ELDORADO—SCHLEICHER COUNTY, TEXAS

THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 2 1954

NUMBER 35

County Elects Complete New Commissioners Court

Precincts to Corner In Town Under New Order

In a special meeting of the Commissioners Court Monday, it was voted to set the boundaries so that the four Commissioner precincts would corner in the City of Eldorado. The order was passed by a vote of 2 to 1—4 Edmiston and Halbert voting for the proposition and Commissioner White opposing. H. A. Beik was absent.

According to local interpretation of state law, any changes in precinct boundaries must be voted by the Court in the month of August. There has been considerable pressure for this change in order that each precinct would have a more equal number people. There were a number of business men and city officials in attendance during the meeting Monday.

The county will be divided in a general way by the north-south highway and east-west highways. But when the city limits are reached the lines are juggled around to give approximately one-fourth of the population to each precinct.

For instance, the precinct line will split the school house—with the grade wing in one precinct and the high school in another. Mexico-town is split so that part is in one precinct and part in another. Under the new system there will be four voting boxes in the county—instead of nine—all located in Eldorado.

It will be remembered that a similar order was voted in August 1950 under the administration of C. L. Meador, Jr., but was not kept in force long enough to provide a good trial. A similar prospect might face the county again next August when an entirely new Court will be in charge.

County Surveyor J. L. Neill is working on city and county maps and will prepare them to show the new boundaries. When available, this newspaper hopes to obtain sketches that can be printed showing the new lines in the city of Eldorado.

At the regular meeting earlier in August the Commissioners set the county tax rate at $1.15—a reduction of 10c over the past year's rate.

OVER $1100.00 COLLECTED IN EMERGENCY DRIVE

C. L. Meador, Jr., chairman of the Schleicher County Chapter, announces that the Emergency March of Dimes drive was checked out Tuesday night with a total of $1152.46 collected up to that time. He explained that a few late checks may still come in the mail.

Mrs. J. E. Hill was director of the emergency drive, and she and all of her co-workers are highly pleased with the success of the drive here.

Coming on the heels of the first polio scare and the vaccination of all the children of the county, the parents have been quick to respond to the emergency appeal.

The county is especially appreciative of the work done by the local doctors, who organized the vaccine drive and carried through to county-wide completion in about 72 hours.

Of the money received in the drive, one-third remains with the local chapter, one-third goes for vaccine research, and one-third to the National Foundation.

PASTOR BACK FROM TRIP

Rev. and Mrs. Jas. Spencer returned to Eldorado Saturday after a trip which took them as far as Vancouver, Canada. The Spencers took their daughter-in-law and grand children to the embarkation center at Seattle where they left with other servicemen's families for overseas. The Spencers return trip included visits to several National Parks, and stops were made at various places in Wyoming, New Mexico and Canada visiting friends and relatives. Mrs. Spencer's brother, Otis McCawley, accompanied them and relieved Rev. Spencer of part of the driving.

PECOS PETE THE MONEY WINNER

Record Crowd Present For Opening of School

Monday morning the auditorium was filled and overflowing into the hall when opening exercises marked the beginning of the 1954-55 school year.

The program opened with prayer by Rev. Hancock of the First Baptist Church. Jerry Lynn Pennington led the pledge of allegiance and Mrs. Lewis Jordan led in singing America. A piano solo by Bob Ratliff and a novel musical number by Mr. Jordan and Mr. Ludwig followed.

In welcoming parents and pupils Supt. Holcomb invited closer cooperation and harmony between faculty and parents. He urged parents to consider teachers as specialists who are trained in the matter of pupil's problems.

Principals Hall and Andrews introduced the elementary and high school teachers and made announcements concerning each department.

Parents are asked to check bus schedules and any changes made in rules and regulations.

The superintendent and both principals stressed the need for more safety precautions in picking up and unloading children at the school entrances. Crowded conditions at these spots creates one of the most hazardous traffic problems in the city.

Membership Drive Starts PTA Year

Mrs. Jerry Pennington, chairman of the PTA membership committee, reports that on the first day of school 193 signed up for membership in the organization. Committee members who helped in the drive were Mmes: E. H. Topliffe, Pete Parker, J. H. Mace and Palmer West.

An interesting program has been planned for the year and the first meeting will be the night of September 21st when a school rally and open house has been planned. It is hoped that all parents and patrons will attend and become better acquainted with the school plant, teachers, and each other.

Scattered Showers Here Over Week End

Citizens anxiously watched the sky for clouds on election day, remembering "back when" voters were forced to remain at home because of mud. School patrons also recalled how it always used to rain the first week of school.

Sure enough the clouds rolled up and light scattered showers fell over the week end and late Monday evening. Amounts varying from a tenth to a half inch were welcomed wherever they fell, and hopes were revived that there were more showers to come.

Some of the reports were:

Post Script

Ber Hext has been showing a 64-pound watermelon which grew on his place and he says he has others nearly as large. These are dry land melons, and the soil in which they grew is considered far from the best on the place. These melons were planted in a cotton patch and grew along with the cotton. Some irrigated vines have not produced nearly as well.

Who says Eldorado isn't growing? The crowd of interested patrons who greet the new school term gets larger each year. Monday morning there was standing room only for those who didn't arrive early.

Local business houses report a brisk sale of hunting licenses on the opening day of the season, September 1st.

This issue of the Success is being put out without the services of our customary local news reporter, Mrs. Gunstead.

Mrs. Gunstead went to San Angelo last Friday morning for a clinical check-up, expecting to return home the same evening. Instead she received orders to be hospitalized for one week for treatment and observation. We are expecting her back home either today or tomorrow.

In the meantime the Success has secured the services of Mrs. Arthur Mund as local news reporter and we are happy to report that she has turned in a good job as pinch-hitter.

Petroleum Responsible For Increased Production On Farms

With the help of petroleum power and petroleum chemicals, farmers are producing 44 per cent more today than before the war, according to W. H. Hale of the Schleicher County Oil Industry Information Committee. Mr. Hale, who is production clerk for the Ohio Oil Company emphasized the significance of petroleum power by pointing out that the record-breaking output is coming from the same number of acres of cropland used in 1940.

In addition, he noted, there are 35 per cent fewer farmers. "In other words, agriculture is producing almost half again as much as it did less than 15 years ago from the same amount of land with one-third the number of farmers," he said. School News

From Supt. Office
 Following the opening assembly in the auditorium Monday, the familiar sounds of school were heard as 328 elementary students and 201 students in the high school registered, and were assigned rooms and teachers.

The administration wishes to express its appreciation for the presence and co-operation of the parents and patrons during the opening of school. Our objective is to have the best school possible and with your continued help and support we can succeed.

With the above mentioned objective in mind, the school board employed a school nurse this year. The primary aim of the school nurse is helping to keep the school child well. Her duty is to render first aid when necessary; to contact parents when children become ill at school, and to assist teachers and all school personnel in carrying out a health education program which emphasizes preventive measures. We solicit your interest and co-operation and welcome visits from parents any time.

Knowledge Of Grasses Necessary For Ranchers

College Station.—A knowledge of grasses is fundamental to the building of a successful range management program. There is a wide range of usefulness among pasture grasses and, according to A. H. Walker, extension range specialist, scrub grasses are like scrub animals, growing them does not pay.

Even under conditions of favorable moisture, the specialist points out that the good plants are fighting for survival. They must compete with other vegetation which in addition to less desirable grasses includes brush, weeds and trees. These competitors rob the grasses of needed moisture and plant food and make the struggle for survival a one-sided fight when overgrazing is practiced.

Pastures and ranges of the state have been hard hit during the past few years but have shown remarkable recovery in most areas, says Walker. His advice now is to give the key grasses a chance to build a root system and produce a seed crop. The roots are even more important to the plant than the top growth for without a deep, well-developed root system, the key plants' chances of survival are reduced. A good seed crop is needed to hasten the range rebuilding job and here is where the knowledge of grasses come into the picture.

Walker says local county agricultural agents have on hand material which contains suggestions and aids for identifying range plants as well as hints on how best to handle them for maximum returns.

Finally, the specialist points out, the key plants, they may be native or well established introduced species, are the best ones for any given area. They should be the measuring stick for judging proper range use. They produce more forage and are a basic resource of the state's range land and are of major importance in the economical production of livestock in Texas. Their survival and well being depends upon the treatment given them by the livestock producers of the state.

Breeding Season Important For Beef

College Station.—The ultimate objective of every beef cattle producer should be the production of top quality beef at the lowest cost and in the largest amount consistent with good herd and range management.

One of the more important management items, according to U. D. Thompson, extension animal husbandman, is the breeding season. Local conditions which include feed, labor and climate should be considered in determining whether calves should be dropped in the spring or fall or scattered throughout the year. Thompson says it is generally considered that producers should breed for early calves. The practice of breeding for spring calves has certain advantages, says Thompson and include cows are in good shape because of the usual abundance of early spring feed; dry cows winter on less feed than those with calves at side; plenty of feed makes for easier calving; spring dropped calves are ready for fall feeder market; calves may be held over to clean up fields and sold next spring. On the disadvantage side, he lists the problem of excessive milk flow in the spring which brings on extra labor for milking of if left alone spoiled udders; calf scours may be a problem; dry weather in early summer cuts milk flow and development of the calves is slowed; and there are usually more flies, lice, ticks and screw worm problems in the spring.

Calves dropped in the fall or winter escape hot weather and flies when young; screw worms are likely to cause less trouble; cows produce less milk but less is needed for the young calves and when the flow becomes heavy in the spring the calves are old enough to handle it; calves may be marketed early and normally at a higher price; fall calves usually weigh more at weaning time and under some livestock crop-farming systems more labor is available for cattle operations in the fall and winter.

WHAT PRICE SPEED?

Speed—excessive, reckless speed is the greatest killer stalking the Nation's highways today.

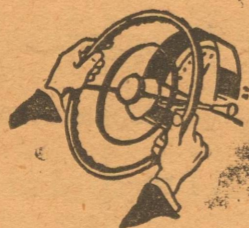

In one out of every two driver accidents resulting in deaths and injuries, speed is directly responsible for this carnage on the highways. Other lethal causes, such as cutting in and out, passing on curves and hills, driving off the roadway, are indirectly the result of quick bursts of speed.

And the speed death toll is climbing! Faster roads, super-powered cars urge drivers beyond their human limitations to a quicker and more frequent rendezvous with Death.

Rural highway fatalities due mainly to speed soared from 22,000 in 1949 to 28,200 in 1952 and over 31,000 in 1953. Those are the dead—and for every death count fifty injured, maimed, crippled for life.

Is this the price you and others are ready to pay for the momentary thrill and the ever-present danger of death from speed? It takes only a split second to change speed exhilaration into speed tragedy.

The decision is in your hands—be sane, be sensible, slow down and live!

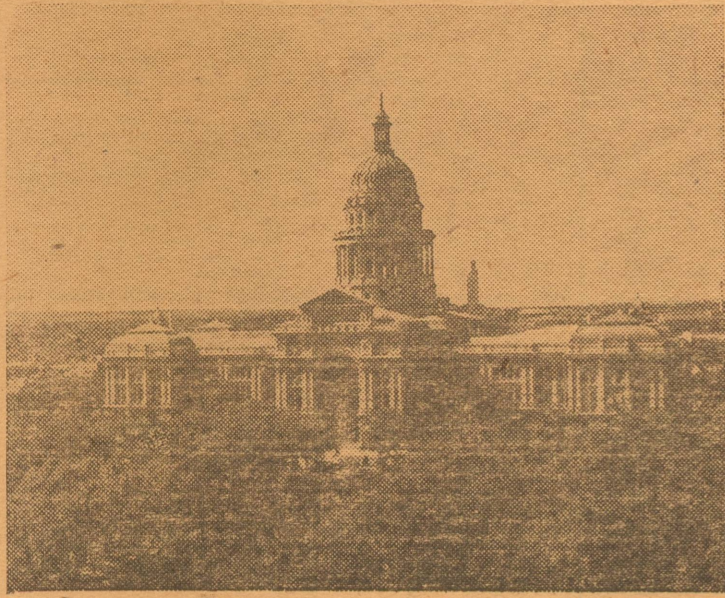

SLOW DOWN—LIVES ARE IN YOUR HANDS!

Is the amount of grass produced by your rangeland proportional to the rainfall that it receives? Does your range respond to a two inch rain like it did years ago? How about your stock—are your calf or lamb crops as good and as heavy as they were years ago on the same amount of rainfall?

If a rancher gets good rains during a certain year will his range produce more or less than his neighbors? Or with the same amount of rainfall will all rangeland produce the same amount of forage?

The answer lies in the condition of the rangeland in question. The type and amount of range vegetation alone is the answer. Without some means of holding this moisture, rainfall itself may be ineffective in getting a cover on the land.

It is also true that it is drier than it used to be, but wasted rainfall is the cause. This rangeland once had abundant grasses. Grass that protected the soil, kept it fertile and made a good profit for the cattleman. If it's drier than years ago it's because a two inch rain years ago did what takes a 6 or 8 inch rain to do now. The rancher of two score years ago had grass aplenty. This protected the soil from wind erosion, runoff and evaporation. A four inch rain today would lose at least half of its moisture to the above factors. It shaded the ground, kept it open and porous and fed the soil organisms that keep your soil fertile and productive. If your neighbor has better grass on the same amount of rainfall wouldn't you believe it was the condition of his cover that made more effective use of this moisture—stored it in the ground for a prolonged period?

If rainfall can be wasted by allowing vegetation to become sparse and weak, it can also be saved by again covering the ground with plants. Grazing and drought combined have reduced the grass vegetation on many ranges to a fraction of what it formerly was. Stocking has been based on the good years when actually this is above the average rainfall years. The years of average rainfalls or less are usually termed drouthy. Thus in the majority of years the ranges are severely overstocked even though they approach or are average years.

Since we have no means of controlling rainfall or making it succumb to our whims the best course should be to make the best use of what we do get. This would mean getting nearly all of it into the soil where it can be effectively used to grow grass. Actually the amount of grass we produce in a certain pasture depends upon the condition of the soil cover. If you lose the largest part of your rainfall then your neighbor who has cover will be far ahead of yours.

The years of average rainfall are scarce. You have only to glance at a rainfall chart for the past 40 years to see that. Most people fail to stock their pastures on the basis of this average rainfall because it is difficult to remember just how things went during that year or when was the average year.

It takes rain to grow grass, but it takes grass to make the rainfall count. You have to have that grass waiting for the rain to really get results. It does more harm than good when it falls on bare soil.

Grasslands like nearly everything else needs a periodic rest or treatment. A range in poor condition is only saving a fraction of the rainfall and producing nowhere near what it is capable of doing.

Your Electric Rates Have Stayed Low: It's a fact... in homes served by WTU the average cost of a kilowatt hour of electric service costs 22% LESS than it did ten years ago.

"A pocket full of rye..."

Maybe, in the old days, sixpence would buy something, but TODAY...

- COST OF LIVING IS SKY HIGH
- COST OF GOVERNMENT IS SKY HIGH
- COST OF DOING BUSINESS IS SKY HIGH

And sixpence won't buy a pocket full of anything except ELECTRIC SERVICE. In fact, it will buy MORE than ever, because my wages per hour are lower. Yes, your Electric Service is the ONLY thing that costs less per unit than it did 10 years ago.
