DONALD MISSING IN ACTION

Recently we carried an article in this column about "Donald" being owered in rank in the European Theater for conduct unbecoming to a good soldier. Now the Public Relations Office of Headquarters Seventh Army, in France reports him missing in action. The article follows:

With the 36th "Texas" Division of The Seventh Army, France-Donald, pet duck of Battery A, 133rd Field Artillary Battalion, a veteran of two invasions and four bloody campaigns in Italy and France, is missing in action.

Generally abeant, living with scme coy quacking neighboring, Donald is one of the most famous pets of the 36th "Texas" Division and therefore a valuable fowl indeed. But when two weeks passed was appointed this week and have without a morning quack, Staff announced plans for the drive ten days ago. It is reported that he is connected with the Methodist Sergent Barney O. Neal lead a patrol to find the wayward mascot. The coops of every good-looking hen for ten miles around were searched, as well as the cook-pots of the neighboring batteries, but in the spring of 1945. Donald has yet to turn up.

8. Request Separate Appraisals on Ewe, Yearling, and Ram Wool-In this way you can get the true values for the wool in each of the above classes.

9. Don't Pack Dead Wool, Crutchings, and Eye Clippings Along With Shorn Fleeces-Keep such wools separate from the fleeces. Pack them in a separate bag. They have a lower value than the fleece wool.

10. Always Mark Every Bag of Wool to Show the Contents-Every bag in the clip should be distinctly lettered with the class of wool it contains. These painted letters should be at least 6 inches high. The following names should be used: Ewe, Yearling or Lamb, Ram, Black, Tags and Sweepings, Dead Wool, Crutchings, eyebrows, Burry, Seedy.

11. Never Pack Wet Wool-Mold develops in wet wool and stains and weakens the fibers. Always dry wet fleeces before packing them. It costs so little more to prepare a clip of grease wool correctly that even in this time of insufficient labor every wool grower should make a supreme effort to prepare his wool in the best way.
