At a special meeting of the Commissioners Court Tuesday morning, county officials were sworn in for the new year getting under way. Joe Wagley succeeded Robert Martin as Commissioner of Precinct 3. This was the only change in Schleicher county officials.

Mr. Wagley was one of a four-man slate of candidates who ran last year, and he defeated L. L. Watson in the run-off Democratic Primary.

Other county officials whose terms were up for contest this past year were unopposed.

The first regular meeting of the Court for 1961 will be held Monday in the commissioners' court room.

Hospital notes

After being in the Shannon hospital three weeks to the day, your Eldorado publisher got back home Monday, but as yet is not on the job.

I left 25 pounds up there somewhere, and as a print shop hand I'm hardly worth a dollar a day, so am spending most of the time staying at home by the fire.

—ps—

Next let me thank the many people who sent letters and cards expressing their wishes for my recovery. They were all gratefully appreciated. For many years I've helped my customers "word" these expressions for the paper. This was the first time I was on the receiving end myself, and I understand better now how important those get-well messages are to the one who is laid up, and away from home.

—ps—

On the lighter side I can say this:

Being in a hospital through the Christmas period has at least one compensation—you're excused of a lot of last-minute Christmas shopping!

Another—if I had stayed there much longer I'm sure I would have sworn off drinking coffee! The stuff they served on our floor was gosh-awful. And of course the water they have in Angelo doesn't taste anything like the good product we have in Eldorado. (I'm entitled to at least that many grapes.)

—ps—

Anyhow it's good to be home, and it's nice to go to sleep without having someone immediately come in and wake me up to stick another hypo in my rump.

—ps—

The little dog that took up at my place two months ago, presented me with five new puppies while I was away. They are cute—and different—and in another month they'll be ready for new homes. First come, first served.

This is the month that the bulk of the poll taxes will be sold in the office of Orval Edmiston, Schleicher county sheriff and tax assessor and collector. Personnel in the office report that sales are slow and they remind everyone that deadline will be Jan. 31.

You must pay your poll tax in order to vote in any elections that may come up during the remainder of the year. In most other states, the voters "register," but Texas is still a poll tax state.

While this is an "off year" in state and national politics, there may be city elections, school elections, bond elections, "wet" elections, coming up later in the year for action of the voters.

Also, January is the month that property is rendered for state and county taxes.

Austin.—Forecasters are fond of saying, "That which is going to happen has already begun."

If so, the first year of the new decade, 1960, was strewn with weathervanes to point the course of Texas in the next nine years.

Among major Texas events in the opening year of the sixties were these:

1. Party Primaries were held in May and June, two months earlier. New dates ended old traditions, like announcing with the dogwood, campaigning in the heat. For the first time in years, challengers topped two incumbents from state-wide office, a fact that's bound to encourage future activity from young men "waiting in the wings."
2. Democratic Conventions, the temptuous as always, were held in control by the joint leadership of Gov. Price Daniel and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson. Johnson won near-unanimous backing for his presidential bid at the June state convention, an event which marked the end of the left-wing DOT. After the national convention in July, dissension arose in the other wing. Many conservative Democrats bucked at supporting Standard-bearer John Kennedy and the liberal national platform. Enough became "Texans for Nixon" to make Texas a "doubtful state." Sears and divisions of 1960 will inevitably be re-opened when Texas Democrats get together again in '62 and '64.
3. 1960 Census reports confirmed predictions that Texas will be a metropolitan state in the sixties. Overall, population grew from 7,711,194 in 1950 to 9,579,677. Sixty per cent of the increase was in the four largest cities. In addition, in every growth area, cities increased their populations at the expense of surrounding rural counties. This did not alter the state total, but changed the make-up of population—now 70% urban, and 30% rural. Result will be a strong push for more urban representation in the legislature, more state-level sympathy for city problems.
4. State Finance Problems never were out of the news, as both public officials and private citizens circled the issue that will come to a boil in this year's legislative session. State Finance Advisory Commission, appointed by Governor Daniel in May, worked through the summer and fall. In December it recommended a one per cent payroll tax to raise the more than $100 million a year the state is expected to need in new money. Meanwhile, meetings were held by practically everybody—teachers, labor and business groups, all with a vital interest in future taxing and spending decisions.
5. Auto Insurance Rates, under a new merit rating plan, have for good or ill stirred more commotion than a back-firing Model-T at a horse auction. Last Legislature turned down flexible rating and instructed Board of Insurance to consider safety incentives and driving records in setting statewide rates. Result was a plan, begun last January 1, basing auto insurance rates on the drivers' arrest record for past three years, including traffic tickets as well as accidents. Drivers whose rates jumped because of minor violations were irate. Those with spotless records got lower rates and were generally happier. A number of lawmakers have promised to look into the matter thoroughly this year.
6. Gas Tax Suit, begun in early 1960, probably will be in the courts another year. In the past, gas pipeline companies won rulings that the severance beneficiary tax is unconstitutional in district court and the Court of Civil Appeals. In months ahead, the case will go to the Texas Supreme Court and the U. S. Supreme Court. If the tax is upheld, future efforts to raise the rate are certain. If, as in the case of the gas gathering tax in 1953, it is held unconstitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court, it is unlikely that even the most ardent gas tax advocates will try again to raise revenue by this route.
7. Race For Speaker of the House, as tight and uncertain as in 1959, brought renewed suggestions that "there ought to be a better way." Whether Rep. Wade

Spilman of McAllen or Rep. James Turman of Gober wins in the secret ballot of House members on January 10, it will be several weeks before either can get committees organized and ready for business. To add to the confusion, prospective candidates for Speaker in 1963 already are jockeying for position. Some have suggested a constitutional amendment to permit representatives-elect to meet and elect a presiding officer a month or so before the session's actual opening. Another proposal is to let the people decide by making the post an elective one the same as in the Senate. Advantage besides letting the voters have a choice is the fact that the decision would be reached in November and the House could go to work immediately on the opening day of the session. Also it would eliminate all of the bitterness that is created under the present system.

8. Tourist and New Industry promotion got under way in 1960, despite penny-ante budgets. Highway Department brought out its first tourists' brochure, a 32-page booklet in four colors. This year it will ask the Legislature for $300,000 to place advertisements in national publications. Texas Industrial Commission also produced a brochure, but says it cannot compete with other states on a $23,750 a year budget. It will ask the Legislature for $420,000 a year. Both the tourist and industry seeking agencies contend that Texas cannot achieve its growth potential in the sixties unless it goes in with six-figure budgets comparable to those of competing states.
9. Texas Tidelands ownership, a paramount issue in the forties and fifties, finally was laid to rest in June, 1960. U. S. Supreme Court, to the surprise of many, ruled that Texas owns the submerged lands 10½ miles out into the Gulf. If the land is as oil-rich as hoped and if there is a market for the oil, tidelands revenue will augment the permanent school fund in the years ahead.
10. Senator Johnson's Election as vice president opened the door for more lively politicking in 1961 to decide his Senate successor. Field is already crowded with the likelihood of a dozen candidates before the filing deadline passes. Conceivably, someone who already holds an office could be elected, setting off a chain reaction of moves up the political ladder.

The 1959 Census of Agriculture, conducted in Schleicher County last fall, counted 225 farms, according to a preliminary report just issued by the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce. Chapel of the First Baptist church in Irving was the scene of wedding rites solemnized Saturday night, December 17, for Miss Elizabeth Ann Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Alexander of Irving, formerly of Eldorado, and James William Ellis. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Robert Roy Ellis of Denton, and the late Dr. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Alexander of Eldorado are grandparents of the bride.

The Rev. C. E. Colton performed the ceremony assisted by the Rev. Henry Kinkead of Irving. Music was presented by Allen Collier and Mrs. Don Hastings, both of Irving.

Mr. Alexander gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a formal length gown of beau de soie and Chantilly lace, designed with a molded bodice and lace yoke forming a scalloped neckline. The bouffant skirt with wide sweeps of scalloped lace extended into a chapel length train. A matching hat held her veil, and her bridal bouquet was centered by white orchids.

Honor attendants were Miss Donna Beth McCormick of Eldorado and Austin, and Jack Pinkston of Lewisville. Mrs. Charles Stewart was bridesmaid, and Frank Taylor was groomsmen. Ushers were Gregory Ellis of Fort Worth, Raymond Crabtree of Denton and Charles Stewart.

A reception was held in the church. Assisting in the house party were Mrs. Jack Pinkston of Lewisville, Mrs. Frank Taylor and Miss Mary Blakslee of Dallas.

Both North Texas State College graduates, the bride was graduated from high school in Irving, and Mr. Ellis was graduated from high school in Denton. Residence for the couple will be 3921 Rawlins, Dallas.

Mrs. Ellis spent her childhood in Eldorado, her father having been a bookkeeper in the First National Bank here. She is a member of the El Dorado Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Fault Finding Facts

It's the easiest thing in the world to do.

It is a vocation which is overcrowded.

There are no strikes among the fault finders, because there is no physical or mental efforts required to keep on the job.

The fault finder usually has little education in the things that were, that are, or that will be in connection with the objects of fault finding.

Robert West tells us that "no talent, no self denial, no brains no character are required to set up the yrumblinu business."

The fault finder does not examine himself, which gives him ample time to pick to pieces the work of those busily engaged in profession or industry or religious pursuits.

Fault finders should know the fable that "Jupiter has placed upon us two wallets. Hanging behind each person's back, he has given one full of his own faults, in front he has hung one full of other people's."

Therein lies the trouble. The grumbler can look into the wallet in front and see the faults of others, but he cannot see into the bag that contains his own, and is not very anxious to.

Cunningham says: "The faults of our neighbors with freedom we blame, but tax not ourselves though we practice the same."

Fault finders live in houses decorated with all the flaws and imperfections they can find in their surrounding. They have the eye of an eagle and the appetite of a vulture as they prey upon the refuse of humanity, and feed their hungry soul on mistakes and ignorance of others.

"And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?" Matt. 7:3.

After all isn't fault finding a habit that most of us have fallen into, on which we need to do a little work? Now isn't it?

Fool me once shame on you, fool me twice shame on me.

When you are positive in your mistake, you are just positively mistaken.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sudduth and family from Brenham visited over the holidays in the Edwin Childers and C. B. Sudduth homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Russell and daughters Kathlin and Susan of Ozona spent Christmas with Mrs. Ora Davis.
