NOSIN.....
WITH POLLY

I never knew anything could be so annoying as being an advertising saleslady who could not talk until I saw James Grey, a carpenter, this week on crutches. He explained how tricky it was to have so many jobs to do and be on crutches.

I don't know just how James has managed this week, but I'm sure it was with much effort. I found it decidedly tricky trying to sell advertising with a voice I couldn't recognize or control.

However, after much thought on this subject of a sore throat, I've decided it has its advantages too. Every person I tried to talk to noticed my effort to speak, and asked what was wrong. THEN I HAD 'EM. I swung right into them with baited breath. (Like most women tell about their operations) telling them every phase of my vacation and how I got my sore throat from wading in the beautiful mountain streams of Colorado. And in respect for my efforts to utter every word they would listen attentively. (Look folks, you've gotta take advantage of some subjects, I can't talk about operations, I've never had one).

What I failed to say is I wouldn't have had a sore throat if my two 'chicks' wouldn't refer to 'mother' as too aged to join them in wading or climbing the high stairway up to the top of the Seven Falls, knowing well I'd kill myself or join them, which I did (and they were probably right all the time, mother was too aged).

The vacation was wonderful, with the exception of one minor detail that kept worrying THE GREAT WHITE FATHER, (ROSS) who kept making noticeable little hints everytime we saw people out panning for gold, that the kids and I could sure make some vacation money for him, if we'd get out and pan for gold while he vacationed. He added that MENTAL LABOR would be good for us three, and do away with so much of our major MENTAL CONCENTRATION on why we just had to spend all of his silver.

I've heard much about THOSE THREE LITTLE WORDS, and I always imagined the most magic and important were 'I Love You', coming in second I thought were 'All is Forgiven', 'Sleep Until Noon', 'Here's That Five'. But since spending last week vacationing at a hotel in Colorado I've decided that tops on the totean pole in the three little word category is 'Keep The Change'.

One thing I learned this week while on vacation is the very shortest unit of time possible to measure is that between the traffic light change and the honk of the driver behind you.

And after many hours on the road I was appalled at the risk some drivers take, and arrived at this conclusion, if all the cars in America were placed end to end on one long, long hill, someone would doubtless try to pass them.

I didn't hear the President's speech Tuesday night, however after hearing reports from others on his speech, and the seriousness of it all, I begin to read up on the 'What To Do In Case Of', and this was the advice this book I was reading gave. In case of gas attack we were supposed to rush to the attic, and if it were bombs we were to dash for the basement.

After thinking all this over, I arrived at this conclusion, if the enemy begins alternating attacks, war was sure going to be tough on some of us old short-winded guys and gals.

Later when discussing this book's advice with Ross we arrived at the conclusion that I had been reading a most outdated book.

With the possible weapons that would be used in case of another war, perhaps we should not worry too much about racing up and down the stairs, but pray instead that GOD WOULD OPEN HEAVEN'S DOOR TO US.

This is The Psalm of the Welfare State
The government is my shepherd
Therefore I need not work
It alloweth me to lay down on a good job
It leadeth me beside still factories
And it destroys all my initiative.
It leadeth into the paths of a parasite for politics sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of laziness and deficit-spending.
I will fear no evil, for the government is with me
It prepareth an economic utopia for me, by appropriating the earnings of my own grandchildren.
It filleth my head with false security; my insufficiency runs over.
Surely the Government should care for me all the days of life here on Earth!!!
And I shall dwell in a fool's paradise forever.

HAL HUDSON

Hal Hudson and Jimmy Baldwin have been selected as Captains of Springlake Wolverines for the coming football season. They are both seniors in Springlake High School.

Hal, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.

JIMMY BALDWIN

Jimmy, 17, son of Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Baldwin, Springlake has played football in high school for three years, having lettered his first two years.

He came to Springlake last year, this being his first year on the Wolverine team.

WHAT IS FOOTBALL?

Have you ever wondered about Football? Why it's only a game which is as fundamental as a ball and a helmet. But if you take all of the ingredients that go into making up the game of football and put them in a jar, shake well and pour out, you've got a well proportioned phase of the American way of life.

Football is the All American and the scrub. It's kids in a vacant lot using a dime store ball. It's a rich guy being chauffeured to the stadium and a frightened boy shinning the fence and darting for the end zone seats. Leaping cheer leaders, and high school bands, are part of the wonderful game of football.

Football is drama, music, dignity, sorrow. It's exhilaration, shock, humor and at times comedy. It's scramble for tickets, playing wide eyed youngsters, getting a u t o graphs, second guessing, banquets, icy rains, color guards, fumble, goaline stands, homecoming queens and the typical mutt running onto the field attracting everyone's attention.

Football is popcorn, Cokes, banners and chewing gum. It's people standing for the kick off, lap blankets pacing coaches, penalties and ala maters. It's a crisp fall day, traffic jams, portable radios and victory celebrations. It's the losers moaning. "You were lucky, just wait'll next year." And the oddtimer who claims they played a better game in his day is a part of football too.

Football in its rightful place, can be one of the most wholesome, exciting and valuable activities in which our youth can possibly participate. It teaches boys to have complete control of themselves, to gain self respect, give forth a tremendous effort, and at the same time learn to observe the rules of the game, regard the rights of others and stay within bounds dictated by decency and sportsmanship. As in life the players are faced with challenges and they have an opportunity to match skills, strength, poise and determination against each other. The participants learn to cooperate, associate, depend upon and work with other people.

We are extremely proud to be part of our two noteworthy communities. We want to take this opportunity to thank each of you for being so wonderful to us. For your trust, confidence and support. We especially want to thank the parents of our fine boys and girls for being so understanding and for the many sacrifices you have made. Our work in coaching will be so much easier in coaching because your home training period has lightened our load. Your sons and daughters reflects your strength of character and integrity.

We send to all of you our most personal wish for your happiness.

Sincerely yours,
Jodie D. Mahan

Farm Facts

In the past 30 years the value of the soybean crop has increased a hundred-fold. It now is worth over a billion dollars annually and ranks fifth among cash crops.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates that 26.4 million acres will be planted to soybeans in the 1961 season. About 1.5 million a year were planted during the 1920's.

The USDA attributes this to: (1) improved varieties; (2) diversion of land to soybeans as a result of price supports and restrictions on acreage of other crops; and (3) a shift in acreage from feed grains to soybeans as requirements for feed for livestock dwindled.

War-time demand for fats and oils spurred a rapid expansion in soybean acreage. Oil supplies were cut off from the Far East and soybean oil helped alleviate this shortage.

With incomes increasing, there has been a bigger demand for meat. This has resulted in greater need for more protein feed for livestock and a rising trend in soybean meal consumption.

The Corn Belt is the top soybean area, but production has zoomed in the Delta and Lake states. About 15% of the acreage is in the Delta states.

Value of the soybean crop has increased a hundred-fold in 30 years.

Texas Tourists Met With Friendliness In Old Mexico

Texans returning home through the Mullen port-of-entry to Mexico tell McAllen travel directors they were met with cordial, friendly welcome in the favored tourist centers such as Mexico City, Monterey, Acapulco, Reynosa and others.

The American tourists report that a few earlier pro-Castro disturbances in a few cities in Mexico have apparently completely ceased, so far as the usual resort and tourist centers visited are concerned. Natural hospitality of the Mexican people, value of the tourist dollar and a government edict against demonstrations, seem to be fast reviving travel on the new, shortcut highway from McAllen to Mexico City, officials say.

YOUTHS GET CUT ON HOTEL RATES AT McALLEN

Kids are getting a better deal at McAllen this summer than their pops and moms, though everybody gets the 14 cent round-trip to Reynosa, Mexico, a 15 minute drive from McAllen.

Groups of youths get motel and hotel rates on the group plan cut as much as 75 per cent and they get a free meeting place. All Valley sightseers get free map guide service at McAllen. Swimming and fishing in the Gulf, fishing at Falcon Lake, touring orange groves and the 32 towns and villages of the Valley and eating the famous wild-game dinners in Reynosa are among the most popular features for visitors.

Farm Facts

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the average American eats 9 1/2 pounds of breakfast cereals a year.

The average American eats about 9 1/2 pounds of cereals a year.

Most of the cereals are made from oats. Some come from wheat, some from corn, and some from rice. Oat cereals usually are served hot — oatmeal and rolled oats — and account for almost 75% of the per person consumption of all hot cereals. Consumption of to-be-cooked oat cereals rose from 415 million pounds to 455 million pounds between 1947 and 1958. But it's the corn cereals that have captured the public's favor. Corn cereals are almost always in dry form and their consumption figures have kept ahead of population increases. In ten years, consumption of corn cereals jumped from 195 million to 308 million pounds—an extra half-pound per person. We also are eating more wheat cereals, consumption of which increased 21 million pounds in the past two decades. A drop in consumption of cooked wheat cereals was more than offset by a gain in ready-to-serve cereals. USDA nutritionists say we should have a fourth to a third of our food at breakfast and that the morning meal should include a good source of protein.
