Four Road Projects Are Under Way In County

There are four separate road projects going on now in Schleicher county.

Brown Construction Co., has been awarded contract for the 5.6 mile stretch which will go south from the Menard highway just east of town, following the railroad track, and go down to Capt. Thomson's place.

(2) Right of way is being fenced on the 6.035 mile link in the Reynolds community, on west of H. A. Belks. When completed, this will link the two other present paved roads.

(3) Fencing of right of way will start soon on a 3.106 mile road in Bailey Ranch. It will be an extension of the present one.

(4) Bringing highway 915, the Mertzson road, into Eldorado a block south of its present intersection with the San Angelo highway is the fourth project. Right of way has been secured and arrangements have been made to move the Congregational Methodist church building over to another corner in the same block where it now is.

Local Lions Attend District Convention

Five members of the Eldorado Lions club attended the District 2A1 convention last week end in Big Spring. Those from here were John Stigler, president of the local club; George Cales, who will succeed Mr. Stigler soon as president; and Ray Boyer, Fred Watson, and Raymond Hall.

The group report an enjoyable time at the convention. San Angelo was selected as site of the 1962 district convention.

A. E. Prugel of Sonora was elected to the board of directors of the Lions crippled children's camp at Kerrville. Two Eldorado crippled children are to attend the camp this summer.

J. T. Jones, school superintendent at Goldthwaite, was elected new district governor.

Thursday, tonight, is charter night for the newly formed Latin American Lions club in Sonora. A ladies' night program will be held in the school cafeteria and several Eldorado Lions and their ladies plan to attend.

Absentee Voting On In Senate Runoff

Absentee voting is now going on in the county clerk's office for the runoff election in the special U. S. Senate contest, to be held over Texas May 27.

J. P. Enoch, county clerk, reports that voting started Monday in his office and that deadline for persons to vote absentee will be May 23, a Tuesday.

Wm. A. Blakley and John G. Tower are the two whose names are on the ballot. They emerged as top two contenders in the recent election which had 71 candidates.

HOUSE DEAL MADE

Williams Real Estate closed a deal this week for the sale of a house in the east part of town owned by John R. and Ray Jones. The buyer was W. L. Fisher, who is an El Paso employee. The legal description of the property is Lot No. 8, block 3 in the original town-site.

O'BANION INFANT DIES

Graveside funeral services were held yesterday, Wednesday, at 2:00 p.m. for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Banion.

The baby was born in the Sonora hospital early Monday morning and died Tuesday. She was the O'Banion's first child.

Mr. O'Banion is music director and associate pastor of the First Baptist church.

Post Script

Building going on:

An addition is being built onto the Dean Day house, north of the school.

C. L. Martin, Sr., is in charge of work going on at the rock Courts building on the Angelo highway which is being converted into new quarters for Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. By Tuesday, the concrete blocks were being put in place to close in the open south wall of the structure.

Bennie Harkey has men at work on his lot at the intersection of the Sonora and Big Lake highways where his new Humble service station is to be built. The large gasoline storage tanks are on the lot and two large pits have been scooped out for them.

A new subscriber to the Eldorado Success is Tom Gattis of Pilot Point, Texas. Mr. Gattis lived here early in the century when Schleicher county was new and the town of Eldorado was being established. He knew F. M. Bradley, "Uncle Bob" Evans, and other early-day residents.

He recalls that the stagecoach provided public transportation, and that when it turned over once near here, the "reck" was duly reported in the Eldorado newspaper.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Phillips have their three large brooder houses full of young turkeys at this time. Altogether there are 6,000 of the young turks—about 2,000 in each building.

They were received on April 17 from a firm in Ozona and Phillips has a contract to raise them until they are 9 weeks old, and then they will be shipped out.

It seems there is more to it than just providing housing and feed—getting these turkeys off to a good start sometimes runs into a lot of work, according to Mrs. Phillips, and if you don't watch out they can die by the hundreds before you know it.

For the first week or so the big problem is that they want to pile up and when they do the ones on the bottom of the pile will smother to death.

Why do they pile up? It is just because they are frightened. "For the first week and a half, they just about ran us to death, reported the Phillips. "By the time we got 'em scattered out in one building, we had to hurry to the next one and break up the piles there."

Then there was the hail storm that hit Eldorado about two weeks ago, and that certainly didn't help. Anyone who has been in metal-roofed house during a hail storm knows what an awful racket it makes, and that was all it took to turn 6,000 young turkeys into a frenzied mob. "We really had our hands full there for a little while," observed Mrs. Phillips.

But they are pretty well house-broke and tamed down by now, and living around the Phillips premises has again returned to near normal. The young birds are growing fast and are interesting to see, but visitors are kindly requested to come quietly—leave your firecrackers at home, if you please.

Visitors at the Eldorado Success office yesterday morning were Mr. and Mrs. Vern Hitchcock of Williams, Iowa. They were on their way back to Iowa after spending the winter at Donna, Texas. We had in common the fact that some of their relatives were also our relatives.

We haven't had anything to say about puppies in a long time. Now Mickey Pennington tells us that he has two that are about seven weeks old, and will be glad to let them go to anyone who will give a good home. He says they are both white—one has brown spots and the other black spots.

Since the writer of this column has had several years' experience doing his own cooking, he feels qualified now to give advice to future homemakers and home ec. students on the cooking of hard-boiled eggs.

DON'T put 'em on the burner and go off and forget all about them.

We did, and when we returned three hours later the water was all gone and the eggs had exploded.

If this happens to you, you can do a respectable job of cleaning with broom, mop and wash rag, and the stove, floor, walls, and ceiling will look just about as good as ever.

It takes longer to get the smell out.

Soil Stewardship Being Observed This Week

Soil Stewardship Week, May 7-14, is an important time for people throughout America, both rural and urban, for it is a time for emphasizing the importance of soil in the lives of people everywhere.

Soil Stewardship literature has been distributed to churches and civic organizations, and the subject will receive special mention in local pulpits this Sunday. At the Lions club yesterday the program was devoted to soil stewardship.

Soil Stewardship Week is a time for renewing awareness of man's responsibility to the land. It is not a reminder to the farmer or rancher alone, but a reminder to everyone who would put a spade to the soil. The contractor with his housing development, the engineer with his highway, the lumberman with his sawmill, and even the gardener with his plot of ground, share in the responsibility this week emphasizes. It is a week also of acquainting the city dweller with the role good land use plays in his life.

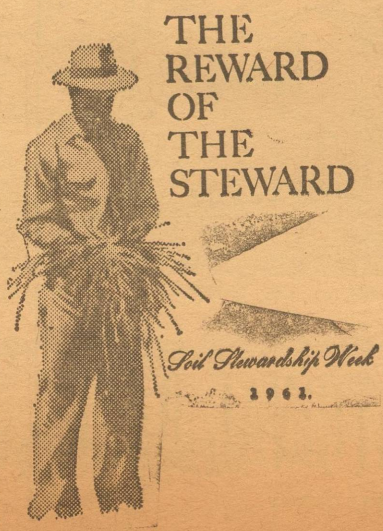

After all, to whom does the land really belong? To you? To me? Isn't it a fact that it doesn't belong to any of us at all? Aren't we really just stewards of the land as well as everything we acquire in life?

We come into the world with nothing and leave it the same way. For we return to the land from whence we came, and what we leave behind us we leave to those who come after us.

That is why the care of the land becomes so important to us.

Yes, all of us have an interest in Soil Stewardship Week; but soil stewardship is not a matter for this week alone. Every week is Soil Stewardship Week for those who have caught its real meaning: That wasted land and land created poor "have no higher destiny unless they be aided by men."

THE REWARD OF THE STEWARD

Woullard To Attend Spanish Institute

Texas Tech has accepted 46 elementary and secondary teachers of Spanish for its Summer Language Institute sponsored by the National Defense Education Act, June 2 to July 27.

The institute is part of a nationwide drive to improve multilingual capabilities of American citizens.

The participants will receive a stipend of $75 a week plus $15 for each dependent during the institute if they are public school teachers. This is provided in a $69,385 grant from the NDEA to Texas Tech to sponsor the institute in this region.

The Tech institute will train the 46 public school teachers of Spanish in the newest techniques of instruction and give them an opportunity to improve their oral command of the language through practice with native speakers. They were chosen from 250 applicants from 30 states.

Participants were selected for their degree of interest, the extent to which they could benefit from the institute's training and on their probable future contribution to the teaching of Spanish.

Teachers accepted include Leslie Woullard, teacher in Eldorado High school.

John Stigler
JEWELER

Cabells, Inc. of Dallas, has sent us a copy of a letter written by his grandfather, General W. L. Cabell, which substantiates our story of some weeks ago about the battle flag of the Confederacy and also offers a number of other interesting observations.

General Cabell, who was chief quartermaster for the Confederate Army, wrote the letter at the request of the editor of "The Confederate Veteran" magazine sometime before 1900 and the letter was reprinted in that magazine in August of 1903.

According to General Cabell, the first effort of Confederate commanders to avoid confusion of troops was that of General Beauregard who ordered a small red badge to be worn on the left shoulder of each soldier. General Beauregard was moved to send such an order following the battle at Blackburn Ford on July 18, just prior to the heavier engagement at Manassas.

This type of identification was insufficient, however, for General Cabell wrote that a great number of Federal soldiers also wore a red shoulder badge and related that he saw such badges on prisoners captured that day at Manassas.

General Cabell recalled in his letter that Generals Johnston and Beauregard met at Fairfax court-house shortly after the battle of Manassas to discuss the need for a flag that could be easily recognized. The chief quartermaster was asked to come to Fairfax to meet with the two Confederate commanders, each of whom had drawn up a prospective flag.

"Gen. Johnston's flag was in the shape of an ellipse, a red flag with blue St. Andrew's cross and stars on the cross to represent the different Southern States. (No white border of any kind was attached to this cross.) Gen. Beauregard's was a rectangle, red with blue St. Andrew's cross and stars similar to Gen. Johnston's."

It was finally decided that the elliptical flag would be too hard to make and would take more cloth and the three men adopted the flag known at first as the Beauregard flag and later as the battle flag—the only Confederate flag that many Southern soldiers ever saw.

General Cabell issued "an address to the good ladies of the South to give their red and blue silk dresses, and send them to Capt. Colin McRae Selph, quartermaster at Richmond, Va." There Captain Selph was assisted by the two Carey sisters from Baltimore, Mrs. Gen. Henningsen of Savannah and Mrs. Judge Hopkins of Alabama in making the first flags. The Carey sisters made battle flags for General Beauregard and General Van Dorn and General J. E. Johnston, General Beauregard's flag they made from their own dresses.

General Cabell's wife, who was also in Richmond at that time, made a flag out of her own dresses and sent it to her cousin who commanded an Arkansas regiment. The flag was lost at the battle of Elk Horn tavern but was recaptured by a Missouri division under Gen. Henry Little.

It soon became apparent to General Cabell that it would be impossible to get enough silk to make a sufficient number of flags and he issued a circular letter to the quartermasters of all regiments and brigades in the Confederate Army to make flags of any blue and red cloth suitable.

In his letter General Cabell denied a then-current rumor that the battle flag was first designed by a Federal prisoner and said there was "not one word of truth in it. No living soul except Gens. Beauregard and Johnston and myself knew anything about the flag until the order was issued direct to me to have them made as soon as it could be done."

Just 100 years ago the last symbol of the Union in Texas disappeared. Fort Stockton, the one remaining outpost in the state still under federal control, surrendered to Texas troops. This surrender brought to more than 20 the number of federal forts and camps that had capitulated to Confederate sympathizers in Texas since the outbreak of hostilities.

The federal government had established the forts in Texas at the close of the Mexican War to protect settlers from hostile Mexican and Indian raiding parties. Now these same forts were being delivered into the hands of troops representing the Committee of Public Safety appointed by the secession convention and in accordance with an agreement signed earlier by General David E. Twiggs who was commander of the Department of Texas, at his headquarters in San Antonio.

Actually there were two lines of forts which the federal government had built in Texas. One of these, established partly under the provisions of the Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo at the close of the Mexican War, stretched from Brownsville at the mouth of the Rio Grande to El Paso. The forts were designed to discourage invasion from Mexico and also to discourage the movement of Texas Indian tribes such as the Comanches back and forth across the border.

Forts included in this line were Fort Brown near Brownsville, Ringgold Barracks at Rio Grande City, Fort McIntosh at Laredo, Fort Duncan at Eagle Pass, Camp Hudson in Val Verde county, Fort Lancaster in Crockett county, Fort Stockton, Fort Davis, Fort Quitman in Hudspeth county and Fort Bliss at El Paso.

The other line of forts stretched all the way from Fort Duncan on the Rio Grande across the plains of Texas to the Red River and anchored at Fort Wichita in the Indian Territory of Oklahoma. Purpose of this line was to hold back the Indians who sometimes ventured into the settled areas of north, central and south Texas.

The forts in this line included Fort Clark at Brackettville, Fort Inge at Uvalde, Camp Wood in Real county, Camp Verde at Kerrville, Fort Mason in Mason county, Camp Colorado near Coleman, Fort Chadbourne in Coke county and Camp Cooper in Throckmorton county.

The first of these outposts to be abandoned to Confederate sympathizers was Camp Cooper, the largest fort in the northwestern part of the state. The 260 U. S. Army troops of Company H, 1st Infantry, D and H, 2nd Cavalry, all under the command of Captain S. D. Carpenter, abandoned the fort on February 21, 1861.

The abandonment was effected following a surrender demand from Colonel W. C. Dalrymple who was advancing on the post with a command of volunteer citizens acting under orders from the Committee of Public Safety.

From then thru March and April of 1861, the other posts fell one by one until only Fort Stockton in Pecos county was left. The abandonment of this fort was finally effected on April 25 and with this surrender the last symbol of the Union in Texas disappeared.

But with the passing of this last vestige of Union ties, another problem appeared to plague Texas. Now that the Union soldiers were gone, how would the Indians be kept back from the populated areas? And what would happen should Mexico try to retake the territory she had lost at the end of the Mexican War?

This was a problem that would not be fully solved until Union troops returned at the close of the war to reestablish the frontier forts they had built prior to 1861.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gunstead spent the week end in the North Texas area. They attended the community homecoming Sunday at Pilot Point, in Denton county, returning home that night.

Mr. and Mrs. Rusty Dannheim and children of Euless visited this week in Eldorado with Rusty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dannheim.

The Woman's Club Has Guest Speaker

The Eldorado Woman's club met in the woman's club room on Tuesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. L. D. Ochsner, presiding, and Mrs. Edwin Jackson, secretary.

In the business session Mrs. R. D. Johnson gave an interesting report on International Affairs. A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Walter Ramsay and Miss Ruth Baker for the new library marker. Mrs. Gladys Mittel offered a motion to postpone the next meeting one week and meet on May 30th instead of the 23rd. This meeting will be a no-hostess luncheon which will be served at the club room in the Memorial Building at 12:30 Noon. Members may bring guests if desired.

Mrs. Gladys Mittel was leader of the program and introduced Mrs. Harold Scherz of Sonora who gave a very interesting review of the book, "The Ugly American" by William Lederer and Eugene Burdick. The story is entirely fictional and is based on an imaginary country in Asia. The book has caused much criticism, but no one has been able to refute some of the facts brought out. The reason the Americans were ugly to them was because their ideas conflicted with the ideas of the Soviet Nation. The book is intended to point out some of the common failures of Americans in foreign countries.

The hostesses, Mrs. R. D. Johnson and Mrs. Edwin Jackson served ice cream, cake, coffee and tea to Mmes. W. A. Van Dusen, Lummie Whitten, John Luedecke, C. N. Clark, Archie Mittel, L. D. Ochsner, W. N. Ramsay, Joe Edens, W. O. Alexander, D. C. DuBose, and Jess Blaylock, members, and Mrs. Harold Scherz of Sonora, Mrs. J. L. Ratliff and Mrs. Rosalie Bilbo of Eldorado, guests. Mrs. Bilbo is the wife of the minister of the new Church of Christ.

A Bishop Looks At Life

By Everett H. Jones, Bishop of The Episcopal Diocese of West Texas

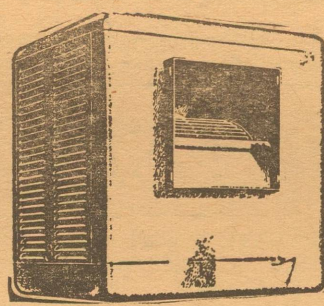

On Being Oneself

In 1845 a young man 28 years of age, whose trade, at the time was the pencil business, left the town in which he lived and built himself a hut at the edge of a secluded pond. There he lived for two years, alone. The man's name was Henry David Thoreau, and one of the fruits of this period of solitude was a book called "Walden," one of the classics of American literature. The impact of the book has increased rather than decreased with the passage of time. Undoubtedly one reason for the appeal of this volume is that it represents one man's valiant effort to be himself.

It might seem a simple matter to say that a person ought to be himself. The truth is that it gets harder every day. The pressures toward conformity, the striving to achieve certain generally recognized symbols of status, the vicious criticism so quickly leveled today against persons of independent and forward looking thought (of course the favorite device is to call them Communists!) — these and a thousand more subtle influences keep most of us from beginning to develop that spark of uniqueness which God has planted in us—and which might be developed if we had two years alone beside Walden Pond!

A recent writer, James F. Fixx, has summed up the power of even one person dedicated to being his own best and truest self: "The mind that is aware of itself, that respects its own uniqueness, exerts a far more significant influence than the one that is simply adrift in the intellectual currents of its day. It can, by being an articulate dissenter, check the influence of the crowd. It can choose the best ideas and carry them to other minds. Because of the persuasive force of one personality acting upon another, it can be an agent of incalculable good."

HIGHWAY DEPT. LAUNCHES DRIVE FOR CLEAN ROADS

Austin.—The Texas Highway Department has launched a new slogan in its anti-litter campaign: "Be a neatnik, not a litterbug."

This plea comes from Texas Highway Department maintenance crews all over the state as they haul mountains of cans, bottles, paper, decaying food, and other litter from Texas highway right of way.

"Spring houseclean our Texas highways all year long by fighting that urge to toss litter from your car," they recommend.

Throwing litter on highways and roadsides is prohibited by law. Last year 281 cases against litter-throwing were completed in Texas courts. Of this number, 269 were found guilty and were fined or punished by other means.

Highway maintenance men point out that litter is local for the main part, coming from resident litterbugs and not from out-of-staters or from phantom travelers from "up the road." Surveys reveal that the litterbug is a local person, possibly a civic-minded citizen in all other phases of his life, but he fails to see the multiplication factor when he tosses out an empty cigarette package, wad of paper, or soft drink bottle. He would not toss these objects down in his own yard, or in a friend's; but he will thoughtlessly take over the highway as his own private trashbasket.

Other evidence of the "resident litterbug" is sometimes a can-and-bottle trail. Maintenance foremen report that the biggest dead-soldier tossouts are about a drink away (by car) from the nearest local emporium. Cost of removal has been estimated at one-half cent per can. Maintenance crews join poet Richard Armour in his hurry-up order to science for an edible beer can.

Maintenance men point out: No machine can pick up litter. It has to be hand-picked. That makes it an expensive operation. Last year the clean-up and mowing bill for 57,500 maintained miles of Texas highways totaled more than $7 million. This included picking up, hauling, and unloading rubbish. Another chore for maintenance men is removal of dead animals, removal of rocks and rock piles. Wrecked cars must be hauled off. Advertising signs in the right of way must be taken down. Maintenance crews are also responsible for mowing the grass, removing brush, and keeping vegetation from the highway markers and guard posts.

A maintenance foreman explains "We could do our mowing job so much quicker and save money if we didn't have to pick up all the cans, bottles, and litter before we start. A heap of litter hidden in the grass can wreck an expensive machine or an automobile. Cutting grass is more than just trying to keep a neat highway yard. Mowing reduces fire hazard and prevents spreading of weed seed to nearby farms. Tall grass and brush can also distort sight distances and result in expensive and tragic automobile smashups.

"Take a count of the litter objects you see the next time you are on the road. Even though we have regular maintenance crews making periodic litter pickups, that busy litterbug is still way ahead of us. Help us out. Be a 'neatnik.' Litter? Don't throw it; stow it—till you get to a proper disposal unit."

Our Washington News Letter

O. C. Fisher

By a margin of 26 votes, a liberal Democrat-Republican coalition last week pushed through the House a new minimum wage bill, boosting the minimum to $1.25 an hour and extending coverage to nearly 4 million.

A pressure drive by the leadership saw some 15 southern Democrats switch over and support the bill after having previously voted against it.

The 15 Texans voting against were: Fisher, Alger, Burleson, Casey, Dowdy, Ikard, Kilday, Kildore, Mahon, Poage, Rogers, Ruthertford, Teague, Thompson, and Young. Supporting the bill were Wright, Beckworth, Patman, Thomas, Brooks and Thornberry.

From the start to finish it was essentially a conservative-liberal battle, with the chief pressures coming from politicians and labor union leaders. Thirty-three House GOP members switched over to join in a coalition with the Democratic liberals to cinch the victory.

Union leaders have insisted that to increase the wage levels by Federal law would tend to retard the exodus of so much industry from the high-wage north and east to the lower-rate south, where the cost of living is lower than in the metropolitan areas.

The increase in unemployment expected from the legislation will not be felt much for a year or so, since the law will not be fully effective for two years. Small businesses will suffer the most, and older, handicapped and other less productive workers will be the first to lose jobs. But a special government relief program is prepared to take care of such cases.

Over-all, the chief adverse effect will probably result from the inflation caused by the expected drive for wage increases across the board, once the lower bracket is lifted upward. The tight competitive squeeze with products imported from countries that have no such high minimums, is sure to be felt. Labor unions are known to regard this legislation as a major break for them in their drive for ever higher wages across the board.

Humble Introduces New Gasoline And New Trademark: Enco

Today Humble Oil & Refining Company unveiled its new Enco trademark to motorists of Texas and the Southwest. Announcement of the new brand name was made last week.

Enco comes from the company's slogan, "America's Leading Energy Company," adopted after the merger last year of domestic affiliates of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) into the new Humble Oil & Refining Company.

The new trademark will identify Humble gasolines, motor oils and other products throughout the West, Middle West and Southwest. Except in Texas, Enco will also be used in the oval sign identifying service stations selling Humble products. In Texas, service stations will continue to be identified by an oval Humble sign.

By replacing 12 different brand names and four different service station identification signs established before the merger, Enco is expected to end a confusion of brand names among the company's customers as they travel from state to state.

Two new premium gasolines make their debut under the Enco trademark. Through an exclusive combination of additives developed by Humble research, these new premium gasolines give cars what Humble calls an "energy boost."

Humble engineers say this energy boost results from greater engine efficiency achieved by the cleansing action of the new combination of additives.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

by Tiny Godwin

Schleicher County Agricultural Agent

Wool producers are farther along this year with shearing and probably will finish in the county much earlier than usual.

Wool preparation has been foremost in the producers mind, because higher the grease price the higher the incentive payment. Regardless of the quality of wool a poorly prepared clip can cost the rancher money.

Producers are seeing that shearing boards should be 6' x 8' with 2" x 2" trips at the edge, good tying racks that sift tags, 3 note sacking racks, seeing that the sacked wool does not touch the ground, tagging well in advance of shearing, taking more time to see that fleeces are rolled from the neck with nothing but side wool showing and that all bags are flat packed weighing not over 185 pounds.

The keeping of the shearing boards clean are a must with at least one man or boy with a broom, two trained pickers and a trained sacker and tyer are necessary. The use of clean oil on shearing heads and packing all coarse or broken wool separately.

A good percentage to shoot at as to how much tags should be taken is 3% of the total weight of the clip. This could vary down to 2% with a good early tagging of sheep to be shorn.

Every year more and more Texas cotton is machine harvested, resulting in a larger supply of cotton burs at the gin. To dispose of these burs, most ginners burn them, thereby increasing the fire hazard.

Research has proved, however, that there is a better use for gin waste. Under non irrigated conditions lint yields have increased 27 pounds to the acre, and the residual effect increased yields by 28 pounds per acre for five years.

A better infiltration rate of water was noted, and soils were more resistant to wind and water erosion.

Angular leaf spot, verticillium wilt or cotton seedlings diseases have not shown an increase, in fact, where land did not receive bur applications these diseases were more.

Cotton insects which reduce yields and lower grades have not built up in bur-treated soil. Cotton burs were released by the state department of agriculture and the plant quarantine service for use on land in 1951, provided certain handling methods were installed. Mikeska Gin has met these standards.

Ask for MP-476 Cotton Burs For Soil Improvement at your county agent's office.

Behind every successful man stands a devoted wife and a surprised mother-in-law.

It is fitting that a week should be set aside emphasizing man's responsibility as a steward of the land. We who live in a nation of plenty need to pause and reflect on our fortunate state. We need to renew our awareness of the permanence of the land as compared to the short time we may devote to the husbandry of it. I believe that to be a good husbandry of the land one has to pay a price but is rewarded in the end by prosperity and peace of mind of by working with nature and God.

Blessed are we who have a business in an area of fertile fields.

Blessed are they who mourn over low yields for they shall be comforted to know it wasn't their fault, but theirs.

Blessed are they that are meek, but will work, seek information, and plan for theirs will be a full life.

Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after knowledge for they shall inherit the better land.

Blessed are the charitable, for they will be lenient with fields and fertilizer.

Blessed are they who plant pure seed for they shall see the maker's handiwork in the harvest.

Blessed are they who make peace with the soil, for they shall be called children of God's land.

Blessed are they which are persecuted for being progressive, for theirs are the rewards of good homes and happy youngsters.

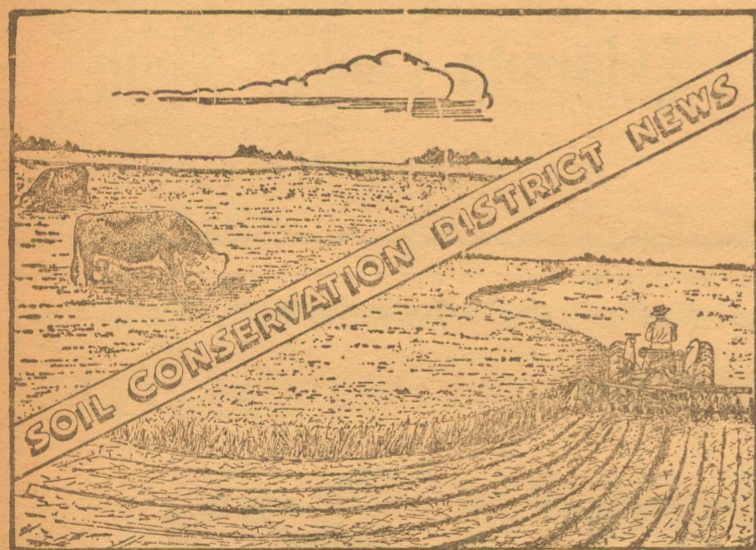

Blessed are ye when non-progressives shall say, let good enough alone.

Rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is your reward in your community, for so criticized were they, the progressives, who were before you.

Agriculture prepare a table for cities that are set on hills; and may well informed stewards recognize the basic values of good land and inhabit it.

Most of the knocking is done by those who do not know how to ring the bell.

Mrs. Alma Sauer and Joy went to San Angelo Wednesday to visit Mrs. Emma Castello and help her celebrate her birthday. Mrs. Castello is the mother of Mrs. Sauer and will accompany Alma home for a month's visit.

Great Plains Program Confab Held Here

The Great Plains conservation program was discussed at a meeting held recently at the county court house.

This session was held to determine the interest of land owners in the program, which is now under way in much of the Great Plains area.

It was brought out at the meeting that all counties surrounding Schleicher county except Menard county were either designated counties or had written in recently requesting to be designated. Sutton county has mailed in such a request to the state program committee for their consideration.

The Great Plains program was enacted by Congress Aug. 7, 1953, and went into operation in July, 1957. It is designed to promote soil, water, and plant conservation through a more coordinated conservation program.

The emphasis is being placed on the more enduring or permanent practices based on land capabilities. Long term financial aid is being offered through cost-share contracts to carry out needed land treatments. It is not a drought relief or disaster program, a replacement of other programs, an annual program, a production adjustment program nor an income supplement program.

Any landowner, or operator who has control of his land for a period of time equal to the life of the contract, is eligible to participate in the program. Contract periods are 3 to 10 years. The producers must develop and carry out a complete conservation program on his land to be eligible.

Technical assistance may be secured from the Soil Conservation Service and other agencies working in the county. The Soil Conservation Service is responsible for the administration of the program and other agencies of the Department of Agriculture are called on to help plan and carry out the program.

Contracts may be amended, modified or canceled under certain conditions. Acreage allotments and marketing quotas will not be decreased during the life of the contract. Cost-share rates are based on average cost of applying a practice. Maximum cost-share rates vary from 50 to 80 per cent of the average cost.

From here on the Legislature must make every minute count if it is to wind up essential business before the regular session ends on May 29. Despite the dwindling time, filibusters, postponements and disagreements have slowed down progress on tax-raising and other must legislation.

The House-passed 2 per cent sales tax faces two ultimatums. Gov. Price Daniel said he could not allow it to become law unless the total money-raising program puts more of the tax burden on business and less on individuals. Sen. Henry B. Gonzales of San Antonio said he would filibuster the sales tax if it came up in the Senate.

State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert estimated the House sales tax bill would raise in excess of $150 million a year. This is higher than other estimates and would provide enough or nearly enough to meet estimated revenue needs. Calvert, by law, has the final and official say-so on tax yield estimates. Gov. Daniel's veto threat chilled earlier optimism about an early wrap-up of money problems and turned House members to thinking again in terms of compromise and package bills.

Spending Conferees

A ten-man conference committee is at work ironing out the differences between House and Senate versions of the general appropriations bill. The House bill would cost about $16,000,000 more than the Senate's. Committee's task of striking a balance between the two is expected to take three weeks.

Senate members of this important committee are Senators Ray Roberts of McKinney, A. M. Aiken Jr., of Paris, Crawford Martin of Hillsboro, Grady Hazelwood of Amarillo and Wardlow Lane of Center. House members are James Cotton of Weatherford, Bill Hollowell of Grand Saline, B. H. Dewey of Bryan, J. W. Buchanan of Dumas and Malcolm McGregor of El Paso.

Teacher Pay Pushed

Advocates of higher teacher salaries are pushing to get their bill in position for quick final action once the money-raising and general appropriations measures are out of the way. The committee approved and sent to the floor a bill that would provide the full $800 a year salary increase sought by teachers. The goal is to get a pay raise passed in both houses, then send it to a conference committee to work out differences. Then at the strategic moment, it would be ready for final adoption by both houses.

Training Methods Scored

House members are pressing for speedy action for a measure that would require less emphasis on "how" and more emphasis on "what" in public school training. Rep. Henry C. Grover of Houston, a teacher on leave, is sponsor of the bill that would reduce required education (methods) courses from 24 semester hours to 12 for junior and senior high teachers. For grade school teachers the maximum would be reduced from a possible 60 to 24 semester hours. One supporter observed that the late Albert Einstein wouldn't have been eligible to teach mathematics in a Texas high school. The House voted to instruct the Education committee to report on the bill immediately.

Re-Districting Hits Bump

Senate efforts to pass a senatorial re-districting bill were postponed by Sen. Jap Fuller's filibustering opposition. Fuller of Port Arthur opposes the proposed measure because it would continue to combine Orange county with Jefferson (Beaumont, Port Arthur) to form his district. Jefferson county alone has more than enough voters to be a one-county district, says Fuller, and Orange would rather be in another district with counties of the same size.

Pressure to force agreement on a re-districting bill will be very strong, if the Legislature fails to act, a non-legislative board will take over.

Gloomy Reports

While lawmakers struggled to find new taxes, the news about present taxes was bad all over. State Treasurer Jesse James reported that Texans apparently are not smoking and drinking like they used to, causing a million dollar slump in tobacco and liquor taxes in April. Revenue dropped from $8,689,855 in March to $7,362,176 in April.

Motor fuel tax revenue was also off, according to State Highway Engineer DeWitt Greer. A 3 1/2 per cent drop during the past eight months cost the state $3,000,000.

Meanwhile, in the Third Court of Civil Appeals, the state lost in an effort to collect a state sales tax on component parts of radio sets, such as hi-fi tuners. The court said the law is not clear.

Loan Dispute Flares

Words were hot, but the issues unclear, as Senate committee hearings on a small loan bill stretched out. Critics of the House-passed bill fell into at least two factions. (1) those who felt the interest rates were too high and (2) those who felt that over-all charges should be higher for loans of $100 and less. Meanwhile Atty. Gen Will Wilson issued a statement blasting "powerful out-of-state loan sharks" trying to bottle up regulation. The Senate committee invited him to appear and discuss the matter with them.

More "Neatniks" Needed

Amid its $7 million a year job of gathering up mountains of litter from public roadsides, the Texas Highway Department issued a plea to Texas motorists. Please don't use the highway as a trash can, said the Department; be a "neatnik" and save on state costs. Most of the litterbugs, says the Department, are home grown, not out-of-state visitors.

Action and Reaction

After thousands of college students took a long, riotous weekend in Galveston, the Senate called on the Higher Education commission to look into why the students were not at their books.

In the opposite wing of the Capitol, the House passed two measures concerning the Gulf Coast area. One would authorize the state to turn over 88.5 miles of Padre Island to the federal government for national park development. Other is a proposed constitutional amendment that would give city and county governments authority to regulate traffic and sanitation on adjacent state-owned beaches.

A state agency, such as the Highway Department, would be authorized to set flexible speed limits, according to road conditions, under another proposal for constitutional change given House approval.

The House also passed proposed constitutional amendment removing the present $47,000,000 a year ceiling on state welfare spending. The change would allow the Legislature to appropriate for welfare would be matched federally.

Sixteen-year olds accused of very serious crimes could be tried as adults rather than in juvenile court under a House-passed bill. Present minimum age for adult handling is 17 for boys, and 18 for girls.

Running for one state office while holding another would be barred under a proposed constitutional amendment given preliminary House approval. All proposed amendments have to be approved by the people in the 1962 general election before becoming effective.

Short Snorts

A group of steel importing firms are seeking court action to stop the State Highway Department's ban of use of foreign made products in state highway projects. Suit was filed in a Travis County district court.

Construction contracts let during March in Texas set a record for that month of the year, reports the University Bureau of Business Research. Economists did not expect the peak to hold, but held hope that the renewed vigor meant the end of the building slump.

Texas' unemployment picture also brightened during March. The total number employed rose to 1,075,000, but the number of jobless persons was still higher than for the same month last year, said the Employment commission.

Rep. W. T. Oliver of Port Neches has announced that he is a candidate for Speaker of the House in the next Legislature. Oliver is generally regarded as a conservative.

Mrs. W. W. Sudduth is visiting for several days in Santa Anna with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Taylor.

Mrs. Ray West and three children of San Antonio visited most of last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Dacy.

Hubert Coy Hight was honored with a family picnic at Menard Sunday, with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hight of London as hosts. Relatives attended from Eola, Mason, and San Angelo. He is here on a two weeks' leave from the Army Reserve.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Wiedenmann and children of San Antonio visited in Eldorado with friends and with Mrs. Wiedenmann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McMillan, Friday through Sunday.
