Rural Health Care Discussed By Methodist Hospital Official

Rural Health and Health Nationwide was the subject discussed by guest speaker, Ray Mason, vice president of community services for Lubbock Methodist Hospital. He was speaker for the Muleshoe Rotary Club and was introduced by Mark McClanahan, who was in charge of the program.

Dr. McClanahan said Mason would be talking about how the Muleshoe hospital is doing, according to Methodist Hospital, has Muleshoe Area Medical Center as an affiliate.

Mason told the Rotarians "Health care, as you have all seen, has taken a drastic turn. I will attempt to fill you in a little on what is happening."

Mason reminded that rural health care "took a turn for the worse" with the implementation of Medicare's DRG plan, a plan that decides how many days a patient can be hospitalized for treatment of any specific illness.

He said the DRG plan has impacted in such a way that Texas leads the nation in hospital closures. He added that 80 percent of the hospitals closed have less than 100 beds each.

"It has impacted health care," he said. "People now have to go into cities to larger hospitals. It has impacted businesses that see their customers go to the cities."

He then asked, "What do we have to do to stop the closure and limitation of health care in smaller communities."

The survival of the community hospital is going to be their relationship with larger hospitals. It is not necessarily true that the large hospitals are 'out to take all the business -- to get the patients.' Smaller hospitals now need the affiliation with larger hospitals for their expertise and knowledge they have in order to keep the smaller hospitals going.

He says the large hospitals have good understanding of what is happening with rural hospitals. The larger hospitals

Jay Messenger and David Tipps presented a proposal to the board of directors of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture during an early evening meeting on Thursday.

They proposed bringing a racing event to Muleshoe. According to the two men, they have looked all around Muleshoe and the only feasible location to hold the event is at the new airport.

They have already discussed the possibility with City Manager Dave Marr, who approached the Muleshoe City Council with the proposal last Tuesday morning. This is because FAA approval will be necessary before closing the airport for any reason.

The men explained that this type racing (one car-timed racing) is conducted every weekend in some town within 75 miles of Muleshoe.

Some of the locations include Lubbock, Amarillo, Odessa-Midland, Hobbs, Clovis and Porth, N.M.

Although it is called a race, and sports cars are involved, they are all 'street' cars such as Mustangs, Toyotas and Nissans. Some of the classes are heavily modified, explained Messenger.

The events are sanctioned by the Sports Car Club of America, which is over 50 years old.

These timed events are held nationwide, and range from small, local events with 20-30 cars to nationwide competition with more than 100 cars.

Messenger explained that although the event is called a race, only one car runs at a time, around a course which has been defined. All races are held on concrete or asphalt surfaces, for one or two laps. They are timed and compared to other cars in their class.

He said it is a driving skill contest, but does involve speed.

Messenger said he has never heard of any complaints or problems where the races are held. There is insurance, paid for by the SCCA which covers $5 million in liability, and absolutely no alcohol are allowed on the premises.

The men are looking into perhaps having a two-day event in Muleshoe later this summer, which would, and could draw up to 300 out-of-town people here for overnight, to be spending money on motels and food, as well as gas and other items.

Once City Manager Marr gets information on how to approach FAA for approval, the West Texas Region of the Sports Car Club of America will be contacted about possible dates to plan this event for Muleshoe.

Messenger said some 30-40 entrants can be expected for any event, and if successful this year, would like to bid for the

Rebate Check Showing Hefty Increase Here

"Because of steady if not spectacular economic growth, combined with the overwhelming success of Project Fair Pay, we're sending more than $90 million in local sales tax rebates back to Texas cities, counties, hospital districts and transit systems, a 24 percent increase from last April's rebates," State Comptroller John Sharp said Friday.

Statewide, monthly checks to city and county governments, hospital districts and the El Paso City Transit Department totaled $92.9 million, 24 percent more than last April's checks for $75.8 million. April's rebates reflect taxable sales made in February.

Transit systems in Austin, Dallas, Houston, Fort Worth and San Antonio receive payments quarterly.

Muleshoe's check was for $16,000.45, an increase of 17.24 percent over the $13,647.35 received at this time last April.

To date for the year, Muleshoe has received $73,976.98, up 6.09 percent over the $69,727.21 received by this time a year ago.

In Cochran County, Morton received $4,761.45, compared to the $3,506.44 received in April last year, for an increase of 35.79 percent. They also show a 4.16 percent increase for the year. They received to date in April 1990 the total of $18,627.08, compared to the sum of $19,402.10 through April this year.

Littlefield received a current check in the amount of $15,195.69, an increase of 15.98 percent over last year's April payment of $13,101.43. To date for the year, Littlefield has received $75,231.82, up 5.92 percent over the $71,028.47 they had received through April last year.

From Parmer County, Friona shows to have received a check for $8,216.67, an increase of Cont. Page 6, Col. 2

Boot Designer Quits After 42 Years Work

When it comes to boots, Justin Boot designer Eddie Kelly has seen it all.

She has made boots for Nolan Ryan, Michael Jackson and lion tamer Gunther Goebel-Williams. She has tried every kind of stitching pattern imaginable in every hue of the rainbow, and made boots with everything from frog hide ("they're too small") to codfish ("ooh, they smelled bad"). Eddie has seen the "lacers," which were popular when she started with Justin in 1949, make a big comeback. She has seen boots with pointed toes give way to round toes, and then pointed toes come back into style.

Now, after 42 years at Justin, she has hung up her stitching machine to retire at the age of 65. "Leaving here is the hardest thing I've ever done," she said softly. "None of my family live here in Texas, so Justin has been my family."

Ironically, her four-decades-long tenure in the boot business started with some square-dancing friends and a Justin Boot Company that didn't want to hire her. Friends at Justin had invited Eddie to a square-dancing club that met at the boot-making plant. "They were such nice people that I decided to work there," she recalls. "I wasn't any good at square dancing, but I hoped I would be better at making boots."

But the company wouldn't hire her. Because she had dropped around between jobs, never working anywhere longer than three months, the company was worried that the 23 year-old wouldn't stay.

She was persistent enough to finally get hired working the line, and she became a supervisor just three months later. In 1965, she became Justin's first full-time designer and the rest is boot-making history.

She has seen a lot of changes in the business during those 42 years. She has seen the Justin name flower into the widely diversified Justin Industries, encompassing Justin, Tony Lama and Nocona boot companies; Acme Brick Company; Featherlite Building Products Corporation; Ceramic Cooling Tower Company; Tradewinds; and Northland Publishing.

She has also seen much of the boot-making business turned over to highly efficient computers and stitching machines.

But at Justin, where hand-crafted boots are made, much has remained the same during Eddie Kelly's years in the business. Lemonwood pegs are still used in the sole. So is the steel shank, the stitching and the leather.

Eddie Kelly has worked to take a product, essentially made the same way it was more than a century ago, and to find fresh ideas.

"The biggest challenge is to fine new exotics," she explained. "Nowadays, they're either on the endangered species list or getting too small because they're hunting them younger and younger." Some of her experiments with new exotics have included ocean bass, turkey...and the codfish.

She's also experimented with a multitude of different stitching patterns and colors. The patterns have ranged from a simple inlaid bucking bronco, to the intricate boot custom-made for pitching ace Nolan Ryan, with an inlaid baseball embla-oned with "300 wins" plus the logos of the four teams for which Ryan has blazed fastballs. "That was really a neat-looking boot," she said with pride. Other creations included the simple shoe-boot made for singer Michael Jackson and the elaborate elephant tiger-head boots made for circus animal trainer Gunther Goebel-Williams.

Those special boots were made the same as thousands of her creations -- stitched into a leather pattern on her office sewing machine.

Every year, she has helped Justin put 80 to 100 new styles on the market. And for every boot idea that made it production, another 49 never made it past her sewing machine.

A true perfectionist, Eddie said she would work a stitch over and over until she was satisfied. "If I don't do something juuuuuust right, I have to do it over," she said.

Recently, her strong hands turned over the designing reins at Justin. She plans to travel extensively, spend more time at her hobby of making clothes, and "throw away my alarm clock." Still, she said it's painful to leave Justin Boot Company.

"The people here have been so good to me," she said, gazing wistfully off into the distance. "I know it's time to go, but it's still hard."

Modern Education

"What has your boy learned at school so far this term?"

"He has learned that he'll have to be vaccinated, that his eyes aren't really mates, that his teeth need repairing, and that his method of breathing is entirely obsolete."

New Computer Training Center Open At A&M

Agricultural producers, consumers families and community leaders in West Texas are gaining a modern new training facility here, designed to make the personal computer a more useful tool in planning and managing their operations.

The Texas A&M University System Computer Training and Education Center will be formally activated during an open house from 10:30 a.m. until noon April 19. The center is in the specially renovated Moody Building at the Halfway center of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, 10 miles west of Plainview on U.S. Hwy. 70.

The center has been designed and equipped with individual computer work stations and the latest software and audio-visual teaching equipment. It will provide hands-on training in a variety of computer applications for producers, county officials, homemakers and community leaders.

The open house will begin with remarks by State Rep. James E. "Pete" Laney. A Hale County producer, he is chairman of the board of trustees of the High Plains Research Foundation, a privately-funded, non-profit research and education entity supporting agriculture in the area. Dr. Jackie Smith Texas Agricultural Extension Service agricultural economist and management specialist, will explain the role of the center.

The facility results from a cooperative effort of the three A&M System units--the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and West Texas State University--and the High Plains Research Foundation. Faculty of Texas Tech University's College of Agricultural Sciences also will use and support the center.

Laney and Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter of College Station, state director of the Extension Service which will operate the computer center, agree the facility will open new opportunities for area farmers, ranchers, families, business and community leaders.

"Farmers and ranchers in the High Plains are among the most progressive and innovative in Texas," Laney said. "The personal computer has become a common and invaluable tool for these producers, yet we are just beginning to tap the resources it provides.

"The board of the High Plains Research Foundation has felt for some time that the available Moody Building at the Halfway research facility could best be used as a computer training and education center where the resources and expertise of the Texas A&M University, the Extension Service, the Experiment Station, West Texas State University and Texas Tech University can be readily marshaled," Laney said.

"This facility will make it possible for West Texas producers to receive the most current training and learn the latest agricultural applications without inconvenience or untimely absence from their operations," Laney added.

"I am excited about the opening of this computer training and education center and the potential it offers for helping farmers, ranchers and agribusinessmen in the High Plains area with the management of their operations," Carpenter said.

"This facility will provide individuals with hands-on training in the use of various computer programs to help manage their operations more efficiently and effectively," he said.

"Such training will deal with record keeping, financial management, and other management functions to enhance decision making and will be practical and oriented to crop and livestock enterprises in the region," Carpenter said.

Carpenter noted that the center is the second such facility in the state where producers can receive practical training in the use of microcomputers. The Stiles Farm Computer Center at Thrall in Williamson County has been in operation for about three years. Some 2,500 farmers and ranchers have taken part in computer training programs there.

In addition, the Extension Service offers computer training short courses at various locations over the state.

Library News

By Anne Camp

Thousands of volunteers joined First Lady Barbara Bush on Wednesday, April 17 to celebrate the Day of the Young Reader. The American Library Association sponsored the event as a special emphasis during the Year of the Lifetime Reader, 1991. This special celebration brought volunteers into the school and public libraries across the nation to encourage children to begin the habit of reading. These "celebrity readers" shared a story with children and explained how reading is important to them as adults.

"Each child at Dillman Elementary School was fortunate enough to get to hear at least one special reader during the day's activities," said Virginia Bowers, librarian.

Business people, professionals, and school personnel participated in this event in an effort to help children see the importance of reading as a lifetime activity.

Those volunteers who came to school to read to children and share their love of reading were Stacy Conner, Susan Copeland, Barbara Finney, Gayla Gear, Helen Grigsby, Jim Hailey, Terry Hutto, Nancy Kidd, Max King, Frankie Lunsford, Linda Marr, Nelda Merriott, Bill Moore, Bary Moynihan, Georgia Bena, Dick Pylant, Magann Rennels, Jim Stewart, David and Liz Tipps, Darrell Turner and Elizabeth Watson.

Dillman Elementary Librarian Virginia Bowers sponsored this reading celebration at Dillman Elementary and encourages parents to use this as a springboard to begin family reading times at home to encourage children in their reading.

The students at Dillman Elementary thank all the volunteers who shared their time and love of reading with them.

The Women's Country Club Association met Wednesday, April 17th for their monthly Jeanetta Precure, presided over the business meeting. Sherri Shipman gave the secretary report and called the roll. Yolonda Bell gave the treasurer's report. We had one new member, Francis Bland. The ladies having birthdays in April were Evelyn Riley, Yolonda Bell, and Pamela Miller. We had one guest, Pam Atwood, guest of her mother, Martha Young.

All committees made their reports. Linda Elder, our Hi-

Plains chairman, reported that four ladies went to Hereford for our Hi-Plains playday this month. They were Cookie Bamert, Analita Haley, Argilee Millen, and Linda Elder. Linda won one point for us by winning low net of the field with a score of 73. We were proud of her for such good play on that windy, windy day. The next Hi-Plains playday is in Canyon May 8th.

Helen Templeton, our playday chairman, gave out awards for this last month. She gave awards to Claudine Elliott and Yolonda Bell, for the longest drive on No. 8 hole, March 27 th. Helen announced that on next month's luncheon day, May 15th, we will have our annual Naomi-Marie Memorial tournament. She urged everyone to play that day.

Our raffle winner was Argilee Millen.

divisional championships, which would draw up to 100 cars.

They said the city owns bleachers which could be moved to the site for spectators, and said civic clubs and non-profit organizations would be contacted to see if they were interested in maintaining gate control, parking and the concession area.

Gate fees would go, at least partially, back to the organization who provides the services.

It was further explained that the timed-race events are entered by everyone from the shade-tree mechanic to the big city lawyer. They will also bring a lot of support people, and out of town officials.

After much discussion, the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture agreed to sponsor the Muleshoe Grand Prix and named David Tipps chairman of the project.

Most of the entry fees would go back to the entrants in the form of trophies. It is expected that locally-raised money will pay for the insurance and other, minor expenses involved in holding the racing event.

Muleshoe CofC President Robert Montgomery said "We all agree we're excited about this. We all agree a lot of details need to be worked out and we now need to sit down and work out logistics to conduct the timed races in Muleshoe. This can be a very big deal for our town."

"We all know we're here to help boost Muleshoe, and this will be a very good opportunity to bring outside money into town, and perhaps build on for bigger races in future years."

Before going on to other Chamber business, the CofC President, Montgomery, made a presentation of a plaque on behalf of the board of directors of the CofC to Clea Williams-Jacobson, Journal editor, who is moving next weekend to Post.

24.33 percent over their April 1990 payment of $6,608.80. To date for the year, Friona has increased by 10.42 percent. They show they had received $33,870.51 through April last year, compared to their current payments to date which total $37,400.96.

"There are several reasons for this year's increases," Sharp said. "In addition to steady economic growth throughout the state over the past year, some cities raised their sales tax rate since last February, and more counties now collect sales tax."

"Providing another welcome boost to local revenues has been the amnesty program associated with Project Fair Pay, a highly-successful effort conducted by the Comptroller's office during February and March to collect unpaid taxes," Sharp said. Based upon information from the Federation of Tax Administrators in Washington, D. C., Project Fair Pay's amnesty program was the most successful of its kind in the nation.

"The amnesty program has brought $75 million in uncollected taxes into the State Treasury. Some of this money represents unpaid local sales taxes and is being allocated to city, county and other local taxing jurisdictions," Sharp said.

Sharp sent local sales tax rebate checks totaling $82.1 million to 958 Texas towns and cities, an increase of 23 percent over last April's payments of $66.98 million. City sales tax rates range from one percent to two percent.

The city of Houston received $13.51 million, the largest payment in the state. Dallas received the second largest payment, $8.8 million. San Antonio's check for $4.8 million was the third largest in the state, and Austin followed with $3.56 million.

Checks to county governments totaled $9.23 million, up 31 percent from last April's payments of $7.06 million.

Voters in 105 of Texas' 254 counties have now approved collection of the one-half percent county sales tax, while voters in Uvalde County have approved an additional one-half percent for county health services. Last year, only 100 counties collected sales tax.

Checks were also sent to three of the state's hospital districts which began collecting sales tax in January. Payments to hospital districts located in Baylor, Ector and Reeves counties totaled $567,022.

Businesses collect the state's six and one quarter percent state tax and all local sales taxes and send them to the Comptroller's Office with their tax returns. Businesses file returns, monthly, quarterly or annually, depending on the amount of sales tax they collect. The state then retains its share and rebates cities, counties and other taxing entities their local portion of the sales tax.

All local sales taxes must be approved by area voters. Most local governments deposit the money in their General Fund and use it for services such as fire fighting, road maintenance and law enforcement.

have first hand experience, the expertise and the buying power to assist the smaller hospitals. He reminded that if all the small hospitals close, there is no way the larger hospitals in cities could handle the patient load.

Larger facilities don't want the smaller hospitals to close down.

"Out of all the closures in the state of Texas of hospitals, a few hospitals have attempted to re-open and have failed. Not many succeed," added Mason. "None has succeeded like Muleshoe."

"The Muleshoe hospital is known throughout the state. The Muleshoe hospital has made all the medical news. It is well-known how the community pulled together and re-opened the hospital and have kept it open to the successful hospital you have today."

"Methodist Hospital is very happy to be associated with the Muleshoe Hospital."

Mason said that by polling resources, networking and communicating with each other, is what will be happening 'from this day forward.'

"We will all have to be working together, providing access to health care."

Since other smaller hospitals have seen the success of first, Levelland, then Muleshoe, with their affiliations with Methodist Hospital, are determining to join in affiliation with larger hospitals.

"To be successful, it will take the commitment of working together," said the Methodist spokesman. "Time will pull the medical facilities together. Use of the helicopter is another way to draw people together to provide faster, more efficient health care," he continued.

Mason talked about the purchasing power Muleshoe Area Medical Center had obtained through the affiliation with Methodist. The management lease operation helps Muleshoe get better prices for supplies.

"You've done a wonderful job in Muleshoe," concluded the speaker. "You have excellent doctors, a wonderful staff and board. You are very fortunate to have each of them."

Mason then answered several questions asked by members of the Rotary.

Dr. Bruce Purdy, Rotary president, concluded with a few remarks about the hospital and local health care.

Before Mason's talk, Dr. Purdy reminded that the Rotary District Conference is the last weekend of this month. He also briefly discussed the upcoming car show, scheduled for Saturday, June 1, at the Bailey County Coliseum and said a decision on the student scholarship would be made next week.

Jess Winn was winner of the Polio Plus drawing.

Visiting Rotarian was Bill Grisham from the Downtown Lubbock Club. Other visitors were Jim Childers, Lubbock; and Regena Clarkson, Rotary Ann.

From The Senate

By: Teel Bivins

You can't serve in the Legislature without having a good sense of humor. The seriousness and enormity of the issues facing the members of the Legislature on a daily basis can be overwhelming. A good laugh now and then is what keeps most of us sane.

The most intense debate of the 72nd Legislative Session has of course centered around public school finance. The pressure reached its highest point on March 27th, while the House was debating the public school finance bill.

Faced with the reality that there were not enough votes to pass the bill, Speaker of the House Gib Lewis made a proposal to a group of House members. His proposal was to allow the House to vote first on a constitutional amendment proposed by Rep. John Culberson (R-Houston) that would essentially put in the Constitution language that would make our current system of financing public education constitutional. The deal was if the constitutional amendment carried by the necessary hundred votes that would end it. If, however, the amendment was voted down, the proposal would require a number of members to come over and vote for the public school finance bill as it came out of conference committee.

The group was aware that Sen. Carl Parker (D-Port Arthur) had stated on numerous occasions that he was unalterably opposed to the Culberson Constitutional amendment. In fact, Sen. Parker said that such an amendment would only pass the Senate "over his dead body." The group replied to the Speaker that they would accept his proposal on two conditions. First, that he could guarantee them that the Culberson amendment would pass the Senate. Second, that Carl Parker would in fact die! So the Culberson constitutional amendment was not put to a vote that day.

Sen. Parker, never wanting to come up on the short end of a barbed verbal exchange, responded to the House vote that killed SB 351 later the same day by saying "a combination of the no-nothin's and the do-nothin's killed the bill."

While such levity has its place in the legislative process, no one should get the idea that members of the Legislature don't take their responsibilities very seriously. This issue in particular is one of the most serious faced by the Legislature in many years. It is for that reason that I filed a bill that would call for a constitutional amendment to allow the people of Texas to speak once and for all on the question of how public education should be funded in this state. If the people of this state are not allowed to speak on this critical issue, we are doomed to the fate of New Jersey and California, where lawsuits have raged for decades over this very question.

Unlike Rep. Culberson's amendment, my proposed constitution amendment would not just ratify the current system. My amendment would assure that there is an equalized funding system, but just as importantly, that unequalized enrichment would be allowed on top of an equalized system. Good constitutional policy demands that the Legislature and not the courts determine the elements of an equalized system. Therefore, my amendment places with the Legislature the responsibility to determine what amount of funding per student per penny of tax effort we would equalize to, and the maximum equalized tax rate above which unequalized enrichment can exist. It is important that the Legislature be left to decide these important questions, because the answers are not static; they change over time. Putting static numbers into the constitution is simply bad public policy. Constitutions are meant to provide a framework within which a legislative body can respond to the ever-changing needs of the society.

The many sides to this intractable issue have become polarized. That will make it very difficult to pass any type of constitutional amendment through the Legislature. However, that does not diminish the need for such an amendment nor my willingness to work for its passage.

Carla Hills, U.S. Trade Representative (on proposed free trade treaty with Mexico): "We don't expect farmers anywhere to be able to adjust overnight."

TSTA Approves Comptroller's Silver Snout Award

"Officials of the school employees' retirement fund should show at least as much compassion for pensioners who dedicated their lives to serving public education as they do to their ailing plants," said Ollie Besteiro, president of the Texas State Teachers Association.

The state's largest teacher organization hailed the action of Comptroller John Sharp who today awarded his "inaugural Silver Snout" award to officials of the Teacher Retirement System (TRS) for spending more than $700,000 on expensive furniture, extravagant artwork, fancy china, top-notch exercise equipment and even a greenhouse for "the rehabilitation of ailing plants."

Said Besteiro, "Officials of the Retirement System have no business living like millionaires while thousands of retired teachers and school employees are living like paupers."

Besteiro said she is delighted that Comptroller Sharp has acted on TSTA's suggestion that TRS officials were "indulging in some excesses" at their Austin headquarters building.

"It is outrageous that the TRS has consistently resisted benefit improvements that TSTA and others have proposed over the years while its own executives surround themselves in luxury, including a first-class health and fitness center that TRS members can't use," said the TSTA President.

Among the TRS executives' excesses uncovered by the Comptroller's office is $50,000 worth of fitness and exercise machines for the use of TRS staff members and a $43,000 expenditure for plants and a greenhouse that TRS brochure describes as necessary "for the rehabilitation of ailing plants."

Besteiro said, "We are extremely pleased that the Comptroller of the State of Texas is in full agreement with TSTA's conviction that TRS officials' top priorities must be the integrity of the pension fund and the well-being of its members -- and not acquiring all the trappings of the 'rich and famous' with taxpayers' money and at retirees' expense."

Energas Asks Rate Increase

Energas Company today notified the 66 incorporated communities on its West Texas Distribution System that the company intends to implement an increase of approximately six percent in its overall revenues effective May 24, 1991. The company has also proposed to increase its service charges.

The annual increase to an average residential customer using 96 Mcf of natural gas per year would be approximately $27.72, or seven percent.

About 211,000 customers are affected in an area extending from Pampa, Hereford and Lubbock to Midland and Odessa. Such customers include all sales customers who are not on irrigation or special industrial contracts with the company. This rate request will not affect customers in the communities of Amarillo, Dalhart, Channing, Fritch, Sanford or Ozona.

By law, Energas is entitled to recover its cost of service through its rates and charges to customers. Those costs include cost of gas purchased for distribution, operation and maintenance expenses, depreciation expenses, taxes and a reasonable rate of return on rate base.

The overall rate of return being requested by Energas in the current filing is 12.13 percent.

The last rate adjustment filed by Energas for the West Texas

Distribution System was in 1984 and the subsequent increase of approximately 17 cents per Mcg was effective November 1, 1984.

While Energas has been able to hold cost increases to a level well below general inflation rates since the last rate request, the increased investment in plant additions made since 1984 and operating cost increases have created the need for additional revenue.

Bailey County Food Box Board Thanks Donors

The board of directors of the Bailey County Food Box met Friday, April 5, at the Trade Winds Plaza building. Members attending were Jim Hartline, Josie Pedroza, Bettie Moore, Betty Griswold and Sharon Platt.

Among the items discussed was need to appoint a treasurer. It was decided that Phoebe Davison, executive director of the Food Box, would be appointed to this position.

Also discussed were plans to establish by-laws under which the Food Box would operate. It was decided to seek advice and assistance on this matter, and to discuss it further at the next meeting.

Activity reports for February and March showed that 18 families were served by the Food Box during each of those months.

Operation hours for the Food Box are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday of each week.

The Bailey County Food Box said they would like to remind the public that the Food Box receives no funding of any kind, and is operated totally by volunteers. The only way they can continue to operate is through donations. They will accept donations of food, cash, clothing, books and magazines, or anything else that can be used by the needy.

Anyone wishing to make a donation may call the Bailey County Food Box at 272-5130 and the items will be picked up.

We know the EMS in that area will be gaining a very dedicated worker.

QUARTERLY REPORT ON AMBULANCE RUNS
A review of the calls for January through March is as follows:

January, 42; February, 34; and March 42, for a total of 118; or an average of 39.3 calls per month.

Seventy-three of the calls were emergencies; 22 were transfers to other hospitals; 23 persons refused to be transported.

By age: 0-18, 11 patients; 19-60, 35 patients; and 60 and over, 65 patients.

EMS Week will be observed May 12-18. More on this as time nears.

Bailey County EMS Organization met last Thursday to discuss ongoing projects of the organization and the pending purchase of new equipment.

Reporter Joyce McGehee reported the following items and projects discussed.

HOUSE MARKING PROJECT
Current project is the house marking project. Several citizens have sent in requests to have their curbs or houses marked by the EMS.

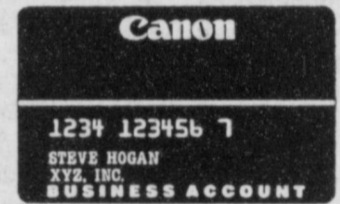

The EMS Organization urges any interested persons to send in, or call in their request to 272-4390. Work will begin in the near future.

ALUMINUM CAN PROJECT
This ongoing project is still bringing in many cans. The money from this project will be used to purchase equipment for the ambulance service. More about the equipment at a later date.

A SAD FAREWELL
The EMS is losing a good friend and worker. Joe Don Prather and his wife, Pam, and their children are moving to Conroe, Texas, where Joe Don has assumed the duties of Highway Maintenance Foreman.

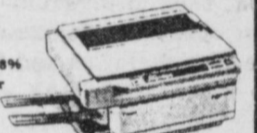

We at the EMS wish Joe Don and his family all the best.

Letter To The Editor

To the Editor:
 I am writing this letter to speak out for a great natural resource of our country that is grossly unutilized by our society. That resource is those who are 65 and over, those who are by our society expected to be retired. We live in a society that dictates to us what is of value. We hear on the radio and see on the all-knowing television that youth is the virtue of greatest value. Society tells us that we are free, yet are we truly free from the overwhelming expectations and roles set on us by the very system that tells we are free. Society tells us when we are supposed to go to school, when to marry, work and then retire. It is that we live our entire life up until 65 to learn how to sit back and remember our past life? No, we live our life and meanwhile, learn how to live. It is said that youth is wasted on the young. This is so very true because with age, there is wisdom. We should tap into this natural, God given plentiful resource of age. Let us not allow society to dictate to us when we are to retire. We don't live to retire at sixty-five, we live each day of our life in order to make the next day a little better, whether we are 25 or 90. The time has arrived for society to remember the significant meaning in the Ten Commandments, "Honor your father and your mother that your days may be long." Those who are sixty-five and older don't deserve the title, "retired", but instead, they deserve the title, "honored".
 Sincerely-
 DaLynn Krebbs

Kiwanis News

 By R.A. Bradley

Fourteen Kiwanians, three honorary Kiwanians, Jon Keith Turner, Robby Clapp and Chad Johnson, and two guests, Jeff Lewis and Terry Hutto, and Sweetheart Marsha in person What's Her Name Wilson, met Friday morning at the Dairy Queen.

We were kidding Terry Hutto about becoming a member -- Terry's reply was "no way, not even if you paid my dues would I get up this early." Terry, this is the best part of the Golden Spread Day. Try it, you might like it.

President Glen Morris called the meeting to order. Jerry Hutton led the Club in the pledge to our flag and the invocation was given by Hugh Young.

Bryan Morris, who was given the friendship coin last week because he was quiet, and couldn't remember his girlfriend's name, decided that he would show Marsha that she could find a friend in Muleshoe, so Bryan gave the friendship coin to Marsha.

Marsha, you cannot spend that coin to go looking for a "Boyfriend." As all know that Marsha went to Dallas to find a boyfriend. She didn't have much luck.

She did find a boy with a "Porsche," but being a country girl, she didn't understand -- she didn't want to sit in a swing on a "porch."

Marsha, we will run an ad here in Muleshoe for you. If anyone is interested in being Marsha's boyfriend, contact one of the Kiwanis Club members.

Marsha went to Dallas last week to enter the Miss Texas Homecoming Queen. Marsha was first runner-up. If for any reason, the young lady who won cannot carry out her duties, then Marsha will finish out the year.

We are not wishing the young lady who won any bad luck, and I will not quote Marsha, but maybe Marsha will be able to represent Texas. Marsha, congratulations, you already know you are our Queen.

Since today was the first day of our membership drive contest, President Glen gave the scores. Team #1 had four points-Team #2-six points and Team #3 had a minus 36 points.

Glen stated last week that anyone messing with the president's material, there would be a deduct of points.

Larry, you better bring your rattlesnake to guard Glen's material. I will not give a hint as to whom is messing with Glen's material, but everyone knows that Bryan Morris and Larry Parker are both on Team #3 and they sit close to the President.

Terry Hutto gave the program this morning. Terry is president of the Muleshoe Youth Baseball. Terry reported that 300 young people have signed up, plus the youth from Lazbuddie.

They will have to organize two new teams this year.

There are 120 boys and girls in T-ball alone. They are going to need to build some new parks.

There will be a girls' softball league. There will also be a Pony League, which will do lots of traveling.

They are trying to get all of the teams organized and started by May.

Terry, thanks to you and all of the Muleshoe Youth Baseball members for the hard work you do.

If anyone is interested in helping coaching, umpiring, or in any way, please contact Terry Hutto.

Thanks, Terry, for a good program.

BOWSER and Friend

Who would ever think that these arch enemies could share an afternoon rest? Bowser doesn't mind being a pillow for his friend; and the sleepy cat is quite willing to forget their age-old quarrel in exchange for a soft mattress.

How much this peaceful scene differs than the one our expression "cat and dog fight" brings to mind. How easy it is to forget that patience and earnest endeavor can bring together the most bitter of enemies. If we learn only one lesson from Bowser and his friend; let it be that all petty hatreds and jealousies can be overcome by an understanding of the other fellow's point of view. There is no other place that can sow the seed of mutual respect so deeply in our hearts than God's house. For every church is built upon the foundation of love for our fellow man. Go to church and take your family.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond in that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society of way of life will long preserve and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it is the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

U.S.-Mexico Trade Talks Continuing

By Kathleen Davis
If U.S. trade talks with Mexico fall short, the stumble may be over non-tariff barriers on agriculture products. "These barriers may be less visible, but they probably are more restrictive and harder to negotiate away," said Dr. Gary Williams, Texas Agricultural Market Research Center coordinator. "There are significant barriers that have to be met, such as regulations on health, safety, pesticides and plant diseases."

Researchers at the center, headquartered at Texas A&M University, are conducting a sweeping study of the potential impact of a free trade pact with Mexico on U.S. agriculture.

Although agriculture is one of the major elements of a trade agreement, few, if any, U.S. studies thus far have assessed the likely consequences of an accord on the multi-billion dollar industry. The three-part Texas A&M study, scheduled for completion this year, will do that.

Te researchers already have compiled a data base of Mexican agriculture. Team members now are preparing papers on several U.S. farm products and related issues such as tax implications, transportation, water, labor and regulations. Phase three will use computer modeling to measure the impact on both countries.

U.S. trade talks with Mexico could begin by June if Congress grants "fast-track" negotiating authority, Williams said.

"We need to identify the issues and now what segments in agriculture are likely to gain or lose" before an agreement is finalized, said Williams, who also is a member of the Texas Department of Agriculture's free trade advisory panel.

Among the priority issues for U.S. agriculture, the researchers said, are:

•Gainers and losers from free trade with Mexico.

•Statewide impacts with particular concern on border economies.

•Transportation and infrastructure.

•Non-tariff barriers.

•Water and environmental concerns.

•Labor.

•Agricultural finance and investment, and •Agricultural industry input to negotiations.

Of these, the non-tariff barriers on agriculture may be the turning point in the success of any agreement between the two countries.

"Differences on these issues could well prevent a free trade agreement of any kind or simply lead to the exclusion of much of agricultural trade from the agreement," according to a background report co-authored by Williams and Dr. C. Parr Ross III, a Texas Agricultural Extension Service, international trade and marketing economist.

Williams noted that both countries have non-tariff measures that restrict agricultural trade.

Mexico requires an import license on some fresh produce and grains, for example, which can be used to restrict trade during peak U.S. harvests.

Mexico also has some trucking regulations, export taxes of up to 60 percent on its cattle, and much less stringent laws governing use of agricultural chemicals.

The United States, on the other hand, maintains citrus import quarantines on several Mexican states to avoid problems with citrus canker and fruit flies that could harm the U.S. crop. Also, U.S. Marketing orders for some fruits and vegetables are considered by the Mexicans to restrict trade because of the minimum grade standards that must be met to enter the United States.

Williams said the complexity of these and other agricultural issues could hinder an overall agreement. Commodity groups and related industries most likely to feel the impact should become involved in the trade talks by providing input to the negotiators, he said.

The Texas A&M study will be provided to the Texas Department of Agriculture panel, which will then forward recommendations to U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills.
