Big Times at Clarendon

Let us remind you again that you do not wish to miss the big race meet in Clarendon on July 1, 2, 3, 4, and the big celebration on the Fourth. Much printed matter, containing details of the event, is going out of The News office this week, and will be distributed over the Panhandle in the next few days. And The News wishes to vouch for the fact that everything will be strictly as advertised in this printed matter. The biggest dinner ever served in this part of the world will be served on July 4th. Arrangements are not going to be made—they have already been made. And all the amusements, comforts and conveniences have been provided as stated in the circulars and other printed matter. As the race meet, nothing has yet been seen in Northwest Texas that will approach the one to be held at Clarendon. The first four days of the race meet, and the fifty running will participate in these races and some of them among the horses of the nation. Come and spend four days with us. It is absolutely impossible to come here all four days, don't come to the 4th. Plans have been made to care for you, and if you fail to come, we and you will just be "out" that much.—The Clarendon News.

Near Serious Accident.

Last Saturday Lloyd Gamble happened to a very painful accident. He was repairing an auto in front of the Milam & Grundy garage when Rev. R. B. Morgan in backing his Ford out of the garage gave the wrong turn to his steering wheel backing his car into the machine on which he was working catching his arm between the headlight and the rear of Mr. Morgan's car cutting quite a gash, making a very painful wound. The hurt was dressed and if no complications set in will be well in a few days leaving no serious results.

Rev. J. C. Mason of Dallas, will begin a meeting here Sunday June 21, at the Christian church. Everybody invited and his old friends are urgently requested to be present.

ON CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM

Woman's Federated Club For Suffrage.

The following resolution was adopted at the national meeting of Woman's Federated clubs in Chicago June 13:

Whereas, The question of political equality of men and women is today a vital problem under discussion throughout the civilized world.

Resolved, That the General Federation of Women's Clubs give the cause of political equality its moral support by recording its earnest belief in the principle of political equality regardless of sex.

Open Air Service.

Sunday night at 8:30 the service at the Presbyterian church will be held on the lawn. Comfortable seats will be provided for all who care to attend. The men are urged to come without their coats. There will be special music. Morning services: Sunday school at 9:45 and preaching by the pastor at 11 a. m.

Political Speaking.

We are requested to announce that Judge W. E. Prescott of Paducah, candidate for Congress against Congressman John H. Stephens, will speak to the people of Memphis on Thursday, June 25, 1914, at 2:30 p. m. He will speak at Wellington in the morning and come to Memphis by the way of the auto and speak here in the afternoon.

Oddfellows Decorate.

On Sunday evening the members of the local lodge of Oddfellows and Rebekahs met at their hall according to announcement and proceeded to Fairview where they carried out their beautiful ceremony of decorating the graves in loving remembrance of their deceased members.

The occasion was quite a success although there was not as full an attendance, either of members of the order or of visitors to witness the ceremony as they would naturally wish to have on such occasions.

This ceremony was in memory of Jas. Craig, W. M. Crow, B. F. Wright, T. R. Phillips, T. E. Brown and J. W. Burden of the Oddfellows lodge and Flora Arnold McDavid, of the Rebekah lodge, who was the lodge's first Noble Grand and for whom the lodge was named, Flora Lodge.

The Independent Order of Oddfellows stands for morality, christianity, and the uplift of humanity in every respect, the help of the helpless and the care for and education of the orphans and they should have the encouragement of the public when they announce a public ceremony.

We hope they will have a better attendance at their next Decoration day services.

Boy Scouts Organize

In order to create new interest in Sunday School work in the Baptist church among the young boys a local organization of Boy Scouts was organized with S. J. Hamilton as Scoutmaster. Boys from 16 years of age down are eligible to join. The Scoutmaster will take the boys on a weeks camping trip the latter part of July provided they will earn five credits between now and that time. The credits are given for Sunday School attendance, New Pupils, Church Attendance and Collections. Also two rules must be adhered to. The first is that they must attend Sunday school. Second: They must obey the order of their Captain in all matters of discipline. For the present they do not contemplate joining the National association of boy scouts out will leave it purely a local affair. The Scoutmaster took a few of his scouts on a hike Thursday to the Springs and enjoyed a fine trip. They took "grub" along and cooked it in regular camp style. This is a good move and would be a good thing should it be extended to all the youngsters in the community.

Directors Meeting

The directors of the Commercial club met in the club rooms on Monday afternoon and elected A. W. Read Secretary for another year. Mr. Read has held this important position for the past two years. His experience and his natural ability for this work will enable him to fill the office with satisfaction to all concerned.

The work for the coming year was discussed at some length the Chautauqua and the Farmers Short Course being the most important things now before the club. A ticket selling committee was appointed consisting of R. J. Thorne, J. H. Read and D. L. C. Kingard, who will look after the selling of the tickets which will be on sale in a short time for the Chautauqua.

Read the Chautauqua page in this issue.

High School Bonds

The $40,000 bonds which the voters of Memphis Independent school district voted several months ago, have been sold and the money is now on deposit in the bank. The school board will meet Thursday night and will begin the preliminary work of buying a site and letting the contract. As to the site it has been suggested that the two blocks just West of the Crockett building on main street be purchased and street condemned. This would probably be the most centrally located site that could be selected and would meet with the approval of many of our citizens. It is unfortunate that this building cannot be finished by the time of the opening of our fall term but it will likely not be completed before January 1st 1915. With the new building and new equipment with which it will be equipped will place our high school on an equality with most of the high schools of Texas.

Woodman Circle Picnic.

A picnic will be held at Eli, under the auspices of the ladies of the Woodman Circle, Saturday, June 27, 1914. All candidates are invited to be in attendance, and everybody invited to come and bring well filled baskets and enjoy a pleasant day.

Reduced Rates for Chautauqua.

Read the following letter addressed to Secretary A. W. Read from A. A. Glisson, General Passenger Agent of the Denver, which explains itself.

Mr. A. W. Read,
Secretary Commercial Club,
Memphis, Texas.

Dear Sir:—
I am in receipt of your letter of the 12 inst., relative to the above subject, and in view of attendance expected, I am pleased to advise that we will instruct our Agents at stations Clarendon to Childress, inclusive, to sell tickets at rate of fare and one-third for the round trip, for trains Two and Seven, arriving in Memphis July 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th, with limit on all tickets to expire July 15th.

We note you asked for reduced rates on each day and as we cannot afford to sacrifice local revenue by putting in reduced rates on each day of the Chautauqua, I trust the foregoing rates and arrangements will be satisfactory and that you will enjoy considerable attendance from stations referred to.

Yours truly,
A. A. GLISSON.

Grandpa Thompson, father of T. J. and Geo. M., living at the corner of 8th and Brice streets, is reported as being very low. Mr. Thompson is 82 years old. He has been sick only a few days but on account of his advanced age little hopes are held out for his recovery. His condition was considered so serious that his children living away from Memphis were sent for. L. O. Thompson and family of Amarillo, E. A. Thompson of Vega, and R. L. Thompson of Dallas, came in Tuesday, to be at his bedside. We earnestly hope that he will soon recover.

How Many Dead Flies

In the four weeks campaign against fly there has been captured, swatted and poisoned 181 pints of flies. One party has turned in over $13.00 worth of them. 181 pints equal 2 bushel and 2 gallon and the flies are still coming in at a lively rate.

DR. JAMES HEDLEY.

ON CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM

Clarendon Bunch Visits Memphis.

A representative bunch of Clarendon's citizens representing the Chamber of Commerce at that place were in town Monday, for a short time. They were ten in number and occupied three autos, and are putting out literature advertising their race meet and Fourth of July celebration for July 1, 2, 3, and 4. They are a live bunch and visited all our business houses while here giving all a personal invitation to be with them on the above dates and promise all a big time. The three cars went on to Estelline where one went on to Childress and one to Wellington. They all met again at Estelline and made a visit to Plainview, Tulia and other towns on the route. While here they visited the Commercial Club rooms and were supplied with a supply of Chautauqua literature which they distributed on their trip.

District Court Still in Session

On Monday the case against Lee Oxford for swindling was taken up and defendant agreed to plea guilty on two counts if the rest would be dismissed which was agreed to and the court assessed a punishment of 5 years in the penitentiary.

On Tuesday the case against Howard Malone for bootlegging came up and the jury fixed his sentence in the penitentiary at 3 years and recommended a suspended sentence.

College Station, Texas, June 11, 1914. At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the A. & M. College last night permission was granted to Cotton students to board at the College Mess Hall and room in one of the dormitories for $4.90 per week. Those taking advantage of this will have to furnish their own pillow, pillow cases, sheets, and towels.

The above includes rooms equipped with running water, lights, and shower baths.

Clarendon is going to pull off one of the biggest race meets ever witnessed in the Panhandle on July 1, 2, 3 and 4. $5000 in purses, $2,000 barbecue, W. O. W. day, Base Ball games, and the Lockman Carnival Co., will be there. They promise everyone a big time.

The two little children of W. W. Miller living near San Angelo were lost two days and when found were very hungry but were otherwise uninjured.

W. P. Lane Talks To Voters

W. P. Lane Comptroller of Public Accounts and one of the eliminated candidates for Governor addressed a small crowd in the court house park Thursday evening in behalf of his candidacy for Congressman-at-large. The train came in late that evening and necessarily made him late in starting his speech. While an announcement in the local papers had been made that he would speak only a few responded.

He was introduced by W. A. Johnson who has had a personal acquaintance with Mr. Lane for a long time and recommends him very strongly to the voters of this community. He touched very lightly on state affairs but gave some of his views on national questions. He is a very strong Pro and has helped the Prohibition cause as much as any other man in Texas and really deserved a better hearing.

Grand Jury Report

Memphis, Texas, June 6, 1914. To Hon. J. A. Nabers, Judge of the 46th Judicial District of Texas.

Comes now your grand jury empanelled for the June term, 1914, and submits their final report.

After the examination of numerous witnesses from various parts of this county, we have found and presented to this court six felony indictments for misdemeanors.

We find that our county peace officers have been diligent in the prevention and suppression of crime.

We have inspected our county jail and find same well kept, but find in our opinion the walls very weak, and we think dangerous as they are badly broken and cracked and should be abandoned.

Expressing our thanks to the court and the district and county attorney for their courtesies and assistance, we ask to be finally discharged.

Respectfully submitted,
D. A. Grundy,
Foreman of the Grand Jury.

The Spirit of Vacation.

Every person who plays a full part in the keen struggle of modern life, deserves a vacation, says Leslie's weekly.

True. There is neither man nor woman who can keep the twentieth century pace full fifty-two weeks a year. Human endurance, like unto charity, attains its limit. Overtaxing the energy of man is correspondingly similar to overloading a machine of delicate, intricate and irreplaceable parts.

Remember the man who sat down on the safety valve? There was a blow up. Man is no lesser than his creation; vacation, therefore, is his safety valve.

Travel has become the accepted way of spending vacations. Tourists flock east, west, north and south and Europeward. But to the attraction hunter, to the searcher after rest or pleasure, the hunter for mountain-top breezes or hot springs, the land of Texas holds our glittering, yet honest welcome.

The resources of the state are not alone industry. Texas has fifty-seven varieties of climate, a thousand parks as nature placed them, lands abounding with game, rivers choked with fish, and the thunder of the tide on her boundaries.

Texasland is vacation land.

Alpha of the eternal state of soul which has no Omega.

The terror that a mother feels lest she may lose her baby often clings to her through life, as it did to the aged woman of ninety-seven years, who, when they told her that her son of eighty was dying, said, "Ah, woe is me! I said we could never raise that child." To merely raise a child is not much to boast of; but to send into the world honest, true men and women, blessings to the community in which they live, is indeed an honor. To do this, something more than food and clothing, or education and amusement are required; they must take in truth and honor and tenderness for others at their mother's knee, and acquire habits of industry and economy as they grow in years.

The heart that is filled with bitterness will give vent to it in words. It sees nothing bright or beautiful because its vision is clouded. Words are a good test of temper and habit of thought. As "To the pure all things are pure," so to the malicious and ill-tempered all things are black, unlovely, and of ill repute. Words are also the signs of that, and if the thoughts be kind and good the words will be kind and gentle, free from malice and uncharitableness. There is nothing that so refines the face and mind as the constant presence of good thoughts.

Carpets and chairs are not so valuable as boys and girls. Dust is less to be deplored than a blemish on a child's character. Open your doors and windows, make the home attractive to the children, give them the pleasures due them and they will be contented and industrious, and more than that, they will be so much in love with home that it will take a strong attraction to draw them hence.

It is impossible to preserve good looks with a brood of bad passions feeding on the blood, and a selfish, disdainful spirit enthroned in the will, as to preserve the beauty of an elegant mansion with a litter of swine in the basement, a tribe of gypsies in the parlor, and owls and vultures in the upper part.

Learn to meet your friends with a smile. The good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the hypochondriac is not wanted anywhere, and is a nuisance as well.

Wealth consists not in store of riches but in contentment and serenity.

Cotton Classing and Marketing Taught.

The A. & M. College is offering a course in cotton classing and marketing during the summer which will be open till July the 25th.

This course is intended particularly for young men who are preparing themselves for the cotton business, but there is no doubt that our farmers should know more about the marketing and value of their cotton crop.

The last Legislature provided that cotton classing shall be taught in all public schools having a scholastic population of less

BRINGING UP OF MOTHERS.
A young person has been writing an article on the bringing up of mothers. Thirty years ago mothers were not brought up; they just grew. They wore caps early, gave up dining when their children were in short frocks and knickerbockers, and developed all sorts of incorrect ideas about chaperons and flirtations. Formerly the young idea was trained the way it should go. Now the old tree is pruned and pared into shape. Girls have assumed the responsibility of after their mothers. Mothers are kept to see to a well ordered house, coax refractory fathers and attend to bores. They must moreover, be ornamental, look well at the head of the table, dress becomingly, keep up with the fashions, look nice when the girls take them out with them, and smile encouragingly at the young men. Nor are their morals forgotten. Frequently one hears a girl say: It is an interesting show, but, not one I'd care to take my mother to."

HOLD ON, BOYS.

Hold on to virtue—it is above all price to you, in all times and places.

Hold on to your character, for it is, and ever will be, your best wealth.

Hold on to your hand when you are about to strike, steal or do any improper act.

Hold on to the truth, for it will serve you well, and do you good throughout eternity.

Hold on to your tongue, when you are just ready to swear, lie, or speak harshly or use an improper word.

Hold on to your temper when you are angry, excited or imposed on, or others are angry about you.

Hold on to your heart when evil persons seek your company and invite you to join in their games, mirth and revelry.

Hold on to your good name at all times, for it is much more valuable to you than gold, high place or fashionable attire.

A young woman should be in heart what she seems to be in life. Her words should correspond with her heart. The smile of her face should be the smile of her heart. The light of her eye should be the light of her soul. She should abhor deception, she should loathe intrigue, she should have a deep disgust of duplicity. Her life should be the outspoken language of her mind, the eloquent poem of her soul, speaking in rhythmic beauties the intrinsic merit of inward purity. Purity antecedes all spiritual attainments and progress. It is the first and fundamental virtue in a good character, it is the letter A in the moral alphabet, it is the first step in the spiritual life, it is the

How To Give Quinine To Children.

FERRILINE is the trade-mark name given to an improved Quinine. It is a Tasteless Syrup, pleasant to take, and does not disturb the stomach. Children take it and never know it is Quinine. Also especially adapted to adults who cannot take ordinary Quinine. Does not nauseate nor cause nervousness nor ringing in the head. Try it the next time you need Quinine for any purpose. Ask for genuine original package. The name FERRILINE is blown in bottle. 25 cents.

It Always Helps

says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Gardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Gardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Gardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill. I wish every suffering woman would give Suffragate Notes.

SOUTHERN OPINIONS ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE.
Opinions held by prominent educators of Georgia regarding Suffrage, as published in a recent issue of the Macon Telegraph, are of much interest:

Lawton E. Evans gave a very concise statement on the subject:
"I don't believe in unlimited suffrage for the people at large,"
he said, "but there ought to be property and educational qualifications, and it should be unlimited as to the sex. All men should not be allowed to vote and all women should not be excluded from voting. If the right kind of women are allowed to vote it will mean a great deal for the educational side of the country." "I have a neighbor" he
point, "who is an intelligent and capable business woman. She is worth millions of taxable property. She has a coachman, a gardner and a butler who own not a dollar, yet those illiterate men are allowed to vote on matters that relate to the disposition of her property, such as taxes, and she is not allowed to vote at all. She Should Not Be Disqualified Just Because She Is a Woman. Every one who owns property and is educated should be eligible to suffrage."

Ralph Newton, of Fort Valley, first vice president of the Georgia Educational Assn., says he used to be against it, but is about to be persuaded. "The time is coming" he said, "when we will have it, especially for women who have property, widows and unmarried women, who have no voice in the government. I don't approve of the propaganda of the militants and don't think that sort of agitation is going to do any good. Suffrage will no doubt do the schools a great deal of good, he concluded, and I think most educational leaders are for it."

Judge A. L. Miller, president of the Bibb county Board of Education, said: "I am for Woman's Suffrage as an abstract proposition. Women should have all the rights that man has.
I don't think that woman's suffrage should take more among educators than among any other people, for it is a matter of individual thinking. I am for it because I see no reason why I should be against it."

"My opinion" said Dr. W. K.
Tate, former president of the Southern Educational Association, "is that it is a good thing.
I believe the women ought to have it, anyway it is coming and there is no use arguing about it."

By The Light Of The Moon
Oat in Young County the wheat is so large and farm hands scarce that the farmers of the vicinity are harvesting their crop by moonlight. The recent rains have caused the wheat to mature at such a rapid rate that this course was adopted as the only means of saving the heavy wheat crop of that section.

The song of the reaper as it mingles with the carols of the Majrity For Pool Halls.

The election held last Saturday, to determine whether or not pool halls shall be prohibited in commissioner's precinct No.
2 of Wichita county, resulted in a victory for the pool halls.
Only 120 votes were polled, 45 being in favor of prohibiting pool halls and 75 against. No election was held at the Cashion box, the farmers being too busy in the harvest fields to go to the polls.—Burk Burnett Star.

The evil result of the liquor traffic among Indians is a matter of grave concern to the white citizens of the country, both for the reason that they are properly interested in the uplift of the red man, and for the further reason that the impoverishment of the Indian means that he will ultimately become a charge upon the taxpayers of the several states.—Commissioner Cato Sells

Managing a farm successfully requires great ability and close application of business principles, just as managing any other business demands knowledge and application to details. The farm manager as a rule has more difficulties to meet, because his business is more complex than merchandising and some other commercial transactions. The fact that farm managers fail does not prove that farming is not profitable, any more than the failure of unsuccessful merchan-tants shows merchandising unprofitable. Men fail in every kind of business and men succeed in all legitimate occupations. There is more in the man than there is in the business.—Farm and Ranch.

When a candidate says "I am in favor of local option, and local self government," put him down as a saloon candidate. He is playing on words, is on saloon side, and is supported by salaoons. Anybody with a grain of sense knows local option leaves saloons where they are in Texas.
—Home and State.

The day after Dallas saloons had been closed two successive days, there were only three cases of drunkenness in police court. The Judge said that fact was the best argument in favor of Prohibition within his knowledge. Two weeks before there were in that court 67 cases of drunk, and week before 53 cases.

School Improvements
Following are some of the recommendations taken from the program of the "Conference of Education" for the improvement of the public schools of Texas:

1. The enactment of a law providing for the professional and non-political supervision of the rural schools in every county in the State.

2. The establishment of high schools in sufficient number so that every child in the State may have opportunity to attend a high school organized and conducted in harmony with its environment.

3. The enactment of a compulsory attendance law in conformity with the educational needs and conditions of the State.

4. An amendment of the Constitution removing the maximum fifty-cent limit in local taxation two-thirds majority requirement in the levy of school purpose; and also the removing of the local taxes for school purposes in the cities and towns.

5. A constitutional provision for a minimum mill tax for the support maintenance of our high schools, including the State Normal School, the College of Industrial Arts, the Agricultural and Mechanical College and the University of Texas.

Port Arthur—Total receipts for custom duties for the month of May at this port were $18-552.23. Total number of vessels in and out was fifty-four, clearing for twenty-nine different nations.

San Angelo—T. C. Wilson, a wealthy farmer living near here, estimates his small grain crop at 2,600 acres. All of it is in good condition.

Marlin—Three thousand dollars has been apportioned in purses for the Falls County Annual Fair, which will begin in August.

Wichita Falls—Two hundred carloads of harvesting machinery will be distributed in this territory, according to estimates made by local railway men.

"a grim joke," but it is a little
one. There is really no one run-

Passengers In Tears, Sing Hymns At Sea

New York, June 14.—With more than 650 persons on board the American liner New York, a gaping hole in her stem where the Hamburg American liner Pretoria struck her in the fog off Nantucket early yesterday, reached port safely today. As the steamer passed Fire Island an impressive service of thanksgiving was held. There was scarcely a dry eye among the passengers while "Nearer, My God, to Thee," was being sung in memory of those less fortunate than the New York's passengers in wrecks at sea.

At the Pretoria did not reach the New York at her most vulnerable point—between the funnels—was due to the skillful handling of the American liner. When Captain Roberts saw a collision was inevitable he ordered his boat full speed astern and the order was executed so promptly from a dead stop that the great ship leaped backward like a thing alive.

The German boat struck the New York about fifty feet abaft the stem. The New York reeled slightly, but recovered her even keel when the Pretoria, backing at the request of Captain Roberts' swung around until she lay alongside the New York. There was no panic aboard the New York, although tense excitement prevailed.

Morris Will Not Withdraw.

Victoria, Tex., June 15.—In a statement given out here today, Leopold Morris, candidate for Governor, said that he has been importuned to withdraw from the race for Governor. He states that the request for the most part have come from supporters of James E. Ferguson also a candidate for Governor. Mr. Morris' statement analyzes the situation as he sees it, particularly with reference to the labor vote, concludes with the declaration that he will continue to strive for the success of the principles which he advocates and for his election as Governor.

T. J. Dunbar and family of Memphis, Texas, are visiting Mr. Dunbar's brother, Judge R. A. Dunbar of this city. The family came overland in an automobile, and Judge Dunbar went up to the head of the river Monday with a pair of mules to pull them in. It appears that Mr. Dunbar, being from a section of the state where the rivers do not have water in them, was driving a salamander auto that couldn't live under water. The party will spend the summer visiting Judge Dunbar and fishing and camping along the beautiful Guadalupe. They will no doubt be pleased with the country as soon as they become accustomed to seeing water.—Kerrville Mountain Sun

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING

Mr. E. V. White, formerly chief clerk of the State Department of Education, and now an assistant in the Department of Extension in the University of Texas, in one of his recent trips met some of the principal characters in the following story:

A certain community had voted the limit of school tax. The opposition, which was bitter and uncompromising, was led by a certain old bachelor, who argued with caustic words that it was wrong in principle to tax him to educate other men's children.

The school, however, still had insufficient funds, and the next year the ingenious school ma'am, a lady of good looks and keen intelligence, hit upon the plan of giving a "box-supper," the proceeds of which were to be used in purchasing school furniture. Each young lady of the community contributed a cake. Each cake was to be sold at auction to the highest bidder, and the successful bidder, if an unmarried man, was awarded the privilege of escorting home the young lady whose cake he purchased. Interest in the contest was further increased by selling votes to determine the best cake and the most popular young lady.

Meanwhile the bachelor who had opposed the tax had been finding the pretty school ma'am mighty attractive; and as his infatuation grew his hostility to the school tax became more and more feeble. The night of the box-supper arrived and the cakes were auctioned off, the one the pretty teacher had made netting the goodly sum of $80.00. It was knocked down to the now reckless bachelor at that price. And with the cake he had won the right to see his lady home,—probably the most expensive stroll the gentleman ever took; for the teacher's home was only a scant hundred yards from the school house. The box-supper netted $159.00. The stroll netted nothing but experience, for the next year the young lady accepted a school in another section, the bachelor is yet unmarried, and a vicious school tax is still swelled by a yearly contribution unjustly assessed on a childless man.

MORE AGRICULTURE TEACHING NEEDED

President Mezes of the University of Texas Gives Views.

There is no more important educational work in Texas today than the training of young men to become farmers, and the increase and distribution of information about farming. Three-fourths of the population of our State is rural; three million of its people live under rural conditions, and there are now at work on its farms 350,000 white farmers. Courses in agriculture and experiment work are carried on by the Agricultural and Mechanical College. Each of the four State Normals and the College of Industrial Arts is giving instruction to students who are preparing to teach agriculture. The State University also, as is required by the Constitution, is preparing some of its students to teach agriculture. In the agricultural courses of the A. & M. College 514 students are enrolled; in the four State Normals, the College of Industrial Arts, and the University, 1,020 students are enrolled in agricultural classes. Is this an adequate provision? Does it compare favorably in amount with the work of the eighteen literary colleges of the State? When we bear in mind the 3,000,000 of our rural population as compared with the 1,000,000 of our urban, is the type of education especially adapted to the needs of the 3,000,000 being given sufficient emphasis?

Texas needs more agricultural training rather than less, and more institutions giving such training rather than fewer such institutions. And when they are established, and all the present State institutions have adequately met the needs of their students for agricultural training, rural schools will grow up more rapidly, and enlightened, skillful, and contented farmers will multiply, and an intelligent appreciation of the possibilities and value of the fundamental calling of the people will become widespread over the state.

A MODEL SCHOOL CAMPUS.

An East Texas County's Contribution to Educational Progress.

Away down in the piny woods of East Texas, there is perhaps the most picturesque school campus in all the big State of Texas. This campus, located in the heart of the old and progressive little city of Nacogdoches, is both beautiful and interesting.

In 1845, the last year of the Republic of Texas, this property, now a model public school ground, was ceded by the City of Nacogdoches to the University of Nacogdoches, an institution chartered by an act of the Ninth Texas Congress. Although it was not to be a State school, Congress gave encouragement to this pioneer educational enterprise by donating four leagues of land, which gift was supplemented by land donations from such men as Thomas J. Rusk, Sam Houston and Hayden Edwards. But the patriotic dream of establishing a permanent university was not realized; and the brick building

THE ODD JOBS CLUB.

Helps Boys to Work Their Way Through College.

Mr. T. W. Currie, Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association at the University of Texas, has this year, for the second time, successfully operated an Odd Jobs Club among the men students, more than half of whom are either wholly or in part self-supporting. In a town the size of Austin there are many people who do not keep regular help and who yet need occasionally to have this or that thing done. Often it is difficult to find service to meet such a demand; for the people who do manual or clerical labor well are usual at steady employment. But in Austin this demand has been met through the student's Odd Jobs Club.

The calls are of every description. Some times a window-washer or a rug-beater is wanted to help out a busy housewife; sometimes there are cows to milk or wood to cut or a lawn to be mowed; or perhaps it is a business man who wants envelopes directed or type-writing done. From the beginning of the present school session up until January 1st the books of the Club show that 155 jobs had been done, netting $165.00.

erected for the university was used from the close of the Civil War as the temporary home of the public school. This house, still in a perfect state of preservation, now stands just behind the new and magnificent public school building.

Another historic landmark is the old Stone Fort, built according to the best information in 1770, which was moved several years ago from the business section of Nacogdoches and rebuilt on the northwest corner of the campus, where it is used as a public library.

About nine years ago this fifteen-acre campus was deeded to the public schools, and in the center of the block a forty thousand dollar high school building was erected near a magnificent cluster of pine and sweetgum trees. The yards were leveled, cement walks were built, and provision was made for tennis, basket ball, baseball, and similar games. And now as an ideal playground, as an example of civic pride, the large and beautiful school campus of the Nacogdoches Public School is the most unique model to be found anywhere in Texas.

CHAUTAUQUA PROMISES WELL

Program Appears Strong With Big Features in Music.

GALAXY OF ABLE LECTURERS

Hon. W. P. Borland, M. C., Heads the Corps of Brilliant Public Speakers. Max M. Mahany, Fresh From the Theater of War, Will Describe the Mexican Situation—Lizito's Italian Band, the Alpine Singers and the Frontenac Male Quartet Are Only a Few of the Musical Attractions Secured.

The program of our Chautauqua has been announced, and it surely looks good. The White & Myers people will come in their great line of lecturers, musical organizations and entertainers, which appear not only up to the high standard of past years, but considerably above it.

One of the big musical features this year will be Lizito's Italian Band. This is a large organization of first class professional musicians, a number of them soloists of high rank. This band last year played for more than six months of consecutive time at Palisades park, New York, and comes to our Chautauqua from an engagement at the same place of sixteen weeks' standing. The leader is the ever popular Vincent Lizito, which fact is in itself enough to insure a splendid organization. Lizito's Italian Band is one of the most popular concert bands in the country.

White Star Concert Company. Then there will be the White Star Concert Company, an organization of young lady musicians and entertainers of great ability, having had long training under famous teachers and experienced in the Lyceum and Chautauqua.

The Tyrolean Alpine Singers will be here also. This is the original company of Tyroleans and yodlers brought to this country from Europe for the St. Louis world's fair in 1904. It is the only genuine company of Tyroleans touring the United States in the Lyceum and Chautauqua. Their folk songs and imitable yodling and warbling songs are world famous. They will appear in the picturesque national costume of their people, the most attractive in all Europe. The program will consist of instrumental music as well as vocal, in which they use the unique instruments of their native land.

The Frontenac Quartet. A Chautauqua without a male quartet is not to be thought of. The Frontenac Male Quartet is to be the one this year. This is a first class singing organization, and it is offered as the ideal Chautauqua attraction. Each member possesses a solo voice of rare quality and sweetness. The young men have been associated together for several years in concert work and will give one of the strongest musical programs of the assembly.

The Cambridge Players in song and drama will be here also. This company of four people will put on some of the most famous and vital scenes from the standard plays as well as a musical and entertainment program. They have the reputation of being the best of their kind on the Chautauqua platform today.

One of the most interesting of the musical companies will be the Venetian Singers, who are in themselves a distinct feature. The company numbers four people. They are Italians, and their music is of a delightful character, their program being one of greatest merit.

Borland of Missouri. But the program is to be by no means all music. It is exceptionally strong in brilliant, popular, professional lecturers. Among the best known of these is Hon. W. P. Borland, noted member of congress from Missouri. Mr. Borland is a member of the congressional committee on appropriations and is at the head of the good roads and the farm interests movement in congress. He is a splendid speaker, a sincere and able man and probably knows more and does more for the interests of the farmers of this country in a big constructive way than any other man in congress. Borland day at the Chautauqua will be farmers' day, and it is planned to make this a big special feature and advertise it extensively.

Hon. Granville Jones, humorist, lawyer, editor and orator. The mark of a great orator is that he reminds you of no one else. This is true of Granville Jones. He is unique, original, always strong and delightfully interesting. He is a man with a wonderful personality, and his coming to the Chautauqua platform means that "a new Richmond is in the field." The man, his message and his method are all out of the ordinary and wholly different from the usual Chautauqua attraction.

M. M. Mahany.

Max M. Mahany, former member of the American legation at Bogota, Colombia, student of Mexican affairs and lecturer. Mr. Mahany comes to the Chautauqua with the most absorbingly interesting theme of a decade—the Mexican situation. He knows about Mexico and Mexicans, having lived and worked with them both in a private and official capacity. As a secret agent of the Brazilian government he has come in close contact with the people of various Latin American republics, and he understands them in a way impossible to the occasional visitor and casual observer. Especially is this true with respect to the Mexican people. At the Chautauqua he will give the history and true significance of the present troubles in Mexico from first hand knowledge of the facts. He comes fresh from the theater of war in northern Mexico, and what he will have to say will be up to the minute in timeliness. Mr. Mahany's address will be a great event.

Dr. James Hedley, noted Lyceum and Chautauqua lecturer for twenty-five years. For more than a quarter of a century Dr. James Hedley has been one of the foremost figures of the Lyceum and Chautauqua platforms. As solid is the standard of money and wheat of bread, so is Dr. Hedley standard among lecturers. The present high character of the Lyceum and Chautauqua is due largely to the power and beauty of his work. The Minneapolis Tribune, commenting on his lecture, "The Sunny Side of Life," said, "Such a lecture delivered by such a man is one of the treats of a lifetime." Dr. Hedley has lectured more than 5,000 times and has been heard by nearly two and one-half million people. In Cleveland, O., he has appeared twenty-six times.

Ikemoto, Japanese Scholar.

Seichi E. Ikemoto, distinguished Japanese scholar, experienced lecturer and peace advocate. Ikemoto is a native of Japan and comes from the famous Sumarai clan from which the high officials of the state, army and navy have come. Ikemoto is a highly educated gentleman and orator of remarkable ability. He has won high recognition as an eloquent speaker both in Japan and America. For two seasons Ikemoto has been on the Chautauqua platform, and his lecture on "The Changing Orient," in which he compares the institutions, domestic life and dominating influences of the two nations, excited intense interest in every Chautauqua audience.

Ikemoto appears on the platform dressed in the native garb of his people. Recently Ikemoto was employed by the department of education of the city of New York to give a series of public lectures upon Japan. He is held in the highest esteem both personally and as a lecturer by the greatest educational institutions of America.

Travelogue lectures. with views on the Panama canal and San Francisco exposition. This lecture will be given by a trained lecturer with assistants, using the finest equipment obtainable. It will be a distinct novelty and a most enjoyable feature of the Chautauqua program.

The Chautauqua program will not be without lively and wholesome entertainment. One of the most pleasing features of this will be on the occasion of the appearance of James Francis O'Donnell, impersonator and monologue actor. Mr. O'Donnell has behind him the experience of fifteen years on the American platform. He will present at the Chautauqua the famous play, "The Sign of the Cross."

Willard Gorton. Then there will be Willard Gorton in clay modeling, fabric pictures, crayon sketches and cartoons, costumed characterizations and impersonations of noted men. Mr. Gorton is the premier novelty entertainer.

In addition to Mr. O'Donnell and Mr. Gorton there are the other entertainers in connection with the musical programs, etc., such as impersonators, lecturers, etc.

Some program, isn't it? Great musicians and singers and entertainers and lecturers, among them the best in the United States. We have not said anything about one of the very biggest features of the Chautauqua yet—the children's Chautauqua. There will be special sessions for the little folk, under the direction of a junior supervisor, who will be a charming young lady, professionally trained in playground work and story telling and all the little interests that lie nearest a child's heart. The little folk will have their own good times off to themselves with a carefully prepared program. The White & Myers people say they would no more think of being without the children's Chautauqua than they would think of being without lecturers.

The season tickets are already on sale, and it looks as if our Chautauqua will be a big success.

THE CAMBRIDGE PLAYERS ARE COMING

Unique Organization Will Present Music, Impersonations and Plays.

It is not often possible to gather together in one company four artists of real ability and equal rank. This ideal has been realized in the case of the Cambridge Players, who are to appear in prelude and full entertainment at the Chautauqua.

The Cambridge Players is an organization that is different. The members are banded together in a business or organization in the form of a joint stock company. This is unusual in companies of this type, but the effect is that such an organization insures stability and continued service.

The Cambridge Players is the only organization to which Elias Day has publicly allowed the use of his name as coach and director. Their programs each year are given under Mr. Day's direction. An entertainment given by the Players is an entertainment of purpose, variety and thoroughly artistic conception, and the way it is executed is a revelation.

The Players present original humorous sketches and most famous and vital scenes from famous plays, such as the dagger scene and sleepwalking scene in "Macbeth." The original sketches are clever enough to interest any audience, however critical, and the singing is above reproach. They are four artists of equal rank, none being featured to overshadow the other. Therefore in describing the personnel they are not to be taken in order of rank.

Miss Morrison in her little songs of color and sentiment, Mr. Coffey in his characterizations and Miss Stewart in her piano monologues help to diversify the program and give it finish.

The Cambridge Players is easily the best company of its kind on the Chautauqua platform.

WOES OF AN ENTERTAINER.

Two Odd Experiences That Befell Willard Gorton.

In his entertainment Willard Gorton gives a remarkably realistic impersonation of the late John B. Gough, delivering a portion of one of his famous temperance lectures. On one occasion he was giving his entertainment in Uniontown, Pa. He had just finished "making up" for Gough and had started to deliver the address when a tall, lanky miner, with a mouth like a bulldog and a face like a monkey, strolled in and stood at the rear of the hall.

He evidently thought that the man on the platform with white hair and flowing beard was some sort of preacher for after listening a moment to the address he remarked in a voice that could be heard all over the hall: "Hi! I thought this was going to be a show!" And he stalked out. On another occasion at North Bennington, Vt., it was his Mark Twain impersonation that called forth an interruption. In this impersonation he uses Twain's response to the toast, "The Bibles." All went well until he said, "Triplets went out to a permanent riot." At these words the audience roared with laughter. They screamed and squealed for several minutes. Mr. Gorton stood like a graven image and wondered what had caused all this wild commotion.

After his entertainment he learned that a prominent and popular doctor and his wife, who occupied seats in the second row from the front, were the parents of triplets six months old.

THE MOST POPULAR

Alpine Singers and Yodlers Play to Immense Crowds.

ORIGINAL COMPANY HERE.

Program at Chautauqua of Great Attractiveness—Singers Appear in the Historic Costumes of Their Native Mountains, the Austrian and Bavarian Alps—Zither and Guitar Playing Will Give Variety to the Musical Treat.

In some respects the Tyrolean Alpine Yodlers are the most interesting organization that will appear at the Chautauqua. They come to America from Zillertal especially for the Chautauqua. It is the company organized by Franz Itainer, who first brought them to America under the auspices of the St. Louis world's fair in 1904, where they scored a tremendous success.

These people are natives of the Alpine mountains, and in their traditional and original costumes—the most picturesque in all Europe—they present a most attractive picture on the platform.

Singing and yodling is a natural gift with these quaint mountain folk. This and the playing of their national instruments—zither, guitar, etc.—are practically the only means of amusement and diversion that they have during their spare time while tucked away thousands and thousands of feet above the sea level in thinly populated hamlets where the oddity built little houses appear to the tourist to be glued to those giant Alpine mountains.

These people come partly from Austria and partly from the Bavarian Alps, the most widely known and mountainous province of the country, the province of Tyrol; hence the name Tyroleans. The Bavarian provinces from which some of the people come are Berchtesgaden and Oberammergau, the latter being well known to the American public through the Passion plays, which are produced in the very heart of this country every five or ten years.

The average routine of life and living of these Alpine people is more or less of a pastoral character. They farm, of course, but in a small way, on account of the conditions of climate and the limited space of this mountain country. There the summer consists of but ten weeks during the year in which to raise vegetables and other products. Cattle and goat raising and dairy farming have been adopted and present quite a feature of their means of livelihood.

The Alpine pastures within nooks and corners of these mountains, after being covered with snow and ice during the long and dreary winter months, present a picture of vegetation in summer, and that is the time when the boys woo their lassies with the yodel songs, calling from cliff to cliff.

We are informed that this yodling with these Alpine people constitutes an actual code of "wireless" telegraphic and telephonic questions and answers, practiced and in use for many generations back and long before Marconi invented his wonderful instrument to do the work.

Their program at the Chautauqua consists of original solos, duets, quartets and choruses, folk songs of their native land and instrumental music with their Tyrolean instruments.

No musical organization ever had such an ovation as was given the Alpine Singers at the Chautauqua last season. It was the musical novelty of the year.

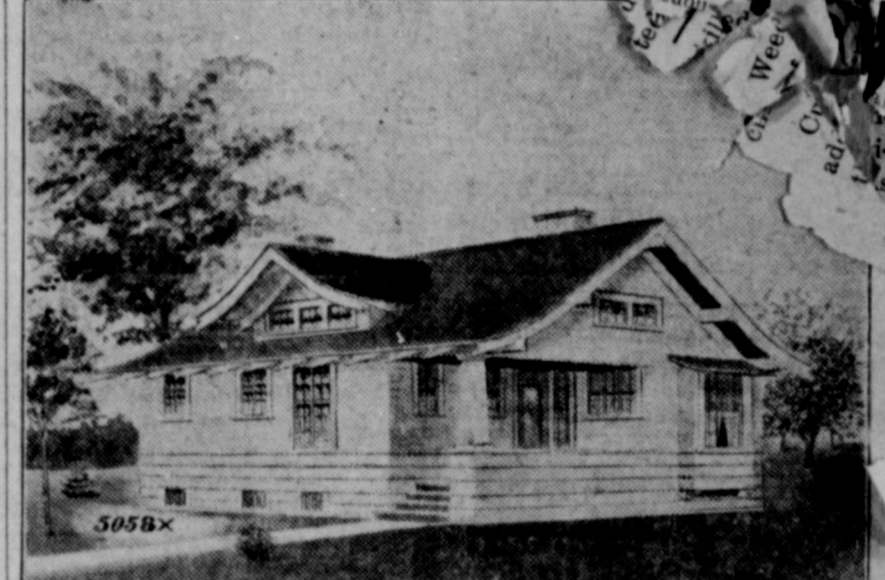

WILLIAM A. RADFORD, EDITOR

William A. Radford will answer all subjects pertaining to the building, for the readers of this account of his wide experience as author and manufacturer, he doubts, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 178 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The word "bungalow" is an Anglo-Indian term, meaning in India a species of rural villa, a house of light construction, usually of unburned brick with a thatched roof. The bungalows which are the residences of Europeans in India are of all styles and sizes, according to the taste and wealth of the owner. In its earlier use by white men, the word "bungalow" was taken to denote a lightly constructed habitation, not exceeding one story in height, and presumably designed for temporary occupation. But during the past few years bungalows have been built in both the United States and Canada as all-year residences, and are constructed with every regard for permanency.

They are built with heavier studding and bracing than the bungalows in California, and are sheathed solid outside and covered with heavy building paper and siding shingles. Many of them are provided with open fireplaces, although the old-time significance of the word contemplated an unplastered building with no facilities for heating, since it was designed, presumably for summer occupancy or tropical habitation.

In America, the bungalow idea first took root in Southern California, where the mild and even climate is particularly well adapted to this type of house in its elementary forms. Here it has undergone its most extensive development, although other sections of the United States are now crowding the favorite regions of the Pacific coast in this respect.

It may be said, in all frankness, that any prospective home builder will do well to study carefully the advantages of the bungalow for his home which he is to build the coming spring. For those desiring a small and inexpensive house, particularly, the bungalow offers great advantages. The original ideas of arrangement, as well as the unique ornamental schemes that are characteristic of bungalow work, make it possible to design and build a home-like, cosy house of individual appearance for the same cost as the plain, every-day cottage.

An example in point is the artistic four-room bungalow illustrated here.

This has been built many times for $1,500—a surprisingly low cost—no more, in fact, than one would have to pay for a plain ordinary cottage of the same size, which would not meet so ready a sale nor at so good a figure when the time comes to sell.

Remember this: It is always possible to sell a bungalow when a plain house of the same cost would find no sale. This is the most important factor financially, concerning the subject of homebuilding. Too often home builders construct houses that lack style; and when a rainy day comes and they want to sell the house, there is no buyer because the house is "like thousands of others."

The reason why a house will not sell, in nine cases out of ten, is because it has no individuality. The bungalow has individuality, and few things that makes passers-by turn after they have passed the house and say "How cosy!"

A glance at the floor-plan and perspective shown herewith will show desirable and attractive features of this plan. From the broad entrance porch, one enters a good-sized hall, connecting by means of wide cased opening with attractive column grille work into a large living room, 12 by 18 feet bright and cheerful, having broad window spaces, a built-in seat, and practical fireplace. A cased door connects the living room and room, making practically open and giving exceptional space in a cottage of this size. The arrangement between the kitchen and dining room is very good for convenient housekeeping, and few things there is also direct connection between kitchen and front hall—a feature. Too many houses have a narrow passage through every time to be chased through the front hall on occasion to answer the front door, which not only disturbs the many unnecessarily and makes off the room is of good size, open and light, and is supplied with window shades and even climate is particularly well adapted to this type of house in its elementary forms. Here it has undergone its most exten-

It, too, has a large closet for linen, etc. Although the second floor of this house is not important, still it furnishes a space for storage purposes, is well lighted and ventilated, and serves to keep the first floor cool. Some people have objected to a bungalow on the ground that it is hot; but, with an attic space of this size, well ventilated, no trouble of this kind will be experienced.

The exterior treatment of this house is in a very appropriate bungalow style. Rough boards are used, stained with creosote oil. The foundation courses, from grade to window sills are covered with wide boards with horizontal batten strips. The sills are also covered with beveled siding, but with wider. A wide-extending, operable cornice completes the design. Brown with green roof, and sash white, make a very typical and color arrangement for this little bungalow.

Possible Cancer Cure.

Great popular interest has been manifested in Germany in the use of mesothorium as a cancer cure. Rich persons are solicited money with which to secure material for charitable institutions in other places various means are resorted to for the securing of this material. It is secured from thorium waste of the gas industry, and, while it has been very beneficially used by the physician, it is too early to put entire reliance upon it. For the thorium particle is ineluctably covering pierced with holes, the box is placed upon a bed, and the patient is treated with it slowly, but the disease.

The Case of Jennie Brice

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER XI.

THE prosecution produced many witnesses during the next two days. Shanty Boat Tim's story withstood the most vigorous cross examination. After him, Mr. Bronson from the theater corroborated Miss Hope's story of Jennie Brice's attack of hysteria in the dressing room and told of taking her home that night.

He was a poor witness, nervous and halting. He weighed each word before he said it, and he made a general unfavorable impression. I thought he was hiding something back. In view of that Mr. Pitman would have called for denouement, his attitude is easily explained. But I was puzzled then.

So far, the prosecution had touched but lightly on the possible motive for a crime—the woman. But on the third day, to my surprise, a Mrs. Agnes Murray was called. It was the Mrs. Murray I had seen at the morgue.

I have lost the clipping of that day's trial, but I remember her testimony perfectly. She was a widow, living above a millinery shop on Federal street, St. Louis. She had one daughter, who did stenography and typing means livelihood. She had no relatives at home. Many of her neighbors in the neighborhood used to send out their bills, cards at the street entrance shop, and now and then brought her work.

In December the prisoner had shown her a transcript of a play and from that time on he came daily, sometimes every day, bringing a few sheets of manuscript at a time. Sometimes he came without a manuscript and would sit and talk while he smoked a cigarette. They had thought him unmarried.

On Wednesday, Feb. 28, Alice Murray had disappeared. She had taken some of her clothing—not all—and had left a note. The witness read the note aloud in a trembling voice:

Dear Mother—When you get this I shall be married to Mr. Ladley. Don't worry. Will write again from N. Y. Lovingly, ALICE.

From that time until a week before, she had not heard from her daughter. Then she had a card, mailed from Madison Square station, New York city. The card merely said:

Am well and working. ALICE.
The defense was visibly shaken. They had not expected this, and I thought even Mr. Ladley, whose calm had continued unbroken, paled.

So far all had gone well for the prosecution. They had proved a crime, as nearly as circumstantial evidence could prove a crime, and they had established a motive. But in the identification of the body so far they had failed. The prosecution "rested," as they say, although they didn't rest much on the afternoon of the third day.

The defense called, first of all, Eliza Shaeffer. She told of a woman answering the general description of Jennie Brice having spent two days at the Shaeffer farm at Horner. Being shown photographs of Jennie Brice, she thought it was the same woman.

She was not certain. She told of a woman leaving unexpectedly on Wednesday of that week. On cross examination, she showed a small photograph of a woman in the photograph in question. She knew it was Jennie Brice.

The defense then called me. I had to admit that the dress and hat as described were almost certainly the ones I had seen on the bed in Jennie Brice's room the day before she disappeared. I could not say definitely whether the woman in the photograph was Jennie Brice or not; under a magnifying glass thought it might be.

Defense called Jonathan Alexander, a druggist who testified that on the night in question he had been roused at half past 3 by the prisoner, who said his wife was ill, and had purchased a bottle of proprietary remedy from him. His identification was absolute.

The defense called Jennie Brice's sister, and endeavored to prove that Jennie Brice had had no such scar. It was shown that she was on intimate terms with her family and would hardly have concealed an operation of any gravity from them.

The defense scored that day. They had shown that the prisoner had told the truth when he said he had gone to a pharmacy for medicine that night for his wife, and they had shown that woman, answering the description of Jennie Brice, spent two days in a room called Horner, and had gone from there on Wednesday after the same. And they had shown that the man was attired as Jennie Brice had been.

That was the way things stood on the afternoon of the fourth day when I returned. Mr. Reynolds was at home when I got there. He had been very much got there. He had been very much

"That's curious," he said, subdued since the developments of that first day. In the trial mostly in his own room and had twice brought me a bunch of jonquils as a peace offering. He had the kettle boiling when I got home.

"You have had a number of visitors," he said. "Our young friend Howell has been here, and Mr. Holcombe has arrived and has a man in his room."

Mr. Holcombe came down a moment after, with his face beaming. "I think we've got him, Mrs. Pitman," he said. "The jury won't even go out of the box."

But further than that he would not explain. He said he had a witness locked in his room, and he'd be glad of supper for him, as they'd both come a long way. And he went out and bought some oysters and a bottle or two of beer. But as far as I know he kept him locked up all that night in the second story front room. I don't think the man knew he was a prisoner. I went in to turn down the bed, and he was sitting by the window, reading the evening paper's account of the trial—an elderly gentleman, rather professional looking.

Mr. Holcombe slept on the upper landing of the hall that night, rolled in a blanket—not that I think his witness even thought of escaping, but the little man was taking no chances.

At 8 o'clock that night the bell rang. It was Mr. Howell. I admitted him myself, and he followed me back to the dining room. I had not seen him for several weeks, and the change in him startled me. He was dressed carefully, but his eyes were sunken in his head, and he looked as if he had not slept for days.

Mr. Reynolds had gone upstairs, not finding me socially inclined. "You haven't been sick, Mr. Howell, have you?" I asked.

"Oh, no, I'm well enough. I've been traveling about. Those infernal sleeping cars!"

His voice trailed off, and I saw him looking at my mother's picture, with the jonquils beneath.

"That's curious," he said, going closer. "It—it looks almost like Lida Harvey."

"My mother," I said simply. "Have you seen her lately?"

"My mother?" I asked, startled. "No, Lida."

"I saw her a few days ago."

"Here?"

"Yes; she came here, Mr. Howell, two weeks ago. She looks badly—as if she is worrying."

"Not—about me?" he asked eagerly. "Yes, about you. What possessed you to go away as you did? When my bro—when her uncle accused you of something you ran away instead of facing things like a man."

"I was trying to find the one person who could clear me, Mrs. Pitman."

He sat back, with his eyes closed. He looked ill enough to be in bed.

"And you succeeded?"

"No."

I thought perhaps he had not been eating, and I offered him food, as I had once before. But he refused it with the ghost of his boyish smile.

"I'm hungry, but it's not food I want. I want to see her," he said.

I sat down across from him and tried to mend a tablecloth, but I could not sew. I kept seeing those two young things, each sick for a sight of the other, and from wishing they could have a minute together, I got to planning it for them.

"Perhaps," I said finally, "if you want it very much—"

"Very much!"

He came right over and put his arms around me.

"Who are you, anyhow?" he said. "You who turn to the world the frozen mask of a Union street boarding house landlady, who are a gentlewoman by every instinct and training and a girl at heart? Who are you?"

"I'll tell you what I am," I said. "I'm a romantic old fool, and you'd better let me do this quick before I change my mind."

He freed me at that, but followed to the telephone and stood while I got Lida. He was in a perfect frenzy of anxiety, turning red and white by turns, and in the middle of the conversation taking the paper bodily from me and holding it to his own ear.

She said she thought she could get away; she spoke guardedly as if Abba were near, but I gathered that she would come as soon as she could, and from the way her voice broke, I knew she was as excited as the boy beside me.

She came, heavily coated and veiled, at a quarter after 10 that night, and I took her back to the dining room, where he was waiting. He did not make a move toward her, but stood there with his very lips white, looking at her. And at first she did not make a move either, but stood and gazed at him, thin and white, a wreck of himself. Then:

"Elli!" she cried, and ran around the table to him as he held out his arms.

The schoolteacher was out. I went into the parlor bedroom and sat in the cozy corner in the dark. I had done a wrong thing, and I was glad of it. And, sitting there in the darkness, I went over my life again. After all, it had been my own life; I had lived it. No one else had shaped it for me. And if it had been cheerless and colorless now, it had had its big moments. Life is measured by big moments. Life is measured by big moments.

If I let the two children in the dining room have fifteen big moments instead of five, who can blame me?

The next day was the sensational one. We went through the case of conviction: Jennie Brice, living; Jennie Brice, dead; the body found at Sewickley could not be Jennie Brice's. The body found at Sewickley was Jennie Brice's. And so it went on.

The defense did an unexpected thing in putting Mr. Ladley on the stand. That day, for the first time, he showed the wear and tear of the ordeal. He had no flower in his buttonhole, and the rims of his eyes were red. But he was quite cool. His stage training had taught him not only to endure the eyes of the crowd, but to find in its gaze a sort of stimulant. He made a good witness I must admit.

He replied to the usual questions easily. After five minutes or so Mr. Llewellyn got down to work.

CHAPTER XII.

MR. LADLEY, you have said that your wife was ill the night of March 4?"

"Yes."

"What was the nature of her illness?"

"She had a functional heart trouble, not serious."

"Will you tell us fully the events of that night?"

"I had been asleep when my wife awakened me. She asked for a medicine she used in these attacks. I got up and found the bottle, but it was empty. As she was nervous and frightened, I agreed to try to get some at a drug store. I went downstairs, took Mrs. Pitman's box and went to several stores before I could awaken a pharmacist."

"You cut the boat loose?"

"Yes. It was tied in a woman's knot or series of knots. I could not untie it, and I was in a hurry."

"How did you cut it?"

"With my pocketknife."

"You did not use Mrs. Pitman's bread knife?"

"I did not."

"And in cutting it you cut your wrist, did you?"

"Yes. The knife slipped. I have the scar still."

"What did you do then?"

"I went back to the room and stanchied the blood with a towel."

"From whom did you get the medicine?"

"From Alexander's pharmacy."

"At what time?"

"I am not certain. About 3 o'clock, probably."

"You went directly back home?"

Mr. Ladley hesitated. "No," he said finally. "My wife had had these attacks, but they were not serious. I was curious to see how the river front looked and rowed out too far. I was caught in the current and nearly carried away."

"You came home after that?"

"Yes, at once. Mrs. Ladley was better and had dropped asleep. She awakened as I came in. She was disagreeable about the length of time I had been gone and would not let me explain. We quarreled, and she said she was going to leave me. I said that as she had threatened this before and had never done it I would see that she really started. At daylight I rowed her to Federal street."

"What had she with her?"

"A small brown valise."

"How was she dressed?"

"In a black and white dress and hat, with a long, black coat."

"What was the last you saw of her?"

"She was going across the Sixth street bridge."

"Alone?"

"No. She went with a young man we knew."

There was a stir in the courtroom at this.

"Who was the young man?"

"A Mr. Howell, a reporter on a newspaper here."

"Have you seen Mr. Howell since your arrest?"

"No, sir. He has been out of the city."

I was so excited by this time that I could hardly hear. I missed some of the cross examination. The district attorney pulled Mr. Ladley's testimony to pieces.

"You cut the boat's painter with your pocketknife?"

"I did."

"Then how do you account for Mrs. Pitman's broken knife, with the blade in your room?"

"I have no theory about it. She may have broken it herself. She had used it the day before to lift tacks out of a carpet."

"That was true; I had."

"That early Monday morning was cold, was it not?"

"Yes, very."

"Why did your wife leave without her fur coat?"

"I did not know she had until we had left the house. Then I did not ask her. She would not speak to me."

"I see. But is it not true that, upon a wet fur coat being shown you as your wife's, you said it could not be hers, as she had taken hers with her?"

"I do not recall such a statement."

"You recall a coat being shown you?"

"Yes. Mr. Pitman brought a coat to my door, and I was working on a play I am writing, and I do not remember what I said. The coat was ruined. The first thing I thought of to get rid of it was to burn it."

"You got the medicine first, you say?"

"Yes. Alexander has testified that you got the medicine at 3:30. It has been shown that you left the house at 2 and got back about 4. Does not this show that with all your alarm you went to the river front first?"

"I was come from 2 to 4," he replied calmly. "Mr. Alexander must be wrong about the time I awakened him. I got the medicine first."

FARMERS' UNION PLATFORM A CAMPAIGN ISSUE

President Wilson's Attitude Pointed Out as Corroborating Position of Farmers' Union on Liquor Question.

PLEA FOR CO-OPERATION

Ft. Worth, Texas.—The politicians have been putting the farmers upon their platform ever since there was a politician and a farmer, but in this campaign we are going to reverse the arrangement by making our own platform and inviting the statesmen to endorse it.

For the information of the farmers and the friends of agriculture, we are going to publish the names of all legislative candidates who endorse the Farmers' Union platform. We have had many requests for this information from both the cities and the farms, and as soon as we complete the canvass we will make the results public. We have solicited many of them by correspondence and others by personal interviews, and candidates who may have been missed by either of these methods will please consider this article as a request on our part for them to give us their views so they can be properly classified, and we also ask that they publicly announce their position to their constituents. We want men who will stand squarely and publicly on our platform. We will leave the gum-shoe work to the political henchmen.

The Farmers' Union for twelve long years has been listening to the siren song of the politicians. There has been absolutely no uniformity in either thought or action on the part of the friends of agriculture and certainly no authoritative plan of procedure. Many of these campaign promises made by candidates, if fulfilled, would destroy agriculture. Some splendid efforts have been lost through lack of co-operation and proper comprehension, and the platforms of candidates who genuinely desire to help the farmer have been, in many instances, antagonistic to each other. These various platforms patched together looked like Joseph's coat, and all were lost in the scuffle between factional leaders in the legislature. Many times we have been compelled to sit down and watch important agricultural measures go up in the smoke of political strife. We shall no longer resign our destinies to such folly.

Liquor Issue An Obstruction.

This condition rendered it imperative that the farmers adopt a platform which would comprehend in an authoritative way the agricultural needs of the State, and in order to avoid becoming involved in factional controversies, we have gone direct to the people in the July primary. This platform deals with almost all economic problems because they are all a part of the business of farming. It handles the liquor question as an obstruction, for as such it has prevented much important agricultural legislation and has never failed to strike terror to all other bills on the legislative calendar, regardless of their merit. We had as well talk about plowing a battle field during a fight as to think of securing agricultural legislation when the liquor warriors pitch battle in the legislative halls over liquor issues in any of its disguises.

President Wilson has recently advised the Democratic party in Congress to postpone the consideration of the proposed prohibition amendment to the Constitution of the United States on the ground that it would obstruct all other legislation. The president has taken identically the same position in a national way that the Farmers' Union has occupied in the State campaign. We do not know of any better authority on Democracy than President Wilson and in any event we would prefer to keep company with him in public issues than with some of these "prohibitionists-for-revenue" politicians, who are willing to block agricultural legislation with liquor measures.

Agriculture is Not a Special Interest.

No agricultural legislation fundamental in its character can be considered as class for agriculture is a universal occupation and the farmer cannot himself without helping others. The farmer is a ruler and all other occupations are in his employ and their welfare is indispensable to his business. He cannot successfully promote his own interests without providing for the welfare of his servants.

We realize that no platform of principles can please everybody. The Union faced the necessity of taking a definite stand on all important subjects and on many of them there has always been, and always will be, a wide difference of opinion, but all subjects were carefully considered and the interests of the farmer protected to the extent of our ability. The platform was unanimously adopted at the State convention of the Farmers' Union at Fort Worth on January 14-15 with over 600 delegates present and it is the official utterance of the Union and the authoritative voice of agriculture and as such the platform is submitted to all candidates for approval and to all voters for support.

The farmers have heretofore, as a rule, divided about evenly on most all public questions, leaving the balance of power in the hands of a minority, controlled in the main, by machine politicians. The inability of the farmers to stand together makes machine rule common and corruption possible. The farmers can never hope to become a factor in public affairs until they work through organized channels and certainly we have not yet settled our differences in our own conventions as to turn over to the politicians in theirs.

Rally 'Round the Union. The questions for the individual farmer to determine are, loyalty to his occupation, stronger than political loyalty, whether fidelity to a greater than self policy, he has more control than authorized to public session than or transactions who will the Union; how the politicians want to act business in any industry, low the Union, Farm politician.

We want to know the position of permitting the Union to become in any way involved in partisan politics. Our organization, at its annual meeting in Fort Worth last January, made certain legislative demands which we have submitted to all candidates alike and we have listed those whom we consider most favorable to our demands and the opportunity is afforded all candidates at all times to endorse our platform in its entirety. In pursuing this course the Farmers' Union is simply following a precedent of long standing of all organizations of whatever character that desire legislation. The Farmers' Union will stand for principles, never for men, but we must depend upon men to write our principles into law.

The Union has had a large increase in members during the past six months than during previous six years and the spirit of unity and co-operation never greater. A few self-appointed guardians of the Farmers' Union have been publicly warning the Union to keep out of politics. When we want the cooperation of politicians we will apply to them for their views.

In our next article we will give a list of legislative candidates who are on the Farmers' Union platform and if that be politics, make the most of it.

POULTRY FACTS

TELLING THE SEX OF GEES

Not Easy Matter to Make Distinction in Toulouse Variety as Birds Are All of Same Color.

It is not an easy thing to distinguish the sex of geese, especially of the Toulouse variety. Both sexes are the same in color, but in this variety the male or gander is somewhat larger, has a larger head, longer neck, and carries himself more erect. The voice of the female is coarser than that of the male, a point that is relied upon quite generally by experienced growers of these fowls. Gilbert says there is an embarrassing likeness between the gander and the goose, and out of the breeding season it is not easy at first to distinguish between them, while the young goslings long baffle conjecture as to their sex.

Yet certain distinctions gradually manifest themselves, as for instance, the noise, the gander's hiss, being more shrill and sibilant than the geese's.

Newman says that when six or seven months of age, or at maturity, the ganders can be told from the geese by observation. In most cases the male grows somewhat larger than the female.

The goose is deeper in the body, a trifle slimmer in the neck, and smaller in the neck. The call of the gander is loud, long and shrill, while that of the goose is merely an answer to it.

There is a curious plan to determine sex adopted in Cambridgeshire, England. All the geese are shut in a stable or a pigsty. A small dog is then put in. It is said the geese will all lift up their heads and go to the back of the place, while the ganders will lower and stretch out their necks, hissing all the time.

Gilbert refers to the same method, saying the ganders will put their heads down at the dog and hiss, while the geese will keep their heads up and try to avoid the intruder.

POULTRY NOTES

Work for a reputation.

The fresher the eggs for hatching the better will be the hatch.

Are the quarters provided for the chickens clean and sanitary?

A well ventilated cellar is the best place to operate the incubator.

Sprout your light oats for green food. The hens like them best that way.

If several hens are set in one room it is desirable to confine them in good nests.

Too many people, especially novices, think it essential to build costly poultry houses.

For fattening old or young chickens, nothing beats a wet mash of corn meal and milk.

The best results in natural hatching will be obtained when the hens are set on the ground.

Don't forget to hatch a few hen eggs under hens. They will make big, vigorous breeders when mature.

Free range chickens are never so tender for roasting as those with limited range and fed on pure feed.

All eggs should be tested by the seventh day, which often makes it possible to reset some of the hens.

Keep a chronic setting hen from feeling any warmth under her body and you will break her of the habit.

The humble hen is a big factor in the profits of the farm, but she needs attention just as much as anything else.

The best place for the incubator is the one where the temperature is most nearly uniform from day to day, under natural conditions.

Be mighty careful to see that your setting hen is not overrun with lice. In producing louse-free chicks the incubator certainly has it on the hen.

It is always the hen that lays the most eggs that produces the most chicks. In breeders, high fertility is more to be desired than high production.

Wa Help---Apply Any Farm House

While bearing the stamp of the war, this line in various forms has passed over the copy desks and into the columns of dozens of Texas newspapers.

The slogan has been taken up everywhere; it has been boomed from the pulpit, intoned in the chambers of commerce, and committed to sinew of home and business.

The response has been truly astonishing.

In many places the business men have closed their doors, leaving commercial walks wholly deserted to shoulder the hoe and press to the aid of the agriculturist.

Ministers have recognized the plight of the farmer delayed by sluicing weather. A number have "shucked" their cloth and donned the royal blue overall—hoe men in the making. With them, in many instances, their congregations have pressed to the front.

Bumper crops mean bumper work. The farmer's success mean full times, his distress commercial loss and financial stringency. The fact is recognized throughout the state and many hands, unused to the implements of agriculture, are pressing forward to relieve the burden.

There is no space now in Texas for the great army of the unemployed.

The ruling was hailed with rejoicing at suffrage headquarters. It is the aim now to work for a constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote for every elective state office.

Washington, June 11.—Despite the fact that the House rules committee postponed until July 1 action on a special rule to provide for immediate consideration of Representative Hobson's resolution for national prohibition though an amendment to the federal constitution, prohibition continued today to be a lively topic of discussion in congressional circles. Precipitation of the issue at this time has aroused keener interest at the capital than in any other that has come up there in a long while.

Representative Hobson today forecasts that his resolution would come before the House for action on July 6 or 7.
