ELDORADO WOOL IS MOVING

The Eldorado Wool Company sold a carload of six and eight months wool to Forte, Dupee & Sawyer late last week at an average price of 19 1/2 cents.

The Eldorado firm consigned to Wright Brothers approximately 125,000 pounds of twelve months wool last week at advances reported to be 20 cents per pound.

The warehouse now has on hand around 750,000 pounds of clip.

CATTLE BUYING NEARS END IN SCHLEICHER

7,800 cattle have been appraised to date in Schleicher county on the government cattle buying program. 1700 of this number have been condemned as unfit for human food. 151 contracts have been made with the government. $78,467 is due this county for contracts already fulfilled; and according to announcement made late yesterday by those in charge of the program, that amount is already in the mail. $3,000 has already been received in this county.

Cattle buying in Schleicher county is almost completed but it is estimated that possibly 500 more head would be sold.

It was reported early this week that I. W. Ellis of Tom Green county would replace W. C. Jones as appraiser in Schleicher county. The Success found the report to be untrue. Jones will remain in Schleicher county as an appraiser until cattle buying is over.

Dr. Richardson of Mason has replaced C. M. Lindley of Odessa as veterinarian in Schleicher county.

Tent Revival Attracting Large Crowds

Large crowds have been gathering each night at the tent across the street from the Utilities company to hear Evangelist Raymond C. Wilson, Baptist, of San Angelo. To date there have been four professions and three reclamations.

A series of prophetic messages were ended Tuesday night with a sermon on "Return of Christ and Meeting in the Air." The evangelist's subject for tonight is to be "Brought Home in a Casket," and Saturday night, "The Roll Call of Hell."

Street services will be held Saturday afternoon at 3:45 in front of the McWhorter Building. The preacher is scheduled to preach for the San Angelo Heights Baptist church Sunday morning, but will return to Eldorado for Sunday night services.

The meeting will close August 23. Services are being held each day at 10:00 a. m. in the Methodist church.

Eldorado Coach Boasts Good Record

Coach Dave Williamson has made a very remarkable record since he has been in Eldorado. In five years he has won the sectional title twice, the district once, and the bi-district once. He has compiled a record that boasts forty victories, and three ties out of a total of fifty-six games. He has put a winning team on the field each year. Williamson has been knocking at the door of the regional trophy; but though he lacked only one game in 1933, he has failed to take off the regional yet. However, he expects to bring the regional trophy to Eldorado in the near future.

Williamson came to Eldorado in 1928. He produced a team that was considered to be one of the best in West Texas that year; and though not in the interscholastic league, he used eligible players. Sonora, Ozona, and Junction refused to play the strong aggregation that year; and in order to get competition, Coach Williamson was forced to play such strong teams as Del Rio, Eden, and Big Lake. The season ended with ten wins and two losses, the losses being to Daniel Baker freshmen and to Big Lake.

Coach Williamson went from here to Eldorado, Ark. in 1929 but returned

JUDGE RUNGE SPEAKS HERE LAST FRIDAY

IN IMPRESSIVE WORDS AND CONVINCING MANNER, JUDGE CARL RUNGE OF MASON, A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS FROM THE NEW 21ST DISTRICT, TOLD THE VOTERS OF SCHLEICHER COUNTY LAST FRIDAY THAT HE FAVORED BETTER EDUCATION, SUPPRESSION OF CRIME, AND LOWER TAXES. HE ALSO ADDED THAT HE WAS IN FAVOR OF PAYMENT OF THE BONUS BILL IF SUCH COULD POSSIBLY BE DONE.

Judge Runge explained that he had no extensive platform and no promises to make but that he would meet all situations as they arose and solve them with the interests of the people uppermost in his mind. He explained that he was well acquainted with the affairs and needs of the people over the district and was fitted to serve their best interests.

"I have been accused of being rich by some and of being poor by others," Judge Runge said. "The truth of the matter is that I am in the same boat with everybody else. I was accused of not paying my taxes one year. I have always paid all of my taxes every year except on a hotel building in Mason in which I have a partner. I could have raised my part of the taxes, possibly, but my partner couldn't. Because the government naturally had first lien on the building because of taxes, we (my partner and I) paid the grocery bill for the hotel and let the taxes go. The grocer needed his money; the government was getting six percent on their money, but the grocer wasn't, and since we couldn't pay both, we paid the grocer."

Judge Runge told the voters that he carried 20 of the 27 counties and was not last in any county in the district.

"I am running on the same platform as before," the Judge stated. "I have not changed it one bit."

Judge Runge stated that he had the ranchman's and farmers interests at heart. Before closing, Judge Runge warned the voters to beware of last minute tales which might appear in the campaign. He also urged the voters not to neglect their right to vote in the run-off.

Rudd Revival Is Attracting Large Crowds

The Methodist revival which is being held by Rev. P. S. Connell, pastor of the Eldorado Methodist church, has been attracting large crowds during the past two weeks. A service is held at 5:00 p. m. followed by an old fashioned supper on the ground. A one hour recreational period is given and at 8:00 p. m. another service is held. Much interest is being shown in the revival and reports are that Brother Connell is a very interesting speaker. Services in the revival will continue through next Sunday.

There will be three services next Sunday, Brother Connell announced.

ROCK SPRINGS CAVE GREATER THAN CARLSBAD CAVERN

A cave, recently discovered at Rock Springs, has been explored by the noted Dr. Nicholson who explored the famous Carlsbad Cavern. Dr. Nicholson states that the cave, known as "Devil's Sinkhole" is far greater and more magnificent than Carlsbad.

The cave, when developed and opened to tourists, will bring thousands of tourists through Eldorado from the north, east and west, and will do much to help business in this section of the country. The town of Carlsbad, New Mexico, a beautiful little city of some five thousand people, thrives on trade attracted by the huge caves there.

Big Rodeo Slated At Pecan Station

KOY AND MCCROHAN IN MATCH ROPING

According to C. C. Townsend, the rodeo which is to be held at Pecan Station on Thursday and Friday, August 23 and 24, will be one of the best rodeos staged in this part of the country this year.

"We have the best rodeo pens and first class chutes," Mr. Townsend said, "and we are planning a big time for those who attend our rodeo."

Managers Dan Utley and Dick Nasworthy reported that there will be calf roping for a $100 prize, bronc riding for big money, professional goat roping for a jackpot, bulldogging, steer riding, and other rodeo features. Amateur roping contests for a jackpot will be provided each morning for nonprofessionals who want to pick a partner. The feature event of the rodeo is a $100 match roping between Jess Koy of Eldorado and Dan McCrohan of Christoval.

Dan Utley, a manager of the rodeo, and Harold Jackson, both of whom have recently returned from London, England where they staged several professional rodeos, will both be at the Pecan station rodeo. They state that they will probably do some exhibition riding but that they will not enter any of the contests. Dan Utley is considered to be among the world's best riders.

Mr. Townsend stated that there will not be a free barbecue but that there will be plenty of eats at Pecan station for those who attend the rodeo. Free camp grounds will be provided for those who wish to spend the night at the rodeo grounds. Some three thousand or more people are expected to attend the rodeo. Two big days have been planned for all who attend the affair, and Schleicher county people have a special invitation to see their own product, Mr. Koy, beat Dan McCrohan in the match roping, Mr. Townsend states. The price has been placed within the reach of all.

J. H. Glenn Leases Bailey Ranch Gin

J. H. Glenn, formerly a ginmer in Eldorado, has made announcement to his friends and customers that he has leased the Bailey Ranch Gin from John McLeod, former operator of the gin. Mr. McLeod states that he will have the gin in first class shape for coming season and that he will be in position to render even better service to his friends and customers this season than he has done in the past.

REV. E. E. DAWSON TO PREACH HERE SUNDAY

W. L. Hillard of Taft, Texas was here Thursday in behalf of the candidacy of James V. Allred. Mr. Hillard is chairman of the county judge and commissioners association of Texas. Mr. Hillard is given credit for blocking the 350,000,000 bond issue of last year.

Mr. Hillard was to have made a speech in Eldorado, but upon hearing that Judge Wilson was speaking here for Allred tonight, Mr. Hillard carried his speaking campaign on to Sonora. He reports, however, that he made a short street corner speech here and converted eight Lishmen and two Scotchmen to Allred's bandwagon.

Judge Whitten Speaks Over KGKL

Declaring that Carl Runge "is qualified by ability and experience," Judge J. A. Whitten of Eldorado declared the Mason man should be elected to See Judge Whitten, page 6.

AFFAIR IN HONOR OF HUMBLE MEN WAS ENJOYABLE

A crowd estimated at near 250 was present at the official opening of the Humble No. 1 Ike Honig. Seventeen goats had been barbecued by Mr. J. W. Yattes for the big event. The affair was planned and given by Ike Honig in honor of the Humble employees and their wives, sweethearts, and friends.

After an enjoyable dinner the crowd gathered around the well to watch the work. It was originally planned to begin rotary operations at the official opening party, but because further work was necessary, operations could not be started. The rotary work is scheduled to begin in earnest this morning.

The Humble Ike Honig, which is located ten feet west of the center line of block M, section 38, G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. survey, to a depth of 609 feet before the casing was set and the rotary rig installed. The deepening process scheduled to begin this morning will be continued from the 609 feet depth at which the well now stands.

RENT HOUSES URGENTLY NEEDED IN ELDORADO

Situation is Acute

Several people have complained to this office recently about the lack of rent houses and apartments in Eldorado. Our town is expanding, but we must give it a better chance to continue to expand. With the government housing bill soon to be effective, some progressive Eldorado citizen should build a few rent or apartment houses.

With new families moving into Eldorado continually, oil field employees, newly married couples hunting apartments, and families moving in for the coming school term, Eldorado's housing problem is growing acute. The town is growing, but we must give it a chance.

Beginning August 13 and ending tomorrow, All Texas has been and will observe Texas Centennial Week, a week set aside in which to boost the Centennial Exposition. Texas 100th birthday, which is being planned for 1936. Governor Ferguson issued a proclamation Monday stating that Centennial week should be observed. All loyal Texans should support the plans for the Centennial and should boost Texas. Lack of space prevents the Success from printing the proclamation, but we are hoping that Eldorado citizens will help make the Centennial Exposition worthy of the state which gives us life.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pearce from Santa Anna are visiting their daughter Mrs. R. D. Holt.

The Eldorado public schools have been scheduled to open on the second Monday in September which will be September 10, according to Superintendent R. D. Holt. The new building will be ready for occupancy by the beginning of the second semester.

Absentee Balloting Opened Wed. Morning

Absentee balloting for Schleicher county began Wednesday morning after several days delay awaiting ballot certification by the state Democratic Committee. The ballot could not be certified by the committee until an official canvass of the election had taken place. The committee met in Dallas last Saturday to certify the ballot and to attend to other matters. Early this week the county committee received the certified ballot and absentee voting is now in order.

Two or three Texas cities began absentee balloting before the ballot was officially certified by the state Democratic Committee, and had there been any changes made after an official canvass, such as might have been in this district in the senate race, such ballots as were cast before certification would have been void.

DAVIS IS DECLARED WINNER

In the closest senatorial race in this district and one of the closest senatorial races ever recorded in Texas politics, Judge E. M. Davis of Brownwood has been officially declared winner of the race by 77 votes over Penrose B. Metcalf of San Angelo. More than 40,000 votes were cast in this race over the sixteen counties comprising the district. Each candidate in the race received more than 20,000 votes and it was not until the official canvass of the ballot was made that a winner was positively picked.

Riding Jess Koy's favorite horse, Barney, Miss Bessie Reynolds is parading the rodeo grounds on the Double Heart Ranch near Sweetwater today as "Miss Eldorado." Miss Reynolds was selected as the proper mount for Koy's beautiful black and white paint. Miss Reynolds is the Eldorado queen at the rodeo which opened yesterday and is to close today. Galloping to the center of the arena as the rodeo officially opened yesterday, Miss Reynolds dismounted, bowed prettily to the large crowd assembled in the grandstand, and remounted. With some twenty-five other sponsors, representing various West Texas cities, Miss Reynolds galloped in figure eight around three barrels. After parading around the arena, first in a walk, then in a trot, all of the "Miss West Texans" concluded the parade with a fast gallop around the arena. The whole event was very graceful and attractive. It drew a such applause from the audience that a similar performance is being given today.

Miss Reynolds, Eldorado's entry in the cowgirls' parade, was dressed in a comely cowgirl costume. Across her shoulders was draped a pennant bearing the words, "Miss Eldorado." Some lucky girl among this group of sponsors, possibly Miss Eldorado, will be awarded a beautiful $150 saddle at the end of today's performance for being the best all-round cowgirl.

MRS. CRAWFORD IS IMPROVED

Mrs. Ernestine Crawford, who underwent a major operation in a San Angelo hospital, is reported to be much improved. It is expected that she will be returned to Eldorado this week end.

THE PHANTOM CHAMPIONSHIP

(A story of love and baseball)

Synopsis

Benjamin White, a rookie pitcher for the Miners who were contenders for the Copper-Belt championship, was making good his first year in league pitching. His only fault was that of wanting money too badly. While he was out "looking for a job on the side," Ben was told that Higgins, manager of the Indians, the team which was contending with the Miners for the championship, wanted to see him. Higgins made White a $10,000 offer if White would throw the game to the Indians. Ben was tempted to take the money when Higgins walked out of the office leaving Ben to his own judgement, good or bad.

CHAPTER II (Continued from last week)

The young pitcher paced the floor nervously, digging the nails of his fingers into the palms of his clenched hands. He halted. He eyed the money hungrily. He picked it up, felt it, tossed it up in his hand, and hesitatingly laid it down on the table again. The show of pain in his eyes became intense—a glowing fire—a consuming greed. The atmosphere of indecision was slowly fading out. A second-rate pathologist could have guessed that Ben was torn between his desire for big money and his sense of honor. He wasn't dramatist enough to cover his tell-tale expressions; nor did he possess the will-power to suppress or control his emotions.

Once more he walked to the door. His hand slowly turned the knob a half-round...and stopped. He hesitated. Abruptly he turned back to the table...a few quick steps...his head up and his eyes closed...the thing he was doing was too odious for his own eyes to see!...he pocketed the money with trembling hands. His heart was almost in his throat, pounding as if it were trying to burst out. He slipped, like a thief, out the back door of the office. It was done.

In the open air he felt more free and could breathe more easily. The possession of a fortune gave him strange feeling of freedom and power—he felt that he had the world at his feet. His worries were soon gone. His first impulse was to find Bill Moore, a pal who lived in the Indians' city. If he could find Bill, they would celebrate a little together with some of the money. He felt that he could afford to celebrate some.

Bill was at home. "Well, gosh! You wouldn't surprise a fellow, would you?" Bill exclaimed when he found Ben at the door. "Come in, old man."

"You wouldn't surprise a fellow either, would you?" Ben instantly absorbed the high-spirited atmosphere that radiated from Bill's personality. "It's just as big a surprise to find you at home as it is for me to come over."

"Well, you see I have company," Bill explained.

"Then maybe I'd better go. I just thought—" Ben was trying to apologize.

"No sir-ee, you got here just at the right time. Come on in. I've been puzzled about entertaining the said company." Bill laughed as he clapped Ben on the shoulder and dragged his hesitant visitor into the house by the arm.

"You see this company is..." Bill winked at Ben knowingly.

"Oh, I see... Now I know I'm..."

"Oh, you're not, old boy. You don't understand... Monna, come here."

The girl who entered the room was more than beautiful to Ben. He thought she was lovely, exquisite, adorable...then he wished he could think of some other word. He felt that he hadn't got it just right yet.

"Mr. White, may I present my consin, Miss Moore." Ben was carried away immediately...dumbfounded, speechless. The girl's brown eyes sparkled as she acknowledged the introduction. Her smile pleased, bewitched Ben. He was so absorbed that he didn't realize she had greeted him. It never entered his mind that that was the proper thing to do. For the first time in his life he was observant. He was making a swift inventory and appraisal of the girl who stood before him: neat figure; soft brown eyes; soft, wavy hair; lovely little round face with an attractive little double chin; soft cupid-bow lips; exquisite nose; graceful movement; and a character that simply shone through. Ben eyed her a second longer. Was that all he could see about her? Yes, that was all... but wasn't that enough? Yes, he thought so. This was the girl he had been looking for...funny he hadn't met her before. No other girl had ever affected him.

The impressions had been formed swiftly, but Ben's absorption had been noticeable. When he realized what he was doing, he could not evade a visible start. He quickly and bluntly acknowledged the introduction while the blood mounted to his cheeks.

Monna was laughing at his embarrassment but there was no ridicule.

"Why haven't you told me about it before?" Ben turned to Bill.

"About what?"

"Oh, about her!" Ben was blundering...his face glowing. "Oh, darnit, you know what I meant."

"Why, she's never been here before," Bill explained.

There was a total lack of the icy atmosphere which usually accompanies introductions. Ben was soon free of his embarrassment, and his awkwardness disappeared.

"Well, what shall we do?" he asked.

"Oh, there's a lot of things doing," Bill commented, "but I'm carrying my girl friend to a dinner, a movie, and a dance."

"Kinda splurging, aren't you?" Ben laughed.

"Well, I want Monna to have a good time while she's here," Bill explained, "and now, son, it looks like the job is up to you."

"O. K. my lad, it's a pleasure," Ben was really pleased. "In fact" he continued, "it's the easiest and most pleasant job I've ever had. A dinner, a movie, and a dance it shall be, and if there's anything else..." he turned to Monna, bubbling over with pleasure. A scene in Higgins' office, less than two hours ago, had already been forgot.

"Oh, that will be more than enough for me," Monna assured. His tone was pleasing.

A dinner, a movie, and a dance it was. Monna proved to be everything that Ben had expected. He thought no one could have lovelier ways and he did not restrain himself in telling her so. It was easy to talk to Monna...she was so responsive. Ben spent most of his time admiring her; nor did she try to avoid his affectionate glances...her personality was above that; but then, Ben wasn't so hard to look at anyway.

Four things had been forgotten: Higgins, a baseball game, a job, and Ben's aversion for "dames." It was the one night of his life; but just like all the good things of life, it came to its end too soon...sometime after one o'clock.

"Bill, old pal, you must come over to see me tomorrow and bring Monna." Ben pleaded as he was leaving. "It's only six miles, you know, and I think we deserve some diversion before the big game Sunday. I'll expect you for lunch."

"We'll be there and you'd better be prepared," Bill warned.

Some Features Of The World's Fair

Northeast of the General Exhibit Hall, near the twelfth street entrance of the fair, the Swiss village, the Chinese pavilion, the Japanese concession, and the Bendix Lama temple are located. The Lama temple is a reproduction of the resplendent shrine, the golden pavilion of Jehol, built in 1767 by emperors of Manchu. It is filled with beautiful carvings and statuary, jewels, and jade. $25,000 worth of gold leaf cover its shingles and no nails were used in its construction. The Swiss village is a beautiful reproduction of an Alpine town. The Chinese concession is filled with over a million dollars worth of beautiful jade and teakwood work. The Jade Pagoda alone is valued at $500,000. The Pagoda is of solid jade, the finest piece of jade art existing, and was sixteen years in the making.

Probably the most universally interesting exhibit at the fair is the Hall of Science, just across the street from the Lama Temple. It would take several days' time to see the exhibits in the Hall of Science and would take years of concentrated study to understand thoroughly all that was exhibited in the Hall of Science. It would be an impossible task to describe in detail the exhibits of scientific nature; and the exhibit can best be described by saying that every modern scientific principle is demonstrated most effectively in the Hall of Science.

As one leaves the Hall of Science to proceed northward, one finds himself on the avenue of flags, a very beautiful highway on whose sides stand brilliantly colored flags which are changed each day. On the south side of the avenue of flags stands the Czechoslovakian and Swedish concessions, the Illinois Host Building, and the Sears Roebuck exhibit with its ideal modern bungalow. On the north side of the avenue of flags is the Italian exhibits, including a complete Venetian glass factory with its expert glass workmen.

This brings us to the Twelfth street or north entrance of the Fair and to the Planetarium bridge which spans the lagoon between the mainland and the island. Next week we will view that part of the Fair which is located on the island.

I took Cardui and was all right again. After I was married, when I felt all run-down and was irregular, I always resorted to Cardui and was helped." ... It may be just what you need. Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. Sold in $1 bottles.

Everywhere, all over the U. S., in every home, there is some old piece of gold, platinum, silver or diamond that could be turned into cash—irrespective of the shape or form these valuables may be.

It is of general knowledge, that the government will buy gold to a certain quantity—and thereafter, all buying will be done at the old prices only. If you have anything of value, old jewelry, broken bits of gold, silver, platinum or diamonds; old dental work containing gold—in fact anything, send it today without fail to the GOLD SMELTING & REFINERY CO., 253 South Broadway, Suite 221, Los Angeles, Calif. EDITORIAL BRIEFS

THE GOHST LETTER

One of Allred's followers has produced the letter which Hunter defied Allred to produce. The letter was written by Hunter, and in it was set forth at length Hunter's ideas on taxes, including a general sales tax. The letter, of course, has been made public with the intention of hurting Mr. Hunter, politically; but as we read the letter, we can see no damaging evidence. Hunter's theme song is that of a more equitable distribution of taxes: lifting the tax burden from the overburdened property owner. He points out in the letter that a sales tax would reach people who do not own property, because people who do not own property but other articles, Hunter also points out that such a tax would be fair in that people generally buy according to their ability to pay and that such a tax would naturally and automatically be apportioned to the people in accordance with their ability to pay.

TAXES

The question of taxes has been a sore spot in political, economic, and social structures ever since government became necessary. There is no such thing as a good, stable government being run without taxes. Taxes are a necessary evil. Our trouble with taxes is that they are not equally and fairly distributed. That class of people who can least afford to pay taxes are now bearing the brunt of the tax load. Everybody ought to be made pay a part of the taxes and the fellow who can pay more easily should bear the brunt of the taxes. We need taxes to run the government and we can not do without a government.

JIM FERGUSON'S VOTES

Some 200,000 staunch Ferguson supporters have a vote coming each election year and just as sure as indications appear that most of those votes will be swung to a certain candidate, opponents of that candidate begin to cry, "Ferguson man." Well, somebody is going to get those 200,000 votes, (Ferguson followers still have the right to vote;) and it appears that Hunter will be the lucky man in the coming election. Allred has started the old cry, "Ferguson man;" but if he were in position to receive Ferguson's support, he would gladly accept it and don't you ever believe he would turn it down. Just because a man is getting Ferguson's support after Ferguson's other chances have faded, is no sign that he is a Ferguson man because Jim is going to support somebody. You can blame anyone for voting and the privilege of voting the way one desires is the greatest of all American privileges.

THE CENTENNIAL

We have said before that we would be doing a great injustice to those who gave life blood for Texas' freedom if we failed to put over a Centennial Exposition; and now that we are assured of its reality, let us say that Texas can put over an exposition as great if not greater than The Century of Progress. Some people may have found it idle to dream of big things and to hitch our wagon to a star, but we have not found it so. We do not always accomplish the big things that we plan, but we have always noticed that unless we planned, we never accomplished even a little thing. People are often too half-hearted in the things that they try to do. Nothing worthwhile was ever accomplished without first working toward, and planning for, it. Let's have a big Centennial—aworthwhile Centennial—a Centennial that will do justice to the greatest state in the United States.

ADVERTISING

A recent survey of several industries showed that a forty percent increase in advertising brought a sixty-five percent increase in business. Advertising is among the ten biggest enterprises in the United States, all of which would not be so if advertising did not pay. The leading brands of cigarettes are the BIG ADVERTISERS; the leading soft drink in America is the BIG ADVERTISER; the leading tire manufacturer is the BIG ADVERTISER. And why are they leading? To answer that simple and obvious question would be an insult to your intelligence. We buy those leading brands because their names are always uppermost in our minds; we have seen them most—we have heard most of them. Advertising.

One company waited for business to pick up before advertising. Business did not pick up. Another company advertised to brush business up and business was forthcoming. Tell the public what you have and what you can do for them and then they will trade with you. It pays to advertise.

OUR HERITAGE

EDITOR'S NOTE: Because of a special request from several of our patrons, we are reprinting this speech editorial, or what-you-may-call-it, as it appeared in the editorial columns of the Success, July 6.

With a general world disaster, commonly known as the depression, what may we ask, is worth salvaging from our present scheme of democracy? It has been said that democracy is a gigantic experiment. Quiet true, and we are now about to discover that much of that experiment has proven a failure. There are a number of things which are radically wrong with our present-day democracy. Some of them are quite obvious; some of them vague.

The greatest thing that the depression has done for us is to open our eyes to the great number of inconsistencies and mistakes in our present form of government. Should we, since we have discovered these errors, give up our hope and our dreams, unrealized, and sit down to await the outcome? Most assuredly not. Should we then turn to communism, socialism and all the many other radical forms of government which have so recently sprung up in the world. Certainly not; but we should watch them with a critical eye; for there is something good to be got from them. We must not forget that democracy was once a radical thing within itself. Even monarchies and autocracies are now considered radical, yet they were once respected.

What now? Even though we realize our failures, must we stick strictly to our present form of government? The answer is no. It will get us nowhere, except into possibly greater depressions, greater crime waves and more complex problems. What then will we salvage from the progress we have made? Must we retain our one hundred fifty year old constitution which has, at present, served its time just because we must be conservative. No. It has its good points and we must accept them, but to retain it intact after we have seen its follies just because there are sentimental values attached to it would be the most unreasonable thing America could do, and we pride our selves in our reasonable, thinking population. We can build a constitution to meet our demands.

Must we still believe in the constitution's basic principle, that all men are born equal, just because we must be conservative. Far from it. We know that all men are not born equal. It is too plain when we see one man succeed while another fails. No, we can devise a new principle.

Then what is worth salvaging from the smoldering ruins of this noble experiment? What will be our heritage when the last will and testament of our present democracy is read? Simply this: The spirit that made our forefathers defy England's unscrupulous hand, the spirit that caused them to venture out in this great experiment of democracy, that is ours for the keeping. Their spirit is our spirit. The attitude and the purpose of those who framed the constitution is good; it is ours to keep as long as America stands. Surely, God knows now, that we need a new conception, but we must conceive it with a spiritual America, free from greed, full of a willingness to help our fellowman. That conception must be interlocked with our present heritage from this noble experiment, democracy; it must be based on that same purpose, it must be wrapped in that same spirit which is our everlasting heritage. Thus we are to evolve a new democracy, a new nation, guided by a new and more perfect constitution, builded by the spirit of 1776 and modeled to suit the needs of 1934.

The territory referred to may, at any time, in whole or in part, be divided into counties in advance of population and attached, for judicial and land surveying purposes, to the most convenient organized county or counties."

Second. Within the territory of any county or counties now existing, the Legislature may by a two-thirds vote of both Houses, create new counties, combine existing counties and parts of counties and abolish existing counties and change county boundaries at will, provided that no new county shall be created with an area of less than nine hundred square miles nor shall any existing county be reduced in area so as to contain less than nine hundred square miles, unless such new county or such remaining county, and both shall have a population of not less than fifty thousand according to the last United States census prior to the date of the creation or change of such county. When any part of a county is stricken off and attached to, or created into another county, the part stricken off shall be holden for and obliged to pay its proportion of all liabilities then existing, of the county from which it was taken, in such manner as may be prescribed by law.
Third. No part of any existing county shall be detached from it and attached to another existing county until the proposition for such change shall have been submitted in such a manner as may be provided by law, to a vote of the electors of both counties and shall have received a majority of those voting on the question in each."

Section 2. The foregoing amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at an election to be held throughout the State on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1934. At this election all voters favoring said proposed amendment shall write or have printed in that ballot the word.

"For the amendment to Section 1 of Article 9 of the Constitution of Texas, providing that the Legislature may by a two-thirds vote of both Houses create new counties and change the boundaries of existing counties."

Those voters opposing said proposed amendment shall write, or have printed on their ballot the words:

"Against the amendment to Section 1 of Article 9 of the Constitution of Texas, providing that the Legislature may be a two thirds vote of both Houses create new counties and change the boundaries of existing counties."

NOTICE!

To my friends and supporters and the entire citizenship of Schleicher county:

As a result of the recent primary, I am leading the ticket for county treasurer of this county. I am deeply grateful for your loyal and splendid vote of confidence. I will appreciate your continued support, and if elected, I assure you that there will be nothing to keep me from being constantly at my post, striving to give you the best of service in the office.

To those friends and supporters who actively worked for me, I wish to express a very deep and keen sense of thanks and gratitude. Being an old timer here and having taught in the schools of this county, I claim the distinction of instilling into the minds of a number of voters of today the fundamental principles of good citizenship.

I feel that I merit first place in the hearts of all my old time friends, also their children whom I have loved and labored with in school. I trust that you will give me that honor.

To my friends who did not support me in the past primary, I wish you to know that with all good will, I acknowledge that privilege—to vote as one sees fit—and I will be very grateful for your support in the next primary.

It shall be my earnest desire, if elected, to so serve the people of this county as to justify the confidence and regard of all those who gave my candidacy their support.

I have a small son to support and educate and I will be deeply grateful to each and every voter who will support me to that end.

Thanking you in advance for any assistance given me,

I am sincerely yours,
Mrs. Mattie Cozzens.

South's Friends Organize To Push Campaign

While Judge Charles L. South of Coleman was carrying on a vigorous campaign for congress, his friends in many sections of the 21st district last week were active for him. Making three to four addresses daily, Judge South stressed his program for relief, distribution of wealth and his stand for a protective tariff.

"I believe our government should use such lands as it now owns, where same is suitable, and acquire such additional lands as may be necessary, for rehabilitating the millions of people who have been forced into every village, town and city throughout this nation where they are receiving government relief," Judge South said. "This land could be sold these people at a fair price, and a low rate of interest charged, thereby giving them a chance again to become self-supporting and self-reliant citizens," he said.

"Like most leaders in our national administration, I am in favor of a fairer distribution of the wealth. I am convinced that where one per cent of the people own 59 per cent of the wealth, hardship and suffering must necessarily follow. I would not destroy legitimate capital which we must always have within reasonable limits to carry on the business of our country. When the wealth is properly managed and distributed every man who is willing to work hard, live economically and deal fairly should be able to provide the necessities and some of the comforts of life for himself and his family.

"And where this cannot be done in a country such as ours, it is probably largely due to the fact that too much of our wealth is owned and controlled by too few people. An intelligent and proper use of the inheritance tax, and income tax particularly the latter, should go a long way toward solving this problem, he said.

"If the great livestock industry in the Southwest, of which our district is a part, is to survive, we must have a protective tariff. I am, therefore, unqualifiedly in favor of a continuation of this law," Judge South asserted.

San Angelo supporters of the candidate opened a South Headquarters there while South-For Congress clubs were formed in both an Angelo and Del Rio. L. J. Wardlaw, leading West Texas ranchman, will make an address for Judge South at Ballinger Saturday night, Aug. 18. Large delegations from Coleman, Brown and Tom Green Counties will attend the rally.

State Health Officer Advises Vaccinations

Austin, Texas, Aug. 15. The schools throughout Texas will soon be opening for another term and the Texas State Department of Health urges the parents of school children to see that they are protected against disease in so far as possible. Vaccination against typhoid, diphtheria, and small-pox should be done at once.

School children are exposed to much infection so that where a definite preventative is known, parents should take advantage of it. These vaccinations may save many days out of school, doctor fees, and maybe life itself. More than six hundred children die each year in Texas from diphtheria.

The child should be taken to his family physician at this time for a physical examination to determine if he has any remedial defects. A child with subnormal eyesight or hearing cannot be expected to do as well in his studies as one that has normal sight and hearing. A dentist should be consulted in regard to the teeth. Any defect found and corrected before school opens will mean much to the child and will have its effect on his school work as well as his physical well being.

Some physical defects of children, such as underweight or malnourishment, show no appreciable present effect. If such a condition is not corrected it may result seriously in later years. No hard and fast rules as to a child's weight at a certain age are available, but parents should see whether or not the child shows some gain each month.

Centennial To Review Program of Texas

Coriscana, Texas, August 16. —Although he had a vision of an empire in Texas, Stephen F. Austin, the great colonizer, could not mirror the Texas that is today.

Although his compatriots of the same era of the early 1830's, Green DeWitt, Edwards, and others predicted great things for the undeveloped empire they were founding, they could not foresee the mighty commonwealth of a century later.

With dogged perseverance Stephen F. Austin, "Father of Texas," stood by his purpose, including time in prisons, long sojourns among a strange people in a strange country, distinguished service in civil life, finally to fall a victim of pneumonia just a short time after he had been made Secretary of State in the Texas Republic by Sam Houston.

For three days he had labored in the quaint capitol building at Columbia on the Brazos River. The weather was cold, there was no heat and the fatal disease took hold. His last act was for Texas. His last hours were spent in framing documents for presentation to the United States government which eventually was to result in the annexation of the Republic of Texas.

He lay in State at the capital for two days and was buried on the estate of a sister near Velasco.

It is a far cry from the Texas of the days of Stephen F. Austin and the Texas of today.

It is the century of progress that the State will celebrate with its great Centennial exposition in 1936.

That century of advancement is one of the outstanding events of all history.

Then schools were few, the buildings were of log. The children tracked an unmarked wilderness in some cases for miles to reach the little building where one teacher for a period of three and four months taught the rudiments of an education to a mixed assembly of children and of grades.

Then most of the settlers were along the rivers, because there was no method of transportation, save by water, ox wagon or on foot.

Then no oil fields, no gas fields, no coal mines, no mighty manufacturing plants dotted the landscape over the broad expanse of the State.

One of Austin's colonists, in a letter which has been preserved, even writes that a Bible could not be found in the settlement.

From the oppression of a despotic government the colonists rebelled.

They were commanded by the former Governor of Tennessee, the bosom friend of Andrew Jackson, General San Houston. On the field of San Jacinto the few hundreds of men under General Houston won the sixteenth decisive battle of world history, this on April 21, of 1836.

But prior to that on March 2 at old Washington-on-the-Brazos a band of Texans had solemnly declared that State to be a free and independent Republic. They realized in the making of that Declaration they were inviting and most certainly would endure a sanguinary conflict with the enemy.

In the conflict intervening bloody battles were fought.

As a result Texas has its sacred shrine of the Alamo. It has its Lexington-Gonzales. It has its Goliad. It has its ancient mission and fortress of Refugio. It has the thrilling events centering around Nacogdoches.

Texans of today have a century of romance, a century marked by valiant deeds of men and women, a century registering the most phenomenal progress ever recorded by a people to celebrate in 1936.

It is in the commemoration of this past, which shall be the outstanding feature of the celebration, that Texas will hold its Centennial of 1936.

While it is paying due and proper homage to the founders of our present civilization, it shall also, in this Centennial, accurately portray the progress of the reentry along material, spiritual, cultural, educational, social and business lines.

By contrast will be shown the few rude implements of civilization available in 1836, and how heroic has been the struggle to build from that beginning into the present proud empire State.

THE SMALL CITY... A Pacemaker of Progress

More and more the signs point to the greater importance of the small and medium-sized community.

We are proud of the part electric power is playing in laying the groundwork for this greater progress and prosperity.

Gone is the day when the larger metropolitan centers had a monopoly of power supply, the first essential of industrial growth and development.

Widespread networks of transmission lines have given the smaller communities the same high-grade electric service as the larger cities have.

On this firm basis, industries are increasingly recognizing the advantages of location in small communities.

This trend will react most favorably to West Texas, the "Land of Opportunity"—efficiently, dependably and inexpensively served by the West Texas Utilities Company.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

LAYING THE FOUNDATION FOR A FUTURE CIVILIZATION

By Fidel Cozzens

Editor's Note: Mr. Cozzens' articles are printed by this newspaper because of their general interest to today's thinking public rather than because they reflect the policies of this paper. Mr. Cozzens shows a deep understanding of present-day problems. This article was written for publication in the Success.

PROBLEM V Money Systems

The problem of a proper medium of trade and exchange has been a social and economic question for a number of centuries. Ever since the beginning of trade and commerce people have attempted to trade value for value received. Before the introduction of money systems, traders of the world bartered with goods, produce, and labor; but because of the inconvenience of transporting bulky goods, commercial traffic began to be carried on through mediums. Mediums have consisted of various materials, depending upon their frequency of occurrence and ease of being obtained. Gold, precious metals, and precious stones have always ranked highest among the mediums of exchange.

In order that a medium of exchange suffice the need of trade and commerce, it must be easy to carry, it must have value of its own, it must be durable, it must be difficult to counterfeit, easy to divide, easy to recognize, and it must be stable; that is, it can not change much in value.

Because gold answers all of these requirements, it has, in the past been the standard monetary medium of the world. But with the changing conditions of the world, our medium of exchange must necessarily partake of other qualities. It should not be too difficult to obtain, and it should represent more nearly the actual productivity of the person who bears it; in other words, it should more equally represent value given for value received. Gold really has neither of these qualities.

With the material wealth of the world steadily growing, gold is too scarce to be used as a money standard. There should be enough money wealth in circulation in the world to establish an equilibrium between the money wealth and the material wealth of the world. Again, the scarcity of gold makes it so valuable and its exchange so difficult that it does not and can not represent accurately the productivity of the person bearing it.

It is not inflationism to say that there should be enough money in circulation to pay those who are productive whether the production be labor, goods, or raw material; and it is not technocracy to say that a man should receive, in medium, an amount equal to his productivity, whether that productivity be labor, goods, or raw material.

Economists of the old regime have considered it radical even to suggest that monetary systems needed revision; but just that very thing must come about before a stable social and economic order can be established. Those who have studied the problem carefully and without bias have admitted as much.

And now we are about to suggest something which may be considered as radical by economists of the old regime; but people who have struggled to gain a comfortable sustenance without success—people who have suffered because of the unfair conditions prevailing in the economic order—will welcome such a move. The suggestion is this: that the government issue certificates to be passed on to the people to represent a certain amount of productivity. These certificates may be issued for a certain kind of productivity such as labor or its equivalent. The certificates would need no backing by gold or silver and they would be available to each person according to his capabilities. He an example, let us suppose that a man brought four cattle to market. He would be given four certificates, guaranteed by the government, stating value, etc. of his products. These certificates could be exchanged for labor or products of equivalent value.

It sounds fantastic, radical, and probably ridiculous, but it could be worked out with much fairer results than depending on a money which can not be obtained by everyone; and again, it would represent the exact productivity of the individual who received them.

To say the least of the matter, the present mediums of exchange must be modified to meet the needs of the time, because every man living has the same right to health, happiness, and comfort that you or I have.

to Eldorado Texas in 1930. With a group of young, inexperienced men, slow to start, he won six games, lost five, and tied one that season.

Using the same aggregation in 1931, he lost the district to Mason who, at that time, boasted the strongest team in the history of the school. The Eldorado team was undefeated up to the district clash.

In 1932 the Eldorado team under Coach Williamson won seven games, lost two, and tied one. One of the losses came at Hocksprings after the local delegation had traveled 90 miles in mud to lose a hard fought 6-0 game.

The greatest team in the history of the local school trotted out on the field in the fall of 1933. Nine games were won and three were lost. The local team won the sectional, the district, and the bi-district. The regional contest was lost to Lockhart.

Congress from the new 21st district in a speech over Station KGKL at noon Wednesday.

"Judge Carl Runge was born and reared in this district. He worked his way through school and after finishing high school he worked his way through the academic and law departments of the University of Texas," the speaker said.

"He has had his 'ups and downs,' has had opportunity to learn from first hand experience the needs of all the people of this district," Judge Whitten went on.

"I have known Mr. Runge for a number of years. He is a Christian gentleman. He resigned as superintendent of his Sunday School only when he left home to enter this race.

"In my opinion Carl Runge is well qualified by ability and experience to represent the 21st Congressional District in Washington," the speaker concluded.

GREAT BOXING MATCH

Thursday afternoon, near the bank building, Tuffy McCormick and Jack Halbert engaged in a fistic encounter. The combatants with the aid of seconds, donned the gloves, back away and then came together with a crash. In round one Jack led with his right to "Tuffy's" floating rib. "Tuffy" countered with a blow to Jack's equator. Jack, let go a left and right to Tuffy's nose: the said nose turned crimson. Tuffy got his Scotch and Irish up, let loose a couple of fast ones to Jack's chin. There was a clinch, both started to run but the crowd held. The scrap ended in a draw, and was a fine example of sportsmanship for the crowd.
