHENS

The date for the Lamb County Farm Bureau convention was set for October 20 in the Littlefield Community Center, at the regular meeting of the board of directors. Resolutions voted on at this convention will be submitted to the Texas Farm Bureau convention in Fort Worth in November. These resolutions must be in the Farm Bureau office by the 1st of October in order for the resolutions committee to combine them and get them ready for the convention.

The convention will get underway again this year with a covered dish supper.

The board of directors met with Jarvis Angeley, Earth, this time and was his guest at a chicken fry honoring all outgoing directors.

Springlake Farm Bureau met the 13th with John T. Gregg, Lubbock, representative of the National Cotton Council as their guest. Hilbert Wislan is president of the Springlake Farm organization.

Pleasant Valley met the 20th with John Gregg from the Cotton Council telling them all about the purpose of the National Cotton Council and what they are doing for each farmer. Gerald Allison, president, introduced John Gregg.

It is time for all community organizations to decide who they are going to send to the Texas Farm Bureau convention in Fort Worth. When you have decided please come by the office and let me know so that I may make the reservations.

Have you read the article in the Texas Agriculture by Gene Leach, Legislative Director for the Texas Farm Bureau, explaining the right to work law now in effect in Texas and what the labor organizations would like to change in it. Compulsory unionism is by nature monopolistic and thus as much against the public interest as any other kind of monopoly. Read it.

Four Lamb County Farm Bureau membership drive leaders will attend a big state-wide Captains' meeting September 21st at the Commodore Perry Hotel in Austin according to Jack Yarbrough, president of the Lamb County Farm Bureau.

Those planning to attend are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hutchins and Mr. and Mrs. Nuenschwander.

The big Austin Rally will kick off membership drive activity this year in some 100 counties. The state organization is shooting for a goal of 71,000 members this year. The official membership year ends October 31st. Lamb County goal is 1,000 and this has been reached at this date.

Main speaker at the Austin meeting will be Hassil Schenck, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau. Schenck, who is also a member of the American Farm Bureau Board of Directors, is one of America's leading agricultural spokesmen.

The rally at the state capital is an exclusive meeting, with only county membership chairmen and community membership captains eligible to attend.

Fun, prizes, information and inspiration are in store for those who attend the Austin meeting, according to President Yarbrough. Sixteen door prizes, including one grand prize, will be given out at a drawing, entertainment will be furnished by talent numbers from the Williamson County Farm Bureau. Other speakers on the program are Walter Hammond and state field representatives O. K. Hoyte and Leon M. Lane.

General K. L. Berry, State Chairman for the 1956 March of Dimes, and Maurice Heath, veterans in the fight against polio, point the way to the 1956 March of Dimes planning for Texas. Maurice, age 7, after 5 years of treatment hopes to discard braces and crutches soon. General Berry again leads the fight against polio in 1956.

Start Your Fight Against '56 Polio Epidemic Now

by HART E. VAN RIPER, M. D.
Medical Director National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis

Almost all of us are infected by the polio virus at one time or another. Generally, we don't even know we have the infection. We may feel perfectly well, or we may have a sore throat or an upset stomach.

Sometimes, however, the polio virus does serious damage. It attacks the central nervous system, destroying the nerve cells and causing paralysis.

If almost everyone is attacked by the virus, there must be an important reason why some people succumb and some do not. There is.

The critical battle in the fight against polio takes place as it always has, in the bodies of human beings. It is a battle between the polio virus, the virus entered antibodies, which can destroy by the polio virus, the virus enters his system and begins to multiply. At the same time the human system begins to produce defensive antibodies.

A race ensues. If the human antibody factory works speedily enough, the antibodies destroy the polio virus in the blood and keep it from attacking nerve cells.

If the virus multiplies faster than antibodies can be produced to fight it, the virus overwhelms the body's defenses, attacks the nervous system and may cause paralysis.

For nearly all of recorded history men knew no way to influence the critical battle of polio within the human body. Then, in 1951 and 1952, research supported by the March of Dimes revealed that antibodies from other people's blood... contained in gamma globulin... could be "loaned" to an individual by injection and would give some protection against paralytic polio.

But the loaned antibodies would last only a few weeks. And to be before or at most within a few days after a person was exposed to polio, and it is not generally possible to tell when this is.

Obviously, gamma globulin, while of value in epidemic situations was no final answer to the control of polio. Among other things it was not a vaccine (since it comes from human blood) and it is extremely expensive.

Now — for the first time — we have an effective means for controlling polio. The Salk vaccine, in the most extensive and careful

Gen. K. L. Berry Reappointed State Chairman for M. O. D.

Major General K. L. Berry, internationally famed Texas soldier and veteran in the fight against polio, has been reappointed as the State Chairman for the 1956 March of Dimes in the State of Texas, as announced today by Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

General Berry has provided the leadership vital to continuation of the polio programs of aid to patients, research and education. Mr. O'Connor said, "Under the leadership the Texas March of Dimes reached an all-time high last January. We are indeed grateful that he has agreed to direct the polio appeal for another year."

In accepting his appointment, General Berry said, "The Salk vaccine represents a major victory in the war against polio." He added, "The battle against polio has been long and hard and will go on for some several years to come. Likewise, the fight of individuals with this disease is long and costly, and I will always be interested in entering combat against this disease as represented by the program of the National Foundation, which is supported by the March of Dimes."

"We will win this contest and in doing so, it is a privilege to serve the people and the young-sters of Texas so that they will not have to bear much longer the ravages of this disease," General Berry said.

General Berry recently flew to Manila to receive the Philippine Legion of Honor. He commanded the First Division of Philippine Army in the Defense of the Islands in 1941-42. Imprisoned by the Japanese for 40 months after the fall of Bataan, General Berry retired from active service in 1947 and has since served as Texas Adjutant General and Commander of the Texas National Guard. He holds numerous decorations for military valor and leadership.

C. L. Gilmore and Mrs. Lena Hurst spent the weekend in Roaring Springs and Spur, Texas.

1204 RIVERSIDE DRIVE
CARLSBAD, NEW MEXICO

- TWO ELECTRIC RANGES
- ELECTRIC CLOTHES WASHER
- ELECTRIC HOME FREEZER
- REMOTE CONTROL LIGHTING
- ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR
- ELECTRIC CLOTHES DRYER
- ELECTRIC WATER HEATER
- REMOTE CONTROL GARAGE DOOR

These are some of the electric appliances that make Mrs. Pate say "living is twice as much fun — electrically."

"Two electric ranges make a wonderful combination. Two of us can cook and bake at the same time. I have extra surface units with the two 24 inch ranges, and, as you can see, the two ranges, with a work space between, are ideal. And even with two electric ranges, my kitchen stays cool all the time."

There's just no limit to the pleasure of electric living. Ranges, for example, come in so many sizes and styles, including built-in custom models, that you can make any arrangement that pleases you and your budget.

Looking for more fun out of life? Try electric living for twice as much fun.

field trial ever given a vaccine, was shown to be 60 to 90 per cent effective in preventing paralytic polio. The vaccine now being manufactured is even more effective.

In most parts of the country we are now at the tapering-off part of the 1955 polio season. We have the fall and winter months and the early spring to reduce polio incidence next year. How well we succeed will depend largely on how many children receive vaccine.

First, of course, the vaccine must be manufactured and distributed. During the fall and winter large supplies will be made available for use. It is too much to hope that all of the 165,000,000 people in the United States can be vaccinated before next summer, but many millions of children will surely be inoculated, including almost all of the highly susceptible five- through nine-year age group.

Since polio attacks more children than adults, it is by vaccinating children that the greatest effect can be achieved, in terms of preventing cases of paralytic polio.

Every parent naturally has questions about vaccine. Foremost is the question: Is the vaccine safe? The answer is yes. Last spring, according to a U. S. Public Health Service report, live virus was found in a small amount of vaccine that had been released. More stringent government safety standards were promptly established to prevent a recurrence of this incident.

The difficulties of a single manufacturer do not, of course, reflect on the safety of all commercially produced vaccine, any more than the existence of one contaminated source of water suggests that water itself is unsafe.

During the summer there had been suggestions that a single shot of the vaccine might give some protection against paralytic polio, and so parents may wonder if such an injection is not enough. The answer is that it is not enough for full and lasting protection.

Here is what happens when a child is given vaccine. Some seven to ten days after his first shot he begins to develop polio-fighting antibodies. These help strengthen his defenses against paralytic polio. When he receives his second shot the number of antibodies again rises. Then, approximately seven months later, when he receives his third shot there is a further rise in antibodies, and he then has the full protection of the vaccine.

Thus, the child with one shot has some help in defending himself against paralytic polio. The child with two has more help. The child with three, properly spaced, has the full protection of the vaccine.

The body tries to defend itself against paralytic polio even without vaccine. What the vaccine does is bolster natural defenses.

Everyone would like to know how long the effect of vaccine lasts. And no one can give a hard and fast answer, because we have not had the vaccine very long. A number of children who have received it will be followed through the years until we do know how long it protects.

However, because the level of protection after the third shot is so high, there is reason to hope that it will last for many years.

The third shot is in a sense the real key to the effectiveness of the vaccine. This is why we will look with growing interest toward the 1956 polio season. By that time enough youngsters should have received their complete series of injections to make a substantial difference in the nationwide polio rate. Then we will be able to look forward to final control of polio.

This fall the vaccine program of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will be conducted in school clinics in all states. In these clinics youngsters from the first and second grades will receive second shots of vaccine, and so will third and fourth graders in schools that participated in the 1954 field trials. No first shots will be given.

The United States Congress has appropriated $20,000,000 for the purchase of polio vaccine during the coming few months. Supplies of vaccine are allocated to states on the basis of the number of unvaccinated children five through nine years of age. Each state is responsible for the distribution of the vaccine within its borders. YOUR local health officer or personal physician will be able to tell you what arrangements have been made in your state.

The battle against polio in the summer of 1956, so far as prevention is concerned, will be won or lost this fall and winter. Success will depend on how many children are vaccinated. If we vaccinate every youngster for whom we have vaccine next year should begin to show a significant decrease in the number of paralyzed children.
