Mrs. Mitchell Funeral Tomorrow

Mrs. Jerome Mitchell, 45, died of a San Angelo hospital yesterday afternoon at 1:15 following an illness of eight months' duration.

Funeral services will be held at the Fundamental Baptist church in Eldorado at 3:00 tomorrow, Friday afternoon, and interment will be in the Eldorado cemetery.

Fern Hughes was born November 10, 1910, in Rocky Ford, Okla., and moved with the family to Texas in her early girlhood. She and her first husband, Ernest Aldridge, lived for years at Grape Creek where the family resided on a farm, and their sons attended the schools of that community.

Two years after the death of her husband in 1933 she and the boys moved to Eldorado to make their home. On Oct. 7, 1939, she was married in Eldorado to Jerome Mitchell, who survives.

Surviving also are her sons by her previous marriage, Rubel Aldridge of Austin and Glendon Aldridge of Abilene, and three other children, Voy J., Alton Roy, and Maudie, all students in the Eldorado school system; a brother, Alfred Hughes, Abilene; a sister Mrs. Naomi Alcorn of Plainview; and five half-sisters and sisters all of whom live in California, Mrs. Anne Trammel, Mrs. Ollie Dottie, Jack Irvin, Ernest Aldridge, and Jimmie Aldridge.

For years she was a member of the Fundamental Baptist church, joining the church in her early girlhood, and was a faithful worker in the church, up to the time of her serious illness. She taught intermediate girls in the Sunday School and was interested and active in all phases of church work.

She had been in failing health since her first major surgery about eight months ago.

DISTRICT POLO PLAY TO BE UNDER WAY THIS WEEK

District play among Palmetto Polo teams of the area will get under way during the week end when Eldorado meets Miles. Admission to the game will be 50c, members stated this week. As this paper goes to press it is not known where the game will be played. Watch for the posters.

The seven teams in the district are Eldorado, Miles, Barnhart, Ozona, Sterling City, San Angelo, and Coleman.

The polo team put Eldorado on the map last year in meeting a number of area teams and in October met Spur for state championship. Two games were played that resulted in a tie, and Spur won the tie breaker 9 to 7. The locals plan a big year in 1956.

McCullum Exploration Moves Into County

McCullum Exploration Co. moved into the county Monday and Tuesday, and began work Wednesday on J. T. Jackson's Davis Estate place. The crew consists of 16 men, who came here from Pecos, 10 or 12 bringing their families with them and renting apartments and houses.

Their arrival helped to take up the slack in the rent situation, although there are still some empty living units in the city.

McCullum has been here before, but this is the first time this crew has worked the county. It is thought that they may be here three months or more.

Trubills Returned In Schleicher Cases

The grand jury, in session this week with James Page as foreman, returned a trubill in the case of Jack Henry and W. L. Sessions, charged with fraudulently getting possession of four 1956 Chevrolet automobiles from E. C. Peters, at a value of $9208.

The indictment mentions that the transaction, which occurred January 5, involved getting title also to the cars on the pretense that the men could not cross the line into New Mexico with the cars without the papers. Bond was set at $4,000 each.

Jesse James was indicted for breaking into E. C. Hill's business establishment and taking personal property, March 22.

Post Script

Kenneth Doyle who is employed on an American oil drilling rig in Africa, writes his folks in Eldorado that their rig was moved recently from Tripoli to Benghazi in Libya. Included in his letter were several interesting notes: All stores over there close from noon to 4:30 daily . . . it is always cool at night . . . Africa seems to be the place that invented sand storms; they have 'em that last for days . . . and—oh yeah—men can have all the wives they want!!

Emmons, a neighbor.

Letters From THE PEOPLE

TO THE PEOPLE OF SCHLEICHER COUNTY

We have here on this Divide the means to provide a place for our boys and girls to have recreation at home. Thereby they would not have to go to other towns to find it.

We may have a drouth, etc., but we have lots to be thankful for: good drinking water that is inexhaustible and good people. We have as fine a set of boys and girls as you will find in Texas. What will we do about it?

I say vote for the swimming pool and show our children we love them. Give them what some of us never had. As far as taxes are concerned I say that it would be money well spent.

We could take what we spend for coffee each day and pay for it. Even though that wouldn't or might not cover all it would help.

I for one will say that my boy and my girl never had a swimming pool. They learned to swim in Tom Jones' tank and loved it. Now they are gone and drifted away and have homes of their own, and I would like to see the boys and girls of Eldorado have what my children never had.

I say this, give the children a break; vote for a swimming pool. As far as some of the older heads here who are against it, and will vote against it, charge them fifty cents an hour to come near the pool.

I guess I am crazy so they say but I will go all the way to help build it, not charging one cent for my labor.

I am willing to pay whatever the cost for this project, and thereby give our children a place at home for recreation.

After all we brought them into this world and it's up to us to show them how much we love them.

The thing is, what will you do about it? They deserve the breaks, not us. We have spent our lives, almost, and we can cut down on fishing trips and coffee, and recreation for ourselves and give it to our children.

I may lose some jobs by writing this but I don't care. Don't want to work no way.

Pete Bryant.

Farm Real Estate Values Change Little Despite Lower Prices For Crops

College Station.—Farm real estate values in Texas dropped slightly during the latter part of 1955, according to a report just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

During the four-month period from July 1 to November 1, farm real estate values increased from 2 to 4% in 31 states and remained essentially unchanged in 16 states. In Texas the decrease was 1%.

Compared with a year earlier, farm real estate values in the state were up 3% as of November 1. This compares with a nationwide rise of 5% during the same period. Values last November averaged higher than a year earlier in all but two states, Nevada and Utah.

Continued business prosperity and strong demand by farmers for additional land to enlarge their farms have helped to offset expected effects on land values of lower prices for farm commodities, according to the USDA report.

Many farmers and non-farmers continue to view farmland as a safe and desirable investment despite current lower returns. Present owners apparently share this view because the number of farms for sale continued at a low level.

Ann Williams of Texas Tech spent the weekend with her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. Tom Williams.

What Happens If—?

For in your contracts, leases, wills, insurance policies, escrows, and the like, you had better say what would "happen if" some of your best laid plans go awry. Such events the law calls "contingencies."

Who gets the "earnest money" you put down, if you cannot go through with buying that house? What if you want to pay up that loan and save interest? What happens if a partnership goes sour, or a partner gets sick or dies? What happens if the people you name in your will should die before you do, or, if you all perish in a common catastrophe like a car smashup?

The law is wise but it cannot do your thinking for you. It settles such questions—but not always to your liking. If you don't make a will, the law says who shall get your property. If you leave certain things out of a contract, the law assumes that you meant to put some certain things in. But how much better it would be in the first place to put them in the way you want them, by asking "what if?" Take your will now: Your first desire, of course, is to take care of your wife and children — those nearest to you. But it won't hurt anything to put "contingent beneficiaries" in your will in case something happens to thwart your first intentions.

Review your will every year or so to see if it meets the new things that have come up, or arrange with your lawyer to write in "contingent beneficiaries"—those who will receive your property if your first beneficiaries should die before you do.

You may long ago have had your son provided for in your will, but what about those lovely grandchildren he and his wife have presented to you since you wrote the will? What would happen to them if things go wrong and your son should die before you?

Or take your widowed sister and her children now. Suppose you and your immediate family should be wiped out: Would you want your property to go equally to her and to your well-heeled bachelor brother? Or would you prefer to leave your brother some token of your affection, then really take care of your sister?

You may be impatient with the law's long memory. Such things never happen, you think, but the court records are full of plans which failed. And so the law has ways in which you can provide for "what happens—if." One way is the device of contingent beneficiaries in your will and insurance policies.

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts because the facts may change the application of the law.)

A guest several days in the O. L. Woodward home was a friend, Rachel Dainels, of Columbia, Miss.

The event closed a Sunday School contest between Onwards and Earnest Workers, the former winning. In the late afternoon there was a vesper service facing the setting sun—the program including songs and a meditation and Scripture by the pastor, Rev. James L. Spencer.

The week of May 6-12 is Soil Conservation District week in Texas. It begins on Soil Stewardship Sunday, May 6, when many churches will hold special services to recall man's duty to the land. During the rest of the week, many SCDs will present special tours, programs and field days to publicize District accomplishments and objectives.

The Eldorado-Divide is one of 172 soil conservation districts that embrace 96% of the land area of the state. The districts represent the greatest locally organized and governed force for the conservation of our soil, water, plants and wild life.

Each soil conservation district was organized only after land owners of the area voted to have such a district. SCDs are legal subdivisions of state government, comparable to counties and school districts, but they have no taxing powers. Each is governed by a board of five supervisors who must be landowners themselves and who are elected by farmers and ranchers of the district.

A soil conservation district helps its cooperating farmers and ranchers plan and apply conservation measures on their land. Following a master plan which was carefully prepared by farmer and rancher committees, each district works toward the goal of complete conservation for all the land in the district. Technical assistance to each district is provided by the Soil Conservation service. Supervisors function as a coordinating body to stimulate and guide the efforts of local groups and individuals toward achieving the district goals.

Supervisors of the Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation district are J. Forrest Runge, chairman; Ernest Foster, Jr., chairman; Ben Hext, B. E. Moore, and Ford Boulware, members.

Any landowner can become a co-operator by applying to the board of supervisors. Becoming a co-operator does not involve any financial obligation nor is he obligated to carry out any practice he does not desire to. The Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation district now has 235 district cooperators. Last year these farmers and ranchers contour farmed 837 acres, cover cropped 344 acres, put 231 acres in rotation hay and pasture, had 206 acres of stubble mulching, strip cropped 465 acres, deferred 55,000 acres of rangeland, seeded 229 acres of rangeland, controlled 36,000 acres of brush, pitted 1400 acres of rangeland, built 40 miles of terraces and 5 miles of diversion terraces.

In addition to these accomplishments, the board of supervisors sponsored two field tours, a grass and soil judging contest, and assisted in spreading the gospel of conservation through other informational activities.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Happy Ending With A "Familiar Ring"

Buck Howell says he and his Missus had quite a time at the Stockman's Convention in Chicago. But for a while they had a "breakdown in communications."

The phone bell in their hotel room was pitched so low they often didn't answer their calls. "Never knew if it was for us or not," Buck said, "always sounded far off—like it was ringing in someone else's room."

Finally, Buck hit on the obvious solution. He just made a deal with the hotel switchboard operator that whenever she called them she'd use two long rings and a short—their party-line signal back home.

From where I sit, our own familiar routines tend to make other ways of doing things seem strange. That's natural. For instance, if you've always had ice water with your meals, you might think it's odd that lots of us prefer a bottle of beer at dinner-time. I say you've a right to your own customs... but don't call mine wrong.

Paper-Covered Wood Shows Promise

College Station—The Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., has developed a paper-covered wood that has many qualities of grade A lumbers.

Low-grade lumber covered with resin-impregnated paper can be used for siding, house trim, cabinet partitions, shelving, paneling, and signboards. The paper cover makes the use of cheaper lumber possible. It masks such defects as knots, pitch pockets, and splits.

In tests paper glued to pine reduced lateral swelling 25 to 40 per cent. When glued on oak, one layer of paper overlay reduced swelling 20%, and a double layer 35%. Use of resin-impregnated paper makes painting coarse and defective lumber easy.

Over-laid planks have been successfully used as bleachers in the University of Wisconsin's Camp Randall Stadium at Madison. They have come through two football seasons, exposure to winter snows, spring rains, and summer heat in as good condition as high-grade planks used as a control.

Paper covered wood cannot be resawed or planed, limiting its commercial use to finished products. Furthermore since defects are covered, a user may hit weak spots in the lumber when driving nails.

At present low-grade species of trees are growing faster than they are being used. By finding new uses which make these trees worth the cost of getting them out of the woods, foresters are making room for growing still better trees.

Oil Info Program Under Way For '56

The oil industry's 1956 information and service program will be directed here by George Cales. His appointment was announced recently by Russell Hayes of Midland, Oil Industry Information committee area chairman for West Texas.

This American Petroleum Institute sponsored program seeks to make clear how well the people of this area are served by many oil businesses and to gain support for conditions under which they can continue to be privately managed, fully competitive and financially sound.

The local OIIC will emphasize two projects this year. They are a school program providing supplemental teaching materials and special information services free to junior and senior high schools and Oil Progress week, set this year for October 14-20.

Other activities of the committee will include providing speakers, films and demonstrations for club meetings.

Joining more than 4,000 other volunteer oil men and women in six Gulf-Southwest states, chairman Cales named the following other members and their responsibilities to the local OIIC: Executive vice chairman, C. O. Dewey; school chairman, Joe R. Andrews; women's activities chairman, Mrs. Joe Kreklow; Oil Progress week chairman, Jack Halbert Jr.; press-radio & T.V., W. F. Gunstead; employees' chairman, Lige W. Chrestman.

Mr. Dewey, Mr. Andrews and Mr. Cales attended a luncheon meeting March 27 at The Lincoln hotel in Odessa, with other county chairmen of the West Texas area to plan this year's activities for the area.

Mrs. LeRoy Hanusch and children have gone to Sherman, because of an accident which her father F. H. Reeder, had while on a construction job as carpenter. He has been released from the hospital and is reported to be doing well.

from the highest well, thousands of dollars can be saved. (The highest well in a producing field is the one producing oil nearest the surface of the earth.)

From their study, information can be obtained to determine whether or not it is practical to drill another well in a producing field. If all of the oil can be produced

Fort Worth.—Very few of the top meat type hogs were included in Monday's offering at Ft Worth, making it difficult for salesmen to press for a higher market despite the smaller runs around the market circle. Prices were fully steady to strong and top meat type butchers scored $15 to $15.25; with less desirable weights and grades $12 to $14.50.

Farmers in Corn Belt states are reported cutting back pig production more than earlier intentions. This helps the price outlook for the year ahead. A special USDA March 1 survey indicates a spring pig crop seven percent under a year ago. This compares with the December estimate of a drop of 4% in spring pigs.

Fat steers and yearlings were steady to strong at Fort Worth some yearlings and heifers selling better again. Seasonal improvement in fat cattle is being helped by continuance of tapering off of supplies in the North. Cows ruled steady. Fat calves were steady to stronger. Stockers are feeling the pinch of the dry weather, thin kinds with quality are steady. Others are tending lower. Corn Belt outlets are still bearish in view the losses during the past feeding season.

Moisture A Determining Factor For Successful Reseeding Of Ranges

College Station. — Presently there is an estimated 10 to 12 million acres of abandoned cropland and an additional several million acres of denuded or barren rangeland in Texas. Reseeding with adapted grasses is one method which may be used to bring at least a part of this land back into profitable forage production, says A. H. Walker, extension range specialist, provided moisture conditions are favorable.

In the case of the abandoned cropland, Walker suggests reseeding the best land first. A soil test is a logical starting point. He points out that if reseeding is to be a success, the operation must be carried out in the same thorough manner as the seeding of any other crop. Use the best soil, adapted seed, methods and equipment available.

The land should be prepared by disking and harrowing. The grass should be drilled or seeded in rows and culipacker or roller used to firm the soil. Plant only adapted grasses and cover the seed from a fourth to three-fourths of an inch deep. Most grasses should be planted in the winter or early spring before the rainy season. Mowing the first year will aid in controlling weeds and spraying with chemicals can be used for this job the second year. If the grass is to become established, controlled grazing and good management are musts, says Walker.

On the barren or denuded rangelands, Walker says if 15 percent of the better grasses are left, deferred grazing may do the job quicker and a lot cheaper than reseeding. Can some land preparation be made and is the area to be reseeded fenced to protect the seedlings? It will need different management, points out Walker.

Fairly good results from seeding in pits have been obtained in the Edwards Plateau, Rolling Plains and Trans-Pecos areas while seeding following root plowing in the Rio Grande Plains has given similar results. Scattering seed hay where plant litter is absent has given fair results in some areas but it's expensive. Scattering seed under protecting brush or on rocky areas usually gives poor results.

The chances of success by any method depends upon the moisture supply and the management practices used while the grass seedlings are becoming established, says Walker.

calves on the ground are like MONEY IN THE BANK

It costs a lot of money to keep a cow. A lot of that money is lost if she fails to settle or drops small, weak calves that die or develop into "tail-enders."

BIG CROPS of husky calves are a must, if a fellow is going to make money ranching. This is especially true when the price of cattle is off.

Your range needs help. It takes more than grass alone to give your cows what they need to grow and drop the kind of calves that will bring top prices next fall.

PURINA RANGE CHECKERS have proved their worth in research tests and on thousands of ranches. This favorite range supplement has what it takes. Cattle love Checkers, do well on them. Cows stay up in good shape at calving time, have lots of milk for the calves, too.

Feed for big calf crops the Purina Way. Purina Range Checkers can help you keep your operation on the profit side of the ledger.

COME IN. We'll visit about Purina Range Checkers and profitable ranch management. Make it soon!

ADVANTAGES CITED FOR CONFINEMENT REARING OF PULLETS

College Station.—The confinement method of rearing the replacement laying flock has certain advantages over the range method and during recent years has grown in favor with Texas poultry producers, reports Bob J. Griffin, assistant extension poultry husbandman.

Research, experience and observations, say the specialist, show that producers who use the confinement method have less trouble from parasites, both external and internal; have less money tied up in land and buildings; lower labor requirements; fewer birds lost to predatory animals and the expense of planting and maintaining a good range is eliminated.

It is much easier, says Griffin, to keep parasites under control when the pullets are confined. It is a fairly easy task to give a poultry house a thorough cleaning and spraying to control external parasites but next to impossible to clean up an infected range. The greatest trouble from internal parasites comes from tape and round worms. The intermediate hosts of tapeworms are beetles, grasshoppers and flies, all usually found on the range. The roundworm is picked up by the chicken while eating or drinking. Once the range becomes infected with either, control is difficult.

Flies can be controlled in a poultry house by spraying and baiting while grasshoppers and beetles would cause no concern. A clean house eliminates the roundworm problem.

Range shelters, almost a must for range rearing, and the use of considerable acreage for range are eliminated when the pullets are confined. The land can be used for pasture or cash crops. Labor requirements are reduced when the pullets are confined because mechanical equipment can be used in the poultry house.

Transporting feed and water to the range requires considerable labor and time while both are cut to a minimum by the use of the contrasting method.

Predatory animals can easily be kept out of a poultry house but on the range, losses can be heavy. Feather picking may be a problem when pullets are reared in confinement but this can be controlled by having the chicks debeaked at the hatchery when they are only a day old, points out Griffin. Another factor favoring range rearing is that slightly less feed is required to produce the pullet due to the utilization of green forage by the birds. The cost of planting or maintaining the range, however, in many cases will off-set this advantage, says Griffin.

Finally, he says, a poultry producer should consider what facilities are available and what others will have to be provided with either system before making a decision. Use the system which best fits the over-all plans for the farm and brings in the most profit. Good management will make either successful.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

by Tiny Godwin

Schleicher County Agricultural Agent

It takes work, planning and know how to have a beautiful yard. You may have a good plan and be willing to spend the time only to find that insects are damaging the shrubs, roses or flowers.

Insecticides are available in 3 forms: dusts, wettable powders, and emulsion concentrates.

Dusts are made by mixing ground insecticides with a filler or talc and dusted directly on the plant. These are usually bought ready prepared.

Wettable powder sprays are made by mixing insecticidal materials, manufactured in the form of powder, with water.

Emulsion concentrate sprays are made by mixing insecticidal materials, manufactured into a liquid emulsifiable concentrate with water. Emulsifiers are added to keep ingredients well-mixed.

The insects to watch for now are spider mites, thrips, aphids, white flies, Lindane, 25% wettable powder or 25% emulsion concentrate will control these insects at the rate of two teaspoonful per gallon of water.

"All purpose" sprays are satisfactory containing both fungicides and insecticides. These can be bought ready packaged or you may want to make your own. DDT will control most leaf eating insects, lindane sucking insects, captan 50 blackspot on many plants especially roses, and sulfur controls mildew.

Mix 6 tsp. sulfur, 4 tsp. DDT, (50% wettable powder) 2 tsp. captan 50 and 2 tsp. lindane to 1 gallon of water and use as a spray. A weekly spraying schedule is recommended.

Cattle numbers are at a record 97.5 million in March. Their increase during 1955 was 873,000 head. Their seven year rise has amounted to almost 21 million head—a very substantial expansion.

Hog numbers are up 9% over this period last year. Only sheep numbers show a decrease—only 1 per cent.

What it costs to transform a carcass into steaks, roasts, ground meat, stew meat and other products are subjects of lively interest to farmers and consumers.

The difference between what the farmers receive on the hoof and what the consumer pays for meat has fluctuated widely during the last seven years 1949-55. The spread has gradually widened; in 1955, it was about 5 cents per retail pound more than the start of the period. This spread is known as the "marketing margin." Marketing margins widened at both the packer wholesaler and retail levels during this period.

Farm prices have decreased in price for meat at the same time the relationship between changes in margin, costs and services has increased 60%. Services play a large part the last few years; the individual steak wrapped in cellophane is the demand of the consumer, etc.

Some recommended varieties of vegetables for the home gardener are: tomatoes: porter, summer prolific and victory. Summer squash early prolific straight neck, white bush scallop. Bean, snap, poled; blue lake, Kentucky wonder or Florida speckled. Beans, husk: Ford hook 242. Okra: clemson spineless, or Louisiana green velvet. Turnips: purple top and shogoin for greens. Mustard: tender green.

Varieties recommended for this county or area is of utmost importance for success of the home gardener due to climate and soil.

PREMEASUREMENT FOR 1956 COTTON EXPLAINED

Schleicher County cotton growers can arrange for official measurements of their 1956 farm cotton acreage allotments prior to planting time, the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee announced this week.

To get the premeasurement service, which is being provided on a cost basis, a cotton farmer must file a written request with the county ASC office prior to May 1, 1956. The rate to be charged for the service in Schleicher County has been established at $12.50 per farm plus $3.00 for each plot over one, and payment based on this rate must be made at the time the request for measurement is filed.

The premeasurement is purely optional and is offered as a service to growers who prefer to have an official measurement to use as a planting guide.

All cotton in the county will be measured as soon as possible after it comes up to determine compliance with ten acreage allotment marketing quota program. When compliance is checked, the farm will be considered to be within the farm acreage allotment if the crop is planted within the premeasured area.

Rubel Aldredge of Austin and Glyndon Aldredge of Abilene are here and in San Angelo because of the serious illness of Mrs. Jerome Mitchell.

The H. E. Browders have had as guests their grandsons, Billy and Don Haden of San Angelo.

Change In Commercial Beef Grade Announced

College Station.—Effective June 1, 1956, the commercial grade of beef will be divided into two new grades designated as Standard and Commercial.

The Standard grade will be applied to beef from younger animals while the name Commercial will be retained by beef from mature animals falling in the present Commercial grade. The present grades of beef are Prime, Choice, Good, Commercial, Utility, Cutter and Canner.

According to the USDA announcement the revision was originally recommended by the Cattle and Beef Industry committee. Comments from individuals and organizations favored the change. It was the opinion of the Committee that it is impractical to merchandise, under the same grade designation, beef from young animals which may qualify for the Commercial grade with only a small quantity of fat together with beef from much older animals which is required to have a much greater degree of fatness. Also in some parts of the country where substantial portions of the younger type of Commercial beef are produced and consumed, it is believed that some of this type of beef is not now being federally graded because of prejudice against the name "Commercial" which has come to be associated with beef from older animals.

It was the committee's opinion the change in grades would lead to a greater proportion of the younger beef being federally graded and this would result in increasing the marketing efficiency for meat of this grade and be beneficial to both producer and consumer.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Dudley have gone to New Orleans to visit their daughter Mrs. P. A. Olson and family. They are expecting to return home via Denton, Dallas, and Gainesville, and will arrive here probably some time next week.

Austin.—Battle lines are fast forming. The scrap for control of the Texas delegation to the Democratic national convention is a high-tension argument. Harmony is out. Now it's a no-holds-barred, toe-to-toe slugfest.

It started when House Speaker Sam Rayburn, leader of Texas' liberal-loyalist forces and Godfather of the Democratic Advisory Council, proposed that U. S. Sen. Lyndon Johnson be Texas' favorite son candidate for President of the United States and head the Texas delegation to the nominating convention in Chicago.

George W. Sandlin, chairman of the Democratic State Executive committee, had proposed Gov. Allan Shivers as chairman.

Shivers charged that Byron Skelton, chairman of the DAC, had thought up the favorite son and chairman idea—and that Rayburn "is just his mouthpiece."

Shivers denounced Rayburn's proposal as a "cynical and calculated effort to divide the conservative democrats of Texas—an attempt to maneuver the senator into the DAC-PAC camp."

Then he challenged Johnson to denounce Liberal-Loyalist backing and take a stand for states' rights.

Johnson's answer was that he would head only a middle-of-the-road delegation. Not one "from either fringe"—either ultra-conservative or ultra-liberal.

"No one knows better than Allan Shivers that I am not a creature of the ADA, DAC, PAC, NAACP, CIO or any other group he may have named," snapped Johnson. "Nor am I an errand boy of reactionary big business or the Republican party."

Verbal blasts between Washington and Austin continued. Shivers accused Rayburn of "trying to run Texas from Washington." Rayburn termed Shivers "an angry, confused, frustrated man—on a sinking ship." Adding "I belong to no faction but the Democratic party."

Shivers replied that he had gotten in the boat with Rayburn and Adlai Stevenson in '52, "we would have lost both the boat and the Tidelands." He charged Rayburn with "being a Democrat first and an American second."

Shivers has declared he will not pledge himself to support "any nominee," and will hold himself free to vote for the man he considers best for President, regardless of party—"and I hope it is a Democrat."

Fencing between Johnson and Shivers was in milder tones, with Shivers concluding that he had no desire to battle with "my old friend, Lyndon Johnson." Without withdrawing his demand for Johnson to state his position on the issues, Shivers said "I would not stand in the way of Texas honoring him as chairman of the delegation or as favorite son."

Johnson has not said whether he would permit his name to be presented as a favorite son candidate, or whether he would take the chairmanship. He has said, however, that he hopes to be a delegate.

All of which means a showdown fight for control of the Democratic State Convention in Dallas, set for May 22. Liberals have promised a contest there—and if they lose they will attempt to bar the conservatives from the national convention. Rayburn will be temporary chairman of the national convention.

Interposition Approved

Complying with Governor Shivers' request, the Democratic State Executive committee has ordered on the July ballot a referendum on "interposition." This seeks a voters' mandate for the Texas Legislature to petition Congress for a constitutional amendment re-establishing and protecting states' rights. It is an attack on U. S. Supreme Court decisions, such as the Tidelands, school segregation, federal control over natural gas, etc., which Texas conservatives have branded as an unauthorized invasion of states' rights.

Ineligible for Office?

C. T. Johnson, who testified five times under oath that he had spent "no more and no less" than $125 in traveling the length and breadth of Texas while campaigning for Lt. Governor in 1954, now admits spending $1200 more than he reported. This exposure resulted from charges by Russell Bryant, Italy publisher, that Johnson could not have traveled an admitted 12,000 to 15,000 miles for $125 (or approximately 1¢ a mile.)

"There isn't a standard make automobile made that doesn't cost nearly 2¢ a mile for gas alone," said Bryant. "And Johnson testified under oath that the $125 included not only gas, oil, tires, batteries, etc., but also such other necessary travel expenses as lodging and meals."

In admitting the $1200 additional expenditure Johnson stated that he did not report any expenses under $10. State laws require the reporting of all expenditures, and the names and addresses of persons with whom more than $10 is spent. Falsification of a campaign expense report prohibits such candidate's name from appearing on the ballot at any succeeding election.

Yarborough After Votes

A down-to-earth intensified campaign for governor now is under way by Austin Attorney Ralph W. Yarborough. His first official move was a cross-roads plea for contributions and support "from the common people who believe in the Democratic form of Government."

Ads appear this week in weekly newspapers throughout Texas soliciting one dollar or more from small-town contributors. It's a "Dollars for Democracy" appeal.

Short Shorts: Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd has called for the establishment of a Texas commission to define the boundaries in which the federal, state, county and city governments should operate. Also advocated is a code of ethics for public officials, those at the local as well as the state level. Injunction suits have been filed in Gainesville by the State Bar of Texas, to restrain four non-attorneys from engaging in alleged unauthorized practice of law. Newspaperman Ed Kilman of the Houston Post is the newest member of the State Parks Board. Supreme Court Justice W. St. John Garwood, a long-time personal friend of Kilman's, administered the oath of office in a ceremony in the Governor's office Tuesday. Applications from veterans for the purchase of land are being received by the Veterans' Land Board at the rate of 500 per month.

Modern family minus electricity

What would you do without low-cost electric service in your home? Well—you could use candles. And build fires. And use elbow grease for all the jobs Reddy Kilowatt does automatically. If you did, you would be reminded quickly—and forcefully—how much your electric service does at such low costs for each of the many jobs. Your electric service is the biggest bargain in your family budget. What else gives you so much value in comfort, health, ease and fun? Keeping your electric service high in usefulness, low in cost is the main job of your electric service company.

Home Service Director, Carnation Company

This time of year, strawberries are at their flavorful best. For an easy-to-prepare family dessert, make your Strawberry Shortcake and the topping with Carnation Evaporated Milk. Remember, its double richness and heat-refining make it specially suitable for baking. And don't forget, Carnation is so rich it whips.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

Use your favorite brand of packaged biscuit mix calling for milk but instead of regular milk, use a mixture of 2 parts Carnation Evaporated Milk diluted with 1 part water. Prepare and bake according to package directions. Split biscuits and fill with sliced, sweetened strawberries. Instead of expensive whipping cream, use Carnation Whipped Topping.

CARNATION WHIPPED TOPPING

(Makes 3 cups)

1. Chill 1 cup undiluted Carnation in icecube tray until ice crystals form through the milk (25 to 30 minutes) or place the unopened can on chopped ice for 2 to 4 hours.
2. Pour into bowl and whip until it just begins to thicken (about 1 minute).
3. Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice and whip until very stiff (about 1 or 2 minutes more).
4. Fold in 2 tablespoons granulated sugar.
5. Serve immediately as a topping for shortcake, puddings, cakes, pies, many desserts.
